WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence

The quid nuncs have had a toothsome morsel in the episode of Mr. Cleveland's guest. Mr. Hill set many other tongues wagging beside his own when he dined at the White House. And no event has stirred political Washington as this unexpected event of the New Year. The occasion was the first state dinner of the season, the members of the Cabinet being the especial guests of honor. It is the improbable that always happens, and Senator Hill pedestrially exemplified the truism when he was seen to leave his hotel and walk across the snow covered streets to the White House. He went to the dinner in a most democratic way, not even taking the trouble to secure a cab.

The meeting between these star actors—Senator and President—is described by the guests to have been a cordial one, with no indication in word or action that at any time there had existed the slightest difference between the two. Both gentlemen chatted pleasantly, and Mr. Cleveland nodded up to Mr. Hill in the smoking room after dinner for a quiet conversation which may have referred to the weather, as far as all appearances went, but which undoubtedly did not. Senator Hill said of the episode that it was the first time he had ever set foot in the White House except once in 1889, when he was compelled to visit the official part of the building upon public business. Hill loves the spectacular, and there is no question but that his appearance at the board of the man with whom he has been at swords points has given him all the notoriety that any man could ask.

Speculation about the real meaning and probable effect of Senator Hill's visit is wide, ranging from the question of personal reconciliation to that of how the episode may influence the future fortunes of the democracy. Two of the number ous views advanced are freely discussed by the friends of Mr. Hill. The suggestion that the senior New York Senator is to become the administration's leader on the floor of the Senate they repudiate outright. So far as the situation in New York state is concerned, the Hill men declare that the Senator has no need to strengthen himself in that direction. In their opinion the President has now no New York following whatever. After disposing thus of these two interpretations put upon the White House episode, the Hill men themselves suggest that the visit may have been designed to have a still broader effect than one relating merely to the fortunes of individuals. What objection is there, they ask, to looking upon Mr. Hill as a party peacemaker? They say that the democratic leader who no longer holds on any personal score, and hinders the re-establishment of good feeling and co-operation against the common enemy, will merit and be likely to receive, severe party condemnation.

The shabbiness and inadequacy of the Executive Mansion are never more evident than at this time, during the social whirl, when it is called into use for socio-official functions. Congress is fully advised of the crowded and uncomfortable condition of affairs at the White House, and the need of a commodious and appropriate home for the Chief Executive is a subject of constant discussion in official circles. Occasionally, when time hangs heavily on its hands, Congress has the matter up for discussion. But the patriotic members of this august body have so many matters of a personal character to deal with that they have no leisure in which to consider the dignity of the nation. The old house is, of course, kept in excellent condition, several thousand dollars being annually appropriated for this purpose. Its exterior, which is beautiful in design, is painted immaculately white, and all the modern improvements have been introduced into the interior. The private part of the house is comfortable and large enough for the President's immediate family, but there is no room to devote to the Nation's hospitality, and in entertaining travelling dignitaries this country quarters them at a hotel. For the large public receptions the space is quite insufficient, for the official part of the Executive Mansion is exactly as it was planned one hundred years ago. Mr. Cleveland has taken the bulk by the horns in his customary direct way, and has secured repose and quiet by renting a house out of town, to which he goes even when there is an important state paper to prepare. But this temporary arrangement does not solve the question for the future. It is to be hoped some coming President, in defiance of philistine sentiment, will fuse and fume and rage until something is done to improve the condition of the shabby old house which is a disgrace to a great and rich Nation.

Senators Cockrell, Gorman and Jones, democrats, and Senator Allison, republican, had an informal meeting a few days ago to discuss the prospects of correcting the present tariff law by amendments to the urgent deficiency bill. The presence of Mr. Allison was requested, because it was believed that he would know the sentiment of the republicans on the subject. After the conference it was stated that no attempt would be made to make the corrections. It was understood that Senator Allison rather guardedly expressed the opinion that the republicans would not look with favor upon the amendment scheme, and the democratic leaders who had assembled at this informal conference gave it as their opinion that there would be no serious effort made to pass any tariff legislation this session, even in the way of amendment.

BITS OF ONONDAGA ROMANCE.

Suggested by E. E. Howe's "Chronicles of Break O'Day."

The historical Johnson swamp, four miles west of Leslie, is the famous Johnson swamp, which for many miles in every direction was once visited by wagon loads of berry pickers. Since "The Chronicles of Break O'Day" appeared, there has been some discussion as to the part which Onondaga contributed to the romance. Many interesting details have been unfortunately forgotten, but the Local Republican, as correctly as possible and as fully as it has been able to gather it, presents the fragmentary traditional history on which certain chapters of Mr. Howe's novel are based.

In the spring of 1860 Rev. William Jones moved from Waterloo township, Jackson county, to what is now known as the Jones farm, three and one-half miles west of this place. He owned a large, powerful dog, which had bull blood and was very ferocious. In the night, just after he had retired, when the boxes, barrels and miscellaneous "traps" that had been brought by wagon, were still on the porch and scattered about the yard, he heard the dog growl from his newly-found den under the porch. Mr. Jones called to him to "be still." The animal recommenced his growling, and at last barking angrily, advanced into the yard. He was quieted by Mr. Jones, who went to the door, fearing that the dangerous brute might attack an innocent passer-by. It was about midnight when he heard a horse running furiously along the road to the eastward. The next morning Onondaga township was wild over the announcement that a horse had been stolen from Elmer D. Hunt who lived on the farm now owned by Thomas Symonds. Although Hunt spent the price of the horse, and that was no mean figure, he never recovered the stolen beast.

The Johnson swamp was then as wild and lonely a spot as could be found in Central Michigan. At all times of the year except the very hottest months of summer, it was surrounded by a zone of water which was waist deep. Its bushes in many places were so thick that one in the midst of them could see but a few feet before him. Berry pickers often searched for hours before reaching the hard land.

During a term of the Ingham county circuit court, which was held early in 1851, a large proportion of the cases were criminal and came from the township of Onondaga. Those legal giants, Austin Blair and Henry H. Shaw were arrayed against each other, the former for the prosecution, the latter for the defense, in contests, the curiosities and bitterness of which must make them long memorable. Then it transpired, that this accumulation of criminals in one township was not accidental. According to the confession of Peter Waggoner, he belonged to a gang organized for purpose of robbery and theft. But the trials did not end in a single conviction. They were not, however, without result. They broke up the organization that had so terrorized the community. They furnished local history that has been narrated with zest for more than fifty years,—Leslie Local Republican.

FEARFUL SUFFERING

STARVING MINERS IN OHIO EAT RAW FLOUR.

Minated Train Jumps the Track—An Oklahoma Attorney Disgraced—Trouble at Kansas Court House—About One-Cent Postage.

Many Miners Starving.

Over 40,000 people in Ohio are on the verge of starvation and there is imperative need for immediate relief. The investigation of their condition, commenced at the instance of Gov. McKinley, promises to reveal a harrowing state of affairs. One case has already been reported which shows the deplorable condition of these unfortunate people. A miner who had worked but five days in three months went to the grocery where he had always traded and asked for a sack of flour on credit. The grocer, having curried the unemployed to such an extent that he was nearly bankrupt, refused to let him have it, but the man frenzied with the refusal, seized the sack and ran home with it, and when an officer went to the house to arrest him he found the wife and children eating the sawdust, not having tasted bread for two days. He turned away and did not make the arrest. This is only one of 10,000 cases where people are actually starving in Athens, Perry and Hocking Counties, while three times that number are in desperate straits.

"Train Falls to the Ground.

While an engine of the Kings County Elevated Railroad was switching at Sneedler and Liberty avenues, getting ready to start back with four cars to the Brooklyn bridge, it ran off the end of the track and fell to the ground. It dragged one empty passenger car with it. The only men on the part of the train that fell, the engineer and firemen, were fatally injured.

It dragged one empty passenger car with it. The only men on the part of the train that fell, the engineer and firemen, were fatally injured.

There was a wholesale hanging of horse-thieves in the Cheyenne and Arapaho country the other day. The settlers down there have, ever since the opening, been the victims of marauding bands of horse and cattle thieves, and finding the authorities too slow in bringing offenders to justice, savage vigilantes were organized. In different parts of the country, to take the law into their own hands. Horse-thieves have been particularly bold of late, and the vigilantes a few days ago started on the trail of one band, followed it into the Panhandle of Texas and then back into the Cheyenne country, overtaking it near Cantonment. Here a battle followed, resulting in the wounding of George Gunnell and Slaneon Campbell, two of the vigilantes, and the capture of three of the thieves. The latter were hanged without much delay, and their bodies were shot to pieces and left hanging as a warning.

An explosion at the Moyer Coke plant at Uniontown, Pa., resulted in the injury of six men, four of whom will die. Corning mill No. 2 of the Miami Powder works, located five miles north of Xenia, Ohio, exploded, completely demolishing the building and killing three men. Two spinners were at work in the colliery at Hazelton, Pa., when the breast closed in on them, crushing them almost beyond recognition. Both men were married and leave large families.

Towns along the Ohio and the Eastern water courses, especially Pittsburg, were given a scare Monday but the worst, it is thought, is past. Heavy rains for forty-eight hours swelled the Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers to flood height. This is about eight feet less than the last flood four years ago. Over fifty boats were swept from their moorings along mills of the Carnegie Steel Company at Homestead. They were compelled to stand idle just as the strike collapsed. The Carrie furnaces, the Pittsburg wire works, and the Braddock wire works at Braddock were also compelled to close.

Don't worry about your health. More people make themselves ill by doing than that is generally supposed. If you are constantly imagining that there is something the matter with you, you will do yourself harm. Live as far as you are able a healthy life, and for the rest take your chance like a man. There are plenty of people who suffer a living death by allowing themselves to imagine that they are going to have every illness they read about.

Mr. VanRiper was the son of John and Maria VanRiper, and was born in Dexter, January 6, 1865. Willis was a young man who was respected by all who knew him, and his death is a terrible blow to his family, which consists of his mother, three brothers and a sister, his father having died a few years ago. The funeral services were held at the Baptist church to-day at 10:30 a.m., Rev. Wm. Walker conducting the same. A large number of his friends followed his remains to their last resting place.

Might Have Been Expected. The present rates of commercial electric lighting, as charged by the common council, are to be abolished, and the meter system introduced into the various business places instead. The city fathers have come to the conclusion that the lighting plant has not paid expenses, but has lost money during this first year of its operation. That is the only inference to be drawn from the frank statement of the committee that they have been furnishing light for less than the cost of manufacture—this being their reason for abolishing the existing schedule of rates and substituting meters. But few people are surprised at the outcome of the city's speculation in going into the electric lighting business. It is precisely in line with the predictions made in these columns two years ago, when the war was on. We do not make an unqualified assertion that different management might have brought about a different result, but there is no longer a doubt that city ownership has thus far proven itself to be anything but a success, financially.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

WORK OF OUR NATIONAL LAW-MAKERS.

Proceedings of the Senate and House of Representatives—Important Measures Discussed and Acted Upon—List of the Business.

The National Solon.

In the House Saturday Congressman Cockran made a vigorous speech against the currency bill. He advocated the Baltimore plan. He was seconded by Mr. Lacey of Iowa, Mr. Bland of Missouri, and Mr. Pence of Colorado, while Mr. Roemer of Louisiana and Mr. Cattin of Mississippi exhorted their party to unite in support of the measure.

It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melanches and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength. It's a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nerve, imparting vigor and strength to the entire system.

Mrs. ANNA ULRICH, of Elm Creek, Buffalo, N.Y., writes: "I enjoy good health thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I was under doctor's care for two years with womb disease, and gradually wasting in strength all the time. I was so weak that I could sit up in bed only a few moments, for I was recommended taking Dr. Pierce's favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and by the time I had taken one-half dozen bottles I was up and going whenever pleased.

And have had good health ever since—that was two years and a half ago."

Nothing to Furnish but a Coffin. The grand council of the Swiss canton of Neuenberg has decided that funerals shall hereafter be paid for by the public. The coffin in the future is to defray all expenses except that of the casket, which the family or relatives will provide. If necessary, however, the coffin will be supplied also. The expense of cremating bodies, however, must be borne by the friends or family. Under this arrangement such distinction—common enough in many parts of Europe as "first-class" and "second-class" funerals will be impossible.

Postage Stamp Perforation. In perforating postage stamps a die plate is placed below the needles of a machine carrying 800 needles. As about 180,000,000 holes are punched per day the wear on the die plate is excessive; brass plates wear out in a day and even steel plates are rapidly destroyed. The use of aluminum bronze has caused the die plates to last for months without renewal.

Alting Women, Why Do You Hesitate? "All I have to say is, any woman who continues to suffer with any of those trying diseases peculiar to our sex is largely responsible for her own suffering, for if she will only apply to Mrs. Pinkham, relief will follow at once."

The Rise of the Buckwheat Cake

The leaven of yesterday ruins the cake of to-day.

Don't spoil good buckwheat with dying raising-batter—fresh cakes want Royal Baking Powder.

Grandma used to raise to-day's buckwheats with the souring left over of yesterday! Dear old lady, she was up to the good old times. But these are days of Royal Baking Powder—freshness into freshness raises freshness.

And this is the way the buckwheat cake of to-day is made: Two cups of Buckwheat, one cup of wheat flour, two tablespoons of Royal Baking Powder, one half teaspoonful of salt, all sifted well together. Mix with milk into a thin batter and bake at once on a hot griddle.

Do not forget that no baking powder can be substituted for the "Royal" in making pure, sweet, delicious, wholesome food.

Value of Ball Bearings.

An experiment with ball bearings was recently made in Canada. The Delineator for February

Is the Midwinter number, and the contents bear out the promise of the publishers of this magazine, for 1895 will be more interesting than ever.

In the front of the book is the new De-lineator March, by Monroe H. Rosenfeld, which is immensely effective and sure to become popular. There is an illustrated article on Church-Fairs full of practical suggestions, and another descriptive of a picturesque Flag Fete suitable for a Washington's Birthday entertainment at schools and academies.

There is a Good Night Drill, also for children, and two delightful entertainments for their elders, called A Flower

Party and A Valentine Masquerade.

Mrs. Carrie M. Knapp writes of Laundry Work as an employment for women, and Ada Tyng Griswold describes

A Girl's Life and Work at the University of Wisconsin. The sixth paper on the Kindergarten introduces some fascinating work for little hands. For the housewife there is Seasonable Cookery, Hints on Serving Fruits, and the continuation of the articles on The Home. The flower-lover will find something of interest in Floral Work for Midwinter. The Tea Table Gossip

is as entertaining as ever. The Fancy

Work department is unusually attractive in this number.
