Chelses Tent Invaded and Captured by the Lady Maccabees.

On Friday night, March 15th, Chelsea

Tent No. 281 was busily engaged in its routine work, and was preparing to confer the Oriental degree upon some of its members who were anxiously waiting to enter into the mysteries of this solemn order. A shrill and blood-curdling war whoop came from the lonely picket, that strangers had entered the out-post of our camp; reinforcements were necessary or > the whole camp would be captured. The commander marshalled his whole available forces but to no purpose; the opposing forces were too strong and the smell of hot coffee too tempting to their stomachs. A consultation was held and all agreed to surrender the whole camp to the enemy, which was done. Commander Lady Boyd being absent the emblem of authority was handed to Lady Martin who marshalled her forces with a masterly hand. The first in order was the initiating of a lady into the Oriental mysteries of the Lady Maccabees, which was well rendered and brought forth great applause from all present.

Next came the hot coffee, sandwiches and fried-cakes which vanished like frost ed us with their grand march which was an honor to themselves, and to the order of which they belong. One of Carleton's poems was then recited by Sir Knight T G. Speer which was well rendered. This concluded the evenings entertainment. All went from the lodge-room to their homes with pleasant thoughts of the evening, and wishing that more of the same kind would come in the near future. The only regret of the writer is that Rev. Huston, the fanatic preacher of Napoleon could not have been with us, for I sin-

pants on, and for a long time I used two ounces of chewing and eight ounces of smoking a day. Sometimes I had a chew in both cheeks and a pipe in my mouth at once. Ten years ago I quit drinking whisky. I tried to stop tobacco time and again, but could not. My nerves oraved nicotine and I fed them, till my skin turned a tobacco-brown, cold, sticky perspiration cozed from my skin, and trickled down my back at the least exertion or excitement. My nerve vigor and my life was being slowly sapped. I made up my mind that I had to quit tobacco or die. On October 1 I stopped, and for three days I suffered the tortures of the damned. On the third day I got so bad that my part-ner accused me of being drunk. I said, 'No, I have quit tobacco.' 'For God'ssake, man,' he said, offering me his tobacco box, 'take a chew; you will go wild,' and I was wild. Tobacco was forced into me and I was taken homedazed. I saw double and my memory was beyond control, but I still knew how to chew and smoke, which I did all day until towards night, when my system got tobacco-soaked again. The next morning I looked and felt as though I had been through a long spell of sickness. I gave up in de-spair, as I thought that I could not cure myself. Now, for suffering humanity, I'll tell what saved my life. Providence evidently answered my good wife's prayers and brought to her attention in our paper an article which read: 'Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away!'

"What a sermon and warning in these words! Just what I was doing. It told about a guaranteed cure for the tobacco habit, called No-To-Bac. 1 sent to Druggist Hasler for a box. Without a grain of faith I spit cut my tobacco cud, and put into my mouth a little tablet upon which was stamped No-To-Bac. I know it sounds like a lie when I tell you that I took eight tablets the first day, seven the next, five the third day, and all the nerve-creeping feel-ing, restlessness and mentaldepression was gone. It was too good to be true. It seemed like a dream. That was a month ago. I used one box. It cost me $1, and it is worth a thousand. I gained ten pounds in weight and lost all desire for tobacco from the first day. I sleep and eat well and I have been benefited in more ways than I can tell. No, the cure was no exception in my case. I know of ten people right here in Caldwell-who have bought No-To-Bac from Hasler, and they have been cured. Now that I realize what No-To-Bac has done for me and others, I know why it is that the makers of this wonderful remedy, the Sterling Rem-edy Company, of New York and Chicago, say: 'We don't claim to cure every case. That's Fraud's talk, a lie; but we do guarantee three boxes to cure the tobacco habit and in case of failure we are perfectly willing to refund money.' I would not give a public indorsement if I were not certain of worth a million. Monor and I firmly believe it will God-send to me, and I firmly believe it will cure any case of tobacco-using if faithfully cure any case of tobacco-using if faithfully tried, and there are thousands of tobacco slaves who ought to know how easy it is to get free. There's happiness in No-To-Bac for the prematurely old men, who think as I did that they are old and worn out, when tobacco is the thing that destroys their vitality and manhood."

The public should be warned, however, against the purchase of any of the many imitations on the market, as the success of No-To-Bac has brought forth a host of counterfeiters and imitators. The genuine No-To-Bac is sold under a guarantee to cure, by all druggists, and every tablet has the word No-To-Bac plainly stamped there-on, and you run no physical or financial risk in purchasing the genuine article.

POLAR BEARS THAT GREW.

The Nearer the Hunters Got the Bigger They Seemed.

At Last They Reached the Apparent Size of Elephants-Their Great Footprints-The Polar Bear in the Smithsonian.

Under the lee of the cliffs of Hall's Island, in Behring sea, the United States revenue cutter Corwin lay at anchor waiting for better weather. She was rolling heavily in the under tow sent round the point by the strong southwest gale, while flerce williwaughs, eddying down from the mountain summits, shook her spars until the hull quivered. The dressed quarters of two polar bears hung on the boat spans, and their beautiful skins, loosely salted, lay in the launch along with the tusks of a walras.

Assembled in the wardroom, enjoying their after-dinner pipes that evencall them to the deck discussed the events of the cruise, especially the rebeing their third or fourth season in these waters, while others were new and full of delight at their recent success. Lient. Cantwell, though in age ayoungster, was in service a veteran, having passed the two previous seasons in arctic voyages and explorations. He had distinguished himself by courage and readiness in various ways that hall in the conversation he broke out with:

"Talk about bears! Why, these we've taken this cruise are nothing. You should have been up here with us in '83. Bears were thick then, and big! elephant to me when I suddenly found myself close to him. He weighed sixteen hundred pounds." him." came in several voices.

"This certainly looks like some animal's track,' said Cook. 'Did the bear come this way?

"Yes,' I said; "he must have crossed here.

"'If he made those tracks, Great Scott, what a beast he must be!'

"Suddenly realizing that these were the tracks of the animal we were after, we all looked at one another and then around. For a few moments silence reigned. We all found ourselves unconsciously turned back to back, while every eye involuntarily searched the hills. Our courage slowly came back, and we once more took up the trail, but we were now looking for the other division of our party quite as much as for the bear. And, oh! how cautiousing, those officers whose duties did not ly we went. What a lookout we kept! Presently we overtook our friends of the other party, who, having seen no centbear hunts. Some were old hands, it tracks, were pushing gallantly on. This gave us fresh courage and our pace quickened. Our force was so numerous through the addition of the other party that we did not notice the absence of several, among them the representative of the Smithsonian institution.

"Some one had seen the bear enter a small crooked gorge or canyon in the try men's nerve and pluck, and bear rocks. Slowly we pressed into the hunts were not new to him. During a ravine, cautiously peering behind each point of rock with rifles in readiness for instant use. Walking was impossible, clambering the only means of getting ahead.

We stopped so precipitately that for a few seconds "How did you get him? We had come for that bear, and if he would persist in letting us overtake him - well, it seemed reasonable to assume that our nine or ten rifles were sufficient to give any bear his quietus if the shots were poured in at once. We cautiously moved forward, peering and craning our necks over rocks, nervously anxious to get a sight of the bear and rid ourselves of the suspense. "Suddenly from the rocks above came the sharp crack of a rifle, the echoes of which were mirgled with the tremendous roar of the bear. Another cracking report, another roar, and a scramble. Then all was still but the echoes among the crags. "'Who's there?' 'Who fired that rifle?' 'Where is he?' was asked on all sides, but none could answer. Then we heard the voice of Townsend from the rocks above and ahead, calling: "'I've got him! He's dead! He's just above you in the canyon. How the mischief can I get down to him?' "With one or two sailors he had scaled the cliffs that inclosed the cabin, had caught sight of the bear from above, and had sent in his fire at once. His shot ranging downward had been most fortunate, catching the bear between the shoulders and almost instantly disabling and killing him. Had the animal been merely wounded he would have made sad havoc among our party, hemmed as we were between canyon walls with no chance to get away. A lucky shot might have stopped him, but some of us would have been pretty certain to lose the number of their mess. "We all scrambled on to where the bear was lying, and gazed with admiring awe upon his immense and formidable proportions. He lay where he had rolled, in a cleft in the rock, a huge brute, quite as large as an ox, and logs rolling on him. stone dead. We had to send on board for spars and tackle to hoist him out of the ravine, and it took us half a day to get him on board. Once there, Townsend turned his skill to account in skinning him and stripping the flesh from the bones, an occupation which took him several days. What sort of monster it was, this giant among polar bears, you may ascertain for yourselves by visiting the Smithsonian institution in Washington, where you may see his stuffed skin and articulated skeleton." -N. #### DEADLY REVENCE.

Siz Men Lynched by a Mob at Walsen-

WALSENBERG, Col., March 14 .- Two or three days ago Deputy Sheriff Hixon was brutally murdered at this place by several Italian coal miners. After pounding the deputy's head into a pulp the body was hidden and was not found until Monday morning, when a general alarm was given and blood. hounds put upon the murderers' trail.

In a short time the well-trained dogs succeeded in running down four men, who acknowledged having committed the crime, and each endeavored to lay it on the other. / Late Tuesday afternoon an inquest was held, at which the guilt of the four Italians was plainly proved.

At the conclusion of the session of the day the prisopers were loaded into a wagon and started back to the jail. At Bear creek, a region where there is much underbrush, half a mile from Walsenburg, the crack of a dozen rifles, probably in the hands of miners, rung out. Four of the prisoners, whose names cannot be learned on account of the excitement, were instantly killed. Welby, a young American boy, who was driving the wagon, was also killed. The officers returned the fire, which lasted several minutes.

A Double Murder Occurs at McGregor, Minn. 1 1 DULUTH, Minn., March 18.-The most as passenger Charles W. Townsend, representing the Smithsonian, an expert in birds, beasts and reptiles.

"We made Hall's island in due time, and on nearing the land saw the ruined barrabaras of the old Russian settlement over yonder which Douglass, the pilot, told us about. While pointing out this place to Townsend, and laying plans for a bear hunt, we saw two small white objects on the beach, a mile or more away. They might have been cakes of ice, but they were not, for they moved and were evidently alive. They could be but one kind of thing, and that was bears. Soon every man that could command a glass was looking at them. We youngsters, who had come primed for big game, were disappointed at their small size. We thought them not bigger than Newfoundland dogs, and hardly worth chasing However, they were bears, such as they were, and, of course, were to be hunted, so we went boldly to work to compass their slaughter. The launch was cleared away, and a large party of us, as many as could well go, with our rifles and ammunition, shoved off and pulled for the shore.

"On our nearing the beach these small objects showed somewhat larger than when seen from the ship, and seemed now as big as half-grown calves. Before there was time for them to get any larger they had seen or heard the boat and disappeared up a ravine.

"The party landed, and divided so as to surround and head them off. Cook, Brown, and myself with four or five men went to the right, while Townsend with the surgeon, pilot and four or five sailors took the left. Our party hurried rapidly on, looking bravely to our arms, each telling where he meant to place his shots, and only feeling anxious lest the bears should get away Soon we saw one of them scrambling over the rocks about a quarter of a mile off, and were surprised at the size to which he had grown. He was now as large as a cow, some said an ox, while others declared that he could not be one of those we had seen from the ship.

"Every man thought that the bear was now quite large enough for our purpose, and privately wished he would stop growing. What we said, however, was: 'The bigger the better; we want a big one,' and kept on after him. Whether from fatigue or some other reason, we certainly did not go so fast now as before. We began to find the walking bad and to complain of being awfully tired and blown. Every one of the party from time to time found something to detain him for a moment, the effect being to hinder his keeping too far in the front.

He Had Wedded His Aunt.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 14.-Judge Wickes granted a divorce to Harry Me-Loud from his wife Martha. The bill stated that Mrs. McLoud was her husband's aunt, and that they did not know it was illegal for them to marry antil three years after the ceremony had been performed, and that immediately upon making the discovery they separated. Mrs. McLoud testified that she was as anxious to be free from the unlawful marriage as her husband, and cold-blooded and deliberate murder in the annals of crime in Minnesota was committed at McGregor, a village about 70 miles north of here, some time Friday morning.

About 9 o'clock Friday morning Arcangelo and Nicholas Cristilli, brothers, entered the small general store kept by Ben Jennetta and his wife and riddled them with bullets from Winchester rifles. Jennetta's head was blown nearly from his shoulders and both he and his wife died instantly. McGregor is a small lumber camp and is inhabited mostly by Italians. The majority of the members of the settlement com; from the same province in Italy and have been acquainted for years.

In the dispatches from McGregor and Aitken practically no reason is assigned for the deed. It is said that the two families had a quarrel over the cutting of some timber, which each claimed, and that this was what led to the deed. But the crew of a Northern Pacific way train which arrived in Duluth Friday night say that the murder was prompted by an entirely different motive. The Italians they talked with in McGregor say that the bad blood between the Jennetta and Cristilli families was engendered in Italy, where a brother of Jennetta's wife stabbed in a street row the brother of the Cristillis. The Cristillis are new arrivals in McGregor and the trainmen say that the story is that they followed the Jennettas to that place for the express purpose of revenging themselves for the stabbing of their brother.

At 12 o'clock the Cristillis were found by Sheriff Manston and taken quietly to McGregor. The people there were not told of the capture, as it was feared there would be a lynching. Shortly after 12 o'clock the two murderers and the bodies of their victims were taken by a freight train to Aitken and the former are now locked in the jail, which is strongly guarded.

BIG COAL TRUST.

It is Organized to Control the Output of Ohlo Mines.

COLUMBUS, O., March 15 .- A powerful pool of all the coal railroad companies in Ohio and all the corporations in the state has been organized here. Seven roads which tap the coal fields are in the deal, which involves millions of dollars. The output of the state, amounting to over 7,000,000 tons of coal per annum, will be controlled and 250 coal agencies, which formerly distributed the product of the mines, will be done away with, all operations being conducted from one central office. Between 18,000 and 20,000 men will be employed by this trust in the mines, and the saving from the abolition of the agencies, it is claimed, will enable the operators to pay better wages than are received elsewhere.

Why Western Potatoes Are Large.

The extremely large size to which poatoes sometimes grow in the west is due to several causes, among which the following are given by Rural New Yorker: Potatoes thrive best in cool climates and in loose, loamy, rich, moist soils. Irrigation, properly practiced, furnishes the disired mechanical conditions and in rich soils brings into proper solution and consequent availability quantities of plant tood which the potato, being a grass feeder, fastens on to and expands itself accordingly. There is no magic about it simply rich soils, intelligently cultivated and judiciously watered.

The Rural New Yorker began its advocacy of level culture for potatoes and corn about 18 years ago, and it has not since seen any reason to change. There is no reason for hilling potatoes except to kill weeds. True it is that potatoes in hills are more easily harvested than those in drills, but this is offset by the difference in yield. Where land is not well drained, we have some reason for billing but such land is not well suited to potato culture. If the vines are to be hilled up the sooner the work is done the better. It is then equivalent to planting deeper. Hilling the soil about the stems directs the rain from where it is most needed to where

NEW YORK, March 14 .- The Colombian linesteamer Allianca, Capt. Crossman, from Colon, which arrived at quarantine at 11:45 a. m. Tuesday, brought a startling tale of outrage at sea. March 8, at about 7:30 o'clock in the morning, when the steamer was off the east end of the island of Cuba, a brigantine-rigged man-of-war, flying the Spanish flag, was passed, steering in the same direction at a distance of about 11/ mile. The Allianca dipped her colors in salute and the courtesy was acknowledged and reciprocated by the Span- the mob to be in complete control and iard.

This was fol- along the entire city front, some lowed a few minutes later by another 8 or 10 miles, in two armies, blank cartridge. Capt. Crossman did not pay any attention to the shooting, but continued on his course northward. The man-of-war then altered its course to follow the Allianca. and almost at once another gun was fired and a solid shot came bounding toward the American steamer, missing her narrowly. Two other balls were fired, but both went wide.

The Spaniard fast dropped astern and after a chase of about 25 miles altered her course and headed back. Capt. Crossman can advance no theory to account for the outrageous conduct of the Spaniard.

Were Killed.

NFW ORLEANS, March 14 .- There were two separate and distinct riots here Tuesday, both probably resulting from the same plan. One occurred on the river front, near the French market, where the ship Engineer was loading for Liverpool. The other ocsurred about 4 miles distant, in the direction of Carrollton, at the foot of Philip street. Only one man, William Campbell (colored), was killed in the latter affair. The names of the dead are: William Campbell (colored); Jules Carrabee, Leonerd Mellard and two unknown negroes, who have not been identified. A total of eight were wounded. Doubtless a number of other negroes were slightly wounded, but ran away and cannot be identified.

The riot was far more serious than the loss of life indicated, for it showed able to defy and override the police and hold the commerce of the city completely at its mercy. It marched equipped with rifles, shotguns and pistols, dispersing all companies of negroes at work there and shooting all who opposed it without the slightest check or hindrance or the least attempt at resistance on the part of the laborers or police. The mob was completely master of the situation, firing right and left at all who got in the way and at many points even the vessels lying at the wharf received showers of bullets.

The negroes were taken completely by surprise. They ran about like a lot of wild animals, and their cries were pitiful. Many sought refuge aboard the ship while some ran down the wharf and made their retary Gresham to Minister Taylor at escape. One negro, it is stated, impossible to estimate the num-American flag in the Allianca incident: ber of shots fired, but it is said that there were about 200. The firing was reckless on all sides, not caring whom they shot. After their bloody work the attackers hurried off as fast as they had come, moving along the levee up town unmolested.

> [The trouble which started in September, the beginning of the commercial war in New Orleans, and which originated over labor matters, has in time changed to a bitter race war. The white screwmen who load cotton on vessels, and who constitute one of the strongest labor unions in this country. have been masers of the cotton situation in New Orleans fo years. They decided that there was not enough money in the business for them and the negroes, and prohibited the latter from loading cotton vessels The negroes replied by reducing the rate of pay, which had been five and six dollars a day for seven or eight hours' work, and in this were supported by the ship agents. The war has raged The wharves of the ever since West Indian line, the first to use negro labor. were burned down by an incendiary fire with a loss of $250,000. The wharves of the Texas & Pacific, with 25.000 bales of cotton were destroyed: loss, $500,000. The ships were invaded by the white laborers, the negroes run into the river and their tools thrown after them. The negroes were fired on at Gretna and Southport, bombs were placed in the cotton and various other means used to frighten them off.] NEW OBLEANS, March 15 .- This city will have its hands full paying damages to foreign claimants as the result of Tuesday's riot. BRADSTREET ON TRADE.

The Situation as viewed by a Leading Agency.

Bays:

NEW YORK, March 18. - Bradstreet

"There are fewer new and favorable trade features this week than unfavorable ones, but in most instances they outweigh the latter, which point to a continuance of small volume of business and quiet demand. Unfavorable weather, which has served to check demand so many weeks, continues to make itself felt south and in many parts of the west.

"Advices from those important distributing centers. Chicago and St. Louis, are conspicuous exceptions this week in that they announce s continuance of the rising volume of demand in staple lines, and a steadiness in growth not anticipated. Large distributors of staples at the former report increased volumes of business in clothing, millinery, shoes, hardware and other leading lines, with new stocks ordered in many instances, a better feeling in trade circles and only better weather is required to satisfy dealers. The report from St. Louis covers similar ground. and in addition states that the volume of trade is in excess of that at a like period in 1893, when the volume was the largest on record. Activity among manufacturers of machinery and agricultural implements there is also

"At the west and northwest, aside from reported gains at Chicago and St. Louis, St. Paul alone announces improvement in clothing, hardware, shoes, hats and millinary. There is little animation and no other new features in central western, southwestern or northwestern states. Mercantile collections there remain slow and the weather continues a damper to trade."

Ruffanism Runs Riot in the Indiana Legislature.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 13.-The Indiana legislature ended in a riot Monday night. It became noised about that the governor would send in a message vetoing the bill ousting the custodian of the state house at 11:54 p. m., inasmuch as the session ended at midnight, hoping thereby that there would not be time enough to pass the bill over the veto.

Republican members captured Private Secretary King when he entered the elevator with the veto message. The democrats tried hard to push him through. A general fracas ensued. Football tactics were resorted to, but finally King was pushed as far as the speaker's deak. Just then some one tore the veto out of King's hands and escaped. Amid the confusion the speaker's voice could just be heard to announce the adjournment. Many bruised, heads and more serious injuries were the result. No arrests were made.

THREE MEN KILLED. Buried Under Failing Walls at a Fire in Toledo-Others Hurt, TOLEDO, O., March 18 .- One of the at disastrous fires in the way of loss of human life that this city has experienced broke out shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday morning in the roundhouse of the Wabash Railway company. The damage to property was comparatively small, but three men lost their lives, two being killed instantly and nine others more or less injured. One of them, John O'Leary, a machinist, will likely die from his injuries. The list of dead is as follows: R. H. Bohlman, aged 56, painter, married, seven children, skull crushed, internally injured; J. J. Preston, aged $5, car inspector, married, six childpen, back broken, skull erushed; John Bowen, aged 18, a spectator, skull crushed, internally isjured.

The injured are:

H. F. Heward, general foreman eastern division, back bruised, face cut, slightly burned; John O'Leary, machinist, leg broken, arm crushed, skull fractured, may die; Patrick Mo-Donough, fireman, skull fractured; shoulder broken; Martin Greenburg. car repairer, head out: Harry Zimmerman, painter, leg sprained, body bruised: Louis Decker, painter, head bruised, shoulder sprained: Henry Gerding, car repairer, head bruised and cut; Casper Becker, painter, head and shoulders out; T. C. Lauer, truck foreman, head and neck sprained, bead out.

All of the dead except John Bowen were employes of the Wabash. They constituted the company's fire department for the protection of the shops and, were engaged in fighting the flames when the accident occurred that resulted so disastrously to them.

The roundhouse is located at the foot of South street. It was a substantial brick structure with a capacity of twenty engines, and contained six locomotives when the fire broke out. The flames were first seen the cupola that surmounted the roof shortly after 10 o'clock. An alarm was telephoned to the city fire department, and in the meantime the yard company got one stream playing on the blaze which soon made its way to the roof. The walls of the building were believed to be secure, and the brave little band of of fire-fighters pressed in closely towards the building, the more effectively to combat the spreading flames.

It was seen that the roof would soon fall, but no danger was apprehended from that source until, to the horror of the assembled spectators, the southwest wall, weakened by the destruction of the frame supports that connected it with the roof, was observed to tremble and suddenly fall out on the volunteer and to careful, thoughtful, persistent newsfiremen. Before the majority of the men could realize their peril, the heavy wall was down on top of them, burying them under a heap of smoking debris. All but Bowen, Preston and Bohlman were quickly taken out. The two first named were completely covered by the ruins of the wall; Bohlman was a little more fortunate. From out of the smoking heap the mangled bodies of Bowen and Preston were taken; they were beyond need of human care. Bohlman was still alive, though unconscious, but he succumbed to his injur-

For twenty-five years this company was likewise the leading lard producer of the world, and abandoned lard merely because a new world was to be conquered. With a new world was to be conquered. With keen business perception they saw in cotton seed oil the basis for a still larger busi-ness in a more healthful, more econom-ical and in every way more desirable food product than lard. When this new product was perfected and their plans carefully mranged they turn their attention from the lard business, and with a courage born of the confidence that they had pro-duced what the world had so long demandduced what the world had so long demanded, viz., a substitute for lard, they launched "Cottolene." The quick acceptance by the public of this really meritorious article attracted the attention of the ever-ready imi-tator and the market was soon flooded with imitations, sailing under colors of all descriptions. But Cottolene was first in the heart of the people and those who use it are not at all likely to go back to lard or accept an imitation.

Clover In a Dry Season.

The lowa Homestead draws these conclusions from an experience with new dry season deep covering is essential. 2. That in a dry season a stand of clover among apparently heavy oats is imperiled, provided the oats are removed in a hot, dry time. 8. That a dry season it is quite possible to obtain a stand of clover in sloughs by sowing in the early spring and cutting off the slough grass in time to give the clover room. 4, That surface sowing of clover seed is useless in a very dry season, especially on light soil. This is practically the same as the first conclusion, but is reported to impress an im- as barren wastes of sand, gravel and portant fact.

Lawn Grass Mixtures.

Professor Beal, recognized authority on grasses, says: In land not likely to suffer from dry weather and exposed to sunlight sow June grass alone or brown bent alone, or, better still, sow a mixture of the two. For land not likely to suffer from dry weather at certain times where exposed to sunlight, sow or plant a mixture of June grass and Bermuda grass. For rather thin soil or for any soil much shaded by trees, I have never seen anything to be compared with the red fescues. The foregoing is for those who can appreciate a fine thing and can wait a little for it. But for those who are impatient for results and want a good display of green in the shortest possible space of time, sow perennial rye grass, orchard grass, timothy, or even oats or rye, or almost any other grasses to be found in the market. To be sure they will look bunchy and patchy, some starting quicker than others after mowing, but the lawn will be thick and green.

The Vogue of Artifical Flowers.

For a number of years artificial flowers were entirely out of fashion. Hats and bonnets were trimmed with ribbons er with ostrich feathers. Many manufactures of flowers were ruined by this long continued freak of style. They have their revenge today, when their products never were in so high favor. They are worn at present not only on headgear, but also as profuse garniture for evening gowns. Many women have light frocks adorned with tiny bouquets that dot the whole skirt. The floral collars and collarettes, the blosson bedecked tiny muffs, all assist in disposing of thousands of these fragile trimmings at this end of the century.

Trees And Rain.

One of the most important effects of woods upon a climate is that they promote said to be $6,800; but that is a mere bagsown clover in a drought year: 1. That rain. The reason does not seem to be per- atelle compared with that of the czar of in spring sowing on a light soil and in a fectly understood, but the facts are matters all the Russia. for his is quoted at $25,000 of experience. Where a country is de- per diem. Not a bad little sum with nuded of its forests, the rain, instead of which to meet one's daily expenses. The falling in moderate showers, comes in viol- president of this glorious country can ent downpours with long periods of drouth boast of an income that averages only $187 between, according to the Sientific News. As a natural consequence the grasses and other low growing plants perish, their roots wither away, and the soil, no longer held together by their fibers, is washed away by the occasional violent rains, and carried down into the bed of the rivers. The hillside and the higher plains remain shingle. A similar process has been going & Co. on in Spain, Italy, Greece, Algeria, Morocco, and, in short, all around the once the grainaries of the world and which supported a numerious population are now little better than deserts. Nor has this mischief been confined to Europe. The vegetable wealth of South Africa Mediterranean. Countries which were when it first became known to Europeans

Business men who have been in the habit of using government stamped envelopes will note the fact that as soon as the contract runs out, they can only get envelopes at the home office, as the government will stop competing with the printer in printing the address thereon Also, by a recent ruling your letter will be held 80 days unless you have printed on the envelope the number of days you want it held.

Paper gloves and hoisery are named mong the very latest novelties. Stock ings that shall sell at 8cts. a pair are proposed. In fact the experiment of making paper stockings has been going on for several months, and the party engaged therein believes that paper mittens or gloves would possess advantages in their seasons. The goods are light and airy and very comfortable in summer. When finished and dyed their appearance is similar to ordinary fabric goods. The knitting is from paper yarns. The paper yarns are made pretty much after the plan of making common paper twines, except that the former are put through certain processes. The principle is that of making a sort of nap on the yarn. This is done automatically. Ordinary raper twine or yarn is too smooth, but a good gigging up gives the yarn a nap and his imparts softness. After the knitting has been done the goods are placed in a sizing bath made from potatoe starch and tallow, which imparts solidity and durability to the texture? With paper passenger car wheels, paper water wheels, why not paper socks and stockings?-The Glover.

She was singing vigorously the opening hymn at church. She was trim and trig as possible, with one exception. Her placket, that bane of woman's existence, gaped and revealed to those hehind her a line of white. When she sat down her neighbor kindly whispered something to her concerning the state of her atting The woman blushed furiously, made a furtive grab at her skirt, was unable to decide what was the matter with it, and settled back, finally, to finishing the rest of her worshiping in a position which would not reveal portions of her under wear to the rest of the congregation. And then the choir, in loud, vociferous tones, wang out, "Stand up, stand up, for Jesus."
