ONE GIVES RELIEF.

Seymour Goodyear.

After a painful sickness of nearly six weeks Seymour Goodyear passed peacefully to his reward about half past eight o'clock, Tuesday evening, April 9. He was a patient sufferer during all these weeks, uttering no word of complaint, ready to go or stay according to the Master's will. During the entire winter he had been fighting a losing battle with disease while remaining faithful to his business post of duty. He would not give up until absolutely obliged to do so, often working when others less determined would have been in bed. He always had a kind word for everybody, especially for the children, and by his kindness and integrity gained a large place in the hearts of the people. He was universally loved and respected. He was converted about five years ago, soon after the death of his only son, and united with the M. E. church of which he was a faithful and loyal member. He was always in his place except in cases of necessity. He had taught in the Sunday-school for nearly four years and had held the position of steward in the church for more than a year and a half. He was wise in counsel and helpful in every way. Mr. Goodyear was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. Oct. 3, 1844, the only son of Alonzo and Mary Goodyear. He came with his parents to Michigan when five years of age and for eighteen years lived about two miles north of Chelsea. April 11, 1867, he was married to Jennie C. Purchase and soon after moved to this village, where he had since lived. He leaves a widow, one child, Mrs. O. T. Hooyer, and two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Smith and Mrs. Mary Leech, all of this place. The funeral will be held at two o'clock on Friday afternoon at the M. E. church. C. L. A.

A Case for the Courts to Settle.

A curious legal point has arisen for the county of Washtenaw and the state of Vermont to settle. It is brought up by the death last week of Henry Osborne one of the oldest settlers of the county. About fifty years ago he had a brother sent from this county to an insane asylum in Brattleboro, Vt., there being then no asylums in the west. Henry Osborne, after his father's death, maintained his brother in the asylum at an expense of several hundreds of dollars a year. A few years ago he failed in business and was unable longer to stand the expense. The case is a curious one, and the Vermont authorities are in hot water. After the failure of his brother to provide for him he became a public charge, of course. But to what county? The boy had no residence here, having been sent away before he was of age, and being an inmate of an insane asylum he could gain no residence there. The attorney-general of Vermont has had the case under advisement, but has come to no decision. The Vermont authorities dare not send him here without authority, for that would constitute a serious offense. The eastern authorities will probably present a bill to this county for Osborne's keeping and the supervisors here will undoubtedly let the matter go to the courts, so that a decision may be had. It is said that a similar case has never come up in the courts.

Rheumatism seems to have a strong hold on our citizens, there being a number of sufferers from this painful disease.

Someone has invented an instrument of torture called the "deviline" whistle, which has gained a foothold in our city and are being offered for sale in some of our stores. It is somewhat longer than the ordinary police whistle. In the tube is a small perforated wheel which loosely revolves on a pin axle. When the whistle is blown gently the wheel begins to turn and the sound produced is that of a low moan, such as may be heard in a dentist's office. The sound grows into a loud and prolonged wail of anguish, which dies away into another moan as the wheel slows down. It would be impossible to imagine a more excruciating and heart-rending series of noises. The frightful sounds suggest bed-room murders, the abduction of children and the shrieks of delirium. Tender nerves are set on edge and timid people are frightened in a cold perspiration. The "deviline" is so terrifying in its effects that it is certain to become popular.—Eaton Rapids Herald.

Lima.

A. Beach is moving to Chelsea. George Steinbach has gone up North. Charley Paul rented the Storms farm. Charley Palmer, of Jackson called on friends here Monday. John Grau, of Lima, and Miss Lizzie Goetz, of Sylvan, were married last Thursday night.

Waterloo.

Miss Meranda Vicary commenced school in the village Monday. The young people of the M. E. church have organized an Epworth League. Harry Hubbard was appointed to attend county canvass and went to Jackson Tuesday. Mrs. W. Beeman came home from Ithaca last week and is now quite ill from the ride. Mrs. Dale is with her.

Sylvan.

Hugh McKone is going to move from among us soon. Merritt Boyd, of Chelsea called on his mother Tuesday. Mrs. Krum, of Leslie is visiting her niece, Mrs. Homer Boyd this week. Miss Jennie Franklin made several calls on her old neighbors last week. Frank Youngs is visiting relatives near Williamston since the middle of last week. Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Glover was over to Manchester last Tuesday to see their son Ira, who is quite ill.

Unadilla.

Dan Scripser raised a new farm this week. Fred Marshall captured a wild goose last week. John Hill and wife of Mulliken are visiting at Wm. Davis's. Mr. and Mrs. John Daniels visited at E. C. May's last Friday. John Watson returned to school at Ypsilanti last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. May spent Sunday with their son at Dexter. Mrs. Palmer and mother visited at A. J. May's one day last week. Mrs. Budd returned from Ann Arbor Monday after a week's visit at her sisters.

Those who never read their advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him Chamberlain Pain Balm had cured me, he got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50c bottles for sale by F. P. Glazier & Co.

Knights of the Maccabees.

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail." Signed F. W. Stevens, State Com.—Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at Bank Drug Store. Regular size 50 and $1.00.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill. writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c. for large bottle. At Bank Drug Store.

AN EASTER OFFERING.

THE little church was crowded. At the joyful Easter tide—
The golden rays of morning sun
Streamed thro' the window wide;
The bright cross caught the glory
And threw it back again.
As a sweetly chanted anthem
Thro' the echoing arches came.

The church was clothed in beauty;
There were flowers everywhere,
On organ, pillar and archway—
On altar, chancel, and stair.

In the moment of holy silence,
When the opening hymn was o'er,
A little rustling sound
Was heard from the open door.

There stood a baby girl—
She was not over four—
And her apron was full of flowers,
So full it could hold no more.
She looked so sweet as she stood there,
The sunlight in each fair curl,
And a blue sash trailing behind her,
Dear, brown-eyed little girl!

"We bring some flowers for Jesus,"
The baby quietly said;
Then dropped them on the floor
And looked around in dread.
There were so many people
She had never seen before,
And she guessed—she wanted—Mamma,
So she ran from the open door.

The sunlight kissed the flowers—
"God's flowers" the child had brought,
And they lay there and preached a sermon,
The text a genuine thought,
From the baby through all the people,
The spirit of giving spread,
And the gifts that day were large—
By the child's offering led.
—The Home.

SUNLIGHT was in the sky, upon the streets, over all things. The sound of church bells rose above the noise of voices and of footfalls on the sidewalk. What light, charming costumes the women wore, and the men how carefully dressed and how expressive of admiration and a desire to be especially amiable.

One tall man, who looked prematurely grave for thirty years, walked alone. Few passers-by noticed his face. Of those few some wondered that such melancholy was abroad upon this morning of mornings, this most radiant of Easter days.

A lithe, fair girl came down the steps of a brownstone house and walked off briskly. She wore a close gown of gray and a hat adorned with small, artificial spring flowers. Eighteen years of life, a fresh, handsome face, great gray eyes, a prayer book and a parasol in one of her small gloved hands, what a fitting picture for the day! And, to complete it, in the other hand a white lily, perhaps thoughtlessly plucked from its stem. The solitary man was walking several feet behind her. He happened to look up from where his cane at each step met the pavement. He saw the lily over the girl's shoulder.

The man sighed. "That flower and that girl bring them back to me still more vividly," he mused; "that other Easter day, that other Easter lily—and her!"

The girl in front turned to cross the street. The man recognized her and raised his hat in response to her bow. She hesitated, dropped her eyes, stopped and waited for an approaching cab to pass. When the man came up she faced him with a smile. He was vaguely conscious of a heightened color in her cheeks and of a delicate fragrance environing her.

"Good morning, Monsieur Melancholy!" she said, in greeting. "You see, I haven't forgotten my Shakespeare."

"Like the sweet girl graduate that you are," he replied, carelessly, as he started forward by her side. "But why do you bring your Shakespearean knowledge to bear on me in that way? Am I melancholy?"

"Doleful! And on such a morning!"

SHE HELD OUT THE FLOWER IN HER HAND. It's wicked to be sad in sunshine like this.

"And in such company it's impossible. That is to say, it would be if you didn't remind me, you and that flower in your hand—but pardon me, what am I saying?"

The girl glanced up at her companion in some surprise. Then she became thoughtful. Mechanically she looked at the lily in her hand. Presently she spoke in a low tone.

"As you were saying, what are you saying? Or, rather, what were you going to say? I remind you, I and my flower—of what?"

He spoke without seeing her shy, side look, as they passed on among the crowds of church-goers.

"Of another woman and another flower like that, on another day like this. You bring back a story that began on such a day when such a woman lightly gave such a flower to—the hero of the story."

"Yourself, of course." This was spoken with a sharpness that might have aroused his curiosity had he not been in a reflective mood.

"Yes," he answered.

"And the story was a—love story?"

"Naturally."

"How interesting! And it ended—in what?"

"In a grave in Greenwood, eight months afterward," he replied, softly.

"Oh!" she said, gently. They walked on in silence for a time. Then he asked:

"She died of pneumonia a month before the time fixed for our marriage. That was six years ago. It seems yesterday."

"But the story is finished."

"Oh, yes," he said, with a slightly bitter smile. "That story is. And now you know why I was not all smiles when you met me, notwithstanding the morning."

They had come to the church. He stopped on the outskirts of the converging crowd at the front of the wide stone steps before the great entrance.

"Are you not going in?" she asked, with some astonishment, as she also stopped.

He smiled. "No, I didn't intend to. I'm not a church-goer. I'm out of practice."

"Then experience a novelty. I can't invite you into our pew, for Aunt Agnes and my cousins have already left only room enough for me. But you might enjoy standing in the gallery. Don't you like Easter music?"

"Yes. Perhaps I may drop in by and by."

He stood still, waiting for her to leave him and enter the church. But she did not move. He must have been strangely unobservant not to have noted the look of tenderness that suddenly burst all repressive bonds, instinctive and conscious, and glowed eloquently in her eyes, not to have penetrated to the deliberate design hidden under the surface of her next speech.

"And, that story being finished, has it had many—any—sequels, with the same hero?"

"None," he answered. "None in six years."

"It began with a lily?"

"A lily that still stands in a Grecian vase beside my mirror."

"Somewhat faded?"

"Yes, poor flower."

"But, the old story being finished," she said, speaking with increasing haste and very low, "and the hero still young, what's to prevent beginning another story—with another lily?"

She held out the flower in her hand. The man, surprised at her manner and her action, and not immediately awake to their significance, did not move or speak.

The girl, appalled by his hesitation, hastily drew back the proffered lily. Her face became crimson, and she turned and hurried confusedly from him, passing with the throng up the steps and into the church.

In the vast arched interior her senses met subdued light after the sunshine, the hum of discreet conversation, the soft footfalls of worshippers going to their seats, the rustle of women's gowns, the odor of flowers, the colored rays that fell obliquely from the stained glass window.

The man remained standing outside bewildered. After a few seconds the girl's meaning dawned upon him. Thereupon he began to twirl his mustache rapidly, in accordance with his custom when in deep thought. Some one touched him on the shoulder.

"Hello, old man! Going in?"

"Yes, yes, certainly!" he said quickly, and ran up the steps without turning to look at the speaker. He pushed his way up the stairs and forward to a place on the front row of seats in the gallery, a feat difficult because of the Easter crowd, but to him easy by reason of his abstraction, which made him indifferent to the elbows, shoulders, attire and toes of others.

Already the deep notes of the organ were quivering on the air. A summary scan of the congregation failed to discriminate the girl of the lily from the hundreds of women whose bright head gear gave the congregation the aspect of an indoor flower garden. His eyes rested upon the chancel, held by the general effect of the grouped white Resurrection lilies, callas, acacias, palms and yellow azaleas. A cross of lilies surmounted the floral pyramid. To him this morning, all the world was Easter lilies.

The clear voices of the choristers rose from beneath him, in harmony with the organ, as the white robed boys moved up the aisle. But the splendid anthem, "He is Risen," seemed to him as coming from afar. He was meditating.

She was in love with him—this lily-like girl! Her offer of the flower might have passed for a jest, but her almost angry withdrawal of it had told the truth, as in a flash. Why had he not already seen? Clinging to the old love had kept him blind. He reviewed their acquaintance, from the first meeting at the house of her aunt four months before. Her shy look, her alternate moods of cordiality and coolness, her studied avoidance of him, her sudden appearance before him during his calls at the house, all, with much else, should have warned him. He remembered that night at the theater when chance had placed him beside her. The play was "As You Like It." He had not before asked himself why that night had remained so sweet in his memory. She, too, had not forgotten it. Her greeting this morning, the title of Monsieur Melancholy, applied by Orlando to Jacques, was a souvenir of that evening.

"Christ our passover is sacrificed for us; therefore let us keep the feast."

The anthem, with him, fell upon heedless ears. Yes, this girl, at the sight of whom he had taken some pleasure, whom he had always viewed as a child just from school, was sufficiently a woman to have fallen in love with him.

There was but one thing to do. He must go away, that she might forget him; for his love was with the dead.

More glad Easter music rose to his ears. The church seemed to thrill with the Te Deum festival. He remained insensible to the notes of the organ and the great composite voice of the choir. Since he must betake himself from the possibility of meeting her again, where should he go? Meditating upon this, he sat indifferently alike to the collect, the epistle, the gospel, the sermon. But all the while, half involuntarily, he was searching the congregation below with his eyes for a glimpse of a certain maid bearing a lily.

It would be a sacrifice for him to leave town now. It occurred to him that life had been pleasant to him of late amid his present surroundings in the city. For the first time in five years, existence had recently begun to have some piquancy for him. He had not sought the cause. Assuredly, he was showing rare consideration for this girl in deciding to leave the city in order that she might be spared the pain of a hopeless love. There were few others, if any, for whom he would so readily disturb the routine of his life.

He would like, however, to see her face once more before putting it forever into his past. It was such a charming face. Now that he came to think of it, was there ever a more charming face—but one? Why could he not single her out in the gently swaying surface of flower-trimmed bonnets stretched out before his gaze? Why had he not ascertained the location of her aunt's pew?

He found her at last, far to the front and to the left. He knew her by the lily in her hand. She sat perfectly still, in a ray of light from a high window. She seemed wrapt in contemplation.

How pleasant it would be to sit beside her!

And when at last the "Gloria in Excelsis" was swelling up to the vaulted roof he had begun to ask himself whether it were necessary to leave town, after all.

He found himself unwontedly eager to reach the front of the crowd as it made its way to the doors after the service. He pushed his way down the stairs, out from the place of subdued light and flowers and fragrance, into the sunlight.

How long the time seemed as he waited while the multitude poured out and separated into hundreds of groups upon the sidewalk! He watched the lines of faces as they appeared at the head of the steps, coming from the comparative shade within. At last! She still held her lily. She cast a quick glance around as she stood on the topmost step. Then she descended, followed by her aunt and two cousins. His heart beat rapidly as he elbowed his way through the throng that he might appear at her side as if brought there by chance.

He raised his hat to her aunt and cousins. She herself dropped her eyes and bowed rather stiffly when she saw him. He adroitly managed to keep by her side as the group moved up the sidewalk. The aunt and the cousins fell behind.

Yet he could find little to say upon the homeward walk. She was inclined to be flippant and inattentive in her share of the conversation.

When they reached her house, she allowed her aunt and cousins to precede her up the steps. Then she tarried for a second.

"Good by," she said, standing upon the second step.

"Good by," he answered, "but first I should like—"

"Well?"

"May I have the lily and begin the new story?"

She looked into his eyes a moment; then hastily thrust the lily into his outstretched hand and tripped up the steps. Within the doorway, turned and kissed her hand to him.

In the evening, when church bells again were ringing and the hum of people walking came up from the street below, he stood before the mirror in his chamber and contemplated a long dead lily, a mere mummy of a lily in the Grecian vase beside it. Presently he took the shriveled flower from the vase and placed it in the furthest corner of a dressing case drawer. And thus an old love was changed into a memory and he uttered a sigh.

But a moment later he hummed a tune as he put in the vase, in place of the old dead flower, an Easter lily that was still white and fresh.—Robert N. Stephens.

SWIFT IS THE WINNER

DEFEATS FRANK WENTER FOR CHICAGO MAYORALTY.

Vote Large, and Republican Majorities Overwhelming—Rest of Ticket Goes in on the Wave—Civil Service Emphatically Indorsed.

For Mayor.
George B. Swift, Rep. . . . . 143,117
Frank Wenter, Dem. . . . . 102,187
Bayard Holmes, Peo. . . . . 12,410
Arthur J. Bassett, Pro. . . . . 998
Zbenezzer Wakeley, Peo. Sil. . . . . 270

Swift's plurality . . . . . 40,930
George B. Swift and the entire Republican ticket was elected at Chicago Tuesday by an overwhelming majority. With the exception of a few aldermanic candidates, the Republican landslide carried everything before it.

Mr. Swift is 50 years of age and a native of Cincinnati. His father was a house and sign painter, and when the boy was a year old the family moved to Galena, Ill., there remaining until he was pretty well grown. During their Galena residence George B. was a member of the same Sunday school class as Fred Grant and had for his playfellows the Kohlsatts, one of whom was afterward prominent as a Chicago newspaper man, and

GEORGE B. SWIFT.

James W. Scott, who is still very much in the field. After awhile the Swifts changed their residence for one in Chicago, and George attended first the Skinner school and later for one year the Chicago University. He did not enter politics till 1877, when he was elected alderman from the Seventh Ward. Under Mayor Roche he was made Commissioner of Public Works, and under President Garfield was a special treasury agent. He has served three or four terms in the Council altogether, besides filling out Mayor Harrison's unexpired term as chief magistrate.

The civil service act was adopted by almost as large a vote as placed the candidates on the successful side; 104,250 yes, 58,689 no. The returns showed that the adoption of the law had been consistently fought in some of the wards where the political gangster is supreme.

Next to the surprising victory of the Republicans and the adoption of the civil service bill the most sensational feature of the election was the contest George A. Trude gave his Republican opponent for city attorney.

Town Governments Are Republican.
The Republicans captured all the town governments. The West Town, which has been counted solidly Democratic, went Republican by a good majority. The Democrats did not give up the fight until the returns had shown that the increase in the Republican vote was general throughout the city. The People's party vote reached scarcely one-third of that polled last fall. The candidates of that party were swallowed up in the same tidal wave which wiped out the Democratic nominees.

The new Chicago Council stands: Republicans 56, Democrats 18. The passing Council stood: Republicans 42, Democrats 26.

BIG MAJORITY IN MICHIGAN.
Moore Wins by 40,000—Republican Majority in the 3d Cut Down.

Later reports of Monday's election show increase in the Republican majority for justice of the Michigan Supreme Court and regents of the university. It is believed that Moore, Rep., is elected supreme justice by 40,000, but so little interest is taken that little effort is being made in most of the counties to obtain complete returns. The main interest centers in the Third congressional district, consisting of Kalamazoo, Eaton, Calhoun, Branch and Hillsdale Counties. The latest returns indicate the election of Milnes, Rep., by from 1,000 to 1,300 majority over Todd, candidate of the four other parties. Julius C. Burrows won in this district in 1894 by over 12,000. Milnes is a free silver man. The Republicans have about held their own, generally speaking in the city and township elections.

WINSLOW IN THE LEAD.
May Be Elected to the Supreme Bench in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin on Tuesday elected a justice of the Supreme Court to succeed Justice Winslow, who was the candidate of the bar on a general call for re-election. His opponent was Judge George B. Clementson, also a candidate on a general call, as no party nominations were made. While the contest was therefore nominally non-partisan, party lines were to some extent drawn, as Winslow was a Democrat and Clementson a Republican. The vote throughout the State was light, and the returns indicate that Winslow is elected.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.
When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.
If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.
No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

Spring Medicine

Or, in other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla, is a universal need. If good health is to be expected during the coming season the blood must be purified now. All the germs of disease must be destroyed and the bodily health built up. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only true blood purifier prominently in the public eye to-day. Therefore Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine to take in the spring. It will help wonderfully in cases of weakness, nervousness, and all diseases caused by impure blood. Remember,

"My little girl has always had a poor appetite. I have given her Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since I have given it to her she has had a good appetite and she looks well. I have been a great sufferer with headache and rheumatism. I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now well and have gained in strength. My husband was very sick and all run down. I decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla and he began to gain, and now he has got so he works every day." Mrs. ANNIE DUNLAP, 385 E. 4th St., S. Boston, Mass.

Beecham's pills are for biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, dyspepsia, bad taste in the mouth, heartburn, torpid liver, foul breath, sallow skin, coated tongue, pimples, loss of appetite, etc., when caused by constipation; and constipation is the most frequent cause of all of them.

One of the most important things for everybody to learn is that constipation causes more than half the sickness in the world, especially of women; and it can all be prevented. Go by the book, free at your druggist's, or write B. F. Allen Co., 365 Canal St., New York. Pills, 10¢ and 25¢ a box.

Barbarian Dancing.

Among the arts that have most powerfully served to advance the social evolution of primitive peoples; that of the dance. Doctor Grosse, a German authority in ethnography, has recently pointed out how important dancing is in attracting rude folk, accustomed to gain their living principally by hunting, to social gatherings which result in co-operation for other purposes.

Dancing among such people is a far more significant thing than it is among civilized races. The fondness for dancing may be looked upon as a most important agent in the early development of mankind. But what is the natural charm of the dance which has given it such a conspicuous place in social evolution? According to Doctor Grosse, the charm consists simply in "the pleasure of strong and rhythmical movements, the pleasure of imitation, and the pleasure of giving vent to the feelings."

These are identical with the attractions of art, and so the dance is ranked among the important arts of primitive man. The passion for dancing is one of the strongest that he feels.

In civilized life the dance retains its charm, but it is as different in its influence and in its effect upon the dancers as it is in form. As civilized people practice it, of course, dancing no longer serves the original needs, which, in fact, have then practically disappeared.

Prevention Vs. Cure.

Most people are quick to see the need of medical aid when disease has fastened itself upon them, or when they are prostrated by some epidemic. It is not everyone, however, who realizes the importance of keeping the body in such a state of health that it will be able at all times to resist the attacks of disease. It is when the system is weakened by overwork or worry, causing loss of appetite, etc., when it is greatly debilitated, or "all run down," that the danger of serious sickness and heavy doctor's bills is to be feared. On the other hand, if perfect health can be maintained, the blood kept pure, and the circulation good, the appetite normal and the spirits cheerful, there will be no occasion to fear the grip, pneumonia, diphtheria or any similar ailment. As a means of keeping the body in just this condition of health no better agent has yet been found than that great blood purifier and strength builder, Hood's Sarsaparilla. While it is true that "Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures" it is equally true that Hood's Sarsaparilla prevents sickness, and this truth is of supreme importance to all. Mrs. C. C. Roles, of Wauregan, Conn., writing to the proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, stated the case most concisely when she said: "We don't wait until we are sick, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla to prevent sickness." Certainly, prevention is far better than cure.

Afraid of the Rattler.

The instinct of self-preservation is strong and automatic. It works independently of reason and knowledge, but even against their teachings. The Cincinnati Enquirer tells a story which illustrates these assertions: A man on a Lake Huron steamer had the only specimen of black rattlesnake I have ever met with. It was about the size of an ordinary garter snake and very vicious. It was confined in a strong box covered with thick plate glass. When anyone would touch the glass with his finger the snake would strike the under side opposite the finger as quickly as a stroke of lightning. The experimenter would always jerk away as suddenly. There was not a man on board, however muscular and free from nervousness, who could keep his finger to the glass when the snake would strike, although knowing that it could not possibly touch him. Strong men would try it again and again, certain of their ability to endure the test, but with the same result.

A Japanese Bride's Test.

It appears that in Japan one factor entering into the problem of the choice of a daughter-in-law is her skill in raising silkworms. The thread spun by the silkworm is said to be regular and even in proportion as the worm has been regularly and carefully fed. The prospective mother-in-law carefully and minutely examines the evenness of the silk thread in the material of the garments worn by the young lady before giving her assent to the betrothal.

Physicians endorse Ripans Tablets by prescribing the remedies they contain, but in form not so convenient, inexpensive and accurate as in Ripans Tablets.

Like an open book, our faces tell the tale of health or disease. Hollow cheeks and sunken eyes, listless steps and languorous looks tell of wasting debilitating disease some place in the body. It may be one place or another, the cause is generally traceable to a common source—impure blood, and impure blood starts in the digestive organs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, stimulates digestive action, searches out disease germs wherever they exist and puts the whole body into a vigorous, strong and healthy condition. It builds up solid, useful flesh, rubs out wrinkles, brightens the eyes and makes life really worth living.

A change was made in the pension law taking effect March 2, raising all pensioners to $6 per month who were receiving less. It is estimated that 2,000 old soldiers receiving their pensions at the Detroit agency, will be benefited.

Master Walter, Delle Dwelle's ten years old son, got his thumb into the gearing of a grindstone in such a way as to twist it round, to the great injury of the joints. The surgeon was unable to decide whether or not the injury would necessitate amputation. —Grass Lake News.

Easter will be fittingly observed at the M. E. church next Sunday. In the morning the pastor will preach on "The Resurrection." In the evening the service will be in charge of the officers and teachers of the Sunday-school and will be missionary in character. Special music will be provided.

Chelsea has had a sort of moving festival during the past week. M. J. Emmett started the ball rolling by moving to Lima; Irving Storms moved to the house vacated by Mr. Emmett; H. M. Twamley now occupies the house vacated by Mr. Storms; J. B. Cole moved into the house vacated by Mr. Twamley, and Abner Beach, of Lima, moved into the house vacated by Mr. Cole.

A correspondent writes: The paper in our dining room has been cleaned three times. This year we shall clean it again, using dough made from wheat flour. Use flour, yeast cake and water; no potatoes, milk or shortening. Take the dough when it is all ready for the oven, break it in bits a little larger than an egg. Rub the paper with it, and as it gets black work the dirt into the ball and use again. Continue this until the ball begins to crumble, then take a fresh one. —Ex.

There are many of our citizens who think that it would be a good thing if the council would cut down the amount of money laid out for work on our streets for a year or two and use the money thus saved by paying one-half of the expense of building stone walks. There would be a large amount of this walk laid here this summer if some such plan could be adopted. Talk with the members of the council and get them to make some move in this direction. It would do much to settle the vexatious question of keeping walks in repairs, and do away with the suits for damages for injuries caused by defective walks, of which Chelsea now has three to look after.

In Colorado a bill raising the age of protection for girls to 21 years, has passed the House. In New York a bill raising the age from 16 to 18 years has passed both branches of the Legislature by large majorities. In Michigan the Senate has reconsidered its own bill which raised it from 14 to 17 years, and cut down the figure on which it had agreed, to 16 years. The Detroit Tribune boasts that the receding step was taken through the influence of that paper. This is the first case on record of a newspaper owing to the fact that it used its influence for bad instead of good. The Tribune should go and jump into the Detroit river, after owning to such a statement.

The following gem is from the pen of Brother Carleton of the Grass Lake News: Ice has disappeared in Grass Lake, and as far as the eye can see, nothing meets the view but bounding billows, the flash of snowy sails, or foam-lace in vast folds undulating about the skirts of some far-off headland. Again we hear the mellow songs of the fishermen as they toil at their oars while the cheek of the east blushes with the first kiss of morning, or on their homeward coming at night when their notes seem inspired with still greater gladness; or watch the arrowy flight of sea fowl, or gaze upon the path paved with crimson and gold by the god of day as he sinks below the emerald waves. Yes, mister, we who live about the vasty deep are always glad when winter busts up and goes out of business."

TWO GIANTS BATTLE.

THE SUGAR TRUST AND WHISKY TRUST LOCK HORNS.

Campaign Fund Plundered—Bold but Bootless Train Robbery in Oklahoma—Sudden Death to Fifteen in a New Orleans Explosion.

Sugar Men Will Make Whisky.
That the American Sugar Refining Company of New York will engage in the distilling of spirits is made certain by the fact that a distillers' license has been taken out by the company. The purpose is to utilize the by-product of the sugar refineries, a portion of which it has been sending to New Bedford for manufacture into rum, and for which it received about 2 cents per gallon. The understanding is that one of the old refineries in the eastern district of Brooklyn will be converted into a distillery, with a capacity of 50,000 gallons of proof spirits per day.

Shot the Messenger.
The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific passenger train No. 1 was held up near Dover, O. T., early Thursday morning by five unmasked bandits, and the passengers of the smoker, day coach and chair car were relieved of their valuables. Express Messenger Jones was wounded in the left wrist, but he steadfastly refused to open the safe in his car, and the booty secured by the robbers as a consequence was very small. A posse of determined citizens of Kingsfisher, under the direction of Deputy United States Marshal Madsen, mounted upon horses capable of standing a protracted chase, started in hot pursuit of the train robbers, and but an hour and a half behind them. According to information received, the train robbery was a well-planned, badly executed and quite profitless affair.

Who Got the Money?
What has become of the enormous campaign fund raised by assessment on city hall employees? That's the question that the Democratic managers of Chicago are now discussing with much vehemence of language and bitterness of feeling. It is alleged that one of the prime factors in the recent defeat of the Democratic candidates at the polls was a lack of sufficient funds to conduct the campaign properly. The politicians who realize this fact are denouncing the pecuniary policy which seemed to actuate some of the big men in the party, and it is openly charged that a very large sum of money, which was supposed to be held for the benefit of the campaign, has gone into the pockets of individuals for whom it was not intended, and who had no right to it.

Fifteen Are Killed.
An explosion took place at 2:10 Friday morning in a saloon opposite the French market, New Orleans, and many persons were killed and others injured, the building taking fire. The explosion occurred in a grocery and ship chandlery kept by Charles Salathe and was caused by powder kept in the magazine. Salathe and his family—except two children miraculously saved—were killed by the falling walls, the entire three-story structure falling into a heap of ruins. Next door to the chandlery was a saloon kept by Emile Boulet. Half a dozen fishermen were drinking in the place and they were all buried under the wreckage, that building being also destroyed. Fully fifteen persons are known to have been killed.

Safe Robbers Foiled.
An attempt was made to blow up the vault in the county treasurer's office at Elyria, Ohio. A fuse was found Thursday morning attached to the vault door, which had been plugged with nitro-glycerine. The fuse appeared to have been lighted. Half a dozen horse blankets covered the door. The outer door leading to the office had been forced with a chisel and entrance to the corridor had been gained by a window, which was found open. A full outfit of tools was found near the vault, indicating the work of professionals. There is $17,000 in the vault. The sheriff telegraphed for an expert to open the vault, as it is feared that the nitro-glycerine would explode if tampered with.

BREVITIES.

The Colorado Legislature has adjourned. One of the most important measures sent to the Governor is one by Mrs. Cressingham, providing a bounty of $1 a ton on beet sugar raised in the State.

B. J. McGuire, formerly a fireman employed by the Union Pacific Railroad, has sued the receivers for $60,000 damages for injuries which crippled him for life. He charges gross carelessness in allowing a defective locomotive to be used.

By a vote of 28 to 1, during an exciting session of the congregation of the Presbyterian Church at Chaumont, N. Y., it was decided to ask Rev. William Cleveland, brother of President Cleveland, to tender his resignation of the pastorate.

New York society's accepted godmother, Mrs. Paran Stevens, died Wednesday afternoon. This accomplished woman, who, with Ward McAllister and Mrs. William Astor, dominated the New York social world, had been seriously ill not more than a week. Her illness began with a severe cold.

Near Galena, Kan., Newton Walters, aged 19, killed two brothers, George and James Cox. He then attempted to assault Miss Dollie Cox, who was alone at home. The girl gave the alarm and Walters fled. One of the Cox boys was found in the woods with a bullet hole in his head. The other is supposed to have been thrown into the river.

EASTERN.

James McBride murdered Mrs. David Rockford at Springfield, Mass. The death of a girl at New York after an injection of anti-toxin serum is being investigated by the coroner.

New England coast was visited by a hurricane, the wind attaining a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour, and doing much damage to shipping.

The terribly mutilated body of "Old Shakespeare," a colored woman, was found at New York. Police believe the murder was the work of voodoos.

Hawley E. Webster late postmaster at Brockport, N. Y., pleaded guilty to the embezzlement of $1,372. He was sentenced to pay the amount and to spend eighteen months in jail.

Representative Mustard introduced a bill in the Delaware House providing for the erection of a home for old maids. The bill further provides that the money to support the home is to be raised by a tax on bachelors.

Two men, supposed to be John Brattia and Thomas Grogan, were drowned by the upsetting of a boat at Pittsburg. There were three other men with them, and a drunken row is thought to have caused the accident.

Robert C. Harding, clerk, and Clarence Warbeck, porter, in the United States express office at Jersey City, have been arrested charged with stealing packages. The thefts have been going on for several months. The largest loss was that of a package containing $7,000 worth of diamonds, which disappeared at the holiday season.

Just before 7 o'clock Monday morning, one of the boilers in the Conn Tannery in Woburn, Mass., exploded with terrific force, killing five and injuring six others. There had been trouble with the boiler for some time, and early that morning John Parker, foreman of the plant, was called to the boiler room to see if it could not be fixed. It was found that the water supply could not be satisfactorily adjusted, but this was remedied. By the time the tannery opened for the day it was thought that the boiler was all right. When the whistle was blown to start the works, instantly there was a fearful explosion. The big iron smokestack on the boiler house was blown high into the air and fell across the roof of the shop, and the tall brick chimney fell in a thousand pieces, crushing the engine room beneath it. When the smoke and dust cleared away a scene of wreck and ruin was revealed. It was found that one of the two boilers had been blown to pieces, completely wrecking the boiler house and demolishing several sheds near by. The head of the boiler fell 300 yards from the tannery and the boiler tubes were scattered in every direction.

WESTERN.

Julius Schwabacher, son of the millionaire distiller, who a year ago was caught robbing the residence of Mrs. Frank Bell at Peoria, Ill., has been found guilty and sentenced to five years in the Joliet penitentiary.

Ernest Freudenberg, a traveling man for L. Halpin & Co., of Chicago, took morphine at Cleveland, Ohio. He had friends and money, but so far as can be ascertained no trouble. He left nothing to indicate the cause.

Illinois was in the rain storm Sunday and got drenched all over. The sister States, Missouri and Iowa, were out in it also. Other of the Central and Northern States got partly wet by the rain, which was so long and anxiously awaited.

Senator Charles Beardley's son, Carl C., of Elkhart, Ind., who disappeared from Michigan University several months ago, has written to his mother from San Francisco. He says he left Ann Arbor because he was disheartened over his studies.

Cora Smith, formerly a resident of Des Moines, but who has lived in Omaha since last September, was arrested there and taken to Des Moines Friday morning. She confessed to having assisted in murdering her father, Mike Smith, at Des Moines last May.

S. L. Severance, of Cleveland, Ohio, representing the creditors, has purchased the plant of the Akron, Ohio, iron company at Sheriff's sale. The purchasers paid $200,200 for the property, $87,000 for the real estate, and $113 for the assets. The plant will be started with a full force soon.

Fire started in the pump room of Stewart Bros.' grist mill at St. Charles, Ill., and for a time threatened to wipe out the entire town. Fanned by a stiff breeze from the northwest, the flames spread rapidly down the river, where they attacked the bridge, and thence eastward on Main street, destroying many business houses. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin. The total loss will reach nearly $60,000, with insurance of $35,000. The one fire engine was useless.

A dispatch from Detroit, Mich., says: The Republicans have carried the State, but by a reduced majority from last fall's landslide. The returns came in with provoking slowness from the interior country, but show that not more than two-thirds of the normal vote has been polled and that the apathy has affected more Republicans than Democrats. Returns indicate that Judge Moore for justice of State Supreme Court will have not less than 30,000 majority. The old Third district, so long represented in Congress by Julius C. Burrows, elects Lieut.-Gov. Milnes, Republican, by nearly 1,800 majority over A. M. Todd, fusion.

The Chicago Tribune of Saturday says: "Thirty-seven Aldermen, as firmly set in their determination as the Rock of Gibraltar, at the Council meeting last evening warded off the darts and missiles of a majority of twenty-two members, and passed the Commercial Heat and Power Company's ordinance, a parentless concern, which, it stands to reason, some one will father as soon as the franchise receives the signature of the Mayor. The fight lasted for three hours and was one of the most exciting parliamentary contests that has taken place in the Council for a long time, but it was as if a stone wall had been built around this orphan offspring."

After a two years' search, extending from coast to coast, Mrs. Lidie Opie, of Salina, Kan., has located her child, kidnapped by her divorced husband in 1893. Soon after the decree separating the couple was granted Opie ran away with the only child, a 3-year-old son, whose custody had been given by the court to the woman. Mrs. Opie immediately started in pursuit, and during the last two years has traveled almost the length and breadth of the country, finally tracing the boy to Kansas City, where Opie had recently returned to make his home. Opie has been arrested. In her most unwearying search for her child Mrs. Opie has ruined her health and spent $3,000, practically all she possessed.

Anton C. Hesing, president of the Illinois Staats-Zeitung Company and for more than thirty years a prominent and active figure in the public and political affairs of Chicago and the West, died of paralysis Sunday morning at his home, in his seventy-third year. There is no reason to doubt his death was partly due to excitement and indignation caused by the passage of the Commercial Heat and Power ordinance by the City Council. Mr. Hesing was greatly wrought up over the adoption of this measure, and expressed his disapproval of it in strong language to many of his friends. The last act of his life as editor of a newspaper was to write a signed article intended for publication on the editorial page of his paper Monday morning denouncing the aldermen who voted for the ordinance as banditti and appealing to the people to preserve their rights by force if need be. The article was written before he went to bed Saturday night, but the effort, it seems, exhausted his vitality. The manuscript was found on a table in his room.

SOUTHERN.

Commercial organizations of Memphis are arranging a national convention of financiers to discuss banking and currency.

The Bristol Tenn., Bank and Trust Company has gone to the wall for the second time. Assets, $50,159; liabilities, $24,720; due to depositors, $16,000.

Henry Redding, colored, for causing the Miller Hotel fire at Lancaster, Ky., New Year's day, in which Edward Pascoe and two others were burned to death, was sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

A Yazoo and Mississippi Valley freight train pulled out of Memphis, Tenn., for New Orleans with a shipment of cotton, consisting of 10,521 bales, all billed through to Liverpool. The largest previous shipment was 6,175 bales.

Near Jackson, Miss., three young ladies en route to an entertainment in company with their little brother were overtaken by an unknown negro, who requested a ride. They declined and he undertook to force himself into the vehicle, but they beat him off. Arriving at the entertainment they told what had happened and a posse was organized. The posse found the negro and riddled him with bullets.

WASHINGTON.

Senator Squire, of Washington, is interesting himself to secure for Puget Sound builders, if possible, the contract for some of the new naval vessels provided for at the last session of Congress for his State.

A Washington jury has declared General O. P. Gooding to be insane. General Gooding is a West Point graduate, and wrote a book in which he talked of "removing" the President, who, he asserted, was at the head of a conspiracy against his life.

Postmaster General Wilson has issued an order restricting second-class matter to actual subscribers for journals entitled to the pound rate, and directs that hereafter postmasters will see that the publications offered for mailing have a legitimate list of subscribers.

Washington dispatch: Washington is in the midst of an era of "fakes." The latest is that Secretary Gresham is about to resign from the cabinet to engage in the practice of law, and as usual there is just enough truth in it to carry a whopping and unparadonable lie. The element of truth is that Mrs. Gresham is not and never has been in love with Washington, and has never been at the slightest pains to conceal the fact from her friends. This fact has been seized upon as a basis for the unfriendly resignation story. There is absolutely nothing to the story, and it is scarcely less absurd than would be a report that President Cleveland was going to resign. The relations between the President and his premier are most cordial, and ever have been. General Gresham is closer in the confidence of his chief than any other cabinet officer, and it would be difficult to imagine a condition of affairs arising between them that would cause an official separation before the expiration of the President's term.

POLITICAL.

George B. Swift defeated Frank Wenter in the Chicago mayoralty contest by a plurality of 41,008 in a total of over 257,000 votes. The entire Republican ticket, with the exception of a few gang aldermen, was successful. Wisconsin chose Moore, Republican, for supreme judge; and the Michigan State Republican ticket, with the Third congressional district, is safe. In Wisconsin and Michigan municipal elections no very startling results are noted.

FOREIGN.

The Italian parliament will be dissolved soon. The elections will take place in May.

Gen. Sir George Tompkins Chesney, K. C. B., member of Parliament for Oxford, died in London.

Koyama Rokunskei, the young Japanese who attempted to assassinate Li Hung Chang, has been sentenced to penal servitude for life.

The Guatemalan boundary question is settled. President Diaz of Mexico has formally signed with the Guatemalan minister the official document which prevents the threatened open rupture between the two countries. The official information of the Guatemalan settlement was given in the president's message before the semi-annual opening of congress.

At Washington it is understood on high authority that the communication from Madrid regarding the Alliance incident made known, in advance of its publication, the fact that Lieut. Ybarra, the officer in command of the Spanish gunboat Conde de Venadito, which fired on the American steamer off Cuba, has been relieved and his case referred for court-martial proceedings.

There is much feeling among the Spaniards in Havana against America and Americans. They seem to think the United States is desirous of a chance to take the island. A prominent merchant says if an American man-of-war appears at the mouth of the harbor it will be blown out of the water. There is undoubtedly a deep sentiment in favor of knocking a chip off Uncle Sam's shoulder. It is also an undoubted fact that it would be the signal for anarchy and bloodshed all over the island.

A dispatch from Tokio, Japan, Friday, announced that the Emperor of Japan had declared an unconditional armistice. At the same time, advices from Hong Kong, China, announced that the Chinese were bombarding Tai-Wan, the capital town of Formosa. Advices received at St. Petersburg from Tokio say that the decision of the Emperor of Japan to declare an unconditional armistice was greatly due to the extreme indignation aroused by the attack upon Viceroy Li Hung Chang. The news that an unconditional armistice had been declared by the Emperor of Japan was confirmed at the Japanese legation at Washington, where it is stated that a cablegram to this effect had been received from the home Government. China made the offer of the armistice, and the peace plenipotentiaries of Japan were empowered by the Emperor to accept it without condition. This was done in view of the "unexpected event" that happened, viz.: The attempted assassination of Li Hung Chang. The armistice, Minister Kurino, of the Japanese legation, said, will be effective until the peace negotiations are concluded. As the military power of Japan has during the war outstripped the civil and as the army is flushed with victory, doubt is freely expressed of the Government's ability to enforce the armistice. To meet this emergency a change of army commanders was recently made.

IN GENERAL.

Extradition proceedings have been instituted to get J. C. Coleman, the diamond robber recently arrested in Canada, from the authorities and take him to Waynesboro, Ga., for trial.

The Canadian Department of Agriculture says the forest wealth of the Dominion shows an invested capital of $100,000,000; a wage list of $30,000,000, and an output valued at $110,000,000.

The President of the company which manufactures cellulose received a cablegram from Paris to-day announcing that news had been received there that at the battle of Yalu the Japanese battleship Matsushima was pierced by a six-inch shot, but the ship suffered only slight damage because the cellulose in its cofferdams quickly expanded and closed the breach. This is the first time cellulose has been tested in a naval battle.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"Signs of improvement are all the more satisfactory because neither accompanied nor apparently produced by a speculative craze. Dealings in stocks, cotton and wheat are not diverting all the interest and capital from productive industry and legitimate trade, though these products are all a shade stronger. But railroad earnings, bank clearings and industrial indications are more encouraging. It is a remarkable feature that the lifting this year begins at the bottom, so to speak; raw materials are raised before there is any larger demand for their finished products, a thing not often done with success. Hides rose, then leather, and then shoes; cotton rose, and afterwards some common goods; coke was advanced, and afterwards Bessemer pig. In all these cases it is reasoned that the larger demand for consumption, though yet wanting, must come when it is seen that prices are going up."

MILLIONS BACK OF IT

GIGANTIC CONCERN TO FIGHT THE BELL TELEPHONE.

Northwestern National Bank of Chicago—Robbed—Springfield Plundered—An Army of Tramps—East New Jersey Oyster Farms.

The Fight of Its Life.

What the Bell Telephone Company has been fearing since its patents expired now assumed definite shape, according to reports that bear the stamp of accuracy. This is nothing more or less than that competing concern has been launched, in process of construction, the mission of which will be to fight the Bell monopoly out of the field; not in patches, here and there, but in the entire territory where they operate. According to the report a telephone company has been formed in New York with a war chest of tremendous extent and backed by men at the mention of whose names visions of wealth arise. The capital stock of the company is given as $100,000,000. The backers big enough in the financial world to have their names associated with many figures are: The Parrott Company of New York, the Standard Oil Company, Searies, of the sugar trust; George Crocker, the San Francisco millionaire; F. C. Clark, the Minnesota flour man, and J. Clarkson.

Bank Cashier a Thief.

Charged with the embezzlement of $50,000 from the Northwestern National Bank of Chicago, F. W. Griffin, on Friday assistant cashier of that institution, is a prisoner in custody of the United States marshal. The arrest of Griffin was made on the complaint of National Bank Examiner John C. McKeon, and was followed by a circular letter issued to all patrons of the Northwestern National and to other banks in which the state affairs was briefly but explicitly presented. Assistant Cashier Griffin has been in the service of the bank nearly eighteen years, and has held the trust and confidence of the banking world. He has full authority to sign for the bank, and in this position he is said to have used appropriate money for his own uses and his shortage amounted to exactly $50,000. Vice-President W. F. Dummer said the amount of Griffin's defalcation was small compared with the capital and surplus of the bank—the former being $5,500,000 and the latter $500,000. In addition there are individual profits of $30,000. Griffin has made a full confession.

Plunder the Vault.

The post office at Springfield, Ill., was robbed of about $10,000 worth of stamps and silver Wednesday. The robbery was committed about 12:30 o'clock while Postmaster Redick M. Ridgely was at dinner. The robbery was not discovered until 1 o'clock, and those implicated have so covered up their tracks. Access was gained to the vault by the use of duplicate keys, impressions doubtless having been taken in wax at noon when the majority of the employes are at lunch. The robbers have nearly five hours' start, and doubtless left the city before the discovery. It is believed that the vault had been entered.

Towns Taken by Tramps.

Nearly 600 tramps, who are unable to obtain work on the oyster boats, have taken possession of the towns of Bivalve and Port Norris, N. J. The towns' authorities are unable to cope with them and it may become necessary to call on the sheriff to drive the desperadoes away. The men were brought there to find employment during the oyster planting season, which has just opened and which will continue until June. They are desperate by hunger and are so bold that they enter houses in daylight and steal them of all food they can find.

Dunkards Going to North Dakota.

Probably the largest party of emigrants ever carried by rail arrived in St. Paul, Minn., en route to North Dakota, in special train of thirty-six cars. The hundred and sixty Dunkards from Warkenton, Ind., were joined there by a party of forty other Dunkards from Hutchinson, Kan., and the party was taken on the Great Northern to Marquette, N. D., where they have decided to establish a colony.

Big Boat Takes Fire.

While putting off freight at Antiquity twelve miles above Pomeroy, Ohio, passenger steamer Iron Queen took fire and was totally destroyed. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp in the engine room. The boat was loaded with the guards with freight and had a passenger list.

NEWS NUGGETS.

Carle Browne, Coxe's lieutenant, ran for city solicitor of Massillon, O., was defeated.

The steamship Parisine, which arrived at Portland, Me., from Liverpool, brought 136 English orphan boys, ranging in age from 5 to 20 years, who will be placed in homes with Canadian farmers.

Boone County, Ky., was struck by a cyclone Wednesday, which did much damage to property, but caused no loss of life. Many horses and cattle were killed. Farm wagon was carried two miles by wind.

Ernest Lung, Ludwig Wickstrom, Harry Johnson and another little boy named Estergeren were poisoned near Warrenton, Pa., by eating what they thought to be artichoke, but which proved to be poison.

The divorce suit of Professor Desobry of Kansas City, has been dismissed at St. Louis, N. D., and his wife's cross bill granted with $40 per month alimony.

Ben C. Neal, ex-deputy collector of internal revenue, was shot and killed by Irvine, Ky., by Green Miller, a 21-year-old boy, who was in his company. They quarreled over a settlement.

CHAPTER V.

Nothing seems to satisfy you, to conor please you," said Bertie Carlyon his friend and companion, the young of Bayneham. "Here you are,
and, tolerably good looking, a magnifiincome all clear—no debts. You two Edens in the country and a in town; no matter what you want, can have it. Now look at me, a poor, fortunate, younger son. My whole in-would not keep me in cigars alone.
over head and ears in debt; every-goes wrong with me; fate, love, and time, fr wn alike. Yet I look happier you do."
Do not tease me, Bertie; I am not in humor for it," said Lord Bayneham, polly.
Neither for that or anything else," orted Bertie. "What do you want that cannot have? There is even a young beautiful wife provided for you when have time for the wooing."
The gloomy look deepened on Lord neham's face.
All you say is true, Bertie," he replied;
in all sober truth, I declare to you would give my rank, title, 'magnificent ome, and all else I possess in the ld, to be at this moment a free man."
Free from what?" cried Bertie, in amazement.
Lord Bayneham made no reply, and a of deeper gravity stole over his panion's face.
You must trust me in all or none," d Mr. Carlyon. "I see you are chang-and, all jesting aside, you are unhap-If I can help you, let me; if not, I but sympathize in silence."
If you would but be serious," remonated Lord Bayneham.
I am," said Bertie; "laughing, with me,
second nature; but did I ever fail you?"
No," said Lord Bayneham, "you never but you are so fond of joking over anything. What I have to say lies deep my heart; if you were to smile I should er forgive you."
I often see the shadow of a smile crossed Bertie Carlyon's face; on the contrary, oked he "I sorry, half vexed.
"He jests at scars that never felt a nd," said Bertie. "Despite my love laughing, I have suffered as keenly as at men. I can respect real sorrow
I see it, Claude, as you know well."
The two gentlemen were quite alone in the smoking room of Bayneham's London house. It was age and lofty apartment, well furnish-with divans, easy chairs, lounges and s, whereon the lords of creation could at their ease.
Bertie Carlyon lounged upon a couch near to the window. He was tried industriously. Lord Bayneham tried a meerschaum that failed to te him, and he took up a cigar with water result. He laid both down with going up to the mantelpiece, he ed dejectedly upon it, then sighed

I am tired," said Lord Bayneham, ily.
his friend reproached him for not happy and contented.

e, "but not fancied woes. I have something of a darker side of life.
is your trouble, Claude? It is not debt or ill-health—what else can a man unhappy and dissatisfied?"
will tell you," replied Lord Bayne-
"I know you will guard my secret to marry one woman—good, amiable and true, while I am passion-ly in love with another."

cannot be recorded to Bertie's disgrace for all answer, he indulged in a low, aged whistle.

Bertie next year?"
It was arranged," said Lord Bayne-
"If it be right to marry one woman of whom in the world have you so deeply in love with?" asked angst at his friend's earnest, im-manner.

I could but tell you," said Lord neham, with a sigh—"a myth, a fairy, vision, beautiful vision."
That is nonsense," said his practiced friend. "Visions are all very well—something more substantial. Where appear to you?"
I am promised to be serious, Bertie," his friend, reproachfully. "I will where I saw it. Do you remem-May I went to Scotland with Treand Higham?"
remember," said Bertie.
I went to Trosach Castle, and reman, "then I, longing to see

of the beautiful Scotch scenery, of a pedestrian tour. To shorten

CHAPTER VI.

The Baynehams, of Castle Bayneham, were a noble and ancient family. The earldom dated as far back as the reign of the "Merry Monarch." The father of the present earl was remarkable for nothing save having married one of the most beautiful and imperious women in England—Lady Blanche Delamere. She was descended from an illustrious but somewhat decayed family.
She had a younger sister, who, unlike the brilliant countess, married for love;
she united her fate with that of an almost penniless captain, Gerald Earle.
Fortune, however, favored them, for before Gerald Earle and his young wife became to feel the evils of poverty, a large fortune was bequeathed to him by a distant relative. Gerald Earle died abroad, and his delicate wife did not long survive
him. She had left her only child, Barbara, to the care of the Countess of Bayneham. Her trust was nobly fulfilled; Barbara Earle was treated in every way like one of Lady Bayneham's own children. Her large fortune accumulated, and when she reached her eighteenth year she found herself one of the wealthiest heiresses in England.
The Countess of Bayneham had one fixed idea—it was that her son should marry Barbara Earle. She was deeply attached to the young girl, over whose childhood and youth she had watched so well. Both children were brought up with the same idea, but nothing definite was ever said to them. Lady Bayneham, foolishly enough, would speak of the time when Barbara would be Claude's wife. Every day, in fifty different ways, it was brought before them. Claude took it as a matter of course. Barbara loved her cousin; she had no thought, no happiness, no wish away from him. When Claude went to college he never returned without a present for his intended little wife. One speech of his was most characteristic.
Talking one day at school in the midst of a group of boys, who were discussing their future, he said:
"I shall never have to trouble myself with love making; I am going to marry
my cousin, Barbara, you know."
His father died, and Claude became the Earl of Bayneham. Perhaps no one ever began life under fairer auspices; he was young, handsome, clever and highly accomplished. Nature and fortune had both been kind to him. He owned one of the proudest names and the finest estates in England. The long and illustrious line of ancestors had each added a laurel to the crown of the Baynehams. Everything and everyone smiled upon him. He was one of the happiest of men until that May morning came and brought him to the woods of Brynmar.

He returned home an altered man. His previous life seemed to have been one long, calm, unbroken dream. He was awakened now, and the dream had ended. The realities of life had begun for him. He had learned on that bright May morning a lesson that Barbara Earle had never taught him—how to love. He saw the preparations continued for their marriage, and made no comment. Whatever he might think or suffer, he was a gentleman, a man of honor, who would scorn to break a promise and die rather than fail wh...
honor bade him persevere.

CHAPTER VII.

The world generally did not call Barbara Earle a beautiful girl. The great charm of her face was the soul that shone there. Her eyes were magnificent, dark, dreamy, full of light and thought. She had sweet, sensitive lips, perfect in shape and color. People passed her by at first, considering her almost plain; at a second interview they would like her better.
Then her face would glow upon them, until they would end by declaring that no other girl was half so beautiful as Barbara Earle.
Lovers in plenty sighed for Barbara
Earle; she had no thought save for Lord Bayneham.
When he returned from Scotland she found him changed in every respect. He had lost the gay flow of spirits that once never failed him; he fell into dreamy reveries, from which nothing could ever rouse him. He looked like a man whose aim and purpose in life were ended. He was kind to her, but indifferent to everything in the wide world. Nothing seemed to interest or amuse him. Even Lady Bayneham noticed and wondered at the change that had come over her son.
One day Claude was unusually busy;
his lawyer was at Bayneham, and many business affairs were on the tapis. The steward was waiting, and an important paper was mislaid. Lady Bayneham was in the drawing room with visitors, so that Claude could not ask for help from her.
In his perplexity he sought Miss Earle.
"Barbara," he said, "like most people who undertake to do three things at once, I am making a terrible mess of it; will you help me? I have lost a paper—the plan for those new houses at Greystoke.
Will you go to my study and look for it?
The keys lie upon my writing table."
Barbara gladly hastened to comply with his wish. Lord Bayneham's study was a room sacred from all intrusion. It was very rarely that any one obtained admission there. It was a pretty little apartment, overlooking the park.
Miss Earle searched for the last plan in every available place; she went to a bureau where her cousin kept many private papers; there was no trace of it. One drawer smaller than the rest drew her attention; she opened it, and several papers fell out. One was the lost plan, another a picture that had been folded in paper.
Barbara looked at it with surprise; she saw it was a sketch taken by her cousin;
she recognized his style, and his initials were underneath it. It was a simple but beautiful subject, and the artist had done full justice to it. A young girl standing beneath the shade of a large, spreading tree, the sunbeams falling on her golden hair. Her face, so wondrously lovely, was bent over some bluebells that she carried in her little hands; anything so fresh, so fair, so delicately beautiful as that face, Barbara Earle had never seen.
It was quite strange to Barbara; but who could it be? With a woman's keen eyes she noted the details of the dress.
The original of the picture was evidently a lady; who could she be? and why had Claude locked up what was certainly the best of his productions. He was too busy just then for her to mention it. He thanked her gratefully for the trouble she had taken, but Barbara Earle was ill at ease.
That evening when dinner was over and Claude rejoined the ladies, Barbara went to the table where he stood, looking over some beautiful engravings that had just arrived.
"Claude," she said, gravely, "when I opened the small drawer of your bureau this morning, a picture fell out of it, one of your own paintings, I believe. Whose face is it? I never saw one half so beautiful before."
She was watching him keenly, and saw a slight pallor in his face.
"I cannot tell you whose face it is," he replied; "it is a picture I saw on my travels, and thought it so beautiful that I could not refrain from trying to reproduce it."
"You have succeeded well," said Miss Earle.
He made some half-indifferent reply and turned away. Barbara Earle's eyes followed him with a sad, wistful look. What had changed him so?
Lord Bayneham went to his study. He took the picture from the drawer, and folding it in many papers, locked it safely away.
He was kinder than usual to Barbara that evening, as though he would make amends for some involuntary wrong.
The Countess of Bayneham changed her mind once more. She had decided upon dissuading her son from going to London for the season until after he was married; but she looked upon it in a different light now. His engagement to Barbara Earle was known publicly. Perhaps, after all, it would be better to make a brilliant appearance in London, and then at the end of the season have a brilliant marriage. She decided it was to be so,
and early in May the young earl left Castle Bayneham for his town house, which was an almost palatial mansion in Grosvenor Square.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL. DOINGS AT LANSING.

THOUGHTS WORTHY OF CALM REFLECTION.

A Pleasant, Interesting, and Instructive Lesson, and Where It May Be Found—A Learned and Concise Review of the Same.

Lesson for April 14.

The resurrection of Jesus is the subject of this lesson, which is found in Mark 16:1-8. God be praised for the resurrection! Without it we were of all men most miserable; with it we are of all men most joyous and assured. For, when Christ arose, all hope arose and all grief and gloom were buried. For the tomb that gives us back our Lord engulfs Satan. Hence infidelity lies buried. Hic jacet to doubt and unbelief. All hail to life and love and joy. Christ is risen! Christ is risen! Tell it, sing it, rejoice in it every-where.

"Joy to the world, the Savior reigns; Let men their songs employ; While fields and floods, rocks, hills and plains, Repeat the sounding joy."

What a surprise! They came with spices to anoint, for love's sake, a dead body; and lo, a living voice was presently saying, "Children, have ye any meat?" Henceforth leave incense and spices to the church that worships a dead Christ. Let Protestantism arise and follow his footsteps of mercy to Galilee, and presently to Olivet.

"Very early in the morning," they came to the sepulcher. But Christ was earlier. Up and away! Human love arose very early on the first day of the week; divine love rose earlier. God is always first with his love and his power. "Who shall roll us away the stone?" So they said as they came, or more literally, they kept saying. And then they looked and lo! the stone was already rolled away. Brother, sister, troubled and burdened, bereaved, it may be, death itself impending, look, the stone is gone! In Christ the rock of offense is removed. Only look. "They saw a young man sitting." One of heaven's young men. Have you ever seen him before? Will you ever see him again? Yes, you and I shall one day be like him, a specimen celestial, clad in white garments and in everlasting youthfulness. "Be not affrighted." Here ends all affright, here at the resurrection of our Lord. Henceforth ghosts are banished, death is shorn of its terrors, the grave's victory gone. Christ is risen; be calm, be confident.

Hints and Illustrations.

The doctrine of the resurrection is great; resurrection life is greater. The power of a risen life—preach it, live it. Do you? It is altogether more important that God should have power over us than that we should have power over others. The latter will follow when once the first is secure. The scribe says that dead men tell no tales. In the kingdom of the Master it is only dead men who tell the tidings—men who have been slain of the Lord, and then raised again to walk in newness of life. The world needs such. And the church needs them. Do we preach and speak of the resurrection enough? Not so much, perhaps, the resurrection as the risen Christ. Why have we not been rejoicing in it all the time? Possibly you have. But it has come to us as a glad new message that Jesus is already on the throne, and at the right hand of God. Think of it, brother. He is not any longer under torture of scourge and lash. He has passed through suffering and death, and is seated already as a conqueror, crowned now with glory and honor. And we belong to him, and he, by God's grace, to us. Can we not pray now and work now as never before? Was it not some such conception as this that made the dying man, raising his eyes toward heaven, cry out: "It lifts me! It lifts me!" Set your affections on things above!

"Peace, perfect peace, the future all unknown, Jesus, we know; and he is on the throne." The resurrection was all of God, entirely so. The disciples were not expecting it; the Jews did not want it; Pilate did all he could (made it sure, poor impotent) to prevent it. Then came God, in our undoneness, and did it for us. So God often does with us by his grace still. The little lad, essaying to help his father with his books, sat weeping on the bottom stair, with a volume in his arms too big for him to carry. Then came a great arm around him and lifted him, burden and all, to the top. Christian brother or sister, has not God the Father often treated you thus?

Venture somewhat on this resurrection power. Go beyond carnal expectation. Expect great things of God, and so attempt for him. If we understand Dwight L. Moody this is his spirit; and hence he surprises and startles some of us. Doubtless, we need to be waked up, half asleep as we are. Riding across the country with a gentleman who had been driven to meet him, Mr. Moody caught sight of a school-house, and proceeded to give out notice along the way of a meeting to be held there. "But who is going to lead it?" his companion asked, for he knew that Mr. Moody had appointments every night in the town, near by, to which they were going. "You are, sir," responded the evangelist. "I?" exclaimed the man, "I never did such a thing in my life!" Quoth Mr. Moody, "It is high time you commenced." And commence he did, and likewise a gracious revival in the country community.

Next Lesson—"Watchfulness."—Matt. 24:42-51.

The Greatest Sinner.

The greatest, most guilty sinner is the man who has heard the gospel plainly, affectionately and faithfully preached, and yet has trifled with it, despised it and rejected it. No such sinner can be found in all the heathen world, and yet such are often the ones who puzzle themselves about what will become of the heathen.

WORK OF THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

An Impartial Record of the Work Accomplished by Those Who Make Our Laws—How the Time Has Been Occupied During the Past Week.

The Law-Makers.

A great stir ensued in the Legislature Thursday when the Apilin liquor bill came up in committee of the whole in the House. The bill provides for a uniform tax of $400 on both malt and alcoholic liquors. It was made a special order for Wednesday. A bill was agreed to prohibiting the sale of liquors within one and one-half miles from the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids. A joint resolution to change the salaries of members of the State Legislature from $3 a day to $750 for each biennial session passed the lower house. The Senate passed a bill raising the age of consent from 14 to 16 years.

A bill passed both houses of the Legislature Wednesday by which the county of Manitowish is disorganized and attached to Charlevoix and Leelanaw Counties. Manitowish County comprises the Manitowish, Fox, Beaver and various other smaller islands in Lake Michigan. It has only a thousand population. There was no opposition to the bill. The House committee of the whole agreed to a bill making it unlawful for any fire or inland marine insurance company to limit or restrict its liability, and the Senate agreed to a bill relative to soliciting unauthorized fire or inland marine insurance by providing that in case of a conviction the person making the complaint shall receive one-half of the fines collected. Both houses have passed the bill providing for the incorporation of mutual plate glass insurance companies.

"The Lost Chord."

Perhaps the most successful song of modern times is "The Lost Chord," whose sale in Great Britain has exceeded two hundred and fifty thousand copies. The story of its composition, as told by Mr. Willeby, in his "Masters of English Music," illustrates that in art, as in statesmanship, success came to those Who knew the seasons, when to take Occasion by the hand.

For nearly three weeks, Arthur Seymour Sullivan had watched by the bedside of a dying brother. One night, when the end was not far off, and his brother was sleeping, he chanced to come across some verses of Adelaide Proctor's, which five years before he had tried in vain to set to music.

In the silence of that night watch he read them over again, and almost instantly their musical expression was conceived. A stray sheet of music paper was at hand, and he began to write. The music grew, and he worked on, delighted to be helped while away the hours of watching. As he progressed, he felt sure the music was what he had sought for and failed to find on the occasion of his first attempt to set the words. In a short time it was complete, and not long after in the publisher's hands.

Losing Hold on Life.

She then and there lost her hold upon life. She was poisoned and must die. She was as sure of it as the Chinaman who has seen an eagle, and who, recognizing that his hour is come, calmly lies down and breathes his last by the mere suspension of volition. In old countries the lower orders, as a rule, have but a low vitality. It may be true to say that the vital volition is weak. Let the learned settle the definition. The fact is easily accounted for. During generations upon generations the majority of European agricultural populations live upon vegetable food, like the majority of Eastern Asiatic, and with the same result. Hard labor produces hard muscles, but vegetable food yields a low vital tension, so to say. Soldiers know it well enough. The pale-faced city clerk who eats meat twice a day will outfight and outlast and outstarve the burly laborer whose big thews and sinews are mostly compounded of potatoes, corn, and water.—The Century.

Two Savory Supper Dishes.

Cheese puffs are made by taking an equal quantity of grated cheese and breadcrumbs, writes Elizabeth Robinson Scovill in a carefully prepared article on "Breakfast and Tea Receipts" in the Ladies' Home Journal. Soak the breadcrumbs in as much milk as they will absorb. To each pint of crumbs allow two eggs. Season with salt and not pepper. Place alternate layers of cheese and breadcrumbs in a baking-dish, add the eggs and bake about fifteen minutes. Serve as soon as the dish is taken from the oven. Cut thin slices of bread about three inches square, heap them with grated cheese, taking care not to spread it within an eighth of an inch of the edges of the squares. Place them in a pan and put them in a quick oven.

How Sir Isaac Did It.

Sir Isaac Newton was very fond of house pets. Everybody has read of his dog Diamond, but his cat and kitten are not so famous. In order to enable the pair to come into his study when they pleased, without giving him the trouble of rising to let them in, he had a large hole cut in the door for the cat, and a small one for the kitten! It required a philosopher to discover that the big hole would not do for the kitten also!

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Squared Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-painting of roses, 16 1/4 x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine. In every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and find of the day, Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the gentler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one Magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of the whole family.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Special Correspondence

Current events are held to indicate that Mr. Cleveland has taken upon his shoulders the task of guiding the Democratic party. There has been much comment on the gratitude shown by the President in the matter of appointment for men who stood by him in the last Congress and who fell behind the breast-works. He has given fat places to several, and other appointments are understood to be on the way. This is cited as an evidence of his gratitude. Some politicians take a different view of it, believing that it is something more than gratitude. They think that it has reference to future services expected rather than to the memory of those already performed. Having during his career, heretofore, given an exhibition of firmness and independence of "practical politicians" and place hunters, they believe that he is now trying a little practical politics himself. They believe that he deserves to be the architect of the democratic party of the future, and that he is bending his energies entirely in that direction. It may or may not be, they say, that he is ambitious to again get the nomination for the presidency, but they are satisfied that he aims at naming the next democratic candidate and forming the party policy. Some think he wants to hold to the office. Other think that it is the policy of the party only that he wishes to influence. There are evidences that he is trying to win over the less radical silver men and strengthen that partisanship which holds men to their old party ties. To this end he is credited with adopting some diplomacy quite new to his disposition. Mr. Cleveland has several times recently taken occasion in speaking with men from the so-called silver states to say that he wished to see silver restored to its proper place as a money metal, and that he expected to see this. He is represented as endeavoring to make it appear that it is only the most radical silver men who have any reason to complain of his attitude toward the white metal.

It is now regarded by the members of the steering committees of both parties as practically settled that the republicans are to reorganize the committees of the Senate as soon as the Fifty-fourth Congress assembles. The democratic leaders are willing that there should be a reorganization, provided it is done in a manner which they consider fair, and it is understood that a general understanding has been reached, without going into details. It is said that a silver majority will still be maintained in the finance committee. The democrats will probably receive more consideration in the distribution of honors than they would if there were a clear republican majority, but, on the whole, the committee organization will be in the hands of the republicans. It is likely that the Finance Committee will be reorganized with a new chairman. It is said that Senator Morrill, appreciating his advancing years (he is now eighty-five), is not only willing to retire from the place, but that he has intimated a desire to do so. Senator Sherman will therefore doubtless be the successor of Mr. Morrill. The presidential household has taken up its abode at the cottage on Woodley lane road, and that modest dwelling will be the real Executive Mansion up to the early part of May, when it will be succeeded by the cottage of Gray Gables. The White House will be occupied, as usual, by the executive clerks, but the President will have his office at Woodley and will only visit the White House on Tuesdays and Fridays, to meet his cabinet. The change will be a bad thing for politicians and office seekers. It is made, however, earlier than usual this year purely for purely family reasons.

The successes which are attending the operations of the insurgents in Cuba will, if they are continued, soon lead to a determined effort to secure recognition from the United States. While no communication has yet been received at the State Department, its arrival is not unexpected. It has always been the policy of the United States to recognize de facto governments. This country, however, demands as a general rule that the provisional de facto government shall issue currency and shall be in possession of a consideration portion of the territory over which it assumes control. If the Cuban insurgents should receive recognition as belligerents their government would be placed upon exactly the same footing as Spain in all relations with the United States.

People in the vicinity of the White House a few afternoons ago were astonished to see the main door thrown wide open and the President issue forth heading the cabinet, all in attendance save Secretary Carlisle. The party proceeded on foot across the grounds and through the streets to Secretary Herbert's house. The Secretary had invited the President and his fellow cabinet officers to an old-fashioned southern luncheon at his home. The impromptu procession caused much comment, and the Executive's courageous walk in public indicates that the famous
