CHAPTER VII.-Continued. The season opened brilliantly. Mis-Earle, the niece of the Countess of Bayne ham, was much admired. But what puzzled both ladies was that Claude took little or no interest in any of the gayeties that surrounded them.

Lord Bayneham was fortunate in one thing-he met in London his oldest and dearest college friend, Bertie Carlyon, the second son of Sir Hubert Carlyon, of Durham Park, one of the kindliest and noblest of men, unfortunate, as he himself declared, in everything, love and finance above all other things; but so kind, so genial, so true, no one could help loving him.

Bertie had his secret, too; from the first moment he saw Barbara Earle he loved her. He seemed almost by instinct to understand the woman's grand, noble soul. He never mentioned his love; of what avail could it have been, when the girl who had so unconsciously won his heart was the affianced wife of his best friend?

So Bertie Carlyon, as many another man before him had done, shut up his love in the silence and secrecy of his own heart. He avoided seeing Barbara as much as possible, but he was a great favorite with the stately countess. She admired him and encouraged his visits to the house. So it happened that not one day passed without bringing Bertie Carlyon to Grosvenor Square.

"I hear wonders of a young lady who is to be presented at the next drawing room," said Bertie Carlyon one day to the countess.

"Who is it?" asked Lady Bayneham. "I can give your ladyship every infor-"We mation," replied Mr. Carlyon. younger sons are in a state of fervent reoicing. She is to be presented by Lady Hutton, the daughter and heiress of the late Sir Ralph Erskine, of Brynmar. The young lady is very beautiful, and, if rumor speaks truly, her adopted child. She is called Lady Hutton's ward."

CHAPTER VIII.

The drawing room was a brilliant one Lady Hutton's ward was greatly admired. No such beautiful girl had been seen for some time; it was a new style, every one declared; there was something so fresh and fair, so innocent and graceful about Even the brilliant Countess of Bayncham was pleased.

"She is perfect in her way," said that lady to her niece, "but her face is not developed; and unless I am greatly mistaken, it will attain much rarer beauty

Lady Morton, the wife of one of the leading ministers, gave a grand ball on the evening of the day on which the drawing room was held. Lord Bayneham, with his mother and cousin, was to be present. It was arranged for Bertie Carlyon to dine at Grosvenor Square and ac company them to Lady Morton's. They were late, the rooms were full, and everyone seemed to be talking about the same thing, the delicate beauty and rare grace of Lady Hutton's ward. "Claude," said Bertie to Lord Bayne-ham, "you must procure an introduction to Miss Hutton, the new beauty. Let us go into the ball room; she is dancing, I think, with Sir Harry Poyutz; I want you

The young earl had not paid much at tention to what his friend was saying; all beauties were indifferent alike to him. They went through the long suite of bril liantly crowded rooms. At the furthest end of one stood a young girl in earnest conversation with an elderly gentleman, the celebrated painter whose pictures had taken the world by storm. His eyes, expressive of deep admiration, were bent upon her. She was well worthy of the and kindest words? What if she had reartist's praise. It is so seldom that in a London drawing room a face so pure and he had thought of her? It was all of no lovely can be seen, a face on which the avail. He belonged to another. His world did not seem to have breathed, calm and unruffled in its sweet innocence and childlike grace; violet eyes, so clear and pure and full of truth; bright, shining golden hair, that fell in rich waves over her shoulders, white and shapely; slender, graceful figure, full of dignity; round, white arms, perfect in color and contour. She wore a dress of costly white lace, and a suite of pearls that a princess might envy.

"See," said Bertie Carlyon, quietly. "that is Miss Hutton. What do you think of her, Claude?" Lord Bayneham made no reply. His ful surroundings, that I made a little face became white, and his dark eyes grew darker still. The beautiful girl before him was the one who had haunted him day and night since he had met her on that May morning in the woods at

"What do you think of her?" asked Bertie. impatiently. "I have seen her before," replied Lord Bayneham, in a low, constrained voice; "she is very beautiful."

Bertie Carlyon looked wonderingly at his friend's face.

"I must have an introduction to her,"

Just at that moment they saw the sought Miss Hutton. She wanted to see Countess of Bayneham conversing with Lady Hutton. The young earl hastened toward them. His mother introduced him to Lady Hutton, who was more gracious to Lady Hutton, who was more grac than usual to the handsome young man Miss Hutton?" she asked, "they are in the long drawing room; Lady Morton is very proud of them. If you are fond of flowers they will please yon."

"I like flowers almost better than anything else in the world," replied Hilda:
"they have been my companions at Brynmar. I shall be so giad to see them."

"You are not unlike one yourself," thought Barbara Earle. "I wonder what it is you like better."

The two girls walked down the ball room together. They reached the stand on which the japonicas were placed, and Hilds bent her beautiful face over them. The room was nearly empty; Capt. Massey and Mr. Seaton were at the other end. They stood watching the young girls bending over the flowers. There could not have been a greater contrast-Hilda so fair and bright and radiant, with shining golden hair and rich white dress; Barbara Earle, dark and stately, a noble soul shining through her eloquent face, giving it a beauty all its own.

"That would not make a bad picture," said Captain Massey to the artist; "what title should you give it?"

"I hardly know," said the artist, musingly. "Miss Earle is my highest ideal of a beautiful, noble woman. Miss Hutton is the truest type of a lovely girl. I could not say to which I could accord the palm. I could not choose between Lord Bayneham joined them at that moment, and overheard the last few words, and felt that they were true. He saw the woman he loved, and the woman who loved him; but for him there was no choice. Fate, honor and truth bound him to one, while his heart and love lay at the feet of the other.

CHAPTER IX.

Lord Bayneham inherited the courage of his ancestors; he said to himself that his love was a danger he must fly from, and, cost him what it might, he kept his resolution. Whenever he heard that Lady Hutton and her beautiful ward were to be present at a ball, party, or fete, there he refused to go. He would not again voluntarily meet the young girl who was never for a moment out of his mind. He could not help his love; but he would not divulge it weakly, at the price of his

So a month of the brilliant London season passed, and never once did Lord Bayneham allow himself even to look upon the fair young face he loved so well. Hilda could not understand it. She knew nothing of the engagement between the earl and his cousin. It had never been mentioned in her presence, and she wondered, until wonder became pain, why he did not call upon her or try to see her. She had never forgotten him; that one morning had colored her life; she had remembered him, thought of him, dreamed of him, and loved him, but she had never hoped to meet him again. When he suddenly stood before her that night at Lady Morton's ball her heart almost stood still. Then he had spoken to her, and gazed so long and earnestly upon her, had seemed so utterly and entirely happy, that she thought he cared a great deal for her. And now it was four weeks since, and he had never once sought her. Hilda could not understand. Every morning she awoke hoping she should see him during the day, and every day brought its own bitter disappoint-

In the meantime, as Lady Hutton had foreseen, lovers in plenty surrounded the beautiful young heiress. There was no one more popular or more admired. "The beautiful Miss Hutton" was declared to be the belle of the season; but flattery. homage and admiration brought no pleasure to her. She would have exchanged all for one word from Lord Bayneham.

There was a grand fete at the Botanical Gardens, and Miss Earle wished to go. It was arranged that Lord Bayneham should escort both ladies. It was a beautiful day in the beginning of June. The sky was cloudless, the air soft and balmy. The gardens were magnificent, the flowers in full perfection, the show of roses was superb, and crowds of splendidly dressed ladies surrounded them.

As Lord Bayneham walked slowly down one of the more retired paths, following Barbara and the countess at a little distance, the whole party suddenly met Lady Hutton and Hilda. They were surrounded by quite a little court of admirers. Captain Massey, hopelessly in love, and Mr. Seaton, who never neglected an opportunity of studying Hilda's face. There was a murmur of polite greeting, a dispersion of the group of admirers; then Lord Bayneham found himself, he hardly knew how, by Hilda's side. His heart beat almost painfully; he spoke a few words, and those without looking at her.

The path was narrow, and the countess said, half impatiently: "We cannot all remain together. I am going to see the roses. Claude, you wanted to look at the geraniums; they are over there. Perhaps Miss Hutton would like to see them."

In less than three minutes after her ladyship's little speech, Barbara Earle found herself with Captain Massey. The two elder ladies enjoyed a half confidential chat over the roses, and Lord Bayneham and Hilda were left behind with the geraniums. She bent over them, but he made no pretense of even looking at a flower. His lips grew white, and he would have flown from the danger, but could not. "Are you not well, Lord Bayneham?" asked Hilda, looking up into his still

"Yes," he replied, "I am quite well." Then a dreary silence fell upon them all kinds of wild thoughts rushed through Hilda's mind. She tried to think if it were possible she could have offended him. Was this stern, silent man the same who had lingered by her side in Brynmar woods, and seemed to live in her smiles on the night of the ball? What could have brought about so great s

GERM THEORY OF DISEASE.

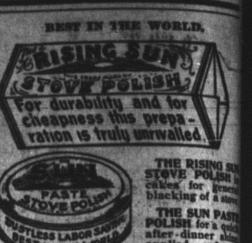

The Position It Occupies and Attention It Is Receiving from Scientific

Men. The germ theory of the origin of disease is a subject which is at present attracting the attention of scientific men in all parts of the world. The chief importance of the germ theory, however, is not that it shows the origin of disease but that it points out the best means to be employed to effect a cure. The germs of disease, from whatever source they come, are lodged and developed in the blood. The blood, of course, by circulating to every part of the body, is sure to scatter disease throughout the system whenever it is impure, the weakest and most susceptible parts being the first to suffer. It is because of scrofulous taints in the blood, for instance, that the skin becomes covered with eruptions. It is lactic acid in the blood which causes rheumatism, and it is because the blood does not supply proper nourishment to the nerves that people suffer with nervousness. The cure for all these diseases, and of many others, can only be effected by purifying the blood, and absolutely destroying all germs of disease. No intelligent person can doubt that Hood's Sarsaparilla has actually and permanently cured many thousands of cases of scrofula, rheumatism, nervousness, dyspepsia and other troubles, and, as its proprietors claim, it is all because this medicine purifies the blood. As a matter of fact, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only reliable blood purifier that is before the public to-day, and persons afflicted with impure blood or any of the great variety of ailments which it causes, will be most certain to find relief and cure in Hood's Sarsaparilla because it possesses this peculiar power to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood, and destroy the germs of disease.

Boils, pimples, scrofuls, salt m, would never trouble you. But our mode of living, shut in all winter in poorly ventilated homes and shops, depletes the blood, and there is loss of appetite and weakness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard remedy for this condition. It purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, overcomes that tired feeling, builds up the nerves, and gives perfect health. ing and itching would dr.ve her nearly wild. Unless we incased her little hands she would tear patches of skin from her face and hands. We tried many doctors and many remedies, and at last gave the case up as hopeless. But our daughter Cora tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, to cure a scrofulous lump, near the left breast which caused her much pain, and after taking 4 bottles it disappeared. Blanche, who is now eleven, had spent seven years of suffering, so I concluded to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She took 5 bottles, and her face is smooth and soft as a baby's, the color of a rose petal. Her hands are soft and white, where four months ago they were blue and red and calloused nearly like leather. I cannot express my gratitude by pen or mouth. It seems a miracle, and our friends are surprised." Mrs. Anna L. Clark, 401 E. 4th St., Duluth, Minn.

No. 10-95 N WRITING TO ADVERTISER:

BLOW TO TAX LAW.

SUPREME COURT MANGLES THE INCOME STATUTE

Rents and Bond Interest Declared to Be Exempt-Business Men Must Pay -So Must Employes, While Big Trust Companies Escape.

Vast Changes Decreed.

A special dispatch from Washington says that the United States Supreme Court in the income tax case has reversed the decision of the lower court. The income tax law as a whole is upheld, but only by a divided court. Two important portions of the law, however, have been decided to be unconstitutional, and they are so serious as to affect materially not only the revenues of the Govtrnment, but the estimation in which the income tax will be held by the people. Under the decision, as reported, all incomes derived from rents are exempted from taxation by the Federal Government and all incomes derived from State and municipal bonds are similarly exempted. In other respects the income tax stands as it was passed last August, but the result of the consultations in the Supreme Court shows very conclusively that the law can easily be picked to pieces, provided suits are as it comes up.

It is a curious fact, but none the less true, that the law which was passed at the dictation of the Populists has been distorted by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in such a way that t will absolutely protect the class of capitalists most offensive to the Populistic element. The landlords of the country will pay no income tax. The owners of bonds of almost any kind, either Federal, State, county or municipal, will also be free, while the business man, the manufacturer and the salaried employe will, for the present at least, be compelled to contribute to the treasury of the United States Government 2 per cent. of all incomes in excess of $4,000 per annum.

The decision of the Supreme Court is a matter of deep annoyance. Collection of the tax has begun; the Government budget was made out with regard to the $30.000,000 or $40,000,000 expected to be derived from this source. The exemption of great fortunes and great estates, the sweeping away of a large part of the expected revenues, is bound to create a situation in the treasury that will be embarrassing, to say the least. Further cause for dissatisfaction will be given to persons who think they see a menace to the rights of the people in the frequent interference of Federal courts in legislative concerns. It is said that one learned justice even attempted to "legislate" building associations into the act.

The first meeting of the Supreme Court was held March 16, two days after the conclusion of the argument, but no decision was reached, and it was not until March 30 that they succeeded in agreeing upon the outlines of a decision covering the opinion of the lower court. The court was evenly divided. Justice Jackson was too ill to take part. Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Field, Gray and Brewer were opposed to the law. Justices Harlan, Brown, Shiras and White voted to sustain the law.

FREE PEWS

A Failure, Because We "Smile and Are Villains Still,"

It was a painful confession of the failure of the free-pew system that was made on Sunday in Brooklyn by the rector of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church. After a free-pew experiment of nine years Rev. Dr. Parker admitted that he had gained a larger knowledge than he ever before possessed of the sinfulness, or we may say the wickedness, if not even the viciousness, of some of the people who are church-goers. He declared that some of the men who occupied the free pews had no regard whatever for the moral obligations involved and seemed to him but as religious vagabonds. He told of men who would drop a cent in the box, and of others who would break their promises, and of more who seemed to be destitute of shame. One man, for example, who had hired a pew in another place of worship, cleared $250 a year by sub-letting it to another party, while he himself took a seat in Dr. Parker's free-pew church.

It was a melancholy sermon of Dr. Parker in which he announced the freepew failure. He spoke of another church in Brooklyn which had tested the freepew theory with the result that the deficit in its treasury had to be made up by the rich members. St. George's Church, in New York, is still experimenting with the system; but he said that the shortage there was to be made up by the many millionaires who belong to it. He did not know of a single case in which it had been successful. After appealing to his listeners to "pay up this time," he made a startling remark: "I notice," he said, "that some of you smile, which reminds me that some can smile and smile and be villains still."

Not Such a Wonderful Increase.

The statement of Librarian Spofford that more than 55,000 publications were copyrighted in the United States last year, as against 23,000 in 1884, shows an immense increase in the business of his office, and has elicited a great amount and variety of press comment. But there does not appear to be any occasion for alarm. To understand the matter thoroughly, it is necessary to bear in mind the fact that in 1884 the international copyright law increase is the growing habit of copyright ing matter that appears in the newspapers. Probably there is ten times as much of this class of copyrighted publications as there was ten years ago, and the chances are that it will continue to

The Other Kind.

Not long ago a well-dressed woman entered the savings-bank in a Western town and told the clerk that she wished to deposit some money to the credit of George Sampson.

Recognizing her as the wife of a man by that name, who already had an account open, the clerk rightly guessed that the money in question was to start an account for one of her children. "Is he a minor?" he inquired.

"Well, I guess not!" responded the depositor, indignantly. "That's something we've never had in our family yet! And if Georgie shows any leanin' toward it when he gets old enoughhe ain't but 10 now-I reckon his pa brought to contest each particular point can tell him yarns about mines explodin' and shafts fallin' on top of folks, that'll settle him quicker'n a wink!"

He Dodged His Troubles.

Frederick Weimer, a well-to-do farmer near Versailles, Ky., went to Louisville to sell seventeen hogsheads of tobacco. When he arrived he had $700 in cash and his tobacco netted him the same amount. He was afraid to go to bed with so much money about him, and remained in a saloon all night. He told those in the saloon about losing his wife lately, said he was lonesome, and would give $50 for a wife. Two hackmen-Wm. Welper and Martin Crane-have lately been disputing the affections of Effie Gannon. They agreed to waive all claim and give her to Weimer for the $50. The girl consented to the marriage. Weimer and his bride missed the train for Versailles and employed the two hackmen to take them to their destination. Next morning Weimer's body was found near Versailles. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide. The testimony shows the suicide had a wife and three grown daughters living in Ripley, O., a wife in Bracken County, and the Louisville girl to whom he was married. Weimer was a total abstainer prior to his Louisville trip.

Too Many Prunes.

Dr. Persis White and Dr. C. R. Scheffer, the two most capable women physicians in the staff, have resigned their connection with the Chicago Hospital for Women and Children becaute the food of the institution is not adequate, either in quantity, quality or variety, and because prunes formed a prominent article of diet three times a day. This much is not stated in the dignified letters which the doctors sent to Mrs. Dr. Root, chief of the board, but the truth is concealed behind the candid statement that they could not longer remain with the management and allow to go unheeded treatment which was not in keeping with their own sense of propriety or the ethics of the profes-

The St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya says if Great Britain has approved the territorial demands of Japan in regard to Manchuria and Corea, Russia will consider itself relieved of the obligations of common action and will oppose Japan on land and on the sea. The Berlin correspondent of the London Standard telegraphs: "I learn the Government regards Japan's demands as highly detrimental to the commercial interests of Europe in China. Germany is willing to co-operate with the other powers in protesting against them, but she will not take the initiative."

Condition of the Crops.

The Cincinnati Price Current summarizes the crop conditions for the past week as follows: "The past was a favorable week for wheat and other crops. The growth is not advancing rapidly. The tenor of wheat crop returns has been well maintained, except in Kansas. Spring seeding is progressing favorably for both wheat and oats. Some areas are still needing moisture. The week's packing of hogs amounted to 195,000, against 230,000 for the corresponding week a year ago."

Survey for a Canal.

The preliminary survey of the ship canal to connect Pittsburg with Lake Erie has progressed so far that the engineers in charge of the work are free to state that they have found the proposed canal perfectly feasible and that an abundant supply of water can be secured. The survey will not be completed before June 1, however. According to the engineers, the most available route is through the Mahoning valley to Leavittsburg, and thence to the lake.

Is She in the Lake?

Bessie Chesborough, a 16-year-old girl of Chicago, has been missing a week, and it is feared she has committed suicide. Her mother is entertaining no other theory and believes the girl has drowned herself in the lake. Detectives have been at work on the case, but no clew has been found that would indicate what has become of the young woman. Two failures to pass an examination in stenography are thought to have crazed the girl.

Four tramps were killed, two fatally and six badly hurt by the derailing of an Alton freight train near East Alton.

A terrible explosion occurred Sunday in the Blue Canyon coal mine on Lake Whatcom, seven miles from New Whatcom, Wash. Ten bodies have been taken out, and it is known that at least eleven others were killed. The mine was inspected about three weeks ago and pronounced safe. W. A. Telford was at the bunkers when the explosion occurred. He went to the incline and found James Kearns at the mouth of the shaft nearly dead with exhaustion. Kearns said all in the mine were dead. He had carried Ben Morgan as far as he was able and then left him. Morgan, he thought, was dead. Kearns and Gellum were the only ones who had escaped out of twenty-three men who were at work.

Owing to the terrific snowstorm which prevailed in the vicinity of Cheyenne, Wyo, in eastern Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska, trains were stalled on all the railway lines east of Denver, and hundreds of men and several snow plows are now engaged in clearing the tracks of drifting snow and sand. In some localities telegraph wires are down. A frain on the Kansas Pacific was laid up at Cheyenne, and a snow plow was sent out ahead to clear the track. The east-bound Rock Island is stalled at Goodland, Kan. At Cheyenne the storm is severe and traffic is shut down on the Northern. The storm is working south. On the Jules shoveling it from the tracks. President Joseph B. Greenhut of the "whisky trust" is charged with diverting $225,000 from the company's treasury was made in a bill filed Tuesday in the United States Circuit Court at Chicago. The object of the suits is to compel Presi dent Greenhut and other defendants to turn over $290,000 which, it is alleged they obtained at the cost of the company in the deal for the purchase of three distilleries in 1892. It is charged in the bill that the Nebraska distillery in Nebraska City, the Central distillery in St. Louis and the Star and Crescent distillery in Pekin, Ill., were bought for $1,685,000, while the cost of these properties was charged on the company's books at $1,-984,407. It is alleged that President Greenhut appropriated to his own use $225,000 of the difference between the actual cost and the amount charged to the company, and that $65,000 went into the defunct administration, and generally erved notice that laws were made to be beyed. He had not been in the Mayor's hair over an hour when he sent a cannon ball, so to speak, through the Building Department that knocked the pins from under a lot of inspectors. By the time another hour rolled around resignations commenced to pile up on the new Mayor's desk. He called for the resignation of A. W. Cooke of the Bureau of Sewers and placed Engineer Lowe in charge. Acting Commissioner of Public Works Moody was directed to drop three fourths of the men on the bridge repair gang, which meant that eighty or ninety men had to let go soft places. This was followed by an order to cut the water pipe extension force one-half, and from 500 to 1,000 heads dropped in the basket. All engineers employed within the last two weeks were ordered discharged. The sewer repair gang was just about obliterated.

A reduction in wages of miners throughout the Flat Top, W. Va., district has been made, and the men are very unsettled. It is known that organizers for the Miners' Union have been at work in the Flat Top and Norfolk and Western regions for some time, getting the men in shape for a general strike. The union, which failed in the Kanawha and New River strike a year ago, promises support to the Flat Top miners. If the strike takes place about 10,000 men will be af-

The City National Bank of Fort Worth Texas, failed to open its doors Friday. "The suspension," said President McCarthy, "was caused by the difficulty in making collections and rumors detrimental to the bank which were circulated in the city." Deposits amount to $487,000; bills rediscounted, $49,000; assets, $35,000 above liabilities to depositors. The bank held $110,000 of city funds, $118,000 of Tarrant County funds, and the deposits of the Endowment Rank, Knights of Pythias.

In the big sham battle at the City of Mexico, Maj. Villareal was knocked from his horse by a collision with an artillery wagen, badly hurt, though believed not fatally. One mule was killed at the same time. Two cavalry soldiers fell with their horses lamed. Various accidents of a similar nature were recorded during the charge by the cavalry on the Plain of Peralville. Some of the infantry privates succumbed to the heat and were borne from the field for medical treatment. During one of the cavalry charges two riders were knocked from their horses and trampled to death, and several privates presented themselves to the chiefs with wounds in their bodies. Lieut. Charles G. Dwyer, military attache of the American Legation, who served on the President's staff, was sunstruck and borne from the field. Considering that the battle was the finest military spectacle ever seen in Mexico, the number of serious accidents was small.

The Supreme Court has decided the income tax case. While the decision of the lower court is upheld as a whole, all incomes derived from rents are exempted from taxation by the Federal Government, as well as municipal funds. These are the greatest changes made by the decision.

Since the delivery of the income tax decision attorneys and others interested in overthrowing the tax have been taking steps to test various parts of the law in further proceedings. Attacks will be made both on those portions that were sustained by a tie vote and on some fresh points, not passed upon in the particular cases decided. Attorney J. M. Wilson, who represented John G. Moore in the Court of Appeals in the recent cases, said that further proceedings will be taken immediately. "Several parts of the law will be attacked," said he, "the principal one being the exemption from taxation of incomes under $4,000. This will be attacked as an unjust discrimination. I cannot say just yet who the complainants or what the titles of the suits will be, but they will be instituted very soon, probably within a very few days, and be pushed as rapidly as possible."

FOREIGN.

Christiania advices say the estimates hich are to be submitted to the storthing have been published and cause much comment. They give fresh impetus to the wild rumors of an impending war between Norway and Sweden. The estimates far exceed any previous sume required. The sum of 4,000,000 kroner is to be devoted to the construction of iron clads. In addition, large credits will be asked for the purchase of munitions of war and for the completion of the forts of Tonsburg harbor.

It is stated on reliable authority that Japan has proposed the following conditions for the conclusion of peace: The independence of Corea; the cession of Southern Manchuria, including Port Arthur; the cession of the Island of Formosa; the opening of Chinese ports and rivers to commerce; the payment of an indemnity of 400,000,000 yen; and the occupation of a number of strategic points until the indemnity shall have been paid. The London Times says it considers Japan is justified in imposing these conditions, and adds that the British cannot object to the occupation of the Liao Tung peninsula. The wound in the face of Li Hung Chang, the Chinese peace envoy, has now completely healed. Liu Ching Fung, son of Li Hung Chang, has been appointed a Chinese peace plenipotentiary to assist Li Hung Chang. Japan has formally accepted him as an envoy.

IN GENERAL

After sixteen years' wandering through the West in search of fortune, Richard Mackey has found his wife, whom he married in Alabama, residing at Lexington, Ky. She has married twice since, and has been supposing herself a widow for the third time. Mackey is wealthy.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly Review of Trade says: Retures showing the condition of retail trade in March throughout the country and the distribution of goods of final comparison with the same month in 1894 and 1893 give gratifying evidence that in most trades and districts marked improvement over 1894 is realized, though on the whole trade is smaller than in 1893.

United States secret service operatives n Chicago and Washington have unearthed probably the most unique and at the same time important swindle ever perpetrated upon any government. Its magnitude, after two days' investigation, can only be guessed at, but it is believed thousands of dollars have been secured by a gang of skillful counterfeiters, who have reproduced with wonderful skill and accuracy the pink two-cent stamps of commerce. As a result the entire issue must be recalled and retired. Whether the counterfeiters have accomplices in dishonest postmasters or whether they are in league with some one nearer the throne is not known. But this much is certain: Uncle Sam has been carrying millions of letters from which he received not one cent of revenue. It is thought the counis flooded from New York to San Francisco with these spurious stamps. Governor John P. Altgeld has paid his respects to Chauncey M. Depew. The occasion for the bitter criticism was the speech recently delivered by Mr. Depew at the Auditorium in Chicago, when he took occasion to find fault not only with the Mayor of Chicago, but with Governor Altgeld as well. The Governor was asked if he had read the speech. "No, I have not," he replied. "Some years ago I listened to Mr. Depew for two hours. So long as the Lord insisted on limiting human life to about three score and ten years, two hours is all the time that the average man can afford to spend on Depew. He is the most conspicuous product of the doctrine 'do evil that good may come of it' that this country has ever seen. He first attracted attention many years ago as a lobbyist at Albany, where he for a long time was engaged in the highly honorable business of putting metaphorical collars on the New York legislators, so that to the public they appeared to belong to the Vanderbilts and the New York Central Railroad. A train of slime and corruption was stretched across the State from New York city by way of Albany to Buffalo, and from there it spread over the whole country, corrupting public officers, polluting legislative halls and even filling courts of justice with its odor. This was the beginning of that flood of corruption which is to-day washing the foundations from under our whole governmental fabric."

WORK OF THE STATE LEGISLA TURE

An Impartial Record of the Work Accomplished by Those Who Make Our Laws-How the Time Has Bees Occupied During the Past Week.

The Law-Makers.

A few days ago the Ways and Means Committee reported the mining school ap-propriation bill with the appropriation for the coming two years reduced by $10,-000, leaving it at $105,000. The bill came up in committee of the whole in the House Thursday, and the action of the committee was ratified. Similar indorsement was given to the committee on the State fish commission appropriation, which was reduced from $73,000 to $60,000. In the Senate the Committee on Appropriations and Finance reduced the current expense appropriation of the State Normal School over $5,000, leaving it at $113,000, and cut out the item of $30,000 for a training school. The House by a unanimous vote passed the Holmes bill, which prohibits fire insurance companies from including in their contracts clauses requiring the insured to insure his property for 80 per cent of its value, or else stand his pro rata share of the loss. The prohibited provision is generally known as the 80 per cent clause. The general charter bill prepared by the municipal commission for the government of all fourth-class cities was agreed to in the Senate committee of the whole. It was amended so as to provide that it shall apply to each city in the State having a population of 10,000 or under, unless such city shall, previous to Jan. 1, 1896, at a special election, decide by a majority vote that it does not wish to come under its provisions.

The joint resolution providing for an educational qualification for voters, which has already passed the Senate of the Michigan Legislature, was made a special order in the House for a future date. The equal suffrage question will be injected into the debate. Auditor General Turner reported to the Legislature Friday that the liquor dealers of the State during the past year paid licenses aggregating $2,-002,228 to the State. This fact will be used in the arguments against the resolution to submit a prohibitory amendment to the constitution to a vote of the

The House Committee on Elections on Cuesday reported the joint resolution proposing the submission to the people at the general election in 1896 of a constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote at all ele The resolu tion was given a favorable report, and its friends are confident that they can muster enough votes to pass it. The Senate has passed bills amending the law prohibiting the soliciting of insurance in unauthorized companies by providing that one-half of the $50 fine shall go to the informer; also providing that wardens of penal and reformatory institutions shall be removed only for cause after a trial on charges which shall be made public. In committee of the whole the Senate agreed to the bill amending the railroad crossing act so as to provide that the State railroad crossing board shall hereafter apportion the expense of all grade crossings between railroads and municipalities instead of leaving this matter to a jury. An important measure which was considered in the Senate was the McLaughlin bill authorizing cities to exempt real estate mortgages and land contracts from taxation for local purposes. The bill was not disposed of, but the discussion showed its chance of passage to be very slim.

Without debate and with but one dissenting vote, the Senate Wednesday passed the bill repealing the law authorizing Roman Catholic bishops to hold property in trust. The general bill for the incorporation of fourth-class cities was made a special order. The lower house passed a bill providing for the paroling of convicts who are not serving life sentences or who have not served two previous sentences for felony. The bills passed by the House were the Wildey bill providing for the collection of State and county taxes in July and December; providing for the election of boards of county canvassers; legalizing the use of the Abbott and Myers' voting machines; requiring boards of education to indorse State teachers' certificates and normal school diplomas issued in other States. The general insolvency bill, agreed to Tuesday, was killed.

The Office Boy.

The office boy sat on a high stool swinging his feet and jabbing a pen in a blotting pad, while a visitor, to see his employer, sat over by the window waiting for him.

"I presume," he said, very kindly, noticing the boy's languid condition, "that you have a great deal of work to do?"

"Not when the boss is out," confessed the boy, frankly. "Um. You get well paid for it, I presume?"

"I don't git as much as I want." "Nobody gets as much as he wants," remarked the visitor, philosophically. "I'd like to be nobody a while," grinned the boy.

"O. well," laughed the visitor, "you will have to wait till you become a man, then you can have an office boy of your own and pay him what he thinks he ought to have for his valuably services."

"Can I?" he responded, emphatically. "Well, I guess not. You bet I'm not going to bankrupt my business, I ain't-But the boss came in at that moment, and just what important communication the office boy was going to present to the visitor was lost in the rush of him off the stool.—Detroit Free Press.

Welverine State to Errot Eleven Memorials to Her Brave Sons V. ho Took Part in the Battles Around Chattanooga, Tenn.

On Bloody Fields. The commission, made up of Charles E.

Belknap, of Grand Rapds; E. A. Crane, Kalamazoo; S. F. Dwight, Hillsdale; L. L. Church, Howard City, and J. M. Whallon, Fitchburg, appointed to locate the sites, select designs, award contracts and superintend the construction of the Michigan monuments in the Chickamauga, Chattanooga and Missionary Ridge military park, has just awarded the contracts for the monuments, specifying that they shall be completed ready for the dedication Sept. 19 and 20 next.

There will be eleven of the monuments, nine of them for regiments, costing $1,500 each, and the other two for batteries of artillery, costing $1,000 each. Four of the monuments, for the Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, the Tenth, Twentyfirst and Twenty-second infantry, respectively, were awarded to Morris J. Powers, of New York, and the remaining seven to the Smith Granite Company, of Westerly, R. I. The material used will be white granite, from the same quarry as the granite for the Grant monument, and bronze. Upon each will be inscribed the name of the regiment and of its commander and the name of the brigade. corps and division to which the regiment belonged. Upon each, also, will be the State coat of arms in bronze and a bronze plate upon which will be inscribed briefly the history of the regiment. In these respects the monuments will be all alike. The monument to the Engineers and Mechanics will be 14 feet wide, 21/2 feet deep and 11 feet high. The base will rise to the height of 3 feet, and in the die will be a bronze plate 8.1 by 4.9 feet, upon which will be a view of Brown's Ferry, where the regiment laid the first pontoon bridge, with the portraits of the men actually engaged in the service. The monument will be located near the ferry, overlooking the river.

The Thirtieth infantry monument will show a private soldier, life-size, carved in granite, in the act of shooting over a wall. The base will be 6 feet wide by 3.3 deep and the height will be 7 feet 10 inches. It will be located near the Vineyard house, on the Lafayette road, the scene of its hardest fighting.

General Parkhurst to Be Honored. The Ninth infantry monument will be a life-size statue of General J. G. Parkhurst, of Coldwater, in dark granite, on a base of rough cut white granite 5 feet square and 6 feet in height. If General Parkhurst shall object to the use of his figure in this connection some ideal soldier will be substituted. The monument will be located at the gateway of the park, on the north side, toward Chattanooga. The road runs through a ravine, and on the high ground on one side, overlooking the place where the right wing of the army was broken, will be the mon-

The Twenty-first's monument will be an irregular mass of granite, with a base 9.6 feet wide and a total height of 15 feet. The granite will be surmounted by an eagle designed by Bowers-3 feet in height, of bronze. On one face will be a cluster of guns, caps, canteens, haversacks and other implements of war in bronze, and below this the plate with the regimental history. The monument will be placed in front and to the left of the Bloody Pond, where 104 of the regiment fell, and where Colonel McCreary was wounded and captured.

The monument to the Twenty-second infantry in general design will be like the Engineers and Mechanics'. The bronze plate will show a battle scene. The regiment was in the reserve division, covering the roads to Chattanooga. The battle to the right had been raging for hours with disaster all along the line, when the reserve, under a hot sun, was sent on a double quick nearly a mile, some of the way under fire, and arrived at General Thomas' headquarters at a most critical time. Swinging into line with cheers, they charged up the face of a steep hill and drove the enemy down the other side. The enemy railied, and, re-enforced by Longstreet's veterans, returned to the fight, but the gallant Michigan men maintained their position until their ammunition became exhausted, and then made a desperate charge with bayonets. They drove the enemy before them, but were hemmed in and surrounded, and as night descended they were obliged to surrender.

Color Sergeant Dunkee was killed, and as he died his blood stained the colors. Corporal Stansell raised the colors aloft, and ne, too, fell dead. Corporal Mitchell, a nt after he raised the flag, fell, frightfully wounded, and Corporal Vincent shared a like fate. Sergeant Kendall took charge of the colors and carried them until obliged to surrender. The flag, thus nobly defended, was recently recovered by the State from the War Department, and is now in the military museum at Lansing. On the monument will be shown a picture of the bayonet charge. The monument will be placed under Snodgrass Hill, the scene of the desperate charge and final surrender.

Monument to the Teuth. The Tenth infantry monument will have a base 5 feet square, tapering upward to the height of 12.6 feet. On the face will be a large plate of bronze, showing a fully accoutered private in fighting attitude. It will be placed at the extreme north end of Sherman Heights, on a ridge overlooking the river, near the main boulevard, along Missionary Ridge, and will mark the extreme left of the battlefield.

The Eleventh infantry monument will be a statue of Colonel Staughton, who commanded the regiment, The statue will be in dark granite and will rest on a base of polished white granite. It will be placed near Snodgrass Hill.

The Second cavalry monument will be 6.6 feet wide and 9.6 feet high, and will be located near the Glass Mill road on a rocky plateau, marking the extreme right of the field.

The Fourth cavalry monument will be 11 feet at the base, 7 feet high, with a round cut arched top, and on the face will be a bronze plate 7 by 5 feet, upon which will be pictured a platoon of cavalry at Reeds bridge, firing across the river at the enemy. The monument will be placed near the bridge, the scene of its hardest fighting, and near where the first men were killed in the battle.

The monument to Battery A will be 10 feet high, and will bear a bronze plate 5 by 3.3 feet picturing the death of Lieut. Van Pelt while defending his guns against two rebels. The monument will be located on the spot where the battery made its last stand.

Battery D monument will have a base 6.6 feet square, tapering upward to the height of 9.6 feet, with bronze cannon balls at the top. It will be located near the Poe house. Both batteries met disaster at Chickamauga, each losing all but one of its guns and suffering the loss of many men. One of the rescued guns is now at Coldwater and will be used as a model in picturing Van Pelt's death.

Dedication to Be Well Attended. In the battle of Chickamauga Michigan lost about 600 men, and the loss in the engagements which immediately followed amounted to 700 more. In the cemetery at Chattanooga rest 1,000 Michigan men, and the monuments to be erected on the battlefield will mark the scene of some of the fiercest fighting and deeds of greatest gallantry in that historic and bloody engagement. The Michigan monuments will be dedicated by the State on Sept. 19. the anniversary of the first day of the fighting, and the Government will dedicate the day following. Thousands of Michigan veterans and citizens will attend, including Governor Rich and his staff, and probably several companies of the State troops.

Captain Charles E. Belknap, president of the commission, is a veteran of the Twenty-first infantry, and for two years he has been making a study of the battle, and especially the part taken in it by the Michigan troops. He has nearly completed a book covering the subject, and when this is published, as it will be probably the coming summer, it will be an important and exceedingly interesting addition to Michigan's war history. Captain Belknap has accumulated a wast quantity of detail from the actual participants in the battle, much of it never before given to the world.

REUNION AT SHILOH

GREAT GATHERING OF VETER ANS ON THE HISTORIC FIELD.

Famous Battle Ground Now Turned Into a Fine Park-Some Account of a Memorable and Bloody Conflict-Gen. Johnston's Death.

Story of the Fight.

The recent reunion of the survivors of the battle of Shiloh, or Pittsburg Landing, on that historic field, was the largest gathering of veterans held in the South since the war. The reunion was under the auspices of the Shiloh Battlefield Association, which was organized three years ago to purchase and turn into a park the historic ground where the great conflict took place. Col. E. T. Lee, of Monticello, Ill., is founder of the association and has worked most successfully in its behalf. The recent gathering was for the purpose of marking the positions of the various commands during the fight.

one of the most exciting pages of the civil war. It was not intended to fight a battle there, but Col. Albert Sidney Johnston determined to surprise the Federal troops, encamped on the spot, and so precipitated the struggle. Gen. Grant was eating breakfast at Savannah, seven miles away, in the Cherry mansion, when he heard the first cannon that opened the battle. Mrs. W. H. Cherry was in the act of handing him a cup of coffee at the time. He immediately arose, saying: "We must go to the

All next day the roll of artillery and infantry was heard all along the lines, and every foot of ground was being contested, as the Confederates were being pressed back from the battlefield. The losses had been fearful on both sides. The Confederates were driven from every position until they reached the old Shiloh Church where the battle had commenced on Sunday morning. They still held the ridge which had been charged and recharged time and time again. Gen. Grant came up and, seeing the situation, he selected Veatche's brigade of Gen. Hurlbut's division, with other regiments, and formed them in line for the final charge. "Well do we remember," writes Col. Lee, "when they took off their hats and gave three cheers for the Union and the old flag. Then sweeping up the slope and over the ridge, they disappeared down the decline, carrying everything before them and driving the Confederate army from the field. Cheer after cheer went up as the last shot died away in the distance and Shiloh was won."

Gen. Beauregard, in his report made after the battle, places the Confederate loss at 10,699. From later facts derived

The Confederate army moved forward in solid column under the personal command of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, striking Gen. Sherman's division at the Shiloh Church. He struck Sherman like a cyclone, rushing his line of battle right on to the batteries and throwing many of the new troops who had never been in battle into great confusion, capturing several pieces of artillery and the camps of the Union army, with all their provisions. The tide of battle rolled on, striking Prentiss and McClernand and driving them back to the line of battle formed by Gen. Hurlbut at Peach Orchard and Hornets' Nest. About 10 a. m. there was a concentration of the Union forces under the direction of Gen. Grant, who arrived on the battlefield about 9 a. m., and the further progress of the Confederates was stopped.

Death of Gen. Johnson.

A terrible struggle took place later on the crest of a hill at the Hornets' Nest. For five hours brigade after brigade was in vain led against the Union forces stationed here. When Gen. Johnston came up and saw the situation, he said: "They are offering stubborn resistance here. I shall have to put the bayonet to them." He sent Gov. Harris, of his staff, to lead the Forty-fifth Tennessee Regiment. Gen, Johnston rode out in front and slowly down the line. His hat was off. His presence was inspiring as he sat on his thoroughbred bay. His voice was persuasive. His words were few. He said, "Men, they are stubborn. We must use the bayonet." INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE LESSON.

Reflections of an Elevating Character -Wholesome Food for Thought-Studying the Scriptural Lesson Intelligently and Profitably.

Lesson for April 21. Golden Text-"Take ye heed, watch and oray."-Mark 13: 33.

The lesson this week is found in Matt. 24: 42-51, and has for its subject "Watchfulness." The duty of watchfulness who can gainsay? We have gotten into such controversial mood, so separated into hostile camps, or at least schools, on this question of our Lord's second coming. that we have largely forgotten and ignored its personal import. Yet there starts the command, "Watch." It comes from our Saviour's own lips. Post-millennialist, or premillennialist. Watch. We have no right of ourselves to hasten the day, by setting an early date; no more have we a right to defer the day by positing a remote date, and assenting that certain things, according to our own interpretation, must first take place. He may come at any time. We should never be in else than a watching mood. That such a mind may be quickened in the church through this lesson may well be our Points in the Lesson.

"Watch." A watching church is Christ's witness, "till he come," He is coming! He is coming! Let every one say it with the life as well as the lip. "Watch, therefore." Why? "For ye know not." It is a weak faith that only watches when we know. The very fact that we do not know the exact time, only the fact that he is coming should keep us watching all the more vigilantly.

"But know this." Some things we do know. One thing that Christ is surely coming again. And also that the world does not know it, refuses to know it. Look about. Is the world acting as if it expected the Lord? Is the church, indeed? "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. Does our Lord compare himself with a "thief" here? He is willing, forsooth, to submit himself to any similitude in order that he may awaken men. And yet how like the coming of a thief in its halfexpectedness, half-unexpectedness, is the coming of our Lord. He may come tomay come to-morrow night: the only way to be ready is to be constantly on the guard. "In such an hour as ye think not"; literally, judge not. It is totally unknown. We cannot reckon or judge the hour. Our Lord put it, in his earthly pilgrimage, out of his own ken. Is it wrong to preposit or predetermine it? It is as wrong to postpone it. When the day arrives it will be over and above our keenest judgment; it will surprise and startle us all. There is only one way to fit ourselves, in mind or soul, for it-be always ready.

And what is the true watching spirit? Evidently it is the working spirit. "Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Doing what? Giving his household "meat in due season." Certainly he is not to be found "smiting his fellow servants," or eating and drinking "with the drunken." By these signs know a watching church: It keeps us hoping and trusting in the promises, feeding on the meat of the word. By these signs know also an unwatching church: It is full of smiting and quarreling, of wanton mingling with the world. What shall hold the church to the first and away from the latter? That blessed hope of our Lord's appearing and nothing short of it. Put more into our Lord's second coming and we will get more out of his first coming. That is, live more in the light of the throne and we will reflect more the light of the cross. In this aspect the non-coming of our Lord in apostolic days was not a disappointment. Brother, have you realized it, Jesus is to-day on the throne at God's right hand. And the very next thing in the divine program, as revealed, is his coming in power. Preach, teach, live, pray in the thought of it, the hope of it. Jesus is coming.

A good practical suggestion at the close of the lesson, familiar, perhaps, but not too familiar. So many are staying out of the church just now because, they say, there are hypocrites in it. Where are the hypocrites at the last? "Appoint him his portion with the hypocrites; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." Friend, do you assume to despise hypocrites, and yet appoint your portion with them forever? Stay out of the church and away from Christ on account of hypocrites and be with them eternally? Doubtless there are some hypocrites in the church. There will be a great multitude of them in hell. Which do you prefer? a few days with them here, or eternally with them there? God help us to be reasonable and save.

Hints and Illustrations. It is impossible, except in a lukewarm and indifferent or Laodicean church to keep down the question of our Lord's second coming. It is the hope of the New Testament and of the New Testament church. Christ is coming again. He said it over and over, The evangelist, the epistolists iterate and reiterate it. The last work of inspiration, "Surely, I come quickly." and the prayer: "Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus;" then the benedic-tion. Christ's imminent coming, this is clearly revealed in the Scriptures. Imminence, as another has suggested, includes two things; certainly of approach along with uncertainty as to exact time of ap proval. "Therefore, watch." It is the trine to-day. Hold up the blessed hope.

Are we not "saved by hope—this hope?"

The thumb is an unfalling index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy, man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. Riemenschneider & Co.

Two years ago, according to the reout of every four appointees to a place under the civil service laws was a woman The same condition of affairs then existed in the matter of the promotion of women clerks. Times have since changed. Today reliable reports indicate that in at least one of the departments, women are being reduced, instead of promoted, the reason given in one case being that the officials believe that no woman should draw more than $1,200 a year. So extraordinary has been the falling off in that there is now virtually no call for women to fill vacancies. The head of a department has the right to make a distinction between the sexes, and a department chief who has a prejudice against women in the public service would have no difficulty in confining the appointments in his department to the male sex. This has been done in the last eighteen months to a remarkable extent. In 1893 the number of women in the public service at Washington was 3,770. In 1894 the number had been reduced to 3,205, a falling off of 565. During the same period there were nine times as many men appointed to minor clerkships, where the proportion two years ago was only three The civil service commission can do nothing for the women, unless congress makes a law requiring that a certain proportion of the department employes be women. "Lady clerks" did not come into the public service by grace of the civil appointments in the government service until the war period, when Gen. Spinner, treasurer of the United States, tried the experiment of putting women to work The trial proved a success, and the number in the service increased rapidly from 1862, the date of their first employment, until two years ago. Gen. Spinner himself gave as one of his reasons for employing women in the treasury the fact that they "could be had at half the price paid for the service of men." In the commercial world this ratio holds good today. But in the government service women are as well paid as men who do the same work, though their employment as a rule is confined to the lower grades. The latter rule, however, is not absolute, and when the report of two years ago was made, there were seven women clerks in the departments, drawing $1,800 each, forty-six drawing $1,600 each, nine drawing $1,500, 215 drawing $1,400, 651 drawing $1,200 and nine drawing salaries ranging from $1,252 to $1,380 a year. When the facts of existing discrimination come to the notice of the women who take an active interest in the advancement of their sex there is likely to be a lively protest made to the presi

The treasury officials say that the treasury is now in a stronger position than at any time since the beginning of the present administration. The gold reserve, they assert, is protected by the contract with the bond syndicate; the general treasury balance is larger than for several years; and the prospect that receipts will cover ordinary expenditures is steadily improving. The general treasury balance has never been larger for four years than it is today. In round numbers it is about $205,000,000. Secretary Carlisle believes that there is absolutely no occasion for an extra session of congress for the purpose of providing revenue te carry on the government. The present heavy balance will, he says, cover heavy deficits during the eight months remaining before the meeting of congress in regular session. The treasury officials express themselves as not believing that any such deficits will occur. There has been a steady increase of late in both the custom and internal revenue receipts, due to the improvement in business.

A critical friend of mine suggests that there is something in Washington life which developes crankiness. The question is pertinent. Why is it that so many people who had quiet, calm, grave manners before they came to live here, have acquired a nervous, excited manner? Another peculiarity is that they seem to have parted with their independence of opinion. They seldom assert anything as a fact, but offer it as a suggestion. They may have come here with a feeling of awe about president and cabinet officers and high dignitaries, ambassadors and ministers. It doesn't take them long to become disillusioned, yet they never quite get over a feeling that these functionaries are a sort of superior beings. Perhaps office-seeking has to do with the No.8-Detroit Night Express 5:10 a.m. acquisition of a nervous, anxious manner. Their minds become firmly imbued with the idea that Washington is
