Hallowe'en.

All Hallows' Eve, or the evening preceding All Saints' Day, is the night set apart for rollicking fun.

Coming at a season of the year when the evenings are cool and crisp, Hallowe'en is joyfully welcomed by the boys and girls, who hasten to the kitchen garden and pluck the lingering stalks of cabbage, to know by the usual test whether their lovers are worthy or not.

The custom of keeping the feast of All Saints dates from the fourth century; and in the old Greek church occurred on the first Sunday after Pentecost. In the Latin church it was observed on the 13th of May, but Pope Gregory II. changed it to the 1st of November, which is set apart for religious observances.

A modern feature of Hallowe'en is a revival of old superstitions in a "witch party," at which Dame Hallowe'en presides, with sister witches as attendants. The costumes are quaint, and the cards of invitation are in keeping with the spirit of the entertainment. Sprigs of withhazel, bats, sprites, all sorts of uncanny designs outlined the letters, and witches riding broomsticks are depicted as presenting them.

We who view Hallowe'en by the clear light of the nineteenth century know better than to place faith in obsolete signs and vague omens, but as a harmless diversion any or all of them may serve to divert and please, and prove potent to charm away the id spirits of descontent and bad temper. Then all hail, Hallowe'en, as a prelude to our Thanksgiving.

Cattle Business.

Cattle are low, and so is everything else produced on the farm, yet cattle breeding during the past five years has suffered a heavy decline During the early eighties prices were paid for breeding stock, and the fever spread over the western country rapidly. Even big foreign syndicates took a hand in the business. Like growers of nursery stock during the fruit fever in California, those who had pure-bred animals made lots of money, finding ready sale for more than they could produce. The collapse came, as it has always come in this country, where there are too few consumers for what is produced Finally breed cattle for beef. The result is that in no part of this broad land, from Montana to the gulf of Mexico, or from the east line of Maine to Puget Sound, can cattle be said to be plenty, and yet the We have a full line of price is low, though the beef trust keeps up the price of dressed mest to consumption killing figures.

THE DREAM-SHIP

When all the world is fast asleep, Along the midnight skies— The ghostly Dream-Ship files.

an angel stands at the Dream-Ship's helm. An angel stands at the prow, and an angel stands at the Dream-Ship's side with a rue-wreath on her brow.

The other angels, silver-crowned, Pilot and helmsman are. But the angel with the wreath of rue Tosseth the dreams afar.

The dreams they fall on rich and poor.
They fall on young and old;
And some are dreams of poverty
And some are dreams of gold.

And some are dreams that thrill with joy.
And some that melt to tears; me are dreams of the dawn of love, nd some of the old, dead years.

On rich and poor alike they fall, Alike on young and old, Bringing to slumbering earth their joys And sorrows manifold.

The king shall be a beggarman. The pauper be a king, In that revenge of recompense The Dream-Ship dreams do bring. Seever downward float the dreams

That are for all and me. ind there is never mortal man Can solve that mystery.

But ever onward in its course Along the haunted skies— The ghostly Dream-Ship flies.

The angels with their silver crowns And an angel with a wreath of rue Tosseth the dreams afar.

BENTLEY'S GHOST.

BY WILL LISENBEE.

I never told you the story of Bentley' chost, did I? Well, it all happened during my second voyage to Rio in the Vixen. Mark Bentley had taken passage with us, and a likelier young man you Lever saw. He was going to enter the establishment of his uncle, Nicholas Barton, of the firm of Barton and Clippinger, brokers and shipping merchants, and as old Barton was getting up in years, and had no nearer kin, it was generally understood that young Bentley would be heir to his large for-

The night of Bentley's disappearance was very dark, and about three in the morning, as I was taking my turn at the wheel, I thought I heard a splash forward, and I was pretty sure some one had gone overboard. "Spriggins, you'd better take less grog, and you won't see men going overboard like this."

Well, they don't make so light of me when it is discovered that Bentley is missing, which is not till some hours after; but Capt. Strong refuses to lay by, swearing a good deal that such an ecident should happen aboard him.

"Say what you will," he replied, "but just come to my cabin with me as soon as you are relieved from your post, and you can see for yourself."

With this, he walked forward and stood leaning on the rail, gazing into the sea. Athough it is no uncommon thing to see sailors who firmly believe in such superstitious stories, I am not one of them. Still, I couldn't get the man's words and looks out of my mind, and when I was relieved I went to him, and, in a light tone, said:

"Come now, and we'll go down and take a look at Bentley's ghost."

Without a word, he led the way to his cabin. It was quite dark in there, for there was no light save what came through a bit of skylight that hadn't been covered with a tarpaulin. I was about to strike a light, when he caught me by the arm and turned my face toward the bunk where he had been sleeping.

"Look!" he cried, in a frightened whisper, his hold tightening on my arm. "I saw it again, but it faded away! There-there it is!"

I turned my face toward the bunk. and as I did so I saw a kind of shimmering light hovering over the pillow. It seemed to move back and forth with the swaying of the vessel. Then all of a sudden it grew brighter, and, as I am living, there was the face of Mark Bentley as plain as I see yours this moment. Well, sir, you might have knocked me down with a feather. I stood there looking at it till a kind of cry came from Magsby.

"You see it?" he asked, just as if they were the last words he would ever speak.

"Yes," says I, "I-I saw something-He uttered a groan, and I think he would have fallen had I not caught him. When I looked again, the strange vision had disappeared:

> The next night a crowd of sailors visited the cabin where the vision had appeared, but nothing was seen of the guestly visitant. Magsby, however, kept aloof from the place, and could not be induced to enter. He seemed to be terribly downcast, and in a few days a great change had come over him. His cheeks were hollow, his face haggard, and he was forever glancing about him, us if he expected any moment to see something dreadful.

> One night he came to my cabin, and throwing himself on the edge of the bunk, said in a husky voice:

> ". Tain't no use in trying-I can't stand this; it's worrying the life out of

"Why-what is?" I asked, though I well knew what he meant.

"Bentley's ghost," was the reply. 'It's going to drive me into the sea yet, to follow poor Bentley."

"That's all foolish talk," I said. "It is a little strange what we saw in the cabin that night, but what's the harm of it? Didn't I see as well as yourself? Still, I don't see as that's any reason that I should go talking of jumping into the sea over it."

"But you don't know all," he went on, in a strange, hesitating way. Then, letting his voice sink to a whisper, he as one would want to see. Aside from said, with a sort of gasp, as if the words were forced from him: "Spriggins, some cabin skylights which were I've got to tell it to some one—I mur-

I could only stare at him in blank amazement.

"Yes," he went on, "I pushed him overboard the night you thought some After standing there for a moment one had fallen over. Why did I commit the dreadful deed? Well, I can soon tell you, though I reckon the word 'drink' would explain it, for, though I had "I can't say," I replied, "being as I reasons to want him out of the way, I would never have taken a human life "Well," says he, after a moment's si- except when under the influence of ence, "if I didn't see Bentley's ghost in strong drink. It was in a fit of drunken madness that the idea of putting my But for all that there was something rival for my uncle's money out of the way first came to me. The opportunity soon came. I found him leaning over the rail one dark night, and, striking him a heavy blow, I hurled him into the sea. That is the story. His ghost has returned to haunt me, and I shall give myself to the authorities when the Vixen returns to America." With these words he left me. I informed the captain of Magsby's confession, and, like myself, he was at first inclined to doubt the man's sanity; but it was thought best to keep a watch upon him till the affair could be investigated on our arrival at Rio.

But there was a surprise awaiting us, for when we dropped anchor in Rio harbor, who should come on board but Mark Bentley, alive and well, and not looking the least bit like a ghost.

Well, you can imagine the surprise of every soul of us when he stepped upon the deck. As for Magsby, he looked like a copse; but when he found that it was really Bentley in the flesh, he was the happiest mortal I ever set eyes on.

Bentley had escaped a watery grave by almost a miracle. He was stunned when thrown overboard, but the cool water revived him, and while swimming about in the darkness, he came in contact with one of the life -preservers I had thrown overboard. He managed to cling to this till daylight, when he was picked up by the Penguin, a steamer bound for Rio, so he arrived in port nearly a week ahead of us.

Magsby-or Green, as his real name was—was so repentant for what he had done that Bentley forgave him, and a few days later he shipped in an English vessel for Liverpool, and that was the last I ever saw of him. As to the ghost-well, it was a very simple thing when we came to understand it. When the story was told to Bentley, he seemed puzzled at first, but in a moment he smiled quietly, and said he could soon explain the whole affair. With this he mounted the skylight, and soon came back with a small square of glass in his hand. It was what he called a dry-plate photograph negative, and contained his own picture. the Vixen but was shocked at the inci- but I don't think he closed his eyes all He was an amateur photographer, and had been printing some pictures he had taken on shore, and had placed them on the skylight of one of the cabins, so as to be out of the way. An old negative of himself he had thrown aside, and it had got caught in a crevice of the sash and stuck there. Afterward, when some of the skylights had been broken in the storm, a tarpaulin was placed over them to keep out the spray from the waves, and as the spowhere the negative lay became uncovered, the moon shining through it had had something of the effect of a magic lantern, and had caused an enlarged picture of himself to be thrown into the cabin below. When a cloud passed over the moon, as it undoubtedly did while we were looking at it that night, the picture disappeared. It was all simple enough when we understood it; but if Bentley had never turned up to explain the affair, I would never have been certain I did not see a ghost that night aboard the Vixen .- N. Y. A Race of Pigmies. Several years ago an interesting discovery was made in Switzerland-the bones of a number of dwarfs, true pigmies, were found during some excava tions at Schweitzersbild. The adults were apparently about four feet to four feet five inches in height. They seemed to be very well formed and to have lived with or near other tribes of the usual stature. It may have been that the buria! grounds were the same and that they occupied different localities. With these bones, some highly polished stone implements and well-made and inter: sting specimens of pottery were taken cut. The period in which these people lived is supposed to have been the Neolithic. The discovery has attracted a good deal of attention, and further investigations are to be made. It is suggested that all countries establish bureaus or commissions for the purpose of ley's ghost was first seen. It was well not, for I had come to the conclusion collecting and preserving the antiqui ties and also to set on foot inquiries that may lead to discoveries of great importance.-N. Y. Ledger.

CAMPOS' PLANS.

Spanish Commander Outlines His Policy

Madrid, Oct. 28 .- A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that in an interview Capt, Gen. Campos said he was determined to thoroughly try a policy of leniency towards the insurgents. According to the dispatch Marshal Campos declared that if a change in this policy was found necessary 150,000 more troops would be required to quell the insurrection, and even then 75,000 men would perish. He mentioned the plan, already outlined in these dispatches, to assume the offensive next month in the province of Santa Clare, he then personally leading a force of 25,000 men and moving forward in an extensive line across the whole island, thus driving the rebels into the mountains and forests of the provinces of Puerto Principe and Santiago de Cuba before the middle of March.

The rebellion will thus be isolated in the eastern part of the island, where Campos thinks the resistance to the government is likely to be prolonged. The plan includes the alternative scheme of dividing the island into zones, each of which will be alloted to a different commander, whose duty it will be to constantly patrol his zone, driving the insurgents from point to point, and also the making of attacks concurrently on several places. Should this latter plan be adopted, Marshal Campos hopes to have the first zone cleared of insurgents in two months.

He observed that Spain was ready to send even more troops than he had asked for, but the speediest dispatch of the reinforcements was imperative. He declared that the sanitary department was excellently organized and that there were plenty of hospitals. True, he added, all the doctors were not acquainted with yellow fever, but they confronted their duties with the greatest heroism. Thirteen of the doctors had died since the outbreak of the re-

Continuing, the captain general said he believed that the United States would eventually recognize the insurgents as belligerents, but he did not fear the result of such recognition. It would clear the air and the Spanish fleet would be able to seize filibusters anywhere, because a foreign flag could not cover contraband of war. If the United States is determined to secure the independence of Cuba and sent an army to the island the present obscure operations would be replaced by a real war, the success of which would depend on pitched battles. In that case, if the chance of war did not favor Spain, the island would, at least, be honorably lost.

WHOLESALE SLAUGHTER.

Continuation of the Armenian Riots-Nine Hundred Stain in Trebizond.

Constantinople, Oct. 28.—Details have been received from a Turkish source of the recent rioting at Erzingen, in Asiatic Turkey. It is said that the trouble had its origin in the killing of a Mussulman priest by an Armenian. The murder bitterly incensed the Mohammedans against the Armenians and an attack was made by the former upon the latter. The Armenians defended themselves, and in the fight that followed 50 Armenians and 10 Mohammedans were killed.

The governor of Bitlis, Asiatic Turkey, has telegraphed to the porte that a body of armed Armenians attacked the mosques in that city on Friday last —the Mohammedan Sabbath—while the Mohammedans were at prayers. The latter, being unarmed, had to defend their lives with sticks and stones. The officials were speedily informed of theoutbreak and at once sent police, gendarmes and soldiers to all quarters of the town to restore peace. Some of the Armenians afterward barricaded themselves in khans and continued to use their firearms. A number of persons on both sides were killed or wounded.

London, Oct. 28 .- The Daily News publishes letters from Trebizond, Turkish Armenia, stating that the number of victims in the recent rioting are estimated at 700 in the town and 200 in the surrounding villages. Many Armenian women have vanished and there is scarcely a doubt that they have been either murdered or kidnaped. Most of the houses occupied by Armenians were. burned. There is great distress among the purveyors, who in large numbers are living in sheds or in the woods. Telegrams from Marash report that the situation there is serious and that the English and American missionaries are in peril.

Bullivan's Secret.

When John L. Sullivan was in Wash ogton less than a year ago he amused crowd of listeners who happened to be of a variety intellectually superior to the average crowd of hangers-on who worship the great man's memory for what he was. with an exhibition of attainments in which, according to John's ideas, brain instead of brawn and fistic prowess plays the better part, says Washington Post. He told the age of any man in the crowd who was learned enough to add, subtract and divide a series of compound figures which John furnished, and nine times out of ten hit the mark. But one feat which he performed, and in, which he believed with the fervor of an idolator, goes into the marvelous. It involved the telling whether the firstborn of a given couple was a boy or a girl. The way that this feat was accomplished was a profound secret with the pugitist, but in a burst of confidence he disclosed the method to the writer. To solve the problem the only necessary data are the full maiden name of the mother and the full name of the father. According to Mr. Sullivan's formula, if, after counting the letters in both names, the sum is an even one, the firstborn is a boy; if odd, the issue of the union is a girl. For example, all the letters in Mary Jane Brown and Hiram Smith form a total of twenty three, an odd number. Result, a girl. If this formula is reliable it will serve forecasting purposes as well as the establishment of postfacto results; but no editorial guaranty goes with the prescription.

The following is from Turf, Field and Farm: "If winter dairying is not practiced, a change to that, either wholly or largely, will materially increase the profits. In perfecting this change a special preparation is necessary. A warm, well ventilated stable, if not already provided, will be the first essential. An abundance of the various kinds of milkproducing food should always be provided for the support and well-being of the herd. For this purpose nothing is better than a good quality of hay (clover being the best) and good corn ensilage for roughage, with bran, corn meal, oat and pea meal, and cottonseed meal in connection. With these facilities, and a fair lot of cows and a careful man to attend to them, the dollars will come in for all extra outlay. all the month of November is comparatively free from disturbing causes, according to his storm diagram. The storm period originating in October will reach a crisis about the full moon on the 2d, about which date a cold wave will be announced in the west and north. From about 3d to 7th cold weather will prevail in most parts of the country. Reactionary temperature and storms will center about the 8th and 9th, and will be followed promptly by cold. Snow and rain will result, more or less, at both the above periods. About the 18th to 16th much change to warmer may be expected, and after a general storm of rain or snow-say frem about 16th to 18th-look for a change to very cold. About the 19th and 20th change to warmer, falling barometer and more rains and snow. About 21st to 23d sharp cold will reach most parts of the country. A November blizzard in the north and west need not surprise about the 24th to 27th. Prepare for the cold wave which will follow the period, whether or not much rain results. Sleet will be a marked figure of the disturbances. And here is what Mansil, the Rock Island prophet, says of the month of November: "The principal disturbing positions of the planets for November appear to be located about the 1st to 3d, the 8th to 12th, the 15th to 17th or 18th, and the 24th to 27th or 28th. The most violent electric storms and earth disturbances will occur about the dates given above. November, 1895, will most likely be a stormy month. There Auction Bills furnish- will be quite a number of sun spots devel oped during the period."

SHOT THEM DOWN.

Would-Be Lynchers Given a Warm Reception at Tiffin, O.

They Storm the Jail in an Attempt to cure a Murderer-Armed Guards Fire a Volley and Two Rioters Are Killed -Troops Called Out.

Tiffin, O., Oct. 28.-In an attempt early Sunday morning to avenge the murder of August Schultz, Tiffin's popular city marshal, who was shot down in cold blood by Leander J. Martin, alias Williams, a farmer of Hopewell two more victims were added to the tragic affair. At 1:30 o'clock a mob of 150 infuriated men, many of whom were under the influence of liquor, attacked the jail in an effort to secure Martin and hang him. A volley from a half dozen Winchesters met them and two of the mob were killed. They are: Henry Mutchler, Jr., and Christian

Early Sunday morning crowds began to gather in the vicinity of the jail. and Sheriff Van Nest, fearing further trouble, called out Company C, of the 16th regiment O. N. G., to maintain order. This company, which is stationed here, is not numerically strong, and the sheriff, thinking Capt. Loomis' men would be unable to cope with a more general civic uprising, telegraphed Gov. McKinley for more troops. The governor complied with the request, ordering three additional companies to the scene. During the day one company each came from Fremont and Sandusky, and late in the evening the company from Kenton arrived on the Big Four.

The news of the death of Shultz caused the wildest excitement in town and among the neighboring farms where the dead man was well known and liked. Shultz' funeral was held Saturday and was largely attended the farmers for miles around adding their numbers to those of the friends of the marshal living in town. After the services there was much talk among the populace, especially the farmers living near Watson, and it was noticed as evening drew on that few of the tillers of the soil had taken their departure for home. Nothing was thought of this, however, as the farmers regard Saturdays at this season of the year as holidays, and often make a day of it "in town."

There was considerable drinking among the town crowd and plenty of talk about lynching Martin, but it was not taken for much. Sheriff Joe Van Nest, knowing Shultz' popularity had, however, taken the precaution the day after the murder to place four or five guards in the jail and arm them with Winchesters. He said that he really expected no trouble, but put the men there "just to be on the safe side." At midnight most of the saloons closed and the town was apparently quiet.

Out at the old fair grounds just one mile east of the jail and courthouse an exciting midnight scene was being enacted. Belated residents making for their homes in that portion of the city noticed groups of men in various parts of the grounds. The groups grew and their numbers were augmented every few minutes by the arrival of people from various parts of the city and country. Shortly after I o'clock there was a concerted move, and the mob, which had at last found a leader, started into the

The marchers, on mob law bent, ar rived at the jail at 1:30. With a terrible yell they demanded entrance to Sheriff Van Nest's official residence at the jail. Many members of the mob had obtained sledge hammers which they used with quick effect on the light door which leads to the corridor between the sheriff's residence and jail proper. This obstacle was demolished with a few sharp blows and the blood-thirsty mob surged inside the jail. Sheriff Van Nest and his deputies were prepared for intruders. He met the first part of the mob and demanded their instant withdrawal on penalty of the law and bodily harm if they ventured further. The brave officer of the law faced the infuriated throng revolver in hand, but he was overpowered by the reckless, partly intoxicated mob and his weapon wrested from his grasp.

After gaining access to the hallway and overpowering the sheriff, the mob soon broke open the solid steel door which separated them from the jail. Behind this is a heavy semi-circular barred door which was attacked with sledge hammers. After pleading and threats had failed to get the men to desist, the guards fired their revolvers. into the ceiling. The sound of the firearms did not make the crowd flinch. As a last resort the guards, following the command of the sheriff, turned their death-dealing weapons direct upon the attacking party and poured a volley of lead into its midst.

The volley of six Winchester balls brought death to Henry Mutchler, Jr. and Christian Matz. They fell lifeless where they had stood helping in the work of battering down the obstacles Mungen and burned over a strip about to the cell in which Martin lay, crouching in fear of his life being taken away fire was right in the very heart of the before the judgment of the law. The bodies of the two men were carried away by their comrades. This tragic heck only served to add to the fury of the mob. The work of demolition was rought to a stop only because certain members of the mob had gone from the scene of lawlessness to secure dynamite lists.

with which to destroy the jail and the hated inmates.

While the vain search for the terrible explosive was in progress Police Officers Sweeney and Faulkner went to Murderer Martin's cell, unlocked the door, handcuffed him and took him safely from the jail by a rear door which the mob had not thought of guarding. The hunted prisoner and his guards entered a waiting cab at the door and were driven at a furious pace to Fremont, 24 miles distant. The mob quickly learned that the object of their vengeance was no longer within reach and slowly dispersed after the hunt for dynamite had proved fruitless. Baffled in their plot to lynch the slayer of their friend, the marshal, the mob's rage and threats of vengeance were directed against the deputies who had killed two of their number. They tried to find the officers and learn their identity if possible, but their names are known only to the sheriff and a few trusted persons.

With the break of day excited crowds began to gather again in the vicinity of the jail and Sheriff Van Nest found it necessary to call out the local company of the Ohio national guard, as well as to apply to Gov. McKinley for additional companies.

Mutchler was 23 years old and a laborer. He was drunk during the night and was loud in agitating lynch law. Matz was 33 years old and a butcher. Neither was married."

The authorities at Fremont where the murderer, Leander J. Martin, alias Miller, was taken for safe keeping, became alarmed over the situation here and fearing that a mob from Tiffin might traverse the 18 miles intervening between the two cities and pay a visit to their jail Sunday night wired that they had sent the murderer under guard to Cleveland.

CAUGHT IN A TRAP.

Tripple Murder Prevented and Its Projector Killed.

Phoenix, A. T., Oct. 28 .- J. P. Hoxie a few days ago informed Sheriff Orme that he had been offered $200 by a man named Venna to assist in killing a family of three persons living in Mesa, 20 miles east of here. The proposed victims were Dr. A. Williams, his wife and daughter. Venna said he was married to the daughter, but they had been separated. By the death of the three persons mentioned he would become sole six of the seven judges. heir to valuable property possessed by Williams in Kansas, The Williams family was warned of their danger, dummies were placed in their beds and officers secreted themselves in the house. At midnight Saturday Venna and Hoxie forced an entrance to the Williams residence. The officers ordered their surrender, and Venna, showing fight, was shot dead. It was then discovered that the dead man was none other than Dr. John Rose, who was at one time a prominent Arkansas physician. His statements to Hoxie regarding his connection by marriage to the Williams family and the existence of the Kansas property were perfectly correct, and he undoubtedly contemplated the coldblooded murder of his wife, father-inlaw and mother-in-law. A second accomplice of Rose named Cooley was also captured.

The losses of these nine counties aggregate 13,268, of which Woodbury, containing Sioux City, loses 9,430. All Sioux City, Council Bluffs and Museatine and a few small places. Dubuque made the largest gain and Fort Dodge the largest percentage of gain, about 80 per cent. in five years.

VICTIMS OF FOREST FIRES.

Three Children Burned to Death on the Oneida Reserve in Wisconsin.

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 28.-Information has reached this city from the Oneida reservation of the death of three children as a result of the forest fires raging in that region. A number of dwellings were burned, some of them on the reservation and others just outside. Among those destroyed was that of John Skanidore. His three children were alone in the house. The fire came down on the neighborhood very rapidly with a sudden change of wind and several had a narrow escape from death. It is supposed the children became panic-stricken when the house took fire and were unable to help them-

Pennsylvania and the territory of Utah. Oregon, Rhode Island, Michigan, South Carolina and Wisconsin held elections early in the year. O Bill of the

The states to elect governors are: Iowa, to succeed Frank D. Jackson (rep.); Kentucky, to succeed John Young Brown (dem.); Maryland, to succeed Frank Brown (dem.); Massa-chusetts, to succeed Frederick T. Greenhalge (rep.); Mississippi, to succeed John M. In Nebraska justices of the supreme court, term six years, to succeed T. L. Norval (rep.), and two regents of the state university, term six years, are to be elected.

In New York the ticket will be headed by nominees for secretary of state, term three years, to succeed John Palmer (rep.). In Kansas the issue is between the republicans and the free silverites exclusively, and in Nebraska the free silverites are contesting with republicans, democrats, populists and prohibitionists. In New York and New Jersey socialist labor nominations have been made. With these exceptions the nominations in other states are made by the republican, democratic, people's and prohibition parties.

FANNED BY THE WINDS.

Fires Raging in Porter County, Ind. Threaten Great Destruction.

Crown Point, Ind., Oct. 28.-Should no rain fall in the next 24, hours and the high winds continue the southern portion of Porter county and part of Jasper, consisting of nearly 50,000 acres, will be one heap of ashes. Since high winds have prevailed life is in jeopardy. Flames have leaped fully 100 feet high. The land now burning belongs to Morris & Co., of Chicago, and already it is estimated at a low figure that 12,000 acres have burned over.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock the fire, which was along the north side of the Kankakee river, made a leap at Sandy eities and towns made gains except Hook of 100 feet across the stream and is now burning in the timber on the other side. Trees are being nipped off in short order, as the woods are as dry as a tinder box. People living at Baum's bridge, four miles from the flames, are preparing to move, as they are surely doomed if they remain. Thousands upon thousands of tons of hay were consumed, and $150,000 worth of fatted cattle owned by Nelson Morris & Co. are in great danger. The herd, consisting of 2,700 head, is being driven south.

HURTS THE RESERVE.

Jewelers Withdrawing Gold Bars for Holiday Trade.

New York, Oct. 28.—The approach of the holiday trade is making a demand from jewelers for gold bars and is causing a loss in the treasury gold reserve. The jewelers present greenbacks at the subtreasury, for which they receive gold coin. They redeposit the coin and are given orders for gold bars on the assay office. The loss of gold to the reasury ranges from $250,000 to $750,000 a week. It is expected that the average will be high for some time to come. The same process is going on at other subtreasuries throughout the United States.

Their Platform. Baltimore, Md., Oct.23.—Miss Frances 2. Willard was Tuesday elected president of the W. C. T. U. for the teenth consecutive time. The ballot was unnounced as 361 votes for Miss Wil and 14 scattering. As the re cor ag secretary cast the ballot of the convention for Miss Willard the delegates and visitors arose and sang Praise God from Whom All Blessing

Miss Willard was visibly affected and tears glistened in her eyes as she arose and with a tremulous voice thanked the convention for the great honor it had shown her. When Miss Willard apnounced that the proposed polyglotexpedition to India had been abar and that she would not leave the coun try during the coming year, the 2,000 persons in the hall expressed their gratification with cheers. At the conclusion of her address Miss Willard nominated Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, of Maine, for vice president at large, a new office provided for by a recently-adopted amendment to the constitution. She was unanimously elected.

Mrs. Katharine Lente Stevenson, of Massachusetts, was chosen corresponding secretary; Mrs. Clara C. Hoffman, of Missouri, was elected recording secretary; Mrs. Frances E. Beauchann president of Kentucky W. C. T. U., was elected assistant recording secretary, and Mrs. Helen M. Barker, of Illinois was elected treasurer.

During the afternoon the report of the committee on resolutions was under discussion for three hours. The more important of the resolutions were adopted and the remainder made a special order for this morning's session. A synopsis of the portion adopted is as follows:

The prohibition plank indorses the prohibition party "as the only political party with the courage to speak out boldly in favor of woman suffrage and the total annihilation of the liquor traffic." The republican and demoeratic parties were scored for unfaithfulness. and numerous incidents of broken faith. and repudiated promises were alleged. The franchise plank stated the belief that the ballot in the hands of women will hasten the overthrow of the liquor traffic and many other evils. It also embraces an educational limit for both sexes. The closing of the gates of the Atlanta er-position on the Sabbath day is ap proved whilst sorrow is expressed over the fact that a temporary post office, established in Music hall for the accommodation of the delegates, was kept open for a few hours last Sunday The convention pledged itself to never again desecrate the holy day. The trap-shooters tournament now ing held in Baltimore received the shooting. The advance made in the use of unfermented wine at the sacramental table is rejoiced in: the "Staten Island basis" of union is recommended as the best plan to secure the political union of the reform forces of the nation against the allied evils of injustice and intemperance, and the use of tobacco and narcotics is condemned as liable to lead to the opium habit Support is pledged the colored workers to raise a higher standard of purity for home and nation, and a strong plank declared against the lynching of any human, white or black,

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 24.—Hundreds who tried were unable to gain admission to Music Hall Wednesday night to witness the closing scenes of the great W. C. T. U. convention. Banners were presented to several state unions which showed large gains in membership. Miss Frances Willard carried the convention with her in a movement to include in fraternal relations Catholics and Hebrews. The question arose on the following resolution:

Resolved, That Catholic women and Hebrew women should be invited to send fraternal delegates from their annual conventions to ours and to establish branches of the White Ribbon society within their own borders.

One of the delegates suggested that it might not be quite consistent for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to ask Hebrews to affiliate. This roused Miss Willard. She said:

"I want to recognize these two denominause in places where I have been, especially in the south, they exhibited sympathy in our work and have extended every courtesy. It has especially touched my neart that in meetings where I have presented the work of this organization among those who have welcomed me to the platform have been the Catholic priest and the liebrew rabbi. They knew what I came for; they knew what I represented, and if they were broad enough to go half way and extend the hand of greeting, should my hand be so small and withered as not to accept the clasp? I want to welcome them to usifthey want to come.'

The principal business of the morning was the consideration of additional resolutions. Among them were the following:

Deploring the numerous outrages upon defenseless women and children, and urging that steps be taken to mold public opinion, or to secure such legislation as would secure the victim a greater degree of protection, indorsing the temperance hospital which does not administer brandy and other intoxicants in medicine; rejoicing in the usefulness of the various young people's societies of the churches; compeople's societies of the churches; comending the organization of the Woman Christian Temperance union lecture treat and expressing appreciation of the Demorest Temperance Medical contest asking, for a place for women on the vers commissions of the various states.

When Armenia was mentioned Miss Willard offered an amendment calling on the United States government make its power felt in the diplomatic councils of the nations on the subject of Armenia. The amendment was car-

Resolutions were adopted extending to Theodore Roosevelt "our hearty thanks for his bravery in standing for the right and demonstrating that the saloons can be closed on the Sabbathin New York city," and also expressing our appreciation of the action of the Culberson, of Texas, in preventing the disgrace of a prize fight in that common wealth."

Geveland Visits the Great Atlanta Exposition.

a Distinguished Visitor Met by Large Crowds En Route-A Warm Greeting Extended on Arrival—The President's Address.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 24 .- No brighter balmier sun ever shone over this particular portion of the Southland han that which dawned on Wednesday morning, Presidential day, at the (otton States and International exposi-

The presidential party spent the morning quietly at the Aragon, where they remained until 11 o'clock. At 10 o'clock the military procession formed down town, and half an hour later passed the Aragon on its way out to the exposition. The military was not intended as an escort, and Mr. Cleveland and his official family were driven rapidly to the Exposition grounds. They reached the reviewing stand in front dates for orders are about as numerous of the government building a few minntes before the head of the column of men willing to spread the faith in fortroops wound around the hill in front | eign and heathen lands. of the Administration building, past the Pennsylvania, New York and Fine Arts buildings.

Besides President Cleveland and Secretaries Carlisle, Lamont, Herbert, Smith. Morton and Postmaster-General Wilson on the reviewing stand, were Vice President Stevenson, Gen. Atkinson of Georgia, and exposition and city

After the review the president delivered an address. He was introduced by President Collier, of the Exposition company, who referred to him as the man who had been intrusted with the duty of wiping out sectional issues and

Tribute to the President.

Mr Collier said:

"To an assembly composed of American citizens, an introduction of the most illustrious of living Americans is impossible, save as a mark of courtesy and an expression of the regard in which he is held by his fellow-countrymen. Still, it may be possible on this occasion to signify in some degree our profound gratification at the presence of the chief executive of the na-

"The south has received from him a recognition as a constitutent element of this union, to which it had for many years been a stranger, when he was chosen and commissioned to erase the dark line of sectionalism from the map of the union. The administration of which he is the head not only gave its aid and indorsement to the dearest enterprise this city has projected, but has esthe most comprehensive and instructive display of our federal resources that ever ennobled any exposition. No intelligent citizen can visit this display without experiencing a quickening of his patriotism as well as an extension of his general knowledge.

"We rejoice to-day in the reflection that no other nation, in the years that have passed since the foundation of this government, has had in its highest office such an unbroken array of men who, for devotion to their country, for faithful performance of duty, and for those virtues which adorn the citizen as well as the executive, have been worthy of comparison from Washington to Cleveland."

President Cleveland's appearance at the front of the stand was the signal for an outburst of applause from the President Cleveland's Address.

The president said: "Mr. President: On my own behalf and for my co-laborers in the executive branch of our government who have accompanied me, I thank you for your kind words of greeting. We are here to congratulate you and your associates upon the splendid successes of the exposition you have set upon foot and upon evidence you have here gathered chiefly illustrative of southern enterprise, southern industry and southern recuperation, but we are also here to claim a share in the pride of your achievement. No portion of our countrymen wherever found can exclusively appropriate the glory arising from these surroundings. They are proofs of American genius and industry, which are the joint possession of our people, and they represent triumphs of American skill and ingenuity in which all our citizens from the highest to the humblest have a proprietary right.

"It seems to me the thought may be sugsested as not inappropriate to this occasion that what we see about us is an outgrowth of another exposition inaugurated on American soil more than a century ago, when a new nation was exhibited to the civilized world, guaranteed and protected by a constitution, which was ordained and established by the people of the United States with the declared purpose of promoting their general welfare, and secur-ing the blessings of liberty to themselves moting their general welfare, and securing the blessings of liberty to themselves and their posterity.

"A contemplation of the blessings vouch-safed to us by our government easily reminds us of the importance of a hearty and united cooperation in its support and protection. We should lovingly watch and guard it not only because we are recipients of its precious gifts, but for its own sake, and because it has been put in our hands in sacred keeping to prove to the world that man can be trusted with self government.

"I hope I may, therefore, be permitted in conclusion, to suggest, as a most important lesson taught by this occasion, the absolute necessity to our national health and welfare and consequently to our individual happiness as citizens of a careful discrimination in our support of politics and in our advocacy of political doctrines between those which prompt the promotion of the public welfare and hose which simply seem to serve selfish or sectional interests. which simply seem to serve selfish or sectional interests. If we are to enjoy the blessings our government was framed to fairly and justly bestow, we shall secure them in due time by cultivating a spirit of broad American brotherhood and insisting upon such conduct as will, within the spirit of the Golden Rule, promote the general welfare."

The conclusion of the speech was greeted with cheers. Then the crowd called for Carlisle, at he arose and bowed, but refused to speak. Vice President Stevenson in the same manner acknowledge. her acknowledged the shouts for him, d shook his head when the people called for a speech.

ADJOURN SINE DIE

The Episcopalian Convention Comes to an End—The Pastoral Letter.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23. - The convention, on its last day Tuesday, showed an apparent minority of delegates remaining, evidently only enough to constitute a quorum for the winding up of necessary business details.

The Pennsylvania delegates offered resolution recognizing the uniform dignity, courtesy and kindness of the presiding officer of the house, Dr. Morgan Dix, of New York. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote and Dr. Dix responded in a graceful and touching manner.

Following is an abstract of the bishops' pastoral address issued at noon Tuesday by the secretary of the house of bishops:

In discussing church unity the bishops are not hopeful of immediate or general results save in the spreading of the sentiment for unity throughout Christendom. They complain that while the theological schools are turning out many graduates, and candias ever, there is a lack of self-sacrificing

Speaking of the recent assault upon Christian missionaries in China, the address says:

"Missions in China have recently suffered a great disaster. When least expecting it, the church has been shocked by an outbreak of hostility and violence, which in the world's estimation has revived the question of the church's right to be there at all. Devoted missionaries have sealed with their blood the faith they were sent forth to teach.

Such a crisis in missionary work will not be without its use and purpose if, as like ones have done in the past, it brings to the front and sets in battle array a larger measure of the heroism always latent in the militant host of Christ. For the present, then, the moral of this calamity is, more, not less men in the field, and larger offerings by the church to sustain them.

Speaking of Sunday observance, the address says:

"Recent events in some parts of our country compel us to call your earnest at-tention to a widely spread and determined attack upon the use and purpose of the weekly day of rest known from the be-ginning of the Christian era as the Lord's

We exhort you, dear brethren, to meet this menace with unfaltering courage and resolute determination, and in no opportunity that may be presented to decline battle with the insatiate greed of the liquor traffic, and the growing desire for popular pleasures and amusements, which with increasing boldness claim all days alike for their uses. In this connection the house of bishops, in view of recent occurrences in several of our states, desires to express its hearty approval of the prompt and courageous application of the tablished here for the inspection of the powers of civil government for the repression of barbarous, brutal and indecent exhibitions and recreations of whatever

> In regard to Turkish atrocities in Armenia there is the following:

"By the tender mercles of our God, and the infinite compassion of our common Saviour, we beseech you, brethren, to remember in your prayers and with your prompt and liberal help, that long suffer-ing and down-tredden people of the ancient and faithful church of Armenia. To wasting oppression and presecution extending far back into the past, has now been added, by the fanatical violence and hatred of Moslem power, the unspeakable atrocities of to-day. Such a cry for sympathy and aid has seldom been heard in all the ages of christendom.'

The spirit of unrest in the land is commented on and the remedy for it is declared to be accessible in the church. Fully a third of the letter is devoted to a discussion of certain tendencies in the church toward ritualism, and, on the other hand, toward too great liberality. Unauthorized methods of celebrating communion and other offices of the church are severely rebuked and the letter makes this significant statement:

"We are indeed between two perilous ten-dencies. On the one hand there is a demand for concessions which will make it easy for members of Christian bodies not in communion with the church to enter her ministry, to transfer themselves bodily as congregations, with faint and feeble guards of soundeess in their forms of worship. On the other there is a plea put forth by some to enter into negotiations with the bishop of Rome with a view to reunion, which is now known to be possible only by absolute submission to his unscriptural and unlawful demands. The wise thing for us to do is to hold fast to our position.

Gethsemane church was crowded at the joint meeting of the two houses Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The pastoral letter was read and the Episcopal general convention for 1895 closed sine die with the usual services.

SIXTY ARMENIANS KILLED.

Turkish Authorities Claim the Armenians Were the Aggressors.

Constantinople, Oct. 26.—The United States cruiser Marblehead has arrived at Mersina, Asia Minor, to protect the missionaries of that district. Fierce disturbances, accompanied by serious bloodshed, are reported to have taken place at Erszingjan. Sixty Armenians are said to have been killed. The Turkish government has sent a circular note to the representative of the powers and to its representatives abroad announcing that the outbreak was provoked by the Armenians.

Mankind make up a peculiar people. The diversity of temperaments, with the multitudes of variations, make the human family a mighty uncertain and unknown quantity. There is the man set in his way; say or write anything that strokes his delicate fur the wrong way, and he is done with you for once and for all. To differ with some men's opinions is an unpardonable sin; with others they will turn and rend you with accusations that portray you the meanest of the Judas type, while there are many who are gifted with enough of good common sense and charitable hearts to recognize the right to differences of opinion, and charity that harbors no ill because of difference of opinions. The Law of Sex.

An English author, G. R. Starkweather, thinks he has discovered a great "law of sex," of which the following is a sum. mary: If the husband is mentally sunostly of girls, and vice versa. Dark complexion is superior to light, dark trees and plants are the most hardy, and dark horses the best. A square forehead and prominent veins indicate superiority; a large prominent eye (which usually accompanies conversational powers) is the reverse. But the best indication of superiority is a large and prominent nose, Roman or aquiline, full a third the length of the face. Philosophers, lawyers, editors, poets, literary men and brain workers generally, have a large excess of daughters. Wine merchants, innkeepers. small retail dealers, orators, physicians and musicians have a preponderance of boys. Clergymen appear just to struggle through the ordeal without incurring the stigma of inferiority, being equally intelligent, sober and moral with their wives, and producing an equal number of boys and girls.
