A NARROW ESCAPE.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Glazier Thrown
From a Carriage.

Saturday evening about 8 o'clock, as
Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Glazier were out driving, a horse on one of the horses
broke, and the team started up South street at a tremendous speed. In front of the home of J. G. Hoover the carriage struck an iron hitching post, throwing the occupants of the carriage to the ground with great force, and causing the horses to part company with the rig.
Help was soon at hand, and the injured
couple were at once taken to their home,
where their injuries were at once looked after. It was found that with the exception of a few bruises Mr. Glazier was in pretty good condition, but Mrs. Glazier did not get off so easily, she having been painfully bruised about the head and shoulders, is still unable to use one of her arms.
Mr. Glazier attributes the reason of his few injuries to the fact that he had on a high silk hat, and when he struck, this was driven in several folds between his head and the ground, thus forming a cushion which destroyed much of the force of the blow.

The "Blind Baggage."

There is one train that passes through Chelsea every day but Monday that does not carry passengers but does carry an outfit of men and guns that would strike terror to the would-be train robber. This train is the American Express train, better known here as the "blind baggage."
The main portion of the train consists of express cars and it is noticed that these cars have iron barred windows, the side doors are secured by chilled steel padlocks and the doors have steel plate coverings and there is no knob which can be turned from the outside to open these doors.

This train is one of the speediest on the road and it carries a great deal of money,
just how much no one would like to say.

The run through Canada is made in the day time, but night will fall before that train reaches Chicago, and it is for this so much precaution is taken in the shape of an armored car and this car is built for business. On the outside the only indication of armor is a little bow window on either side, made of bullet
proof steel that covers the center window.
This bow window has an oblong slit in each of its three sides and looks strong enough for any earthly use. There is another queer appearance, and that is on the roof. As all know, the center of the ordinary car roof is raised above the sides, but in this car the raised portion of the roof is carried clear to the edge of the car on either side directly over the bow windows. All this does not look very warlike because its sides and ends are glass windows, and right here is where its usefulness comes in. When the train leaves Detroit there is a man sitting up in that portion of the car with his eye glued on the entire train and the track ahead and he or his companions
are there every moment of the time until the train is at the end of its run.

There might not be any amount of safety in all this if the car was open all the way through, like an ordinary car, but it is not, for one third of it is shut off from each end by a partition, which with the doors and sides of the car, is covered with a bullet proof sheet of about an eighth of an inch in thickness,
and in a minute could be made an arsenal against which five men could stand off ten times that number, unless dynamite was used, and the man who would attempt to get near enough to use this explosive would indeed be brave, for from every one of those loop holes in the bow window would a quick action magazine gun would appear that would pump bullets and shot into the faces of the invaders with great rapidity.

The amount of care taken to have everything in working order on this train is wonderful. The train hands are all picked men and selected for their bravery and pluck. The engineer and fireman have always within reach two trusty revolvers, which are freshly loaded every day, and in their belts they have cartridges enough to keep that gun working indefinitely. The messenger
on the train, and he is locked in his car,
has a big bore revolver right at hand all the time, and the train crew, consisting of a conductor and two brakemen, fondle
Winchester repeating rifles and shotguns.
In addition to all this there is a guard aboard who has in reach when sitting in the armored portion of the car six repeating rifles, some loaded with shot and cartridges and others with a single ball,
and these guns are never out of order, for the company keeps an armorer. Every three days this armorer inspects and oils
every gun and sees that it is in proper working order.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Special Correspondence
In the presence of the great unknown, says Ingersoll, we've all an equal right to guess. Congress is close at hand. People already begin to feel themselves within the shadow of its coming. Gossip is busy settling many things. Gossip, in fact, devoted a moment of its valuable time to the next ways and means committee, settles definitely that Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, will be the chairman. There is much in proof of the proposition. Reed will be speaker, that is general concession. Whoever else may have been left in doubt when everybody congressional went home last March, it is said that both Reed and Dalzell were perfectly clear on this point. Dalzell was to be—and is—the next ways and means chief. One or two speak of Quay's friendship for Reed and his enmity to Dalzell and dwell on it as a reason why Reed will not name Dalzell. But the better posted, while admitting the premises deny the conclusion

Gossip declares further that after Dalzell
is installed he won't have much to do.
The wiseacres insist that no tariff measure, strictly speaking, will have serious consideration. They do look for an addied $1 on beer, and say that with the thirty-two millions of dollars it would put in the public till, it would be enough
They do not anticipate any disturbance of import duties.

The future-piercers set forth that Hill,
of Illinois, should his health permit, will be named by Reed as head of the foreign affairs committee of the house. This so says gossip is to be one of the important committees. From present complication and Venezuela and other small neighbors of ours with both England and Spain, it is general belief that questions
of policy of foreign sort are to be much heard of in the coming congress, and that the foreign affairs committees of
of both house and senate will be often on the floor. The next campaign, so many think, will find one of its prime issues in the foreign relations of this government.
And it is said that with Hitt as chairman of the house committee and Sherman chief of the senate committee on foreign affairs, the republicans plan to take the lead over the democrats in an obstinate, aggressive Americanism, such as has not been voiced since the war of 1812.

In connection with the Venezuelan affair it has transpired that Great Britain has made a suggestion to this country to form an alliance for the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine jointly as against other nations, and for the preservation of peace and stability of government in South and Central America. In other words, Great Britain is willing that the Monroe doctrine should be enforced and that the United States should exercise a protective influence over the minor republics of the continent if the English right, interest and power is recognized as equal to that of the United States. In pursuance with this idea Great Britain suggests that the two countries join in the construction of the Nicaraguan canal.
This is said to come in the form of a suggestion, not as a formal proposition.
The belief is that the suggestion has not been entertained at all by the state department. England would have nothing to lose by such an arrangement and this country would have nothing to gain, and under the present state of our diplomacy
our interests would probably soon become subordinate to those of the English foreign office. Apropos, it will be remembered that in the early part of the century Great Britain, then not entirely satisfied with the plans of the "holy alliance" of European powers, made a similar proposition to the United States to the one now suggested. The proposition was then rejected, not on account of any un-friendliness toward Great Britain, but in deference to the policy urged by Washington of avoiding all entangling alliances.

I met a man on Pennsylvania Avenue
yesterday. Though the face was familiar, yet I was certain that I had never seen him. His shoulders were bent and he walked with a listless step. As we approached he held out his hand and called me by name. Then I knew him, or rather I knew what he used to be. He told me that he was a government clerk;
his party services had been rewarded,
and the reward had taken the elasticity
from his step, the brightness from his eyes and had hushed the happy manner
that had made him the most popular young man in the little western town where he had studied law. Instead of entering into the practice, he went into politics, and was elected to the legislature. Then he went to Washington, and I used to wonder how soon he would be appointed to a cabinet position. Yesterday was the first time I have seen him since. For fifteen years he has sat at the same desk until he seems like a part of the furniture of the office. His fellow clerks know him by name and the census enumerator probably discovered him. He seems to expect nothing, hope nothing, think nothing, except that under civil service rules he may retain the desk
where, for a bare livelihood, he has buried his talents. Such is the life story to be read in myriads of faces which pass the portals of the government departments
in Washington.

The convention to adjust the Behring

sea claims is in session here this week.
This convention grows out of the Behring sea arbitration of '93, in which the award was against the United States' claim of jurisdiction over Behring sea. The issue involved is largely one of fact and not of law. The Paris tribunal held that the Canadian sealers captured in Behring sea had a right to be there, and that they were entitled to damages for the seizures. The sealers claim over $1,000,000, but this was scaled down to $472,000 by an agreement between the late Secretary Gresham and Sir Julian Pauncefote. Congress refused to ratify the agreement on the ground that the amount was excessive. The present convention will seek to reach a fair mode
of adjustment, for some sum must be paid
by this government.

Attorney General Harmon is the one member of the cabinet who is not afraid to be quoted in regard to the reported rupture between the president and Secretary Olney over the foreign policy of the administration. "There is not an atom
of truth," he says, "in the story that Secretary Olney has quarreled with the president, and is about to leave the cabinet.
They have not had even a difference of opinion, and the tale of a serious disagreement is without a shadow of foundation."

County and Vicinity. Both the Ypsilanti and the Peninsula paper companies are manufacturing large quantities of the product known as fibre chamols, which is used as a lining to the fashionable balloon sleeves now worn by the ladies.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

Justice of the peace in Washtenaw county will hereafter not have such a good thing as formerly. The supervisors have decreed that no bills shall be allowed in cases where the prisoner pleads guilty. Heretofore half pay has been allowed in such cases, but that practice will now stop.

A marriage license was already for Dan J. Ross' signature at the county clerk's office one day last week, when Mr. Ross said that he had a wife at home who might object to his remarrying during his lifetime at least. Then it was found that Mr. Ross desired to get out a deer license.—Ann Arbor Argus.

The Ann Arbor Argus nearly had a fit in its last issue, because of the following special dispatch found in a St. Louis paper: Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 19—A fire broke out at two o'clock this morning and burned 14 stores, a church, a newspaper office and several other buildings. No estimate of the losses and insurance is yet possible.

There must be another poker joint in operation, the members thereof making use of village property to gain admittance to their den. Last Sunday one of our citizens who aforesaid has been noted for his poker propensities was observed scaling the village fire ladder to a window in the second story of a certain building. If due permission to use the village fire ladder for this purpose has not been sought and obtained at the hands of the proper officials, it had better be done at once so that misunderstanding may be avoided.—Milan Leader.]

Rawsonville, a little town on the county line between Wayne and Washtenaw, has long been known as the deserted village, because of the fact that a majority of the dwelling houses are uninhabited and have been left to ruin and decay. During late years the only signs of life have been a school house, a flour mill and the post office. As a final blow to the town, the post office department discontinued the latter. This aroused the farmers living in the vicinity and a petition is being circulated to have the office re-established.

The Livingston Herald is responsible for the following: "A farmer in Lyndon, Washtenaw county, has some trained hogs. When he wishes to feed them, he calls them in the ordinary way, and four ordinary looking swine scamper toward the trough in the ordinary manner. But when the animals get within about two feet from their owner, who is an old soldier, and understands something of military tactics, calls out "Halt!" eight porcine feet mark a straight line. Leisurely, while the hogs stand transfixed like so many statues in pork the owner dumps into the trough four pails of that invigorating mixture, with which no true American-born hog was ever unacquainted. Then pausing a moment to let the shades of Job turn green with envy, the owner gives the word of "Charge?" Four hogs arrive at the trough together, and the work of demolition begins."

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

Seismic Waves in the Central Belt-Pottawatomies Want Less Red Tape and More Control of their Lands-Tacoma's Treasurer Removed.

In the Cause of Liberty.

It was Spanish weather at Washington Thursday night, but the sympathizers with the Cuban patriots who gathered in Metzerott's Hall made the old building shake as they cheered to the echo every declaration of the eloquent speakers in behalf of Cuban liberty, and the granting by the government of the United States of belligerent rights to the patriots who are fighting the tyranny of Spain.

William Thorpe, a wealthy railroad contractor of New York, recently purchased fourteen hundred acres of land in the lower end of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. He erected a number of buildings, planted trees and built fences. The buildings have been destroyed by incendiaries, the trees torn up and the fences destroyed.

Too Much Government Paternalism.

The Pottawatomie Indians in council at Perry, O. T., passed resolutions declaring: "We believe the stringent rules of the interior department regarding leases are not conducive to our interests. It would be better for the Indian, better for the white man, and better for the community that the Indian should have greater control over his land in the way of leasing, at least for limited periods of, say, five years. Give us more autonomy and less red-tapeism. The excessive paternalism of the government tends to dwarf the development which is necessary to make us self-supporting and which can be attained only by imposing upon the Indian greater personal responsibility."

Earth Shaken Up.

Chicago experienced an earthquake early Thursday morning. Not only Chicago but a large territory in the Mississippi Valley, including Mississippi, Louisiana, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, and Michigan, felt the shock distinctly. The only report of lives imperiled comes from Gadsden, Ala., where several houses were shaken down and the occupants buried beneath the ruins.

All the other guests were warned in time and made a hasty exit from the building. The fire was not controlled until damage amounting to $200,000 was done in the heart of the city. Fifteen business places were burned.

Just as the department store of Siegel, Cooper & Co., at Chicago, was being closed Monday night Mrs. Mary Walsh, of 5415 Princeton avenue, leaped from the third floor of the rotunda in the center of the building and was dashed headlong to the tiling below, a distance of thirty feet. Death ensued in a few minutes. The skull was terribly crushed and the jaw bones fractured. She had been suffering from dementia and her act was one of premeditation.

A committee of eight representing the various lodges of the American Railway Union went to Devil's Lake, N. D., to revise the schedules for submission to President Hill. The main ground for contention is that a low-paid man with a grievance is entitled to as much consideration as a high-paid man without a grievance. As further cause for complaint it is claimed that Mr. Hill, ever since the union won the great strike in 1894, has been systematically violating the agreement made at that time.

Prof. A. K. Atkinson, Superintendent of the public schools at Rushville, Mo., was placed under arrest Monday on the charge of brutally flogging Miss Angie Van Hoozier, a beautiful young woman, 20 years old, who has been a pupil of Atkinson's. Certain rules of the school are alleged to have been violated by the girl and Atkinson, arming himself with a hickory stick, assaulted her in the school-room. She fled and followed her through the halls and out doors, where he inflicted wounds which are considered dangerous. The pupil is under a physician's care.

The explosion of the tug T. T. Morford on Chicago River, resulted in the death of John Erickson, fireman; John Ferguson, captain, and Charles Dick, engineer. The Morford had in tow the grain steamer Ionia. The tug is a total loss—$18,000. Destruction of the Morford deprives Chicago harbor and Lake Michigan this winter of the protection afforded for the last eleven years to storm-tossed and wrecked vessels by that remarkable product of the shipbuilder's art. On Lake Michigan there is no boat to take her place, either in the "hooking" of ice or in the power to steam through ice to the rescue of a disabled vessel.

A mob, composed chiefly of farmers, stormed the Seneca County jail at Tiffin, Ohio, early Sunday morning in an effort to lynch Lee F. Martin, the murderer of Marshal Shultz. The Sheriff's jail force fired on the mob, instantly killing two men. Several more men were shot but not fatally wounded. Sunday was the day of Shultz's funeral, and the sentiment against Martin broke out with redoubled fury. The mob was composed mostly of neighbors of the murdered marshal, and the marshal's brother acted as leader. Martin was a prominent Dunkard, and killed Shultz while resisting arrest for a trifling offense. The militia was called out to guard the jail.

Tuesday night at 11 o'clock the two Kirkwood accommodation trains over the Missouri Pacific Railroad collided at King's Highway and Manchester, just inside the St. Louis city limits. Both engines were killed, and their bodies horribly mangled. The firemen, too, were buried in the wreck, and fatally crushed. The dead are: William Catrin, of St. Louis, engineer of the east-bound train; John Harper, of Webster Grove, engineer of the west-bound train. The fatally injured are: George Dunbar, of Webster Grove, fireman of the west-bound train; George True, of St. Louis, fireman of the east-bound train. Others injured: J. H. Baylis, brakeman, Kirkwood; Henry A. Davis, lawyer, Webster Grove; Harry Feldott, conductor; Patrick Hanley, passenger, St. Louis; But Taylor, passenger, Webster Grove; W. A. Williams, conductor. The west-bound train was laden with suburbanites returning from theaters. The two trains crashed into each other around a sharp curve, and the engines were ditched by the fearful force of the collision.

Kankakee marsh, the famous hunting ground in Illinois, was swept by a prairie fire Saturday, and trees, brush, and grass were all burned to the ground. The roaring blaze, headed so as to include towns and farmhouses in its destructive sweep, had its course changed by a fortunate shift in the direction of the wind. This gave the homes of the farmers on the border of the marsh a chance. This swamp fire is responsible for the Grand Trunk disaster near South Bend on Saturday, in which eleven persons were injured. The cause of the wreck was a weakened culvert, which was burned, but which owing to the dense smoke that swept across the tracks was obscured from the view of the engineer, Crown Point, Hammond, and Kouts, Ind., were threatened by the fire. Kouts had the closest call, and was saved only by the extreme efforts of the citizens, who fought the flames until the wind aided them and changed the course of the flames. Blackened and weary the men who maintained for twenty-four hours the unequal fight, against the fire, which were fanned by a wind that at times blew almost the violence of a cyclone, retreated in dismay.

SOUTHERN.

President Lane of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association has just returned from a tour of the South, and says the cotton crop will be six and one-half million bales. He predicts January cotton will sell for 10 cents a hundred.

Henry Hillard, a negro who assaulted and then murdered young Mrs. Bell Monday night near Tyler, Texas, was captured Tuesday, taken to town, and burned to death in the public square. A large crowd of citizens witnessed his dying agonies.

At Huntington, W. Va., twenty guests at the Adelphi Hotel were taken suddenly ill at 1 o'clock Monday morning. The doctors said that the symptoms indicated poisoning. Several were seriously ill during the night, but at 9 o'clock all were pronounced out of danger.

The "Coochee-Coochee" is under the ban in Georgia. The House of Representatives passed a bill making it unlawful to perform the dance in the State. The bill was introduced last year by Ed Jones, a society young man, who witnessed the dance a couple of years ago. Considerable sport was made of its author at the time, but the fact that the "Streets of Cairo" are now conducting the business on the exposition grounds so shocked the members of the Legislature that their first action was to take up Mr. Jones' bill and rush it through by an almost unanimous vote.

One of the results of the great gathering of Western men in Vicksburg incidental to the waterways convention has been the organization of the Vicksburg National Military Park Association, whose character is now in course of preparation and whose incorporators are such men as General Lee, General R. A. Alger, General John B. Gordon, ex-Governor Hoard, of Wisconsin; Colonel Fred D. Grant, and many others of equal prominence in civil life or the great conflict between the States. The object of the organization is to foster the foundation of a national military park there similar to those at Gettysburg and Chickamauga Park.

Augusta, Ga., was visited by the largest fire in years Friday afternoon. The lumber mill of Jesse Thompson & Co., the largest in the South, was burned to the ground, with 2,000,000 feet of lumber in the yards. The loss to them is $75,000, one-third insured. The fire then spread for two blocks. Forty-two dwellings occupied by operatives were entirely consumed. Three hundred are homeless. The loss on these buildings is $40,000, with little insurance. The entire fire department was called out, but owing to the distance from water and a gale from the south nothing could be done. The flames stopped when everything in line was burned.

FOREIGN.

Fierce disturbances, accompanied by serious bloodshed, are reported to have taken place at Erzincan. Sixty Armenians are said to have been killed. The Turkish Government has sent a circular note to the representatives of the powers and to its representatives abroad announcing that the outbreak was provoked by the Armenians.

Madrid dispatches via Havana allege that President Cleveland had promised the Spanish minister to veto any action by Congress favorable to the Cubans. A Washington dispatch says: It can be stated positively that no such promise has been made, and that such a promise would be so irregular and unprecedented as to be beyond the range of probabilities.

The nineteen men of the burned American ship Parthia have reached Valparaiso, Chile. The Parthia, Capt. Carter, with a crew of nineteen, was bound from Liverpool, which port it left June 25, to San Francisco. It burned in the Pacific Ocean Oct. 1. The wreck landed at Juan Fernandez Island, off safe. The ship belonged to Houghton Bros. of Bath, Me., and was a double-decker of 2,371 tons, 250 feet in length and 44-foot beam. It was built four years ago.

A correspondent in Rio, Brazil, telegraphed Tuesday to Buenos Ayres, Argentina, that news has been received from the Governor of Para confirming the report of the passage of British troops through that territory. A correspondent at Havana of an English newspaper received orders from his paper to embark at once for Venezuela, in anticipation of the demonstration Great Britain is expected to make at La Guayra, to enforce the demands of her ultimatum.

A dispatch from Madrid says that Lieutenant Generals Marin and Macias have been ordered to Cuba. Santiago advises report that Hongoosogoo was burned by the rebels. The inhabitants fled to Santiago for refuge. From Bayamo comes the report that a fight occurred near Baira, Rabi, the rebel leader, being repulsed and left twice dead on the field. Several new bands of insurgents are reported to have been seen near Vuelta Abajo. The insurgents have burned the buildings of the Jinaguayo and San Rafael sugar estates, and American property near Remedios.

It has been learned that the representatives of the Spanish Government in this country have discovered what is said to be a new plan on the part of the sympathizers with the Cuban insurgents to ship ammunition from the United States to their compatriots in Cuba. The Spanish Government's representatives heard of the scheme some time ago and employed a detective agency to investigate it. The friends of the insurgents, according to the story, have sent large consignments of toys to Havana. These toys consist mostly of large and unusually heavy dolls. Their weight is accounted for by the detectives by the assertion that each doll contained a dozen rifle cartridges.

Prussia has just published the result of the recent census. The entire population June 14, 1895, was 31,491,290, an increase of 1,838,925, or 5.13-100 per cent, since December, 1890. The males increased 770,651 and the females 702,877. In Berlin the increase of females was two and one-half times that of men. One of the surprises of the new census was the small increase of Berlin's population, all the more startling owing to the unprecedented increase of Berlin for the years between 1870 and 1890. It was only 36,288, or 2.2-10 per cent, for the last four and a half years. The census shows a continuance of the movement towards cities from the country, in which Berlin had not its usual share.

News has been received at New York of a revolution in Hayti. President Hippolyte, it is said, has retired to his palace in Port au Prince, where he is guarded by the army which he brought down from the north with him when he overthrew Legitime. Commercial houses in New York which do business in Hayti have been expecting this outbreak for several weeks. When dispatches came saying that Hippolyte had proclaimed a state of seige in Port au Prince they were not prepared. Their private dispatches were to the effect that several of the leading men of Port au Prince had been arrested, as well as many who had come in from the country to help swell the army of the revolution. Hippolyte proclaimed the state of seige on Wednesday, and immediately ordered out a certain number of his prisoners to be shot. Though the old friends of Legitime are concerned in the present movement it is said that Gen. Maugiat is not at the head of it. The army of Hippolyte has been concentrated about his palace and he intends to make his final fight.

Another terrible massacre of Armenians is reported to have occurred in the Bairub district, between Erzzerum and Trebizond. According to the news received at Constantinople a mob of about 500 Mussulmans and Lazes, the great majority of whom were armed with Martini-Henry rifles, made an attack upon the Armenians inhabiting several villages of that vicinity, and set fire to their houses and schools. As the Armenians fled in terror from their dwellings they were shot down as they ran, and a number of men and women who were captured by the rioters, it is added, were fastened to stakes and burned alive. The Armenian women who fell into the hands of the mob, it is also asserted, were brutally treated and mutilated. The surviving villagers applied for protection to the Governor of Bairub, who, after hearing their complaint, sent three policemen to the scene of the massacre after the slaughter was ended. The Turkish officials, it is claimed, know the ringleaders of the outbreak, but apparently no steps have been taken to arrest them. The number of Armenians massacred at Erzzerum is now said to be several hundred. The Turks, it is stated, have also attacked the Armenians in the district of Gunushdagh, near Trebizond, and have slaughtered many of them.

PEREMPTORY INSTRUCTIONS TO ARMENIAN MINISTER.

Lincoln Monument a Ruin—Saginaw Man Leaps to His Death—Prince Ferdinand Currying Russia's Favor—Fifteen Tons of Metal in a Bell.

Protection for Students: A Washington dispatch says: Armenian students will hereafter find the United States has stretched out its strong hand to protect them against the attacks of the Turks. The American representative at Constantinople, Alexander W. Terrell, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, has suddenly been given a lively boost from Washington, and as a result telegraphed the State Department Wednesday he would demand of the Turkish Government full protection for the missionaries and students.

This was due to the determined stand taken by the Rev. Thomas D. Christie, President of the St. Paul's School at Tarsus. Dr. Christie complained to the State Department of the indifference of the Minister Terrell to the outrages on the missionaries. As a preliminary step came the recall of Admiral Kirkland, who had the recall of missions and missionaries in criticized manner. Minister Terrell was sent a sharp reprimand as well, and instructed to give instant attention to the complaints of the missionaries and follow this with a threatening protest to the Porte against the continuation of the outrages.

It is understood that finally Minister Terrell was given to understand if he did not take vigorous action at once his resignation would be accepted by the cable. Minister Terrell's relations with the department are strained, and it would not be surprising to hear of his recall or resignation.

Baptized in the Russian Faith: A dispatch from Sophia announces that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria will have the infant Prince Boris baptized in the Russian orthodox faith. Prince Ferdinand is a strong Roman Catholic, like his mother, Princess Clementine, of the Orleanist house, and his wife, Duchess of Parma; but in this instance he has allowed his political ambition to get the best of his religious sentiments. This move on the part of the Bulgarian prince will do much to secure his recognition by Russia, and hence by the other European powers, as the legitimate sovereign of Bulgaria, of which principally he has hitherto been merely the de facto ruler.

H. A. McCausland Killed: H. A. McCausland, a traveling salesman for the Michigan and Ohio Plaster Company, either threw himself or fell from a third story window of the Osborne House, at Auburn, N. Y., Wednesday morning. Although conscious when found, he died four hours afterward. It was impossible to secure from him a connected statement. Twice he said that there had been persons in the hotel room with him, but as the door was found to be locked, with the key inside, all thoughts of foul play were abandoned. McCausland was about 30 years old and his home was in Saginaw, Mich.

Casting an Enormous Bell: At a few minutes past 9 o'clock Wednesday night the casting of the great bell for the tower of St. Francis de Sales Church, Cincinnati, began, and the flow of metal was continued for about two hours before the work was completed. It is the largest bell in the United States, and fifteen tons of bell metal were used in the casting. In addition to this, the clapper, which is already cast, weighs 640 pounds. The main dimensions of the bell are: Diameter of the ring, nine feet; diameter of crown, five feet. It is seven feet high. Swung in the tower, the bell is to cost $10,000.

The court of private land claims has finally rejected the Peralta claim to 12,500,000 acres in Southern New Mexico and Arizona.

As the result of an agreement entered into between American manufacturers of window-glass and importers of the same product there will be an advance of 2½ per cent. in prices. The importers have agreed to no longer handle the foreign product.

The storage battery patents of this country have passed into the control of a trust. The trust's official name is the Electric Storage Battery Company. It is capitalized at $10,000,000. Its headquarters are in Philadelphia. W. W. Gibbs, of gas trust fame, is its president. The backbone of the trust is the Widener-Elkins-Yeates combination. Hamilton Elkins-Yeates, the saw manufacturer, is heavily interested in the deal. This combination controls not only the patents of the United States, but has bought the American rights to the Tudor patents, probably the most valuable of the foreign inventions in this line. It is an open secret in the electrical world that great improvements are expected in the storage of electricity and its transportation and use. It is suspected that these improvements are already in sight, and that the trust has read the future more clearly than any one else.

This move on the part of the Bulgarian prince will do much to secure his recognition by Russia, and hence by the other European powers, as the legitimate sovereign of Bulgaria, of which principally he has hitherto been merely the de facto ruler.

H. A. McCausland Killed: H. A. McCausland, a traveling salesman for the Michigan and Ohio Plaster Company, either threw himself or fell from a third story window of the Osborne House, at Auburn, N. Y., Wednesday morning. Although conscious when found, he died four hours afterward. It was impossible to secure from him a connected statement. Twice he said that there had been persons in the hotel room with him, but as the door was found to be locked, with the key inside, all thoughts of foul play were abandoned. McCausland was about 30 years old and his home was in Saginaw, Mich.

Casting an Enormous Bell: At a few minutes past 9 o'clock Wednesday night the casting of the great bell for the tower of St. Francis de Sales Church, Cincinnati, began, and the flow of metal was continued for about two hours before the work was completed. It is the largest bell in the United States, and fifteen tons of bell metal were used in the casting. In addition to this, the clapper, which is already cast, weighs 640 pounds. The main dimensions of the bell are: Diameter of the ring, nine feet; diameter of crown, five feet. It is seven feet high. Swung in the tower, the bell is to cost $10,000.

As the result of an agreement entered into between American manufacturers of window-glass and importers of the same product there will be an advance of 2½ per cent. in prices. The importers have agreed to no longer handle the foreign product.

The storage battery patents of this country have passed into the control of a trust. The trust's official name is the Electric Storage Battery Company. It is capitalized at $10,000,000. Its headquarters are in Philadelphia. W. W. Gibbs, of gas trust fame, is its president. The backbone of the trust is the Widener-Elkins-Yeates combination. Hamilton Elkins-Yeates, the saw manufacturer, is heavily interested in the deal. This combination controls not only the patents of the United States, but has bought the American rights to the Tudor patents, probably the most valuable of the foreign inventions in this line. It is an open secret in the electrical world that great improvements are expected in the storage of electricity and its transportation and use. It is suspected that these improvements are already in sight, and that the trust has read the future more clearly than any one else.

Jackson Man May Be Heir to an Alabama Millionaire—Startling Figures Concerning Divorces—Stock-bridge Man's Novel Porkers.

Thinks Jerry Is His Brother, Dennis Murphy, for many years night watchman at the Michigan Central freight house in Jackson, is interested in a dispatch to the effect that Jerry Murphy died at Montgomery, Ala., in an old, broken-down car where he had lived as a miser for years, leaving behind a bundle of bills and a bag of silver amounting to over $30,000.

Four Military Hogs. A farmer in Lyndon Township, near Stockbridge, has some trained hogs. When he wishes to feed them, he calls them in the ordinary way, and four ordinary-looking swine scamper toward the trough in the ordinary manner.

Paid According to Contract. A report was recently published that the People's Mutual Benefit Society, of Elkhart, Ind., refused to make just settlement of the claim of the beneficiary under a certificate of membership of Mr. Hamilton, of Port Huron.

Divorces in the State. As the result of investigations extending over a number of months Secretary of State Gardner announces that the number of divorces instituted in Michigan in 1894 was 55.25 per cent. greater than in 1884.

For Better Care of the Insane. A meeting of the Association of Assistant Physicians of the Hospitals for the Insane, including Iowa, Illinois, and Michigan, was held at the asylum in Kalamazoo.

The fireman and engineer had narrow escapes. The cause of the shooting is unknown.

"Ky" Clark, a picturesque character of Adrian, has gone to the poor house. Every day he has been in the habit of hauling garbage to his hive back on the river bank, and his menu would have disgusted a semi-respectable porker.

Yet "Ky" reads Virgil and Horace in the original and has read half of the new testament in Greek. He got his culture at the University of Michigan. Although 70 years old, he protested vigorously against being taken to the poor house, saying he was never happier than when sleeping next his garbage pile.

The Saginaw and Bay City Rapid Transit Co. promises to have cars running between the two cities within sixty days.

The Michigan Central Railroad Company has given notice to the owners of the Hurd mill, Marshall, that the big mill must start up at once or be torn down. The mill has stood idle for several years on the grounds of the company.

Alpena County Supervisors declare that prisoners in the jail of that county must do something toward earning their board, and it is likely that a stone breaking plant will be put in, for which the prisoner will furnish the power.

Charcoal and Its Value. Charcoal is most beneficial to potted plants if broken in pieces the size of a small chestnut and added to the soil.

Shipping Celery. In shipping celery there is no advantage in leaving earth on the roots; shake it off and pack in boxes of moderate size.

Manure for Fruits. A food mixture approved by fruit growers is 600 pounds kainit, 300 pounds acid phosphate or dissolved bone and 200 pounds nitrate of soda.

Precautions Against Smut. The spores of smut will live a long time in the ground, or in manure, and every care should be taken to destroy them.

Cabbage Unharmed by Freezing. Cabbages are unharmed by freezing if of hardy varieties, but Early Winsted, a tender sort, is nearly spoiled.

Pure-Bred Stock. The nearer you can get to full blood in breeding, no matter what purpose you have in view, the more certain you are of securing good results.

Tests of Potatoes. In a large number of experiments at twelve different stations comparisons have been made of methods of cultivating potatoes.

Sunday night was the coldest of the season at Saranac, and most of the potatoes were frozen. It is probable that in that vicinity two or three of the crops in that section were destroyed.

The proposition to bond Muskegon County for the purpose of improving the roads will receive attention by the Board of Supervisors at their January meeting.

Alpena will hereafter have a meat inspector, and all meats offered for sale must be inspected and tagged. This is on account of diseased meat having been sold on several occasions recently.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SERIOUS SUBJECTS CAREFULLY CONSIDERED.

A Scholarly Exposition of the Lesson—Thoughts Worth of Calm Reflection—Half an Hour's Study of the Scriptures—Time Well Spent.

Lesson for Nov. 10. Golden Text—"The Lord reigneth; let the earth rejoice."—Ps. 97: 1.

A king for Israel. The desire was a natural one, distinctly so. Natural and worldly. In a regenerate, God-instructed mood they would not have asked it.

Samuel severe in charging upon Israel that in this demand they were rejecting God? Certainly it was grandly courageous in him thus, in the face of them all, ere he yielded to their clamor.

Samuel, however, laying aside at the command of God (for he has been upon his knees) his chastened judgment of what is best, and also whatever of personal feeling he might rightly have regarding his own displacement, proceeds sagaciously and discreetly to execute the popular behest.

But Saul is not yet king. He has received Samuel's approval and the first enthusiastic endorsement of the popular assemblage. He must yet secure the suffrage of all the tribes and the strong fealty that only flows upon a tried and proven ability.

That comes presently at Gibeon, and Saul enters upon his kingship fully accepted and with everything in his favor. Saul had in fact a five-fold ordination to office.

First, Samuel's cordial selection (9: 20); second, God's anointing (10: 1); third, Saul's own heart response, whereby he burst into prophecy (10: 6); fourth, the popular ratification; and fifth and best of all, the accreditation of deed, as narrated in chapter eleven, where Saul, bravely overcoming the arrogant Ammonites, wins the hearty support of all Israel and is king de facto as well as de jure.

It is an interesting study as hinting the steps by which all of us come to our best estate.

Illustrations. It was a great day for Saul. He was coming to the throne, and his own conduct, in the premises, was most comely and exemplary. Teachers may well outline the story of Saul's elevation as an incentive to the young.

It begins with the pregnant text of Scripture, "And the asses of Kish, Saul's father-in-law, were lost." Then is unfolded the beautiful providence by which Saul is led to Samuel's presence and to the anointing oil of kingship.

This suggests the divine side of the transaction. There was also a human side. Saul, in physical, mental, spiritual, had made himself ready for this high office, and the prepared man finds at last the prepared place.

And witness also Saul's quiet modesty at the first, and the wise forbearance with which he "held his place," till God in due time enabled him to strike the blow by which he was brought to his own. It is all a moving picture of the way eminence and honor are reached in this world.

There is such a thing as Providence. God has a hand in the affairs of men. Saul never appeared to a better advantage than in the humble docility of his early days when he waited patiently upon God. And it was when there that he achieved most, when he put his affairs into the hand of God.

Frances Ridley Havergal sings it: "Just to let thy Father do what he will, Just to know that he is true, And be still; Just to follow hour by hour, As he leadeth; Just to draw the moment's power, As it needeth."

What does it signify to trust God in the every-day affairs of life? Just what we mean when we commit ourselves to one of our own kind stronger or more capable than ourselves. Be sure of God. God cares for his own in defense or aggression, and he sometimes delivers in almost miraculous ways to emphasize his protecting providence.

His Bad Horses. "It's a well-known fact in Texas," remarked a gentleman from that State at the Hoffman House, "that 'Buck' Kilgore, ex-Congressman, now judge, used to own the worst horse in his county, and he never owned but one at a time, simply because two horses of such quality couldn't be found in the entire State. As an illustration of the case let me tell you a story."

There being no objection the gentleman proceeded. "It seems," he said, "that a fellow had been caught with a horse in the county adjoining Judge Kilgore's county which he could not satisfactorily account for. The moral he tried to explain matters the deeper into the hole he went, until the captors concluded the best way to settle the difficulty was to hang the man and await developments. A very few minutes after this determination the funeral cortege approached the nearest tree, with the man on the stolen horse to make it more impressive. The arrangements for the final scene were completed and the leader was about to hit the horse with his whip to drive him from beneath the culprit, who was attached to the limb of the tree by a rope, when a couple of men rode by and stopped to see the performance. They knew the leader of the party and he invited them to take a hand.

"Why," exclaimed one of them, "that's 'Buck' Kilgore's horse. Where did you come across it?" "That's the boss the thief stole," replied the leader, "and we thought we'd let him have his last ride on it." And he began to look the animal over. "Are you sure it's Buck's?" he asked after his investigation.

"Of course. Would anybody else have that kind of a boss?" "Well," admitted the leader, "I reckon you're right, since I come to look at it. You see, we was thinking more about the moral side of the case than at the boss."

HIS BAD HORSES.

How a Thief's Crime Became a Scandal in Texas.

"Then he turned to his followers. "Boys," he said, "this boss is Buck Kilgore's. You all know what we think of a man in Texas that will steal a boss, and you all know what we think of the kind of bosses that Buck Kilgore owns. Now, in the name of justice, I ask you if we ought to hang this man?"

"No, sire, Bob!" yelled the crowd. "What ought we to do with him? I say we ought to take up a collection and give the feller money enough and time enough to ride the boss clean out of the State. All in favor of that motion say 'Aye!'" and the motion passed with vociferous unanimity.—New York Sun.

Geography Lessons. Almost anybody can learn to answer questions out of a book, but now and then a school boy shows originality. This is true even in geography, a field in which at first sight there might seem to be small opportunity to think for one's self.

A teacher had been speaking of the division of the world into nationalities, and wishing to see how well the class had followed her, she said, pointing to a map of Europe: "Now, suppose I were in France and went into Germany, how would I be likely to know when I passed the boundary?"

A child of seven years answered promptly: "You would hear the German bands, please."

Another teacher asked one of her boys where Nicaragua was. The boy, as it happened, had a postage stamp album by which he set great store, and to the teacher's astonishment he answered: "It's on page ninety-eight."

Costly Building Material. The Cincinnati Enquirer reports a curious occurrence. Early in May Mr. Turpin, a teller in the Sub-treasury at Cincinnati, missed a ten-dollar bill, which had been left upon a table. The weather was warm and the windows were open. After searching the room, Mr. Turpin hunted over the garden lawn.

All was in vain; the bill was gone, and after a while forgotten. Some weeks later a high wind blew down a bird's nest near the house and, as it chanced, Mr. Turpin picked it up, and looked at it curiously. His attention was struck by a piece of paper of a peculiar color. He drew it out and it proved to be a ten-dollar bill, the very one, no doubt, that he had lost.

It was in pretty bad condition, but was redeemed at the treasury.

A Calendar for Business Men. Austin Tyler, the well-known inventor, has arranged a new calendar, chiefly for business men, which has thirteen months in the year instead of twelve. Each month, except the thirteenth, has arranged to have twenty-eight days, which he contends will simplify and expedite the calculation of interest. The odd day will fall in the thirteenth month, which in the interest tables can be arranged. He says that several bank presidents have given their approval of his calendar, and his belief is that it will finally be adopted. He points to the fact that Russia has two calendars, one for the church and one for business purposes. The odd month, he thinks, should be called Christmas.

"Young man," said the sage, "you know it all now, but when you have reached my age you will find you know almost nothing." "Yes," said the youth, "I have often heard that one forgets much in his declining years."—Cincinnati Tribune.

The cravings of the soul are really not for things of a poetical nature, but for something for five dollars that looks as if it cost ten.

A short time ago, a resident of this place heard a noise in his chicken yard and on investigation found the wire fence cut and his best rooster gone. Soon after this he missed some eggs, even the porcelain nest egg having flown with the rest of the lot. A few days ago, his wife was out in the yard working, and a neighbor's little boy said to her, "Say, my pa got a chicken out of your yard a little while ago, and he had to cut the fence and run like sixty to get away. And he got some eggs over there a little while ago, and brought 'em home." And thus the mystery was solved.

Register of Deeds C. P. McKinstry informs us that much annoyance and correspondence is occasioned by people who are ignorant of the law or careless in observing it. The new law makes necessary for a person having a deed record, to first get a certificate from the county treasurer showing that the taxes on such lands have been paid for the past five years, this costs the owners cents. If you send the deed for record send the extra 25 cents with it or record will be made.

The minister gave her husband a queer look, said nothing, and he walked off with her, utterly unconscious of the slip he had made.—Ex.

A short time ago, a resident of this place heard a noise in his chicken yard and on investigation found the wire fence cut and his best rooster gone. Soon after this he missed some eggs, even the porcelain nest egg having flown with the rest of the lot. A few days ago, his wife was out in the yard working, and a neighbor's little boy said to her, "Say, my pa got a chicken out of your yard a little while ago, and he had to cut the fence and run like sixty to get away. And he got some eggs over there a little while ago, and brought 'em home." And thus the mystery was solved.

All My Life

Had that distressing disease, catarrh of the stomach. It proved most troublesome in the summer, and was accompanied by that tired feeling. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and had no more of it. My general health is also much better. Mrs. M. A. BRENS, Concord, Nebraska. $1; six top $5.

Hood's Pills

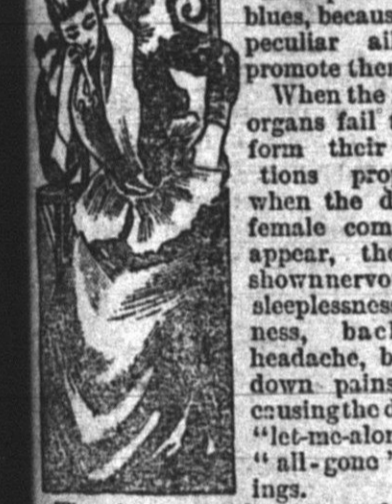

A Nice Legal Point. Indian courts have to decide queer questions. The Buddhists of Japan presented an image to the great temple of Buddha. The Hindus objected to the acceptance of the present, especially the abbot of a Sivalite monastery near by, who claimed, under a decree 400 years old, the right to determine what should go into the temple. A mob broke into the temple and carried off the image. Some of the rioters were fined, but appealed to the Supreme Court at Calcutta, which has just decided in their favor, having ascertained that the abbot's claim was legal. The decision will cause trouble between the Buddhists of India and those of Burma, Ceylon and Japan.

The State of Georgia has developed greatly since the war, the estimate now reaching the respectable total of $251,098,124.

THE BLUES.

Why do Women have the Blues more than Men?

(SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.) Are not women naturally as light-hearted, brave, and hopeful as men? Yes; but woman's organism is different from man's.

Women in perfect or good health are rarely victims of this symptom. Women nearly monopolize the blues, because their peculiar ailments promote them. When the female organs fail to perform their functions properly, when the dreaded female complaints appear, there is shown nervousness, sleeplessness, faintness, headache, bearing-down pains, etc., causing the dreaded "let-me-alone" and "all-gone" feelings.

When the woman does not understand what the matter is, and her doctor can not or will not tell her, she grows morose and melancholy; that's the blues.

Mrs. Newton Cobb, of Manchester, O., says: "Lizzie E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all this trouble. I cannot praise it enough. I am pleased to tell every one that it cured me; and if it will cure me, why not others? I am sure my case was severe enough." It will. Get it of your druggist at once.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

WALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS., has discovered in one of our common weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first. No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

THE CYCLONE MEAT Mallet.

The most useful and reliable invention of the age! Two dozen per day sold. Save in cost every month. Try your meat and device. "Mallet" nickel-plated, never rusts. We want an Agent in each locality, and will give other salary or commission. Sample and full explanation sent for 50c, all charges paid. Address: CHAS. W. CO., 117 N. Wabash St., Chicago.

Cutter's Carbolic Inhalant and Pocket Inhaler.

ARMS AWE THE MOB.

OHIO LYNCHERS MEET WITH DEADLY BULLETS.

Rioters Break Into the Jail at Tiffin and Two Are Shot Down by Guards—The Offensive Prisoner Had Murdered a Marshal.

Troops Called Out.

Martial law reigned in Tiffin, Ohio, Sunday night. The gleam of musket and bayonet was seen glancing back the moonbeams on the streets surrounding the county jail. Morris Degan, one of the rioters, assaulted a militiaman guarding the jail and was taken in custody by the police, who were followed to the station by a howling, hooting mob. The jail doors are wrecks, having been battered from their hinges by an armed mob. Two men lie dead with bullet wounds in head and body, one police officer is at home with probably fatal injuries, two others are injured and a young man has a bullet through his hand.

The attempt to lynch Leander J. Martin, alias Miller, murderer of City Marshal August Shultz, anticipated since the tragedy, was made in dead earnest at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning, and resulted in the instant death of Mutchler and Mats, members of the mob which attacked the jail. The rioters exceeded 850 men and most of them were under the influence of liquor at the time.

The mob came from an entirely unexpected source. Six men gathered on the lawn about fifty feet from the jail and in a moment about thirty others joined them. Then a sharp whistle was heard and out of an alley on the opposite side of the street and a little to the west rushed fully 300 more, the leaders carrying a rope and several sledgehammers with which to accomplish their work. A squad of policemen who had stationed themselves on the steps, were whisked to one side as if they were so many straws.

A rush was made for the jail. The men were without reason and made no demand for the keys. A powerful teamster wielded the sledge. The door was broken in splinters in a short time. With each blow the fury of the crowd increased. When the entrance was gained there was a wild rush and the hallway was filled with excited men. Sheriff Van Nest and three men stood in the opposite end. He appealed to them most bravely and strongly several times, asking them for God's sake to disperse. It did no good, for the men only grew fiercer. The entrance to the corridor is first protected by a heavy sheet-iron door. The lock was broken off with a few blows and then there remained the heavy grating.

Guards Open Fire.

Then it was that the guards, who were in that portion, began to fire. At first they shot over the rioters' heads. A guard afterward said the men swore to kill every person inside, and to show their purpose they began to fire at them. The guards said no shot was fired by them until the attacking party had fired through the grating first. Henry Mutchler, the first man killed, was the one who carried the rope. He was shot through the left temple, and he died instantly. Then Christ Mats received a bullet through his heart. He was picked up dead.

The killing of the two men caused a cessation of the attack. Then the mob thought of dynamiting the jail and sent messengers to all the stone quarries in the city and vicinity, but all returned without any explosives. While this was going on Sheriff Van Nest placed Miller in charge of Captain Falkner and Officer Sweeney, who drove him at a breakneck speed to Fremont, eighteen miles away, and placed him in the Sandusky County jail. It was found necessary to call out the local militia, and as the day advanced and the news spread to the rural districts Governor McKinley was appealed to for troops, and ordered the two companies from Kenton, one from Fostoria and another from Clyde to go to Tiffin at once.

ELECTRICAL NOTES.

Bits of Information for Those Interested in Science.

No insulator of magnetism is known. The pull of a magnet is increased by reducing its polar surface. Electro-magnets with long limbs are practically no better than those with short limbs for sticking onto masses of iron.

It is said that electric lamps run by storage batteries last twice as long as lamps operated directly by dynamos.

Any galvanometer having a resistance which is large in proportion to the current to be measured can be used as a voltmeter after calibration.

In making a spark coil, or, in fact, any electrical apparatus, the main requirements necessary for success are patience and determination to construct each part thoroughly.

The strength of the solution in each cell of storage battery should be tested with a hydrometer once a month. When the battery is fully charged, it should indicate 22 degrees Baume.

In an arc lamp, supplied with a direct current, the consumption of the positive carbon is in round numbers one inch per hour, and of the negative carbon one-half that amount.

Aluminum has the least electrical resistance for a given length and weight and mercury has the greatest; but for a given length and sectional area, annealed silver has the least resistance and bismuth the greatest.

Before beginning to charge a storage battery it should be gone over carefully and any cell that is not up to the standard should be taken out of the circuit and put in working condition before being replaced.

S. P. Thompson says: "You will get the given amount of magnetism and traction with the least amount of magnetizing force, when you have the area (of the magnet) as great as possible and the length as small as possible."

In the construction of a voltmeter, it is usual to allow a resistance of fifty ohms for every volt to be measured. This gives sufficient accuracy for most purposes, as the error is within 3 per cent of the total readings.

According to Thompson, a thin, round disk of iron, laid upon the flat, round end of an electro-magnet (the pole end being slightly larger than the disk), the disk is not attracted, and will not stick on, even if laid down quite centrally.

The conductivity of metals decreases and that of some bad conductors or insulators increases with the temperature.—Boston Transcript.

In Spite of the Conditions.

It has been asserted that the best literary work can only be done under prosperous conditions of life. Tennyson has been called the poet of luxury, and Longfellow, Lowell and Browning seem to have led similar lives of cultivated ease; but did not Burns sing some of his sweetest songs amid the abject surroundings of the poorest Scotch peasants? Carlyle, from the same rugged conditions, drew the strength that found expression in his tremendous tirades against almost all existing things. Chatterton and Keats were the swan-poets breathing their souls away in sweetest music, but their short lives, though burdened with every care and sorrow that springs from poverty, bore richest fruit in poems that are immortal. Charles Lamb's bright and gentle spirit found expression in the essays that are household treasures in so many homes, their influence not being lessened by the thought that the man who wrote them fought a harder battle than comes to most people. And, not to further lengthen a list that might be made almost endless, what shall be said of Homer? No; hard conditions act as a spur to effort, whether in the ninth or the nineteenth century, and the golden fruit that so many would pluck grows oftener at the end of a rough and tollsome path than of a broad, smooth highway.

In a High Wind.

We were paddling up the lake in a birch-bark canoe. The breeze blew so hard and constantly that, try as I might, I could not keep a match ablaze long enough to light my pipe.

"Let me show you how to do it," said my companion, an old Californian, who was handling the bow paddle. "Hand me a bit of that newspaper sticking out of your pocket." He took the piece of paper and crumbled it up into a wad, which he retained in the palm of his hand. Then, striking a match, he closed both hands about it to shield it from the wind, after the traditional manner of the railroad navy in lighting his pipe. The flames instantly set the paper smoldering on top without fess breaking into a blaze. He then passed the burning wad to me, and it served as a pipe lighter equal to a live coal, the high breeze fanning instead of extinguishing it. It was the simple invention of a practical mind, which served my turn and afterward, and I commend the device to sportsmen needing tinder for a pipe light or to start a camp fire.

The Geranium Leaf in Jelly.

A rose-geranium leaf dropped into each tumbler of apple jelly is said by a good housekeeper to impart a peculiarly delicious flavor. It is true that Westerners have by no means achieved the art of using flower life in their sweetmeats. As prepared in the orient these concoctions are most delicious. The Armenian women and their neighbors, but not friends, the Turkish wives, excel in the compounding of such confections.

Meaneat Man on Record.

"Many a mean man has been discovered," put in Snoggs, as he ate his quick lunch, "but we have one of them out in Stockton that's entitled to consideration." "What's his record?" inquired Boggs, as he calculated that he had time for another piece of pie. "He makes his wife live on soup, so she will not wear out her false teeth," replied Snoggs.—Scranton Times.

Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

An English Gunpowder Factory.

The royal gunpowder factory at Waltham, England, bears more the appearance of a pleasure resort than of the prosaic plant that such a purpose involves. The factory covers in all its branches a beautiful stretch of wooded land, some 400 acres in extent, intersected by four miles of running streams. Electric launches ply between the different buildings, while cargoes of explosives are conveyed by rail barges, so as to reduce the liability to danger to a minimum. The threshold of the "danger building" is barred with a board, which not even the inspector may step over without having a special pair of large overboots on his feet, to keep his shoes from taking grit from outside upon the felt carpet. Once every week there is an explosion within the grounds, which is heard for many miles along the country side. In one part of the grounds is a pond into which the water from the nitro-glycerine factory is drained. This extraordinary lake is exploded every Saturday afternoon with a dynamite cartridge, to prevent too great an accumulation of waste nitro-glycerine. Some times there is already so much in the water that holes twenty feet deep are made, and the water is all blown away.

Russians Are Economical.

The Russian workman spends very little for food, lodging and dress, as compared with the foreign artisan. Coming from the village, he is very modest in his demands. His food is very simple, but it is abundant and answers to his taste. In Moscow, for example, the board of a workman amounts to not more than 10 shillings per month.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disorder, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, and giving the foundation of the disease, thereby destroying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Her First Railroad Ride.

It was the fate of pretty 16-year-old Lizzie Goddard, of Burnside, Ky., to be frightened to death by the first ride she had ever taken on the cars. Five minutes after she had arrived at Chattanooga on her first railway trip she was dead. Little Miss Goddard had been in constant fear of railroads all her life and boarded the train only after much persuasion. The train made a lunge a few miles from the city and she jumped from her seat and screamed in a frantic manner. She at once became unconscious and died as she was being removed from the train. Physicians agree that she died of fright.

RIPANS TABLETS

Mr. W. C. Lewis, who is connected with the artistic advertising department of the Youth's Companion, and resides at 33 Dwight street, Boston, relates that he had his attention called to Ripans Tablets by a business acquaintance who expressed a high opinion of them. Mr. Lewis was a good deal troubled with what he describes as a nervous, bilious condition that appeared to be brought on from time to time by high pressure work or special mental activity or excitement, such as would be common at periods of unusual nervous tension. It has become his practice at such times to take a Tablet—just one—at the moment that he observes the difficulty approaching. It makes no difference when it is. A favorable result is invariably apparent within twenty minutes. The only noticeable effect is that he feels all right in twenty minutes if he takes the Tablet; while if he does not the nervous, uncomfortable feeling intensifies and leads to a bad afternoon and tired evening. He carries one of the little vials with him all the time now, but doesn't have occasion to apply to it anything like as often as he did at first. Nowadays there are frequent periods of from a week to ten days or even two weeks during which he finds that he has no occasion whatever to make use of the Tablets, but still carries them in his pocket, just the same, so that they may be ready if an occasion occurs.

Ripans Tablets are sold by druggists or by mail at the price (50 cents a box) is sent to The Ripans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. Sample vial, 10 cents.
