Ernest Walsh, Deceased.

The telegram conveying the sad news, on the 9th inst., of the death of Ernest Walsh at the home of his father in Humboldt, Nebraska, was followed by letters giving more fully the particulars. That he was a young man of good heart and principles, beloved by all, was manifest when friends gathered from all parts of the county to pay the last sad tribute to the memory of one they highly esteemed for his true worth. The funeral was attended by about five hundred people, and the largest funeral cortege ever witnessed in Richardson county, followed the remains to their last resting place. The services were conducted by Father Mc-Shane, of Dawson, assisted by Father Fitzgerald, of Auburn. The public schools of Humboldt, from which he was graduated, were closed and the business of the city was practically suspended during the hours in which the funeral

Many of Ernest's friends in Chelsea will remember him as a bright, healthy young sea Savings Bank in the early spring of '93, and how he won by his faithfulness and cheerful, kindly ways the respect of all who knew him and the loying regard and in business more intimately.

He was very modest and retiring in his manner, possessing superior ability with strength of character of a high order, and, being of quick perception, was ever on the alert to exert himself to be helpful to those around him, entering feelingly into their joys and with keen sympathy into their sorrows. He was very conscientious, charitable and tender-hearted, approving that which was good and abhorring that which was low, vulgar and wrong.

When the former president of Chelsea preceded him but a few months, learned that young Walsh had been engaged as an accountant in the bank, and that he was a devout Roman Catholic, that exceedingly good man and Methodist father was sorely troubled and depressed, but made no open protest. It was, however, but a few weeks before, by daily contact with Walsh, his aversion faded away, and his respect, as he became better acquainted with him, grew apace and soon ripened into strong affection for Ernest, and from thence until his death nothing was too good to bestow nor effort to make in behalf of the loyal young Catholic. The two were very close friends when they came to understand and appreciate the character of each other. The solicitude of Mr. Ives for young Walsh was quite marked, when, in the spring of '94, he was the first to express the fear that Ernest's cough was more serious than any one had thought and urged him to see a physician.

Even when he was prevailed upon to be examined by the physicians in Chelsea and Prof. V. C. Vaughn, of Ann Arbor, they all pronounced his lungs apparently free from serious taint of disease, until later a careful microscopical examination was made. From that time Ernest, aroused by the announcement, tried hard to live and overcome the disease, battling bravely and courageously with that terrible, insidious and flattering arch enemy of physical man consumption. He spent the winter and part of the summer just passed in Colorado, and during the fall and up to the day before his death was busy with the affairs in Nebraska of his employers. " He returned only the evening before from a six days' trip, feeling benefitted by the travel, but the weather became that night very heavy and damp, greatly affecting his respiratory organs next morning. He received from Father McShane, while fully conscious, the last sad ministrations of the church, and with his arms around his father's neck expired, like a child falling asleep. Thus passed away one of the most noble of young men, relieved of all fear of death with the happy remembrance of a well-spent life and a blessed assurance of a glorious immortality. "Hail Heavenly Light." G. P. G.

Grace before Meat.

There's a difference between being full of thanksgiving, and being full of Thanksgiving dainties. But the one thing generally leads to the other. How can it be helped when the turkey is so good, and the pie so enticing? Here's a helpful hint. For that full feeling after Thanksgiving - take a pill. Not any pill, mind you. There are pills that won't help you. Take the pill that will. It's known as Ayer's Pill - and it's perfect. It is sugar-coated, pleasant to the palate, and its operation, like that of nature, is effective and without violence. Keep this in your mind if you want to enjoy the holiday season: Grace before meat, but a Pill after Pie.

up and down with Hanner to git a full day's work out o' her."

When Uncle Ben set out he carried a basket which contained jelly cake, tea, a pumpkin pie and other articles, and as he pursued his way along the frozen road he drew his old fur cap down over his ears and soliloquized:

"Yaas, darn my buttons, but I'm sorry fur Nancy Black. On top of all the other hard luck comes that four-hundred-dollar mortgage on the farm, and and hold it, but I hain't. I've got to like a calf!" see Squar' Potter, the old skinflint, and tell him he must give the widder and the fatherless a show. The tarnal old critter is probably countin' the days till he kin turn 'em outdoors, but if he ever tries it he'll hear what the folks around here thinks of him. I see that Hanner has got a purty good fire in the kitchen, but I don't believe she's fed the stock.

"On the first day of the month the if I don't cuss all the rest of the day!" to stay on for a few months."

"Has Squar' Potter bin up here lately?"

"He was here yesterday. He will take the place as soon as the law allows."

"The blamed old skunk! Excuse my cuss words, Nancy, but when I'm excited they slip right out. If that old skinflint turns you outer house and able to raise it. If I was able I'd buy my coat and lick him 'till he beliers

Uncle Ben turned into the gate, passed around the house and entered the kitchen without knocking, to find Hannah doing up the breakfast dishes.

"Mornin', Hannah. How's the widder and the fatherless?"

"She rested purty well last night," reolied the girl.

"Fed the stock yet?" "No; I was just goin' out."

"That's just like the Bebees-allus an hour behind time! When yer father died and his funeral was sot fur two o'clock it didn't come off till three. I'll do the chores fur ye this mornin', and you see if the widder and the fatherless kin find anything in that basket to tempt their appetites."

Half an hour later Uncle Ben reentered the kitchen and marched through to the sitting-room bedroom to see the unfortunate widow.

"Say, Nancy, I'm dog gone sorry fur ye!" he said, as he wiggled out of his overcoat and flung his cap on the floor. "Here it is Thanksgiving day and everybody gittin' ready to canter round and stuff their stomachs, and you a-lyin' here with a broken leg! I say it's a tarnal shame!"

"It's an unfortunate thing. Uncle Ben," the widow replied, "but I am going to try and not worry over it. Who knows but what it is all for the best?"

"Mebbe 'tis, but I'll be hanged if I believe it! Aunt Martha sent her luv. and I guess she'll be down about Saturday."

"She is very, very kind." "And she said you'd hev to boss Hanner more or less to make her step around. Some folks her to be sorter, driv, ye know." "Hannah is doing very well, I'm glad to say."

"How's the young 'un?" "As good as pie."

"That's nice. Some youngsters is all right, and some seem to be possessed of the old Harry. Look a here, Nancy, 1 hain't no hand to go pokin' my nose into other people's bizness, as I guess you'll allow, but thar's a matter I'd like to ask about. You remember we went to skule together, and the night we had the spellin' bee you'n me was the last ones up, I went down on 'docktrine,' and you went ahead 'till the teacher was pretty nigh tuckered out. I kinder feel as if I was related to ye, ye know." .

"Yes; what do you want to talk about,

Uncle Ben?" "About that mortgage. In course I know thar's one on the farm, fur I was with Jim when he got the money, but how about the interest?" "I won't be able to pay a shilling of

"D'ye mean that old chist which Jim bid off at auction over to Jackson's vendue?"

"Yes." "I was thar' and bid two shillin's fur it. Jim raised my bid to thirty cents and got it fur a wood box. Never used it, eh? I believe Jackson said he got that chist at a baggage sale in Boston a dozen years before, an' thar' was a lot o' duds in it which hev belonged to some furreigner. Wall, I'll go up and hev it down and take keer of that corn. Corn is goin' to be corn afore next spring. I s'pose Hanner Bebee would walk over that pile a hundred times and never see it. The Bebees was a good-hearted lot, but perfeckly shiftless."

In the farmhouse attic, stored away with quilt frames, broken chairs, bunches of mayweed and catnip, and hingeless trunks and boxes, Uncle Ben found the old blue chest. There was a thick layer of dust on the lid, and he dusted it off with a bunch of herbs and muttered:

"Whew! but how the dust does git into a house! Ya-as, that's the same old chist, and I laffed at Jim all the way home for buyin' it. Come outer here and downstairs and be sum good fur sumthin'! Guess you'll hold all that ner Bebee had bin the right sort of gal she'd hev-

"What's happened?" shouted Hannah from the foot of the kitchen stairs. "This blamed old chist has went and rone and knocked me head over heels down them attic stairs and killed me as dead as a door nail. Hurry up and git the durned thing off'n me!" "Why, Uncle Ben!" exclaimed Hannah, as she reached the chamber floor and found the old farmer doubled up at the foot of the attic ladder and the old blue chest holding him fast.

"Git it off'n me!" he shouted. "That's jest like a Bebeel The time your father's cow fell in the well he took two hours to think of it and let her die! Hang it, do ye want to break my back!" "You'll soon be a pirate if you keep

It was the chest of a Holland .immigrant, but how it had gone astray and finally been sold as unclaimed no one could have found out, had they wanted to. There was just seven hundred and fifty dollars in the "find," and Uncle Ben carried it downstairs in his old fur cap and poured it out on the bed before the eyes of the wondering and astonished cripple, and said:

"Nancy Black, it's all yours-every dollar of it, and thar's 'nuff to pay the mortgage and the doctor and leave ye sumthin' to boot."

"And you found it in the old chest?" "That's whar' it was, but if the blamed thing hadn't fell on me nobody would hev knowed about it. Nancy, I'm doggoned glad!"

THE PURITAN THANKSGIVING.

A Story of Uncomplaining Fortitude, Sple-u did Faith and Undaunted Heroism.

In what penury, what hardship, what sense of exile, what darkness of bereavement, what dependence upon the Divine hand and gratitude for its bounty, were the earliest Thanksgivings kept! The story of the Plymouth colony can never be too often recalled by Americans. For uncomplaining fortitude, for sturdy endurance, for strength that knew no faltering, for splendid faith and undaunted heroism, that story has no equal on the page of history. Many delicate women died in those first years, but we never read that they weakened in courage while they lived. Theirs was the underlying might of a purpose which had its root in principles; and, whoever may celebrate the Pilgrim Fathers, women should forever keep green the memory of the heroic Pilgrim Mothers.

We like to think of the groups which assembled at those Puritan dinner tables in those far-away days. The harvests were reaped; the churches and the school-houses were built; the children were brought up in the fear of God. In the cold meeting-house on the top of the nearest hill there had been a long service, prayers, psalms, sermons, all of a generous prodigality of time to which we in our religious services of to-day are strangers. Then came the unbending, the lavish dinner, the frolic of the little ones, the talk beside the fire, when the parents drew upon the reminiscences of fair England, or of Holland by the sea.

Many a trothplight was spoken in the twilight of Thanksgiving day. Youths and maidens then, as youths and maidens still, met and fell in love. The beautiful story which never grows old was told by the ardent suitor to the blushing girl in the Puritan home, as in our households yet.

"Long was the good man's sermon, But it seemed not so to me, For he spake of Ruth the beautiful, And then I thought of thee."

After all, the world changes little in essentials as time passes. The girl will wear her blue or her orange a few days later this year, but on Thanksgiving day, as on all days, her lover will find corn and a bushel or so more. If Han- his sunshine in her eyes, and her favor will be his highest incentive to manliness and nobility.—Harper's Bazar.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Doesn't Like the Will.

Mrs. John Andrews, of Buchanan, has begun suit to break the will of her husband. Andrews was burned to death a few months ago. He left a fortune of $25,-000, and in his will he directed his executors to deliver to his wife 100 bushels of wheat, 100 bushels of oats and 200 bushels of corn annually, and to give her the use of the house while she remained single. Mrs. Andrews does not take kindly to the will, hence she seeks to break it.

Arrested for the Kramer Murders.

Sheriff Dunn arrested John Griff. who runs a small sawmill on Portage lake, in West Hancock, for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kramer, four weeks ago. The crime was a brutal one. Both had their throats cut from ear to ear, and the woman's face was butchered beyond recognition with a hatchet. The evidence collected apparently weaves a net around Griff which he can hardly escape from.

A Church to Rival Saloons

The trustees of the Congregational church at Flint gave the pastor authority to open the church doors on Saturday afternoons and invite farmers and all others who come to the city to trade to enter and warm themsalves and spend a pleasant hour instead of going to the saloons. Music will be provided, and a committee of women will be present to entertain all the callers.

Never Moved In.

John Cannis, a pioneer and well-todo farmer living three miles from Capac, died from heart failure, aged 72 years. The deceased was born in Prussia, and emigrated with his parents at an early age to this country. He had just completed an elegant home to spend the remainder of his days, and was to have moved into it in a few days. He leaves a widow, three sons and two daughters.

Health in Michigan.

During the week ended November 16. reports sent in by 50 observers in various portions of the state indicated that remittent fever, pneumonia and rheumatism increased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported at 186 places, typhoid fever at 88, diphtheria at 35. scarlet fever at 37, measles at 6, whooping cough at 9 and smallpox at Detroit and Rochester .-

Wholesale Slaughter of Deer.

The slaughter of deer in the big stretch of forest south of Michigamme s unprecedented. The destruction be ing wrought is best shown by the price of venison, which is being sold here at two cents a pound. Many families are corning venison for the winter, it costing but a quarter as much as good beef.

Charges Malicious Prosecution.

E. H. Gault, owner of a large ranch in Kansas, was made defendant in a $25,-000 damage suit brought in the United States court at Kalamazoo by Mrs. Triphena Goodenough, whom he accused of obtaining money from him by false pretenses, and who was acquitted. She sues for malicious prosecution.

Michigan Day at Atlanta.

The establishment of the State Public T School marked an epoch in the child life J. C. TWICHEII, of Michigan. The state assumes the right to the guardianship of those children who are dependent, neglected or ill-treated, and cares for them by furnishing them a temporary home at the school, where, by means of perfect physical comfort and healthful moral training, they are led to forget their old life and become prepared to take their places with their more fortunate fellows in the families and public schools throughout the state. Before admission to the school they have known little of comfort or happiness. Their residence there, short though it usually is, gives them a new idea of life, and they have no desire to return to the old manner of living. The price of admission is dependence or ill-treatment, and the qualifications are that they shall be between one and twelve years of age and sound mentally and physically.

Since the opening of the institution in 1874, nearly 8700 children have been received and cared for. There are now in the institution about 200, and over 1350 are with good families throughout the state and under the supervision of the school. The others have passed out from under the school's control. Those with families are placed on contracts which provide for their proper care and education.

Is it not probable that there are many in this vicinity who would gladly take one or more of these children into their homes and make them their own?

The best selections are boys from 4 to 8 years of age, and it is believed that the homes would be blessed fully as much as the children by taking the children into

Orman Clark.

One of the most familiar forms and faces. ever seen upon the streets of Chelsea will us. Probably there was scarcely a man in all this region of country who did not know Orman Clark. He was among the earliest pioneers in this part of the state. In September, 1835, he purchased of the government the farm in the town of Lyndon, three and one-half miles northwest of He was the last of the early settlers of Chelsea, on which, in the following year, Lyndon, and will be long remembered he built his log cabin, and where he has and greatly missed. resided fifty-nine years. The story of the experience of the first years spent on that farm reads far more like å romance than a relation of facts, especially to the generation that is being reared at the present time in this neighborhood. Mr. Clark was born at Batavia, Genesee county, N. Y., March 1st, 1809. On the 27th of October, 1831, he was married to Miss Amanda Parsons. Five years later, almost to a day, with his wife and three children, he started on his adventurous and eventful journey for the Eldorado of his hopes in the wild woods of Michigan. His outfit consisted of an emigrant wagon, drawn by two yoke of cattle, with a cow led by a rope in the rear. Their route lay through Canada, and it required twentytwo days to perform the journey. Arriving at the cabin-home of Joseph Whitcomb, in the town of Dexter, on the 9th as headquarters for their own home. Into this cabin, with the chinks between the logs undaubed with mud, only about made of a whitewood board whose legs were held in place by holes bored in the corners. Such were the comforts of pioneer life in those days. Some of these discomforts were of course remedied in a few days. A stick chimney was built, a stone hearth laid for the fire, the floor completed, and the wide openings between the logs chinked and daubed. Thus their home was made comfortable for the advent of their fourth child, just one month later.

The remainder of the winter was not spent in ease and luxury. One yoke of cattle was sold to obtain provender for the other yoke. They had a little pork that they brought with them, and a few potatoes. Some wheat was obtained of a neighbor; and a young man by the name of Calvin Hallock, who spent the winter with them, furnished them with venison. Mr. Clark employed his time in splitting rails, with which he fenced in fourteen acres of oak openings, for six weeks of the time using his ax with his left hand, the right being disabled by a felon. This he thought pretty hard fare; but he felt that it must be done, and there was no one else to do it. When spring came, only one dollar was left in the treasury. This he paid for a bushel of potatoes, from which they cut the seed ends for planting, and ate the rest.

To relate all the tough experiences through which they passed within the next two years would require more time and space than we can command at present. They were, for the most part, blessed with good health and an unwayering purpose to make a success of their undertaking, cost what it might; and they

Value of Stock.

Winter is the season when farmers can advantageously devote their time to the care of stock, though in practice considerable is sold in the fall in order to reduce the number before cold weather begins. The large crops of corn, oats and potatoes make cheap food, and a correspondingly lower price must be expected for cattle, sheep and swine, though the margia for profit will be about the same as when grain is higher. An era of low prices, brought on by financial legislation, is here, and has come to stay. When grain is low the true way for the farmer is to sell it in some other form, and the only way to do this at a profit is to put it into stock of his own raising. The western farmer, in selling his grain, impoverishes his land to some extent, as he sends the food elements of the soil to market; while the easter, farmer, by using grain for the production of beef, milk, butter, pork, mutton, etc., leaves a portion of the grain on the farm as a fertilizer, which may be worth a much higher price next year, and this fact should not be overlooked in estimating the receipts and expenses of the farm.-Patriot.

NATIONAL FINANCES.

The Legal Tender Note the Fundamental Vice of Our Currency System, Is Responsible for Many Vagaries, and Should Be Retired.

New York, Nov. 20 .- The chamber of commerce held its 127th annual banquet at Delmonico's Tuesday night, Many men distinguished in political and financial circles were present. Alexander E. Orr, president of the chamber of commerce, presided. The leading speaker was Hon. John G. Carlisle, secretary of the treasury, whose theme was "Our Currency Question." He spoke in part as follows:

"Two years ago I said to you that the disposition and ability of the government to maintain its own credit at the highest standard, and to preserve the integrity of all the forms of currency in circulation among the people, could not be reasonably doubted and ought not to be the subject of further controversy. While scarcely anyone now seriously doubts either the disposition or the ability of the executive branch of the government to accomplish these objects, all who have given any at-tention to the subject must realize that in the existing state of our legislation the task is both difficult and expensive. Since that declaration was made here, interest-bearing bonds to the amount of $162,315,400 have been issued to procure gold for the redemption of United States notes and treasury notes, and the obligations of the government on account of the notes still remain the same as at the beginning.

Laws Must Be Changed. "The notes are redeemed, but they are unpaid, and if our legislation is not changed, no matter how often they may be presented and redeemed hereafter, they will remain unpaid. If this policy of redemption and reissue is continued the interest bearing debt will be greatly increased, while the noninterest-bearing debt will not be in the least diminished. The disadvantages of such a system are so obvious that it is hardly necessary to enumerate them. The government has undertaken to keep an unlimited amount of circulating notes equal in value to gold coin, and, at the same time, it has no legal authority to compel anybody to give it gold in exchange for the notes, or to pay gold on any demand due Although the amount of United States notes is fixed at $346,681,000, and the amount of treasury notes outstanding is a little over $140,000,000, yet the total amount that may be presented for redemption is unlimited, because there is no restriction as to the number of times the same note may be returned to the treasury and exchanged for gold. Responsible for Many Vagaries. "The theories that the government can create money by placing its stamps upon paper; that a legislative enactment can make 50 cents equal to 100 cents; that artificially inflated prices, paid in a depreciated currency, are better for the people than natural prices, paid in a sound currency, and various other vagaries are all directly attributable to the long continud use of legal tender paper. The proposition, money is money, is just as absurd as the proposition that a promise to deliver a horse is a horse. "The agitation for the free coinage of legal tender silver at a ratio which would put only 50 cents worth of bullion in a silver dollar is predicated upon the same vicious principle. The United States note was a forced loan from the people to the government, which the government promises to repay in dollars, but free coinage of legal tender silver at the rate of sixteen to one, or at any other ratie not corresponding with the commercial value of the two metals, would be a forced loan from the people to the owners of silver mines and silver bullion without a promise of repayment by anybody. One loan was forced for the benefit of the government, in a time of war, but the proposition of the advocates of free coinage is to force another loan for the benefit of private individuals and corporations, in a time of profound peace. In principle, the two measures are precisely alike. The free coinage of legal tender silver would be far more unjust than the issue of legal tender United States notes.

Leading Vice of Our System. "The fundamental vice in our currency system is the legal tender note, redeemable in coin by the government and reissuable under the law. This threatens the stability of the whole volume of our currency and has caused immense losses by fluctuations, of which it is impossible to keep the public aware. It was never contemplated that the government should convert itself into a bank of issue. The treasury department is simply a public agency for the manage ment of the fiscal affairs of the govern-

"The circulation of legal tender United States notes and treasury notes has a endency to drive out of use and out of the country the very coin in which the govern-ment is compelled to redeem them; and it has expelled millions of dollars from our borders. No other government in the world is required to discharge the private obligations of its citizens, and no government eught to be required to do so. fact that the government is required to borrow money is an injury to its credit and the credit of its people, but the injury resulting from this cause is insignificant in comparison with the ruin that would followen abandonment of the reserve while the notes are outstanding, for all our currency would thus be reduced to the silver stand-

"However, it is not my purpose now to discuss the question of free coinage. think the abandonment or suspension of this time, especially in view of the fact that a concerted effort is evidently now being made in the south and west to regain the ground lost during the last six months. If the friends of a sound measure of value are vigilant this effort cannot possibly succeed. But the legal tender notes will remain to complicate the currency system until congress agrees to their retirement and substitution of others in their places. This legislation is imperatively demanded, as it concerns the weifare of ail the neonle demanded, as it concerns the weifare of all the people.

"No nation can reasonably hope to control the wade of any considerable part of the world, or even to realize the full benefits of its own trade, unless its exchanges are based upon a standard of value recognized as sound and permanent in all the centers of commerce. The pound sterling has made London not only the principal market, but the clearing house of the whole world. No matter what character of currency other nations may use, no matter what standard of value they may adopt, all their international balances are subjected at last to test of the pound sterling with an inferior except. all their international balances are sub-jected at last to test of the pound sterling with an inferior currency, we could never successfully contest her supremacy, and the belief that we can punish her, or en-rich ourselves, by destroying the value of our own money is one of the most remark-able delusions of the age. We are great strong enough to maintain in opposition to any country in the world, but, in order to do so, we must be allowed to use as effective instrumentalities as are employed by our rivals."

Must Be No Equivocation

The speaker closed with a hope that the political platforms of both the great parties would henceforth be clear and unequivocal. "If a majority of the people of the Unite States are in favor of the maintenance of the present standard of value and oppo to the free and unlimited coinage of legal tender silver, they ought to have an op-portunity to say so in a form which will preclude all controversy as to whether they have said so or not. On the other hand, if have said so or not. On the other hand, if a majority of our people are in favor of abandoning the present standard of value and establishing silver monometallism ry the free and unimited coinage of that metal into full legal tender money, they should have an opportunity to say that. When this issue is directly presented we need not fear the result."

Other toasts responded to were: "Our Domestic Commerce," by Hon. Julius C. Burrows; "National Development and Opportunity," by Bon. Charles Emory Smith; "The City of New York," by Mayor Strong, and "Etbies in Politics," by Rev. Dr. M. W. Stryker.

REVENUE LAW CHANGES.

Important Amendments Proposed by Commissioner Miller.

Washington, Nov. 22.-Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller, in his annual report issued late Thursday afternoon, makes a number of important recommendations in the line of new laws or changes in existing revenue laws. Among them are the following:

He recommends the amendment of section 3,255 so as to allow the use of fruits other than apples, peaches and grapes for distillation. This is desired in order to afford brandy distillers the privilege of distilling pears, prunes, apricots, oranges and other fruits fit for making brandy when they desire to do so. Great complaint reached his office during last season, when the early frost destroyed the orange crop in Florida, and it was made clear that if the people had had the privilege of distill-ing this fruit they would have realized a considerable amount upon the crop, which was rendered useless for any other purpose. There seems to be no good reason why the law should not be modified so as to meet this most reasonable demands

The commissioner reserves for the last his most important paragraph, namely, an urgent demand for the repeal of section 61 of the revenue act of 1894, allowing the use of alcohol free of tax by manufacturers. Gross abuses have already grown up under this act and the government is deprived of

DEATH FOR FIVE.

Awful Result of the Burning of a Big Structure in Chicago.

Girls Leap from Windows and One Is Killed-Four Firemen Carried Down to Death by Falling Floors-Loss, $400,000.

Chicago, Nov. 23 .- A fire, disastrous to life and property, swept through the dry goods and woolen exchange Friday morning, a terrible sequel to the Canal street conflagration Thursday night. which by a curious coincidence were separated only by the river and almost opposite each other. Five firemen, while in the active discharge of their duty, under orders and totally unconscious of danger, were carried through a floor and buried under tons of wreckage from the five floors above. Four of the men lie dead and the fifth was not seriously injured. One girl fell from a window and received injuries from which she died. A dozen other men, women and girls were hurt or overcome by smoke and many were rescued from imminent death. The property loss to the building at 215-217 Van Buren street and 276-278 Franklin street and contents is estimated at $400,000.

The dead are:

Patrick J. O'Donnell, lieutenant of engine company No. 2, 2840 Wallace street. Thomas J. Prendergast, pipeman, 2023 Butler street.

Martin Sherreck, 2838 Lowe avenue, pipe-

John Downs, plpeman, 2858 Wallace street Kate Landgraf, 802 North Halsted street, employed in A. Stein & Co.'s garter factory Among the injured were:

Daniel McNally, pipeman, 724 31st street, removed from floor wreckage to St. Luke's aospital; sprained leg and bruises. Olga Keller, 515 North Ashland avenue, leg and arm injured. Harry O'Neill, 1029 Van Buren street, arm broken and back injured. Nellie Turner, 209 North Center avenue, fell from fourth-story window and serious-John Bruenheimer, badly injured by falling from fourth story while assisting girls The loss on the building is $100,000, amply covered by insurance. The aggregate loss of the many tenants is placed at $300,000, the heaviest individual loser being Stern & Beirs, $75,000.

The fire started at 9:15 o'clock on the fourth floor of the seven-story building, in the garter factory of Stein & Company, where many girls were at work. They ran screaming and half tainting from fright to the windows on the Van Buren street side of the building. All was excitement and confusion corpse was in a comparatively good crowd of spectators stood gazing upwards at what seemed the impending doom of scores of working girls. Engines, hose carts and ladders came in a gallop to the rescue with brave firemen, who in a twinkling had scrambled up the fire escapes or put the extension ladders in position to bring the panicstricken people to the ground.

Thefrantic girls were determined in their half-crazed mental condition to hurl themselves to the stone flagging. but were partly restrained by the shouts of the citizens on the street and the quick work of the firemen. One small extension ladder was run up under where the girls were standing in fear of a double death. A fireman mounted it, but when his feet touched the rungs of the second section either bis weight or some defect in the ladder caused it to slip back to its original position, bringing its top four or five feet below the sill of the fourth story window. Either crowded from behind or frenzied by fear Nellie Turner, Kittie Landgraf and Harry O'Neill made a wild attempt to lower themselves so that they could touch the top rung of the ladder. In doing this the foolhardy ones slipped and fell headlong to the pavement.

Capt. Hermanson tried to grasp the dress of Kittie Landgraf as her body flew past him, but failed, and she struck the sidewalk with a sickening sound in sight of thousands. A few seconds elapsed and the same spot where Miss Landgraf's body had struck was covered with the unconscious form of Nellie Turner, who had taken the terrible plunge in the effort to save herself. She was saved from death, however, by being momentarily held by three firemen in her descent, thus breaking the force of her fall. Three other girls, who had more presence of mind, succeeded in reaching the ladder by dropping from the window sill.

The flames had now taken possession of the four upper stories of the building, and at a window stood Olga Kellar and Harry O'Neill, hemmed in on three sides girl stood on the narrow window ledge was almost suffocated by smoke, and leap of a forlorn hope, "Don't jump; climb down to me," shouted Capt. Hermanson from his perch on the upper part of the ladder, but the girl, frantic from terror, did not hear his voice. She was seen to drop, and fortunately her body came within reaching distance of the captain. He seized one of her ankles as her body turned in the air, and the heroic act almost threw him from the swaying ladder. Before he was forced to loosen his hold or be carried down himself two firemen below him seized the girl and carried her down the ladder, amid the plaudits of thousands, who were watching every move in the tragic scene.

O'Neil, who was still at the window over the country being present.

and engaged in the brave task of helping all the imprisoned girls to escape to the best of his ability, was the last one to be rescued. When he tried to crawl from window to ladder he slipped and fell, but his fall was broken by the grasping hands of firemen on the ladder and he fell into a net which had just been placed in position. A broken arm and leg constituted his injuries.

Shortly after one o'clock came the second tragedy of the fire. The flames had been practically extinguished and the firemen of engine company No. 2 were ordered to the fourth floor in the rear to put out any incipient blaze that might be found.

The unfortunate men had taken their hose from the fourth to the second floor, and fire being found Capt, Fiene went to the window on the north and was in the act of shouting to Peter Hart, the driver of the company, to shut off the water when the fatal crash came. From the top floor came like an avalanche tons of timber, fireproof tiling, merchandise, safes, radiators, fixtures from the different offices and a mass of other stuff on the heads and on all sides of the firemen, who put duty before fear of safety. An immense hole was made in the rear of the second floor from the roof down, great masses of debris hanging on the edges of the opening. A cry of horror arose from civilians and firemen, mingled with the artillery-like roar of the col-

Capt. Fiene clung for dear life to the window sill until rescued and then bravely joined the small band of rescuers whom Chief Swenie sent to the debris. Only one faint voice was heard, that of McNally. All the others had probably been killed instantly. After half an hour's work, the men who were in danger every minute of more flooring falling on them, extricated McNally, and the others being given up for dead, streams of water were poured on the ruins from all parts on account of fire breaking out and to save the bodies from being burned. All the dead firemen were married and leave large fam-

Early in the evening the firemen dug from beneath a pile of charred timbers the body of Lieut. O'Donnell, of engine company No. 2. It was horribly mutilated with the exception of the face, which was reconizable. Bones had been broken by the falling debris, and the fire had completed the work of destructon, the flesh being badly burned..

At 10:45 o'clock the body of John Down, a pipeman, was recovered and given to a son who was in waiting. The condition. It had been in sight of the workmen for over two hours, but it took a long time to get at it.

At 11 o'clock another body was sighted. It lies face down covered by an immense beam and the arms can be seen from either side. Several hours will be required to reach it. .

MURDER AND PILLAGE.

Kurds Continue Their Awful Slaughter of Armenians.

London, Nov. 23 .- The Daily News this morning publishes a telegram from Van, which states that the Kurds have destroyed five villages in the neighborhood of that town, and out of the 13,000 villagers driven away at the time of the attacks only 3,000 can be found.

OUT OF JAIL

Eugene V. Debs Is Released from Prison at Woodstock, III.

The Great Strike Leader Has Served His Full Term-He Still Champions Organized Labor-Big Railroad Strikes Belong to the Past.

Woodstock, Ill., Nov. 22.-When the elock struck 12 last night, Eugene V. Debs became once more a free man. He was in bed in the cell in the jail which he had occupied for 163 days when his time of freedom came, and was sleeping soundly. At five a. m. he arose and after a bath and shave left the cell, never to return. He ate breakfast with Sheriff Eckert and family. Debs' last day as a prisoner was a busy one for the great strike leader, and he put in his time packing his trunks and filling boxes with letters, newspapers, books, and hundreds of other things, valuable and otherwise, which had been accumulated by him during his incarceration.

In no degree changed in his convictions, in no wise repentent of his attitude in times past, and with the same opinion that the federal courts have yet to learn how to administer justice, Mr. Debs hnishes his sentence in about the same condition, both mentally and physically, as when Sheriff Eckert took him in charge. He is the same earnest and magnetic champion of organized labor as in days gone by.

No More Great Railroad Strikes. Mr. Debs in a short talk Thursday evening said:

It is highly probable-in fact Mr. Debs acknowledges-that he will bring himself in closer touch with the criminal classes in the future; that he will seek to become a humanitarian in the est sense of the word.

"All these poor devils need," he says, "is a kind word and a helping hand, and ninetenths of them can be reformed. I tell you," he continued, "we are only half civilized. Our reformatories—or, more properly speaking, these deformatories—are each year breeding criminals that will soon overthrow society and plunge this country into a vast tube of blood, to which the Paris commune will be but the flickering light of a pine torch to an electric glow of numberless volts. There is as much caste in this country as there was in India, and the Brahmins are Pullman, Carnegie, Rocke-feller, and the Goulds, Astors, and Vander-

SENSATIONAL TRAGEDY.

Man Killed for His Insurance Money by His Mistress and Her Son.

Wichita, Kan., Nov. 19 .- Monday morning at six o'clock Henry H. Leonard, a prominent merchant was found murdered in an alley two blocks away from the police station. The body was lying near a sewer manhole that the murderers tried to uncover. The police being notified, sent to the home of Irene Williamson, his reputed mistress, 600 feet away and found her burning bloody clothes in the stove. They also found that she had turned the carpet upside down which even then could not hide human blood stains. A trail of blood was traced through the woman's yard and stable into the alley and thence to where the body was found.

She and her 19-year-old son Orville were arrested, but not before they had a story made up in the event of discovery. Mrs. Williamson said in confession that her divorced husband, hearing that Leonard came to her house, followed him Sunday night at ten o'clock and killed him with a piece of gas pipe, and that on toward morning he dragged the body into an alley with the intention of throwing it into a sewer manhole. Her divorced husband was arrested, and is able to prove a strong alibi. The wounds show that two parties committed the murder, as they were made with a hatchet and a club.

About a month ago Leonard wanted to marry the woman, but as she had not been separated from her busband the statutory length of time the probate judge refused to marry them, Leonard at that time made his insurance policy of $5,000 payable to her, with whom he was greatly infatuated, and the evidence is overwhelming that she conspired with her son to kill Leonard for the insurance money. It was the most cruel and cold-blooded murder committed here during the last 25 years, and the people are greatly excited.

Fire Brings Ruin. Chicago, Nov. 22 .- A fire which caused property loss of $500,000 and imperiled the lives of 500 persons, mostly young women, broke out at three o'clock Thursday afternoon on the third floor of Charles Emmerich & Co.'s feather and down goods factory, 175-181 South Canal street. The conflagration was attended by scenes of intense excitement and a score of firemen narrowly escaped being killed by fire and falling walls.

Scott's Emulsion makes cod-liver oil taking next thing to a pleasure. You hardly taste it. The stomach knows nothing about it-it does not trouble you there. You feel it first in the strength that it brings: it shows in the color of the cheek, the rounding of the angles, the smoothing of the wrinkles.

It is cod-liver oil digested for you, slipping as easily into the blood and losing itself there as rain-drops lose themselves in the ocean.

What a satisfactory thing this is-to hide the odious taste of cod-liver oil, evade the tax on the stomach, take health by surprise.

There is no secret of what it is made of-the fish-fat taste is lost, but nothing is lost but the taste.

Characters Told by Shoes.

Anybody who looks about him can tell character by the shoes, says the New York Herald. It requies no study to do this; the evidence is there every time, and no probing is necessary.

A policeman or a detective, no matter in what disguise, is often identified by criminals by his shoes. They know full well that policemen and detectives are in the habit of wearing large, heavy shoes, with soles twice the thickness of an ordinary shoe.

How easy it is to recognize the German corner grocer by the broad, flat shoe he wears, no matter where you meet him.

The neat button shoe or gaiter is typical of the methodical business man.

The careless man or woman can be readily recognized by a shoe on which half the buttons are off, or on which the laces are secured in an unsightly and slipshod manner.

Dainty, refined maidens wear shoes with patent leather tips that fit their feet to perfection; and, again, girls who are vi vacious and-flighty wear high heeled shoes that cramp their feet. When you see a girl wearing shoes on which one side of the heel is worn off and bent, you will know that she is vacillating and fickle,

Common sense women wear a low heeled shoe, which is intended more for comfort than for style.

The heavy, coarse boots worn by countrymen are proverbial. It requires no bunco steerer to recognize the owner of
