Secretary Stumpenhausen of the Farm

He exhibited a program of interesting nue, Boston, Mass. subjects which will be presented by several well known agricultural speakers at the institute which will be held here on the 19 and 20 of January. Arrangements were also made for two or three other speakers to be furnished by Chelsea, and also for a special lecture on the afternoon of the 20 to the ladies by Mrs. Mayo of Battle Creek, subject "Mother and Daughter." This lecture will probably be given in one of the churches, as the time at the hall will be entirely occupied with the regular work of the in-

Next week we hope to be able to give the complete program. It is intended to make this meeting one of great interest to the farming community.

A Burdened Tax-Payer.

The Jonesville Independent tells the following good story:

Tax time is here, and the fact reminds us of a little incident which occurred in the court house last summer while the populist convention was in session. The board of supervisors were in session at the same time, and the committee on equalization were at work in the little jury room opening out of the court room. They were interrupted in their labor by the eloquence of one of the speakers who denounced existing tax laws, and said, he, with thousand of others, were being taxed out of existence. The Mabel Brooks men in the jury room listened to the flery speech in silence, almost in tears; finally one inquisitive fellow opened the door slightly and recognizing the speaker sald, 'let's see how much this man does pay, anyhow,' turning to the roll in front of him he quickly found that all the property assessed to this abused man was two female dogs.' After this discovery the orator's eloquence was wasted on desert

ELEPHANTS IN INDIA.

Nobody may shoot an elephant, says the London Telegraph, on the Anna-mulle or Tipperah hills or anywhere else throughout India and Ceylon withou permission unless it be a "rogue or plainly dangerous and destructive. The capture of the wild elephant, a his careful training are things carriout under an admirable and scientific captures and scientific captures are captured to the capture of the tion in all its branches and to the native courts a superb staff of massive and faithful servants, the commissariat and artillery elephants.

Although they will seldom or never breed in captivity, the grand creatures are easy to keep and manage, invaluable for many special purposes, and at their demise whatever tusks they may carry go to the world's stock of ivory. The older it is the better generally its quality. But, in any case, how senseless it seems to extirpate the living source of this beantiful commodity, as the reckless hunters and ignorant native chiefs and merchants are still allowed to do in central Africal When shall we see the govern ments of these various regions sensible enough to perceive and proclaim that live elephants are very much more valu-able even commercially than dead ones, and that the preservation of these state-ly and serivceable animals shall be henceforward a fixed policy for African

It has been truly remarked that di-rectly the native and foreign hunters are convinced that one live elephant is worth dozens of tusks they will be as keen to preserve the animal as they now are to exterminate him. We might plead earnestly, even upon the ground of sections. theticism and natural science, for the protection in future of the noble beast, whose majesty and tranquillity of mies so well become his silent haunts philosophic, harmless existence. The ears of those, however, who mas the innocent giant to cut from him 20 or 80 pounds of material for paper knives and shoe horns would be closed ephant for Africa is that even the most ruthless of his assassins may come to learn that they are destroying their own markets. The rest is for official authorities to do. But certain it is that if de cided measures be not promptly taken there will be no elephants to save and, we shall see in another continent the shameful human sin and folly perpe-trated which has stripped America of every free living vestige of her noble droves of bison.

The question of "tipping" seems small enough in detail, but rather important when exaggerated.

A woman who spent last winter in one of the most sumptuous of New York hotels says she invariably gave a quarter to her waiter at breakfast and luncheon, those being meals taken alone. At dinner time she was joined by her hus-band, who always handed the servitor

The latter sum seemed to evenly fill the man's idea of what was due him. and his "Thank you, sir!" was bland and gracious, but the lady's modest quarters always found their grave in the black waistcoat pocket, with no ex-pression of gratitude from the recipi-ent's face, which were a meaning look, as of one who says, "Women are mean, an never knows 'ow to do the right thing by a man, but one 'as to put up

It is only in reckless, good natured America that optional fees are so much larger than they ought to be. A dollar, larger than they ought to be. A dollar, which is a common enough sum for a man to give at dinner in a fashionable restaurant, would make a French waiter stare, although he would have the presence of mind to pocket it quickly.

In Paris there is an unwritten scale which apportions 5 per cent on the amount of a customer's bill as a tip. Thus a person ordering a dinner that costs $3 would, on settling his bill, add 10 cents for the attendant.

persons will help on the retorm.

It will never be done by those whose means are really small enough to feel the tax, for it is one of the errors of the impecunious to feel obliged to show as much liberality as a millionairs, even if, like the guest in "Charley's Aunt." he has to borrow half a dollar from the butler with which to tip him.—Illus-trated American.

IMPORTANT DECISION OF THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Customs Collector Directed to Clear the Dauntless-Figures Upon Germany's Enormous Commerce-No Invasion of Colorado by Utah Sheepmen

Chance for Filibusters,

For the first time since the prese struggle in Cuba began this government has given permission to a customs official to clear for Cuba a vessel loaded, according to her manifest, with munitions of war and presumably intended for the insurgent army. The vessel in this case is the well-known and alleged filibuster the Dauntless. But the concession that under these circumstances she is entitled to clearance papers leaves the situation, as far as she is concerned, quite as involved as before, as the statutes prescribe that before clearance shall be granted for any vessel bound to a foreign port, the owners, shippers and consignors shall state under oath the foreign port at which the cargo is to be landed and severe penalties are prescribed for violations of this requirement, including the confiscation of the vessel. Neuvitas, the port named in the application as the destination of the cargo, is on the northern coast of Cuba and is occupied by the Spanish forces.

Germany's Exports and Imports. United States Consul Monaghan, at Chemnitz, gives some surprising comparative figures to show that Germany stands second only to England and much exceeds the United States in the value of her exports and imports. For 1895 these aggregated: For England, $3,125,820,-600; for Germany, $1,920,729,000; for the United States, $1,524,770,000. Germany has also gone ahead of France in ocean tonnage, and Hamburg, her great seaport, is surpassed only by London, and she has the largest single steamship com-pany in the world. All this is the work of little more than twenty years, and it grew out of almost nothing. Now the Germans demand a powerful navy to protect this magnificent merchant marine and prevent its destruction, as happened to Spain and Holland.

Cattle War Averted. War between Colorado cattlemen and Utah sheepmen in Colorado has been averted. It seems that sheepmen in Utah were under the impression that the quarantine proclamation issued by Governor McIntyre would become void on his retirement from office Jan. 12, and while Governor Adams was getting ready to issue a new proclamation they could move their sheep into the State and be s before any thing could be done to drive them out. Attorney General Carr having given an opinion that the proclamation remains in force until it is rescinded by executive order, the sheepmen have decided not to invade the State.

To Improve Mexican Harbors. The Mexican Government, recognizing the increasing importance of its west coast commerce, is determined to improve the harbors. Arrangements have been made to raise a considerable sum for this important work, in addition to $5,000,000 for the improvement of Coatzacoalcos and Salina Cruz, the eastern and western terminus of the Tithauntepec road. The move to improvement of the harbor is also caused, it is said, by the rapidity of railroad building toward the Mexican Pacific coast, which will open up fertile country and develop a large commerce through the ports below Deserted a Warship. The United States steamer Adems got in from Honofulu minus about forty-eight of her crew and one quartermaster. The sailors were all enlisted in San Francisco prior to the sailing of the warship ten months ago, and their destination had barely been reached before the men began deserting and heading back for San Francisco. Nearly all were back months ago, and the vessel had to return short-handed.

Boom Breaks a Bank.

Comptroller Eckels has telegraphic notice that the Commercial National Bank of Roanoke, Va., has closed its doors and suspended payment. Bank Examiner Sands was sent to take charge of the institution. Mr. Eckels does not regard the failure as a serious one. The failure is attributed in part to the speculation and boom tendencies in that locality.

At Cincinnati Thomas W. Keene, who was playing an engagement at the Walnut Street Theater, was presented a loving cup Friday night. The presents tion was on the stage after the second act, with Charles B. Hanaford as spokesman, to whom Mr. Keene responded feel-ingly. The cup was inscribed with the names of the members of the company and of the business staff. It is silver, gilded inside, and provided with three handles.

In the suit at Portland, Ore., of E. Mc Neill, receiver, against the Liverpool London and Globe Insurance Company, the jury returned a verdict against the insurance company for $72,000, the amount sued for. The suit was brought to recover insurance on property belonging to the Oregon Railway and Naviga tion Company that was destroyed by the burning of their large elevator three years ago.

At 7:20 Wednesday morning one of the most terrible and appalling explosions la the history of the Indiana oil field took place two miles northeast of Montpeller. It was the nitro-glycerin magazine of the Empire Glycerin Company, situated on the Elijah Gale farm. Two oil well shooters of Montpelier and their teams were blown to atoms. The men were: George Hickok, aged 42 years; Harry Wood, aged 23 years.

The Colorado State Supreme Court has denied the application for a rehearing in the case of Sheriff Newman of Lake County, sentenced to six months' imprisonment and retirement from office on a charge of malfeasauce. The judgment against Newman will probably be carried into effect within a few days. Gov. Mc-Intire has announced that if a successor to Newman be appointed who will enforce the laws in good faith he will witheraw the troops from Leadville.

The great activity at the Mare Island Navy Yard at San Francisco noticed is due to the fact that the station is being placed on an emergency footing. Stories of all descriptions are being received, as well as ammunition for the heavy batteries on ship and ashore. Orders have also been received to place aboard each vessel 135,000 rounds of cartridges for small arms. The sailors are expecting to have their shore leave stopped. at the yard have been notified they will receive a fully supply of armor piercing shells of the latest pattern.

As a result of the voluntary liquidation of the Atlas National Bank of Chicago, J. S. & William M. Van Nortwick, who held 464 shares of stock in that bank and were borrowers therefrom to the amount of $300,000, made an assignment to the Equitable Trust Company of Chicago, who took possession of the Van Nortwicks' bank at Batavia Monday afternoon. The failure involves the entire interests of the Van Nortwicks, whose estimated wealth, according to their last statement, is $2,500,000, often estimated at three times that amount, and representing, besides the Van Nortwick bank and other property, large manufacturing interests. The total liabilities will probably be near $2,000,000.

Otto Wasmansdorf, the Chicago bankez, member of the defunct firm of Wasmansdorff & Heinemann, shot and killed himself at his home Sunday morning. Feeling that his good name had been smirched and unable to bear up against the financial ruin which had overwhelmed him as a result of the failure of the Nutional Bank of Illinois, he ended his troubles with a bullet. One of his last acts was to mortgage his personal property for the benefit of his creditors. He saw before him the world as it appeared when he was fust beginning his career, but his youth and energy had left him. The prospect frightened and dismayedhim, and his courage falled. He believed he had lost his reputation, and without that he could not begin the world anew. So he went quietly to his son's room, and with his son's revolver ended it

H. W. Campbell, a prominent soil culturist of Sioux City, has signed an important contract with the Burlington. Mr. Campbell has been experimenting for the last three years on a process of turning the arid belt of lands in Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, and the Dakotas into crop producing districts. The experiments have been of such a successful nature that he has also induced the Northern Pacific, the Soo line, and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul roads to enter into the scheme. Starting in the spring of the coming year the roads have agreed to each establish five experimental stations in places which may be designated by themselves, and men acquainted with Mr. Campbell's peculiar methods will be placed in charge of them. A Chicago electric car ran over, horribly mutilated, and killed little George Danemark at Throop street Erijay after-noon, as a result of the boy attempting to steal a ride, and forthwith a crowd of several thousand persons assembled, beat the conductor severely, tried to throw the car off the track, and were barely kept in check by a wagonload of police from the Maxwell Street Station. The accident caused such an excitement that it came near leading to other deaths within a few minutes. It happened that a large congregation was coming out of St. Proco-pius' Catholic Church, a block east of 18th street. In a moment 600 of the congregation had surrounded the car, and the sight of such a crowd quickly attracted four times as many more. It is thought by some of the spectators that there may have been as many as 4,000 people in the street. As soon as they saw the mangled remains of the boy they were transported with rage. In the of meanwhile the conductor and motorman, th in Kvitek's drug atore, at the southeast corner of the street, ran together to Center avenue to telephone the accident to the offices of the company. Only the arrival of the company's wrecking wagon, and a wagon load of patrolmen, saved the men from a lynching.

SOUTHERN.

Plunging down 110 feet through an iron trestle, an accommodation train on the Birmingham Mineral Road Sunday landed its passengers and train crew in a death trap on the rocky bottom of the Cahawba River. Of those on board only nine escaped alive. The number of the dead is estimated at thirty-five. Cremation alive was the horrible fate of a number of the victims. The startling assertion is made by one of the survivors that the wreck was the work of train robbers, and that after the human freight had been precipitated into the river they robbed both dead and dying, paying no attention to the pitcous appeals for help. Governor Bradley of Kentucky has several companies of the Second Regiment of the State militia practically un er arms, owing to the fear that an attempt would be, made to lynch Johnson Howe, the negro held at Paris for the murder of Policeman Charles Lacey at Cynthiana. An interesting review of salmon fish conditions in this country is made in a report of the United States fish commission on artificial propagation of salmen on the Pacific coast. The report says the Battle Creek station of the California State commission, located about seven miles from Anderson, may soon pass into the charge of the United States. It is stated that 20,000,000 salmon eggs can be taken on Battle Creek in six weeks of a favorable year. The report contends that the salmon outlook is encouraging, but makes a disheartening review of an old scheme to restock depleted salmor rivers on the Atlantic coast. The report lays it down as no longer open to question that quinnat salmon, at least those that spawn a long distance from the ocean, never return to it again alive. They all die on the spawning grounds.

A Washington dispatch says: It has been learned from an authoritative source that Secretary Olney and Senor Dupuy De Lome, the Spanish minister, have practically terminated the negotiaions on the Cuban question which are to be submitted to Congress. The Post says: "The terms of the agreement are based on the recent official communication from Premier Canovas, addressed to the Secretary of State. The Premier states clearly the terms which Spain will accord to the insurgents and practically asks the United States to propose these conditions to her rebellious subjects. In return for our good offices Spain assures this government that she sincerely deplores the great commercial loss which we have sustained on account of the Cuban disturbance. She assures us that she is even now considering a reciprocity treaty which will deal mainly with Cuban products and which will be framed in such advantageous terms toward this government that our losses, both in commerce and in the destruction of American property in Cuba, will be most generously compensated."

This despair was caused, he affirms, by the lack of support which Maceo received from the insurgent civil chiefs. Upon the shoulders of some of them also Dr. Zertucha lays the charge of having received money from the Span-

The London Times Paris correspondent says: "The Washington gover ment has been confidentially informe though in friendly terms, that the European powers would not remain passive should the United States recognize or encourage the Cuban insurgents. If my information is correct an intimation has been further given that Germany is quite ready, even now, to take Spain's side should the United States show a disposition officially to side with the rebels. These warnings originated in the course of pourpariers for a European coalition against revolutionary socialism."

According to the lastest advices from the Orient, Li Ka Chuch, superintendent of the Canton police, Nov. 23 seized a large number of counterfeit Chinese coins and materials for their manufacture. The chief coiner, Cheng Tung, and his confederates, Chan Mui, Tse Sang and others, were arrested. An imperial de cree from Peking commanded the immediate decapitation of the three abovenamed offenders, and enjoined the viceroy to deal with the others as he thought necessary, according to law, as a warning in future to the people. The officials who effected the seizure were all promoted in rank. The Canton viceroy reported in another memorial the capture of two notorious pirate junks in the open sea near Tau-Chow by the military officials. In effecting the capture one military official lost his life. A decree was issued Nov. 29 authorizing the execution of the captives and ordering the officials concerned in the capture to be promoted in rank and that the matter of the military officer having lost his life be referred to the board concerned for rewards and honors.

Constantinople dispatch: The Russian ambassador Saturday, acting in concert with the representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Austria, had an audience with the Sultan, Abdul Hamid, one of many such interviews which have taken place within the last year on the same subject—that of a better administration of the affairs of the Turkish empire. The Russian diplomat began by warning the Sultan and the Turkish Government that if the revenues ceded for the payment of the Turkish of the finances of the empire would become inevitable. M. de Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador, further informed the Sultan that the Czar guaranteed his personal safety and engaged himself to maintain the Sultan's supremacy in the event of severe measures being necessary upon the part of the powers. The Sultan, however, refused his consent to any measure of control, financial or otherwise, by the powers. To this the Russian ambassador replied that the condition of the Turkish empire placed the throne that paper and in no sense a combatant. pressively: "I may be the last of the caliphs, but I will never become a second khedive."

One of the principal reasons given by the Spanish Government for insisting upon Gen. Weyler making a decisive attempt to clear the Provinces of Pinar del Rio, Havana, and Matanzas within a few weeks is the urgent necessity of scoring a military success before Spain has once more to appeal to the native and foreign market for fresh loans when she exhausts the money obtained by recent interior loans-namely, in March next year. At present the Minister of Colonles disposes of cash and Cuban bonds of the value of about $50,000,000 only. Out of the said loan come the expenses of the war, being for Cuba $12,000,000 monthly, and for the Philippines at least $4,-000,000. Up to the present the Spanish treasury has assisted the Cuban treasury by guaranteeing advances made by foreign and native bankers upon Cuban bonds and by pledging the sources of imperial revenue for the recent $80,000,000 oan. The moment is approaching when the Spanish budget and Spanish taxpayers must be asked to provide in the shape of additional taxation $26,000,000 annually for the interest and sinking fund of $240,000,000 thus raised to meet only in part the expenses of the Cuban war up to March, 1897, and which the Cuban badget and Cuban taxpayers could not possibly undertake to pay, even if the war soon terminated. The budgets have shown deficits averaging $5,000,000 ganually before the present insurrection.

HOMES SWEPT AWAY,

BOG SLIDE AT CASTLE ISLAND, IRELAND, UNCHECKED.

Great Glacier of Peat-Mass a Mile and a Half Wide Is Sweeping Through the Flesk Valley, Destroying Forms and Houses.

Many Lives Are Lost.

During Monday night and Tuesday morning the bog slide at Castle Island County Kerry, Ireland, continued un-checked, a copious rainfall helping the movement. The mass of bog was a mile and a half wide, roared like the ocean, carried away bridges and roads, de-troying houses and farms, and sweeping through the Flesk valley, emptying peat, carcasses of cows, sheep, and donkeys, and debris of houses into the Lake of Killarney. The people living in the direction in which the bog slide came fled. Lord Kenmare caused a corden of guards to be drawn around the slide in order to prevent loss of life. The greatest excitement prevailed in the vicinity, and all the houses there were opened to receive the hundreds of people rendered home less by the disaster. The subsidence of the bog seems to have been an extraordinary affair. There were terrible storms through the night, and about 3 o'clock in the morning the people of the district were alarmed by an unusual rumbling, which they feared was caused by an earthquake. The bog, which was believed to be thirty feet deep, and which had long supplied the whole neighbor-hood with peat, was moved for several miles along an old water course, filling a quarry twenty feet deep on the way, flooding the rivers of the country with peat water, and doing a deal of damage. At the Donelly homestead ten persons completely disappeared, leaving no trace.

The failure of the Dallas, Texas, Security Mortgage and Trust Company has caused much discussion in business circles. Many business men had long expected trouble for the concern, but the public generally was surprised at the failure. The opinion is general that local losses will be comparatively insignificant. but Eastern and foreign capitalists will lose fully $1,500,000 on their investments and ventures. The exact figures on liabilities and assets were given out as follows: debt were touched the European control Liabilities$1,296,225

Robbed in an Elevator.

Two men armed with revolvers, at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, held up and robbed Joseph E. Spanheimer, in an elevator in the building at the southwest corner of West Monroe and Jefferson streets, Chicago. The robbers secured $512 which Spanheimer carried in a satchel, and then, after forcing the elevator boy at the muzzles of their revolvers to lower the cage to the first floor, ran out the door and made their escape Spanheimer is a clerk in the employ of the Wagner Palace Car Company. For more than a year it has been his custom every Tuesday afternoon to carry from the offices of the car company in the Woman's Temple to the office of the Central Steam Laundry Company, in the building where the robbery occurred, the amount of the weekly laundry bills of the car company. The robbers had followed him, and made their attack just when outside aid was most remote.

Depositors Being Paid.

The Atlas National Bank of Chicago has gone into voluntary liquidation, and on Monday morning began paying depositors. Though the Chicago Clearing-House stood behind every dollar that the bank owed, many thousands of dellars were carried from the bank vaults. It is not very long ago that the Atlas made a very unsatisfactory report of its affairs, and was taken sharply to task by Comptroller Eckels, who insisted that reforms be made in the management. A subsequent report was more satisfactory, but it was evident that the improvement had been brought about only by the most desperate effort. Comptroller Eckels expresses the opinion that the voluntary liquidation of the bank will at once and permanently clear Chicago's clouded financial atmosphere.

Reckless Banking Methods.

That the failure was brought about by reckless management is patent to the most casual observer.—Minneapolis Trib-

The most striking feature of the Chicago bank failure is the heavy loaning in excess of the legal limit.—Indianapolis Sentinel. The Illinois National Bank failure apeverything in Chicago prosperous except the bank.—St. Louis Republic. The revelations are sufficient to show the necessity for an investigation that will reveal the real nature of the wrongs committed .- Rockford Register-Gazette.

Under such business conduct the failure of the bank is not at all astonishing. The officers doubtless will be prosecuted on criminal charges for their violation of law.-Topeka Capital.

The directors of the National Bank of Illinois conducted themselves so badly in the management of that institution that many will think they ought to be consigned to the State prison.-Milwaukee Wisconsin.

The revelation is clearly made that the officers violated the laws of safe banking and that they extended credit foolishly and to such extremes as could not but endanger any institution .- Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

The National Bank of Illinois is but one of several banks that have recently failed, and in every instance the failures have been caused by reckless banking and not by the business conditions.-Grand Rapids Herald.

When directors direct bank officers do not, lend money of their depositors by hundreds of thousands to their untrustworthy relatives. When bank inspectors inspect such toans are simply impossible. -New York World. There could be but one result to such Carlis'e's Message. Perhaps the strongest part of Secretary Carlisle's anual report is that in which he refers to the tendency to increased governmental expenditures.—St. Louis. Post-Dispatch. Secretary Carlisle's report of the condition of the treasury contains, as usual, some interesting information and some very bad advice. For the current fiscal year the deficit is estimated at $64,500,-000, and for the next, $45,718,970.-Philadelphia Inquirer. The Secretary of the Treasury is not called upon to antagonize prospective legislation or to set up his views in opposition to those which he thinks a new Congress would adopt.-Indianapolis Journal. The annual report of Secretary Carlisle, which has just been given to the public, offers some clear and substantial reasons in favor of the withdrawal and cancellation of the greenbacks. What he has to say, however, contains nothing very new, and adds but little to the body of reasons already fixed in the minds of most well-informed people.-Champion Gazette.

Secretary Carlisle's official plea for the national banks has been made. A large preportion of his annual report is devoted to the subject. The plea consists in recommending the cancellation of greenbacks and treasury notes, and so modifying the restrictions upon national banks as to enable them easily and profitably to issue national bank currency to fill the void caused by the cancellation of the government currency.-Cleveland Recorder.

Mr. Carlisle reiterates his opinion that the present revenue laws will, in time, produce sufficient to meet expenses, and says we need smaller apropriations rather than more revenue. Mr. Cleveland said something of the same sort, but why did not these chief officers of the administration require of the various heads of departments and bureaus to send in estimates showing how smaller appropriations would do?-Louisville Commer-

A Confederate Exile. During the closing days of the civil war a detachment of Federal cavalry rode into the picturesque town of Washington, Ga., and within a few moments after the arrival of the newcomers their commander stood at the front door of a large, old-fashioned

The visitor's mission was soon made known. He desired to see General Robert Toombs, and, in fact, was so anxious to see him that he was willing to put himself to no end of trouble to meet him.

The cavalry captain went in-found that the owner of the house was not at home, which statement was half-way true, because at that very instant General Toombs was making his way to the garden gate, where he had a swift horse in readiness for him.

The Confederate leader lost no time in mounting his steed, and before another hour he was many miles away in a part of the courty which had not then been visited by the invaders.

For days the gray-coated fugitive traveled, exercising the utmost vigilance, and spending his nights with the most trustworthy friends of the lost

Finally, when the coast was clear, he made his way to Cuba, and spent a few weeks with the sympathizers of the Confederacy in Havana.

There were reasons, however, why the general should not return at that time, and he was not long in making his arrangements to take an outgoing steamer for Europe.

When he had landed at Liverpool General Toombs was short of funds. He had sent a message to his wife from Cuba, but did not know whether she would receive it, or whether she would be able to raise any money for him.

He was in an embarrassing fix. A stranger in a strange land, with only a few dollars, he did not know which way he had been connected was, earlier in to turn.

With his royal disregard of money, he invested in a first-class ticket to London, and boarded the train with less than five dollars in his pocket. What dinner in a hotel at Alexandria. The solitary passenger was studying eler came into his compartment at one of the way stations.

The new arrival was a London lawyer of distinction, and a glance satisfled him that the man sitting opposite was Robert Toombs, an ex-member of the Confederate cabinet, an ex-Confed-

The Londoner had seen the other's picture in the illustrated papers and he had heard something of him on one of his visits to the United States.

"Excuse me," he said; "but isn't this General Toombs of Georgia?"

The American responded with some surprise, but in a few moments the two were conversing with the freedom of old friends. The Englishman was a man of tact, and there were many things in common between him and the Georgian. In the course of the conversation he brought up a subject in which he was greatly interested-a case for some British claimants involving the title to large landed interests in the southwestern part of the United States.

The penniless ex-Confederate little knew of the good fortune awaiting him. He simply knew that he had met a bright brother lawyer, and out of the abundance of his intellectual and professional resources he entertained him as he would a guest at his own fireside. Perhaps an hour had been spent in talking over the case, when the Londoner came down to business.

"General Toombs," he said, "how long will you stop in London, and where can I see you?"

"I expect to stay several weeks," was the answer, "and my address will be the Langham." "Would you mind coming into this case as consulting counsel?" "Not at all. I am familiar with the facts and the law." "I am sure of that," answered the Britisher. "Just wait a moment." He drew writing materials from his hand satchel, filled out a check and handed it to the general. "This is a retainer," he said. "It is the way we do things in England. Day after to-morrow I will call on you." The Georgian glanced at the check. It was for $5,000!

If he felt any surprise he did not show it. He carelessly pocketed the slip of paper, and remarked that he would be ready when needed.

The big London lawyer got out at the next station, after again promising to see the American in the city two days

Toombs stopped at the Langham, and during the week gave his attention to the case which had come in the very nick of time. Then he received another check for $5,000 and ran over to France In Paris the famous Confederate

"It will never be established," was he Georgian's blunt reply.

"What-not with Confederate sympathy?" asked the emperor. "There are no Confederates in such a case," was the answer. "We are all Americans." The talk drifted to the question of reforesting the south of France, and Napoleon asked General Toombs to visit that region and make suggestions in regard to the proposed work. The request was complied with and a report was furnished of so elaborate and complete a nature that the French minister of the interior offered to pay handsome sum for it. This was refused, as the general said that the work was not in his line, but he was prevailed upon to accept a souvenir of considable value from the emperor him

Shortly after this the exile yielded to the many urgent requests of his friends at home and returned to Georgia. Perhaps no other Confederate who visited Europe made a more brilliant reputation in so short a time.-Wallace Putnam Reed, in Chicago Times-Herald.

Cushing's Bravery. One of the replies of history, which but for its anti-Scriptural emphasis would have long since found its way into the school readers, was that of young Lieut. Cushing just as he was pushing the deadly torpedo over the log boom against the Confederate ironclad Albemarle.

"Who are you?" had been demanded by the startled outlook as the little Federal boat shot into sight from the dark-

"You'll d-d soon find out," was Cushing's cheery answer as he shoved and exploded the torpedo against the Albemarle, Then, crash came the cannon's blast from the now hopelessly disabled ironclad, and into the water and the night went Cushing, happily to be finally rescued and find his way back to his ship again.

"A more gallant deed the world never saw," said the frank captain of the Albemarle ever afterwards.

I was recently told by a commander in the navy a little story of Cushing, which I do not remember to have seen in print, showing the doughty stuff he was made of even before that wonderful attack upon the Albemarle, writes W. S. Walker, The ship with which the war, briefly detailed in Egyptian waters, watching for a wandering Confederate cruiser. One evening young Cushing was ashore at a table d'hote eral officers of English warships then England were not likely to be in a con- ant, sat directly opposite Cushing and was marked in his impudent treatment of the latter.

A Yankee naval officer was to our the situation when a new fellow tray- Englishman, who plainly hadn't read up much on the war of 1812, something uncommonly funny. After several nudgings of his fellows, who were inclined to at least be unobtrusive and decent. and after a number of grimaces and other pantomimic evidences of curiosity, our gay Briton dropped his elbows erate general, and a famous American on the table, his chin upon his hands, and leaning his face, with a monocle in one eye and the necessary squint in the other, toward Cushing, proceeded to give the latter a wantonly insulting specimen of the British stare.

Cushing quietly took out his card case and, holding a card by diagonal corners between his thumb and finger until it bent sufficiently to give it full projectile force, let it fly plump into the astonished lordling's face.

"I presume you understand what that means?" said Cushing.

But before the wrathy young Englishman could reply his senior, a dignifled captain who had seen the whole performance, said to Cushing: "Yes, sir, he does understand, and the young puppy asks your pardon for his impertinence." .

Then the whole English party, after shaking hands with Cushing, withdrew. The matter was reported to the admiral of their fleet, a private but official reprimand given the gold-mounted snob who had caused the scene, and a written order was promulgated drawing the fleet's attention to the fact that United States officers and sailors were to be treated in all social and official intercourse exactly like those of other nations. This was something in those days, when we hadn't much of a navy and the biggest kind of a war developing swiftly on our hands. When this young Englishman a year or two later read of Cushing's marvelous feat in sinking the Albemarle he must have realized more than ever that he had been fooling with something which was loaded clear to the muzzle.

Grant's Narrow Escape from Capture. A few days before, an occurrence had happened which came very near depriving the armies of the services of Gen. Grant in the Virginia campaign. On his return to headquarters after his last visit to the President in Washington, when his special train reached Warrentown Junction he saw a large cloud of dust to the east of the road. Upon making inquiries of the station ster as to its cause, he learned that Col. Mosby, who commanded a partisan Confederate force, called by his own people Mosby's "conglomerates," and who had become famous for his cavalry raids, had-just passed, driving a detachment of our cavalry before him. If the train had been a few minutes earlier, Mosby, like Christopher Columbus upon his voyage to this country, would have discovered something which he was not looking for. As the lion of the hour. How Poultry May Be Made to Pay-Two Potato Crops in One Season-Uses of the Alder Bush-Fall Plowing of Bod Ground.

Making Poultry Pay. Just why some cannot make the poultry yard a paying institution is quite lain. Like everything else, it all lies with the man and how he goes about it. One fellow goes at it. He has read considerable about it. He builds large and completely fitted up house most practical way, buys high-priced thoroughbred fowls and starts in to make it go. It takes such a man about one season to learn that he knows little and needs experience. This is bought from a small beginning and with several years' actual work with them. Branching out largely at first is seldom done by a prudent or practical person. Anybody can feed and perhaps rear a brood of chicks. To keep a few upon the refuse of your table is one kind of chicken business, but when you are in it for your bread and butter, with hundreds, and perhaps thousands, under your care, it is quite another matter. It can and is paying live workers, but never drones. Don't go at it unless you have patience, tact and lots of ambition. These are very essential points of value to any man who hopes to suc-

Weed out the flocks, disposing of really old stock and the undesirable young. A few good hens, well cared for, will raise more chickens next summer than if a great flock is crowded together in unhealthy coops.

Two Potato Crops in One Feason.

Last fall I bought a few bushels of an early red potato out of the cellar-Chicago Market, Rochester Rose, or something else-and laid them in a place on the roof of a low shed to start their sprouts, thinking to forward the crop in this way. After a while I planted most of them, but a few still lay on the roof until July 14, when part of the garden patch having been dug for new potatoes, I planted forty bills to see what they would do right in the old hills. By this time they were sunburned, black as coal almost, and their stubby sprouts, covered with tiny green leaves, were two inches long. The weather was dry and hot, the earth dry as ashes, and nothing was seen of them till a light shower brought them p July 21. From this their was rapid, and there was a larger growth of vines than the first crop had. A frost cut them down Sept. 22, but they were nearly ripe. The first crop did not ripen, but they would have grown little, if any, more. Mr. Waldo F. Brown, who has green corn by the time mine is fairly up-not more than a foot high at the most-could raise two crops in this way with all ease, and so could any one who has a degree or two less latitude (42 degrees 30 minutes). The potatoes you lay out on the boards must be recut; then they will keep until it is time for the second planting. Two crops of potatoes is better than the crop of fall weeds we see so often where garden potatoes have been dug.-New York Tribune.

Uses of the Alder Bush. The common sweet alder bush, or elderberry bush, as it is often called, is regarded by neat farmers as a nuisance, to be destroyed as quickly as possible. Yet it has many uses, and some farmers' wives especially, have learned to turn it to profit. Its fruit when dried makes very fair pies if some acid is mixed with it. We have known it to be used with grapes, the latter being extra sour and without something to temper them requiring too much sugar. The juice of elderberries with sugar makes the standard heavy wine which oldfashioned people used always to keep in. the house to use when sickness made it necessary. Finally the blossoms are an excellent febrifuge, and some should always be put up to use when fever from unknown causes attacks any of the Farmers Should Grow Best Seed.

No garden or field seed is more easily grown than the beet. Select smooth specimens of moderate size out of the heap and plant them in early spring. All the work they need is to run the cultivator between the rows, which should be wide enough for that purpose. If this is done two or three times, the spreading branches will cover the spaces between the rows and will keep down most of the weeds. The seed is gathered by cutting off these branches and spreading on cloths or hung up in sheds either having a tight floor or having cloths spread under the hanging branches to catch the seed as it falls. When beet seed is ripe it shells very easily. The seed is easily grown and therefore cheap, but every farmer can easily raise what he wants for his own

Fall Plowing Fod Ground. Wherever there is a heavy growth of coarse grass left on the land in fall it is much better to plow it in the fall if it is intended to use it for cultivated crops next year. Most of this coarse grass, that has small nutrition, has very vigorous roots and needs to be turned under as long as possible before the crop is planted. The mulch of coarse grass on the surface will prevent the sod from freezing as deeply as it ought. In fact, when the ground is mostly covered with snow in winter the heavy mulched sod other industrial classes, to say nothing may scarcely be frozen at all. But about the degree of happiness within when turned over in the fall and the his reach.-Lewiston Journa ous matters.

Winter Fattening of Stock. The competition of Western dressed peef and of Western mutton, poultry and other meats shipped in refrigerator cars has made it very hard for Eastern farmers to keep up the old practice of buying or raising for fattening some kind of stock every winter. The city butcher would like to buy a beef or a number of them from the farmers in his neighborhood, but he is restrained by fear. He cannot get enough to supply himself through the year. Indeed, the farmer generally only cares to market his fattened stock in cold weather. So the Western shipper extorts from his customers an ironclad agreement to buy meat only as sent by him. Yet we think if farmers would buy or raise young stock and fatten it, they could make a market selling beef or mutton by the quarter, or dividing it still farther for the accommodation of their hens for private use where they live customers. No law to restrain this right can be valid, as has been repeatedly decided by very high authorities .-American Cultivator.

> Rules for Milking. Turf, Farm and Home gives the following rules for milking: First-Work rapidly; slowness causes loss of eream. Second-Milk thoroughly to the last drop, because the last milk is the best. Third-Milk at the same time every Fourth-Milk crosswise, that is to say, one fore test on the right and a hind teat on the left, and vice versa; the milk thus flows more copiously than by parallel milking.

Fifth-Milk with four fingers and not with index and thumb, a fault too common with milkers. Sixth-Do not employ any kind of milking machines. Seventh-To milk young, restive cows, raise one of the fore feet. Eighth-Always keep the hands clean and also the cow's udder, and all dairy ntensils. Ninth-During milking avoid distracting or disturbing the cow.

Fugar from Bects. At the Norfolk (Neb.) sugar factory, 350 tons of beets daily are how being made into granulated sugar. That single factory expects to turn out 10,000,-000 pounds of sugar this season, paying to farmers in and around that locality about $300,000 for beets, to say nothlabor, limestone, fuel, coke, Jubricating oils, etc. The crop is excellent and farmers enthusiastic, as some of them are receiving $50 to $125 per acre for the crop, while the townspeople are prosperous and happy with money circulating freely. Land there is renting from $8 to $10 per acre for best culture. Much the same state of affairs exist at Grand Island, Neb. Large numbers of farmers all over Nebraska and neighboring States are visiting these sugar factories, and intense interest is being aroused in the effort to vastly develop the industry in this country.-Agricul-

A Home Supply of Vinegar. During the past twenty rears the writer has made no cider, yet our cider vinegar kegs are always holding out like the widow's cruse of oil. How is it done? We buy some sweet cider from a neighbor and add it gradually to the twenty-gallon kegs that have had pure vinegar in them so long that they have had several sets of iron hoops. As they have stood on the cellar bottom, full or partly full of strong vinegar for twenty years, we conclude that vinegar preserves wood, as the staves are still sound. It is always possible to get pure, sweet cider in the fall, hence the vinegar keg or barrel once started is good, for aught we know, for a hundred years.-Exchange.

Proper Colts to Raise, The farmer who attempts to breed speed alone stands no more charge to make a financial strike than a boy in a pin lottery without any ticket. But at the same time, he should not lose sight of the fact that he who buys for road purposes calls for not only a good-sized horse, but one even-gaited, and quite speedy. I believe there is more money in raising the right kind of colts, and preparing them for the market than any other kind of stock on the farm. The first thing to be considered by the farmer is what strain and what cross will come nearest to filling the bill of public demand. "Like produces like," is an old adage, and quite true.-National Stockman.

Germirating Nuts. The success of germinating nuts in the spring depends upon the condition of ripeness and the method of keeping them during the winter. Nuts should not be allowed to become too dry before burying in sand. When gathered too early the kernels shrivel up and have but little germinating power, hence they should not be gathered until the kernel is full and plump. If there is any danger of mice getting into the boxes where they are buried during the winter, wire netting should be nailed over them.-Exchange. Farm Comforts, If the farmer will take a philosophical view of the situation, he will find himselfin a much better condition to secure for himself and his family the necessicles and comforts of life than any

In a Peck of Trouble.

A dentist of Chelsea, Mass., the other day was in a peck of trouble for a few minutes. When it was all over, though, the incident seemed laughable enough The explosion of a vulcanizer in his laboratory tipped over an oil stove and caused that to blow up also. Burning oil ran down into a two-gallon can filled with kerosene. This the dentist seized and started for the bathroom. His wife was so excited that she fell into the bathtub, which was full of water. The doctor placed the blazing can on the floor, pulled his wife out of the tub, took up the can again and ran with it back to the laboratory, where it exploded with terrific force. The fire department had been 'summoned. When the firemen arrived the dentist showed them where the fire was. Feeling faint he started to go down stairs to get some outer air. The stairs were full of firemen. The dentist made a flying leap over their heads and when he picked himself up it was with a sprained ankle. The fire was put out and the dentist is now laid up for repairs.

Capt. Fogarty and his men, says a Newport, R. Dick began to attract attention nearly twenty years ago, because a out Oct. 1 of each year he would appear off the lightship and remain near it till about April 1, when he would fly northward for the summer. As years passed and there was no break in the regularity of Dick's coming and going, his fame grew and not a few persons visited the lightship to see

Last winter it was noted that Dick was quite feeble with age and it was suggested that he be shot and stuffed for exhibition in the Smithsonian Institution, for it was thought that he would never be able to get back to the lightship, even if he survived the winter. But Capt. Fogarty and his men refused to harm Dick. They wanted very much to have the gull's body mounted, but they were so attached to him that they would do him no injury. They were willing to await his natural death, trusting that he would die where they could secure his remains. It appears, though, from his failure to appear at the lightship so far this fall, that he has died in other parts, and the half dozen scientists and institutions who hoped to have his remains will be disappointed.

The greatest natural wonder in Java, if not in the entire world, is the justly celebrated "Gheko Kamdka Gumko," or "Home of the Hot Devils," known to the world as the "Island of Fire." This geological singularity is really a lake of boiling mud, situated at about the center of the plains of Grobogana, and is called an island because the great emerald sea of vegetation which surrounds it gives it that appearance. The "island" is about two miles in circumference, and is situated at a distance of almost exactly fifty miles from Solo. Near the center of this geological freak immense columns of soft, hot mud may be seen continually rising and falling like great timbers thrust through the boiling substratum by glant hands and then again quickly withdrawn. Besides the phenomenon of the boiling mud columns there are scores of gigantic bubbles of hot slime that fill up like huge balloons and keep up a series of constant explosions, the intensity of the Gin takes its name from Geneva, detonations varying with the size of the bubbles. In times past, so the Javan ese authorities say, there was a tall, spiral-like column of baked mud on the west edge of the lake which constantly belched a pure stream of cold water, but this has long been obliterated, and everything is now a seething mass of bubbling mud and slime, a marvel to the visitors who come from great slid days, to receive, examine and adjust said claims. stantly belched a pure stream of cold distances to see it.

It was still early morning when Capdid she get here, Captain Wynyard? Why fain Wynyard, tired out with his long did she come here?" search, haunted by dreadful memories, horrible thoughts, lay down on the sofa in the library to secure, if possible, a few hours' rest. Like Lord Culdale, he had great hopes that the post would bring some news of Gladys, and he tried to convince himself that it was impossible that to no one else. Captain Wynyard fell, as though shot, to the ground. Colonel Moncrieff suddenly remembered to have heard some rumors about the Captain and Miss Rane, and he felt how indiscreet he had been. "I should have been more careful," he said to himself. "I ought to have remembered.'

He would not call any one to his aid, but went quietly into the house and fetched a glass of brandy. He held it to the Captain's lips, and in a few minutes Captain Wynyard opened his eyes. "Dead!" moaned the Captain; and Hugh Moncrieff never forgot the horror with which his friend uttered the word. He trembled like a leaf, his brain reeled, his eyes became dim. "Help me, Moncrieff," he said. "My

Colonel Moncrieff did as he was told: and the next minute the unhappy man was alone, his face buried in his hands. "Let me try to think clearly," he said. A cry of despair burst from his white lips, but he recovered himself almost immediately. The idea was absurd. Gladys knew nothing of Brantome; she did not even know Angela was there; and how could she be wearing the silver-gray wrap that belonged to his wife's daugh-

You believed that the plans you laid were unknown to me; but they were not. You sent me purposely that winter day where the ice was weak, and you knew it would not bear me; you tampered with the boat, hoping that I should be drowned; and I resolved to leave home, and not to return until the will was destroyed. I knew that, while it was in existence, my life was not safe from hour to hour; and that, Captain Wynyard, was why I left home. He muttered a curse between his clenched teeth. "I did not tell my poor mother," con-tinued Angela, "why I was going away; but I wrote to her secretly, asked her to have that will destroyed, and, when it was done, to let me know by a certain sign, when I would return home. I have seccived the sign, and I am returning to her, never to leave her again. I might have exposed you then, as I might expose you now; but for my mother's sake refrain. You have marred her life; "Tell me!" he cried. "I have heard broken her heart; but you shall not, the words; but I cannot believe them. through my agency, bring disgrace upon her name.'

"I shall not tell you. I need have no regret that the law will not be called upon to punish you, for heaven has already done so. The curse of Cain will be forever upon you, and your heart will be heavy with the knowledge that with your own hand you have slain the one woman whose life was dear to you." (To be continued.)

RIVER TRAFFIC IN OLD TIMES.

S:eamboat Captain Laments the Decadence of the Floating Palace, "It looks something like it used to look, but it ain't the old public landing, for a fact," was the remark of an old steamboat man, who years ago was a clerk on an Ohio River steamboat. But for many years Captain Davidson had been on the Upper Mississippi, and his reflections had a mournful tinge. "Why, remember when the steamboats were two and three deep at that wharf, and some of them had to walt a day or two for room to unload. And it was a common case for a boat to bring in 200 passengers, and on the levee trucks were thicker than street cars on Fountain Square. I reckon the railroads have played the mischief with boating interests here just as they have done every where.

"And look up there at the Spencer house. Why, that was a fashlonable hotel before the war, and prices were you have so mercilessly sent Gladys $4 and $5 a day. I put up there when Rane. Your crime is known in heaven, I came to this town on my wedding trip on the old Scioto. Why, they had dances there that all the best people attended, and a good mary of them didn't get invited, either. Now look at the house. Why, you could rent a room for "That is true. I cannot prove it; but I $1 a week, I reckon, and might be know it, and you know it. You may mighty sorry afterward that you paid that much. And right over the street stands a part of the old Broadway Hotel. It was older than the Spencer House, and old Captain Cromwell knew how to keep a hotel. He was one of the old-time gentlemen, always anxious to see his guests have a good time. And now half the hotel is gone to make room for the bridge and the other half is not a reminder of what that house was like in its best days. Why, my father told me that he was in Cincinnati at one time when Henry Clay spoke from a balcony of a hotel and though Cincinnati was only a small city then, Broadway was crowded from the landing to Columbia street.

"All the old stores are gone, too, and the old merchants, too. There was a big iron store run by the Shoenbergers of Pittsburg and Traber & Aubrey had the big boat stores were thick all along boats that were carrying hundreds of passengers. But times have changed, and it looks kind of quiet-like around here now."-Cincinnati Tribune.

DIE IN A MINE SHAFT

AWFUL DISASTER AT PRINCETON, INDIANA

Six Miners Killed Outright and Eight Injured, of Whom Some Will Die-Superintendent of the Mine One of the Victime.

Death in the Blast. As a result of a gas explosion in the nine of the Maule Coal Company at Princeton, Ind., Saturday six men were killed and eight badly injured, one of whom will doubtless die. The dead are: ohn Ernest, married; Theodore Fabre, Hed; Robert Maule, married, treasure and general superintendent of the Maule Coal Company Carl Poneylight, single, of Belleville, Ill; James Ryan, married. The injured are: Will Booker, will die; James Davis; William D. Grills, will recover; Tom Price, will recover; Frank Turbie, will die. David Nolan and James Turner, sup posed to have been killed with the others, were rescued alive, as were Arthur Colgate and James Kruse.

About twenty men were all at work in the mine, clearing up the debris result-ing from a recent explosion, when no one was injured. Suddenly there was a flash, followed by a blinding explosion. The smoke and gas came rushing from the mouth of the mine, and the alarm was at once given. The scene around the shaft was a pitiful one, the wives, children and relatives of the men below shricking and wringing their hands in anguish.

The escape of four of the men from instant death seems almost a miracle when it is considered that the heavy mine cages were blown from the shaft bottom to the top of the minehouse, over 500 feet above, by the force of the explosion. These cages were wrecked, so an Iron bucket was improvised for a rescuing party as soon as possible after the accident.

The first persons brought up were Turble, Grill and two colored men, Davis and Booker. The first was badly burned and was carried to an ambulance. Grill and Davis were apparently uninjured, and walked off, saying they were all right. Brooker was cut and burned and had to be supported. Afterward it was found his jaw was broken and one eye was torn from its socket. All were given medical attention by a corps of physicians. Then the rescuing party began to bring up the State Mine Inspector Fisher will investigate the matter. None of the rescued men can explain the circumstances that led up to the explosion.

Twenty-Eight Lives Sacrificed on an Alabama Road,

The worst railroad wreck in the his tory of Alabama occurred Sunday morning at the Cahaba River bridge, twentyseven miles out from Birmingham, on the Brierfield, Blocton and Birmingham branch of the Southern Railway. Twenty-eight persons are known to have per ished, that number of bodies having been recovered from the wreck. Eleven escaped alive, but of these several will die. All of the train crew were killed except the fireman, whose escape seems almost miraculous.

Six miles south of Gurnee the railroad crosses the Cahaba River on a treatle 900 feet long. The river span was of iron, 200 feet long and 110 feet high. The river is a mountain stream. The span over it gave way as the train was crossing it, and the engine and all of the cars went to the bottom of the river below. The first news of the wreck was brought to Hargrove by a farmer who happened to be passing. He noticed that the middle span of the bridge was missing. Approaching closer, he observed the train burning in the river below, and could hear the cries of the wounded and gave out the word to farmers residing telegraph to Birmingham for relief. Three relief trains with doctors were sent from Birmingham city and a fourth from Blocton. Meanwhile the country people had gathered to render what assistance they could. It was soon found that almost every person on the train had been killed, and the bodies in most cases burned. . The rescuers arrived too late to be of much service, except in caring for the nine wounded persons who managed to get out of the wreck alive. The fact that the bridge was only four

In time the people of Kentucky felt that the day of the toll gate had passed, and that the interests of the agricultural classes would be better served by the freeing of the turnpike, as it is commonly called.

The result of the agitation was the passing by the Legislature of a law which provides for the purchase of the turnolkes by the counties. This law provides that the County Court, composed of the County Judge and all the magistrates of the county, shall appoint a commission to appraise the value of the turnpike to be purchased. The money for the payment of the purchase price is raised by taxation, and thereafter the turnpikes shall be free, unless at an election held for that purpose the taxpayers of the county shall have opposed the purchase of the pikes.

Nearly all the principal counties in Kenucky have voted to purchase the turnpikes, and in a few of the counties this has been done. In a majority, however, the magistrates have taken no action. The people, tired of waiting and tired of longer paying toll, have taken into their own hands the matter of freeing the turnpikes. The peace officers of the counties, selected by the popular vote of the people, are in sympathy with the "free turnpikers," and their inaction has only stimulated the rioters to further lawless-

It is believed that the recent demonstrations will have the effect of stimulating the county magistrates to action in the matter of making all the highways free. The cities are much in favor of the permanent removal of the toll gate, as it means the more frequent visit to town of the farmer and his family.

Effectual denial of the story is made by the announcement of her engagement to Count Czaykowski, councilor of state of the Turkish embassy at Rome. THE BLOODHOUND.

Interesting Facts About One of the Most Interesting of Dogs.

For stateliness of appearance no breed of dog is comparable to the bloodhound, while the stories attending its unerring pursuit of its quarry have furnished the novelist with material of the most exciting character. But it is a fiction to associate the bloodhound with ferocity. He never worries or mangles what he tracks down. His vocation is to find, and to find only, whether engaged in pursuit of man or of wounded deer. The bloodhound has fig-The high, pointed cranium, the long. pendulous ears, the ample dewlap, the wrinkled forehead, the overhanging flews, and even the red haw, or third eyelid-commonly called the sealingwax-may be traced more or less in the Talbot hound, in the modern foxhound, the otter-hound, the basset, the French daehshund, and in the Swedish beagle, which last is a miniature bloodhound, though of lighter build. The Count le Conteulx de Cantelen, in his work "Les Races des Chiens Courans Français," harks back to the famous St. Hubert hounds, black and white, as the recognized progenitors of the breed. The present writer was particularly impressed by the strong bloodhound type which characterized the packs of French hounds from various provinces face," returned the young author, exhibited at the international show in be more interesting to leave speculative discussion and come to the regions of fact. In Borderland history bloodhounds were compulsorily maintained by each hamlet for tracking the moss troopers after their raids, and till comtrace sheep and poultry stealers. In Bedale a police superintendent not long ago had a wonderful hound named Voltigeur, which could find his master wherever he might be and at any hour of the night. And this reference suggests the inverse remark that the bloodhound, even as a puppy, will pick up the trail of a stranger quite easily, and perhaps more eagerly than that of his master. Another interesting fact is that the bloodhound, when alone, hunts mute; but when hunting in a pack he makes music of most delightful melody. His tracking instinct is so keen that he hunts the "clean shoe" as well, if not better, than when the foot of the fugipursued has gone that way, or under the rails if such has been his course. The training of bloodhounds has not been very persistently followed of late years, but there have been several important trials at Boxmoor and at the Alexandra Palace to wit. It is noteworthy to remark that the trial at Boxmoor came off when deep snow was on the ground, and that while snow was actually falling the hounds laid on were equally persistent in tracking the quarry. A well trained bloodhound will follow for five miles even efter six hours have elapsed since the fugitive started, and although many other trails may have crossed the track. But he is frequently at fault over stone flags. It was for this reason that the pursuit of Jack the Ripper by bloodhounds, at one time mooted, was after a trial discarded. It was the late Mr. J. Bell's Countess which served as a model to Landseer for his bloodhound in "Dignity and Impudence," and also for his "Sleeping Bloodhound," whilst the late Sir John Millais' Cromwell figured in more than one of that artist's pictures. Other fine hounds have been Lauth XI., Hector II. and Danger. The bloodhound's aristocratic appearance, his invariable good temper, and his watchfulness commend him to social notice, while the vulgar | 000,000. idea regarding his ferocity renders him an invaluable companion for ladies and children against the annoyances incidental to the genus "tramp." The photograph reproduced is that of a puppy of this breed, but, like the child, he is equally father to the full-grown ant-

Scoff and Cough.

The man who scoffs at the friendly advice, to "take something for that cough," will keep on coughing until he changes his mind or changes his earthly residence. A great many scoffers have been converted by the use of the standard cough remedy of the past half century, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. But some are scoffing and coughing yet. They wheeze with asthma, bark with bronchitis or groan with the grippe. Singular, is n't it, the number of stubborn people, who persist in gambling, with health and perhaps life as the stake, when they might be effectually cured of cough, cold or lung trouble, by a few doses of Government to Re by Council. It is reported in Washington that an mportant dispatch has been received at Spanish legation from Senor Canovas, the Spanish premier, in which propositions are made looking to mediation on the Cuban difficulties. According to this report Senor Canovas accepts the good offices of the United States, and states the terms which Spain will concede to the insurgents upon the conditions to be proposed by the United States. It is said that Senor Canovas assures this government that Spain fully appreciates the los which the commerce of this country has suffered on account of the Cuban insurrection and deeply deplores it, and that a proposition is to be made for the negotiation of a treaty of commercial recip-rocity between this country and Spain which will deal mainly with Cuban products and which will be framed in terms so advantageous to the United States as to fully compensate the commerce of this country for the losses which have been sustained.

It is said that Senor Canovas also states clearly that the Spanish Government cannot agree to anything which would place Spain in the attitude of having been coerced into entering into an agreement with the Cuban rebels, but that the good offices of the United States will be accepted to guarantee to the insurgents amnesty and the enforcement of the reforms which will be granted. These reforms are to guarantee to the Cubans the full limit of independence which can be granted without absolutely severing the bonds between the island and the home government.

Senor Canovas has made it clear that the Spanish Government cannot entertain any propositions for such complete autonomy as is given to Canada by the British Government, and, in fact, does not at this time propose any concessions in advance of the reforms voted by the cortes in 1895. These reforms propose a council of administration which shall control the yearly accounts of the exchequer, all matter pertaining to the commerce of the West Indies, and all estimates upon the general taxation and ex-penditure of the island.

The council is to consist of thirty mem bers, of whom fifteen are to be appointed by the crown and fifteen are to be elected by voters having qualifications to vote for provincial assemblymen. This council is to control public works, posts and telegraph, railways and navigation, colontive has been purposely fouled, and it is | ization, public instruction, charities and a pretty sight to watch a trained hound | the health department, and is to vote apfollowing his quarry over a fence if the propriations for all the public departments in Cuba. It is to have a deciding voice in all matters appealed to the governor general by the provincal generals, and in the matter of the suspension and removal of aldermen and mayors. The communication from Minister Canovas is said to say further that the laws of the municipalities and provinces have been heretofore amended to harmonize with a new act, that they are in accord with the decentralization demanded by the autonomist party in Cuba and Porto Rica, and were passed by the cortes and would have been enforced in Cuba in March, 1895, but for the insurrection.

FAIL FOR MILLIONS.

The Van Nortwicks' Bank of Batavia, Il'. Goes Under.

As a result of the voluntary liquidation of the Atlas National Bank of Chicago J. S. & William M. Van Nortwick, of Batavia, Ill., who held 464 shares of stock in that bank and were borrowers therefrom to the amount of $300,000, made an assignment to the Equitable Trust Company of Chicago, who took possession of the Van Nortwicks' bank. The failure involves the entire interests of the Van Nortwicks, whose estimated wealth, according to their last statement, is $2,-500,000, often estimated at three times that amount, and representing, besides the Van Nortwick bank and other property large manufacturing interests. The total liabilities will probably be near $2,-

The interests of the Van Nortwicks are large and diversified. They own the Western paper bag factory of Batavia, employing several hundred hands, with a daily output of 2,000,000 bags. Large factories at Kaukauna, Wis., for the manufacture of manilla paper, and at Memphis, Tenn., for the making of paper "wooden-ware" are branches of the Western Paper-Bag Company and are conducted under the same management.

The Van Nortwick Paper Company owns mills at Combined Locks, near Appleton, Wis., which cost $800,000, also the Appleton Manufacturing Company's at Van Nortwick, Ill., with a capital stock of $200,000, which turns out windmills and agricultural implements. In Batavia much real estate is owned by them. Among their possessions are also thousands of acres of pine lands in Wisconsin. They are stockholders in the old Second National Bank and the Aurora Cotton Mill Company at Aurora and banks at Appleton and Kaukauna, Wis. The failure is a heavy one and such a complete surprise to the citizens of Batavia and vicinity as to occasion great says: "I couldn't recommend this remedy as heartily as I do if I didn't believe in it. I am not much of a medicine taker. I am opposed to medicine, on principle. There ought to be no need of medicine—just as there ought to be no poverty—but there is. If people lived right they would be well. Sunshine, air, exercise, fun, good food—plenty and not too much—are the best medicines, the natural ones; but men are tied to their desks, and women to their home cares, and both are tied to fashion. Civilized existence is artificial and needs artificial regulators. I recommend Ripans Tabules—and take them myself. I know they are both harmless and effective. (I know what they are made of.) STRING ON THEIR BICYCLES.

Manufacturers Have Stopped Giving Away Wheels for Advertising.

"It is a mistake to suppose that bicycle manufacturers give away wheels for advertising purposes," said a repre-sentative of one of the large tire fac-

"Of course, a wheel is sometimes given to an expert rider who has broken a record or performed some notable feat upon a certain make of machine, but as a rule wheels are now only loaned. The demand upon manufacturers for free wheels is something enormous and it requires great diplomacy to avoid giving offense by refusal to men who have influence in the trade.

"Requests come from manufacturers of bicycle specialties, of selling agents, advertising managers, editors of bicycle periodicals, and in fact nearly every man who is in any way, however remotely, connected with the trade.

"A few years ago manufacturers gave away a great many wheels, but the demand became so large that it was necessary to stop the practice if any wheels were left to be sold.

"The manufacturers finally hit upon the plan of loaning wheels. Now when a request comes for a wheel and there are good reasons why it should be granted the manufacturer writes a diplomatic letter informing the applicant that it is against the rules of the association to make presents of wheels, but that he will be glad, as a mark of his special esteem, to give his correspondent the free use of one for the Apple Butter Like Grandmother's The first thing to do is to secure some good sweet cider (apple cider), and boil it half away. This should be done the day before you expect to begin with the apples. I use a porcelain-lined kettle that holds five gallons. Boil it half away and let it remain in the kettle over night on the back of the stove. The advantage of this is it is warm, and will begin cooking earlier. As soon as possible the next morning I begin and prepare the apples as for sauce and put into the cider all it will hold. Fill the pot full to the top and as it cooks soft keep putting in more apples to keep the kettle full until at is quite thick, and let cook slowly and stir very often, as it will burn very readily if it is over too hot a fire. It needs to be cooked a long time-I never finish mine in one day, simply move it back on the stove where 10.
