"But for several years before and after the encounter of the main swarm with the earth large bodies of the November meteors always appear, like the advance and rear guards of a hurrying army, and It is the vanguard that we are expecting this month. The outlying pickets made their appearance last November, and astronomers are confident that during the intervening twelve months a great accession of numbers must have occurred.

"The great English authority on meteors, W.F. Denning, says that if the heavens are clear on the morning of November 14, two or three hours before daylight many meteors are sure to be seen, and every now and then a fine one may be expected to make its appearance. And there is a chance that a memorable display will be witnessed. The watch should be kept up on the mornings of the 15th and 16th as well as that of the 14th. In fact, meteors are likely to begin making their appearance about midnight, rushing up from behind the northeastern horizon and shooting across the sky overhead. "The opening exhibition of the meteors this year will be followed, if previous experiments can be trusted as a basis for prediction, by a still more brilliant display in November, 1898, and by the arrival of the central swarm in November, 1899. Then for two or three more years the earth will continue to encounter the rear guard, until the last of the great procession has passed in some of the early digit years of the twentieth century.

DEER HUNTERS.

One Was After a Licence of a Different

An amusing incident occurred at the county clerk's office Monday. Three hunters came in for deer licenses which were provided by deputy clerk Thompson. While he was filling out the licenses another young man came in and was an interested spectator. When the deputy had completed his work the young man remarked that he wanted one of them, pointing to the licenses. "A deer license?" asked the clerk.

"Yes, sir," replied the stranger. "Where are you going hunting?" "At Munith."

This rather stunned the official, and ooking curiously at the applicant, asked him what he meant.

The young man, rather abashed, replied, "Why, I'm going to get married and I want a license."

The urbane deputy drew a sigh of relief and promptly filled out a marriage license and the young man departed, evidently with thoughts of the "deer" he was after.-Jackson Patriot.

Market Report.

The market has eased off some since last week. It now brings 90 cents for red or white wheat. Rye 44 cents. Barley 80 cents. Oats 19 cents. Potatoes 40 cents. Beans 65 cents. Onions 50 cents. Clover seed $2.75. Chickens 5 cents. Eggs 14 cents, Butter 16 cents. Receipts are now large and likely to continue so." The bulge in wheat last week was probably caused mostly by closing the months contracts. It looks as if it would stay about 90 cents now until after the holidays. The late rains will bring on the growing wheat so that it will be nearly as good to go into the winter as it was a year ago, and that will have a depressing influence.

Blight Tinge of Insincerity-Questions Advanced that Are Intended to Promote Delay-Much Made of Filibustering-Condemns Mob Law.

Spain Makes Answer. President McKinley has had laid before him at Washington the text of Spain's answer to Minister Woodford. In company with Secretary Sherman and Asistant Secretary Adee he went over the document with great care. As a result it can be stated from official quarters at the White House that the construction placed upon the answer by the administration is that it is not defiant in tone, is not menacing and is not warlike. Under such circumstances those officials who are chiefly concerned in the negotiations do not feel that any crisis is near at hand, nor do they fear that the answer presents an issue beyond the power of diplomatic solution. On the contrary, the entire disposition in administration quarters is to treat the answer as satisfactory in tone, and as a marked advance in the assurances Spain has heretofore given. Notwithstanding this official view, there are those who believe that the message is

The initial step toward what may be the inal termination of the vexed Indian problem in the Indian Territory has just been taken by Chief Isparcecher in a spe-cial message to the Creek council. The plan advocated is supposed to be the result of the recent conference of leaders of the Cherokee, Creek and Seminole tribes, and Chief Mayes of the Cherokee Nation is known to favor the plan. In his message Chief Isparcecher says: "Our effort to treat with the United States Government has proved unsuccessful and of relief is likely to cause disturbances. we can now have no hope of continuing our government much longer as we now do by the terms of any new treaty. The time has now come, in my opinion, when the citizens of the five nations should get together and agree upon the establishment of a general government by which we may perpetuate the rights of self-government Should we be attached to Oklahoma as a territory or State this right of self-government will be taken from us by the superior number of its voting population. None of us wants such a connection with Oklahoma, yet there are strong efforts being made by politicians for single statehood including the five nations. They are yet the sovereigns of their soil and politically free born, with the right to shape for the protection of their lives and property. In conclusion the chief recommends the holding of a convention of the leading men of the five civilized tribes, to the end that the United States Government may receive definite proposals looking to the establishment of a government "of the Indians and for the Indians of the five civilized tribes."

only %c under December at the close. R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "After the heaviest buying ever known in many branches during September and the first half of October it was both natural and desirable that a more quiet period should give time for testing the size and temper of retail trade and for distributing part of the enormous quantities bought. As the buying for replenishment is partly satisfied and diminishes, there is some decrease in the volume of transactions, though at the same time the working force has further increased, the wages of labor have been in numerous cases advanced and the foundation laid more broadly every week for large buying and business hereafter. Failures for the week were 224 in the United States, against 274 last year, and 36 in Canada, against 60 last year."

WHITE SQUARON RETURNS FROM AUTUMN MANEUVERS.

Made the Run from Boston in a Hard Northeast Gale -- Accident to the Iowa's Steering Gear-Belgium Bars Out Our Cattle.

Uncle Sam's Navy in Port.

The white squadron has returned to New York from the autumn maneuvers, going direct from Boston, where the vessels had called to attend the celebration of the launching of the Constitution. The only event of any importance on the trip was the disabling of the steam steering gear of the Iowa. The fleet left Boston in a hard northeast gale, with a heavy sea running. All went well, however, until the Iowa signaled that something was amiss with her steering gear. Admiral Sicard ordered the Brooklyn and Texas to stand by the Iowa, while the other ships went on to New York. After leaving Hampton roads the fleet went to York town, Va., where the vessels remained for a week, leaving on Oct. 4 and going out to sea, where ten days were spent in fleet tactical evolutions. The fleet did not ge very far to sea, but kept out of sight of land. There was no big gun practice during these maneuvers. At Yorktown there were landing parties every day, and rifle and revolver practice on shore, together with drills. There was a sham battle between a landing force and a battalion on shore, and altogether officers and men had a busy time of it.

Against American Cattle. Consul Lincoln, at Antwerp, Belgium n a report to the State Department at Washington, says that one of the matters now interesting importers is the restriction thrown in the way of the import of cattle from both North and South America on hygicnic grounds. The Antwerp chamber of commerce is doing all in its power to remove the restrictions. There has been a large increase in the importation of wheat from the United States, also of rye, barley, corn and oats. The United States furnishes a considerable amount of cast steel, petroleum and to-

Uncle Sam's Sailors Desert. Since the cruiser Baltimore has been anchored in the harber at San Francisco preparatory to going to Honolulu her commander has reported to the police the almost daily desertion of three or four of the crew. Already twenty have succeeded in escaping and unless a stricter watch is kept it is believed that another draft of men will have to be sent from the East Germans expressed themselves in favor of to fill her complement. One night seven men succeeded in getting ashore by swimming and in small boats.

Henry George was the mayoralty candidate of the silver Democrats of Greater New York. He had made up to the night before his death a red hot campaiga in which he promised, if elected, to do his best to send Richard Croker to the pententiary. To his denunciations of Croker he added denunciations of Senator Thon. as C. Platt. He had entered the contest with great carnestness, and his campaign, speeches throughout were marked with haustive labors are thought to have led directly to his death. Henry George was born in Philadelphia on Sept. 2, 1839, and as a boy went to California. He drifted into journalism in San Francisco and attained some celebrity as a writer on political theories. In 1879 he published Progress and Porerty, which acquired a world-wide reputation, In it he gave the result of his investigations among the poor of the great cities. and his theories for reform. About the same time he first expressed his plan of taxing property on a single value—that is, taxing the land itself and not the inprovements thereon. This was the origin of the single tax doctrine.

In 1880 he removed to New York. Thefollowing year he published a volume on Ireland and England. His publications. of various theories on political economy made him one of the best known men in. the country. In 1886 he was the candidate of the laboring element for Mayor of New York, but was defeated by Abram S. Hewitt by 22,000 votes. He led Theodore Roosevelt, the Republican nominee. by 8,000 votes. Ever since then Mr. George has been more or less identified with political movements.

WORK FOR THE GOVERNOR

Washington's State Treasurer Arranges a Big Job for the Executive. Gov. Rogers of Washington has preclaimed his intention of investigating State Treasurer Young's accounts. Hehas announced that he, in company with one of the Supreme Court judges, will count all the money in the treasury. In order that the Governor may have as-much enjoyment as possible out of hisself-appointed job, Mr. Young has changed every piece of gold and paper currency in the treasury to its equivalent in silver cartwheel dollars. This will enable the Governor and his assistant to bend their backs, lame their wrists and consume a good deal of valuable time in counting 120 tons of silver dollars, Mere over, Trensurer Young will not permit: either the Governor or the judge to enterthe treasury without giving bonds.

sold Discovered in Alpena County-The Past Year's Railroad Construction -Telegraph Operator Had Presence of Mind Bold Robbers in Battle Creek, Gold in Alpena County, Alpena may have a little gold exciteneat of its own. Angus Carmichael, a farmer living out on the Long Rapids road, who is well known in the lumbering ircles of that section, has what he considers some good specimens of gold which were found in the vicinity, but the exact location Mr. Carmichael refused to di. rulge. The form on which the specimens were found has very suddenly become talsable and $200,000 is the price now set on the had. Mr. Carmichael sent about two pounds of rock containing gold indicaions to the mining school, where it will be assayed.

His Presence of Mind. C. F. Kaiser, night operator at the Wahash depot in Adrian, probably owes h's life to his presence of mind. About 1:30 o'clock in the morning he noticed a couple of villainous men at the window. One of them whipped out a revolver and was about to shoot when Kaiser turned out the gas, leaving the room in darkness, He then dodged behind the stove. He was kept a prisoner for about an hour until a freight train pulled in. The men, who had been making repeated attempts to gain entrance to the office, then disappeared. The station is situated a mile from the business portion of the city, and is in an isolated spot. Kaiser had $140 in his possession, the proceeds of a sale of excursion tickets to Chicago, Michigan Railroads. The railroad construction in Michigan this year will reach about 200 miles, more then has been built in the past three years combined. The new lines are the Lima Northern from Tecumseh to Detroit, the Detroit and Mackinaw, 26 miles westward to Onway, the St. Joe Valley from Benton Harbor to Napance, Ind., and the Chicago and West Michigan from Van Buren, 34 miles existward in the direction of Grayling. The South Haven and Southeastern has also been changed from a parrow to a standard gauge railroad, with connections at Paw Paw and Lawton with other roads.

Lost His Good Time. Foreman Fagell of the Austin, Tomlinson & Webster shops at Jackson was assaulted in a serious manner by James S. Martin, a convict, who was sent to the prison from Kalamazoo last May on a four years' sentence for breaking and entering a store in the night time. Mr. Fagell was pounded about the head and face in a brutal manner, but his injuries are not believed to be serious. Mart'n was one of two convicts who, while being brought to the prison, badly damaged the eeach in which they were riding by breaking windows and seats.

Charges Not Proven. The special committee which investigated the Marine City Globe's charges that the administration of justice in the cities of Marine City and St. Clair was corrupt reported to the Board of Supervisors at Port Huren to the effect that the charges were not proven. The report says that the investigation disclosed some irregularities and that in some instances the arresting officers had made mistakes, but that they were of no importance and that there was no evidence whatever sustaining the principal charges.

Dies from a Broken Back. Joseph Hennes ded at Half Way, seventeen miles from Houghton. Mr. Hennes had his back broken by an overhanging tree, while attempting to drive under it on the county road three weeks ago. He was one of the greatest merchants of the copper district, and during thirty years a fortune of $250,000. He leaves a wife and eight children.

Shocking Ignorance. The discovery has been made that Minme Kenyon, aged 10 years, the daughter of a laborer, was compelled by a teacher in the South Division street school in Grand Rapids to stay at her desk for nearly three hours after having sustained a broken arm on the school grounds in play. Parents generally are incensed at the possibility of a combination of ignorance and neglect which made such an occurrence possible.

Bold Footpade These. Three footpads with revolvers stopped R. M. Ray and K. R. Howe, two guests of the Sanitarium, in the street at Battle Creek, and took from them $10 in money, their watches, bandkerchiefs and every article they had on person. The robbers made good their escape.

Ernest Shilling, son of Rev. I. N. Shilling, was accidentally shot while out hunting with Charles Eckman, a well-known contractor at Elsie. Eckman fired at a cover of partridges and the charge took effect in Shilling's head and face. He will probably recover. Leonard Dodge of Chesaning shows a sample of sugar 'extracted from sugar beets by means of a cider press and boiled down in a large kettle. He got six pounds of light brown sugar from 70 pounds of beets. He claims farmers can raise it much cheaper than maple sugar. George McDonald and Archibald Alaire hired a rig at Cox's livery barn in Bay City and started towards the south end of the city. The horse took fright at an electric car and started to run away. After proceeding three blocks, the animal dropped to his knees, rolled over and died.

The Wallin Leather Co., the only concern in Grand Rapids which declares an employes' share in the annual profits, has announced a dividend of $600. This will be divided among thirty-six workers. The company began the scheme in 1890, merely to furnish its employes with an incentive for better labor and conscientious effort. Last year, on account of the hard times, no dividend was declared. The company takes the position that profit sharing is a very good investment and yields an absolute return in the economical conduct of the factory.

Fred Thomas, who lives near Palo and drives a cream gathering wagon for the Ionia creamery, was held up and robbed four miles north of that city while on his way home the other night. He was met in an isolated spot by two men, who robbed him, and then tied him to one of the wagon wheels, first unhitching the team and fastening the horses to a fence. Thomas was released about 2 o'clock the next morning, when he was found by his relief. He was in his shirt sleeves and was nearly dead from exposure.

THE FARM AND HOME

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO FARM-ER AND HOUSEWIFE.

Some Points in Favor of Shredded Fodder-The Best Hog for Bacon-Sell Off the Poor Stock-Caring for the Machinery.

Shredded Fodder Best. During the past few years unusual interest has been taken in shredding fodder. Many have hesitated, thinking that the shredded corn would not keep wel in the mow or stack. When first practiced more or less fodder was shredded in a somewhat damp condition. It invariably heated in the mow, became musty, and gave unsatisfactory results. The fodder should not be run through the machine until it is entirely at the Indiana experiment station, all of the corn fodder was shredded. It kept well in the mow, and was free from mustiness. The cattle and sheep ate it freely, and it was used well into the spring. There are several points in favor of shredded fodder. It is more economical to feed than the uncut corn. It is eaten up cleaner by the stock than most uct fodder, there being less waste, due to the absence of the hard, sharpusually found in cut fodder. The refuse makes better material for bedding than does whole stalks or cut pieces, being finer and softer. It handles far better in the manure pile than does the entire stalk. It does not make the mouths of cattle sore, while that of coarsely cut fodder oftentimes does. It packs more economically in the mow than does uncut fodder. The feeding value of shredded and cut fodder is practically the same. Shredding is coming into practice, and many farmers are making use of the process.

There is a rivalry between the Tamworth and the improved Yorkshire as to which is the better bacon hog. The fact of the Tamworth being a comparatively new breed in America gives It the advantage of novelty. Both breeds are popular with the bacon-curers. The Yorkshire makes an excellent cross on the short-bodied sows of any grade, though the writer does not advise that course. The farmer endeavoring to breed up a type of hogs suitable for bacon should, if possible, improve with Yorkshire blood on the maternal line, and instead of obtaining a pure-bred Yorkshire or Tamworth sire, should in every case obtain the dam in preference to the sire. But there is a strong aversion in the minds of farmers generally to breeding long-sided hogs, and the long snout of the Tamworth is an almost impassable barrier in the way of the introduction of this breed into America. Farmers, from their famillarity with the common scrub hog, ridicule the idea of breeding an animal with so long a snout as the Tamworth. Though when we find the long snout associated with long and deep sides of the very best bacon we can afford to look upon it with at least a subdued hostility. The improved Yorkshire must not be confounded with the small Yorkshire. The improved Yorkshire is a modification of the large Yorkshire; it has less of size than the former, and more of smoothness.

Selling Off Poor Stock. As winter approaches every farmer should look over his farm stock and consider what of it will pay best for keeping through until spring. If all that does not come up to the standard is sold to the butcher or otherwise disposed of, the money for it and the hay or grain required for its winter sustenance will leave the farmer richer in the spring than if he fed it. Don't try to get high prices for the poor stock. There is less loss in disposing of it than in keeping it. The farmers' profit, in these days depend more on the kind of stock he keeps than on any other fac-

Care for the Machinery.

Do not leave your costly machinery out in the field, or uncovered. With proper care the machinery ought to last you for years, but it will not, if left exposed to the weather and storms six or eight months in a year. The industrious and economical farmer cares for everything, because he is aware that a continual outlay for new machinery each year to take the place of that which has been allowed to rot in the field is extravagance.

Ashes for Sandy Soils. Sandy soils are always deficient in potash. Even if they had this mineral, they have usually so little vegetable matter that the potash forms an insoluble compound, by uniting with the sand. The potash in caustic ashes dissolves the silicate of potash, and also helps itself until its caustic properties are lost. But old leached ashes are often quite as beneficial to sandy soils as are the unleached. They always contain some potash and some phosphate, which the water used for leaching would not dissolve. But they also usually contain some ammonia, taken ket for it. from the air, and which makes its potash a nitrate of potash and a very powerful fertilizer.

Hiving Bees in a Tree.

The usual way when a bee tree has Dewlit Van Tina, who works for A. Dewlit Van Tina, who warm. Possibly Dan, in their fall growth. If there is a great it is Johnson, an old bee hunter of Dedlic Almondation, and crowds from that tree or swarm. Possibly Dan, in their fall growth. If there is a great it is Johnson, an old bee hunter of Dedlic Almondation, and crowds from that tree or swarm. Possibly Dan, in their fall growth. If there is a great it Johnson, an old bee hunter of Dedlic Almondation, and crowds from that tree or swarm. Possibly Dan, in their fall growth. If there is a great it Johnson, an old bee hunter of Dedlic Almondation, and cro and take their honey. This of course smashing the tree and destroying the oney. So he inserted a gas pipe from a hollow near the ground, running it np the tree until the honey was reached Then he built a fire at the foot of the tree. So soon as the fire warmed the honey inside, it began to run down, where it was caught in pails. It nearly filled a barrel. Mr. Johnson thinks he has a permanent hive of bees on that tree so long as it does not succumb to the effects of fire at its roots. He thinks there is enough honey left to winter the bees, and that next year they will go to work and fill the empty combs. But it is very possible that heat sufficient to melt honey comb has killed the bees, and that the barrel of honey this year is the last he will get from that tree.

Japanese Plums. Those who wish to grow plums in the garden I advise the trying of a set of Japan plums, as there seems to be dry and well cured. It would be better good reason to believe that they will over-dry than not dry enough. In 1895, be the plums of the future when the black-knot has wiped the older race out of existence. This pest is hard to control when the hedgerows are full of native species of prunes, and these trees serve for its propagation. Fruitgrowers have considered it hopeless to be able to fight the fungus, and are planting the Japanese plums in place of the native kinds. In planting it should be borne in mind that a much greater distance is needed between the edged and short butt pieces of stalk trees than between other plums-at least eighteen feet when mature growth is reached by the trees. The curculio seems to be quite as troublesome in these new plums as on the older ones, > though we had hoped much from the thicker-skinned fruit. But to have clear-skinned plums the curculio must be fought in early summer, when it is doing its work. We lost but few from the stings, but the fruit was disfigured.-Garden and Forest.

How to Keep the Churn. It is particularly trying during extremely hot weather to keep a wooden churn, which is used not more than twice a week, from shrinking somewhat about the corners, where the staves which compose the sides are joined to the bottom. Of course, the churn may be left in the cellar, but that means many a wearying tug up and down on churning days, unless the churning is done there. In the latter case, mold is apt to collect upon any wooden utensil in an ordinary cellar. To keep water in the churn requires constant care lest it be forgotten, for it should be changed every day. A better way is to hook the churn to the standard, bottom side up, where a barrel churn is used, and pour water around the inside of the chine, covering the outside of the churn bottom, which will be sufficient to keep the wood from shrinking by reason of becoming too dry .-Jersey Bulletin.

Marketing Turnips. To get the best prices for turnips the grower must calculate to sell a large part of his crop from house to house. It is a vegetable that almost every householder will buy one or two bushels of and not like the potato, which must be secured in sufficient quantities to supply the table twice a day through the winter. It is best always to grow both the white for early use and either a late yellow turnip or rutabaga for use in spring. If brought to their houses the turnips can always be sold at about the price charged by the grocers per bushel. If the difference between the turnips for early and late use is explained most households will take a bushel of each. It makes extra work for the farmer to peddle his turnips, but the double price he gets over what the grower would pay makes it worth his while. It is for the consumer's interest also to buy turnips fresh from the field, rather than the grocery stock that for days, or perhaps weeks, have been exposed to the air.

Improvement in Tomatoes. There has been great improvement in both the shape and quality of tomatoes since we first knew and liked them. The original tomato was very rough, had little pulp, and was merely a bag of seeds and water with very thick, tough skin. The first improvement was in securing sound and smooth tomatoes, but somewhat smaller than the fruit was originally. But for many years we have ural to suggest that, though Paul sufferhad tomatoes full of pulp, and having ed no harm from the viper, anybody else comparatively few seeds. These are much the best for cooking and canning. as when cooked there is something to them besides seeds.

Quality of Evaporated Fruit. So much is said about the advantage of fruit evaporating to make a market for otherwise unsalable fruit that many may think it makes little difference what its quality may be. The truth is that only the really good fruit should be used for the evaporator. It may be and often is unsalable because of blemishes which affect its looks but do not impair quality. But to take green, worm-eaten fruit and put it through the evaporator is a mistake. Its first effect is to discourage the consumer. making him think that evaporated fruit is not so good as he expected. Poor fruit is not worth much for the pigs. but that or other stock is the best mar-

A late-sown small growth, if vigbeen found is to cut it down, stupefy orous, will come out all right. In fact, the bees with smoke as well as may be, for some reasons the small top is best, as it does not evaporate so much. THOUGHTS WORTHY OF CALM REFLECTION.

A Pleasant, Interesting, and Instructive Lesson, and Where It May Be Found-A Learned and Concise Review of the Same.

Lesson for November 7. Golden Text,-"We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."-Rom. 8: 28,

The lesson this week, found in Acts 28: 1-16, treats of Paul in Melita and Rome. In the last lesson we traced Paul from Caesarea to the shipwreck,. The crew and passengers of the ship when they escaped to shore and perceived the character of the island where they were, at once learned that they had been driven to Melita, or Malta, an island which lies in mid sea between Sicily and the African Explanatory.

The kindness of the "barbarous peo ple" was more noteworthy then than it would be now. It was by no means common for shipwrecked people to be hospitably received. In some countries they were thought to be legitimate prey.

This viper was a small but poisonous serpent, found in the countries about the Mediterranean. The fact that none are now to be found in Malta is worth nothing as an argument against the accuracy of the narrative, any more than the absence of buffalo from our own Western plains disproves the stories of hunters who shot big game there thirty years ago.

Superstition still holds that any sudden misfortune of this sort has some portentous significance, pointing to hidden crime or some disfavor of God.

It is plainly implied that Paul's escaping this deadly poison was divine intervention. A mere accidental immunity would not be so spoken of.

From a murderer, in the estimation of the crowd, he becomes a god. Popular opinion about public men often varies between extremes just as great. Great politicians, great preachers, great authors, great musicians, are seldom rated at their true value during life. Perhaps we should learn sooner than we do that the opinions even of the wisest men are not worth the price of our own lives; and the cries of the crowd are mere "sound and fury, signifying nothing."

"In the same quarters" is of course "in the same neighborhood." . Publius, the Roman governor, was probably a man of considerable wealth and importance. These colonial governors, even in small provinces and districts, lived in much state-their salaries being often supple mented by revenues ground out of the Good news spreads quickly. In mission ary countries, when a native is healed by. a missionary physician, his reputation is made, and henceforth there is no leisure for the foreign healer; the people come in crowds from miles around, to receive the healing touch or medicine.

It is not thought necessary by Luke to speak about Paul's preaching, that being a matter of course. Paul's would never neglect such an opportunity as this. Tradition says that he founded a Christian church in Malta.

The three winter months, during which navigation was unsafe, were November, December and January. Early in February, then, in the year 61, they set sail again in another Alexandrian ship, "The Twin Brothers" by name. "Fetched a compass" is rendered in the revised version "made a circuit." It probably refers to the tacking along the coast from Syracuse to Rhegium, which is on the narrow strait between Italy and Sicily. Puteoli is on the bay of Naples, the great commercial port of the Italian coast at that time. There were many Christians in Italy at this time-not merely in Rome, but in the other cities.

After traveling inward from Puteoli a short distance they reached the Via Appla, or Appian Road, a great boulevard that ran from Rome southward through the peninsula to Brindisi on the Adriatic Sea. Appli Forum was a town about forty miles from Rome on this road, and Three Taverns was about ten miles farther on.

We can only guess the reason for the unusual consideration which Paul received. The mere fact that he was a Roman citizen would not account for it. It must have been his distinguished bearing, his courteous and respectful attitude towards the military authorities, and the remembrance of his important work in Malta that induced the captain of the guard to give him a measure of comfort.

Teaching Hints.

While it may not be a legitimate lesson to draw from this passage, it is most natwould have. We cannot expect to pick up vipers, even accidentally, without getting bitten. It is the pistol that is "not loaded" that kills all the fool boys that play with it. The Christlan need expect no miraculous escape from moral or physical danger. He should pray "lead us not into temptation" and then proceed to keep a safe distance from the tempter. This is one more passage that argues for medical missions, as do the accounts of the lives of Christ. The healing of men's bodies often leads to the healing of their souls.

Paul had reached the goal of many years' ambition. He was in Rome. Of the great work that he did there, in his imprisonment, we can only partly judge from the brief record which we shall study next week, and from the letters which he wrote to other churches.

In the looseness of proceeding, the lack of intelligent and strict direction of the work and the haphazard method of securing expert testimony, the Luctgert trial gave peculiar emphasis to the faults of practice in criminal trials.-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The result of the Luetgert trial is what was generally expected. In a case of this kind men hesitate a long while before sending one of their fellows to the gallows on purely circumstantial evidence supported wholly by expert testimony that the layman cannot understand .- St. Louis Republic.

The three dissenting jurors are not without justinfication for their action. In the absence of positive proof that Mrs. Luetgert was really killed, it seems to us unnecessary to advance any discreditable theory of their pertinacious refusal to conto the gollows .ter (N. Y.) Herald.

PULLMAN'S WILL.

The will of the late George M. Pullman was filed in the probate court at Chicago the other day. Norman B. Ream and Robert T. Lincoln are named as executors, his wife not being appointed because of his wish to relieve her of the responsibilities of the position. The total value is shown by the petition for a letter of testamentary to be over $7,000,000. Of this amount, $6,800,000 is in personal property and $800,000 in realty. The bulk of the estate goes to the two daughters, Mrs. Frank O. Lowden of Chicago and Mrs. Frank Carolan of San Francisco, who received $1,000,000 each, and also a residuary estate. To his widow he left the homestead on Prairie avenue. She is also to receive $50,000 for the first year and thereafter during her life the income of $1,250,000.

"Castle Rest," on one of the Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence river, is given to his daughter Florence (Mrs. Lowden), with the furniture, for life.

The eighth provision is as follows: "Inas much as neither of my sons has developed such a sense of responsibility as in my judgment is requisite to the wise use of large properties and considerable sums of money. I am painfully compelled, as I have explicitly stated to them, to limit my testamentary provisions for their benefit to trusts producing only such income as I have deemed reasonable for their support." Accordingly the bonds and other securities set aside yield each un annual income of $3,000."

To Royal Henry Pullman, John M. Pullman, Helen Pullman West and Emma Pullman Fluhrer, brothers and sisters of the deceased, is bequeathed the sum of $50,600 ap ece. Thirteen Chicago charitable institutions receive $10,000. The sum of $200,000 is given for-the erection of a manual training school in Pullman, which is also endowed with $1,200,000. Five of the old employes are given $5,000 each. The household servants get from $250 to $500 apiece. There are numerous other bequests to relatives ranging from $500 to $25,000.

GROVER, JR., IS BORN.

Fine Boy Comes to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland at Princeton.

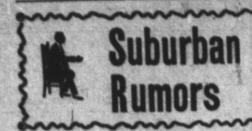

To Grover Cleveland came at noon Thursday a boy. He was born at Princeton, N. J., in the white mansion under the oaks in the room where the colonial mantel displays its pretty thin columnettes of an exquisite ancient art. The infant heir has blue eyes, hair that is like a mist and lungs that make his cries resound till his sister Marion rolls her eyes in amazement. He is strong and weighs twelve pounds. There is little else to say, since in him the father and the mother have their fondest wish realized.

> Selb Adams and Alvah Steger were the victims of a runaway accident Tuesday. They were out north and east of this place for the purpose of buying turkeys, and when driving along the road thinking about their best girls, the horse suddenly shied at a huge boulder, and started to run. The buggy went in to the ditch, the buggy top turned inside out, likewise the boys. When they got together and compared themselves, they looked just like a couple of football players after an exciting game. A man employed on the county farm, came along and picked up what was left of the boys, put them in a cigar box and brought them home. The result is that Selb is laid up with a dislocated shoulder, and Alvah is just able to console him in a whisper. But they are going out after turkeys again in a day or two.-Isabella County Repub-

Try to raise your family, my dear, death of her husband. She had found it hard task since then to feed and clothe herself and her children like gentlewomen, and many a sigh had she directed even toward the pittance which her son received from the Government, thinking how Wilfrid, and seven thousand a year, much more comfortably they might all live together if Wilfrid would only join his income to hers. But Wilfrid had had his own reasons for continuing to live by himself.

When Mrs. Ewell, however, was apprised of her son's wonderful and unexand though Sir Wilfrid had not yel pected good fortune, all her difficulties thought it possible to rectify the error seemed to vanish. She made sure then he had made, he was beginning to think that Sir Wilfrid would provide a home for herself and his sisters at Lambscote be well rid of. Hall, or failing that, would make such an addition to their income as to place them above want. And the girls, too, What views they entertained of bails and theaters and new dresses, and long visits her mother, Lady Otto, at Lambscote two to Somerset, and eligible young men that years ago. should lay their fortunes at their feet. Their years varied from five-and-twenty like you to have," continued Mrs. Ewell; to fifteen, but not one of them had ever mixed in the gaiety usual to young people of their age. Neither before their father's death nor after it had there been the requisite money forthcoming for such pleasures, and the announcement that their only brother had suddenly been transformed into a wealthy baronet gave them almost as much joyful anticipation as it had done to him.

Mrs. Ewell had written more than once begging him to run down to Surbiton and receive her congratulations in person, and when, on the morning following his return to Chelsen, he walked into her tiny sitting room, he was almost overwhelmed by the family greeting. His sisters hung about his neck like leeches, as they poured upon him a volley of kisses and questions, which they gave him time neither to return nor answer. But his mother sat in her armchair, pale, silent, and almost tearful at the prospect that she believed had opened before her.

"Yes," he said, answering the thought which he read in every countenance, "it has been rather a stroke of good luck, hasn't it? Fancy poor Bob going off in that unexpected way. He was only ill twelve hours. And the little boy, too! Poor Carrie feels it awfully, of course, cess of her own person. "A blessing, indeed," murmured Mrs. Ewell fervently; "and after the poverty we have suffered since your poor father's struck him dumb with her look of cold death, it seems too good to be true. Will you not have to make the widow some indemnification, Wilfrid?"

"I think not," he answered carelessly, and without the apparent regulition of any moral obligation in the matter. "Parfitt has said nothing about it. And, hang it all, you know, she is living rent free, and will do so for the next two months," "Oh, shan't we see Lambscote for two whole months?" exclaimed Rosie. Rosie was Sir Wilfrid's youngest and prettiest sister. She was also his favorite, but he did not vouchsafe to answer her remark.

"How many rooms are there at the Hall, Wilfrid?" asks his sister Edith.

"I am sure I don't know. More than you can count. "And do you get the horses and car riages and everything?" said Flora. 'Yes; all the property that has been purchased with the income becomes personal to the estate. I believe there are ten or twelve horses in the stables. How I will hunt next season!" "And oh, Wilfrid, may I learn to ride?"

cried Rosie. "Yes, dear, that you shall. Mother must

It was becoming patent to all of them that Lambscote Hall was not to be a freehold property for the whole family, and Mrs. Ewell developed a certain snappishness under the discovery. "Don't worry your brother, Fanny," she interposed. "The Hall is his own, and he will do as he pleases with it. Though I think you will find, Wilfrid, that you of their late owner. Meanwhile he repaircannot get on so well without ladies as you seem to imagine. No house can be properly managed without a woman at "But who said I was going to try and get on without ladies?" he retorted, with party, he smiled with satisfaction. And a smile. "Don't be afraid, mother, Lambscote will have a mistress in good time." At this announcement a chasm, of which Mrs. Ewell had not yet dreamed. opened at her feet. Of course she had expected that Sir Wilfrid would marrysome day-but he was only twenty-two, and she had hoped that the evil was quite in the distance. The calm certainty with he had parted with Lena St. Blase, Two which he mentioned the prospect made her gasp.

"But not yet, dear, I hope," she ejaculated. "What you allude to cannot take place for several years to come. Why, of the Westerleys' house, the young womyou were only twenty-two last birthday."

"I know that, mother." "It would be impossible for you marry under thirty.' "Do you think so?"

"I menn it would be very unadvisable, Marriage is a serious undertaking, Wilfrid. Once done, it is not to be undone, and the consequences abide by you, for weal or woe, to your life's end. "So I have heard," he answered, yawning slightly behind his hand. "Mamma, 11 am sure that Wilfrid is already in love," exclaimed Edith, "He looks dreadfully conscions. And now he is blushing-actually blushing! Oh, Wil-

se. You know the boy was awfully in love with you, and you are (if any thing) handsomer than you were then. You really must try. I will give nothing for your chance of marriage if you go through another season. And you are not the sort of woman, my dear, who will be happy in a single life.

Miss St. Blaze made a gesture of contempt for the honorable condition alluded but all she said was:

"Poor, dear Jack!" The name seemed to rouse Lady Otto's

"Lena!" she exclaimed authoritatively, "I have told you always that I refuse t ear that man mentioned. You ought to be ashamed of yourself! A rattle-brained extravagant scapegrace, who lives on his wits, or his friends, and has had his name associated with everything that is most disgraceful! Captain Dorsay is unfit to be the acquaintance of a decent woman, far less the intimate friend you would make of him. I have forbidden him my house, and I have forbidden you to speak of him before me.'

When Sir Wilfrid entered the Westerleys' drawing room that evening, his head, notwithstanding his determination though it appears a large income, does to be brave and cool, was spinning like a humming top, and he very nearly shook hands with a lady he had never seen before in mistake for Mrs. Westerley.

Miss St. Blase, who looked like a white marble statue in a black satin dress, was watching his every movement from her vantage ground in the corner, and de cided at once that Sir Wilfrid's agitation it was a serious error, and one he would was on her own account.

> "He has heard I am here," she thought, and it has upset him. All right! The game is mine. I have only to go in and

When Sir Wilfrid took his leave it was with a heart flattered by the unexpected attentions he had received, and a head almost as much filled with the image of the lovely Lena St. Blase as when, in the old days, he had presumed to woo his goddess to come down'from her pedestal and mate with a son of a man.

She missed Wilfrid cessity of any great expenditure on your terribly, and felt quite lost now that he no longer needed her daily attention and care; but her head was filled with the grand prospect before her, and she had no time to think of anything else.

The following Saturday evening Sir Wilfrid came down to Chelsea, and after tea the husband and wife had a secret meeting in the shrubbery path. "Oh, Will, kiss me!" Jane exclaimed as they found themselves alone and out of view; "for it seems an age since I have seen your face or heard your voice." Sir Wilfrid took his cigar from his lips and did what she required of him, not coldly, but yet not eagerly. He was not yet tired of Jane. Their intercourse had been too limited and broken in upon for that. Originated in Typographical Errors

(To be continued.) The old proof reader was holding forth upon the question of typographical errors and their occasional influence on posterity. "The word 'hoodlum' is an instance of this," he said, as he knocked the ashes out of his pipe. Out in San Francisco twenty-five years ago there was a notorious character named Muldoon, who was the leader of a gang of young ruffians. They were a terror to the community, and about as tough a lot of citizens as you could find on the coast. A reporter who had been assigned to a story in which they had figured, undertook to coin a word designating the gang. He reversed the name of the leader, and referred to them as 'Nooflums.' The compositor mistook the n for an h. and as hoodlums the word passed the proof reader. And now 'hoodlum' is a recognized word, and will probably survive. Another instance which I recall shows how even an actress may accept as inevitable the error of a compositor. You may not know that Ada Rehan's real name is Ada Crehan, but such is the case. On the occasion of her first appearance in a speaking part, when she was accorded the dignity of having her name on the play bill, the ing voice made itself heard at last. Some printer divided it up as Ada C. Rehan, one shouted, "Hold on a minute." and and as Ada Rehan she has ever since been known.-Philadelphia Record.

Grant's Narrow Escape.

NE winter afternoon of 1861-'62 a man on a mule drew rein in a Missouri lane w I thin speaking distance of two young men husking corn in company with several adult negroes. It was about 4 o'clock of a cold. gray day.

"I hate to see men work so hard," the rider called, with intent to be sarcastic. "Hello, Jeff," the young fellows called as they rose from the piles of stalks before which they sat and sauntered toward the fence. "You're a likely chap to talk about work ridin' around the country on a mewel, like they wern't no wirk to do." The rider grinned. "It's too late to husk corn, anyhow. You know South Carolinans are always about two months late." Suddenly his voice changed to a tone of joyous excitement, and he bent over the pommel of his sad-

"Say, the knights meet to-night." "Where do we meet?"

"Jim Lyons' barn."

"Well, I'll tell you this: we've got to have a lot o' pickets out, for the niggers are excited. They have an idea that something is going on that would interest them.'

"Jim'll watch out for that. Wellso long. Be on hand." "We'll be there."

The country about St. Louis was at that time more secession than Union in feeling, and, though the farmers of the creek were pursuing their ways quietly, they were ready at any moment for an enterprise in aid of the South. By a swift and decided stroke of military foresight, Frank P. Blair had captured Camp Jackson and its arsenal in May, thus saving the city its munitions to the Union, but there had sprung up all over the country a secret society in sympathy with the South. These societies were branches of the Knights of the Golden Circle, and it was their hope that at some time they might be able to do some decisive work in aid of secession.

By 7:30 o'clock that night Jim Lyons' barn held a score of men of all ages and sizes, and outside a circle of pickets kept watch that no prying negro came within hearing distance of the loft in which the meeting was held. In the center of the group, and doing most of the talking, was a big, black-whiskered man of alert and vigorous manner. The members were haunched or sprawling about on the hay listening in silence. At last the chairman wrapped for order and said in a low voice:

"Brothers of the circle, you are called together to-night because there's work to be done. You've all been just achin' to do something for the cause, and now's yo' chance. We've had to keep our mouths shet. We've had to submit to these Yankee scrubs, who hold our fo't. Fo't Jackson should never have been surrendered. We have been helpless under the heels of these Northern vandals ever since. Now we have a chance to make them pay. Brother Mose Braumer has a word to say." Braumer was a peddler who carried drugs from St. Louis to the Confederate armies in the southern part of the State. He carried also whatever news of military movements he could secure. He now stepped out onto the floor, the excitement of the big project in his visage. He plunged into the plan at once:

"Brothers, we have a chance to rob the Northern armies of a big brigadier general. Gen. U. S. Grant, of Cairo, is home on a leave of absence. He drove out to-day without a guard. Nobody with him. He's at old man Dent's, which is not more than two miles from here. You all know the place. He will be there all night. My plan is to surround the house and seize him while he is asleep. The Union cause will have one brigadier general less.'

Two or three of the younger hotheads leaped up white with excitement.

"Good! That's the plan. We'll make him pay for Belmont. The boldness of the scheme took the cooler men at a disadvantage. Before they could gather their limbs under them another belligerent was in the middle of the floor, blazing with excitement, his words a volley. 'It is a glorious opportunity to serve the cause of the South. We have been organized for just such work as this. Now is our chance. I will be one to do this work to-night."

"So will I," said one at his side.

"And I" shouted several more. The chairman uttered a warning hiss "Sh!-don't yell." For an instant it seemed as if the whole lodge was ready for this bold plan, but a dissentwhen the rest had time to look about and see who had spoken, Abner Taylor was seen standing in the background. The big corn husker looked grim and threatening as he stepped forward and flung his hat on the floor,

"I vote no! Now, see here, I know this Gen. Grant. I've cut wood and A whale recently captured in arctic all know him, and you know that a betlike that under such circumstances. went."

Why, the man trusts us! You say he has no bodyguard-well, I'll be one of his bodyguard.

"You all know I've no love for Yankees. I would cut the heart out of Frank Blair if I could, but Gen. Grant was our friend and neighbor. Why, I've seen him give his last $5 to a poor widow whose house was burnt down. You all remember Tom Harris' widow. Some of you fellows hauled 'props' with him, and now when he trusts us and comes home here without a bodyguard he expects to be treated like a gentleman, and by the Almighty he shall be, if my fist has any weight."

"He's a d-d Yankee soldler. He's killing our men," yelled some one. "It's all war, anyhow."

"Well, kidnappin' ain't war," replied Abner. "It's sneaking business to jump in on a man when he's home to see his wife and children, and I'm not going to be a party to it.

"More than this. It's easy to carry out your plan. We could kidnap Grant easy enough, but what would the Northern armies be doing to-morrow and the day after? There wouldn't be a man of us living, nor one brick on top of another in three days from now. I've been harnessed up by 'em once, and I don't intend to be again." His words and voice carried conviction.

"This stops right now. It don't go another step. Gen. Grant will sleep undisturbed to-night and he goes back to St. Louis and Cairo undisturbed. If he is killed or captured let it be done by Gen. Pillow or Gen. Buckner in a fair and square fight."

The meeting ended right there. The hotheads apologized, and the peddler slunk away. "Ah, that was a big speech you made," said the younger brother, as they went across the fields. "You're right, but it's a terrible temptation. Grant seems to be going up steadily, but Pillow will attend to him."

On Feb. 16 Ulysses Grant took Donelson from Buckner and Pillow, and became "Unconditional Surrender Grant."-Hamlin Garland, in New York Sun.

This Rooster a War Hero. The only real rooster that was ever honored by a military funeral and a tombstone was owned by Major Thos. Williams, of the Confederate army. The rooster went by the name of "General," and Major Williams acquired him in the following manner: Before the battle of Culpeper Williams went to a house to get something to eat. The daughter of the family met him with the little bantam and said the family was preparing to fly, and the pet chicken was all that was left. The girl was pretty and she looked wistfully at the pet chicken, and the gallant Major swore that the soup pot would never be the bantam's destiny. "General" went through many battles perched on the limb of a tree. At the close of the war he returned to pleasant farm life, but he missed the excitement of war and the blare of bugles, and poor little General drooped and died. He was buried with military honors and his grave is marked by a tombstone.

A Woman's Nerve.

"One of the most remarkable things ever saw was the capture of ten rebels by a woman," said a veteran the other day. "I was in Kirby Smith's army on the retreat from Cumberland Gap. One morning, when our regiment was about twenty-six miles from Wildcat mountain, some of us saw a file of ten men, all of them Confederates, marching toward our lines, and behind them marched a woman with a musket in her hands. As soon as they got to the Federal lines the woman turned the men over to our colonel as pris-

"Several of us who were on duty around headquarters crowded around her and asked her how she had managed to capture ten men single-handed. She told us that her husband had entisted in the Union army and left her to take care of the house, which lay between the two armies. Eleven Confederates had come to the house that morning and proceeded to make themselves at home, killing her chickens and roasting them, and taking up the carpets to make horse blankets. They broke up a lot of furniture, and the woman began to get mad. So, when they sat down to eat the stolen chickens, she took their muskets away from the corner in which they had placed them, retaining two for her own use, and then, opening the door of the room in which they were sitting, informed them that they were her prisoners.

"One of the men made a move to grab the gun, but she let him have it right between the eyes, and he dropped and never said another word. She grabbed up the other gun and coolly hauled props with him. He has ate informed the other ten that if they dinner in our house many a time. You didn't march to the Union camp she Lambscote requires a mistress, as you said just now, and I do not think it will be long before you see one established there."

Miss Charlotte M. Yonge is publish ing through Messrs. Macmillan a volume which conveys its scope in the title "Cameos from English History."

In regard to the enormous sums paid authors nowadays it has been aptly said that if Hall Caine's "The Christian" is worth $50,000-the sum paid him-then Thackeray's "Vanity Fair" was really worth $1,000,000.

The German edition of Edward Bellamy's "Equality" is to be followed shortly by an Italian edition. The publisher of "Equality" in Italy will be Remo Sandron of Palermo. Although the book was published only recently, it is now appearing in four countries and three languages. The London Literary World verifies the spelling "Naulakha" (instead of Naulahka," as it appears in Mr. Kipling's book), by saying, "the name merely means 'of the value of nine lakha' and was applied to the necklace which figures in the story: as we should say, "The ninety-thousand pounder." Mr. John L. Stoddard, the popular lecturer on foreign lands, has retired from the platform on account of ill health. All of the lectures he has delivered, together with several new ones, will be published in a series of ten volumes, containing 3,400 illustrations, The first volume is to appear in Octo-

Richard Harding Davis' "Soldiers of Fortune" has gone into its fiftieth thousand; so has James Lane Allen's "Choir Invisible"-two stories which have almost nothing in common, save the fact that they are the work of young American writers. Mr. Davis was in England when his book made its great success there and here. Mr. Allen is about to go abroad (if he has not already started), and will find a cordial welcome awaiting him; for the English press has lauded his work as highly as the papers in this country.

Dr. Weir Mitchell, whose novel "Hugh Wynne" proved to be one of the most successful serials the Century has printed, has written another novel that will appear in this magazine during the coming year. It is called "The Adventures of Francois; Foundling, Adventurer, Juggler, Fencing Master and Servant During the French Revolution." The scene of the story shifts from Paris to the provinces and back gain, following the wanderings of the eccentric hero, who participates in many of the thrilling scenes of the revolution. Andre Castaigne will illustrate the novel.

Twinkling of the Stars. An important discovery to astrononers was made by Dr. T. J. See, who is in charge of Lowell Observatory at Pagstaff. For centuries the cause of the twinkling of the stars has been sought for, but none of the theories adranced have stood the test of thorough prestigation. Dr. See has found the cause to be the presence in the atmosphere of innumerable little air currents or waves, some no larger than a man's hand, which dart through the air and cause a break in the light thrown off by the star, so that to a beholder on the earth it has the familiar appearance of twinkling. These little air currents and "chop" waves can be seen through the twenty-four-inch telescope very plaluwon some nights when this twinkling is observed most, by removing the eyeplece of the instrument. WRECK ON THE RAIL.

Many Lives Lost.

A disastrous railroad accident occurred on the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, a short distance below The train was the State express, due in jured if not killed. New York at 7:30 o'clock, and was made up of engine No. 872, a combination baggage and express car, a smoker, two ordimary passenger coaches and four sleepers, managed to secure considerable amusein charge of Conductor Parish.

The train left Albany at 3:15 o'clock, on time, and was going at a good rate of speed when it passed Garrison's. It was a mile and a half below there when the accident occurred. Conductor Parish says the track seemed to fall out from under the train, the train seemed to shoot into the air, and the next minute it appeared to fall into the river. Into the waters of the Hudson the cars planged, dragging through the water the helpless passengers. There was nothing to presage the terrible accident which so suddenly deprived so many human beings of life,

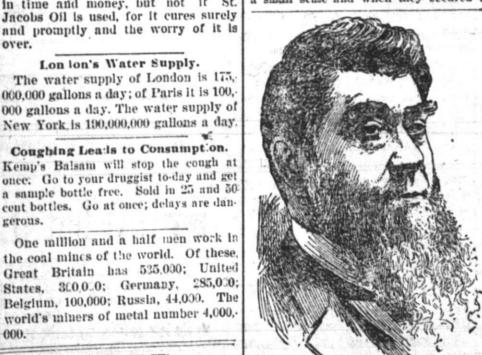

Two cars were left on the track. The engine did not stop until it lay submerged fifty feet below the surface. The two forward cars followed and were piled upon the engine. The smoker and two following ordinary cars broke from the train and ran some distance along the bank and then into the water. Two of the sleeping cars ran into the river, but fortunately were left only partly under water, the windows toward the shore being left above the surface. First reports gave the total number of known dead at nineteen; my key, and he then, seeing that I was the estimated number, twenty-eight.

Neither engineer nor fireman will ever tell the story of that terrible moment, for, with his hand upon the throttle, the engineer plunged with his engine to the river bottom, and the fireman, too, was at his post. Behind them came the express car, the combination car and the sleepers, and these piled on top of the engine. It is known that it was a trifle foggy and that the track was not visible, but if there was any break in the lines of steel it must have been of very recent happening, for only an hour before there had passed over it a heavy passenger train laden with human freight.

The section of road was supposed to be the very best on the entire division. There was a great heavy retaining wall all along the bank, and, while the tide was high Sunday, it was not unprecedented. What seems to have happened was that underneath the tracks and ties the heavy wall had given way and when the great weight of the engine struck the unsupported tracks it went crashing through the rest of the wall and toppled over into the river. As the train plunged over the embankment the coupling that held the last two of the six sleepers broke and they miraculously remained on the broken track. In that way some sixty lives were saved.

He Began His Business Career as a Peddler and Died a Millionaire. Peter E. Studebaker, one of the millionaire wagonmakers of South Bend, Ind., who died recently at Alma, Mich., whither he had gone to improve his health, was born April 1, 1836, in Ashland County, O. His parents were poor and his youth was spent amid the humblest surroundings. As a boy he carried the eggs and butter in which his mother dealt from his home to the storekeepers'. At 15 he became a clerk. In five years he saved $150. Then he bought a peddler's outfit and traveled through the country, selling dry goods and notions. Meanwhile his brothers had started in the manufacture of wagons on a small scale and when they secured a Prosperity continued to come their way and eventually they had the largest manufacturing institution of its kind in the world and the three brothers were millionaires.

Peter Studebaker took an active interest in public affairs and was more or less intimately associated with Indiana polities, though he never sought office. One of the noteworthy incidents of his life was the erection of a monument over the unmarked grave of Lincoln's mother, in Spencer County, Ind.

For the year 1895 the number of passengers carried during the twelve months in the United Kingdom was 930,967,736. The number of passengers killed during the same year was five and the number injured 390. The risk run by a passenger of being killed while traveling is therefore 1-930,000,000 part of five, or, to put it more concisely, one passenger in Garrison's station, early Sunday morning. every 186,000,000 may expect to be in-

A NECKLACE OF PEARLS

Is a beautiful possession. If a woman owns one, and if a single pearl drops off the string, she makes haste to find and restore it.

Good health is a more valuable posse than a necklace of the most beautiful pearls, yet one by one the jewels of health slip away, and women seem indifferent until it is almost too late, and they cannot be restored.

To die before you are really old is to suffer premature death, and that is a sin. It is a sin because it is the result of repeated violations Pain, lassitude and weariness, inability to

The Nervous Americans. Americans are a fearfully nervous people. It takes less provocation to send the average American into a neryous spasm than any other person on earth. If there is a nation which should let stimulants alone we are the nation. Yet-to say nothing of liquor, as to which we are no worse than others-we are insatiable coffee drinkers. Yes, and the practice helps fill our hospitals and penitentiaries. Why not drop coffee and drink Grain-O instead? The latter does not act on the nerves, while it does nourish, warm, soothe, cheer and build up the body. It gives you what you need and does no harm. Prepared from pure grain. Try it and you won't go back to coffee. The whole family can drink Grain-O, at night, too, if you like -then sleep soundly. Ask your grocer for a package; 15c. or 25c. each.

While discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules recently, in a conversation with a friend, a surgeon who is employed by the Long Island Railroad, and who has a large private practice among people of social and business prominence in Brooklyn, the City of Churches, expressed himself quite forcibly, saying: "I don't wish my name to appear as an indorser of a medicine that is advertised to the public at large, but there are several of my private patients who have not required my services as much this spring as has been usual, and two of them I found had been taking Ripans Tabules, and were said to have been so much benefited by their use that I became very much interested in their cases, because the illness from which they had suffered was of a sort from which a doctor is no more free than other people are. It was dyspepsia, and I knew by my own experience just what that was and how difficult it is to treat it successfully. I finally tried Ripans Tabules myself and, 'by ginger,' they are all the circular pretends them to be. They are a first-class article. I can heartily indorse them. The formula is an old one, but with one or two slight changes that seem to add an effectiveness that was never before to be relied upon

SCHOOL NOTES.

The seniors are quite elated over the large sum they realized from their play, "The Stolen Will."

One of our twelfth grade English students was heard to remark the other day that "Bacon wrote Thanatopsis."

In the high room at certain hours of the day, it sounds as though some of the lower grades were learning to sing.

Have you tried to compute the amount of court plaster the chemistry class has been carrying since the late explosion?

The Chelsea Union School is in a flourishing condition under the management ot our faithful superintendent, Mr. Gif-

"The Stolen Will" which was played last Saturday evening, was a great success and a delightful time was enjoyed The physics class was given a treat

Friday, in the form of a first written lesson. You had not better inquire whether they want another. The school yard was kept quite well decorated with a great variety of articles the first of the week. It seemed to be a favorite resort of "the witches."

A person in a position where he could not view the German class while it was reciting, would be led to believe that a large party of freshly arrived emigrants held the floor.

In giving the definition of a section in geometry, the teacher asked the pupil this question, "After cutting an apple in two, what would you have then?" and the answer came, "An apple."

The chemistry class was enjoying its esson in the open air last Thursday morning. When trying to light hydrogen in air, the action of sulphuric acid on zinc was greater than expected, and the result was an explosion in which two of the boys were cut on the face and hands by fragments of glass. The rest of the students were welcomed by sulphuric acid in their faces and on their garments.

Couple of Anecdotes.

The following 'anecdotes regarding John J. Robison were taken from the last ssue of the Ann Arbor Argus, and were characteristic of that gentleman: Mr. Robison helped many a man during his long career, not only with his purse, but by good advice, timely given and in forcible words. He was a famous story teller and his friends were always delighted with his conversation. In driving through the country, everyone stoped to greet him and he left some remark for them to chuckle over as he drove on. He was a man of strong and winning personality. Many stories will be told illustrative of his characteristics. When mayor of the city he caught two men fighting in the street, he grabbed each by the back of the collar and holding them at arms length shook them well and gave them their choice of going home peacably or jall. When Judge Joslyn changed the spelling of his name and announced to the assembled bar from the bench, that hereafter his name was to be spelled Joslyn instead of Joslin, Mr. Robison gravely arose and solemnly announced that thereafter his name should be spelled Robyson. When Prince Michael of Flying Roll fame was in jail awaiting sentence, Mr.Robison paid him a visit and was greeted sanctimoniously by Prince Michael with the remark "It is a consolation to be visited in this my hour tribulation. My dear brother-" "Stop right there, Mike," interrupted Mr. Robison, "I don't allow any wretch like you to call me 'brother,' you don't belong to the human family."

Larrigan's Bell.

In the farce comedy, Larrigan's Ball, which will be presented at the Opera House, Monday, November 15, 1897. many catchy and up-to-day especialties are introduced. Messrs. Carroll & Kale in their funny sayings and doings, Miss Bosie Stevens, the bright and dashing soubrette, will introduce her new songs and dances, Mr. Frank Budd has never failed to captivate the entire audience with his singing. Miss May Connolly, the queen of all buck and wing dances, will also introduce her negro specialties and songs, Miss Carrie Holton will sing her latest New York success, and many others who are included to make Larrigan's Ball one of the best farce comedies now on the road.

What if Not Miracles?

The great Four-C Remedy is doing work wherever introduced as nearly miraculas as it ever falls to the lot of any human agency to do (I will esteem it a favor for any one interested to write the persons whose names appear below or anyone whose name may appear among these testimonials.)

My aim is to convince the public of my sincerity and of the true merits of this remer-

BENEFACTORS OF THE RACE.

Office of "Kingpisher Times," Kingfisher, Okla., Dec. 12, '82. Kingfisher. Okla.. Dec. 12, '93. f
GENTLEMEN:—I believe it my duty to write you a line in regard to the beneficial effect of Phelps'
"Four C Bemedy," so far as I am personally concerned. A week ago last Thursday, I was taken with a severe attack of la grippe and in a short time became so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. The night previous I had coughed nearly the entire night; just before retiring I took a teaspoonful, and slept the entire night as sweetly as ever I did in my life, not coughing once. I was entirely relieved before taking one bottle. Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure should be in every househeld in the land. I send you this wholly unsolicited by anyone, for you are benefactors of the race in giving it the antidote for some of the worst afflictions to which it is heir.

Very Truly Yours,
