WHAT IT COSTS

You Can Figure Out the Amount of Your Taxes for the Year 1897.

TAXES LOWER IN MOST DISTRICTS

The Amount for This District is $13.10 on $1,000.

By taking the following table, which was given us by Supervisor Lightball, a person who knows the amount of his valuation can figure out the exact amount of his taxes for this year.

The state tax $2.40 on each $1,000 valuation, the county tax $1.10, and the township tax is $2.40, making a total of $5.90 for the three.

The following gives the school tax and the total tax for each school district in soon and had taken this means of getting rid of her? Thoughts of this and kindred character passed through her brain;

but she made up her mind that she would not shed a tear for one so faithless, "So there, now." But before many stations had been passed the conductor brought her a message which put to flight the many fancies of her brain. The young man simply stood there and let his train go away bearing its precious burden, and did not realize his predicament until too late to catch the fast disappearing train.
Of course the young lady read him a lecture on the importance of paying more attention to his increased duties, and he has made all sorts of promises as to his future behavior, but his friends still wear a broad smile whenever they meet him.

PURE FOOD.

Commissioner Grosvenor is Doing His Best to Get It.

State Dairy and Food Commissioner Grosvenor, in his October bulletin, just issued, wades into the vinegar company of St. Louis, Mo., for trying to sell its vinegars in this state when the quality of the goods does not meet the requirements of the law. The analysis of the food inspector shows the vinegar to be a spirit vinegar colored with burnt sugar, and dealers are warned not to be found with it in their possession.

Cheese and creamery inspector Havens visited sixteen cheese factories and fifteen creameries during the month. Of the cheese factories nine are reported in good condition, four fair and three bad;
the condition of eleven creameries was reported good, two extra good and two fair. The sixteen cheese factories have 884 patrons and use 47,000 pounds of milk
daily. The fifteen creameries have 1,589
patrons and use 68,800 pounds of milk
daily.

Dairy inspector Barron visited forty-one dairies during the month in northwestern Michigan, and found the cows generally clean, some of the stables dirty and the ventilation and sanitary conditions generally poor.

cessities to human life, as the human ton destruction of both does not cease.

Every farmer ought to post notices forbidding hunters—and we are glad to say many have done so—from going on their premises, and if they persist in doing so, arrest them for trespass.

No crime ever goes unpunished. And this crime of slaughtering everything in sight which seems to have taken possession of some people, will surely have its punishment, in which thousands of innocent will have to suffer.

The penalty for trespassing, where signs have been put up, is in substance
as follows:

"To hunt for game, with firearms, dogs or otherwise on the enclosed lands or premises of another without the permission of the owner or lessee is a misdemeanor. The penalty, on conviction, is a fine of not less than five nor more than twenty dollars, in the discretion of the court, and costs. And if the fine is not paid, the defendant shall be confined in the county jail not less than five nor more than thirty days."

A GREAT ROAD.

Commissioner of Railroads Has No Suggestions for the Central.

Commissioner Wessellus pays the Michigan Central railroad a fine compliment in his annual report. He says:

"Nothing can be added in the way of favorable comment on this excellent line.
It is as near perfection in the way of construction, appointments, service and able management as can be conceived in modern railroad. No skill or expenditure has been spared to make it the model railroad of the country. Improvements are constantly being added in the way of heavier and more substantial construction, interlocking appliances, etc.
The general appearance of the property,
the symmetry of the grade, cleanliness of the right of way, station buildings with ornamental and well kept grounds and perfect fences, attract special attention." In another report the commis-

HE GETS THE LAUGH.

A Bridegroom Who let His Bride get Away from Him.

The friends of a young man who lives less than a thousand miles from this place are enjoying considerable merriment at his expense. He married an est-
-timable young lady who lived not farther from this place than did he. The happy couple went to Detroit to visit friends and on the third day after the wedding thought that they would return home.
The young man escorted his bride to the train and saw her seated comfortably, bade her a tearful farewell while he should go and get the baggage checked.
While on this errand he ran across a friend and stopped to chat with him for a moment.

The time for the departure of the train arrived and no husband appeared within the vision of the now almost frantic bride.
The train started and still no signs of her husband did she discover. Visions of a young man meeting an untimely death amid the whirl and bustle of a large city passed before her. Or, could it be possible that he had tired of her so two samples of food products, thirty-five teen of these samples were colored elec-ing extracts.

to a discussion of the oleomargarine question.

Which Shall It Be—Kill or Live?

Ann Arbor Courier: The miserable pot hunters, who go out in the country with the idea that they must kill some-thing, anyway, are destroying many of our native and insect eating birds. The result will be that insects and worms will become such pests within a few years that no one will be able to raise anything.
The plagues that once visited Egypt will be renewed here in the new world, and mankind will have to pay the penalty for its own foolishness.

The person who lawlessly or uselessly kills a bird commits a crime against the human family. The same is true of the one who needlessly cuts down a tree.

Both the birds and the trees are nesloner says; "Upon the Air Line divi-sion stone culverts have been substituted for ten bridges. Great attention has been paid to the rounding out of the shoulders of the roadbed, which is a mar-vel of smoothness and beauty; and the entire right of way presents a most hand-some and finished appearance. The fences are in perfect condition. The en-tire line presents—with its cars, its equip-ments, its service, its conveniences and its buildings—a monument of liberality in expenditure, of far-seeing railroad man-agement, of good taste and of engineer-ing skill of which the state may justly be proud. The station houses are many of them expensive and handsome structures and in general everything that could be desired. A special point has been made to beautify the station grounds that are in many places well kept lawns, adorned with graceful walks and a profusion of plants and flowers."

DEFEAT FOR BRITAIN.

TRIBESMEN WIN A DESPERATE FIGHT AT MAIDAN VALLEY.

Gen. Westmacott's Column Retreat. Under a Telling Fusillade—Hints at Russian Plotting—The Next Session of Congress to Be a Short One.

Many Soldiers Killed.

News comes from London that the British troops suffered a severe defeat in the Maidan Valley. How serious the Westmacott's command suffered is not exactly known, but the repulse was disastrous. The affair brings to mind that Lord Salisbury slurred over the Indian war in his speech at the Mansion House, and carefully avoided mention of the name and of Russia. It is deemed certain that the fanatic tribesmen have substantial backing and are able to procure rifles of the most approved pattern. The question is from whom? Lord George Hamilton, secretary of state for India, made up later for the forgetfulness of his chief. Speaking at Acton, he broadly hinted at Russian plotting, and intimated that annexation of the disturbed region was the best way out of the difficulty. He forgets, however, that in these plans he will have to reckon not only with the same, but with Russia. Urgent action is certainly necessary to crush the revolt, which is causing serious irritation among the British people.

Next Session of Congress.

In an interview in Washington Congressman Hopkins of Illinois says that he is of the opinion that the next session of Congress will be of short duration, not lasting beyond May. With a free silver majority in the Senate he does not see any hope for currency legislation during the life of the present Congress, and a knowledge of the uselessness of attempting it will, in his opinion, keep Congress off the subject. The feeling that undue agitation under existing conditions would be a waste of time will grow and tend to turn discussion into other channels. Mr. Hopkins expresses the belief that Hawaii will be duly annexed without delay or serious opposition. Touching Cuba, Mr. Hopkins has this to say: "My opinion about Cuba is that unless we are absolutely compelled to interfere from motives of humanity, it were better for us to maintain an attitude of neutrality. The quarrels of other nations are not our affairs."

Four Men Injured.

By the collapse of a three-story brick building which was being remodeled at the south end in Boston, four men were injured, one of whom, it is said, will probably die.

BREVITIES.

E. A. Woods, a prominent real estate man of St. Louis, is missing. Mrs. Margaret Boughan, who claimed to be 124 years old, died at Chicopee Falls, Mass. Samples of ore from the Robert E. Lee mine in South Dakota assayed $1,966 in gold per ton. The Governors of the New York Stock Exchange have prohibited betting on the floor of the exchange. Statistics from Washington are that the average yield of corn per acre this year is 23.7; last year, 27.3. At Dayton, O., B. F. Hargrave shot himself in the heart while suffering with rheumatism. He was 62 years of age. The latest trust reported to be in process of organization is a gigantic combination of insulated wire and electric cable manufacturers. Robert T. Lincoln has been elected acting president of Pullman's Palace Car Company. The election of a permanent president has been indefinitely postponed. John P. McKinnon, formerly a wealthy lumberman of Detroit, disappeared from the steamer City of Alpena between Cheboygan and Port Huron, and is believed to have jumped overboard. Information from Hancock County, Tenn., is that the feud between the Eppersons and Williamses, growing out of the killing of William Epperson and Chas. Epperson, has broken out again. The Board of United States General Appraisers at New York has decided that the tariff act went into effect at 4 o'clock p. m., July 24, 1897, and that goods entered before that date are dutiable under the old law. Charles A. Dana left an estate valued at between $1,000,000 and $1,200,000. His wife is given all the property, except the stock in the New York Sun, which is left to his son Paul, in trust for the widow and children. The Yukon Company of Seattle has contracted with the Roach Shipbuilding Company for 5,000-ton steamships to ply between Seattle and St. Michael's. They are to have a speed of sixteen knots, and have accommodations for 1,000 passengers. Miss Grace M. Elliott, of San Francisco, was a little too premature in the distribution of cash gifts to institutions based upon her inheritance of $25,000, - 1 based upon her inheritance of a $25,000, 000 estate. The inheritance has now proven to be a myth. Premier Sagasta of Spain has sent a cablegram to the United States government declaring: "So far from seeking a pretext to declare war against the United States, Spain would regard it as a great misfortune to be given the occasion for such an unhappy resolution." Ex-State Treasurer Booker of North Dakota, recently indicted for making a fraudulent report of the condition of the Grand Forks National Bank, of which he is president, is missing. Prince Bismarck has been sued by his head forester for an additional pension which the ex-chancellor refused to grant him. Three men blew open the safe in Heine's bank at Silver Creek, N. Y., securing $10,000 in money and $4,000 in jewelry. They afterward attempted to rob the safe in a neighboring mill, but were frightened away. The watchman was beaten badly.

EASTERN.

Wilson Brothers, wholesale and retail jewelers of Boston, Mass., made an assignment. Willimantic woolen mills put to work the full force on a full-time schedule of sixty hours a week. James Ponder, former Governor of Delaware, died at his home in Milton, that State, of paralysis. He was 78 years of age. Ex-United States Senator Nathan Fellow Dixon died at his home in Westley, R. I., after an illness of about three weeks. At Stoneboro, Pa., the boilers at the Mercer Iron and Coal Company's works exploded. Three men were killed and seven injured. At Greenwich, Conn., Henry O. Haremyer, who was operated upon for appendicitis, is still very low, although recovering slowly. Rear Admiral Alexander Colden Rhind, U. S. N., the hero of Fort Fisher, is dead at his home in New York. He had been confined to his bed for five weeks. The New York Chamber of Commerce has passed resolutions urging the President and Congress to take immediate steps to strengthen the defense of Gotham's harbor. Orders have recently been sent from Washington to push forward the new fortifications at Finn's Point, N. J., on the Delaware river. Double-shifts of men are now at work. The Upsala College at New York, of which the Rev. L. H. Beck is president, has signed contracts with a real estate company providing for the removal of that institution to the city of New Orange, N. J. There are twenty-seven steamships now in port or under charter at Philadelphia to load grain for European ports. Most of the grain will be shipped in the next few weeks. These steamers will carry an aggregate of 3,100,000 bushels of corn and wheat. So far this year the shipments of corn have aggregated nearly 22,000,000 bushels, as against less than 7,000,000 in 1896, and of wheat 3,993,880 bushels, compared with 3,840,616 last year.

WESTERN.

George S. Shaw, president of the Cloquet Lumber Company, died suddenly at his residence in Cloquet, Minn. He was 75 years of age. Temple Emanuel, the Jewish synagogue at the corner of Twenty-fourth and Curtis streets, Denver, was totally destroyed by fire. Loss, $35,000. Acting Mayor Scober, of Denver, has approved the ordinance recently passed by the Council fixing a license fee of $1,000 for all dealers in cigarettes. Ah-oo-Cho-Kah, the oldest member of the Wineago Indian tribe, died at Tomah, Wis. He was believed to be between 105 and 125 years of age. Nine miles east of Belton, Mo., Arthur Wright killed John Hess and shot the latter's father, William S. Hess, at their home. All those involved are farmers. The boiler of a Burlington engine exploded three miles west of Crawford, Neb., instantly killing Engineer H. C. Simpson and Fireman E. M. Robinson. Smarling under a fancied insult and crazed with drink, John McIntosh shot and killed Saloonkeeper Frank Potmyer at Logansport, Ind., and wounded a sister and two brothers of the dead man. Two brass buttons with the initials of the Duluth police department were found in the stomach of a moose dressed in that city. As one of the patrolmen is out on a moose hunt the department is somewhat agitated. State Insurance Superintendent O'Rear at Jefferson City has decided that organizers of fraternal beneficiary insurance associations must have licenses to do business in Missouri, the same as regular old-line companies. At Mankato, Minn., John A. Willard, a millionaire banker, has made an assignment. Mr. Willard estimates his direct liabilities at about $480,000. All is secured with what was supposed to be ample security. His direct liabilities are perhaps double the size of his direct. The schooner Volvano, only seventeen tons burden, has arrived at San Francisco after riding out a storm in midocean, in which her compass was lost. Capt. William Kissel succeeded in making port after a voyage of 1,100 miles with no other guide than the sun, stars and the trend of the currents. At Carson, Nev., Julian Guinan, aged 16, shot and fatally wounded Charles Jones, United States district attorney. Jones died soon after the shooting. Guinan surrendered himself at the sheriff's office and confessed. He claims to have killed Jones thinking he was about to attack Guinan's father. The United States Supreme Court has affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court for the California district refusing a writ of habeas corpus to William Henry Theodore Durrant, under sentence of death for the murder of Miss Blanche Lamont in San Francisco in April, 1895. The decision permits the law to take its course with the condemned man. An Atlantic and Pacific passenger train was held up by four men near Grant's station, N. M. After blowing open the express company's safe, the robbers wrecked the train, which caught fire, the express, baggage and smoking cars being totally destroyed. It is not known how much money the robbers secured, but it is thought a large amount was carried by the train. Nineteen lives were lost by the sinking of the steamer Idaho of the Western Transit line. The accident happened off Long Point, in Lake Erie, about sixty-five miles west of Buffalo, on the Canadian side. A strong southwest gale was blowing at the time. Off Long Point the steamer shipped a big sea, which quenched the fires in the engines and the boat was helpless. The captain and crew were lowering the lifeboat when the vessel gave a lurch and went down on her side, stern first. Two of the crew managed to reach the top of a single spar that stood above the water. There they clung until eight hours later, when they were discovered by the lookout on the Mariposa of the Minnesota line. A St. Paul, Minn., special says: "When the early crop of wheat once gets out of the farmers' hands, after the holidays, it's likely to bring a decidedly better price. Yes, that price would be more than a dollar a bushel. And never has there been a better outlook at this time of the year for high prices during the following season. Next year will be a year of high-priced wheat." The foregoing estimate was made by Oliver Dalrymple, the bonanza farmer of the Red River valley. "There is certainly a shortage in wheat supplies at the present time," continued Mr. Dalrymple, "and the consensus of opinion is that winter wheat will turn out less than an average crop next spring. All the farmers up in Dakota are naturally feeling good in spite of the small crop. We have high prices at last. I'm just on my way to Casselton to pay off my men, and let me tell you, I do it with a good deal more satisfaction than I have experienced for a number of years."

SOUTHERN.

The House of Representatives of the Georgia Legislature has passed a bill by a vote of 73 to 19, making the playing of football within the State limits a misdemeanor, and imposing a fine for violations of this act. The Hotel San Marco, one of the finest and most commodious in St. Augustine, Fla., was burned to the ground, entailing a loss of about $250,000, with less than $50,000 insurance. The fire was started by incendiaries, who made the work sure. The total attendance at the Tennessee centennial exposition was 1,682,365. The indebtedness is only $30,000, while the property of the exposition company is valued at far more than this sum, and there are uncollected assets amounting to $30,000. The Georgia House of Representatives has passed a bill making it unlawful to play a prize or match game of football where an admission is charged. One thousand dollars fine or one year in the penitentiary, or both together, were fixed as the penalty. James Conley, a prominent cotton planter, and W. H. Booe, of the firm of W. H. Booe & Son, became involved in a dispute over a settlement at Lonoke, Ark., when Booe drew a revolver and shot Conley five times, twice in the back, and both lungs were pierced. Judge John J. Jackson, in the United States Court at Martinsburg, W. Va., has decided that under the civil service law transfers cannot be made without trial, holding that it is equivalent to removal, and that the appointment of a man to a Federal position under the civil service law gives him a right in equity to the place which he is not forced to surrender save for cause.

WASHINGTON.

Secretary Alger has recommended an increase of the army by two regiments of artillery. Walker Fearn, one of the judges appointed by the President on the Egyptian international court, has resigned on account of ill health. A convention between the United States, Russia and Japan, looking to the joint protection of the seals, was signed at the state department at Washington. It requires the approval of the Senate to become operative, and will not be made public until the same is received. The heirs of the late Millionaire Andrew J. Davis have secured a writ of error from Justice Brewer at Washington and will push their claim for the stock of the First National Bank of Butte, Mont., valued at $1,000,000. Before he died Davis is alleged to have given the bank to his favorite nephew, Andrew J. Davis, Jr., and the latter has held it since. Gen. Wade Hampton, who has just been succeeded by Gen. Longstreet as commissioner of railroads, has submitted to the interior department at Washington his report for the last fiscal year. He says that the year marked the low-water mark of railway construction. During the year thirty-four companies, with 5,441 miles of road, passed into the hands of the courts, and fifty-eight others previously placed in receivership were sold at foreclosure. A steady improvement in railroad earnings during the first six months of the current year is noted, an improvement particularly apparent in the bond-aided Pacific railroads. The outlook in the West generally for the present year is reported encouraging. The first annual report of Commissioner of Pensions H. Clay Evans to the Secretary of the Interior at Washington has been made public. A summary follows: "There were added to the rolls during the year the names of 50,101 new pensioners, and there were restored to the rolls 3,971 pensioners who had been previously dropped; a total of 54,072. During the same period the losses to the roll were 31,990 by death, 1,074 by remarriage of widows and mothers, 1,845 by legal limitation (minors), 2,683 for failure to claim pension for three years and 4,560 for other causes; an aggregate of 41,122. The whole number of pensioners on the rolls June 30, 1897, was 976,014. The net gain over the previous year was 5,336. The amount disbursed for pensions by the pension agents during the year was $139,790,242.12, and the amount disbursed by treasury settlement was $150,475,23; a total of $139,949,717. This exceeds the amount disbursed during the fiscal year 1896 by the sum of $1,584,480."

FOREIGN.

The latest war talk concerns a probable conflict between Japan and Russia over Korean affairs. Marshal Blanco has issued a proclamation pardoning all Cubans who have been prosecuted for the crime of rebellion. The Emperor of China and the Board of Revenue have approved a memorial presented in favor of establishing a gold standard and prohibiting the export of gold. Albert Carre, manager of the Theater du Vaudeville, was given a scratch on the arm, in a duel at Paris, by Editor Servanines, of the Paris. The affair grew out of a newspaper article. Honolulu friends of ex-Queen Lil are going to Washington this winter to plead her cause before Congress. The anti-annexation movement appears to be gathering strength, many wealthy sugar planters having joined it. Turkey, under the threat from the Bulgarian Government that unless the promised berats to the Bulgarian bishops in Macedonia should be granted, Bulgaria would declare independence, finally acceded to the demands and granted the berats. A man named Hinde sued the Prince of Wales at London to recover $300,000 alleged to have been wrongfully paid him by the late Under Sheriff Croll, who was the liquidator of the United Kingdom Electric Telegraph Company. The plaintiff declared that the money belonged to Mr. Allen, of whose estate he was the assignee. The case was thrown out of court on a technicality. A letter received in London from Vienna says the published reports of the political situation in the Austrian empire convey no adequate idea of the chaos prevailing. "Badeni must go!" is the general war cry now, and the Premier's downfall is considered inevitable, regardless of the outcome of the present fight between the Germans and the Czechs. No one can foresee how it will end. There is likely to be a complete change in the policy of Spain in dealing with the United States, according to the view taken by Englishmen. This is attributed to the printed utterances of former United States Minister to Spain Hannis Taylor. News comes from Madrid that the cabinet intends to abandon its plan of conciliation and will inform the United States in diplomatic but plain language that Spain will do as she pleases regarding the granting of reforms in Cuba. It is also said in Madrid that Mr. Taylor's strictures on Spain will work hardship for the Competitor prisoners in Havana. It has been understood that these Americans would have only a perfunctory trial and would be released as a mode of appeasing public clamor in the United States, but now the statement is made on apparent authority that they are to be prosecuted to the fullest extent. Spain will claim that her officers were within their rights in capturing the Competitor, and that the protocol of 1887 referred to American citizens residing in Cuba.

IN GENERAL.

The total losses by fire for October in the United States and Canada aggregate $11,387,500. John Fortier, wanted by the Chicago police on two indictments for larceny and embezzlement, was arrested at Longueuil, Quebec. Fortier admits having stolen $20,000 from Straw, McCoy & Co., clothing importers of Chicago, for whom he was bookkeeper. Seven trustees of the W. C. T. U. Temple have resigned, including Miss Willard, who was forced to retire because of other pressing duties. Several of the others who resigned were opponents of Mrs. Carse, and their action is considered a victory for her. Charles R. Hosmer, of Montreal, general manager of the Canadian Pacific telegraphs, general manager of the Pacific Postal Telegraph Company and vice president of the Commercial Cable Company, says that within the next year the Canadian Government will undoubtedly construct and complete a telegraph line to Dawson City. The steamer George W. Elder has arrived at Nanaimo, B. C. Among her passengers was Donald Nicholson, who left Dawson Sept. 23. Mr. Nicholson says the food problem was a most perplexing question when he left Dawson. Seven steamers were then overdue. Nicholson says that Skookum Gulch proved an absolute failure outside of one claim. He believes the country to be rich, but it can never be properly developed until provisions are cheaper. Work is plenty at $1.50 per hour. The gold commissioner and mounted police do not consider it advisable, under existing circumstances, to collect the 20 per cent. royalty and to reserve alternate claims for the Government. The miners are not required to take out licenses, but have to pay $15 for staking claims, which pays for surveying and recording, and $100 for the claim the second year. F. W. Valle, assistant superintendent of the railway mail service at Portland, Ore., has received a letter from Dyea stating that a party started Oct. 22 with 300 pounds of late mail for Dawson. The Canadian police were in charge, and the mail was drawn by dog teams. Bradstreet's commercial report says: "Killing frosts South, the raising of quarantine embargoes at nearly all States invaded by yellow fever, the resumption of traffic and a prospective revival in demand for staple merchandise constitute the trade features of the week. Rains in central western and western States, followed by colder weather, have favored farmers and stimulated demand from interior storekeepers. This has had a favorable effect at Louisville, St. Louis and Kansas City. Jobbers in northwestern States are awaiting seasonable weather to stimulate the movement of heavy dry goods and winter clothing. Leading manufacturing industries continue fairly well employed. In addition to lower prices for Southern and Bessemer pig and for steel billets, quotations for naval stores, wools, copper, coffee, pork, flour, oats and wheat are lower, while those for cotton, print cloth, sugar and beef are unchanged, and for Indian corn and lead, are a shade higher. Wheat exports—four included as wheat—from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week aggregate 5,575,216 bushels, compared with 5,911,391 bushels last week. Exports of Indian corn this week amount to 2,199,550 bushels, compared with 1,589,000 bushels last week."

GOLD TO HELP TRADE.

FIFTEEN MONTHS SHOW A GAIN OF $112,000,000. Whole Stock Increases—Money of All Sorts Is Much Easier Now than It Was Twelve Months Ago—Cubans Poor and Starving. Counterfeiting Is Decreasing. The first annual report of Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer of the United States, has just been completed. It shows, among other things, that money is much easier than it was a year ago. At the end of the fiscal year of 1896 the aggregate currency and specie in circulation was $1,507,407,531, while at the close of the fiscal twelve months of 1897 this amount increased to $1,641,190,097, while during the same period the total stock of money in circulation and in the treasury mints increased from $2,348,335,571 to $2,500,371,978. A gratifying improvement in the condition of the stock of money has occurred in the increased proportion of gold which has entered into circulation. The estimated gain of gold to the country in the fifteen months ending Oct. 1 is placed at $112,511,570, of which about $43,000,000 came from abroad. The redemption of national bank notes during the period covered by the treasurer's report entailed an expenditure of $125,061,73, which the national banks had to pay at the rate of $1.07 per $1.00 of notes redeemed. A special deposit of $70,000 of United States 4 per cent. bonds is held in the name of the comptroller of the currency for the benefit of the unfortunate Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati. Starvation Abroad in Cuba. "American citizens in Cuba are not starving, but I believe many others are," General Fitzhugh Lee, consul general at Havana, made this statement at New York, from whence he has sailed on the Ward Line steamship Securana. He added: "When I left Cuba many were dying of starvation. In Havana I did not see very much distress, but there was plenty in other parts of the island. During my absence I understand matters have grown much worse. There was no starvation at the place in Havana called Los Pinos when I left, but I am informed that destitute Cubans are starving there now and that there have been many deaths due to lack of food in other cities. The condition of the poorer classes in Cuba is deplorable. So far as the American citizens and their families are concerned, ample care is being taken of those who are in want. The appropriation by Congress of $50,000 for their relief will last for some time yet, certainly until after Congress meets again. We are taking care of 1,400 American citizens in Cuba. They are scattered all over the island—not in the country, but in the cities and towns. But for the action of Congress many of these Americans would have starved." NEWS NUGGETS. Sir Oliver Mowat is to be appointed lieutenant governor of Ontario. The Argentine wheat and flax crops have been injured by frost. Horatio David Davies, the new Lord Mayor of London, has been formally installed in office. Grover Cleveland's son and heir has been named. He will be "Richard Folsom Cleveland," after his grandfather. James Baker and High Warden, both colored, got into a quarrel over a load of wood at Dunkirk, O., and Warden killed Baker. A bill will be presented to the next Maine Legislature to punish sportsmen who accidentally shoot or kill men in the woods. Mrs. Mack, the New York murderess, has confessed the murder of William Guldensuppe and implicated her lover, Martin Thorn. She told her story in detail in court. At Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Amanda J. Baird, the Christian science healer, was fined $50 in police court for failing to report to the Board of Health a case of diphtheria she was treating. The iron manufacturers operating the blast furnaces through the Mahoning valley, Ohio, have decided to advance the wages of furnace employees 10 per cent, to take effect Wednesday, Dec. 1. The Campbell family, including John and Alexander Campbell, of Warren, Ohio, Mrs. McKinley, mother of President McKinley, and others have notice of a fortune left them in Scotland by an ancestor. The estate is large and steps will be taken to secure it. Two weeks ago Lynn Taylor went to Cincinnati instead of appearing at the side of Miss Mary Burns, at Cynthiana, Ky., the evening he was to make her his bride. The mortified and heartbroken girl took the matter so seriously as to prefer death by suicide to facing life afterward. Taylor committed suicide from remorse, adopting the same method as did Miss Burns, his affianced bride. He hanged himself. The trustees of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce have adopted a resolution asking the United States government to set aside the money obtained from the payment of the debts of the Union, Central and Kansas Pacific railroads, the fund to be applied to the construction of the Nicaragua Canal. The government was also asked to establish a patrol of the Yukon River, and to station two additional military regiments at San Francisco. The New Jersey supreme court has affirmed the sentence of eighteen months' imprisonment against J. Dixon Cunningham, a Chicago lawyer, convicted of embezzlement. Foreign orders for fifty-six locomotives have been booked by the Baldwin Locomotive Works within the last few days. The price aggregates $100,000. The directors of the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce have adopted a majority report of the committee on rules, advocating the amendment so as to make No. 1 northern wheat the only grade deliverable upon contract for future delivery. The vatican officially contradicts the published report that the forthcoming papal encyclical on the Manitoba school question will undertake to accept the compromise suggested by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier of Canada, namely, neutral schools, with religious instruction after school hours only.

GOVERNMENT CROP REPORT.

The Average Yield of Corn Shows to Be 23.7 Bushels to the Acre. The November report of the statisticians of the Department of Agriculture gives the average yield per acre according to the preliminary returns of the department's correspondents. The corresponding preliminary estimate last year was 27.3 bushels, and that of the principal corn States is as follows: New York, 32.5; Pennsylvania, 36.0; Ohio, 32.6; Indiana, 28.0; Illinois, 31.2; Nebraska, 25.0. The average per cent of quality is 85.3, as compared with 84.4 in 1896 and 92.3 in 1895. The preliminary estimate of the average yield of buckwheat is 20.7 bushels per acre, as compared with 18.7 bushels per acre and 20.1 bushels in 1896. The averages in New York and Pennsylvania, the two States of principal production, are 23 and 21 bushels per acre, respectively. The average per cent of quality is 94.2, as compared with 94.7 in November of last year. The average yield per acre of tobacco is 940 pounds, against 979 pounds per acre last year and 743 pounds in 1896. The estimated average yield per acre of Irish potatoes is 64.6 bushels, as compared with 89.8 bushels last year and 100.7 bushels in November, 1896. The average per cent of quality is 81.3, against 80.2 in November last year and 94.8 in November, 1895. The average yield of hay is 1.42 tons per acre, against an average of 1.21 tons per acre for the last fifteen years. In point of quality the average is 92.8 per cent, as compared with 92.9 per cent in November, 1896, and 91.3 per cent in 1895. Favorable conditions for the sowing of the fall crops are reported from most parts of Europe, and the condition of the crops, so far as sown, is likewise favorable. The opinion is freely expressed that an increased area has been sown in wheat, but this appears to be more as a matter of inference from the actual tendency of high prices to produce such an effect than as an observed fact. The crop reports from India continue favorable, and on the whole this is true as to those from Argentina and Australasia, but in all these countries the harvest is too remote to permit any very confident prediction as to the final outcome. In the case of Argentina it may prove that more damage has been done by the locusts and the spring frosts than is yet apparent. There is nothing to indicate that the wheat shortage in Europe is any less than has been supposed, while the crop of Manitoba is now represented to be much below the official estimate issued in August and that of the Canadian Northwest territory is poor. EMPLOYING COOLIES. Illinois Mine Owners Said to Be Importing Chinese Labor. The news that Chinamen are to be imported into the mines at Carbon Hill is not considered very seriously at Spring Valley. Men stood around the corners in knots discussing this latest phase of the strike situation in Northern Illinois, but the coolies did not interest them as much as the reported settlement at Bruceville, where it is stated the miners have accepted the operators' offer. The men in the Spring Valley district are indignant over the action of the Bruceville men in accepting a settlement below the scale. The Spring Valley men claim to have the strike won, and the leaders say that no matter if Bruceville does return to work at a non-union scale the Spring Valley men will hold out until next May, if necessary, for the scale formulated at Springfield. Ladd, Bentonville, La Salle and Peru are equally firm. The labor leaders scoff at the idea of the coolie movement being a success. They say it is only a bluff. Said one prominent leader: "What if they do succeed in working one obscure mine with Chinamen? That does not necessarily break the strike. We are not going to let 200 Chinamen at Carbon Hill make the price of coal digging for 2,000 white miners of Northern Illinois. The very fact that the Northern Illinois operators are importing 'coolie' labor is an indication that the white miners are poorly paid and evidence of their cause." A remonstrance against allowing Chinese coolie miners to be imported into the State for the purpose of mining coal at Wilmington and other towns in place of striking miners will be placed before Gov. Tanner in the name of the United Mine Workers of Illinois. The Governor will also be asked to co-operate with the State secretary of the Miners' Federation in keeping out the coolie labor. EVIDENCE IN NOVAK'S TRIAL. The Jury Is Secured and Witnesses Are Called to the Stand. The trial of Frank A. Novak, who is charged with the murder of Edward Murray at Walford, Iowa, last February, was begun at Cedar Rapids Tuesday. The work of securing a jury was completed by the noon recess. Immediately after noon the jury was sworn and County Attorney Tobin made the opening statement to the jury. He said that the State expected to prove that Novak was on the brink of financial ruin and insured his life for large sums of money, and that in murdering Edward Murray, which was a part of the previous plan, it was for the purpose of causing the people to believe that he (Novak) had perished in the ruins, and that it was done with the intent of defrauding the insurance companies. Judge Ney, assistant counsel for the defense, made the opening statement for the defendant. The taking of testimony was at once commenced. The steamer Diana, which went to the Hudson Bay coast last spring with a party of Canadian Government surveyors and scientists to determine the feasibility of Hudson Bay route for ocean steamers, passed through the Straits of Canoe on her way back to Halifax. Hiram L. Holden, 27 years old, cashier of the Central National Bank of Pueblo, Colo., killed himself during a fit of temporary insanity. He had a severe attack of fever a year ago, from which he never fully recovered. Examination of his books shows them correct to a penny. Read, Parsons & Co., stock brokers in New York, have suspended. It is said that they have no outstanding contracts on the exchange. The firm was composed until a few weeks ago of W. G. Read, Jr., and George B. Parsons. Mr. Read committed suicide.

A WOMAN'S HEART BY FLORENCE MARYATT

CHAPTER X.

If Sir Wilfrid Ewell had been sullen for two days after his last interview with Jane Warner, he was unhappy for many more than two days after his last interview with Lena St. Blaise. He had obtained the object of his desire. He had won the prize after which he panted. He had received the assurance which he had believed would make him happy forever. And yet he was not happy. On the contrary, he felt very miserable. The date of the wedding had already been discussed, and all but decided on, and Miss St. Blaise had hinted to him, with downcast eyes, that she would like of all things to visit Spain for the honeymoon. So that matter was settled and done with.

One evening Wilfrid took his sister Rosie to the theater, a rare occurrence, as her mother did not like her remaining out late. It was Saturday night, and the new piece, like most new pieces, took about twice as long as it should have done in representation, so that when the curtain fell, Sir Wilfrid found they had just missed the last train to Surbiton.

"This is awkward, Rosie," he said, consulting his watch; "I shall have to put you up for the night."

"Oh, lovely! Capital!" cried the girl, clapping her hands.

"Yes, that's all very well, my dear, but you're a nuisance. What am I to do with you? I don't like to take you to a hotel, and the St. Blaises are out of town till Monday. Let me see, I must take you down to Chelsea, where I used to live. I keep my rooms there still, and the Wilfrids will manage to give you a bed."

"And you will stay, too, Wilfrid?"

"Ah, yes! I intended to have run over there to-morrow. I often spend Sunday with them. It's so nice and cool at Chelsea. Now, here's a handsome jump in, and we'll be there in twenty minutes. You must be sure and not say a word about my engagement to the Warners, Rosie."

"Don't they know it? Why, Wilfrid, I should have thought you would be so proud you would tell every one."

"I haven't told them, and you must promise me not to do so, either."

"Of course I won't, Wilfrid."

When they arrived at Wolsley Cottage he left his sister in the cab, and walked up to the house alone. This time Sarah opened the door to him.

"Where is your mistress?"

"The old missus is in bed, sir; and Miss Jane's lying down in the parlor with a bad headache. I don't think she expected you to-night, sir."

He did not answer her, but walked straight into the parlor. As Jane saw him, she rose from the sofa with a slight cry.

"Oh, Will! I had quite given you up for to-night! What makes you so late, dear?"

"On the contrary, I hope we shall continue the closest of friends to our lives' end. And no one will be the wiser, you see. Not a soul knows we ever meant to be married, except Parfitt, and he has probably forgotten your name by this time. If it had been made public it would be different. But we are actually free to do as we like. And, after a while, you will doubtless marry also, and be much happier in a quieter position of life than you ever could be with me."

"You have fixed your fancy on some one else! You are in love with another woman!" exclaimed Jane, with the quick intuition of her sex.

Sir Wilfrid thought it might be the best plan to let her know the worst at once.

"You are right," he answered, with affected ease. "I have fixed upon my future wife; in fact, I am engaged to her."

"You shall never marry her!" cried poor Jane, passionately. "I will come between you at the very altar! Every one in church shall know how you have treated me, and that I am your wife, and you cannot marry any one else."

"I hardly think that, upon consideration, you would expose yourself to ridicule like that," replied Sir Wilfrid. "A mad woman forcing herself upon a wedding party in church and claiming the bridegroom as her property is not an unusual sight in this country, but it is not a role that obtains much sympathy. I think it would be better to let things slide. If you only keep your counsel, not a soul need ever hear of it again."

"My heart—my heart!" cried Jane Warner, pressing her hands against her side. But she did not weep. And the man was touched at last by her tearless pain. He walked up to her and put his arm about her waist.

"It need make no difference to us," he whispered, "or to our affection, Jane. If you like to consider yourself my property, do so. I shall never think of you as less—and would like to think so to our lives' end."

But she threw him off as if he had been a coiling serpent, ready to sting her.

"Your property!" she echoed scornfully. "And, having been false to me, you would now be false to her! No, no! if you go, you go; and I will see no more of you. I will never be your friend. I will be your wife—as I believe myself to be at the present moment—and nothing less. But that you can consent to give me up forever! Oh, my heart! my heart!"

"Of course, if you are obstinate, I can do no more," replied Sir Wilfrid sulkily. "It is not my fault if you take the business in such a confoundedly unpleasant spirit. And so, perhaps, I had better say good-by to you."

"Good-by!—good-by forever!" said Jane Warner, as she clinched her teeth desperately together.

"What! won't you kiss me? Are we to part like two strangers?" said Sir Wilfrid.

She turned and looked at him—such a look as two friends, condemned to die, might turn on one another for the last time—a look in which all the pent-up joy and pain of years seemed to be commingled—and then she left him, and Sir Wilfrid heard her go into her own bedroom and turn the key in the lock. So, after several appeals to the broken-hearted girl to come out and make it up again before he went, Sir Wilfrid, with a muttered oath against her obstinacy, flung himself downstairs and turned his back on the cottage at Chelsea.

CHAPTER XI.

Jane Warner perceived directly her husband returned that something had gone wrong. She guessed, from the violence with which he rang the bell, and the impatience he evinced at any delay that he was out of temper. But her spirit, also, had been roused from two or three hints that Rosie Ewell had let fall before her, and she determined not to be the first to ask for an explanation. So the hours slipped away until the eventide, and still Sir Wilfrid had spoken no sentence to her that might not have been addressed to the daughter of his landlady.

NEWS OF OUR STATE.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO MICHIGANDERS.

You Cannot Kill Charlie—Michigan Has Been Very Successful in Raising Black Bass—Sand Lake Couple Sleep Soundly—Divorced Husband Suicides.

Bears a Charmed Life. Charles B. Nelson of Cadillac, who was shot in the heart while sitting in a Chicago park with a girl last summer, and who recovered after physicians gave him up for dead, apparently bears a charmed life. Since the attempt on his life, Mr. Nelson was captured near Northport, six miles out in the lake, and was buffeted about in the angry waves a full hour before help came. Later he was hurried from the top of a high wagon, and though he landed on his head no serious injury resulted, and yet the doctor said any sudden shock might prove fatal to him.

Struck Rich Ore. The most important iron ore discovery on the Menominee range in several years has been made a few miles east of Crystal Falls. The find is located on the bank of the Michigan river, one mile south of the Mansfield mine. The ore body was discovered by George Mas of Mansfield, with the aid of a diamond drill. The drill hole was put down at an angle of 80 degrees and struck the ore at the depth of 117 feet. From that point to a depth of 194 feet the drill encountered nothing but clean ore that assays 62 per cent iron and .051 per cent in phosphorus, thus putting it safely within the Bessemer limit. The width of the vein must be about forty feet.

Hatching Black Bass. The State of Michigan has just completed the stocking of the new bass ponds at Mill Creek, a few miles north of Grand Rapids, and now commences some of the most important work ever attempted in the way of the artificial propagation of fish in the United States. The artificial raising of bass has been attempted many times in various States, but it has remained for Michigan to make a success of it, and show that it can be done. The feasibility of the work has already been proven, and now the State is well equipped for its carrying on.

Are Sound Sleepers. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Leszczynski of Sand Beach are sound sleepers. The other night a burglar broke into their residence, entered the bedroom in which they slept, walked up to a chair, which stood close to the head of the bed, and took $3 in cash and a watch and chain valued at $80 from the pockets of a pair of trousers, and decamped. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Leszczynski knew of the burglar's visit until they got up at the usual hour in the morning.

Couldn't Raise Funds. Willet Chase was released from the county jail at Owosso, where he had been confined for contempt of court in not paying alimony to his wife. A few evenings later Chase was found in the barn of Dillon Pittinger of Fairfield township, with his throat cut from ear to ear. He had promised his wife's solicitors to return to jail, in case he was unable to raise money to pay the alimony.

Curtice Wright Murderer. In the case of Benjamin C. Nunn at Gladwin, who was charged with being an accessory to the murder of Curtice Wright, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Roy Nunn, the 17-year-old son of Benjamin, who pleaded guilty to the murder of Wright, in his confession charged that his father had incited him to kill Wright.

Barber Runs Amuck. At Benton Harbor, George Congdon, a barber, made a murderous attack with a knife upon his 80-year-old father, Gordon Congdon, a younger brother, and Dr. J. J. Fabry, who had been called to attend Mrs. Congdon, who was dangerously ill. He stabbed his father several times and injured his mother so that she may die.

State of Good Quality Found. State of a promising quality has been found on section 14, town 48 north, range 34 west, near Covington. While it will not be possible to pronounce definitely upon the value of the find until more extensive work has been done upon it, the indications are favorable.

The Salt Product. The following is the monthly report of State Salt Inspector Caswell for October: Manisteg County, 171,874; Mason, 69,152; St. Clair, 49,064; Bay, 29,971; Saginaw, 28,511; Wayne, 28,078; Iosco, 6,235; Midland, 1,900; Total, 355,385.

At Coloma, John Brown's residence, together with its contents, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $1,200; insurance, $400. Mrs. Duncan McGathy of Goodland township, died suddenly in Cliff's photographic gallery at Imlay City, of heart trouble.

Burglars called on several rich Linden farmers the other night. H. Van Tiffin and George Taylor were relieved of about $50 each. Mrs. E. Woodruff, wife of Solomon C. Woodruff of Greenville, and one of its most prominent ladies, dropped dead from heart failure while calling on a neighbor.

INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE LESSON.

Reflections of an Elevating Character—Wholesome Food for Thought—Studying the Scriptural Lesson Intelligently and Profitably.

Lesson for Nov. 21.

Golden Text—"Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might."—Eph. 6: 10.

During Paul's imprisonment a report reached him from the Colossian Epaphras which caused him to write a letter to the Colossian church warning it against some dangers and expressing his love and anxiety for even those Christians whom he had never seen "in the flesh." The same message was needed by the church in Laodicea, not far from Colosse, and Paul accordingly directed that after reading it, the Colossians should send it to their sister church, receiving in return "The epistles from Laodicea" (Col. 4: 16). Now we have no epistle entitled "To the Laodiceans," but we have an epistle which many careful scholars think is the one referred to—namely, what is usually called the epistle to the Ephesians. In that epistle the name of Ephesus appears but once, in the first verse—"to the saints which are at Ephesus, and the faithful in Christ Jesus." In the margin of the revised version appears the note; "Some very ancient authorities omit 'at Ephesus.'" This does not give a fair idea of the many arguments which tend to prove that this epistle was not written to the Ephesians. Not only are the words "at Ephesus" wanting in some of our oldest and best manuscripts, but we read in the works of Basil, Jerome, Epiphanius and Tertullian that the words were omitted in the manuscripts known to them—dating far back of those now extant. Marcion the heretic speaks of this epistle as the epistle to the Laodiceans.

Reasons equally strong for rejecting the present title are thus stated by Conybeare and Howson: "(1) It would be inexplicable that St. Paul, when he wrote to the Ephesians, amongst whom he had spent so long a time, and to whom he was bound by ties of such close affection, should not have a single message of personal greeting to send. Yet none such are found in this epistle. (2) He could not have described the Ephesians as a church whose conversion he knew only by report (1: 15). (3) He could not speak to them as only knowing himself to be an apostle by hearsay (3: 2). (4) He could not describe the Ephesians as so exclusively Gentiles (2: 11; 4: 17) and so recently converted (5: 8; 1: 13; 2: 13). For these and other reasons it seems fairly well settled that this epistle was not written to the Ephesians but was a sort of circular letter to several of the newer churches in the neighborhood of Laodicea, in the province of Asia; in each copy the name of one of these churches being inserted, such as Laodicea, Philadelphia, Hierapolis. In these churches Paul had few personal acquaintances, and this accounts for the absence of personal messages. It also accounts for the general nature of the epistle. This theory is of course only a theory, but it is well supported.

This letter, which we may call a circular letter to some churches in Asia, was taken by the same bearers who carried the epistle to the Colossians and that to Philemon—Tychicus and the ex-slave Onesimus. Its general theme seems to be the unity of the church—in the broader sense of that word, including all true believers, which is found but seldom in the New Testament, but undoubtedly does not occur in Eph. 1: 22. This unity is first expounded, in the first three chapters, and then the means of realizing it through the Christian conduct of disciples who form the church, is set forth in practical exhortations, chapters four to six.

Explanatory.

"The whole armor of God" is of course the armor provided by God for his soldiers. The figure is that of a commander or a sovereign fitting out his army. "Our wrestling" indicates the individual, hand-to-hand character of the struggle. All ancient warfare had more of the personal nature than the modern tactics allow. "Principalities, powers, rulers of the darkness of this world, spiritual wickedness in high places." These phrases are certain to be obscure to the ordinary reader. Some careless readers suppose that Paul refers to earthly rulers, the Roman empire, for instance, with its system of oppression; and that "spiritual wickedness in high places" means the wickedness of high officials of the church. All this is foreign to his thought. He is speaking of a system of false philosophy, with just enough of Jewish and Christian truth in it to make its neo-Platonic errors plausible, known later as Gnosticism. It gained its greatest strength in the second century, but was certainly in existence during the latter years of Paul's life. This system included a series of angelic beings between God and man, to intermediate between them—since it was thought that God could not directly communicate with man. To these beings were given the names "powers," "principalities," "thrones," etc. They were regarded as having their abode in the "high places" of the universe, that is, in the upper spheres of the air. It is against these that Paul writes in such passages as Eph. 1: 21, Col. 1: 16, Rom. 8: 38. It is to be remarked, however, that Paul, in speaking of a warfare against the insidious errors of a false philosophy, does not confine himself to that. The whole sense of the passage seems to be that he uses these temptations, these errors, these dangers as an example of all with which the Christian soldier must contend—that is, all spiritual enemies. In his day many of them were external; to-day, perhaps most of the fighting has to be done with one's own spiritual faults.

His widow refused to give up these documents, whereupon a suit was brought. The suit was recently decided against her, but she has appealed to a higher court.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The Latin I class enjoyed a written lesson Thursday. We are glad to announce that the German class is improving.

The high school sang from their new song books and charts Wednesday morning. Miss Edna Notton of Francisco is now one of the members of the Chelsea High School.

Mrs. McKane was not here last week, so there was no music work in the high school Wednesday morning. The senior class gave their president an agreeable surprise last Wednesday evening.

All adjourned with light hearts and smiling faces. The singing on Wednesday morning sounded like hen cackling and the students were informed that they would have to begin with the baby chart.

Two of the chemistry students while filling a tube with hydrogen, held the sodium too near the bottom of the vessel and the result was an explosion from which they received a shower of water.

One of the boys whose office it is to carry the singing books from the high school room to the office, was like the lazy horse who tried to carry too heavy a load, and consequently let some of them fall.

On Monday morning the lips of the senior girls looked as if they had been rubbed against somebody's newly painted red barn. Any one missing the paint can obtain the same by calling at the school.

While one of the members of the chemistry class was coming up from the laboratory last Tuesday morning she missed her footing on the last landing and fell flat on the floor, but before one of the young men who was behind her, could help her, she had scrambled to her feet and was in a convulsion of laughter.

The pupils of the high school saw the proceedings and were in a roar when she entered the room. A New Companion Every Week. Fifty-two times a year The Youth's Companion goes into the homes of every one of its subscribers.

SHE MADE A GREAT MISTAKE.

Thought she would make Tom happy, but both are now miserable. Daughters' wealthy men who fall in love with their fathers' employees are not entirely restricted to novels.

There is a Chicago merchant whose confidential man has for some time been a suitor for his daughter's hand. There is another departure from tradition in the fact that his love affair is not as violently opposed as it might be.

He is a thoroughly capable and upright fellow, and his prospective father-in-law probably doesn't see why he wouldn't do just as well as a clubman or perhaps a nobleman for his daughter's husband.

Of course the two lovers like to be as much as possible in each other's company and try all sorts of little schemes and inventions to bring this happy state of affairs about. The other evening when the young man, whose familiar name is Tom, called at the home of his fiancée she was perfectly radiant.

"Oh, Tom, I have just the best piece of news to tell you!" she said to him. "Indeed!" was his reply. "Tell it to me right away."

"I know you will be so glad I did it," she continued. "Did what?" "I'm going to tell you all about it. Papa said this morning that he was going to California, to be gone a month."

He said I'd enjoy the scenery and the climate, and he thought there wasn't any trip that I'd like so much. Oh, he wanted me to go awfully bad, but I just thought that I wouldn't see you for a month, and so I took a stand. I must have made 50 excuses. Finally I told him that I'd promised to go to Cousin Maude's at Lake Geneva, and that I just couldn't break my promise, so at last he let me off. It was hard work, and I'm almost afraid I made him angry, but I knew you'd be so glad."

"Yes—um—of course," responded Tom. "Well, you don't look half as glad as I thought you would." "No—I—" he began.

"Then you're not glad," she said in a tone of mixed surprise and disappointment. "Well, no, darling," he said. "You see, I'm to go with him."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Toad as a Talisman. The Western Morning News reports a remarkable case of superstition. A young woman in Penzance had suffered from fits, and she adopted a remedy which would be to most people almost as repulsive as the disease itself.

She procured a live toad, placed it in a bag, hung it around her neck and carried it next her body. The woman was cured of her fits, but she was being medically attended at the Penzance infirmary at the same time. The woman believes, however, that this was a coincidence and that her strange talisman was the instrument of her cure.—South Wales News.

Bees' Brains. The brain of the honeybee has recently been studied by Dr. Kenyon of Clark university more thoroughly, it is said, than ever before. It is thought that the source of a bee's power to adapt itself intelligently to its surroundings has been discovered in certain peculiar objects in its brain called the "mushroom bodies."

Matched. "Here are a few letters I wish you would mail for me, dear," said Mrs. Tenspot to her husband, who was preparing to go out.

As Mr. Tenspot took them he glanced at the stamps and asked: "My dear, why did you put 15 cent stamps on these letters? Two cent stamps would have carried them."

"I know it," replied Mrs. Tenspot. "But how would a red stamp look on envelopes of that lovely violet shade? This new stationery is of an exquisite color, and I could not think of spoiling its effect with stamps which did not harmonize. These purple 15 cent stamps are the nearest match the postoffice keeps."—Harper's Bazar.

Bills offering a reward of $100 for the arrest of a fellow traveler under the name of Dr. H. Miller, alias Dr. Hartman and claiming to represent Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., have been circulated. It seems that the man has been traveling about the country and obtaining money from the people by getting their money and then failing to deliver the medicine. It was suspected that he was working in this section of the country and last night Deputies Wood and Staffan succeeded in arresting him at Grass Lake, but not before he had swindled a Mrs. Welhoff of Sylvan out of $20. He was brought to this place and is now stopping in the village jail. The fellow hired a livery rig of Deputy Staffan when he went on his last trip.

Crop Report.
The average condition of wheat on November 1 was in the southern counties, 75; central, 88; northern, 108, and State, 82, comparison being with vitality and growth of average years. The condition in the southern counties, where eighty-five per cent of the crop is grown, is thirteen per cent lower than one year ago. The average condition in the state in previous years has been: 1896, 90; 1895, 78; 1894, 94; 1893, 89; 1892, 87, and 1891, 91.

The severe drouth prevailing at the date of the October report was not broken in the southern and central sections of the state until October 11. Light rains occurred on the 5th-8th, but not in sufficient amount to be of benefit. On the 11th and 12th storms occurred generally throughout the state, the rainfall being sufficient to afford relief. Since this storm wheat has made fairly good progress. On fields favorably situated it is looking well, but a large proportion of the fields are more than ordinarily spotted. This is particularly true of rolling fields, where the tops and sides of hills are practically bare. There was a second general rain on the 19th-22d, and a lighter one on the 31st. These rains have been of great immediate advantage, but heavy, soaking rains are yet needed to place the ground in usually wet condition at the opening of winter. The rains in August, September and October were more abundant in the northern counties and wheat there is in fine condition.

The estimates indicate that the area seeded to wheat this fall is six per cent greater than sowed in the fall of 1896. The estimated excess in the southern counties is four per cent, in the central six per cent and in the northern fifteen per cent. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers since the October report was published is 1,963,968, and in the three months, August-September and October, 5,597,995. This is 2,198,831 bushels more than reported marketed in the same months last year. The average yield of corn per acre in the state is estimated at 61 bushels of ears, equal to about 30 bushels of shelled corn. The estimate for the southern counties is 60, central, 63, and northern, 61 bushels of ears. The average for the state is three bushels lower than made October 1. The area of clover seed harvested is large, at least much larger than in any late year, and the estimated average yield higher than ever yet reported in the farm statistics. The yield in the state is estimated at 1.92 bushels in the southern counties at 1.87, central, 2.16, and northern, 2 bushels per acre.

Potatoes are estimated to yield in the state 64 per cent of an average crop. The estimate for the southern counties is 60, central, 63, northern, 85, and upper peninsula 96 per cent.

Live stock is in good condition. The percentages are 96 for horses and cattle, 97 for sheep, and 98 for swine, comparison being with stock in good healthy and thrifty condition.

County Roads in Michigan.
The county road system in Michigan can be adopted by a majority vote in any county. Five road commissioners are elected, none of whom can in any way be interested in any contract that may be entered into by the board. They have full power to lay out county roads; to change the width, direction or location of existing ones; purchase property;

uniting with adjacent counties in laying out and maintaining roads; adopt any road as a county road, except that in incorporated villages the consent of the village must be obtained. They can grade, drain, gravel, macadamize or improve in any way according to their judgment; construct and maintain culverts and bridges, but can contract no indebtedness in excess of the amount at their disposal in the hands of the county treasurer. A county may by vote bond itself for road purposes and is liable for damages growing out of their bad condition. The system was adopted by Chippewa county in 1894, bonds for $100,000 issued, and in two years following nearly 160 miles of good roads were improved and built to the satisfaction of the people.—L. A. W. Bulletin and Good Roads.

FREEMAN'S

THE AUTOGRAPH BOOK OF BLUE

She gave him her book to write in—
Her autograph book of blue—
And she said: "Write it straight, now, Tommy."
And something nice and true,
Stiffly and squarely he wrote a line
For his queen with the eyes of blue—Proudly, and signed it, "Tommy"—
"Maggie, I love you true."

A youth came from a college—
A student grave and wise—
He looked at the little old autograph book;
He looked at her true blue eyes.
And he scribbled, with cynical smiling,
In the old, old book of blue,
Of the folly of love, and signed it,
"Thomas Reginald Hugh."

A man came from his labors,
Learned in the school of years;
Gazed at the little blue book, and dreamed.
And gazed, as he dreamed, through tears.
Then he looked and saw her smiling,
With tears in her eyes of blue,
And he wrote and signed it, "Tommy"—
"Maggie, I love you true."

IN THE "WHITE HORSE" VAULTS.

AND I'd give a year's salary to lay hands on the impudent rogues."
The chief constable of Wallburn was speaking to one of his subordinates, Inspector Miller.
"So would I, sir," responded that official; "and I don't believe there's a member of the force who wouldn't give a trifle to scrape an acquaintance with this Flash Jim—or whatever the fellow's name is. However, we've nothing to work upon."

"But these," put in the chief, displaying a number of coins. "Really, Miller, this fellow is an artist—a king among smashers. These coins are as near the real thing as it's possible to make them, and I've not the slightest doubt that I should have accepted them myself if they'd been tendered to me."

"Very possible, sir," went on Miller. "Mr. Markham, landlord of the White Horse, is as smart as most men, but he was bitten."

At that moment the magistrate entered the court house.

"Well," whispered the chairman, leaning over the table to the chief constable, "have you heard anything?"

"Several complaints this morning, sir. The rascal is still at work, but we have no clew as yet."

"Confound the fellow," muttered the chairman. "He's making a laughing stock of the finest force in the provinces."

There was only one item on the charge sheet that morning, and the prisoner pleaded guilty to having been drunk and disorderly.

"Ten shillings and costs or fourteen days," said the chairman, as soon as the constable had given evidence.

A gentleman in clerical attire here stepped forward and explained, with a profound lisp, that he was the curate of St. Olave's, Westmeath.

The prisoner, who was formerly one of his parishioners, had hitherto borne a blameless character, and to give him another chance in life, he (the curate) would pay the fine.

Having done so, he bowed politely to the bench and led the protégé from the court.

Half an hour later Inspector Miller hurried to the chief's room. In his excitement he forgot the respect due to his superior, and rapped out something very much like an oath.

"Miller!" ejaculated the chief constable.

"If beg your pardon, sir," stammered the inspector, "but—that is—the curate."

"Well?"

"He's slipped through our fingers, sir; can't be found anywhere."

"What on earth do you want him for?" demanded the chief.

"Beg pardon, sir, I forgot. He paid the fine in court this morning."

"I know that, man. Is that a crime, or are you—"

"Well, here's the money, sir," blurted out the inspector, throwing down a number of coins on the table.

With grave doubts as to the other's sanity, the chief picked up one of the coins and examined it—then another, and another, until all had been inspected.

"Spurious, every one of 'em!" he gasped, sinking into his chair.

For some minutes neither of them spoke. The very audacity of the thing had taken their breaths away.

a year or more he had been missing from his accustomed haunts—rumor said he had passed the time in jail—and it was only the other day that he turned up and claimed his corner in the bar of the "White Horse."

"Aye, aye," chuckled the old toper as he waddled over to the bar for "another two penny worth o' Scotch;" "Drinkin' Dan ain't—(hic)—the biggest fool alive."

"Of course, not, Dan, you're only one of 'em," returned Markham, as he pocketed the twopence.

The laugh was against Dan, and there was a dangerous gleam in the eyes of the half-witted wreck, as he lurched over to his old position in the corner.

About 5 o'clock on the following afternoon Dan staggered into the bar, a trifle more intoxicated than usual. The landlord, however, who was the sole occupant when Dan entered, served him with the usual "woppen'orth."

The customer placed a half-crown piece on the counter, which the landlord—after giving the change—threw toward the till. It fell on the floor, and something in its sound roused Markham's suspicions.

Picking up the coin, he examined it closely, while Dan began to shuffle toward the door. Too late, however, Markham sprang over the counter, seized the other by the collar, and dragged him into a private room.

"Where did you get that coin?" he hissed.

"Lemme go," pleaded Dan, huskily.

"Where did you get it?" repeated the other.

"A gint give it to me," stammered Dan, "and—"

"It's a lie!" hissed Markham. "Come, out with the truth."

"All right," responded Dan, desperately. "Let go my throat, will yer? I made it."

"So you made it, did you? And where did you get the die?"

"Stole it," growled Dan. "It once belonged to a fellow you knew—Hutton, the coiner."

"Hush, you crazy fool," hissed Markham. "Don't you know where you are?"

Stepping softly to the door, the landlord locked it, then, producing a bottle from the cupboard—was it the sight of that bottle that brought the triumphant gleam into Dan's eyes?—he poured out a couple of glasses.

"Come, Dan, here's to your health," said Markham. "It won't do for us to quarrel. I wasn't aware you knew—him."

"I knowed him twelve years ago," replied Dan, adding, with a keen glance at his companion, "an' I knows 'im now."

Markham winced, and glanced uneasily toward the door.

"Well," he demanded at length, "what do you want?"

"Work," replied his companion.

"And what about the dies?"

"I'll bring 'em whenever you like."

Half an hour later Drinking Dan emerged from a side door and shuffled off down the street.

The "White Horse" was a money-making establishment, night and day. When "closing time" came round, and the last shilling had rolled into the capacious till behind the counter of the bar, business was resumed in the vaults.

In the wee sma' hours of a November morning this particular branch of the business was in full swing, and profits were being literally coined.

Three or four ghostly figures flitted about in the semi-darkness. Silas Markham was engaged in earnest confab with his son—alias "Hutton the coiner," alias "Flash Jim," alias our old friend the curate—at the far end of the cellar, while Drinking Dan was busily engaged, near the heavily bolted door in the manufacture of spurious forins.

Suddenly the low but distinct mew of a cat reached the ears of the alert Dan.

Before the others were even aware of his intentions, the supposed drunkard sprang forward, shot back the bolt and faced around on the others with a revolver in each hand.

"Trapped, by heaven," roared Markham—or, rather, Hutton, Sr.—as a posse of police with the chief constable of Wallburn at their head rushed in.

The struggle was fierce but brief. The elder Hutton was soon overpowered; but his son, who had previously served a long term of imprisonment, for a similar offense, fought like a tiger. With his capture resistance was at an end, and the whole gang was secured.

"Tricked by a miserable gin-sodden drunkard," groaned the elder Hutton, as the handcuffs clicked on his wrist.

"You're wrong, my friend, if that's any consolation to you," said the individual referred to, stepping forward.

"Drinking Dan—who is, and has been for twelve months an inmate of the Wallburn workhouse—had been a member of the Hutton gang years ago, and from him I obtained all that I wanted to insure admission to the vaults of the 'White Horse,' and—well, you know the rest."—Casell's Saturday Journal.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

There have recently been one or two unpleasant accidents in Venice through gondolas being cut down by the "penny" steam launches.

In a new magazine camera the plates are placed in a row in a chamber opposite from the lens and held by a spring, each plate dropping down into a recess in the bottom of the camera after it is exposed.

An Illinois man has invented an attachment for guitars consisting of a frame to be screwed on the head with a number of padded bars set in it with keys to be depressed by the fingers and produce different chords.

To support pie crust so it will not fall while the pie is baking a new appliance consists of an inverted cup with a wide flange around the top on which the crust rests, with an outlet in the center for the escape of gases.

An automatic door for furnaces and locomotive boilers has a standard set on the end of a rod which runs through the floor and operates a lever to raise the door and swing it back whenever the standard is stepped on.

In a new winding mechanism for watches a set screw is placed in the two-part key to adjust the fractional contact so as to just overcome the tension of the mainspring until nearly wound, when the key slips, thus preventing over-winding.

Casks and barrels are automatically tilted in a new holding frame as they become nearly empty by weighted pivoted levers under the rear of the barrel, the weight of the contents being sufficient to counterbalance the weights until it is almost gone.

A Maryland man has invented a shirt with a detachable bosom, which is made double to fold through the center and form four wearing surfaces, so that as fast as one surface becomes soiled it can be replaced by another until the four are used.

An improved tie for horses or cows has a shield or apron stretched across a frame and fastened to the edge of the manger, the halter rope being secured to the outer edge of the apron frame to keep it tipped up while the animal is feeding and prevent waste.

An electric bath cabinet has been invented by a German which has wooden racks arranged at each side of the tub with electric connections to the racks and bars across the top so the body of the bather completes the circuit by touching the bars.

Two Frenchmen have invented a tandem attachment for single wheels, consisting of a supporting frame, to be attached to the rear shaft and saddle post, with a pair of oscillating pedal cranks, to be mounted on the rear shaft to push the front cranks forward in turn.

The shock of collisions between ships can be lessened by means of a new device, which consists of a number of cylinders having pistons set in them to extend out from the sides of the ship, with an air-cushion in the cylinder to act as a buffer when the blow is struck.

Corduroy Road of Ancient Days.
Considerable interest has been occasioned among the people of that neighborhood, and particularly among geologists, by the discovery of a peculiarly constructed roadway in the Lake Shore Company's gravel pit at Amboy, seven miles east of Ashtabula, Ohio. The remarkable find has the appearance of having been a corduroy road, made of small cedar trees, and it was unearthed thirty-eight feet below the surface of the ground. The wood is in a perfect state of preservation. Over twenty feet of this road has been uncovered. It was laid on hard clay and was covered by a thick vein of gravel.

Professor Carl Wright, teacher of geology in Oberlin University, visited the gravel pit and secured pieces of the wood, which he examined. He gives it as his opinion that the wood had been where it was found since the glacial epoch, and that it has retained its natural condition several thousand years. A piece of a mastodon's tusk, two feet long, was unearthed. It is also perfectly preserved, the ivory being a natural color after the dirt was removed.

Posters on Their Skulls.
Boulevard loungers in Paris were amused the other day when ten men, correctly garbed all exactly alike, walked into a cafe and gravely ordered drinks, for, as they removed their hats, each man had painted on his bald head one letter of a word, advertising a new dramatic sensation. They were arrested, however, for evading the law that requires sandwich men and posters to pay a tax of 50 francs, but they were discharged on promising to affix the necessary stamps to their skulls, a poll tax, as it were.—New York Mail and Express.

Hard Up.
Widower (thinking of proposing)—Have you any objection to widowers, Miss Leftover?
Miss Leftover (eagerly)—Oh, no; I only object to married men.—Pick-Me-Up.

A Bamboo Lighthouse.
A lighthouse of bamboo has just been built in Japan. It is said to have greater power of resisting the waves than any other kind of wood, and does not rot like ordinary wood.

There is always room at the top of Freemasonry, but one has to work up to it by degrees.

TOPICS FOR FARMERS

A DEPARTMENT PREPARED FOR OUR RURAL FRIENDS.

Don't Attempt to Fatten Shoats in the Pasture—Give Milk Cows Good Care—Beans Are a Profitable Crop—Fowls Should Be Fed Slowly.

Fattening Shoats.
The shoats for butchering should be brought in out of the clover and woods pasture and put in the pens for fattening. It is a great waste of feed to try and fatten them in the pasture with the sows and pigs. Clean the pens out; then, if possible, give them a good coat of whitewash. Put four shoats into an eight-by-ten pen; this will give them plenty of room to exercise in, and also plenty of room at the trough. If they are lousy, pour a little coal oil down the back over the head and behind the ears, and down the legs. One good sprinkling and rubbing will answer. Give the shoats thick millfeed slop night and morning—all they will eat up clean, and no more. Then give a few ears of soft corn to each; commence with a little corn at first, but gradually increase the amount until they get all they will eat. At noon give cabbage leaves or boiled pumpkin and small potatoes. They should have a little hard coal to eat every second day. Bed with leaves, keep the pens clean and dry. A half peck of flaxseed meal added to each barrel of slop after the meal has been well scalded, will increase the fattening process. It is very nourishing. By four weeks of feeding the shoats will be fat enough to market. It is best to send them to market in a large covered wagon, instead of driving them on foot.—Exchange.

Care of the Milk Cows.
When there is heavy frost on the grass, keep the milk cows in until the frost is dissolved by the sun. Young cattle and cows that are left out at night should have a rough shed built for them to go under at night and when the weather is stormy. A roof made of poles and covered with two feet of straw will answer. If the pasture is abundant, the young stock may be left out until after Thanksgiving. After two or more hard frosts, there is not much substance in the pasture; the cows should be grain-fed night and morning, and at night give to each one an armful of corn fodder. An excellent grain ration for large cows in milk is eight quarts of bran, four quarts of corn chop and one quart of linseed meal. Divide into two feeds and give half in the morning and the remainder at night. During mild weather mix this feed with cold water; when the weather becomes cold mix with warm water, and add one tablespoonful of salt daily.—Baltimore American.

Beans a Profitable Crop.
Beans are a profitable crop, as much so as any raised; almost every farm has land well adapted to bean culture. I have raised beans on a small scale, and found them very profitable. They have not proved very difficult to grow than most other crops, and were readily sold to private customers at ten cents per quart. In harvesting they will not bear much delay; a wet spell will spoil many. They should be treated to the fumes of carbon, as the weevil is apt to destroy them. Peas, green or marrowfat, may also be made a special crop, as large quantities are consumed in all cities, and but very little produced near some. Few farmers raise what they themselves use, preferring to buy, yet retail dealers pay $1 per bushel. This season I have been very successful with a novelty in the bean line; it is New Kidney Wax; beans are pure white and firm; the stalks hold up from the ground well while young; pods are of a rich golden yellow, buttery flavor and a novelty of decided merit. I also raised the Lazy Wife; these are very nice. I sanded a half barrel down. They are also white and firm when ripe, and are equally useful as a snap, shell or soup bean. For dry peas for winter, I like the Earliest of All, a smooth pea; it cooks done when dry in half an hour, and has a pleasant flavor. I have never had any to sell, but could have sold five or six bushels at home. As a green pea, they are profitable, as they are so very early, bear well and ripen even. The ground can be cleared for some other crop.—Farm and Home.

Apple Trees by Roadsides.
The owner of land through which a highway runs is also the owner of the land, and is entitled to make any use of it that will not interfere with the right of the public to travel on it. It is not generally practicable for farmers to crop land beside the roadbed, though sometimes a patch of corn or potatoes beside a road not much used will give such land can be put to use to plant it with apple trees or other fruit trees, protecting the young trees while small from attacks of wandering stock. Isolated trees, planted where they have plenty of room to spread and plenty of sunlight, often yield more fruit than do apple trees in closely planted orchards.

Feed Fowls Slowly.
One of the difficulties in feeding fowls is that, as given by the poultier, the food is in a mass and can be gobbled down far too quickly. In its natural state, the fowl hunting for food is obliged to eat slowly, one grain at a time. Usually, after each mouthful, the hen is obliged to scratch for more. So ingrained is this instinct that a hen with chickens will scratch and cluck when she comes to a pile of grain. One of the reasons why corn is a bad feed for fowls is that the grain is large, and it shelled and thrown out by handfuls, the fowls eat it much too fast for their good. The true way to feed hens is to mix their grain with chaff or straw, so that they must scratch for it. If covered with mellow earth, it will be still better, as the dust thus raised will rid the fowls of vermin.

Chestnut Trees Profitable.
Those who have a chestnut grove and keep it free from depredators may find it a source of profit. We know of one or two such groves which are only natural fruit, but which yield returns with no labor except for gathering the nuts better than could be got for usual farm crops. But to secure profitable returns the public must be excluded. Men and boys who club the trees while the nuts are green to bring them down will disfigure and injure the trees, so that after a few years the trees will yield little or nothing. Chestnut trees, if the fruit is of good quality, are valuable property, and their fruit should be protected. There are several improved varieties of chestnut, some of which will begin bearing when three years old. These should be chosen if new plantations of chestnuts are to be made, or scions of the new varieties should be grafted onto native stock.

Foot Rot in Sheep.
Sheep naturally thrive best on dry uplands. On wet grounds, or in a wet summer, their feet tread wet grass and soil become soft and easily bruised. This, if not cared for, will develop into foot rot. It is used to be the practice of good shepherds to dress their sheep two or three times during the summer, by applying blue vitriol to those of them whose feet were in any way sore. This was done long before the doctors had begun to talk learnedly about microbes and germs. It is known now that foot rot is a germ disease, and blue vitriol, which is a sulphate of copper, is one of the best germicides known. It is a curious fact that the practical cure of foot rot was discovered through experiments made by farmers long before the scientists had found out what caused the disease, or could devise any theory whereby it might be cured.

Relative Cost of Beef and Butter.
Prof. T. L. Hacker of the Minnesota experiment station has been testing the comparative cost of making beef and butter. So he fed four steers along with his herd of cows, giving them, however, a ration for making beef, while to the cows was given the feed appropriate for milk and butter production. After six weeks feeding he figured the cost of the butter at three cents per pound, while the beef was 34-10 cents per pound, as nearly as he could estimate it from live weight. It is fairly to be presumed that in the cost of butter the labor required to make it was not estimated. It is probable also that the cows experimented on were in full flow of milk, and therefore could, for a short time, produce butter at very low rates. But the animal has to be kept twelve months with much less product of milk, in order to enable it to make this low record.

Care of Seed Corn.
Probably no better place for the braids of corn saved in the ear for next spring's seeding can be found than to hang them beside the chimney, where the heat from the stove or fireplace will protect them from freezing until fully dry. About as good a place as this, and some think better, is in the smoke house, where the hams and bacon are cured. But in either case the braids should be visited often to see that nothing gets at them. The squirrel is the worst enemy of sweet corn, because he only digs out the chit or germ of the very soundest and best corn. He will leave an entire corn cob full of corn more or less damp, and feast on that which has been thoroughly dried for seed. The germ of sound, dry corn has a flavor much like a nut, and it is very nutritious.

Test New Varieties.
Every season the farmers receive solicitations or temptations to purchase seeds or plants of some new variety, and yet if they will read the circulars and descriptions, as well as the claims, in favor of the new varieties of the past, they will find wonderful claims in favor of some that are barely recognized now. This is because something better comes every season (though some new varieties are worthless), but the production and quality of all kinds of fruit have been improved by the introduction every year of new candidates for favor. No farmer or fruit grower should accept the claims in favor of a new tree or vine, but should test it himself by procuring only one or two for that purpose.

Linseed vs. Cottonseed Meal.
Both flax and linseed meal are now so cheap that there is no reason why cottonseed meal should be brought North to feed. No young animals nor hogs of any age should be fed cottonseed meal. It is very difficult of digestion. The loss of animals killed by cottonseed meal more than counterbalances the gain from feeding it where it does not prove injurious. Of course linseed meal must be fed in small quantities, but it is not so dangerous for young stock as cottonseed meal, which for calves and pigs is often fatal in very small doses.

Warm Stalls for Cows.
Take two cows and give one a warm stall, with clean bedding, allowing the other a stall in which there is a crack in the wall, which lets the wind come through. The cow that is comfortable and warm will give more milk than the other, because she has warmth in her favor.

Burn Field Refuse.
Wheat stubble and refuse may be the harboring places of chinch bugs and other enemies. As soon as it can be done rake up all refuse and fire the field. The fall of the year is a good time to fight the enemies that do most damage in spring and summer.

COUNT OF FLANDERS ROBBED

His Palace Burglarized Regularly Once in Twelve Months.
The palace of the Count of Flanders, only brother of King Leopold of Belgium and next heir to the throne, has since being the fifth visitation of the same kind, the mysterious robbers have to his royal highness, who is one of the wealthiest princes of the blood in Europe, regularly once every twelve months during the last five years.

There is something distinctly uncanny about these robberies, not only because the palace is so exceptionally well guarded, but also because the thieves seem to be thoroughly well acquainted with the whereabouts of the various valuables, and have managed always to get away with their booty without leaving any trace of their identity. The first time they stole half of the superb jewels of the Countess of Flanders, who is a sister of King Charles of Roumania; the second time they got away with the major portion of the gold and silver plate of the count; the third time they took away the remainder of the plate, while in the fourth year they again rifled the jewel casket of the countess.

Last year they got away with some valuable papers, stocks, etc., while this year it is not the count or countess who is the sufferer, but the lady in waiting of the latter, the Baroness de Laffen, who has lost all her jewels and a number of government bonds.

It must be borne in mind that the palace at Brussels of the Count of Flanders is patrolled on every side by military sentinels, as well as by uniformed Brussels policemen, several of whom are stationed at every entrance and exit. Moreover, there are several detectives on duty, just as at every royal palace, while the count has likewise engaged several private detectives to keep watch on his palace in consequence of the repeated robberies.

The latter have had the effect of putting the Brussels police more than ever on the qui vive, and that the thefts should go on without interruption is an inexplicable and mysterious as it is astounding. It may be added that all the servants employed by the count and countess are old retainers, and until now above suspicion.—New Orleans Picayune.

Parisian Thievery.
There have been several sensational thefts in Paris lately among the wealthier families in the fashionable quarter. The detectives have discovered that these were committed by a gang of burglars and sneak thieves who operate in evening dress. They obtain admission to fashionable gatherings and mingle with the guests, helping themselves as occasion offers to silver plate and articles of bric-a-brac. They often conceal themselves until the guests have departed and the family have gone to bed, when they visit the dressing room of the hostess and walk off with her jewels and any other valuables they can find. One of these burglars, who was discovered in the house of a banker after the guests had departed, pretended to be intoxicated and explained that he had been overcome by sleep. Another, who tried to steal several valuable presents at a recent wedding, was arrested by a policeman who had been placed on guard in evening dress. The thief gave a Russian name and was found to occupy elegant bachelor's apartments in a fashionable quarter. Among other assets he had a complete set of burglars' tools and a list of evening entertainments, which he had evidently copied out of the newspapers.

An American lady lost her purse the other day. The next morning she received by mail several samples of silk, her card to a circulating library, a copy of a memorandum of dressmakers' addresses and several other articles that had been in her purse. They were enclosed with a note, which read as follows:

"Dear Madame: I return all of the contents of the purse which you lost yesterday with the exception of 15 francs, which I need more than you, and I hope you will pardon a poor devil for keeping the purse to carry it in."

The note was written in excellent French and with good penmanship, which indicated that the thief was an educated man.

Value of Cottonseed Waste.
"Cottonseed waste, which a generation ago accumulated at the gin-house, filled up the streams, rotted in the fields, and became an irritating nuisance, is now worth about thirty million dollars a year," writes William George Jordan in "Wonders of the World's Waste," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Every bale of cotton leaves a legacy of half a ton of seed, which, it is said, brings the planter nearly as much as his cotton. The oil is used for finer grades of soap, as a substitute for lard, and is so near olive oil that an expert can hardly detect the difference. The hulls are fed to cattle, make an excellent fuel, are valuable as paper stock, and when burned the ashes make a fertilizer which is most efficacious. It has recently been discovered that cottonseed oil, with the addition of 18 per cent of crude kerosene, makes an imitation which cannot be distinguished from genuine rubber."

A Lost Necessity.
On a telegraph pole in the suburbs of a New England village was tacked this notice: "Lost—Between here and the postoffice, a real lady's hair switch black mix with grey with above white tide around one end the above white please return to the postmaster and give fifty cents with thanks of owner who needs it badly, and will be thankful for the kindness of any lady or gent who will return what cannot be of no use to them, but which is a necessity to her."—Harper's Bazar.

In each season when mushrooms, which are taking each year a firmer hold on the taste of the general public, are found most abundantly, it is well for the timid lover of this article of diet to remember that there are over 300 species that have been thoroughly tested by mycophagists and found to be entirely harmless.

The monument, erected by the abolitionists, is a handsome structure of granite, and is dedicated to the memory of the martyr.

A TALK WITH MRS. PINKHAM

About the Cause of Anemia.

Everybody comes into this world with a predisposition to disease of some particular kind. In other words, everybody has a weak spot.

Excessive menstruation is a sign of physical weakness and want of tone in the uterine organs. It saps the strength away and produces anemia (blood turns to water).

If you become anemic, there is no knowing what will happen. If your gums and the inside of your lips and inside your eyelids look pale in color, you are in a dangerous way and must stop that drain on your powers.

There is one boy in Washtenaw county who is determined to have an education. His name is Frank Galpin, a student in the high school. He lives with his father, adjoining Frane's lake, in the town of Superior. His home is nine miles from the high school building. Notwithstanding this long distance, the young man drives in every morning and back at night, eighteen miles a day or ninety miles a week, in order to take advantage of the superior facilities offered at our excellent schools. Such a boy deserves success and he shows evidence of possessing the right material with which to win it. His example should put to shame hundreds of young men who have every opportunity right at home to acquire a fine education, but who are too indolent to take advantage of it.—Ann Arbor Register.

The Detroit News and several other papers have been publishing an item about Noah Petes and his doings, stating that he is 105 years old and that he lives near Dearfield. The facts about this old gentleman were all published in the Advance, last fall, just after he cast his presidential vote at the polls of this township, as heretofore only 2 1/2 miles north of this village, and about six from Dearfield. He wanted to vote the whig ticket, having probably not voted before since the death of that party, and the fact had to be made known to him through an interpreter, as he speaks only French.—Blissfield Advance.

Yet there was not a word said about the board of missions! We have visited some of the mosques and have been impressed by the reverent manner of the worshippers, and also by the irreverent manner of boys, incipient theologues, committing the Koran to memory by repeating passages out loud, while leaning at us."—Washtenaw Times.

Major Soule has received a letter from Hon. J. M. B. Sill, late minister to Korea, who is on his way home, saying that he has shipped a case for the museum of the University containing a set of figures which the Koreans set up on their temples. These images are about 14 inches high and represent a Buddhist and his attendants on their way from Korea to Ceylon to bring back copies of the sacred books. The figures represent the priest and his attendants accompanied by a monkey, a fox, a pig, a sheep and a horse. They are unique and never before been obtained to send out of Korea. Another case contains two Korean siggies, one of which is for the Normal school. They are peculiar packing frames, the most scientific ever invented, on which Korean pack coolies carry their enormous loads. Mr. Sill writes from San Francisco, November 3, and hopes to arrive shortly in Detroit.—Washtenaw Times.

Much surprise and wonder flashed through our village Sunday and Monday when the report came out that William Klein, who less than two years ago was married to Miss Jennie Lindsley, had very suddenly and unexpectedly packed his trunk and departed for other lands. As near as can be learned of the facts, Mr. K. in the morning took his wife to the home of Mrs. Taylor to spend the day, saying he would call for her later in the day, which he did at nine o'clock in the evening, and going to the door informed his wife that the horse and carriage stood in front of the house and that he had been home taken his clothing and was going to leave her never to return, for her to take the rig and go home whenever she was ready, and with no further ceremony departed in the darkness. The words to Mrs. K. came like a shock. She had to Mrs. Taylor during the day several times spoke of her home and husband in the most pleasant and affectionate manner and the cause for such an outbreak remains a mystery.—Saline Observer.

The grim reaper, death with his all-devouring scythe of time has visited us again; this time in a very singular manner. On Tuesday afternoon William Schneirring a single man and a day laborer, about 50 years of age, was called to a neighbors, George Hohenberger about a quarter of a mile north of the Catholic church, to shoot an old horse. He was often thus employed. The horse was in a lot back of the house. George and Hannah Hohenberger went to the lot with Schneirring who held the horse with his left hand and held the revolver in his right. He intended to shoot the horse just above the eye, the first shot made only a light wound. He said the animal held his head to high. The second shot was fired but instead of seeing the horse drop in its tracks as was expected, they saw Schneirring fall to the ground and the horse ran off and began eating grass. Recovering from their astonishment they looked at the prostrate form before them and were still greater surprised to find him quite dead, his face covered with blood. The horse was quite restive and in some manner undoubtedly struck the revolver diverting its aim as the ball struck William just below the right eye, near the nose and came out at the left temple.—Freedom correspondent Manchester Enterprise.

BENEFACTORS OF THE RACE.
Office of "KRYPTONITE TIMES," Kingsfisher, Okla., Dec. 12, '97.
GENTLEMEN:—I believe it my duty to write you a line in regard to the beneficial effect of Phelps' "Four C Remedy," so far as I am personally concerned. A week ago last Thursday, I was taken with a severe attack of la grippe and in a short time became so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. The night previous I had coughed nearly the entire night; just before retiring I took a teaspoonful, and slept the entire night as sweetly as ever I did in my life, not coughing once. I was entirely relieved before taking one bottle, Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure should be in every household in the land. I send you this wholly unsolicited by anyone, for you are benefactors of the race in giving it the antidote for some of the worst afflictions to which it is heir.
Very Truly Yours,
C. J. Mansur, Editor.

UNBROKEN REST AT NIGHT.

DEAR SIR:—I wish to bear testimony to the great efficacy of your "Four C" remedy in the case of my child. As a rule I have been skeptical of the merits of proprietary medicines, but have to confess that a test of your "Four C" is convincing that at least one remedy made me a worthy of use. My children all take it with out the least objection, from oldest to youngest and it is particularly noticeable that it does almost immediately. A single dose will break up the most obstinate cough in their beginning; it gives an almost broken rest at night. In my family "Four C" is simply indispensable and I recommend it to all qualified,
Yours,
J. E. HERRICK.

ACUTE LARYNGITIS.
Chicago, Sept. 20, '97.
For years back each winter I have suffered with acute laryngitis. Last winter was no exception. I could not leave my room for two weeks except above a whisper. I tried every known remedy, but to no avail. Then in desperation I was induced to try Phelps' "Four C." The first dose relieved my cough, giving me the first night's rest for years. Half the bottle cured me. I have never been without this wonderful remedy since. It is as different from other like remedies as molasses from vinegar or sugar from sand.

IT IS A MIRACLE.
Conductor Eckard, the Railroad Conductor of the Rockdale Kansas Railway, writes to say of "Four C." "Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure" "I have used it several times in the winter and it is just what it is to be used in. Too much cannot be said of it. It is a miracle."
