MEET MARCH 22

Special Session of Legislature has Been Called by Gov.
Pingree.

THE TAXATION OF CORPORATIONS

Railroad, Telegraph and Telephone Companies to be Looked After.

Gov. Pingree Tuesday afternoon issued a proclamation convening the legislature in special session Tuesday, March 22, for the consideration of the question of railroad, telephone and telegraph taxation.
This action on the part of the governor has been expected for some time, but he himself has been the most reticent man on the hemisphere on the subject, and even after the call was signed he had nothing to say about it.

To All Whom it May Concern, Greeting:
By section 6 of article 5 of the Constitution of the State of Michigan it is provided that the governor shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

By section 7 of the same article he is given the power to convene the legislature on extraordinary occasions.

By section 11 of article 14 it is made the duty of the legislature to provide a uniform rule of taxation.

By section 12 of the same article "all assessments hereafter authorized shall be on property at its cash value."

These provisions have been a part of the fundamental law of the state since 1850.

In violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of these provisions of the constitution, laws have been passed from time to time by which railroad companies, express companies, telegraph and telephone companies now owning, according to their sworn returns, at least one third of the property of this state, are required to pay only about one-twenty-sixth of the taxes levied for state, county and municipal purposes, leaving their just proportion of supporting our schools, asylums and other public institutions, and defraying the public expenses, to fall upon the farmers, laborers, manufacturers and other property owners of the state.

Taxation has, in many parts of the state, become in the nature of confiscation, the amount levied being greater than the property taxed can be made to produce.

I regard the situation as extraordinary, and one that demands an immediate remedy which can only be given by the legislature.

It is the duty of the governor, under his oath of office, to see that the constitution of the state is obeyed and the laws faithfully executed, and to submit to the legislature, from time to time, his views upon existing mischiefs so that a remedy can be provided.

In obedience to this duty I hereby call the legislature of the state to meet in extraordinary session on Tuesday, the 22d day of March, 1898, at noon on that day, to consider the question of the taxation of railroad companies, express companies, telephone companies, and telegraph companies, and such other matter as shall be submitted by special message.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state of Michigan, at the capitol, in Lansing, this 8th day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-second.

HAZEN S. PINGREE.

WORKINGMEN'S TICKET.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP PLANK OF OUR PLATFORM.

There seems to be considerable difference of opinion, as to whether the people of Chelsea are in favor of owning and operating their own water works and electric light plants.

The only way to settle this matter is to submit the question to a vote of the people.

If the Workingmen's Ticket is elected, we pledge ourselves, should the citizens of Chelsea desire it, to submit this question of Municipal Ownership at a special election, to be held for that purpose, and before doing so, to obtain and give the public all possible information on the subject.

We furthermore promise to use our utmost efforts to transact all municipal business of whatever nature, in a friendly and honest way, believing that the best and most satisfactory results, either in public or private business, can be obtained only when conducted in that manner.

We are against all law suits at public expense, when instigated for the purpose of gratifying the personal vindictiveness of a few, and compelling all taxpayers, by public taxation, to help pay such unwarranted and outrageous expense. Let the few who wish to revel in such expensive luxuries as law suits pay their own lawyers and not impose a public tax upon the people (most of them peaceably inclined) for such purpose.

If you are for peace and harmony, and the growth and prosperity of Chelsea, vote the Workingmen's Ticket next Monday.

Respectfully,
Committee Workingmen's Ticket.

RECALLS A TRAGEDY.

MURDERERS IN "HAYSTACK MASSACRE" TO BE TRIED.

Six Men Implicated in a Famous Kansas County Seat Fight Find that Justice Awoke After Eight Years' Sleep—Vigilantes at Paducah, Ky.

Pap-r City Caused Murders.

After living unmolested and peacefully for almost eight years, the five men who were convicted of murder in the famous "haystack massacre" in No Man's Land are to be dragged from their homes in different parts of the country and taken back to the little Texas town of Paris to be tried again, unless sufficient influence can be brought to bear on the Federal authorities to have the indictments quashed. It is one of the most lurid chapters in the history of the West that deals with the "haystack murder" and has been fought in every court from the circuit tribunal of Texas to the Supreme Court of the United States. The defendants, although without money, were, and still are, able to enlist the services of some of the greatest lawyers in the country, and it is said there was never any more politics in the case than that which surrounds a struggle for a county seat. It was over the location of a county seat in a county with a total population of less than a thousand people that four men were killed. It was in 1886 that two rival boom towns were fighting for the location of a little courthouse in Stevens County, Kan. Primarily there was little at stake except the imaginary rise in real estate that would follow in the town named as the permanent location of the county records. It mattered not that this boom, like all others in the Southwest in the late eighties, existed only in the minds of the professional promoters. The war over Stevens County's particular seat was waged long and bitterly, and before it was ended the lives of the sheriff of the county and three of his assistants had been sacrificed. Lives not little figure in those days compared with the inflation of a paper town.

As in the Days of '49.

Forty or fifty burglaries of note near Paducah, Ky., lately have aroused the people. A stringent ordinance and a curfew law have been adopted by the City Council and put in force. A strong vigilance committee also went to work and eight negroes and three white men were caught, whipped and forced to leave on departing trains. One negro's haste to depart, fell from a moving train and was injured, but he was thrown on another and carried away. The committee promises to clear the town before disbanding. There is great fear, particularly among negroes.

Torture by Fire and Rob.

At Ryan, I. T., three masked men entered the house of Dr. Bise upon pretense of needing his professional services. They bound the doctor and his wife and tortured first one and then the other by burning their feet until the victims gave them $114, all the money they had in the house. A posse is in pursuit and threats of lynching are plentiful.

Nine Lost at Sea.

The schooner Spec, Capt. Captain Collier, from Marquette, Mich., for Key West, was struck by a squall while off Marquette, sixteen miles from Key West, and exploded. Nine persons were drowned out of thirteen on board.

Bartholomew Brandt Bradner was probably killed by a hatpin or by a blow on the head, or both. Coroner's Physician Noel and the others who conducted the autopsy in Chicago discovered a deep incision under the left eye, reaching clear into the brain. There were also evidences of a concussion. The detective working on the case believe he was either the victim of a deep-laid plot to murder, or that a woman, fired with sudden anger, stabbed him in the face. Bradner, who traveled for J. R. Rangel, a Parisian exporter of saffrins, staggered into the Palmer House lobby. He said he had been attending a performance at a State street theater, stepped into a saloon next door, took a drink of whisky, and knew nothing of what happened after that. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bradner of 1222 Chartres street, New Orleans, have taken the remains home for burial.

Thirty-two shippers were present and Mr. Lipe held the proxies of fourteen others. The headquarters of the trust will be at Buffalo, where the hay will be shipped, unloaded, graded, inspected and marketed. The combine comprises the wholesale shippers from the States of Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, some 400 in number, controlling the shipment of from 150 to 200 cars a day. It is not expected that prices will materially advance until next season's crop has been gathered. Transfer sheds will be built at Buffalo and depots will be established at Boston, New York and Philadelphia. For the present no effort will be made to control the market in Chicago or the West.

Nine lives were lost in a fearful tenement house fire at Charleston, N. C. A police officer discovered flames issuing from one of the windows on the first floor. The doors were broken open and the family on that floor was taken out without injury. Somebody cried out that a number of women were sleeping on the third floor. The police ran upstairs, and when they reached the top story the life-saving work was stopped by the flames, which seemed to be playing over the entire building. The cries of the imprisoned inmates grieved Patrolman Bagley to leave almost certain death. He wrapped his old coat about his head and dashed through the wall of flame into the rooms on the third floor. Gropping about blindly he stumbled over three bodies. Again he plunged through the fire bearing two of the corpses. When he endeavored to return he found the flooring burned away. Before anything could be done the joists gave way, carrying down six persons. The fire was soon under control and the bodies were recovered.

In the event of a war between Nicaragua and Costa Rica it is said that the alliance known as the Greater Republic would give to Nicaragua the armed strength of Salvador and Honduras. The Nicaraguan army is estimated at about 8,000 men. Salvador has not more than 3,000 soldiers, but Honduras has the best drilled and equipped force in Central America, numbering 50,000. Against these the Costa Rican army of about 5,000 seems insignificant. But in the present calculations it is thought that Guatemala would cast her influence with Costa Rica. Guatemala has an army of about 50,000. In this event the forces would be about evenly matched, with Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador arrayed against Guatemala and Costa Rica. The basis for the view that Guatemala may be drawn into the controversy is the fact that the new president of Guatemala, Senor Estrada Cabrera, was a special envoy to Costa Rica when the latter country was in a former conflict with other Central American States. At that time Guatemala was looked upon as the ready ally of Costa Rica, and it is thought that Cabrera would again incline to the same alliance.

Interest in the wheat situation mainly centers in the enormous shipments being made by Leiter for the Liverpool market. Last week he sent 900,000 bushels by way of New York, and it is positively stated that he has arranged for the shipment of 2,500,000 more as soon as cars can be secured.

The second great factor which is sending wheat upward is the danger of freezing in the winter wheat district, which is now bare of snow, with the ground saturated with moisture. The price of wheat is steadily advancing.

The American clipper ship Tacoma, Captain Gaffney, has arrived at Tacoma, completing and winning one of the longest races ever run. She sailed from Philadelphia Oct. 12, thus making the time of her passage over a 10,000-mile course 138 days. The Tacoma and the Yankee ship Indiana sailed from Philadelphia the same day. Arthur Sewall, last candidate for Vice-President, owns the Indiana. The Indiana is bound for San Francisco and it was agreed she should give the Tacoma a time and distance allowance, as the Tacoma had to come 700 miles farther north.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Foreign possibilities have much affected speculation and caused hesitation in some large business operations, possibly accounting in part for a check in the rapid advance of wheat, but industrial production continues larger than ever, a few more works being added to the active list, with a decrease in the number of hands on strike, and renewed evidence that the volume of business is larger than in February of any previous year. Nor is there any symptom of a senseless craze, based on rising prices. The legitimate export and domestic demand presses closer to the capacity of works, and, though there is no flighty advance in any line, and in all narrowness of profit is a matter of complaint, new business for this dull season is unprecedented. Wheat continued its progress upward. The spot price of cotton was not affected. It is not the season for much improvement in textile manufacture, but the cotton branch has gained by the closing of the strike in one Fall River mill and by the addition of some works at the south. Sales of wool are slow, with weakness in clothing. In goods of medium and low grades the demand continues large. The silk manufacturer shows a remarkable increase during the last six months. The iron manufacture has more demand for products, and slightly better prices for Bessemer pig. No finished products have changed in price, and all are strong in demand, excepting bar. Failures for the week have been 233 in the United States, against 296 last year, and thirty in Canada, against fifty last year."

BOAT ON THE BEACH.

ALASKA BOAT GOES ASHORE BELOW HAINES MISSION.

Bark Canada Is Now a Total Wreck, Not Far from Skagway—Cargo Not Perishable and May Be Saved—Looks Bright for the Canal.

Dashed on the Rocks.

The American bark Canada, Capt. Andrews, lies high and dry and practically a total wreck on the beach nineteen miles below Haines Mission, Alaska. No lives were lost, the crew having escaped in safety. News of this marine disaster by which the Canada was overtaken came via the steamer Rosalie, Capt. John O'Brien, five days out from Skagway. During a windstorm which blew with all but hurricane force, the Canada was torn from her moorings in Skagway harbor and driven on the rocks a few hundred yards distant. Seeing that she was threatened with destruction, Capt. Andrews ordered the boats lowered, and the crew and two women, one Mrs. Lockwood of Tacoma, Wash., were taken ashore. There was not a mishap of any kind. While the storm raged lines were cast ashore and the Canada made fast to some trees on the beach. She remained on the rocks for an hour or so, when the wind and waves set her adrift again, and finally her lines snapped and the vessel was carried into the bay. She drifted for several hours and eventually brought up on the beach below Haines Mission. Meanwhile she was looking and had taken in a great deal of water. Her cargo consisted of about 1,000,000 feet of lumber, some lashed and other freight not of a perishable nature. The probabilities are that at least the lumber portion of the cargo can be saved, though the vessel, Capt. Andrews thinks, is a total loss. Capt. O'Brien reports that there are about 12,000 people in Skagway and camped along the White trail for a distance of six miles from the town. Many are going over the passes, but a far greater number are arriving daily.

Up Copper River to Yukon.

The United States Government is about to send an expedition from Vancouver barracks to find a practicable route up Copper river, Alaska, to the Yukon basin. While official information is not yet available, it is understood that this expedition will consist of fifty men and three officers of the Fourteenth Infantry, and that it will leave Vancouver barracks for the north about March 15. The endeavor that were secured for aiding the relief expedition to the Klondike, now abandoned, will probably be utilized in connection with the exploring trip up Copper river.

The House did not complete the consideration of the sundry civil bill on Saturday, but Chairman Cannon held the floor until adjournment, refusing to yield to Mr. Boutelle (Maine), the chairman of the naval committee, who was anxious to secure consideration for the bill reported by his committee for the relief of the victims and survivors of the Maine disaster. About twenty pages of the sundry civil bill were disposed of. Many efforts were made by different members to inject river and harbor items into the bill, three of them being successful; amendments appropriating $300,000 for Cleveland harbor, $200,000 for Wilmington, Del., and increasing the appropriation for Boston harbor from $100,000 to $250,000 were adopted. As contracts for these works were authorized, they were in order under the rules. During the greater part of the Senate session the right of Henry W. Corbett to a seat from the State of Oregon was under discussion. Mr. Thurston (Nebraska), in an extended speech, opposed the admission of Mr. Corbett, while Messrs. Foraker, Kyle and Mantle supported Mr. Corbett's claim. The pension calendar was cleared by the passage of several private pension bills. A few bills of a general character were also passed.

Henry W. Corbett was on Monday denied admission to the Senate as a Senator from Oregon on appointment by the Governor by a vote of 50 to 19. The Senate began consideration of the Alaska homestead and railway right of way bill, and had not concluded if when it adjourned. The House passed the sundry civil appropriation bill after four days' debate. The appropriation for representation at the Paris exposition was eliminated on a point of order. The sudden change of sentiment which is often witnessed when members go on record was twice illustrated. On Friday the House, in committee of the whole, where there is no record of the vote, knocked out a provision in the bill for an appropriation to pay those who furnish the Government with information leading to the conviction of the violators of the internal revenue laws, and in committee an extra month's pay was voted the employees of the House. When the members voted on roll calls in the House, however, both of these provisions were overwhelmingly defeated.

The House entered upon the consideration of the Land bill relative to second-class mail matter, on Tuesday. The bill is identical with the measure passed by the last Congress, but Mr. Lord gave notice of an amendment permitting the transmission at pound rates of sample copies up to 10 per cent of the bona fide circulation of the newspaper periodicals. This amendment removes much objection to the bill. Mr. Lord made an exhaustive speech in its favor. Mr. Mann (Tenn.) spoke in opposition to the bill, and Mr. Perkins (Iowa), in favor of it. The Senate passed a resolution for erection of a bronze tablet to the memory of the victims of the Maine. The bankruptcy bill and the Alaska homestead and right of way bill were debated.

Wednesday's debate in the Senate on the Alaskan homestead and railway right of way bill was spirited. Mr. Carter (Mont.) delivered a vigorous speech in reply to that made by Mr. Hawlin (Iowa), in the course of which he made a strong defense of the honor of Congressional committees and of officials in the several government departments. One of the special features of the debate was a speech delivered by Mr. Elkins (W. Va.), in which he explained that the Canadian Pacific Railway was enabled to make war upon American interests, and how and why the aggressions of that great railroad ought to be stopped by the United States. The speech drew replies from Mr. Hoar (Mass.), Mr. Chilton (Texas), and Mr. Nelson (Minn.). Mr. Hoar maintained that a large part of the speech of Mr. Elkins was irrelevant to the pending discussion. The House spent another day in debate upon the Land bill relating to second class mail matter. The speeches as a rule attracted little interest. The speakers

THE FARM AND HOME

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO FARMER AND HOUSEWIFE.

Good Management and Care Required to Secure Profits in Butter-Making—Fruit Trees Should Be Set Out Early in the Spring—Farm Notes.

Profit and Loss in Cows.

It takes pretty good management in feeding and care of stock and in handling the milk to secure fair profits on the butter made, even from the better grades of cows. But no management, however skillful and scientific, no ration, however well balanced, can make the production of butter from a very large number of the cows, as we find them on average farms, profitable at all. Many a great many of the cows in the country do not fully pay for their keep. That is a deplorable fact, and from the study of station and other reports I find that there are many such unprofitable cows, even among those that are considered of good blood, and among the thoroughbreds. In a table published by the North Carolina Experiment Station, for instance, I find the results of experiments in keeping sixteen cows in 1896. Half of these cows gave a net profit of from $4.52 to $39.36 a cow, while the other half gave a net loss ranging from 92 cents to $15.86 a cow. The value of the butter was estimated at 25 cents a pound. At the prices which a large number of farmers receive for their butter almost all these cows would have given a net loss. This shows the great need for weeding out our dairies. We keep far too many unprofitable cows. The bulletin says on this point:

"From the above notes and the tables showing condensed record of the cows on the experiment farm it will appear plain to every reader that there are some cows in this herd that do not pay for their food. This has been apparent for some time, but some have not been culled out before the end of the year's record in order to give time, after the trouble from epizootic abortion was over, for cows to resume a normal flow of milk, thus avoiding hasty judgment and, consequently, erroneous work. A strong example in this line of feeding and weighing feed and milk, and using the Babcock tester in earnest."—Farm and Fireside.

Setting Out Trees in Spring.

When trees are to be set out in the spring it is quite an item to get the work done as early as possible. When it can be done, everything should be made ready so that at the first favorable opportunity the planting may be done. Trees never should be set out when the ground is frozen or too wet to readily work into good condition.

While trees may grow when properly cared for if set out late in the spring, trees set out earlier will nearly always do better. In many cases the ground may be plowed during the winter and, if needed, a good dressing of manure given. The orchard can be carefully planned out and a stake set where each tree is to be planted. While it is always advisable to label each tree it is also a good plan to make a plan of the orchard on paper, so that in case the label on the tree gets lost the variety can readily be identified. Having this work done in advance will help matters materially in getting the planting done in good season. In a well drained or porous soil in many cases the holes for the trees may be dug, thus saving still more time, but in a stiff clay or hardpan soil this may not always be advisable, as the holes may hold water and delay rather than help in early planting.

In planning the orchard give the trees plenty of room. Better have the trees a little too far apart than to have them crowded. Bunch varieties; that is, plant all of one variety close together rather than scatter early, medium and late varieties promiscuously through the orchard. For a family orchard a large number of varieties is needed in order to secure a supply all through the year and for all purposes. In a commercial orchard winter apples pay best and four or five kinds will be sufficient. Trees, like seed, cost, and so far as can be the planting should be done under the most favorable conditions for securing a good growth.—N. J. Shepherd, in Farmers' Voice.

New Varieties of Potatoes.

From three to five years are required to develop seedling potatoes. As the tendency of potatoes after a few years of cultivation is to deteriorate, it becomes necessary to have new varieties to take their place. Most of the kinds cultivated twenty years ago are now superseded by recent varieties. The introduction of the early rose marked a new era in potato culture. Recent introductions of value are New Queen, Early Essex, Carman No. 1, Carman No. 3, Banner, Somerset and Enormous.

Early varieties of potatoes are desirable to escape the beetle and the blight. Two other advantages in an early crop are that the price of potatoes is much higher than later in the season, and the land can be used for a second crop of celery or late cabbage. I also plant squashes every third row, and get about as large a yield as if no other crop had preceded it.—Maine Farmer.

The Bacon Type of Hog.

Good judges say it is difficult to distinguish between bacon-hogs on foot in the Canadian method or in that of this country, but that the difference in the meat after slaughtering is quite distinct to any one. The Canadian hog, fed on ground peas, barley, rye and shorts, makes leaner bacon, which sells in England about 4 cents higher per pound than the corn-fed bacon of the United States. The time will come when reliable feeders of our country will establish a reputation for their hogs that will give them an advantage in price nearly, if not quite, as large as that given to the Canadian feeder. Corn feeding will continue just as certainly as corn producing will continue, and wherever corn is raised it will go into hogs; but the other feeds with which the Canadians obtain such superior results can also be produced here and made as profitable in many localities, as to feeders in that country. The difference in qualities of different hogs, it is now generally conceded, is the result of feeding quite as much as it is the result of breeding, and there will be an increase in the number of those who will discriminate in favor of what is coming to be known as the "bacon" type, and when they know that they are getting what they want, will be willing to pay the difference in price for it.—Texas Stock and Farm Journal.

The Subsoiling Question.

Subsoiling has always been more or less of a bugbear to American farmers. In fact, there are many localities in which it would not be a very easy matter to find a subsoil plow, if you wished to see or borrow one. The beet-sugar and sugar-beet agitation has now brought the subject to the front. The capitalists who are ready to put their money into expensive sugar factories insist on it that the beet-growers subsoil their land before engaging in beet culture. It is well known, and the experience of European beet-sugar makers and beet growers testifies that sugar beets are very sensitive to the influence of deficiency in moisture, and under adverse conditions in this respect will fail to develop the percentage of saccharine matter that is absolutely necessary for fullest success in sugar-making. The main root and the root fibers must have a chance to reach well down into a stratum of perpetual moisture—and this necessity has led to the practice of subsoiling beet lands. Of course, where the sugar-beet is thus benefited, other crops will reap some benefit also, and, indeed, there are a large proportion of our soils which it would pay as well to subsoil, whether we grow sugar beets or other crops.—Farm and Fireside.

A New Milk Process.

A process has been invented in France for the sterilization of all fermentable liquids by means of compressed oxygen. The liquids, in a closed vessel, are subjected to a current of gaseous oxygen, proportioned in volume to the quality and quantity of liquid to be sterilized. The inventor claims that by this process milk can be kept indefinitely. He is enabled to prepare a very healthful and agreeable drink, "champanized" milk. The milk must first be skimmed. Then the necessary sweetening and the desired flavor added. The whole is placed in a closed vessel and sterilized by a current of oxygen gas, then "champanized" by the introduction of the necessary amount of carbonic acid gas. The result is a refreshing, healthful drink which keeps fresh indefinitely.—Portland Transcript.

Care of Milk Cans.

Much has been written about the importance of neatness and care in all the details of milking and getting milk ready for market. Now, this advice is right in its proper place. But those who have had experience for many years understand all this, and with, perhaps, a few exceptions, observe the care necessary to furnish milk clean and all right. If each milk can was at once rinsed after the milk is poured out (which would be but very little work) it would be much better than to neglect it and let the milk sour and dry on the inside of the can. Will the peddlers see that this is done? Let each one who has anything to do with the milk, from first to last, do his part well, and the consumer can be assured of a good and clean article.—Maine Farmer.

Weeds Along Highways.

The great hotbeds of weeds in a community is the roadside. The number of weeds grown along the roads, and which are permitted to scatter their seeds far and wide, is enormous. The duty of destroying these weeds seems to be that of the farmer, but he will not work on the outside of his fence as long as he is busy on the other side, and he therefore spends more time in destroying weeds on his farm during the growing season than would be necessary if he kept down the weeds along the road. But such work will be useless unless all farmers are interested, as a single thrifless individual may undo the efforts of many. It is a fit subject for discussion in farmers' meetings, and State laws should make roadside weed-killing compulsory.

Prolificacy of Fowls.

It is very easy among a lot of fowls to decide which will be the best layers. It is always the hen that has a red comb and that gets up the earliest in cold weather. When a hen is moping and dumpy she will not lay many eggs, and those she does lay, while they may be all right while fresh for eating are worth little or nothing for setting. If the eggs for setting were always chosen from fowls that were themselves active and vigorous, the greatest possible improvement in the prolificacy of fowls would be made at no expense whatever.

Protecting Trees from Mice.

When there is snow in orchards mice are liable to do much damage unless pretty close watch is kept. Wherever a mouse has been working set a trap and catch him when he comes again. A bit of toasted cheese will tempt him from apple bark every time. If the tree is badly girdled cut grafts from the limbs of the same trees and insert them in both the upper and lower portions of bark around the cut so that a union may be effected. Both will grow together.

THOUGHTS WORTHY OF CALM REFLECTION.

A Pleasant, Interesting, and Instructive Lesson, and Where It May Be Found—A Learned and Concise Review of the Same.

Lesson for March 13.

Golden Text.—"He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man."—Matt. 13: 37. This lesson, on "The Wheat and the Tares," is found in Matt. 13: 24-30.

Introduction.

The famous thirtieth chapter of Matthew is a treasure-house of parables. They may all be called parables of the kingdom, for they all describe characteristics either of the kingdom or of its members. The last five of the seven are of a simple sort used to bring out one element only in the nature of the kingdom, and the details are neither fully stated nor interpreted. These five, the parables of the mustard seed, the leaven, the hidden treasure, the pearl, and the net are rather expanded similes than fully developed parables. But the parables of the sower and of the tares show many points of contact between the features of the story and the spiritual truths illustrated; and in his interpretation of them Jesus draws a comparison that extends to some of the details. His example ought to be followed by us when we attempt to interpret the parables which he left unexplained. The parables are not to be left at the mercy of every fanciful preacher or author who desires to use them for his own purposes, in order to acquire for his petty ideas the borrowed dignity of sacred words. They are to be interpreted according to the main lesson which they were evidently designed to teach; and details unnecessary to that lesson are not to be regarded as more than the literary drapery of the parable. This principle is familiar enough to most Bible students, but the temptation to disregard it is sometimes very strong, when it seems possible thereby to gain some added vividness or enforce some truth elsewhere revealed.

Explanatory.

"While men slept, his enemy came," that is the time enemies are apt to come. The comment is hardly that men ought not to sleep, but guard their fields; rather the thought here is that the enemy is practically certain to come anyway, and if he does not come at one time he will at another.

These "tares" are described as "a kind of darnel resembling the American chess of wheat," which looks very much like wheat until the grain is headed out. It is poisonous and destructive, doing its best to crowd out the good grain.

"From whence then hath it tares?" A question echoed by philosophers and poets and moral teachers from the beginning. What is the origin of evil? No one has significant, how appropriate, is the reply. "Tares do not spring up themselves, though they may seem to. Every weed has a seed. It is true, the wind or the waters may carry some seeds, but some agency there must be. In the case of the tares, it was certain that a person was responsible, and that the person must be an enemy was self-evident, at least to the owner of the field. Why should we expect as a matter of speculative intellectual interest? Concern ourselves about the origin of sin beyond this plain truth that no candid man can ignore: 'An enemy hath done this.' As a matter of fact, Jesus does not go deeper into this question. With the fact of sin and its remedy he is deeply concerned; of its origin he has but little to say, so far as the gospels show. Paul is the one who went into this matter more in detail, and left us the profound doctrine of sin contained in the Epistle to the Romans. But even that exposition, though it throws much light on the relation of sin to the race in its origin, leaves us nothing more final, more practical, more applicable to the needs of a sinful soul, than this simple statement, that sin is the work of an enemy, and therefore is to be fought relentlessly. Jesus tells us later that the enemy is the devil versus 30. In other words, tares are not a sort of by-product in the culture of wheat. Sin is not an incidental stage in the evolution of righteousness. It is fundamental, and to be fought, not to be educated out of men.

The difficulty was not, if we may trust the description of travelers, that the tares looked too much like the wheat to be distinguished, even after the grain was headed out; but rather that their roots and stems were so intertwined in the thick growth that to pull up one was to destroy or injure the other.

The separation will be complete enough to satisfy anybody when the harvest time comes. Burning for the tares, preservation for the Master's use for the wheat.

Teaching Hints.

Occasionally, in the case of a very familiar lesson, it is more needful to be on guard not to teach the wrong thing than it is to teach the well-known moral that lies on the surface. The parable of the tares is frequently perverted, by teachers and preachers, in two ways, both of which should be strictly avoided: (1) It is represented as teaching, as above suggested, that the tares which the devil sows in each person's heart are likely to crowd out the wheat. This in itself is true, but not taught in the parable. The field is, not the heart, but the world. (2) It is represented as teaching—that is, confined, however, to members of established churches of churches very similarly constructed—that there must always be bad men as well as good men in the church, and that it is not the duty of the church to exclude them at once, since the separation will be made at the judgment. Thus the parable is used, e. g., as an argument against heresy trials within the church. This also is a perversion.

The true teaching can hardly be escaped by any one who reads verses 37-43 carefully and impartially.

Next Lesson—"John the Baptist Beheaded."—Matt. 14: 1-12.

Self-Reliance.

He is most my friend who teaches me self-reliance; and self-reliance, in the last analysis, is reliance on those laws and principles which can never be severed from us—Truth, and Sanctified.

Into the Life.

To be "without natural affection" is to lack that element of character upon which the Holy Spirit lays His hand in lifting us out of the life of sin and into the life of holiness.—American Friend.

WILL NOT HELP SPAIN.

All Europe's Powers Refuse Her Even Their Moral Support.

Spain will receive no assistance whatever from any European Government in the event of war with the United States, whether arising out of the destruction of the Maine or because of American intervention in Cuba. It is the general opinion of diplomatists in London and other capitals that the disaster to the battleship Maine is having an effect to postpone instead of to hasten the intervention of the United States in Cuba.

According to London advices every European power received several weeks ago a frank, though informal, statement of American intentions in regard to the Cuban situation. It may be said without reserve that the policy thus disclosed met with no European opposition. This policy, as understood by the British foreign office, and outlined by British diplomatists, is as follows:

The United States since last summer has been insisting that Spain must restore peace in Cuba. Finally, the Sagasta cabinet was given to understand that unless peace was in sight by March 1, the United States would actively intervene. This, while not technically an ultimatum, because it was not part of a formal diplomatic correspondence, was, in effect, nothing less. The Spanish Government understood it, and so did every chancery in Europe. No European power gave any sign of willingness to protest in behalf of Spain, though the Spanish Government at first hoped to secure at least the "friendly offices" of Austria or France to induce the United States to refrain from intervention. The attitude of Great Britain has been particularly disappointing to Spain. The disputes of the United States and Great Britain over various matters seem to have inspired the Spanish Government with a hope that some moral support, at least, might be obtained in London. The British Government has refused point blank to meddle in the matter.

WAS A CUBAN VICTORY.

Spanish Loss 1,000 Killed; 1,000 Wounded at Holguin.

Reports of the recent battle at Holguin, Province of Santiago de Cuba, have been received in New York. Instead of the battle being a Spanish victory, as represented from Havana, it was a disastrous defeat, followed by a retreat on the part of the Spanish forces. This information is the cause for a great amount of rejoicing in New York Cuban circles, because the guns and ammunition shipped from Long Island less than a month ago were used in the fight.

Owing to the character of the country less than 2,000 of the Spanish troops could be brought into action when the Cubans opened fire, and the Cuban force of less than a thousand men could not be dislodged. Gen. Garcia's command did not reach its full strength until the fifth day after the fighting began. On this day the Spanish columns retreated in confusion, carrying the wounded to Holguin and leaving 200 dead on the field. The Cuban loss in the five days' fighting was less than fifty killed. The real Spanish loss will never be known, as the dead and wounded were taken from the field at night. It is estimated that nearly one thousand were killed and wounded.

The Cubans in the field, according to the letters, are praying for the United States to strike a blow in order that they may attack Havana from the land.

MARTIN ON THE STAND.

Defendant Tells the Part He Took in the Lattimer Shooting.

Sheriff Martin, on trial at Wilkesbarre, Pa., went on the stand in his own defense Tuesday for the Lattimer shooting and told in detail the story of the occurrences on Friday afternoon, Sept. 10, and the conditions which led to them. "When we got to Lattimer," said the sheriff, "I told my men to line up along the road, as that was about as good a place as any to stop the strikers from going any farther. I told my men that I would try once more to stop them, and if they refused, to follow them up the breaker. When the first rank of strikers came within 200 feet of us I went out and spoke to them and again told them to stop, but they called back, 'We no go back, we go to Lattimer mines.'"

"One young fellow kept saying, 'Go on, go on.' This fellow I tried to arrest, but as I had my revolver in one hand and my proclamation in the other I had some difficulty in doing this. Then several men tried to grab me, two threatened me with revolvers and another made a lunge at me with a knife. Then some one gave me a terrible blow on the side of the face and I was knocked down on my knees. Just then the shooting began."

TO CHECK ROWDYISM.

National League Adopts Measures to Prevent Misconduct.

Most radical legislation was enacted Tuesday by the magnates of the National Baseball League, assembled at St. Louis in annual session. A measure for the suppression of obscene, indecent and vulgar language upon the ball field by players was adopted by the representatives of the twelve clubs present without a dissenting vote. The provisions of this measure are most sweeping, and provide for the trial of guilty persons before a tribunal of three judges, to be known as the board of discipline, which shall punish the culprit either by suspending or expulsion, for life.

Will Ignore Judge Rogers.

The decision of Judge Rogers at Fort Smith, Ark., holding the United States Federal meat inspection law to be unconstitutional, apparently causes no concern to the officials of the Agricultural Department, under whose administration the law is executed. They regard the decision as one largely technical in character, and will not affect the practical operation of the law when applied to the inspection of meats intended for interstate traffic or export to foreign countries.

At Little Rock, Ark., the State Supreme Court decided on a charge of removing mortgaged property, that it was not necessary to show that the mortgage was recorded before the accused could be convicted. Heretofore, it has been conceded that if the mortgage had not been recorded conviction was impossible.

The Sunday evening services at the Baptist church are evangelistic, an opportunity being given each night for those who wish to do so make a start in christian life. An invitation is extended to all christians or non christians to attend these meetings for the consideration of the greatest problem of the age, Christ's power over and among men 1900 years after his earthly career. The subject for next Sunday evening is, "Christ among men in the twentieth century."

At a social gathering of ladies yesterday afternoon it was decided by all those present not to wear hats trimmed with birds' feathers. The women concluded that they would not gratify a heedless vanity by sacrificing innocent life. During the year 1897 five million birds were slaughtered in the United States for the purpose of trimming women's hats. All the women societies of Michigan ought to imitate the good example set by their Ann Arbor sisters and lift their voices against the awful devastation of life and song. Washtenaw Times.

The market has held up better than was expected since March came in. Wheat now brings 92 cent for red and 91 for white. Rye 48 cents. Oats 27 cents. Beans 75 cents. Clover seed $2.75. Potatoes 50 cents. Chickens 5 cents. Eggs 10 cents. Butter 13 cents. Receipts have dropped off since the sleighing went. It looks as if wheat will hold at about present prices until this crop is all in. There is about one fourth of the crop yet in the hands of farmers that usually come to this market. The quantity will prove to be nearly twice what the last crop was in this county.

Deputy Railroad Commissioner, W. W. Wedemeyer made the Argus a pleasant call this afternoon. He was on his return from Bad Axe, where he addressed a republican club. Mr. Wedemeyer makes friends wherever he goes because he is honest and frank and a man of marked ability. Those who know him most intimately are the best pleased at his success in life. He deserves all and more than he receives. He is a good living example of the erroneous statement that the students at the University of Michigan were sons of opulent parents. Mr. Wedemeyer was a poor farmer boy who worked his way through the university. Owosso Argus.

St. Patrick's Day, Thursday, March 17, will be fittingly celebrated at the opera house, Chelsea, with a splendid dramatic and musical entertainment. ## CHAPTER XVIII.

With an intolerable sense of shame and disgrace, it suddenly occurred to Lady Caraven that her lot in life was quite different from other people's. It seemed to pass over her with a sudden terrible commotion. She had been so occupied with her efforts as regarded her husband, her plans of reform, her schemes for the benefit of others, that she had not given much thought to her own position as a wife whose husband made no pretense of loving her. The knowledge of her real status came to her now with a keen sense of intolerable pain, yet she would have borne its bitterness but for the fear lest the brilliant, beautiful blonde should become as wise as herself. That would have been intolerable.

A trifling circumstance brought Hildred's jealousy to a climax. The Earl was going out in a great hurry one morning when he found that the button of his glove was hanging by a thread. Lady Hamilton, who was now engaged on some kind of fancy work, with needle and silk in her hand, sat by. He went to her at once.

"Lady Hamilton, be kind to me—give this one stitch," she laughingly complied; she would not let him remove the glove.

"You need not take that trouble," she said; "I can do it as it is."

With a pale face and darkening eyes the young Countess watched the little scene. Why had he gone to her for this small service? Why should she hold her husband's hand and look with laughing eyes into his face? She could not endure it. She went up to him.

"I thank you, Lady Hamilton," she said; "I will do that for Lord Caraven."

Lady Hamilton looked up in amazement, but there was something in the young Countess' face which made her yield at once. She drew back coldly.

"Lord Caraven asked me to do it," she said.

"In all probability he had forgotten that I was here," she returned, in a high, clear voice.

"The Earl, like a prudent man, remained quite silent. He looked at his wife's face as she bent over the glove, and he saw something there that, shrewd as he was, puzzled him. Why was she so pale? What was it that shone and gleamed in the dark eyes? Why did the proud lips tremble? What was in her face? He gazed in silent wonder. She had finished.

"The button will not come off again," she declared.

"I hope not," said Lady Hamilton, in a peculiar tone of voice; "and, if it does, do not ask me to help you again, Lord Caraven."

He turned away with a laugh, but the mischief was done; the sight of her guest's golden head bending over her husband's hand had fanned the jealousy of the young wife into a flame—nor did what followed extinguish it.

The Earl had laughed to himself, thinking the occurrence a pretty bit of by-play. He was smiling still when, an hour afterward, his wife met him.

"Hildred," he said in a tone of easy banter, "were you jealous of Lady Hamilton?"

Then the idea seemed so absurd to him that he laughed aloud. To his surprise she grew deadly pale; her lips quivered with emotion.

"Yes," she replied, bitterly—"I scorn to speak falsely—I was jealous of her. You may think what you like of me."

Still he would not be serious about it. He said jestingly:

"I always thought until now that jealousy presupposed love."

"Did you?" questioned his wife, with proud indifference. "I always thought love presupposed perfect trust."

"You are a good fencer, Hildred," laughed her husband; and he thought no more of the matter. But she did not want but that trifling incident to fan her jealousy into a flame.

How the hours of that day passed she never knew. One picture filled her mind—that of Lady Hamilton's golden head bending over her husband's hand. She could not bear the thought of it. He might not love her, but he should not love anyone else. He should not laugh because she was jealous, he should not admire this fair woman while he so cruelly neglected her. She worked herself into a frenzy of jealous despair, yet was outwardly calm and proud as usual.

The dinner party at the castle on that day was not a large one; many of the guests had left. Lord and Lady Damers had returned home. Sir Raoul was in his room. Lady Caraven had dressed herself with unusual care and attention.

During dinner she watched her husband and Lady Hamilton. More than once she saw them laughing and heard them talking merrily. Was it of her? Was the Earl telling her that his wife was jealous? And was she laughing because the very cream of the jest was that her husband did not care for her?

For the convenience of one of the guests who was leaving they had fitted a little earlier than usual. When the ladies reached the drawing-room the room was filled with ruddy light from the sun setting in the western sky. It would be cruel, they said, to spend such a warm, lovely evening indoors. The gentlemen, thinking the same thing, had hurried from their wine, saying that it would be a pity to lose the last gleam of sunlight.

But before they went out someone prayed the Earl to sing a song.

"I will sing a duet," he said, "if Lady Hamilton will help me."

It was useless, he thought, appealing to his wife. The last time he had asked her to sing with him she had refused.

Lady Hamilton was only too pleased. She went to the piano, and very soon the two beautiful voices seemed to fill the room—Lady Hamilton's clear and sweet, the Earl's rich and musical—while the young Countess watched them with longing, pitiful eyes. They were singing about love, love that would never die, love that was immortal. More than once the unhappy young wife saw the widow look at her husband; more than once there came to her a wild impulse, a longing to strike the fair face. When the song was over, it was time to go and watch the sunset. Hildred saw that her husband did not leave Lady Hamilton's side. He remained near her, saying:

"We will watch the sunset over the lake. It is one of the prettiest sights at Ravensmere."

She did not hear Lady Hamilton's answer; it was given with smiling lips and laughing eyes. "Was it her morbid fancy, or did she really hear her husband say, 'Yes, and I will tell you the story of my marriage?'"

She did not wait to ask herself if it were mere fancy. She believed that she had heard it, and the idea of it drove her almost mad. They were going to watch the sun fade among the flowers, and the Earl would meanwhile entertain his companion with the story of his marriage—how he had wed the money-lender's daughter, or else how he had wed the money-lender's daughter, but how he had wed himself by neglecting her. Hildred's heart and brain were on fire. The husband she loved despite his neglect and the rival whom she disliked were going to laugh over her together.

An idea suddenly occurred to the unhappy wife—they should not do this, they should not laugh at her, her love and her jealousy should not be sport for them. She would follow them unperceived, and then, when they began to laugh over her story, she would confront them, and dare them to amuse themselves with her anguish. All the pride of her nature was aroused. She would suffer death rather than be laughed at by her husband and her rival.

The grounds of Ravensmere were so well wooded that behind the safe shelter of the tall trees she could walk quite unseen by the Earl and his companion. The sweet southern wind that scarcely stirred the leaves brought to her from time to time change words, but none of them were of her. She did not want to listen to their conversation; she only wished to prevent the story of her marriage from being told. Sometimes the low, musical laughter of Lady Hamilton reached her, and then the rich ring of her husband's voice would sound clearly in the gathering gloom; and all the time she, his wife, was slowly threading her way after him like the shadow of fate.

There had not been one word of her yet—the conversation had all been about people they had known years before; and now they stood on the borders of the lake, where the crimson waters, to the dazed mind of the young Countess, looked like blood. She shuddered as the idea occurred to her. Some of the crimson glow fell on the white dress and on the silken veil. She saw Lady Hamilton hold out her little white hand and cry, gleefully:

"Look, Lord Caraven—my hand is dyed red!"

They had not spoken of her. The red sun was fast descending.

"That is what I wish you to see," said the Earl. "The moment in which the sun seems to touch the water a red gleam passes through it; then the next moment it is quite dark."

They watched in silence, while the dark figure stood motionless and still behind them. The sun, as it set, seemed to touch the outer edge of the lake; a red gleam came over it, beautiful and curious, and then, almost at once, it was dark.

"We will go home by the coppice," said Lord Caraven, and his wife remembered that the long avenue of trees extended to the very gate. She could therefore walk almost side by side with them, yet quite unseen.

They had not mentioned her name. Could she have been wrong in her suspicion? Had she mistaken her husband's words?

"They were standing at the edge of the lake, a cold, dark sheet of water now, and she established herself behind a great group of alder trees. It seemed to her that the silver veil on the fair woman's head and shoulders absorbed all the light there was. Presently she drew near. Another group of trees separated her from the two who were so unconscious of her presence—large trees with swaying branches; through them the night wind brought every word to her. They talked only of the light on the water, and the sudden darkness there—of some one who had known and loved Lady Hamilton before her marriage. She laughed coquettishly over it.

How long was that nonsense to last, the unhappy young wife asked herself? How long was she to stand under the darkening evening skies, with the great alder branches swaying to and fro, and the sighing of the wind in her ears, and the fire of love, the madness of jealousy raging in her heart—how long? It was almost unbearable. She felt inclined to cry out that it must end. She clinched her fingers, she bit her lip; then suddenly she heard the sound of her name—her maiden name—"Hildred Ransome!" What were they saying? Was the Earl telling her he had been compelled to remember himself with a wife he did not love? Was he saying that, although he did not love her, and that were strangers to each other, she cared for him? Was he laughing because she had owned that she was jealous of him?

"I cannot hear it," she thought.

The next moment there was the sound of a shot—something seemed to rattle through the alder branches—there was a low cry, a startled exclamation.

"There are poachers in the wood," she thought; "he will go in search of them, and then he will find me!"

She turned to fly; now that there was the danger of being caught, she seemed to wake to a full consciousness of what she was doing; the bare fact that she was listening seemed to come home to her as it had never come before. She turned to fly; not for anything that could be given would she be caught there. She wanted to hasten, but she could not; it was as though great weights of lead were fastened to her feet. Her brain was dizzy; the unusual excitement, the frenzy of love and jealousy had been too much for her; her tall, graceful figure swayed for a minute like a leaf in the wind, a low moan came from her lips, and then, as in a dream, the white, angry face of her husband was looking into hers, and he grasped her arm in a hard, cruel grasp.

Near to the lake, across which the last red glimmer of the sunset had faded, husband and wife stood for one moment beneath the darkening sky, looking at each other. Lord Caraven's face was ghastly white, an unknown, untold horror lay in his eyes, his lips trembled with uncontrollable emotion. Hildred, pale, terrified, wondering—gazed at him like one fascinated.

"What is it?" she gasped.

"You guilty woman," cried the Earl—"you cruel, guilty, jealous woman!"

She shrank back as though he had struck her, her lips parted as though she would speak, but all sound died away on them.

"You guilty woman," repeated the Earl, "own the truth! You followed Lady Hamilton and me here to watch, to listen. Speak!"

"May heaven pardon me, I did!" she moaned.

"Here you must remain. I shall come back. I shall know where to find you, crouching at the end of the alder trees, where you hid yourself to listen to your husband and his guest. Great heaven, that a spy should hear my name! Stay here until I return. If you attempt to escape, I will send the whole county after you. And I was beginning to care for you—to think you a noble woman!"

She shrank cowering from him. His angry face, the anger that shone in his eyes, the stern voice frightened her. She shrank lower and lower, until she fell on her knees, sobbing as though her heart would break.

"Stir at your peril!" he said, and then he left her.

(To be continued.)

GOLD MINE OUT OF REACH.

Made a Big Find, but It Was on an Indian Reservation.

The speaker was one of the old prospectors to whom the present Alaska talk recalls memories.

"When I was a kid prospecting in Arizona," he said, "a little thing happened that made me think for a couple of days that I was wiser than I was credited with being. In the time I had been in the gold country there had been a good many laughs on me, the same as there is on any tenderfoot, and I was just aching for a chance to surprise the boys when this little incident turned up.

"It was in connection with some of that Pueblo Indian pottery. I bought a little gold for a curiosity on a reservation that an outfit of three of us passed through. In handling the ugly bit of crockery I noticed a roughness of the surface. I wondered if there might be anything back of it; so, without saying anything about it to my two partners, I broke it up and applied the tests.

"The clay was full of grains of gold!"

"The next thing to do was to find out from the Indians where they got their clay. I planned to hold back my find from the other fellows until I had everything in shape to surprise 'em. They kept me pretty busy making up excuses for hanging around with the Indians for the next week, but I found the excuse. Dry old Abraham Butts would smile once in a while, but I never thought for a minute that he 'saved' my game.

"I got the Indian potter drunk, and he told me where he got his clay. The clay turned out to be full of gold. It was not until I started to locate a claim in the beds that I was jumped on and told quite plainly that they were inside the reservation limits, and that a white man had better stay away from them.

"That part of it wasn't half so tough as the fact that the other two fellows had been watching and chucking over the whole transaction. Old Abraham had found some of the pieces of my Pueblo god the day I broke him up, and had fumbled right on. They didn't say much about it; no, they only smiled a little, and continued to buy me presents of Pueblo pottery until I swore I'd shoot any man that brought up the word Pueblo again."

AN OLD DRUM.

It Was Carried in the Revolution and Again in 1812.

Capt. George Warren has the oldest drum in the State. It was carried in the revolutionary war by Daniel Hopkins, of Plainfield, Conn., Col. Parsons' regiment of Continental troops, Sixth Company, Sixth Regiment, and was carried at the siege of Boston, April and May, 1775. The regiment then marched under General Washington, to New York, and was at the battle of Long Island, Aug. 27, 1776, and at White Plains, Oct. 28. The drum was also carried on July 7, 1812, by Musclem William Hopkins, of Plainfield, in Capt. Archibald Trumbull's company, at Fort Trumbull, June 7 to July 14, 1812.

The shell of this drum was sawed out of a log by hand, and is in two parts, glued together in the center with chips of wood.

William Hopkins, the last owner, died in Plainfield fifteen years ago, aged 95 years. He was a school teacher, and his uncle, Stephen Hopkins, of Rhode Island, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

William Hopkins also claimed that this drum was carried by his ancestors in the French war in Canada, when Windham County furnished a number of companies. Sergeant Shins Corp. of Killingly, Lieut. Larned, of Woodstock, and Private Plank, of Killingly, who marched under the music of this old drum, he buried in the old Putnam cemetery, south of Grove street, with about fifty other soldiers of 1776. ## QUIET ON THE SURFACE.

Warlike Spirit of the People Has Some-what Subsided.

TALK IS NOW LESS HOSTILE.

Verdict of the Naval Board Is Patiently Awaited.

Two Weeks May Elnapse Before Official Reports Are Made on the Maine Disaster—Belligerent Congressmen Claim the Silence Is Ominous—Meantime Uncle Sam Will Be Prepared for War.

The naval court of inquiry in the case of the ill-fated battleship Maine is proceeding as a court martial and keeping its proceedings to itself. The Secretary of the Navy says that he has no information not given to the public, that he knows nothing of the character of the evidence taken, or the opinions or conclusions of the board of inquiry. What is more to the point, Secretary Long intimates that he does not expect to know anything about how the Maine was destroyed until the board of inquiry makes its report, which may be not for two or three weeks. With such positive assertions from Secretary Long, there can be nothing but speculation in Washington as to what the verdict will be. There is plenty of speculation and little of it is now in line with the accident theory.

In the absence of exciting news from Havana there has been a noticeable cessation of the war talk in Washington. The conservative attitude of the President has reflected in Congress, and members who first would listen to nothing but war are now disposed to wait patiently for the actual decision by the court of inquiry. Members of Congress, says a Washington correspondent, are gradually coming to see that events are moving fast enough without any assistance on their part, and that if an outside explosion is proved and an indemnity demanded Spain would nearly certainly refuse it and thus justify the President in interfering actively to preserve peace in Cuba. It is said at both the State and Navy Departments that there is no disposition to delay the publication of the finding of the board, but it is more than hinted that in all probability the board will merely present the facts and say that they are too vague to make a positive declaration one way or the other.

That contingency will produce new complications, and it is probably this which has induced the President to say positively that there is no immediate prospect of any war between this country and Spain, for if the board of inquiry is not able to reach a positive finding it will be exceedingly difficult for the State Department to formulate any kind of a demand upon Spain. The President will not precipitate the country in a war unless the facts are such as to justify him in the eyes of an overwhelming majority of the people. He evidently realizes, however, the strained relations between the two countries and the active possibility of not probability of a dispute arising which could only be settled by a show of force on the part of this country.

The President's desire for and belief in peace has not interfered in any way with the orders issued to the army and navy to put the armed forces of the country into a condition for active service. It is distinctively announced that this is the ounce of prevention rather than the pound of cure and that the preparations will continue until all possibility of actual war has been disposed of.

So far as the general public is concerned the war scare has subsided, for the present at least. There may be more excitement when the report of the court of inquiry on the Maine disaster is received, but it may not be easy to stir the country up again. Besides, it is now pretty well understood that it is going to take a long time to get at the facts. Secretary Long received a letter from one of the officers at Havana, in which the statement was made that so far the result of the investigations made by the divers within the wreck has been rather unsatisfactory. The writer explains that the water of Havana harbor is so foul the divers cannot see their way about and have to depend upon the sense of touch. It is understood the writer of the letter was rather pessimistic as to the outlook for getting at the actual facts.

At best it is going to take time to ascertain the truth, and the country will have need of all its stock of patience. The court of inquiry will return to Havana to be present after the wrecking operations have been started. Although no official news concerning the movements of the court has been received, the authorities think the court will need at least two weeks, and perhaps a much longer time, for completion of its work. This inquiry, the conservatives say, is too important to be rushed through. Too much depends upon its results. Most serious is the responsibility which the members of this court have assumed. As high-minded officers they are naturally eager to acquit themselves with credit. The issue of war or peace between nations may depend upon their verdict, and this is no trifling matter to be rushed through in haste. All the investigation the court has so far been able to make in Havana was of a purely preliminary character. The members will now have to carefully and patiently watch the wrecking operations for further evidence.

Secretary Long does not profess to believe in the accident theory as he did for several days after the Maine was blown up. Other members of the cabinet believe, as does Secretary Long, that the ship was blown up by design. The experts in the navy also believe this, or now profess to believe it, but they will await facts before expressing positive opinions.

Method in the Silence.

It may be truthfully asserted, however, says a well-informed Washington correspondent, that nine out of every ten members of Congress believe there is a deep significance in the seemingly dilatory tactics of the administration in regard to the disaster. They believe that President McKinley and the members of his cabinet are not so much in the dark regarding the information secured by the court of inquiry as is indicated by the official bulletins, and that there is method in the silence. Many of the members are convinced that the President is playing for time and that every minute is being utilized to make preparations for war. Other members believe that the President has received word from the court of inquiry that the explosion was an accident and that he is taking measures to have it appear that the court is making a most exhaustive and deliberate investigation in order that no cry may be raised that a snap verdict was returned.

It is believed by some that Spain is preparing the way to contest any finding that the battleship was blown up by accident. With the wreck sinking deeper and deeper into the mud of the harbor, it may be difficult to prove any assertion to the contrary. It has been asserted by Spaniards that there were mines in the harbor, seamen deprived Senators and Representatives of an opportunity to discuss the situation growing out of the Maine disaster.

Naval preparations go on as before, but the diplomatic policy of the administration with regard to the Cuban question is held in abeyance. Those close to the President say that he is less apprehensive of the consequences of the disaster than he was a week ago. These representatives of McKinley as being inclined to think that the warlike spirit of the people which broke out so fiercely upon receipt of news that the Maine had been destroyed is subsiding somewhat.

That the disaster to the Maine has upset completely the President's Cuban policy is indicated by the fact that the time has already arrived when the ultimatum of the administration was to have been sent to Spain. It was generally understood the Sagasta ministry would not be permitted to postpone beyond March its reply to the demands made upon it by Woodford, but the President knows no more now officially as to whether Woodford's mission is to meet with success or failure than he did when the minister forwarded Sagasta's first reply to his note of instructions.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW IS UPHELD.

Important Supreme Court Decision on a Case Appealed from Utah.

In the Supreme Court at Washington an opinion was handed down in the case of E. F. Holden vs. the sheriff of Salt Lake County, Utah, upholding the constitutionality of the territorial law fixing a day's work in smelters and mines in the territory at eight hours.

Mr. Holden was arrested for violating the law and was sentenced to imprisonment. He brought the case to the Supreme Court in an effort to secure a writ of error on the ground that the law was unconstitutional in that it was calculated to deprive a citizen of life or property without due process of law. The court held that such was not the case, but that the law was an exercise of the State's police powers.

Justice Brown said in passing upon the case that it was not the intention of the court to pass generally upon the constitutionality of eight-hour laws, but that it was so far as State laws were exerted for the protection of the lives, the health or the morals of a community there could be no doubt of their propriety or of their constitutionality. There could be no doubt of the exceptional and unhealthy character of work in smelters or mines, because of bad air, high temperature and noxious gases, and hence the wisdom of the State legislation. The decision of the Supreme Court of Utah was affirmed.

CANNOT INSPECT MEAT.

Federal Officers Deprived of Their Power by a Decision in Court.

By a decision handed down by the United States District Court at Kansas City, Mo., by Judge John P. Rogers at Fort Smith, Ark., the entire system of Government inspection of meat was declared unconstitutional. The opinion of the jurist is to the effect that Congress has no authority to create the office of meat inspector and to place such an official in the packing houses in the United States to examine the product before it is packed and shipped or delivered for consumption.

The opinion was handed down in the case of a man named Harry Boyer, who was indicted by the Federal grand jury on the charge of attempting to bribe a Government meat inspector. Boyer is foreman in the fresh meat department of the Jacob Dold Packing Company. The court holds that Congress exceeded its power in creating the office of meat inspector and that even if Boyer had attempted to bribe such an official he could not be held as an offender. His act, the court decided, was not a crime against the Government. Under this decision the packers of this country may disregard the meat inspection statutes with impunity.

RATE IS CUT $30.

War Begins Between American Roads and Canadian Pacific.

Thirty-six dollars was clipped from the passenger rate of all lines between Chicago and Seattle and other north Pacific coast points Monday morning. The rate hereafter will be $31.50. Up to that date the authorized charge was $67.50 on the same class of transportation. On unlimited transportation it had been as high as $81.50. The cut, therefore, is one of more than 50 per cent.

No higher charge will be put into effect until the warfare between the American lines and the Canadian Pacific is settled, either by amicable agreement or the backing down of one or the other interest. Prospects for yet lower charges are exceedingly bright, for American lines are determined to make the fight a bitter one and the Canadian Pacific shows no signs of weakening.

The rate of $31.50 will be applied through Omaha, Kansas City and other Missouri river gateways, as well as through St. Paul. Through Missouri river cities, however, single tickets will be sold on the rebate plan, purchasers being obliged to deposit the regular rate, $67.50, with the agent who sells the tickets. At Seattle, $36 will be refunded to them. Three or more persons traveling together may secure their tickets via the Missouri river gateways at the flat rate of $31.50. Through St. Paul all tickets will be sold at the flat rate of $31.50.

ANECDOTE OF ABDUL HAMID.

He Thinks His People Ought to Drink More Wine.

The Sultan understands French, but of course the official language of the palace is Turkish, says an exchange. Many strange stories are heard of his conference with the foreign ambassadors. On one occasion the Dutch minister was going on board ship to make a visit home when a messenger came desiring his presence at the palace. The Dutch ambassador explained his case and said that he would prefer to be excused unless an immediate audience was given, so that he might catch his boat. "This was arranged."

"I have noticed," began the Sultan, when the formalities of the greeting were over, "that in the other countries of Europe there is progress. Things improve. Here in Turkey we are the same, year after year. What is the reason?"

Now this may have been an instance of Abdul Hamid's childishness; or he may have been resolved, in a sudden fit of pessimism, to seek real help from the envy of a small and non-combative nation. At any rate, the Dutchman heeled.

"Truly, your majesty," said he; "I have not given the subject such close attention as your majesty must have done. Indeed, I was not aware that the case was as stated, but I cannot doubt the accuracy of your information and would greatly like to know what you yourself consider the reason for the difference."

"I fancy," said the Sultan, "that it is because my people drink too much wine. In Western Europe men drink wine."

"Your majesty is doubtless right," agreed the man from schnapps-land. Here the interview terminated and he made a dignified ministerial bee-line for his boat. As a matter of fact, drunkenness is rapidly increasing among the Turks.

Playful Dog Causes Death.

Mrs. Gregory, aged 67 years, living at Datchworth, near Hatfield, England, has just met with her death under extraordinary circumstances. Her collie dog, in its excess of affection, jumped up at her violently and knocked her down, causing serious injuries to which she succumbed. At the inquest Dr. Hodges proved that her death was directly due to her being knocked down by the dog. A verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

AN OVERWORKED BRAIN.

From the Record, Princeton, Ind.

Determined to rise as an educator, Ernest Kemper, of Princeton, Ind., overtaxed himself mentally and physically. He was ambitious; his mind was always on his work. From early morn until late at night he continually pored over his books. Few persons, even with the strongest constitutions, can keep up under such a strain.

In addition to his studies, Mr. Kemper was teaching a school some three miles from his home. Finally, his excessive study and the exposure of going to and from school in all kinds of weather undermined his health.

He was taken to his bed with pneumonia and his overworked brain almost collapsed. For several weeks he was seriously ill.

Catastrophe had taken root in his system and his mind was in a delicate condition. He was sent to Colorado, where he spent three months without receiving any benefit.

Then a noted specialist from Cleveland treated him with a course of electricity and then a hospital in Chicago was tried, but all without success.

Without benefit. Finally his physician recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and from the first box he began to improve. When he had taken nine boxes he was completely cured.

This famous blood and nerve medicine accomplished what former expensive treatment failed to do. Mr. Kemper says his catarrh has entirely left him; he is strong again and weighs nine pounds more than he ever did. He gives the pills the entire credit. He is starting teaching again and feels abundantly able to continue the work. To prove that the above is true Mr. Kemper's affidavit follows:

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of September, 1897.

R. P. WATT, Notary Public.

We doubt if these pills have an equal in all the range of medicine for building up a run down and debilitated system.

A WORD OF ADVICE

To Those Coming to Alaska or the Klondike Gold Fields.

One thing should be impressed upon every miner, prospector or trader coming to Alaska, to the Klondike, or the Yukon country, and that is the necessity for providing an adequate and proper food supply. Whether procured in the States, in the Dominion, or at the supply stores here or further on, this must be his primary concern. Upon the manner in which the miner has observed or neglected this precaution more than upon any other one thing will his success or failure depend.

These supplies must be healthful and should be concentrated, but the most careful attention in the selection of foods that will keep unimpaired indefinitely under all the conditions which they will have to encounter is imperative. For instance, as bread raised with baking powder must be relied upon for the chief part of every meal, imagine the helplessness of a miner with a can of spoiled baking powder. Buy only the very best flour; it is the cheapest in the end. Experience has shown the Royal Baking Powder to be the most reliable and the trading companies now uniformly supply this brand, as others will not keep in this climate. Be sure that the bacon is sweet, sound and thoroughly cured. These are the absolute necessities upon which all must place a chief reliance, and can under no circumstances be neglected. They may, of course, be supplemented by as many comforts or delicacies as the prospector may be able to pack or desire to pay for.—From the Alaska Mining Journal.

A book of receipts for all kinds of cooking, which is specially valuable for use upon the trail or in the camp, is published by the Royal Baking Powder Company, of New York. The receipts are thoroughly practical, and the methods are carefully explained, so that the inexperienced may, with its aid, readily prepare everything requisite for a good, wholesome meal, or even delicacies if he has the necessary materials. The matter is in compact though durable form, the whole book weighing but two ounces. Under a special arrangement, this book will be sent free to miners or others who may desire it. We would recommend that every one going to the Klondike procure a copy. Address the Royal Baking Powder Co., New York.

Belles of Crow Agency School.

The Indian girls of the Crow Agency boarding school in Montana gave a soiree dance the other evening, and the following girls were present: Clara Spotted-Horse, Edith Long-Bear, Kittie Medicine-Tail, Lena Old-Bear, Clara Bull-Nose, Blanche Little-Star, Nellie Shell-on-the-Neck, Mary Old-Jack-Rabbit, Bertha Full-Moon, Katie Dreamer, Fanny Plenty-Butterflies, Bessie Crook-Arm, Martha Long-Neck, Isabel Lunch, Floy Hairy-Wolf, Alice Shoots-as-She-Goes, Stella Wolf-House, Lucy Hawks, Beatrice Beads-on-Angle, Susie Bear-Lays-Down, Louisa Three-Wolves, Anna Medicine-Pipe, Maggie Broken-Angle, Ruth Bear-in-the-Middle, Helen Comes-Out-of-Fog, Sarah Three-Irons, Ida Wrinkle-Face, Jessie Flat-Head-Woman, Lottie Grand-Mother's-Knife, Esther Knows-Her-Gun, Minnie Nods-at-Bear, and Daisy Young-Helmer.—Chicago Tribune.

Glass Umbrellas.

It is rumored that before long glass umbrellas will be in general use—that is, umbrellas covered with the new, spun glass cloth. These, of course, will afford no protection from the rays of the sun, but they will possess one obvious advantage, namely, that they can be held in front of the face when meeting the wind and rain, and at the same time the user will be able to see that he does not run into unoffending individuals or lamp posts. But what say to lovers—the seaside holiday lovers—who are to be seen on every beach round the coast, with their backs to the cliff or a handy boat, an unfurled old-style umbrella in front of them, leaving nothing to the gaze of the inquisitive save the soles of their four shoes? Surely they will revolt against the innovation.—Westminster Gazette.

Hume spent fifteen years in collecting materials and writing his "History of England" and two more years in revising and correcting it.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment, which restores the hearing condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed, it has a tumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; and cases of deafness caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by F. J. Cheney & Co. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Her Financiering.

"Just my luck," said the pretty little wife with snapping black eyes as she finished a letter just received. "But Henry knows everything, just like other husbands. Instead of saving and denying ourselves to pay bills, we might have all the money we wanted. If there be anything under the sun more aggravating than a man, I have failed to discover it."

"That's a nice way for a young wife to be talking," said her mother, who generally takes sides with her daughter in everything. "Very few women have as good a husband as you have, and you should be ashamed of yourself for talking that way. What's Henry been doing now?"

"Exercising his superior judgment," that's all. A month ago I had a little money saved up and I told him to buy wheat. I knew it would go up, and there was a chance to make thousands. But no, he doesn't believe in speculating. "Slow and sure," is his motto. Did you ever hear such nonsense? We had a perfect right to buy when wheat was low and sell when it had advanced. I don't believe in running away from fortune when it's coming right at you. I'm going down this very afternoon and have Slicker buy for every cent we have in the bank. I guess Henry will forgive me when he finds thousands instead of tens. Slicker's a broker, and he says there's plenty of money in wheat yet."

"I wouldn't, dear."

"Oh, of course, not. Caution will starve some people yet. But I will." And she did. Wheat took a slump. There isn't a cent in the bank. The little wife is down with nervous prostration. Henry is half crazy over her condition, and the good mother is drumming her relatives in the East for money enough to make that account good.—Detroit Free Press.

Feeding Elephants.

Elephants in the Indian army are fed twice a day. When meal time arrives, they are drawn up in line before a row of piles of food. Each animal's breakfast includes ten pounds of raw rice, done up in five two-pound packages. The rice is wrapped in leaves and then tied with grass. At the command, "Attention!" each elephant raises its trunk and a package is thrown into its capacious mouth. By this method of feeding, not a single grain of rice is wasted.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more GRAIN-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. GRAIN-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about 1/10 as much. All grocers sell it, 15c. and 25c.

PRES. M'KINLEY VS. FREESILVER.

A battle of giants is going to take place this summer on 30,000 farms in America, not in talk or votes, but in yields. Only seedsmen in America growing grasses, clovers and farm seeds and selling potatoes at $1.50 a barrel. ## MRS. PINKHAM CONQUERS BACKACHE.

Four Women Who Owe Their Present Happiness to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When I wrote to you last June, I was not able to do anything. I suffered with backache, headache, bearing-down pains, pains in my lower limbs, and ached all through my body. Menstruations were very painful. I was almost a skeleton. I followed your advice and now am well and fleshy, and able to do all my own housework. I took medicine from a physician for over a year, and it did not do me a particle of good. I would advise all suffering women to write to Mrs. Pinkham. She will answer all letters promptly, and tell them how to cure those aches and pains so common to women.—Mrs. C. L. WINS, Marquez, Texas.

I think it is my duty to write and let you know what your medicine has done for me. For two years I suffered with female weakness, bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and too frequent occurrence of the menses. I was always complaining. My husband urged me to try your Vegetable Compound, and I finally did. I have taken three bottles and it has made me feel like a different woman. I advise every woman that suffers to take your medicine and be cured.—Mrs. GARRETT LIGHTY, 619 S. Prince St., Lancaster, Pa.

I had suffered for over two years with backache, headache, dizziness, nervousness, falling and ulceration of the womb, leucorrhoea, and about every ill a woman could have. I had tried doctors, but with no success, and it seemed as though death was the only relief. After using five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and four packages of Sanative Wash, I am well. Have had no more pain, womb trouble, backache or headache.—Mrs. CLAUDIA HALPIN, Cream Ridge, N. J.

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was afflicted with female complaints so that I could hardly walk. My back ached terribly, and I was not able to raise myself up some of the time. I had no appetite and was so nervous that I could hardly sleep. I have taken but two bottles of your Compound and feel like another person, can now eat and sleep to perfection, in fact, am perfectly well.—Mrs. SUE McCULLOUGH, Adlai, W. Va.

TELEGRAMS TYPEWRITTEN.
Abandonment of Penmanship Thought to Be a Detriment.
In conversation with a telegrapher of long standing as to effect of the introduction of typewriters, he stated that the beautiful chirography peculiar to the fraternity would soon be a lost art. "A few days ago," he continued, "the Postal Telegraph Company opened up for business in Dallas, with the announcement that none but operators familiar with the typewriter would be employed. I have heard bankers in Houston state that they preferred an operator's handwriting. In money transactions, to typewritten telegrams. Many cotton men, in large transactions, prefer plain chirography to the typewriter. There is no loophole for a telegraph company to evade responsibility when a telegram is received by one of their operators with a pen. An official of the Western Union recently declared to me that no operators could swear he received a typewritten telegram, but when received by a pen he cannot deny his own handwriting. The typewriter is a great labor-saving machine and for long newspaper specials, where an occasional wrong word is of no moment, they come in place admirably. Of course, when an operator writes a poor hand or has the telegrapher's paralysis, which is very frequent, the typewriter is a thing of joy to him." What is more desirable to a business man than the reception of a legibly written telegram, the handwriting with which he is often familiar? The banker, in large transaction, knows it's all right, and has no hesitancy in paying the cash on such telegrams. What institution of business would sign the full name with a typewriter? Who would accept a deed with the signature in type? A telegram is usually a very important document. No, sir, the good, old fashioned hand-written, learned at school, is indispensable. But, as I stated, the typewriter is ruining the beautiful penmanship for which operators have been noted."—Houston Post.

WHAT IS A CHRISTIAN?

"Jan MacLaren" Defines Him as One Who Has Attained to His Height in Christ.
"Christ did not come to cramp any one's manhood. He came to broaden it," writes the Rev. Joan Watson, D. D. ("Jan MacLaren"), on "A Young Man's Religious Life," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "He did not come to destroy our manhood; He came to fulfill it. A thoroughgoing Christian is a man with a stronger reason, kinder heart, firmer will and richer imagination than his fellows—one who has attained to his height in Christ. A bigot, or a prig, or a weakling, is a half-developed Christian, one not yet arrived at full age. What ought a Christian to read? Every book which feeds the intellect. Where ought he to go? Every place where the moral atmosphere is pure and bracing. What ought he to do? Everything that will make character. Religion is not negative, a giving up this or that, but positive, a getting and a possessing. If a man will be content with nothing but the best thought, best work, best friends, best environment, he need not trouble about avoiding the worst. The good drives out the bad. There are two ways of lighting a dark room. One is to attack the darkness with candles; the other is to open the shutters and let in the light. When light comes, darkness goes. There are two ways of forming character. One is to conquer our sins, the other is to cultivate the opposite virtues. The latter plan is best because it is surest—the virtue replaces the sin. Christianity is not drill; it is life, full, free, radiant and rejoicing. What a young man should do is not to vex himself about his imperfections, but to fix his mind on the bright image of Perfection; not to weary his soul with rules, but to live with Christ as one liveth with a friend. There is one way to complete manhood, and that is, fellowship with Jesus Christ."

COMPARISON OF STANDARDS.

Would Women Be Better Than Men with Like Temptations?
Whatever the Turveydrops of the moral world may have to say about the necessity for elevating moral development on the part of "woman, bewitching woman," I have never been able to see any indubitable intent in nature herself toward binding them over to any higher moral standards than she does men, says Helen Waterson Moody in Scribner's. Both men and women seem to me to be compounded of the same average morality, though with certain unlike manifestations largely the result of circumstances and opportunities. I see no special cause for believing that the average woman under like temptation would do very differently from the average man—a belief which is not lessened by Bishop Potter's recent accusation before the women's auxiliary of the civil-service reform association, that they put their relatives into office whenever they got the chance, "without any evidence that they are fitted to fill the places they applied for." Possibly women were intended by their Creator to stand for the reformatory interests of life, but I think there is not, as yet, sufficient evidence thereto either in the nature of things or of women to warrant any special abrogation of other distinct and more familiar duties in favor of interests mainly moral.

Don't forget the criticisms when giving thanks for the blessings you have received.
"Little Robert" Papa, do you know who it was invented the phrase "Weighed and found wanting?" Papa—"No; I don't remember his name, but I guess it was some fellow who put his goods on the scales after he got them home from the grocery."

BENEFACTORS OF THE RACE.
Office of "KINGFISHER TIMES,"
Kingfisher, Okla., Dec. 12, '93.
OBTENKIN.—I believe it my duty to write you a line in regard to the beneficial effect of Phelps' "Four C Remedy," so far as I am personally concerned. A week ago last Thursday, I was taken with a severe attack of la grippe and in a short time became so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. The night previous I had coughed nearly the entire night; just before retiring I took a teaspoonful and slept the entire night as sweetly as ever I did in my life, not coughing once; I was entirely relieved before taking one bottle, Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure should be in every household in the land. I send you this wholly unsolicited by anyone, for you are benefactors of the race in giving it the antidote for some of the worst afflictions to which it is heir.
Very Truly Yours,
C. J. NEUBITT, Editor.

A MIRACLE.
Kansas City, Kansas, Dec. 24, '91.
Last Friday, Dec. 19, my attending physician stated unless I was better by morning he could do nothing for my relief. That night I commenced taking Phelps' "Four C." The first dose relieved my cough, giving me the first night's rest for weeks; slept and rested well; a few more doses removed all soreness from my lungs; the second day I was up; the third day I was out on the porch and to-day was up town purchasing holiday goods.

J. B. HILL, M.D., Manager,

R. R. Phelps, Esq., City.
DEAR SIR:—I wish to bear testimony to the great efficacy of your "Four C" remedy in throat and lung ailments. As a rule I have been skeptical of the merits of proprietary medicines, but have to confess that a test of your "Four C" is convincing that at least one remedy made ready is worthy of use. My children all take it with out the least objection, from oldest to youngest and it is particularly noticeable that benefit is almost immediate. A single dose will check most coughs in their beginning; it gives an unbroken rest at night. In my family "Four C" is simply indispensable and I recommend it unqualifiedly, Yours,
J. B. HILL.

ACUTE LARYNGITIS.
Chicago, Sept. 25, '95.
For years back each winter I have suffered with acute laryngitis. Last winter was so bad I could not leave my room for two weeks or speak above a whisper. I tried every known cough preparation from cough drops up and down with no relief, then in desperation I was induced to try Phelps' "Four C." The first dose relieved my cough, giving me the first night's rest for weeks. Half the bottle cured me. I have never been without this wonderful remedy since. It is as different from other like remedies as molasses from vinegar or sugar from sand.
Mrs. JOSEPH E. GREY,
5313 Madison Ave.

IT IS A MIRACLE.
Conductor Eckard, the Railroad Correspondent of the Neodesha Kansas Register, has had to say of "Four C." "Phelps is having a wonderful sale of his Cough and Cold Remedy. We personally know it is just what it is represented to be. Too much cannot be said in its praise. It is a miracle."

NOTICE TO DRUGGISTS AND THE PUBLIC.
CONTRACT.—Druggists are authorized in ALL CASES TO REFUND THE PURCHASE PRICE, if the Four-C Remedy (Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure) fails to give satisfaction in Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma, La Grippe, Coughs and Colds, no matter how long standing, or deep seated, in fact I guarantee in all manner of Bronchial or Lung trouble, not as a Cure-All, but to give unbounded satisfaction. Give it a trial on the above conditions. I take all chances.
