AWAY FROM CAMP THREE WEEKS

Another Very Interesting Letter from Charles Carpenter.

High Camp, Four Miles West of Alasca River, Thirld Glacier, May 24, 1898.

I will start where I left off in my last letter and you can see just what we have been through. We landed on the first of April and pitched our tents on the beach with a high hill behind us, to start up as soon as we got ready, which we did the following Monday, and we got our freight and tent on top of that hill before anyone else, and found that we had another one to go right at and then a short one to go down and cross over an ice bridge onto the glacier, and then up, oh, such a long and high one for about four miles to the end of the trail, as Prof. Hill had opened it only that far for fear of its being closed with snow before we could get to it.

We worked night and day until we had gotten it all up with our tent, which we were the first ones to set up on the new camp ground, or rather camp snow, for you could look as far as you could see, and nothing but snow, ice and snow white mountains could be seen in any direction. We got to our new home at about 4:30 a. m. and dug a hole in the snow about three and a half feet deep to set our tent in, and banked the snow up higher than the peak of our tent and all around it, to protect it from the wind which was blowing to beat the band.

After we had gotten everything ready to begin to snow, and it kept it up for four or five days, so that we were not bothered with any company until after the storm, and we were glad of it, for we were short of wood and only had one fire a day on which to get our meals, and then we went to bed to keep warm, which we did in good shape with all our woolen blankets and clothes on us. After they all caught up with us our troubles began.

The trail was not broken any farther than our tent, and Mr. Hoffman (the man who had engaged Prof. Hill) wanted a good long trail broken ahead, to the river if possible. Prof. Hill came to me and wanted to know if I would go with him. I told him that I would go in a party to help break the trail as far as he went. We hustled around and got nineteen men, fifteen of whom were snow shoes, and the balance to draw sleds with provisions for four days, which was considerable about twice what was needed. After everything was ready, Prof. Hill came to me and said that he would rather go with the Professor and have me stay back and see to getting the freight up, and after we had talked the matter over between ourselves we concluded to do that way.

The next Monday the whole party started out expecting to be back all right. Mull and myself got our sleds out and started to draw freight ten miles on the new trail, and worked hard all day over a soft road, going in to our knees at almost every step. Elmer took his sled with his blanket and gun on it, and dragged it behind him. He wore snowshoes for the first time in his life, and I must say that he did well with them, for he kept up with the rest of the crowd besides drawing his sled. When Mull and myself had gotten about six miles out we met Elmer coming back, and we were in hopes that they had given up going any farther that day, but when he got up to us he said that they had decided to go right on, and that he would take with him provisions I had on my sled, which he did.

Mull and I kept at our freight and got it all out about nine miles, but about 230 besides our baggage and tent, when we met a man coming back who said that all the boys on the trail were starving to death, and that we would have to get to them with provisions as soon as possible. We were at the farther end of the trail when we saw him so that we would have to walk back to camp before we could get anything to take to their relief. There was one party who had moved their tent about three miles and they told me that I could go and sleep with them and that they would fit me out in the morning and send one of their party if no one else would go.

You see that the Professor and Elmer with the rest of the men had been gone five days when we received word from them. Early the next morning three other men and myself started out after them with provisions enough to last two weeks or a little longer tied on one sled. We all had to wear snowshoes, and one man had to go ahead with a pole and feel through the new snow for their trail, while the other three pulled the sleds. We walked all day as fast as we could go, and it was no easy job either, until about 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon when we thought that we could make out a man with the rifle glass, about two or three miles ahead. We had just about concluded to stop for the night but when we saw this object we kept on, and it proved to be a man trying to get back to camp. When we got up to him he was just about done for. He said that he had left the Professor and Elmer in the woods that morning about twenty-five miles away, and that he and ten others had started for camp. In a few minutes we saw more men coming and they kept stringing along until they got up to us, where we had decided to camp for the night except the Professor and Elmer and three others who had stopped out on the trail.

It seems that it was farther to the woods than Prof. Hill thought for and he also wanted to go through a new pass if possible, so he had concluded to stay one or two days if Elmer would stay with him, and have a look around. Elmer told him that he would, so they stayed together upon the promise of one of the men that he would see to it that provisions were sent to them at once.

We fed the men as they came in and then went to bed in a hole dug in to the snow. The next morning it stormed so hard that we could not see three rods away, so we had to stay in our hole all that day and the next night. The second day was clear so we sent the men back to camp and started on after the Professor and Elmer and the three men on the trail. We met the latter about 4 o'clock that afternoon. One of these men was the one who had promised to get grub to the woods. I don't know what was the matter with him, but he told us that there was no use going for them for we could not find them if we did, that they were all right, had lots of game, etc. For some reason or other I did not take any stock in what he said, but insisted that we should go on, which the boys were glad to do. We gave them some food and started on, and after going two or three miles we dug another hole in the snow and turned in for the night, and stayed in that hole for seven nights and six days, with the storm raging terribly outside. We could hardly see to the end of our sled. I had broken my compass and the other one in the party had been lost the day before we got into the hole, so there we were like rats in a hole, at least twenty-five miles from any known man with the snow blowing at least seventy-five miles an hour, and in the meantime we were eating up the grub that was to save the Professor and Elmer if we should be able to find them, which began to look quite doubtful.

On the morning of the seventh day it cleared up. We had about two quarts of broken hard tack and about two pounds of salt pork left, so we decided to start for camp at once and send someone else out. We got back the second day with fine weather all of the time, but no word had been received from Elmer. Well to make a long story short, in just three and a half weeks from the time they left us I got word that both the Professor and Elmer had been found, both of them more dead than alive from starvation and exposure. It seems that Elmer mistrusted the man that had told him to stay, and he prevailed on the Professor to start for camp. They did so and were caught in the same storm that we were. They got lost on another glacier, they had no blankets, only one tarpaulin, slept any way that they could, ate up all their grub and finally killed their faithful dog and ate him raw without any salt. After the storm they were so weak that they could not climb up the glacier so they had to go back. There they got some game until their ammunition gave out, and then they were in it again, unless help soon came, which it just did.

and that was all. But is all over now, with the exception that they are both weak yet, but are gaining fast.

We have got all our freight and our tent and baggage to within three or four miles of our destination. We have got two claims staked out, Elmer and I have been out prospecting and hunting and now we are taking a rest for a few days. There is plenty of game here, lots of beautiful lakes that look very deep. Within a stone's throw of our tent there is a stream that has a fall of at least five hundred feet down the side of the mountain. Wild flowers are in bloom on the mountain side and the green is growing on one side of us and on the other there are snow banks from two to twenty feet deep. Robins and almost all other kinds of birds are in large numbers, and humble bees, flies and mosquitoes are here in abundance.

We are going to our permanent encampment soon. I think that we will build our cabin then. It is on a beautiful lake right down among the mountains, all by itself. There is first-class outlook for gold in there in the neighborhood, besides nice timber for shade, wood and lumber, also lots of game and fish right at our feet. We have found gold on both of our claims, right on top of the ground, but of course not in paying quantities, but we expect great things from them when we get at it.

There will be a ball game at Recreation Park on Monday afternoon, July 4, at 3 o'clock, between the men on the west and east sides of Main street. The losing side will be required to buy the ice cream for the winners and the scorers and the umpires. No swearing at the umpires will be allowed. The following will be the players for the west side: Alton Fletcher, Martin Conway, L. P. Vogel, Geo. P. Staffan, J. B. Cole, S. C. Stimson, Fred Reedel, Henry Sienbach and Edwin Whipple. The following players will do their best for the reputation of the east side: Fred Schussler, J. Seckinger, P. A. Gerard, Henry Elsie, J. E. McKune, J. K. Gilliam, Wm. Arnold, Ralph Freeman and A. E. Winans. Umpire, C. W. Maroney.

CAST-IRON DRAGONS.

THEY CAUSE A MILLIONAIRE MUCH TROUBLE.

Brazilian Magnate, Who Has Been Fair Plunderer for New York Traders, Turns on Them—Cause of Late Disorder in Havana Repeated.

Woe of a Millionaire.
The woe of a man with money was aired before Justice Olcott, in the city court in New York. The man with woe and money is Senor Eusebio de Faria de Teixeira, a Brazilian nobleman, who came to New York about two years ago with a train load of gold and diamonds. He was defendant in a suit brought by Eugene Kulinski & Co., manufacturers of cast iron dogs, dragons and other beasts and toys intended for the adornment of the castles of the rich. The contention of Kulinski & Co. was that the firm had manufactured for Senor Teixeira a pair of cast iron dragons worth $244, for which he had refused to pay. Senor Teixeira, while admitting a fondness for cast iron dragons, denied that he had ordered a pair from Kulinski & Co. Right here is where some of the woe comes in. There is ground for belief that some of the jurymen thought Senor Teixeira was a Spaniard and refused to decide in his favor. Senor Teixeira speaks Spanish and looks like a Spaniard, but he is not Spanish in his sympathies. He is the loudest shouter for Cuba libre outside of the junta and wears Cuban flags as big as two-dollar bills in the lapel of his coat. The test money showed that all the negotiations between the Kulinski firm and the plaintiff Brazilian had been conducted in Spanish, and the effect on the jury was marked. The rest of the woe was brought out by the trial of this case. Senor Teixeira, ever since his arrival in New York, has been kept well before the public through the efforts of a trained corps of press agents. In all of the stories printed about him great stress has been laid on his wealth. Columns of space have been devoted to the great palace he is building at 918 West End avenue. He has been besieged by tradesmen anxious to sell him goods. They have bombarded him with Spanish, English, Italian, French, German and Yiddish and have filled his house with things he does not want. For a long time he paid for everything brought to him. He has now decided to pay for nothing he does not order. His lawyers have sixty summons served on him by tradesmen who have delivered goods. He is going to fight them all.

Turks Explain the Disorder.
In reference to certain published statements, the Turkish legation at Washington makes the following declaration: "The frequent murders and pillages committed by Christians of Pera, under the instigation of Montenegrins, have exterminated the Mussulman population of the district and having forced them into reprisals, some alterations and disorders have occurred, and during these disturbances a number of huts of villagers have been destroyed. Turkish troops sent immediately in sufficient numbers to the spot at once restored order. His imperial majesty, the Sultan, has magnanimously accorded full and complete amnesty to the persons implicated in this affair and generously ordered the rebuilding of the destroyed huts and the reinstatement into their old homes of the Christian inhabitants who had crossed over to Montenegrins."

$300,000 Fire at Louisville.
The entire strength of the Louisville fire department was summoned to combat a fire in the wholesale tobacco district, which for a time threatened to do enormous damage. In twenty minutes the walls of Smead & Co.'s iron foundry were tottering and in an hour property to the value of $250,000 had gone up in smoke. Smead & Co. occupied the buildings extending from Main to Market street between Eighth and Ninth streets. Their loss is $300,000. The Phoenix Hotel, a block east in Market street, caught from the sparks and was partially destroyed.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

TEN LITTLE FINGERS.

Ten little fingers tooting with a mine—Bang! went the powder, and then there were nine.
Wide little fingers firing rockets straight—Zip! a kick backward, and then there were eight.
Eight little fingers pointing up to heaven—Boum! boum! boum!—and then there were seven.
Seven little fingers pinking and powdering—Punk was ignited, and then there were six.
Six little fingers for a "volunteer" action—One went off with a bang, and then there were five.
Five little fingers leading for a "volunteer" action—One went off with a bang, and then there were four.
Four little fingers with a bang made free—Crash! went a cracker, and then there were three.
Three little fingers found the fuse buried—Boum! boum! boum!—and then there were two.
Two little fingers having lots of fun—Pistol exploded, and then there was one.
One little finger, tooting with a gun—Didn't know 'twas loaded, and then there was none.

WHEN CUBA IS FREE.

ON'T touch it, Tom!
"It would make a thundering report!"
"Never mind that—loading that gun was one of the last things father did before he left home!"
"I know that," nodded Tom Wilson, looking pretty sober and solemn, "but it would make a thundering report!"
"You've said that twice."
"And I'd love to hear the old musket just once!"
"Maybe you will."
"To-morrow—the Fourth?"
"Who knows? Says father, when he rammed the lastwad home in the old revolutionary relic, 'We'll fire that off when Cuba is free!'"
"She's just as good as that, isn't she?" challenged Tom.
"Never you mind—we're going to mind father!"
Ned Wilson's word went, for he was the oldest, and there was no further demur.

A FAMILIAR NAME IN THE GLAZING HEADLINE.
Besides that, duty engrossed the two boys the rest of that day.
Other fellows had nothing more arduous to do than prepare for "the biggest Fourth since the Centennial!"
The Wilsons, however, were "helping mother," and mere novices at labor, they had not learned the ropes yet.
Things had gone from bad to worse with honest John Wilson for several years back.
He had a glorious civil war record behind him—was one of the gallant Cumberland's crew, that fated ship that went down in a blaze of patriotic glory that set fire to a nation's hopes and ardor.
A long spell of illness had caused his getting behind in his payments on the neat cottage home.
"Tell me what, Nance," he had said to his wife alone in the early days of May, "I've an idea."
"Tell it, John," encouraged his wife.
"I'm going to see my step-brother, Tracy."
"Down East?"
"Down East."
"Why not write?"
"I've done that and it did no good. No, I'll risk the powers of persuasion. He has thousands. But for a slip of the pen he would have been compelled to share them with me, and he knows it. I'll try and get him to take up the mortgage here, and ease us along till we can get the boys on their feet, earning and helping."
"And if he refuses, John?" suggested Mrs. Wilson anxiously.
"Why, then I suppose I'm sort of stranded."
"All your money gone, and away from home?"
"Well, maybe work is readier there than here. Never fear, Nance, I'll find a place, somewhere."
Mrs. Wilson gave her husband a quick look.

There had come into his eye a certain stern, yet proud, sparkle she used to see, when, fresh from the war, he was wont to tell how he turned the tide of a naval battle off the Carolinas by "pulling the gun string just at the right minute."
She said nothing, however. She heard nothing more from him after his departure until about the first of June.
"When he gets the mortgage, I'm am looking for work in New York City," Mrs. Wilson was uneasy. Wars and rumors of wars had set John restless for months before his departure.
His last word had been "Cuba." The soldier's wife trembled, prayed, waited. Meantime, like deserving widows of a man with a heart of oak, her two sons, Ned and Tom, pitched in.
They found the ladder growing slim, and set at work to repair it.

They ran errands, sold garden truck, peddled papers, and this latter was no mean feat of commercial venture during the prevailing war excitement in the village.
"Better have a quiet Fourth of July, boys," suggested their mother gently, the day before.
"All right," nodded thoughtful Ned cheerfully. "With father away, I suppose it's best."
"Yes!" assented Tom vaguely, "but what a thundering report that old musket would make!"
Ned attended to the morning papers that arrived from the city.
"Tom took in the 'extras' that came in through the day."
This former was eating supper with his mother, the latter absorbed in reflections of the absent, almost the missing one, now.
Suddenly there was a terrific hullabaloo, comprised of shouts, firecrackers, hurrahs.
Ned ran to the window.
"For mercy's sake!" he ejaculated.
"What is it, Ned?" rather startled, and tremulously inquired Mrs. Wilson, arising more slowly.
"It's Tom!"
"He isn't hurt, or—"
"Acts as if he was crazy!"
Tom did. In full view, he was coming down the dusty road.
"Trooping after him were a dozen or more vociferous youngsters with whom he had ever been a favorite."
They were making the walk in ring, and many a lad was burning his fingers in his ardent to help swell the commotion, and was using up the prized ammunition of the morrow.
Tom burst into the room, drenched with perspiration, panting for breath, but with eyes ablaze with emotion and vitality.
"See here!" challenged Ned.
"No—look there!"
Tom flung his bundle of extras upon the table.
His mother nearly fainted. Even a casual glance showed at the top of the glaring headlines a name familiar.
"John Wilson," "hero," "daring deed," "he was news from the absent one, but was it news of glory, but also of death?"
"Father!" she choked.
"Is all right!" piped Tom. "Read here, Ned—read here! Father was looking for work—say, mother! he found it!"
"Where? Where?" faltered the suspense-racked wife and mother.
"Battle ship—you know what a boss gunner he is! Met the enemy, pulled another gun string in another nick of time!"
Coherent consideration of the news the paper gave proved that Tom had not exaggerated.
Skill and opportunity had combined to give John Wilson a chance to "knock out" a Spanish ironclad "at the right minute."
He had cheerfully turned the tide of favor leading up to the capture of a richly freighted consort.
"Prize money—why, he can pay off the mortgage!" cried the exuberant Ned. "Promotion—it will glorify his later days!" murmured Mrs. Wilson thankfully.
"Where's the gun?" demanded intransigent Tom.

UNCLE SAM'S FOURTH OF JULY INCUBUS.

To the true-lovers of our country the American flag is the most beautiful emblem of a nation's glory that floats to the breeze. To its defenders in the past it means more than mere glory, as it symbolizes a union of States and hearts, purchased by blood and treasure freely given for the country's welfare. Its contemplation brings to our memory the scenes of strife on land and sea, where Old Glory was ever in the van.

"Hold on! What gun?" interferred Ned. "Father's old musket."
"Why?"
"We're going to celebrate."
"No—he left orders—fire it off when Cuba is free!"
"Free!" fairly yelled the sanguine and excited Tom. "With such men as him peppering the foe, she's practically 'free' already!"
"Well, I suppose," began Ned, in faint demur.
Above all other reports that boomed in the morning of July Fourth, 1898, that fired by proud, patriotic Tom Wilson seemed to him the loudest ever was—
"Wonder if they heard that in Cuba?" he gloated.
"They're hearing some other reports from its owner, I reckon," smiled Ned. "Say," declared the ardent Tom, "didn't it make a thundering report?"

The Grand Old Fashioned Way.

Get ready, boys, to make a noise On Independence day. For we're about to have it put in grand old fashioned way.
At dawn we'll raise our flag ablaze And watch it proudly fly. Its blue and stars and crimson bars Reflected on the sky.
Then with bells ringing and music bang And cannon thunders roar We'll give the cheer that slaves may hear Upon the old world's shore.
We'll yell and screech and make a speech About our glorious nation And brag that we on land or sea Can wallop all creation.

Fourth of July Poem.

A pistol toy Gave much joy To small boys— Bang!

He'll no more fire— Went up higher, And the cheer Sang.
—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Old Glory.

To the true-lovers of our country the American flag is the most beautiful emblem of a nation's glory that floats to the breeze. To its defenders in the past it means more than mere glory, as it symbolizes a union of States and hearts, purchased by blood and treasure freely given for the country's welfare. Its contemplation brings to our memory the scenes of strife on land and sea, where Old Glory was ever in the van.

WAR HISTORY OF A WEEK.

Friday.
The British warship, Talbot, went to Havana to take off the British consul and residents.
The President decided to send a second expedition of 8,000 men from Tampa to re-enforce Gen. Shafter.
The new fortifications at Cardenas have been bombarded by American warships and the Spanish severely punished.
The Spanish steamer Parolina Concepcion, loaded with food for Matanzas, left Kingston, taking a westerly course.
The American collier Havenwood, owned by a Philadelphia firm, is suspected of delivering a cargo of coal to the enemy's warships.
Saturday.
It is said that Gen. Miles will personally lead the expedition to Porto Rico.
The British ambassador and the Spanish minister of war had an important conference at Madrid.
Emperor William of Germany is said to be irritated over reports in Berlin and American newspapers that he is unfriendly to the United States.
One of the German war vessels at Manila has been ordered away, indicating that the Kaiser intends no meddling act to American domination.
Eleven of Admiral Camara's fleet said to be en route to Cartagena for orders. Five of the squadron are not located.
There are said to be 4,000 troops on the fleet.
At a council of war at the White House it was decided that the original plans of campaign for the conduct of the war shall be adhered to and pushed with vigor and energy.
Sunday.
Report current that Manila has surrendered.
The cruiser Newark left Hampton Roads with part of the Illinois recruits on board.
James T. Gatewood, private secretary to Gen. Lee, was killed by lightning at Jacksonville, Fla.
Spanish infantry made a hasty retreat for cover at Guantanamo under heavy fire from American warships.
President McKinley chooses 105 young men from the enlisted ranks and civilian life for appointment as second lieutenants in the army.
Admiral Sampson decided to reduce Morro Castle at Santiago. He learned that Hobson and his men were no longer in the fort as a shield against the fire of the American ships.
Monday.
News of attempt to assassinate Blanco, Gen. Shafter's army of invasion arriving off Santiago de Cuba.
Believed that the President will soon issue a call for more volunteers.
Illinois naval recruits left Norfolk, Va., on the collier Cassius, which sailed south.
Indications that the Spaniards desire a ransom before releasing Hobson and his crew.
Reported that hereafter Captain General Blanco will recognize no flag of truce in Havana's waters.
The President and Secretary Long decide to make Hobson, the hero of the Merrimack, a lieutenant commander.
Albert Ames of Massachusetts and Joseph W. Plume of New Jersey were nominated to be brigadier generals.
Tuesday.
Hunger is prevailing in Havana, and the rich are reported to be taking flight.
General Blanco is going to send four battalions of troops to the relief of the city.
Proposed to establish near Atlanta, Ga., a stockade to hold all prisoners captured during the war.
Orders issued to hold all persons captured on Spanish prize ships until further orders. They number 200.
Favorable report made by the House Military Committee on the bill to revive the grade of lieutenant general.
Reported that European governments are contemplating seizures in Africa and Spain in the direction of peace.
Arrival of the American invading army off Santiago officially reported by General Linares, the Spanish commander.
Wednesday.
Four picked crews removed seven submarine mines from Guantanamo harbor.
Efforts are making by Blanco to win the Cuban leaders to the cause of Spain.
Official report made that Munster bullets caused the incision of bodies of murine killed in Cuba.
Protests are published in the Madrid press against reports that the Queen-Isabel is to resign.
A cable from Havana denies that an attempt has been made upon the life of Captain General Blanco.
Admiral Sampson and Gen. Shafter officially report landing of troops at Balquid and laying of plans to attack Santiago front and rear.
Blanco says that Hobson is not exchanged for the reason that the lieutenant and his companions had an opportunity to see the defenses of Santiago harbor.
Thursday.
Sagasta said to have announced in the Spanish chamber that the fleet of Admiral Camara is bound for the Philippines.
Cable news direct from Cuba and by dispatch agents to London is that there has been sharp fighting on land near Balquid.
The auxiliary cruiser Yale sailed from Old Point Comfort with the first reinforcements for Gen. Shafter's army at Santiago de Cuba.
Cables from Cuba by way of Madrid report that fierce fighting has taken place between the allied American and Cuban forces and the Spanish.
Splendid work has been done by Admiral Sampson's ships in bombarding the Spanish batteries near Santiago. "The Texas" is credited with the best work of the war. The Vesuvius has demonstrated the complete success of gun cotton shells.
News of Minor Note.
Joseph Brown was drowned while fishing near McDaniel's Mill, east of Chattanooga, Mo.
Joseph Jones, aged 4 years, was drowned while bathing in the Ohio river near Owensboro, Ky.
J. P. Smith, a prominent citizen of Texarkana, Ark., committed suicide by shooting himself with a pistol.
It is estimated that the wheat crop of the eastern part of the State of Washington this year will be 25,000,000 bushels, 8,000,000 more than last year.

The "Fokker" Relations. Committee through Mr. Davis, the chairman, on Friday reported favorably to the Senate on Newlands' resolutions for the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands. The bill to incorporate the International American Bank, in accordance with the recommendation of the Pan-American congress which has occupied a greater part of the Senate's time during the week was passed by a vote of 20 to 23. The conference report on the bankruptcy bill was presented and read, but no action was taken. The general deficiency bill occupied the attention of the House.
Saturday.
A session of the House was devoted chiefly to eulogies upon the life and character of former Senator Harris of Tennessee. Prior to hearing eulogies some consideration was given to a conference report upon the District of Columbia appropriation bill. The Senate was not in session.
Discussion by the Senate of the question of Hawaiian annexation was begun on Monday in open session. The principal speech of the first day was made by Senator Morrill of Vermont in opposition to annexation. The taking of a test vote (45 to 15) showed the opponents of annexation to be in a hopeless minority. The House passed the general deficiency bill carrying $224,000,000. The bill was considered in little debate, and it passed practically as reported to the House from the Committee on Appropriations. The remainder of the day was given to District of Columbia business.
The resolution for the tuberculation of Hawaii was laid before the Senate at most immediately after it convened on Tuesday. Speeches opposing annexation were made by Mr. Mitchell of Wisconsin and Mr. White of California. After passing several bills of minor importance the House, in committee of the whole, considered, without disposing of it, a bill to refer to the court of claims certain claims of persons for property taken or destroyed by the confederate invasions into the southern counties of Pennsylvania. The bill brought on a long debate.
Opponents of the annexation of Hawaii again attacked the attention of the Senate on Wednesday. Mr. White (Cal.) resumed his speech begun the day before, but after speaking two hours yielded the floor to Mr. Pettigrew (Iowa), who discussed the resolutions for a half and a half. Mr. White had not completed his speech, Mr. Pettigrew taking up the argument against the resolutions, and to afford him an opportunity to reply. Mr. Pettigrew maintained that the territory of the United States was already big enough, and he believed it his duty to resist the acquisition of any territory which would require a navy to defend it.
Discussion in the Senate of the Hawaiian annexation question was interrupted on Thursday by Mr. Rawlinson of Utah with a speech in which he criticized vigorously the provision embodied in the conference report on the Hawaiian appropriation bill which acknowledges the right of Indians to lease military lands on their reservations. At 1 o'clock the Hawaiian resolution was called up, and Mr. Pettigrew of South Dakota resumed his speech in opposition, addressing the Senate for about two hours. Mr. Pettigrew, on account of fatigue, yielded the floor to Mr. McPherson (Iowa, La.), who presented a constitutional argument against annexation. At the session of the House further arguments upon the sundry civil bill were reported from the committee on conference and adopted, and further conference upon the remaining points in difference was requested. A large number of bills of minor importance were passed, and sixty-four pension and relief measures were disposed of, pursuant to the recommendation reached several days before in committee of the whole. The House adjourned until Monday.
Ancient Posters.
It is probably the general impression that posters and manifestos are modern inventions, but it has just been discovered that the ancient Romans practiced this method of advertising. In digging at Herculaneum, there was brought to light a phylax covered with bills, one on top of another. The phylax used to stick them was made of gum arabic. The bills, when separated and examined, were found to be program and announcements of public meetings and even election proclamations.
Ant Knowledge.
The president of the Agassiz Association, H. H. Ballard, recently caught an ant near his bill, shut it up in a box, carried it 150 feet away and set it free. In the middle of a sandy road. What followed he thus describes: "It seemed at first bewildered. Then it climbed to the top of a ridge of sand, erected its body as high as possible, waved its antennae for several seconds, and then started in a straight line for home."
Growth of Palestine's Population.
As one testimony to the rapid growth of Palestine's population, it is stated in good authority that, while ten years ago there were not quite 15,000 residents in Jaffa, to-day there are nearly 50,000.
Italian Easter.
Succi, who recently completed his sixty-fourth public fast in Rome, has abstained from food in his performances for 2,500 days of his life nearly seven years.
Too Much for Him.
"Sad about Joe Smith's insanity, poor fellow."
"What ailed him?"
"Well, he was janitor in a bank and broke down his constitution trying to keep it warm enough for the fat ones, and cool enough for the fat ones."
Clives for the World.
The two little islands of Zanzibar and Pemba furnish four-fifths of the cloves consumed by the world.

Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Kilham were greatly surprised Tuesday evening by a visit of about sixty of their congregation. They said that the crowd found the Elder Kilham's in the garden, and Mrs. K. in bed. The parson and his wife were glad to have them come that they wanted to Kilham all. — Milan Leader.

The following Washtenaw county state banks secured the several amounts attached to their names of the second term of Michigan state bonds: Ann Arbor Savings Bank, $1,000; State Savings Bank, Ann Arbor, $5,000; Farmers & Merchants Bank, Ann Arbor, $2,000; Dexter Savings Bank, $1,000; Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank, Chelsea, $2,000.

It is discovered that farmers are prohibited from killing crows which devastate their crops by an act of the legislature of 1897. Act No. 159 provides that certain birds, except black birds, blue jays, English sparrows and butcher birds, must not be killed in this state. — Teleph.

An inquiry from R. H. Bloomer, of Farmington, the attorney general to-day held that the crow is an insectivorous bird, and as it is not excepted under the statute, it is protected by law from the shotgun of the farmer.

A reading room will be established and facilities for letter writing, etc. It is to help this worthy cause that the union meeting is to be held at the Congregational church Sunday evening.

The entertainment given by Miss Corinne Seeger's pupils was a grand success. The program which had been arranged was carried out in a manner which was a credit to teacher and pupils. The room was beautifully decorated with bunting, flags, overgreens, flowers and ferns. All present reported a very fine time, and congratulated Miss Seeger upon the success of the entertainment.

William Look and Ira G. Humphrey, attorneys of Detroit, have commenced suit against the Michigan Central Railroad company for $50,000. They represent Annie Stapish of Chelsea, widow of George W. Stapish, a fireman who was injured in Kalamazoo Sept. 2, 1888, by the breaking of a connecting rod on the engine. Stapish died Jan. 17, 1893, and the declaration avers that it was the result of injuries received at Kalamazoo.

The secretary of state has ascertained that 18,597 couples were married in Michigan during the year 1897. As there were a larger number of marriage licenses granted during the year it is concluded that clergymen and magistrates performing the ceremony do not always make the return as required by law. In 1894 there were 601 licenses missing, and while the number is somewhat less this year than heretofore, an effort will be made to locate the responsibility for the missing licenses. The law provides a very severe penalty for failure to make the return, and it is intimated that the penalty may be enforced.

"I had a terrible scare, a little while ago," said a Grand River avenue merchant the other day. "I noticed that my little 3-year-old boy had one of those big cannon crackers and I learned from him that he had bought it in the candy store across the street, kept by a man and woman who are old enough to know better than to sell such murderous things to a child. Why, if that boy had gotten hold of a match before I made the discovery, which made my hair stand on end, he would have set it off and his head might have been blown off. I went over to the store and gave those people some sharp-tipped advice. — Press Press.

The farmers in the southern part of the township were worked by a patent medicine taker recently. He would leave a bottle of medicine at a house and give the people there a chance to try the dose, saying that he would call again and if they thought that it had helped them they could pay for it or not, just as they saw fit. In a few days another man would come along claiming that he was sent out by the first man to do the collecting, and he made them all what up. Soon after this the first man would put in an appearance, and claiming that the second man was a fraud, which he was, all right, collected for the medicine a second time.

Private postal cards are now available. The cards used must be the same as the style known as "H." This card is 3 1/2 and 5 1/2 inches in size, as fixed by the Postal Union. When a private card is used by an individual it must be substantially of the same weight as that turned out by the government, while in color it may be light gray, white, cream or buff. In all cases there must be fixed a one cent postage stamp. On the address side it must bear the words, "Private mailing card, authorized by the act of congress May 19, 1898." The act, of course, does not prevent the sale of regular postal cards, but it gives those a chance who have been getting out spongy postal cards.

Last Sunday John Merriman came up from Chelsea by vehicle bringing his best girl with him. While here he unfortunately and fed his horse at Charlie Lant's barn. When he got ready to return his father-in-law pressed up and brought out his rig for him. John then drove to Chelsea and on returning his outfit to the livery stable the owner said, "Where d'ye get that horse?" "Of you, of course," John remarked. "Not much," returned the other, "the animal I let you take was a horse and this beast isn't of that grade," and it was so. John's dad had hooked up one of Charlie Lant's horses instead of the Chelsea steed and a moment's solemnity prevailed John's outfit being when he found out the mistake. — Grass Lake News.

The annual meeting of the school district No. 3, fractional of the township of Sylvan and Loma, for the election of school district officers and for the transaction of such other business as may lawfully come before it, will be held at the town hall, village of Chelsea, Monday, July 11, 1898, at 6 o'clock p. m. # SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED IN QUALITY.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

Proposed Alliance with England. If the United States and England should form an alliance there would be little chance for enemies to overcome. When men and women keep up their health with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, there is little chance of attacks from biliousness, indigestion, the nerves and increases the appetite. Try it.

Bravery. "I always said Barker would prove that he had grit when the proper time came."
"What has he done—gone to war?"
"No, he has gone to Europe and so run the risk of being captured by Spaniards on the way over."

Try Allen's Foot-Powder. A powder to be shaken into the shoes. At this season your feet will be sore, hot and red, and get tired easily. If you have smarting feet or tight shoes, try Allen's Foot-Powder. It cools the feet and makes walking easy. Cures swollen and aching feet, blisters and callous spots. Relieves corns and bunions of all pain and gives rest and comfort. Over ten thousand testimonials. Try it today. Sold by all druggists and shoe stores for 25c. Trial package FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y.

Trying to the Patience. To shout at a deaf person starves and bewilders him and tires yourself. Never speak loudly when addressing the deaf. Speak very clearly, pronounce distinctly each word, and look full at the person while you are speaking, giving undivided attention to your words. Almost as much can be read from the movement of the lips as from the sound of the words. It is best, of course, to sit near the deaf one, and in such a position that the sound proceeds directly from you to them. It is hard always to observe such conditions. It would be like some always to do so, but if you are about to hold any lengthy conversation with a deaf person, you will save your voice and your temper very much by paying attention to these hints.

MRS. LUCY GOODWIN

Suffered four years with female troubles. She now writes to Mrs. Pinkham of her complete recovery. Read her letter:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish you to publish what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Sanative Wash and Liver Pills have done for me.

I suffered for four years with female troubles. My doctor said I had falling of the womb. I also suffered with nervous prostration, faint, all gone feelings, palpitation of the heart, burning and raw sensation and painful menstruation. I could not stand but a few minutes at a time. When I commenced taking your medicine I could not sit up half a day, but before I had used half a bottle I was up and helped about my work.

I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used one package of Sanative Wash, and am cured of all my troubles. I feel like a new woman. I can do all kinds of housework and feel stronger than I ever did in my life. I now weigh 131½ pounds. Before using your medicine I weighed only 108 pounds.

Surely it is the greatest medicine for weak woman that ever was, and my advice to all who are suffering from any female trouble is to try it at once, and be well. Your medicine has proven a blessing to me, and I cannot praise it enough.—Mrs. Lucy Goodwin, Holly, W. Va.

Electric Fans in Sleeping Cars. The Baltimore and Ohio South Western Railway officials have solved the problem of cooling sleeping cars in stations at night. At Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis this line has sleeping cars placed in the stations at 10 p.m. in which order to make them comfortable and cool before placed 10-inch rotary electric fans in each end of the sleepers, thus removing the heat and impure air from all parts of the car. The fans have been in operation about two weeks and have been the subject of many favorable comments from the traveling public.

Always the Way. Blake: "I show you fellows that can't quit smoking make me laugh. Why, I can stop it any time I want to."
Barney: "Nobody has ever noticed that you've done so."
Blake: "Well, I've never thought it was necessary."

Games the Cuban Commander. With numerous sights and scenes connected with naval service, the results of the American fleet, and many other interesting war views, is represented in that valuable book of illustrations, "Official Photographs of the United States Navy," together with colored maps showing the theater of war in the West Indies and the Philippines. Send twenty-five cents in silver to Chicago Newspaper Union, 93 South Jefferson street, Chicago, Ill., and receive the book by mail postpaid.

ABOUT THE BONDS.

The war loan which is now being offered will be sold to subscribers at par during the period of subscription, which ends July 14, 1898. The method of subscription has been made as simple as possible. Blank forms may be obtained at every money order postoffice, and at most of the banks and express offices, and on these forms is clearly indicated all that is necessary for the subscriber to fill out. The subscriber may himself mail to the Treasury Department at Washington the blank form filled out, together with his remittance covering the par value of the amount of bonds for which he wishes to subscribe. That remittance may be in whatever form best suits the subscriber's convenience—in currency, bank draft, check, postoffice money order, or express money order. The day the currency is received, or the day the proceeds are received from the checks, drafts or money orders, the subscription will be entered and will immediately begin drawing interest. When the bonds are delivered, a check will accompany each delivery covering the interest at 3 per cent from the date of subscription. The interest on the bonds will be paid on the 1st of August, the date of the bonds, and from which date the bonds will carry their own interest. Following is a part of the circular issued by Secretary Gage explaining the bond issue:

The Secretary of the Treasury invites subscriptions from the people of the United States for $200,000,000 of the bonds of the 8 per cent loan authorized by the act of Congress approved June 13, 1898. Subscriptions will be received by the Treasury Department from this date to 1 o'clock p. m. on the 14th day of July, 1898. The bonds will be issued in gold coin and registered form, the coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100, $500 and $1,000, and the registered bonds in denominations of $20, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. They will be dated Aug. 1, 1898, and by their terms will be redeemable in coin at the pleasure of the United States after ten years from the date of their issue, and due and payable Aug. 1, 1908.

The bonds will bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, payable quarterly, the interest on the coupon bonds will be paid by means of coupons, to be attached from the bonds as they become due, and the interest on the registered bonds will be paid by checks drawn to the order of the payees and mailed to their addresses. The bonds will be sold at par, and the subscriber will be permitted to make a partial payment, and to be permitted to the United States in the event of failure on the subscriber's part to make full payment, the subscriber's subscription to the bonds will be considered as having been made according to the priority of the receipt of the subscriptions.

Subscriptions for over $100 will be permitted to be made in installments, the first installment being due on July 14, and with then being made inversely according to the size of the subscription, the smallest subscription being first allowed, then next in size next, and so on, preference being given to individual subscriptions. Persons subscribing for more than $100 must send in cash or certified checks to the amount of 2 per cent of the sum subscribed, and the balance of the subscription must be paid in installments within ten days after the notice of the allotment, and the balance at four equal intervals of forty days each in four installments, each of 20 per cent of the bonds allotted. Delivery of bonds will be made in installments as payment on them is received, and payment must in all cases be made in full at the time the bonds are delivered. The 2 per cent deposit will apply on the final installment.

For the mutual convenience of the subscribers and the department a blank form of letter to accompany remittances has been prepared and it may be obtained at the office of national and State banks generally, at the Federal Subtreasury of the United States, at any money order postoffice and at any express office.

The bonds will be dated Aug. 1, 1898, and they will be considered as having been received for subscription as soon after that date as possible. The bonds will be accompanied by a check for the amount of interest due the subscriber from the date of his subscription to the bonds.

All remittances and other communications relative to this loan should be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, division of loans and currency, Washington, D. C., not later than 3 o'clock p. m. Wednesday, July 14, 1898. No subscriptions received after that date and hour will be considered.

Intended to Harm Hay. John Trodd, who shot the German official in London, is believed to be insane. Papers found in his possession after his arrest show that he intended to harm Col. John Hay, the United States ambassador, whose residence is near the German embassy.

Rain Helps the Wheat. Good rains which have fallen near Melbourne, Australia, have, it is estimated, improved the value of the wheat crop of Victoria by $1,000,000.

Singular Wager. One of the most singular wagers ever heard of has been proposed for a horse race in Cassia County, Idaho. "Diamondfield Jack" was convicted of murder in that county recently, and a motion for a new trial has been made. The result of the motion hinges on whether it was possible for the defendant to have made a certain ride in a certain length of time, the defense alleging it could not have been done, although one of the witnesses of the prosecution says he has made the ride. Now the defense has proposed that the prosecution may select horses and riders and make the attempt at the expense of the defense. If the ride is made the defense loses its chance for getting a new trial. It will mean, if the offer is accepted, a ride with the life of "Diamondfield Jack" as the stake.—Philadelphia Press.

A NAVAL HERO'S STORY. From the Times-Herald, Chicago, Ill. Late in 1891, when President Lincoln issued a call for volunteers, L. J. Clark, of Warren, Trumbull Co., Ohio, was among the first to respond. It was at the terrific bombardment of the Vicksburg forts that the hero of this story fell with a shattered arm from a charge of shrapnel.

After painful months in the hospital, he recovered sufficiently to be sent to his home at Warren, Ohio. Another call for troops fired his patriotic zeal and Clark soon enlisted in Company H of the 7th Ohio Volunteers. He was in many engagements, being wounded in a skirmish near Richmond, he was sent to the hospital and thence home.

Soon afterward he began the study and practice of a veterinary surgery. Seeking a wider field than Ohio he went to Chicago, where he now has a wide practice, is a member of Hatch Post, G. A. R. and lives at 4305 Ashland avenue. Seven years ago Dr. Clark's old wounds began to trouble him. He grew weak and emaciated, and his friends despaired of his life. He finally recovered sufficiently to be out, but was a mere shadow, weighing only 90 pounds. The best medical attendance failed to restore his lost strength and vigor. "A friend gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Dr. Clark, "and they helped me so much that I bought a half-dozen boxes and took them. I soon regained my strength, now weigh 190 pounds and am fit for industry that can never be regained, in us well as ever. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People the best remedy to build up a run-down system, and heartily recommend them to everyone in need of such aid."

An Old Prophecy. There have been worse prophecies than this of the Post Reints, written to his brother George, in Kentucky, in 1818: "Russia may spread her conquests even to China. I think it is a very likely thing that China itself may fall. Turkey certainly will mean while European North Russia will hold its horns against the rest of Europe, intriguing constantly with France."

Map of the Scene of War. As the conflict progresses and new places and localities are brought within the sphere of operations, the necessity of having a good map constantly at hand is felt by every reader. The valuable new book, "Official Photographs of the United States Navy," contains first-class maps of all the Spanish possessions in which our troops and navy are operating, as well as 192 pages of valuable illustrations and matter descriptive of the vessels of the American navy and life aboard ship. Equally Unprofessional. At a public dinner some years ago, Mark Twain had just finished a pleasant address when Mr. Bryant arose, showed both of his hands down into his trousers pockets, as was his habit, and laughingly remarked: "Doesn't it strike this company as a little unusual to a professional humorist should be funny?" Mark Twain waited until the laughter excited by this sally had subsided, and then drawled out: "Doesn't it strike this company as a little unusual that a lawyer should have his hands in his own pockets?"
