TURNING AMERICAN.

Porto Rico is turning American at a rapid rate.

Porto Rico is surely turning American as fast as the United States troops advance. When our troops took possession of Yauco, the mayor of that town promptly issued this proclamation:

"Citizens! On today—the citizens of Porto Rico assist in one of her most beautiful feasts. The sun of America shines upon her mountains and valleys this day of July, 1898. It is a day of glorious remembrance for each son of this beloved Isle because for the first time there waves over it the flag of the stars, planted in the name of the government of the United States of America by the major-general of the American army, Senior Miles.

"Porto Rico, we are by the beneficent intervention of the God of the Just, given back to the bosom of our mother America, in whose waters nature placed us as people of America. To her we are given back in the name of her government by General Miles, and we must send her our most expressive salutation of generous affection through our conduct towards the valiant troops represented by distinguished officers and commanded by the illustrious General Miles.

"Citizens! long live the government of the United States of America. Hail to their valiant troops. Hail Porto Rico, always American. Yauco, Porto, United States of America.

VEL ALCAIDE, FRANCISCO MONTA.

"Citizens of the town hugged the Americans, so says a dispatch, and some fell on their knees and embraced the legs of the soldiers. It must have been a remarkable reception to an invading army. Afterwards the citizens went hunting Spaniards, as they later did in Ponce.

"Concealment with posters issued by the mayor of the town upon the order of General Wilson, the military governor, demanding the surrender of all arms, and declaring it to be the duty of every citizen to tell if he knows where arms are concealed.

"This partly is responsible for the Spaniards hunting the citizens desiring to perform some duty in the services of the Americans.

Even the Spanish local newspapers profess loyalty to the Americans. The most rabid Spanish publication of all, La Democracia, issued an address to the public announcing the demise of the paper under its present name, and giving notice that it would reappear under the name of the Courier, with a section printed in English.

In making this announcement the paper promises in the new edition to explain our ideas of brotherhood and harmony, answering to the ideas expressed to the press by our new military authority, such as that the American army has not come as our enemies, but with the purpose to harmonize with the citizens of Porto Rico.

Disinfection of School Rooms.

The Michigan State Board of Health respectfully recommends to all school boards and other officers and persons having in charge assembly rooms, that they cause to be observed the following methods of care, in the interests of public health.

That the regular care of school rooms springing the floor before sweeping, the subsequent dusting of desks or wiping them with a clean damp cloth, and airing of the room before its use.

That interchange of books be allowed only under such conditions as render the transmission of diseases impossible.

That the use of slates be discontinued.

That persons known to be affected with tuberculosis of the lungs, or who persistently cough and expectorate, be denied the privileges of such room either as a teacher or pupil. That all spitting upon the floor by any person be strictly forbidden, and that proper conveniences for receiving sputa be supplied.

That at least once a year, the room and contents be thoroughly disinfected, the work done and floor washed with an antiseptic solution, the walls whitewashed, and the plumbing and ventilating inspected.

A Reminiscence.

The accounts of the battle of Agincourt, tell how skilled mechanics, stepped out of the ranks of Michigan volunteers to repair locomotives which Spanish soldiers had tried to ruin. This is characteristic of American soldiery. It explains the uniform success which always attends our military movement. The American soldier is armed not only with the brute courage which faces death and disaster without flinching, but with intelligence and skill which at all times places him in a position to make the best use of his native bravery.

During the civil war, Dr. Dorrance, of the University, was a volunteer in a New York regiment. At Catlett station in northern Virginia, the Federal troops came into the possession of a long line of freight cars loaded with supplies. A locomotive was attached to the northern end of the train but the engineer had gone with the Confederate troops. It was necessary to move the captured train at once in order to save it. The colonel called for volunteers to man the engine. Dorrance had never mounted the foot board of a locomotive but he had seen coal and water make the wheels of a stationary engine revolve and understood the parts of those machines. He stepped forward and accepted the task. But no amount of coaxing could make the little locomotive pull the long train. It became necessary to uncouple the train near the middle and then it was moved slowly to a place of safety in the rear. But hardly had this part of the train started on its journey northward when the half which was left began to move south. The enemy had also manned an engine and having control of that end of the line of cars, they soon had their portion beyond the reach of amateur engine drivers.

Some years ago Dr. Dorrance was coming up this same line of railroad on his way from Norfolk to Washington. As the train neared the scene of this exploit, the doctor sought information from the conductor, a cadaverous Virginian, and related to him this adventure. "Yes, and I ran the engine that pulled the rebel half of the train off the battle field," said the Virginian, as the doctor paused. It is unnecessary to add that the veterans at once became firm friends and spent many pleasant hours together during Dorrance's stay at Washington. Ann Arbor Democrat.

Pronunciation of Spanish Names.

Most sensible people will give the many strange Spanish names with which we are just now deluged their nearest English pronunciation, and let it go at that. To aid, however, in getting a fairly approximate pronunciation of Spanish, the following brief rules are given:

Rule 2—The accent is always on the penult, unless otherwise signified.

Rule 3—The alphabet, as follows:

G—Before o and i like aspirated h, before a, o, u, or a consonant like English g, before u and in the same sound, but is silent.

H—Nearly silent.

J—Like guttural h.

L—As in English.

LL—Liquid as gl in sagaglio.

M—As in English.

MICHIGAN VOLUNTEERS

Win High Praise From a London Newspaper.

The London Spectator of July 9, in speaking of the volunteer soldiers in the Cuban war mentions only the Michigan regiments, besides the "rough riders." The Spectator says: "No regular soldiers could have obeyed their officers more perfectly than the regiment of volunteers from Michigan or the dismounted 'rough riders,' or have 'gone on' with more determined courage under a murderous fire. Eye witnesses by no means disposed to criticize, all describe their conduct as 'heroic,' or, as we English would probably say most creditable and gallant. They never blinched even when taken by surprise, they never 'got out of hand,' and they shot at least as well as regulars, probably much better. Even when so to speak, beaten by the weight of their opponents' fire, they only threw themselves down, and then in a minute went on again. They wasted uniforms, being borne down with the heat, but they did not waste cartridges. In camp they bore delays, short rations and exposure as well as regulars, and so far as appearance were just as tractable, though probably plainer spoken. What failed so far as there was failure, was the capacity of the officers, who were ready to die and did die in heaps, but did not always know what orders to give, and sometimes sacrificed the men by posting them in the wrong places, the supply of artillery, which was wretchedly insufficient, and the organization of the departments, who brought up food too late, and water not at all. Suppose for a moment that the American government had been accused to keep up a sufficient body of thoroughly instructed and supplied artillery, and a Transport Service and a Commissariat and to have maintained officers like those who come out of West Point, sufficient for 100,000 instead of 25,000 men, would volunteer force dispatched to Cuba have been incompetent to its task? Would Lord Roberts or Lord Wolseley really object to take the London Scottish volunteers under scientifically trained officers into a serious action? We rather think they would very much like to be followed by such men as compose the regiment from Michigan which fought before Santiago on Friday, July 1, and if they would, a great many of the difficulties of the nations may receive an unexpected solution. It would be possible, in fact, to maintain great armies for defense without developing great militarism, which would lift one of its greatest burdens from the whole of the white race, who, in fact, would give their lives to soldiering only when required.

Real Magic Number.

"I often hear of the magic number," said some one. "What number is it?" "Why, nine, of course," replied some one else. "There are nine muses, you know, and you talk of a nine days' wonder. Then you bow at nine pins and a cat has nine lives." "Nonsense," broke in another. "Seven is the magic number; seven heaven, don't you know, and all that; seven colors in the rainbow; seven days in the week; seventh son of a seventh son—great fellow, and—"

"Tush, tush," remarked a third. "Five's the number, you mean. Asman has five fingers on his hand and five toes on his foot, and he has five senses, and—"

"Three is undoubtedly the magic number," interrupted another, "because people give three cheers and Jonah was inside a whale three days and three nights, and if at first you don't succeed, try, try again—three times, you see!"

This was received with some contempt by the company, and a soulful youth gushed out:

"Two, oh, two is the magic number. Oneself and one other—the adored one! Just as two!"

A hard featured individual, who had been listening to the conversation hitherto unmoved, here remarked in a harsh voice:

"The magic number is No. 1 in this world, and if you want to succeed never forget it."

An interval of deep thought on the part of all followed, after which they went in silently to supper. Brooklyn Citizen.

Jean Richepin's Career.

The story of how he came to adopt a literary career is sufficiently picturesque. For some time he had picked up a precarious livelihood by doing "odd jobs," including such prosaic occupations as that of bootblack and casual porter on the Quai Marsolles. One day he was engaged by a gentleman to carry to the railway station a heavy trunk. Arrived at the station, there was an instant mutual recognition. They were old college chums. "What are you doing here?" asked his friend. "Carrying your trunk, I believe," said Jean. "Why do you do this?" "Because I must." "Where do you live?" "Come and see," replied Richepin. The future dramatist took his friend to his dwelling—a miserable room in an attic in the poorest quarter of the town. Upon the table lay scattered heaps of manuscripts—Jean's incursions in the realms of poetry when the more prosaic duties of the day were over. Looking through them, his friend was astounded at their quality. "Why do you carry trunks and blacken boots when you can do work like this?" he asked. Richepin had never given the matter a thought; he had never deemed these products of idle hours worthy of publication. Published they were, however, in a very few weeks and created an immense sensation. From that moment Jean Richepin has never looked back. Westminster Gazette.

The Widow's Opinion.

In one of the suburban towns near the capital lives a widow well endowed with worldly goods, whose husband, with a sort of posthumous jealousy, has provided against her re-marrying by providing that she shall lose all her property if ever she takes another husband. She has been receiving attentions for several years from an elderly Grand Army of the Republic veteran. She has been very good to him too. Once when he wanted to parade with his comrades she bought him an expensive blue suit with brass buttons on it. He wanted to marry her, but the will of the selfish dead man stood between. So after a time he married somebody else. The widow was broken hearted. She recalled the suit with the brass buttons. She recalled a hundred kindnesses shown the old soldier. She bewailed his poverty to her friends.

"Why," said one of them, "what did you expect? He wanted a wife to make a home for him. You couldn't marry him. So why do you complain?"

The widow wiped her eyes. "I know I couldn't marry him," she said. "I didn't really want to marry him anyway, but, you see, it was such a heap of comfort to have a steady bean."—Washington Post.

BAD GANG WIPED OUT

INDIAN TERRITORY OUTLAW BAND DESTROYED.

Regulators Fight Two Fierce and Successful Battles, Killing Those They Did Not Capture. Exulting Experience on a Burning Ship at Sea.

Cattle Thieves Routed Up.
Mose Miller's gang of cattle and bank thieves, town raiders and murderers, which has terrorized the Indian territory, was destroyed in two battles with the regulators. Three members are dead, two fatally wounded and three are in jail. The first battle took place east of Checotah. Word reached Deputy United States Marshal Ledbetter that the gang contemplated a raid on the bank of Checotah, and gathering a posse of citizens and ranchmen who had been in battles with outlaws before they went to the edge of the town and lay in ambush for the gang. They had not long to wait. Mounted on horses, the pick of that section of the territory, the bandits came riding rapidly toward the town. Their first intimation of the ambush was a storm of bullets. The bandits replied and the fight became furious, ending in the death of Miller and "Piccolo Bill." The others wheeled their horses around and then began a race across the prairie. The marshals' men were compelled to change horses at a ranch, and then they pushed on again, finally overtaking the gang, when the second and conclusive battle was fought. No member of the posse was injured.

The steamship Ardagh of the Tweedie line, trading between West Indian ports and New York, came in the day after day with a heavy list to starboard and the cargo stored in her lower hold on fire. The third mate, Percy Sanders, was forced to draw his revolver to prevent the men from the steerage leaving the burning steamer in the three lifeboats, which could easily have accommodated the other forty-five passengers and members of the crew. The fire was finally gotten under control and the vessel went on to her destination.

All sections report a shortage to be the most in ten years, and the lambs are larger and fatter than at this time of the year. It is too early yet to correctly estimate the wool crop, but it is believed an increase of 10 to 15 per cent is a conservative estimate."
A strike of nearly 300 workmen affiliated with the St. Louis Building Trades Council was called against the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association. Nine unions went out. They were the carpenters, gasfitters, stonemasons, stonecutters, laborers, electrical workers, and engineers. The reason stated by the officers of the combined trades is that the brewery refused in certain cases to pay the union scale of wages. The Anheuser-Busch company has been regarded as very friendly to union labor. It employs a host of union brewery workers. The men who quit were employed on many different buildings. Mr. Kaufmann of the brewery says the trouble was not caused by the attitude of the firm; the trouble was the attitude of the men who had conspired to leave the firm and the strike followed.

Charles Brant, was assassinated the other evening at Twenty-first and Locust streets, St. Louis. He lived only a few blocks distant, and from all that the police have been enabled to learn he was on his way home from downtown. That he was expecting to be killed was shown by a watchman found in his pockets when the body was removed to the morgue. These notes told what disposition to make of the body and also gave the address of a young woman in the city whom the police were to notify. The assassination was one of the boldest in the annals of the city. Notwithstanding that it is a residential district with people sitting out on the steps, the murderer was so successful that he completely obliterated his steps so that the police are at sea as to the identity of the assassin. They say, however, that the murder will develop one of the greatest sensations of the day.

Brant was 30 years old and a stenographer for the Wagner Electric Company. He was married several years ago, but had separated from his wife, and it is believed that she is now a resident of Los Angeles. She was the daughter of a former gambler in St. Louis. The assassination of Brant, the police say, will show that he had been followed and that the knew he would be waylaid and killed.

Le Chateau of Kansas City, representing a St. Louis detective agency, after twenty days' traveling through Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, located Mrs. Edna Beaman, a grass widow, in Sedalia, Mo., and obtained from her a confession that she was the wife of a murderer of Gaylord Fish, son of a banker at Georgetown, Colo. Dec. 6, 1897. Three years ago young Fish, then aged 37 years, left Georgetown and proceeded to Kansas City, where he met John Arubus, a member of the Salvation army, aged 55 years, and married her, to the surprise of all who knew him. Fish carried $2,000 insurance in the Woodmen of the World and was the only son of a wealthy father. A year ago Fish, senior, died and Mrs. Fish, the son's wife, began planning to kill the son. She did this by poisoning him. An effort was made to poison him, but nothing could be proved. Mrs. Beaman, the witness, knew Mrs. Fish in Kansas City, and when the latter removed to Georgetown she sent Mrs. Beaman the money to join her in the continental state. On arrival there a proposition was made to Mrs. Beaman to get Fish out of the way, but she refused, and then Mrs. Beaman, the son's wife, began planning to kill the son. She did this by poisoning him. An effort was made to poison him, but nothing could be proved. Mrs. Beaman, the witness, knew Mrs. Fish in Kansas City, and when the latter removed to Georgetown she sent Mrs. Beaman the money to join her in the continental state.

World began to investigate the case, with the result that it was picked in the hands of the detective agency.

The Kentucky State Board of Health issued a proclamation placing the whole of Jackson County and each of its inhabitants under rigid quarantine from the outside world. The board found that there have been more than 100 cases of smallpox in the county. The facts were taken before the county authorities and an effort was made to have an appropriation made by the County Court, as designated by law. The court declined, although there is money in the treasury. The State board now calls on the adjoining counties to enforce strict quarantine against Jackson County along its entire boundary. Eviction of the quarantined persons heavy penalties. Dr. McCormack, secretary of the board, said: "The State Board of Health was reluctant to take this action, because it is the first time in sixteen years that an absolute quarantine has been declared. But the danger was so great and involved so many people and so great interests to the State that we concluded only rigorous measures would meet the emergency."

WASHINGTON.

Max J. Baehr of Nebraska has been appointed consul at Kehl, Germany.
Postmaster General Emory Smith says that the United States domestic postal service would be extended to the Hawaiian Islands as soon as the flag was raised there. The details have not yet been worked out, but it has been determined to make as few changes as possible in the present Hawaiian system for the time being. The regular postal rates will apply to all points within the islands, but it is a question whether the ordinary rates will prevail for mail transported by vessel. It may be necessary on account of the long voyage to increase the rates slightly. As the Hawaiian stamps will be replaced it is probable a large office will be established at Honolulu or other city for the sale of stamps and money orders.

Travel to the Klondike by the so-called Canadian route, via St. Michael, Yukon and Lake, has collapsed to such an extent that the Canadian Pacific Railway has abandoned Alaska, transportation business and withdrawn its two ocean and four St. Michael river steamers. Bradstreet's commercial report says: "Midsummer conditions still govern most lines of trade and manufacture, but the volume of business as indicated by bank clearings shows little decrease, and is evidently considerably in advance of previous years at this time. A feature in trade this week is the better demand reported for wool, to a few grades of wool. The appearance of activity has given a decidedly more hopeful tone to this business, which, however, is not yet reflected in the manufacturing branch. Indications that important developments may shortly be witnessed in the iron trade are quite definite. This is partly the result of expected orders from railroads for rails of a large export business and of a good volume of small orders for various classes of steel. The statistical position of pig iron has been strengthened by the curtailment of production of an average of nearly 1,000,000 tons a month since Jan. 1, but some shipping, especially of southern iron prices, imports at an irregularity to the trade. Effects of the reported curtailment have not yet been measured; had the results of this announcement awaited with interest. Dullness has been a feature of the cereal markets. Old wheat supplies are rapidly decreasing and the new crop movement, while in excess of last year, does not reach the proportions expected. Another feature of the business situation is the active preparation making in the coast shipping trade for the large business with West Indian points which is expected to develop as a result of military and naval operations."

Your humble scribe with several friends took a trip through the country last Sunday to the home of Thos. Fleming situated among the hills of Lyndon near Sugar Loaf Lake. After exchanging greetings with the host and lingering for a short time in the shade refreshing ourselves from the heat and fatigue of a long ride, we were invited to visit his peach orchard a short distance from the house on what we call a mountain, but only a small hill as they call it, from which the village of Waterloo is plainly visible and commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country. What a sight met our eyes, trees loaded almost breaking with their precious fruit, 400 peach trees with branches so full of fruit as to hang upon the ground a beautiful picture indeed. They are of the Schumacher variety clingstones, but very sweet and juicy. The thought came to us while we were eagerly partaking of the fruit what a blessing it would be to hundreds of poor people could they avail themselves of them. But the expense of marketing them would be more than they would sell for. Consequently two thirds of them will rot. Besides those above mentioned he has about fifteen hundred trees of later varieties, which will yield a large crop. After thanking the gentleman very kindly for his hospitality and accepting an invitation to call again, we departed for home feeling well paid for the time spent among the hills of Lyndon.

A few nights ago, one of our prominent physicians received a night call to attend a patient in the country. He drove out and after a long drive arrived at the house. On knocking at the door no one responded, so he opened the door and walked in to find himself confronted by an excited man with a revolver, who took the worthy doctor for a burglar. The doctor gave him his name but had hard work to convince him that he was all right. It developed that the doctor had driven two and a half miles out of his way and had arrived at the wrong house. — Ann Arbor Argus.

An Ypsilanti man who is of frugal mind decorated a female dog with a license tag that had been worn by a male dog that had "gone dead" despite his legal right to existence. There is a dollar's difference in the price of the licenses, and the Ypsilanti man paraded an old saying and chuckled that "a dollar saved is a dollar earned."

The farmers reports a new worm working great damage to the growing corn. It is a large green worm and it eats away the husk to get to the ear and then devours the kernels around the cob. — Blissfield Advance.

A customer attempted to pass an English half penny upon one of our merchants recently for a quarter. The coin had been plated with silver, and being somewhat worn, appeared much like a twenty-five cent piece. — Ypsilanti Sentinel.

Hugler Lang, of the 31st Michigan, left at his home on Miller ave., a little white bob-tail dog, about two feet in height, that is one of the best ball catchers in this city. When a ball is thrown up this dog will spring up four or five feet from the ground and catch it as it descends. — Ann Arbor Argus.

Within the past two weeks several nickel-in-the-slot machines have been taken by burglars from the places where they were kept, and broken open for the sake of their contents.

Little is being done for the discovery of the thieves, since the penalty for keeping them is as severe as the loss sustained. — Ypsilanti Sentinel.

During the past few days egg baskets have been assuming the responsibilities of the artificial incubator, at least that is what G. H. Middleworth thought one morning this week as he exhibited a peeping little chick on the half shell wrapped in a red flannel shirt. The chick was produced from a batch of eggs brought in by a farmer the previous day. — Wehman Herald.

A fore of men are at work in River side cemetery putting in a family vault for John Pinner, formerly of Plymouth. It will be built of Bedford stone and is to cost $2,000. Besides a large vestibule there will be fourteen separate compartments with marble fronts to be used as casket receptacles. A large marble door will guard the entrance. The structure will be completed in about two weeks and will be an ornament to the cemetery. — Plymouth Mail.

As Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Stiele and granddaughter of Ann Arbor were out riding last Friday they were overtaken by a runaway team. The horses broke away from the wagon. Coming upon the buggy, the horses tried to go around, one on each side. The result was that they were brought up with a quick turn, falling on the buggy and its occupants, instantly crushing Mrs. Stiele to death and severely injuring the other two.

A few nights ago, one of our prominent physicians received a night call to attend a patient in the country. He drove out and after a long drive arrived at the house. On knocking at the door no one responded, so he opened the door and walked in to find himself confronted by an excited man with a revolver, who took the worthy doctor for a burglar. The doctor gave him his name but had hard work to convince him that he was all right. It developed that the doctor had driven two and a half miles out of his way and had arrived at the wrong house. — Ann Arbor Argus.

An Ypsilanti man who is of frugal mind decorated a female dog with a license tag that had been worn by a male dog that had "gone dead" despite his legal right to existence. There is a dollar's difference in the price of the licenses, and the Ypsilanti man paraded an old saying and chuckled that "a dollar saved is a dollar earned."

A vigilant policeman impounded the dog, and it cost the owner $1.25 to get it out of the pound and $2.25 for a proper kind of license. Then he was complained of for violating a city ordinance and paid $4.45 fine. That was a dearly saved dollar, after all.

Miss Grace DeGolia of Eaton Rapids, who has visited in this city and Ypsilanti, where she turned the heads of several of the young men by her beauty and stylishness, was married in Windsor, January 25, to Jerome Hannan, a farmer of near Wayne. The marriage was a secret one and has just been divulged by the young lady's mother cleaning house, when the marriage certificate was found under a cap.

Will Luxton of this village, was one of the eighteen brave soldiers who volunteered to go out and draw the Spaniards from Santiago in order that our forces might locate the enemy's position. That act brings him into the Hobson class. He may be assured of a warm welcome when he returns home. He is a member of Co. E, 3rd Regiment Michigan Volunteers. Militant Leader.

There was a large audience present at the Congregational church Sunday evening to greet Rev. W. H. Walker, a former pastor of that society.

It is estimated that the attendance at the university will reach 3,500 this fall. There is a much greater demand for catalogue than ever before.

Oliver A. Mills of Ann Arbor was in town the first of this week. He claimed that he was solely on directory business, but he noticed that politics would creep in occasionally.

The water has been turned into the new mains that have been laid and every thing is now working nicely. Ten new hydrants were put in, and 12,268 feet of pipe were laid.

The common council at a meeting held last evening decided to further extend the water mains north on Polk street and west on North street, and work has been commenced on the same.

Everybody is invited to attend the great Sunday school picnic and rally at South Lake, Wednesday, August 11th. Special speaking and music will be provided for the occasion, and a grand good time is expected.

A letter was received this week from Conrad Lehman who is with the 33d Michigan in Cuba. He was able to get but a small piece of paper on which to write and said that he was well, and had enjoyed good health all of the time.

An enormous flag is now in process of making in the little town of Manch Chunk, Pa. This flag will be 72 feet, and will contain 775 yards of bunting, 400 yards of muslin and 10 yards of duck. Each star will be 32 inches in diameter.

The state board of health in a circular sent out Monday says that the war with Spain is likely to increase the risk of spreading several dangerous diseases, such as typhoid fever, measles, smallpox, etc., and recommends the disinfection of all mail received from army camps, especially in Cuba. The board recommends the use of formaldehyde as a disinfectant, and details are given as to the manner of using the disinfectant.

An item has been going the rounds of the state press to the effect that marriage licenses had to have a revenue stamp attached to them. This is not so as the latest ruling of the war department says that certificates of birth, marriages or death given in pursuance of the laws of the state, requiring the collection and registration of vital statistics as a basis for the administration of public health laws, come within the exemption of section 17.

The gross earnings of 58 roads for the first week in July, as made up from returns received by the United States Interior, were $2,272,926, against $2,703,005 for the first week in July, 1897, an increase of $429,073. Data made show increases and decreases. Since January 1 the roads referred to above earned $71,816,917, an increase of $15,098,909 over the $56,717,048 reported for the corresponding period of 1897. For the longer period 13 show increases and three decreases.

Don A. Stark, of Company I, 33d Michigan volunteers, returned home at Ann Arbor Wednesday from Fort Monro, where he has been lying in the hospital. He lost his right arm at Aguadorea, Cuba, when a Spanish shell landed in the company's lines. The citizens everywhere are according him quite an ovation. He brings back with him the remains of his wife, which undoubtedly saved his life. The shell struck the gun, bending it nearly double, and glanced, cutting off Stark's arm as easily as if done with a surgeon's knife. Stark is now in the palace of Maj. Vaughan, Nagerado and MacLean, under whose care he came at different times. He has the utmost contempt for the Cubans. He is home on a twenty days' furlough, but will get a discharge shortly, being permanently disabled.

Jacob Hlat of Jerusalem was carrying a gun last Friday and attempted to close a gate, and in some manner the gun was accidentally discharged, the charge taking effect in his left side. It is thought that he will get along all right unless blood poisoning sets in.

O. C. Burkhardt says that it pays to raise good sheep. On Monday last he paid the highest price for a flock of sheep that has been paid in this part of the county in ten years. He purchased a flock of twenty from Thomas Fletcher and John Waltrous, paying $20 a head for them. They will be shipped to Texas.

A circular has been issued by the express companies setting forth the reasons why they cannot stand the war revenue tax. The circular states that the capital and bonded indebtedness of the United States is $10,800,000,000 while that of the express companies is but $35,000,000. A railroad bill of lading for a train load of grain worth thousands of dollars requires only a one-cent stamp, while an express package valued at $1, going from Boston to New York, with charges at 25 cents, requires a stamp of the same value.

Peccolipities of the Potato.
The opinion has prevailed among housekeepers that it is the good potato which breaks open when it is boiled. A scientist who has made potatoes a study insists that the good potato is the one that remains quietly in its coating of brown during all of the processes of cooking. Instead of the swelling and bursting of the skin being caused by the presence of starch it has been ascertained that albumen is the substance that causes this breaking open. An ordinary potato is made up of three-fourths of its weight in water, two-fifths in starch and one-fifth of nitrogenous matter. If it cracks and falls to pieces during the process of boiling, it is deficient in albumen, and therefore lacking in the most important constituent. — New York Ledger.

A Dumas Story.
Dumas the elder was rarely spiteful to or about his fellow men, but one day when he happened to be in that mood, a friend called to tell him a piece of news. "They have just given M. X. the Legion of Honor," he said. "Now, he added, in a significant tone, 'Now, can you imagine why they should have given it to him?'"
"Yes," answered the great dramatist promptly. "They have given it to him because he was without it."

Notice of Graveyard.
On Saturday, August 6th, at two o'clock p. m., at the house of George Merkle in Township of Sylvan, I will let the job of traveling the road between Homey P. Biting Finger Nails.
The chief finger nail chowers of the world are the French, and it was recently stated upon reliable authority that nearly two-thirds of French school children are addicted to the habit.

Even for grown people there is hardly any habit, aside from the confirmed abuse of narcotics, more difficult to overcome than the habit of biting the finger nails. It requires a strong mental effort and constant vigilance to do this.
for once a person has become thorowly addicted to the habit he does it unconsciously, and is only reminded that he is marring himself when he gets one of his nails plucked down to the quick.
All manner of remedies have been advanced for the cure of the finger nail biting habit, including the placing of injuriously and bitter compositions on the ends of the fingers, but none of the remedies amounts to much.

The only way to stop biting the finger nails is to stop. The Aborigines are next to the French in the finger nail biting habit, probably because the Americans, as a whole, are an exceedingly nervous people. A man who accomplishes his determination to knock off biting his finger nails may, by his certainly unerring, get them to look fairly well within a year or so, but finger nail biting, if long persisted in, ruins the shape of the ends of the fingers, and the nails can never be brought to look as well as those of the persons who permit their nails to grow as they were intended to grow.—Washington

Too Much For Watson.
Only one-sided Watson, when a captain, never fail to punish a man for intoxication. This was in the summer of 1843, at Boston, when the San Francisco took the Massachusetts naval militia on its first practice cruise. Among the regular crew was old Alexander Parker, sailmaker's mate, who was never known to commit a sober when there was liquor to be had. When the naval militia came on board a pretty boatwain's mate, while no officer was near, sang out in an authoritative tone:
"All you men having whisky on board lay below and turn it in to the sailmaker's mate for safe keeping."
Many minutes, sailors took the bait, and in a few minutes old Alexander was surprised to have a vast collection of flasks passed to him. He received all these as gifts with many thanks. He was found a day after sound asleep in his sailroom, literally covered with empty bottles of every size and shape.
He was finally taken before the captain,
to whom was told the circumstances.
"Parker," said he sternly, "I have no words with which to discuss your case.
Go forward."—New York Times.

Asked For a Shirt and Got a Wife.
During the civil war there was a certain young lady in Georgetown who found it in her power to do a great deal for the Confederate soldiers confined in prison at Washington. Young, beautiful, cultured, popular, of a wealthy and prominent family, she was frequently allowed admission to the prison, whither she always took her mail.

One man, stopped forward promptly.
Bowing most courteously, he said:
"If you will be so kind, I should like very much to have a clean shirt."
He was a young lieutenant from Louisiana, one of the handsomest and most elegant men I ever met, and when that young lady looked up into his brown eyes she found it in her heart to give him much more than a clean shirt, for she married him as soon as the war was over.—Philadelphia Times.

Corn Bread.
There is no more wholesome, palatable and strengthening article of food in the whole catalogue than corn bread. It is truly the staff of life of the rural inhabitant.

After she had studied the French bill of fare for a moment, Mrs. Parkham of Chicago turned to the waiter and asked:
"Does no understand English?"
"Oh, yes, I talk it almost like a native," he replied. "I was born and brought up in Indiana."
After that she had no appetite.—
Cleveland Leader.

And Not James.
"Why," asked the lay figure, 240,
"you call it a Jimmy?"
"The burglar shook his head sadly."
"Well," he answered, "his regret was apparent; I suppose I am rather more faithful. With it than I ought to be."—Detroit Journal.

Betrothal Rings.
Modern Greek peasants exchange a gold and silver wedding ring, and they drink wine from the same cup. But the regular ritual of the Greek betrothals, which is a solemn betrothal process the actual marriage, in which are gold and silver wedding rings blessed by the priest, the gold ring being given to the man, the silver ring to the woman.
The form of the betrothal is then repeated, and the rings are placed on the right hands and then exchanged. That no interference may be tokened by the woman wearing the silver ring and also to indicate a common ownership of property.

An Armenian mother usually chooses her daughter's husband. After all business preliminaries are settled between the families the bridegroom's mother, accompanied by a priest and two matrons, visits the bride and gives her a ring in token of betrothal, and with this ring the couple are ultimately married.
Among the fishing communities very ancient and elaborate rings are used, and they descend as heirlooms from generation to generation.

In Japanese marriages arranged between very young people the girl receives a ring in evidence that the union is binding. In Malabar air old native customs both bride and bridegroom on a day, and a relative washes the feet of the bridegroom with milk and puts a silver ring on the great toe of the right foot. He then hands a gold ring to his kinsman, and a necklace and chaplet of flowers are put on the bride's neck and head.—London Mail.

Korea's Seven Wonders.
The seven wonders of Korea are: (1)
The marvelous mineral spring of Ki-shanto, one dip in which is a sovereign cure for all the ills that human flesh is heir to. (2) The double springs which, though far apart, have a strange, mysterious affinity. According to Korean belief, there is a connection underground, through which water flows and thence the waters of the ocean in such a way that only one spring is full at a time. The water possesses a wonderful sweetening power, so that whatever is cooked therein becomes good and palatable. (3) The cold wind cavern, whence comes a never ceasing wind so strong that nothing can withstand it, and so powerful that the strongest man cannot face it. (4) The indestructible pine forest, the trees of which grow up again as fast as they are cut down.
(5) The floating stone, a massive block that has no visible support, but, like Mohammed's coffin, remains suspended.
(6) The yarm stone, situated on the top of a hill and said to have the peculiarity of spreading warmth and heat all round it. (7) A drop of the sweat of Buddha, for 30 paces round which no flower or vegetation will grow, nor will birds or other living things pass over it.

Salut Norah and the Potato.
St. Norah was a poor girl, says the London Punch, who prayed St. Patrick for a good gift that would make her not proud but useful, and St. Patrick, out of his own head, taught her how to boil a potato. A sad thing and to be lamented, that the poorest has come down to so few. Since the highest intellectual and physical life is dependent upon diet, since the cook makes, while the physician only mends, should not she who prepares our pies be as carefully trained as he who makes our pills?

Certainly whatever may be the knowledge or the ignorance of the servant in the kitchen, the mistress of the house, be she young or old, ought to be able, like St. Patrick in the fable, out of her own instructed head, to teach Norah how to boil a potato or broil a steak so that they may yield their utmost of richness and nutriment.

Until she can do that, no woman is qualified to preside over a household, and since few reach adult life without being called to that position in the household of husband, father or brother, the legend of St. Norah has a wide significance.—Youth's Companion.

The Northwest Indian and His Ways.
The Indian of the plains is a far more picturesque individual than his brother or cousin of the coast. He does not erect totem poles and has no timber for the purpose. If, so inclined, he is sufficiently spectacular himself without resorting to grotesque carvings and painted wood. His saddle with its leather harness and wooden stirrups, is in itself a remarkable aggregation, and when set off with his goods and chattels tied in bags, furs, strings and staves, the effect is remarkable. He wears the cast off garments of his white brother in such original combinations that he looks like the personification of a second-hand store. Sometimes the adoption of a pair of gaiters as an external covering gives him quite an athletic appearance. He wears his hair in God-raid braids and prefers earrings about the size of half dollar coins.
A mossquit net or handkerchief is his favorite head covering, and if he assumes a hat it is as an additional and cheaply ornamental appendage.—Detroit

Buried at Santiago.
Few students of Napoleonic history say, the London Chronicle, "are aware that Dr. Antonmarchi, who arrived upon Napoleon I during his last illness at St. Helena, 48, buried in the cemetery at Santiago de Cuba. He had a brother living in that island, and after the emperor's death proceeded thither and lived at Santiago, exercising his skill as an oculist gratuitously among the poor. After his death in 1825 a public monument was erected to his memory in the local cemetery."

Love in Early Days.
"Yes," said Adam to Eve as the twilight drew about the aged couple, softly and tenderly, "I remember the day we met. You were a diffident girl."

That was all.—Indianapolis Journal.

THE GREAT
FOUR-C REMEDY
FOR LA GRIPPE.
For Sale by R. S. Armstrong & Co.

What if Not Miracles?
The great Four-C Remedy is doing work wherever introduced as a nearly miraculous as it ever falls to the lot of any human agency to do (it will esteem it a favor for any one interested to write the persons whose names appear below or anyone whose name may appear among these testimonials.)
My aim is to convince the public of my sincerity and of the true merits of this remedy.

BENEFACTORS OF THE RACE.	UNBROKEN REST AT NIGHT.
Ones of Chicago Times-Herald, Chicago, Oct. 18, '98. I believe it my duty to write you a line in regard to the beneficial effect of Phelps' "Four C Remedy," so far as I am personally con- cerned. A week ago last Thursday, I was taken with a severe attack of La Grippe and in a short time became so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. The night previous I had coughed nearly the entire night just before retiring I took a teaspoonful and slept the entire night sweetly as over I did in my life, not coughing once. I was entirely relieved before taking one bottle. Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure should be in every household in the land. I send you this wholly unsolicited by anyone, for you are benefactors of the race in giving it the sanction for some of the most efficacious to which it is held. Very Truly Yours, C. J. Nesbitt, Editor.	R. R. Phelps, Esq., City. Dear Sir:—I wish to bear testimony to the great efficacy of your "Four C" remedy in throat and lung ailments. As a rule I have been spe- cialist of the merits of proprietary medicines, but I have to confess that a test of your "Four C" convincing that at least one remedy made really worthwhile use. My children all have it, and it is particularly noticeable that benefit is almost immediate. A single dose will check coughs in their beginning. It gives an un- broken rest at night. In my family "Four C" is simply indispensable and I recommend it as qualifiedly. Yours, J. B. Hollins.
A MIRACLE. Kansas City, Kansas, Dec. 24, '97. Last Friday, Dec. 19, my attending physician told me that I was better by morning, he could do nothing for my relief. That night I com- menced taking Phelps' "Four-C Remedy," stopped all other medicines. The first dose stopped my cough, sleep and tasted well; a few more doses removed all soreness from my lungs; the second day I was up; the third day I was out on the porch and to-day was up purchasing holiday goods. Miss Jennie Bassett, Washington Ave. and Summit St.	ACUTE LARYNGITIS. For years back each winter I have suffered with acute laryngitis. Last winter was so bad I could not leave my room for two weeks or speak above a whisper. I tried every known cough preparation from cough drops up and down with no relief, then in desperation I was induced to try Phelps' "Four C." The first dose relieved my cough, giving me the first night's rest in weeks. Half the bottle cured me. I have never been without this wonderful remedy since. It is as different from other like remedies as molasses from vinegar or sugar from sand. Mrs. Joseph R. Grubb, 3215 Madison Ave.
CROUP CURE. One dose of Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure gave my child instant relief when attacked with the croup. W. E. Moon, of Moore Bros., Grocers, Arkansas City, Kansas.	IT IS A MIRACLE. Conductor Eckard, the Railroad Coroner, deputy of the Nebraska Kansas Registrar, has said of "Four C." "Phelps is having a won- derful sale of his Cough and Cold Remedy. We personally know the best medicine we have used to be. Too much cannot be said in its praise. It is a miracle."

NOTICE TO DRUGGISTS AND THE PUBLIC.
CONTRACT.—Druggists are authorized in ALL CASES TO REFUND THE CHASE PRICE, if the Four-C Remedy (Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure) fails to give satisfaction in Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma, La Grippe, Coughs and Colds, as matter how long standing, or deep seated, in fact I guarantee in all manners Bronchial or Lung trouble, not as a Cure-All, but to give unbounded satisfaction.
Give it a trial on the above conditions. I take all chances.
