THANKSGIVING.

Usual Proclamation Issued by Governor Pingree.

Gov. Pingree's Thanksgiving proclamation was issued Monday. It is somewhat belated, but quite timely, after all. It reads:

In accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States, and in pursuance of a time honored custom which was established by our ancestors, I, Hazen S. Pingree, governor of the state of Michigan do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 24th day of November, 1898, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed at the residences and in places of public worship. Let kindly thoughts and generous acts go forth from man to man; let praises be sung and joy abound everywhere.

The people of Michigan have especial cause for rejoicing this year. They have been blessed by abundant harvests and are reaping the benefits by reason of higher prices in more active markets; they have enjoyed immunity from famine; war clouds have hovered about the nation, but the conflict was of brief duration and victory was ours. The spirit of philanthropy among our citizens has been active in providing for the needs of the suffering and unfortunate.

For every blessing enjoyed it becomes us to render devout thanksgiving unto Almighty God. While manifesting their happiness let them remember by prayers and with substantial offerings those who have been less blessed with abundance.

The general discussion of general topics of general interest was of special value and was not without its humor. The high school room assumed the appearance of a court room and every possible criticism was entertained.

The afternoon session began with primary class work under the direction of Miss Luella Townsend. Her work was the study of the Indians and the attention of this class of little folks before her, proved how interesting the work of Miss Townsend was to them.

The good old talk by Prof. W. J. McKone of Albion, was full of truth and humor from beginning to end. The co-operation of school board, teacher and pupil in the education of the child were fully discussed by the speaker. There is not one sentence of the discourse of Prof. McKone that is not worthy of mention, and the teachers of this county sincerely hope that it may not be the last occasion of hearing so able a master of a subject pertaining to school work. The citizens of Chelsea may feel proud of the comments of Prof. McKone on the cleanliness, beauty and light of our school within as he surveyed the respective rooms.

Our trip to Washington and the N. E. A. by Miss Marie Kirchhofer of Manchester held the teachers in perfect silence, lest they lose one word of the paper which was so interesting and educational.

The music furnished was of excellent quality. The vocal duet by the Misses Bacon and Lighthall was pleasing, also the sweet solo by Miss Pauline Burg. The instrumental music was of splendid variation.

The criticisms by Commissioner W. N. Lister and Prof. Gifford of Chelsea were very instructive.

After the singing of America by the entire Association the meeting was adjourned by the commissioner until December.

The Ohio Telephone Company has asked the common council for a franchise to construct an exchange in the village of Manchester.

was born, April 12, 1887. The first three years of their married life was spent on the farm, when he sold out and moved to Chelsea, and was engaged as bookkeeper for H. S. Holmes of that village for three years. Six years ago he with his family moved to Stockbridge, where he formed a co-partnership of Chadwick & Hall together with Chas Gaylord and engaged in the general mercantile business and during these years has been one of the most successful business men and universally respected by all.

Deceased united with the first Baptist church of Chelsea about 16 years ago and was superintendent of the Sunday-school for some time, and was a member of said church until his death. He leaves a wife, one daughter, one brother, Dr. C. S. Chadwick of Grass Lake, a sister, Mrs. Andrew Sawyer of Lyndon, to mourn the loss of a kind husband, father and brother. He died in the full faith of a true Christian, being conscious to within a few moments of his death and saying "the Lord's will, not mine, but Thine be done. All is well."

Mr. Chadwick was taken ill Monday afternoon. Drs. Rowe and Brown were called and from Wednesday until Saturday was considered better and out of danger. About three o'clock Saturday afternoon his disease took a sudden change for the worse and about 10 o'clock Saturday evening he breathed his last.

Personally, Mr. Chadwick was a thorough business man, a very devoted husband, a loving father, and when not chiefly engaged in business was always found with his family. Had a kind word for every one and his good nature and loving heart never left him. The date for the funeral was placed for 10:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon but owing to the fact that Miss Nina is just recovering from scarlet fever in a mild form, the remains were interred in Oak Lawn cemetery Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, the Masonic fraternity, to which organization he belonged taking charge. Memorial services will be held some time in the near future.

The greatly bereaved family have the sincere sympathy of all in this deep affliction. "May He who tempers the winds to the shorn lamb, comfort them in this their sad bereavement."

Washtenaw County Teachers' Association. One of the most interesting and enthusiastic meetings of the Washtenaw County Teachers' Association was held at Chelsea on Saturday last.

The morning session opened with an able discourse on the metric system by Prof. A. D. DeWitt of Dexter, who presided as president on account of the absence of Prof. C. O. Hoyt of Ypsilanti. Reasons for the adoption of the metric system in all business concerns and the simplicity of explanation to pupils were made so evident that it seems but a matter of a short time when it will be universally used.

Gen. Miles' report, now made public, covers his connection with the war from its inception to its close. His story is told in great part by dispatches, consecutively arranged. The condition of affairs in the American consulate general at the City of Mexico attracts much attention. Dr. Probst of the Ohio State Board of Health has returned from Loveland, where seventy cases of smallpox have been discovered. The epidemic is in mild form and has been raging for months. Fifteen sailors of the steam whaling bark Belvidere have filed a libel against the bark in the United States District Court at San Francisco. They allege that they shipped for a twelve-month whaling cruise that they were frozen in all winter in the Arctic near Point Barrow and that when the vessel got away and reached Port Clarence at the expiration of their term of service they asked to be discharged. They say that the master, Captain Mallard, not only refused to comply with their request, but kept them virtually prisoners on board the bark for eight months longer.

There has been fighting at Okmulgee, I. T., the capital of the Creek nation. Okmulgee is forty miles off the railway and without telegraph or telephone service. It is known, however, that the full bloods made an attack on the treaty leaders at Okmulgee and that at least one man has been killed and seven or eight wounded. All the Indian police at Agent Wisdom's disposal have been ordered to Okmulgee. The white people feel able to take care of themselves. The only fear is for the half-breeds who voted for the treaty. The Creek returns are all in and show that the treaty was carried. Twelve hundred full bloods stayed away from the polls.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Not even the election has disturbed business or industries on the financial side this week. The volume of business through clearing houses is 8.5 per cent larger than last year and 1.54 per cent larger than in 1892. Neither the volume of business nor the value of manufactured products diminishes. While Bessmer pig is sold against the combination at Pittsburgh 10 cents lower, with other iron there and elsewhere steady, the general demand crowds closely on the heels of production. Wool holders at Boston have begun selling largely at concessions said to be 'several cents' per pound. The cotton mills are helped a little by the combination to restrict production about Fall River. Cotton is again at the lowest point ever known—5.31 cents for spot—while Mr. Nell estimates a crop of 11,500,000 bales, besides large stocks brought over here and abroad. Failures for the week have been 194 in the United States, against 276 last year, and 28 in Canada, against 30 last year."

GREAT DAMAGE TO CORN.

Weather Bureau's Summary of Crop Conditions for October.

The monthly summary of crop conditions issued by the weather bureau says:

The month of October was generally very favorable for germination and growth of fall-sown grain throughout the country east of the Rocky Mountains, but excessive moisture in the Central Valley, East Gulf and South Atlantic States interfered with farm work and caused much damage to crops remaining in the fields. On the Pacific coast, in New England, and in the Middle Atlantic States the weather conditions were generally favorable for farming interests.

Generally throughout the Central Valley and Southern States corn, both the sweet and that in shock, suffered great damage from excessive rains, which caused sprouting and rotting to a great extent and delayed husking and cribbing.

Except in Texas and portions of the Carolinas, where cotton-picking has progressed satisfactorily, the month has been very unfavorable for gathering the late crop, much of which, in the central portion of the cotton belt, has been greatly damaged by heavy rains.

The reports generally indicate that early sown grain, germinated quickly, had made vigorous growth and was in excellent condition at the close of the month. In Kentucky tobacco in barns has sustained injury from the effect of excessive moisture.

The month has been comparatively free from destructive frosts, although they occurred as far south as Northern Florida.

LYNCH LAW IN ILLINOIS.

Negro Taken from the Marshall County Jail by a Mob.

S. W. Stewart, a negro of Toluca, charged with assault upon Miss Mary O'Brien of that place, was taken from the jail at Lacey, Ill., early Monday morning by a mob and hanged to a tree until dead. Miss O'Brien is the daughter of the pit boss of the Toluca coal mine. While she was on her way home Friday evening she was knocked down by a stone by a negro, who then completed his crime. Dogs were put on the trail, and went directly to the house of Stewart. The latter was arrested, and as there was some talk of lynching, was taken to the county jail for safe keeping, where he confessed the crime. Meanwhile the people of Toluca quietly organized for vengeance. Early Monday morning about 100 armed and masked men appeared at Lacey. They broke into the jail, took out Stewart, and hanged him. A coroner's jury returned a verdict that the negro came to his death at the hands of persons unknown.

WILL ASK MORE SOLDIERS.

Secretary Alger Recommends Increase of 75,000 Men.

Secretary Alger in his annual report to the President will recommend an increase in the standing army, and it is likely he will suggest 75,000 as the number of men required. The leaders of both houses have at different times expressed themselves as favorable to an increased standing army.

Gen. Lee, who will command the army in Cuba, says that to bring order out of chaos in Cuba 50,000 men will be required, while in Porto Rico from 5,000 to 10,000 will be needed. Chairman Hull of the House Committee on Military Affairs will formulate a bill embodying the views of the administration.

HARD WORDS FOR THE THIRD.

General Grant Criticizes an Illinois Regiment.

Word comes from Porto Rico that Chaplain D. D. Odell of the Third Illinois infantry and Gen. Grant, brigade commander, have had trouble, and the first named has been ordered away from the regimental and brigade hospitals.

The chaplain, it is alleged, wrote home urging that everything possible be done to get the regiment back to this country, on account of the illness and disease which threatened to wipe it out of existence.

He also wrote President McKinley. Gen. Grant told the chaplain that the Third Illinois was the worst body of soldiers he had ever seen, from colonel down, and he ordered the chaplain to keep away from all the hospitals indefinitely.

OUR POPULATION IN 1900.

It May Exceed Ninety Million by Reason of Recent Expansion.

If the United States retains the Philippine Islands as a colony, the combined population of the United States and her colonies, based on figures now obtainable, will reach $4,803,729. Probably when the next census of the United States is taken in 1900, the combined population may exceed 90,000,000. This is a greater population than any other nation, except China, the British empire and the Russian empire. Before the annexation of Hawaii the area in square miles of the United States was 3,692,300. Taken with the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii it will be 3,727,453 square miles, the fourth largest in the world.

DITCH WILL BE DUG.

American Contractors to Complete Big Nicaraguan Canal.

The Nicaraguan congress has unanimously approved the agreement provisionally made by President Zelaya and the American contractors, Edward F. Cragin of Chicago and Edward Eyre of New York, authorizing the construction of the inter-ocean canal.

The adoption of that clause of the agreement declaring that the concession to the Maritime Canal Company will terminate Oct. 19, 1899, was received with prolonged cheers. A syndicate headed by ex-Mayor William P. Grace of New York City controls the new concession, which must complete the big canal under penalty within twenty-five years.

Spain's Mourning Stamp.

As a means of paying off the war debt, which is claimed to be 2,000,000,000 pesetas ($500,000,000), the Spanish Government has issued a stamp of mourning, which is to be used on all the inland mail of Spain and her colonies. The stamp, which is of the denomination of five cent pesetas (one cent), is printed in somber black, and must be affixed to all mail matter in addition to the regular postage stamp.

Twenty-six sick and dying persons were recently picked up on the streets of Matanzas, Cuba, on the same day. Postmaster General Smith has directed that Hawaiian stamps be recognized at their face value on articles mailed in Hawaii.

Although Admiral Sampson's report, sent through the press dispatches, does not contain a word of censure

ELL, my children, here is Thanksgiving day again, and we turn to our turkeys with a pretty joyful and a pretty hopeful heart. Bless you, though, one holiday treads so quickly upon another's heels in this country that the last celebration is in danger of tripping over the former one. It is a fast age, and your Uncle Sam will no sooner get out his memorandum book to sum up his causes for gratitude than December shoots out "Merry Christmas!" and the whole string of celebrations seems to break loose. It is, indeed, a fast age, my children, a fast age. Why, time was when it took three whole days to make a feast; one to prepare for it, one to get over it, and one to enjoy it leisurely. We rested from Christmas to Washington's birthday, and then had nothing to do but get ready for the Fourth. Then, Thanksgiving found us with longings for turkey, and the holiday season sharpened our appetites with its savory odor of plum pudding.

But, bless you, my children, those good old days are past and gone, along with last year's fashions. We rush and hurry from one festival to another, and fill up the spaces with flag days, and arbor days, and memorial days, and world's fairs, and "saviors' monuments," until your Uncle Sam is on a dash from one end of the country to the other, trying to fulfill his state and national engagements. And, whenever he hopes to snatch an hour's rest, bless you! some invitation arrives, and he has to scamper off to lay a corner stone, or crown an arch, or fire a salute, or respond to a toast, until his very last will is in imminent danger of losing its buttons and trailing at the seams.

But to return to our turkey and the list in the memorandum book. Thanksgiving is here, and the earth is rejoicing! The peace jubilee is over, things fixed for comfort and calmness and happiness, and the football player is now monarch of the day. During his temporary sovereignty, let Uncle Sam recount the blessings of the year that has run its course through ways of peril and hardship, but, withal, of blessings.

Your Uncle Sam is grateful that the war is over, and Cuba can sit down at the November table with a Thanksgiving all her own. Spain must not complain of her "cooked goose." Time is when your Uncle Sam, getting riled, acts quicker'n a wink. It took some vessels, some guns, some of his own sure boys, to teach these dons how to run, but it had to be did! The scrimmage had to be short, for all hands were due back at the home table this blessed Thanksgiving day, and, the ball set rolling, it was hustled along fast. We are thankful that the world knows how prompt we can act for right against oppression, how sure we are of our mettle, and maybe before many more Thanksgivings days—if things don't go a little more civilized in the far East—there's a Turkey's head we'll have to chop off before we can sit down to our plum pudding table quite easy and satisfied.

Your Uncle Sam is especially grateful for the pretty girls that remain in the country. This international matrimonial market business has been giving the lords and dukes and earls a chance to rob us right and left. We must put a stop to this, boys! The table don't look right with so many pretty faces gone. We need all the beauty and smiles and winsomeness we can find, and if those titled foreigners must have a live, bouncing American girl, let them come over here and be Americanized and naturalized, and sit down at the table and learn our ways.

We have had some glorious shows the last year—flower shows, county fairs, a big Western exposition. We have had conventions, and the chance to view in public the men and women of the epoch, with an extra gathering to press down good measure. We have had baseball and tennis and golf, and yacht races and rowing. And in them all American muscle and American brains have topped the bargain and capped the climax! Let us give thanks for all these amusements and pleasures, thanks for our blessings, thanks for our hopes.

And a special hurrah for our farmers, amid all this joy of health and vigor. Think of the bountiful reward for the labor of the husbandman! We have been preserved as a nation, and our glory shines afar before all peoples. We have welcomed the oppressed, we have given a shelter to the homeless. We have aided suffering, and borne the Stars and Stripes where they were needed the most.

Once more, children, all together! waving an encouraging flag over to Hawaii and Cuba and the Philippines, a cheer for them, a cheer for America, yourselves and Uncle Sam:

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing.
Land where my fathers died,
Land of the pilgrims' pride,
From every mountain side
Let Freedom ring!

Jim! Her heart's desire! Where was he at that moment?
"God only knows!" his mother said between her broken sobs as she went slowly along over the country road, the bright sunlight of a glorious November day lending a radiance to the brown leaves still remaining on the trees. It had been twenty years since she had seen Jim. He was then a handsome, headstrong boy of 18, and the only child that had come to her. She had lavished upon him the warmest, tenderest affections of her life, and yet she never knew just why Jim had run away from home in his 18th year and she had never seen him nor heard from him since that day.

She knew that he had gone "out West," and she was too poor to follow him, had she known where he was.
There had been vague and unfounded rumors that he had "got into trouble," but proof of this was lacking, and her neighbors had long ago ceased to speak of Jim to Margaret Hudson. But not for one day nor for one hour had she ceased to think of him—her heart's desire.
Twenty years of unanswered prayer had ended in this spirit of depression and rebellion, and there was no love nor gratitude in Margaret Hudson's heart that Thanksgiving morning.

The earth, the air and the water had yielded of their bountiful supplies, and the good dames had done honor to their skill and ingenuity by setting before their hungry guests and companions a repast as sumptuous and tempting as it was varied and delicious. Foremost of all there was roast turkey, dressed with beechnuts; then came rare venison pasties, savory meat stewed with dumplings of barley flour; delicious oysters (the gift of the Indians, and the first ever tasted by the white men); great bowls of clam chowder with sea biscuit floating on the steaming broth; roasts of all kinds, broiled fish, salads, cakes and plum porridge, while the center of each of the long tables was adorned with a large basket overflowing with wild grapes and plums and nuts of every variety.

"It was the time of the Indian summer. The soft, mellow sunlight shone warmly through the drowsy haze, illumining the gentle winds of the south, laden with the sweet perfumes of the forest, came as a lingering dream of summer to add to the joy and brightness of this Thanksgiving feast. Upon the balmy air arose the hum of many voices and the merry music of laughter, as the pilgrims, with their Indian guests, partook of the feast that the Provider of all things had given them."

CARVING THE TURKEY.

Adapta Have Reduced the Art to an Exact Science.

Something more than a sharp knife and a tender turkey is necessary to be master of the situation, when a turkey is placed before you. The adept carver has the art of separating the joints of the bird down to such an exact science that in one minute they can cut the most gigantic turkey into pieces each as good as a plate. Plant the fork into the turkey's breast, and cut off the left wing. This is done with a downward swing that catches the joint. The fork meanwhile, with a prong on each side of the breastbone, is held stiff and firm in the left hand.

Now press the blade of the knife downward, and remove the leg and second joint. As these fall upon the dish they must be lifted to a small platter to be out of the carver's way. There should always be a warm platter near the carver.

The third move of the carver is to slice off the breast, removing it in layers parallel to the breast bone. This makes a slice of very good grain, better than if it were cut crosswise.

The fourth stroke is upward from the pope's nose so as to catch the "oyster bone" on the side. This reveals the stuffing, which can be sliced off.

The wishbone is next removed. This is done by slipping the knife under the point of the bone, after the breast is sliced off, and sweeping it downward toward the neck. A very nice portion of the meat comes with it. Follow these directions and carving a fowl will not be difficult.

We Thank Thee, Lord,
For evil things which make us love the good;
For all temptations which we have withstood;
For sins abhorred;
For bitter pains that gave us sweet surcease;
For life, for death, and Death's great daughter—Peace—
We Thank Thee, Lord,

CHAPTER I.

In a hollow of down, half a mile from oak woods and crags, with an ancient yew and Spanish chestnut before it, stood, and stands still, Morwell House, the hunting lodge of the abbots of Tavistock, built where a moor-well gushed from amidst the golden gorse, brakes, and after a short course ran down the steep side of the hill, and danced into the Tamar.

Seventy or eighty years ago this house was in a better and worse condition than at present; worse, in that it was sorely dilapidated; better, in that it had not suffered tasteless modern handling to convert it into a farm with laborers' cottages. Even forty years ago the old banquet hall and the abbot's parlor were intact. Now all his been restored out of recognition. In the interior of this old hall, on the twenty-fourth of June, just eighty years ago, sat the tenant; a tall, gaunt man with dark hair. He was engaged cleaning his gun, and the atmosphere was foul with the odor exhaled by the piece that had been recently discharged, and was now being purified.

Once—suddenly—he placed the muzzle of his gun against his right side under the rib, and with his foot touched the lock. A quiver ran over his face, and his dim eyes were raised to the ceiling. Then there came from near his feet a feeble sound of a babe giving token with its lips that it was dreaming of food. The man sighed, and looked down at a cradle that was before him.

Presently, recovering himself from his abstraction, he laid the gun across the cradle, from right to left, and it rested there as a bar sinister on a shield, black and ominous. His head sank in his thin shaking hands, and he bowed over the cradle. His tears or sweat, or tears and sweat combined, dropped as a salt rain upon the sleeping child.

All at once the door opened and a man stood in the yellow light, like a medieval saint against a golden ground and called, in a hard, sharp tone, "Eve! where is Eve?"

The man at the cradle started up, showing at the time how tall he was. He stood up as one bewildered, with his hands outspread, and looked blankly at the newcomer.

"Are you Ignatius Jordan?"

"I am."

"And I am Ezekiel Babb. I am come for my daughter."

Ignatius Jordan staggered back against the wall, and leaned against it with arms extended and with open palms. The window through which the sun streamed was ancient; it consisted of two lights with a transom, and the sun sent the shadow of mullion and transom as a black cross against the further wall. Ignatius stood unconsciously spreading his arms against this shadow like a ghastly Christ on his cross. The stranger noticed the likeness, and said in his harsh tones, "Ignatius Jordan, thou hast crucified thyself." Then again, as he took a seat unasked, "Eve! where is Eve?"

The gentleman addressed answered with an effort, "She is no longer here. She is gone."

"What?" exclaimed Babb; "no longer here? She was here last week. Where is she now?"

"She is gone," said Jordan, in a low tone.

"Gone!—her child is here. When will she return?"

"Return!—with a sigh—never."

"Cursed be the blood that flows in her veins!" shouted the newcomer. "Fastest, ever-freest, fevered, fantastic! It is none of mine, it is all her mother's." He sprang to his feet and paced the room furiously, with knitted brows and clenched fists. Jordan followed him with his eye. The man was some way past the middle of life, strongly and compactly built. His profile was strongly accentuated, hawklike, greedy, cruel.

"I see it all," he said, partly to himself; "that cursed foreign blood would not suffer her to find rest even here, where there is prosperity. Babb! all her lust is after tinsel and tawdry." He raised his arm and clenched fist. "A life accursed of heaven! Of old our forefathers, under the righteous Cromwell, rose up and swept all profanity out of the land, the jesters, and the carol singers, and theatrical performers, and pipers and tumblers. But they returned again to torment the elect. What saith the Scripture? Make no marriage with the heathen, else shall ye be unclean, ye and your children."

He repeated himself. "Ignatius Jordan," he said, "I was mad and wicked when I took her mother to wife; and a mad and wicked thing you did when you took the daughter. As I saw you just now—as I see you at present—standing with spread arms against the black shadow cross from the window, I thought it was a figure of what you chose for your lot when you took my Eve. I crucified myself when I married her mother, and now the iron enters your side."

Again he paused. The arms of Jordan fell.

"So she has left you," muttered the stranger, "she has gone back to the world, to its pomps and vanities, its lusts, its lies, its laughter. Gone back to the players and dancers."

Jordan nodded; he could not speak.

"Dead to every call of duty," Babb continued with a scowl on his brow, "dead to everything but the cravings of a cankered heart; dead to the love of lawful gain; alive to music, to glitter. I will light my pipe." Ezekiel Babb struck a light with flint and steel. "We have made a like experience, I with the mother, you with the daughter. Why are you downcast? Rejoice if she has set you free. The mother never did that for me."

The child in the cradle began to stir. Jordan rocked it with his foot.

"I will tell you all," the visitor continued. "I was a young man when I first saw Eve—not your Eve, but her mother. It was the great fair day. There were performers in the open space before the market. I had seen nothing like it be-

"What is this?" asked Ezekiel. "My Barbara," answered Ignatius in a low tone; "I was married before, and my wife died, leaving me this little one." At a sign from the father Barbara rose, and carried the child out of the room, talking to it fondly, and a joyous chirp from the little one was the last sound that reached Babb's ears as the door shut behind them.

"Naught but evil has the foreign blood, the tossing fever-blood, brought me. First it came without a dowry, and that was like original sin. Then it prevented me from marrying Tamsine Bovey and getting Buncombe. That was like sin of malice. Now Tamsine is dead and her husband, Joseph Warrington, wants to sell. I tell you, he went on fiercely, 'that so long as all that land remains another's and not mine, so long shall I feel only gall, and no pity nor love, for Eve, and all who have issued from her—for all who inherit her name and blood. I curse —' his voice rose to a roar, and his gray hair bristled like the fell of a wolf, 'I curse them all with—'

The pale man, Jordan, rushed at him and thrust his hand over his mouth. "Curse not," he said vehemently; then in a subdued tone: "Listen to reason, and you will feel pity and love for my little one who inherits the name and blood of your Eve. I have laid by money. It shall be the portion of my little Eve, and I will lend it to you for seventeen years. This day, the 24th of June, seventeen years hence, you shall repay me the whole sum without interest. I am not a Jew to lend on usury. I shall want the money then for my Eve, as her dowry. In the meantime take and use the money, and when you walk over the fields you have purchased with it—bless the name."

A flush came in the sallow face of Ezekiel Babb. He rose to his feet and held out his hand.

"You will lend me the money, two thousand pounds?"

"I will lend you fifteen hundred."

"I will swear to repay the sum in seventeen years. You shall have a mortgage."

"On this day."

"This 24th day of June, so help me, heaven!"

A ray of orange light, smiling through the window, was falling high up the wall. The hands of the men met in the beam, and the reflection was cast on their faces—on the dark, hard face of Ezekiel, on the white, quivering face of Ignatius.

"And you bless," said the latter, "you bless the name of Eve, and the blood that follows it."

"I bless. Peace be to the restless blood."

WHAT BISMARCK BELIEVED.

Faith in a Living God and Love for Truth and Sincerity.

Bismarck may or may not have been a man without a scruple; he certainly was not a man without a very living faith in a living God. He took as little stock in "streams of tendency" as Mr. Gladstone himself. Oliver Cromwell, indeed, was not more firmly convinced of the reality of a Divine Providence than this intellectual giant of the skeptical nineteenth century.

This was in him a lifelong characteristic. When he was a boy Bismarck's parents made a great point of inculcating truth on his youthful mind. When young Otto was 15 it was Schleiermacher who prepared him for confirmation. Old Bismarck wrote to the famous preacher and professor, begging him in his instructions to lay special stress on the virtues of sincerity and truth. Schleiermacher confirmed Bismarck, and gave him as his motto for the guidance of his future life an altered version of Ephesians vi. 7: "What thou doest do as to the Lord and not to men."

When he was in the heyday of his fame, in 1887, he talked much to Sir W. B. Richmond about religion and prayer. "I remember," he said, "at 14 thinking prayer needless, for it struck me then that God knew better than I. I think much the same now, except that the usefulness of prayer is in that it implies submission to a stronger power, which is neither arbitrary nor capricious. Of a future life I doubt not. The present is too sad and incomplete to answer to our highest selves. It is evidently a struggle, then, only in vain if it is to end here; ultimate perfection I believe in."

Nor was he in the least disposed to shrink from professing his faith before men. When Mr. Gladstone died, Lord Salisbury described him in his eulogium in the house of lords as a "most eminent Christian." Followers of the neck and lowly Nazarene would possibly be slow to recognize the man of blood and iron as a disciple of the Christ who was crucified. But Bismarck himself had no misgivings as to his place among the believers. Nor was his a deathbed repentance. He did not postpone his avowal of faith in the unseen until things seen were becoming dimly visible through the mists of death. In the supreme moment of his career, on the eve of the war which gave Prussia the headship of Germany, in the midst of the war that made Germany the master of Europe, he avowed with proud humility that to him all that was vital in this life sprang from his faith in the life to come.—Review of Reviews.

No Distinguishing Marks.

"Were there any marks about him by which he could be described?" asked the detective.

"Yes," eagerly replied the father of the runaway boy, "his trousers were nearly worn through at the knees, and he had in one of his pockets, as I heard my wife say a day or two ago, a knife with a broken blade, a pistol cartridge that had been fired off, a match, some of the wheels of an old watch, a leather shoestring, a broken key, a bunch of twine, two or three white pebbles, a piece of lead, some buttons from the last bicycle show, a stump of a lead pencil and a bit of red chalk."

And the detective wrote in his memorandum book, "No distinguishing marks."—Chicago Tribune.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

Next week there will appear a complete list of the students from Chelsea and vicinity giving their address, class, and department.

More men were taken into the University Y. M. C. A. at their last business meeting than has ever been taken into a college christian organization before at one time. 125 names were voted upon.

A freak appeared on the campus last week in the way of a contortionist who could throw every joint of his body out of place. He was exhibited before the various classes of the medical department.

The "Evening in Electricity" to be given by Prof. Carhart at the Y. M. C. A. fair is attracting considerable comment. He will attempt to suspend copper and aluminum rings in mid air by electric repulsion.

General Gorton lectures in the S. L. A. course Saturday, November 19, in the M. E. church. The delay in securing steel for the new dome on University hall is occasioning great inconvenience as no meetings can be held in the hall until it is completed.

For some time it was feared that the attendance at the University would be greatly decreased this year on account of the war, as many of the students are not yet mustered out, but the 3,000 mark has been passed already and before the year closes it will reach the highest point attained last year.

The appearance of President Angell on the campus again is a source of satisfaction to all. Many are attending his lecture course on International Law, as he is recognized as one of the highest authorities in America on the subject and his recent work in Turkey as United States minister makes the subject doubly interesting.

The Illinois-Michigan foot ball game in Detroit last Saturday which was won by Michigan narrows the championship race down to Chicago University and Michigan. As these two teams meet in Chicago Thanksgiving day the game promises to be one of the most interesting in the history of western foot ball. The University team is playing in excellent form and it is strongly hoped that the championship may come to Michigan. Success will add much to the prestige of the school and the gentlemanly game played by the varsity men augurs well for the moral atmosphere of the college.

We thought that when election was over The Ypsilanti Sentinel would get over its indisposition, caused by an injection of the democratic state central committee, but it seems to have become chronic, and some of the things in its last issue would have been better unsaid.

While in the city this week, Rev. Dr. Riley of Adrian, conversing on the subject of the Irish fund raised in America some years ago, said: "A Chicago paper accused me of running away with the fund. In setting apart Thursday, November 24th, as Thanksgiving Day, President McKinley says: "Few years in our history have afforded such cause for thanksgiving as this. A. W. Wilkinson tells the greatest story of the year and has been awarded the badge and other paraphernalia that goes with the degree of P. G. M. of L. He says that when he moved to town some time ago he found a hen in his barn that had laid thirteen eggs and was setting on them. There was nothing in the building for the hen to eat except some sawdust, and when the chickens were hatched twelve of them were found to have wooden legs and the other one was a woodpecker.

The Ann Arbor Courier in its last issue attributed one of the causes of the republican defeat in Washtenaw county to the stay-at-home vote in Sylvan. The Courier should polish up its glasses a little and look again. The republican gain in Sylvan, over two years ago, was over 100 votes and if the rest of the county had made proportionate gain, the republicans would have carried the county by over 2,000. If the Courier expects to stand in with the Sylvan republicans it should apologize to them.

TOPICS FOR FARMERS

A DEPARTMENT PREPARED FOR OUR RURAL FRIENDS.

Growing of Tobacco Is on the Increase —Rot Cornstalks in the Soil—Growth of Commercial Fertilizer Manufacture—How to Judge a Horse.

A farmer sat on his porch one day, Thinking of his fields and meadows of hay, Of his fine bred horses and fine bred cows, Of his fleecy sheep and his full-blooded sows,

He thought of the work of his hands and brain It took these traits in his pets to train; How he had labored and toiled night and day To make good breeds that would always pay.

But never once did he think of the hen That was out in the yard singing just then; You see she was a mongrel, a half-breed, Just come up, you know, like an old weed.

But nevertheless she had brought and paid For the cloth of which his pants were made. She often furnished full half his meal, For if he didn't get eggs he'd be sure to squeal.

His hat, she furnished the eggs to buy, And I'm not sure but she bought his tie. His shoes, which were of the very best, Came also from old biddy's nest.

Just then his wife came out with a man Filled half full with corn meal and bran. She gave the hen a gill or two, Saying, "My good old friend, how are you?"

The farmer looked up in a dreamy way And with a scowl on his face began to say, "Those old hens don't begin to pay, For they do nothing but eat and lay."

These last two words were spoken by his wife, Who had worked with poultry all her life. Said she, "Look here, they're our best friend, For they furnish all the money we have to spend."

She showed him how the mortgage was paid By the many eggs that biddy had laid. "Well, we'll get a new breed next year," He said as he kissed his wife so dear. —Poultry Farmer.

Preparing Ground for Tobacco.

The growing of tobacco seems to be on the increase every year as an agricultural crop. The zone of its influence seems to be enlarging in an agricultural sense. Parts of the country that were formerly regarded as unfitted for the growing of this plant are coming into prominence as tobacco growing regions. The tobacco plant holds a unique place in our agriculture. We cannot look upon it either as a food or ornamental plant. In itself it is a poisonous weed. It was formerly thought that tobacco growing greatly exhausted the ground, but under proper methods this is believed now not to be the case.

Growers of tobacco say that the culture of the soil should begin a long time before the culture of the plant, to get the best results. The land should be thoroughly plowed and harrowed in the fall. Stable manure should be used in large quantities. This should be done in the fall to give the manure time to decay, as the tobacco plant grows so rapidly that there is no time for manure to undergo chemical changes after the seed has sown out the shoot. It is advised to avoid the use of manures too heavily nitrogenous, and to use considerable potash. After the plants are on the ground cultivation should be frequent and thorough. —Farmers' Review.

Rotting Corn Stalks.

Farmers are coming to realize more and more that the cornstalks should not be burned—that by rotting them in the soil its physical texture would be improved so as to resist drought better. The problem is, how to get them sufficiently decayed the first season.

When corn is cut up and shocked, first break the stubs as much as practicable and use the stalk-cutter. Follow this with disk harrow, mixing the corn stubble and top soil together. This stubble in contact with the soil all winter, absorbing water from rain and snow, freezing and thawing while damp, will by spring become foxy and discolored and so far decayed that when turned under it will soon disintegrate. If the crop is not cut up, gather the corn as soon as it can be cribbed; pasture it at once if it is wanted for pasture, and break down the remaining stalks, treating them in the same way as already suggested. If the stalks can be partly or wholly rotted in this way they are worth more to feed to the next crop than their value as pasture. Test both stubble and stalks this winter. It may not be the best way, but it may lead to the discovery of a much better way to dispose of the stalks than by burning up that which is so much needed to improve the physical texture of our soil, even if it does not add much nitrogen. —Kansas Farmer.

Commercial Fertilizers.

One of the industries which have developed in large proportions in the last third of a century is the manufacture of commercial fertilizers. The annual production of fertilizers now reaches in value about $40,000,000, and the business is increasing rapidly. A great many of the best chemists in Europe and America are devoting their lives to the study of the subject and to devising combinations to cheapen and improve fertilizers. Farmers have become so well advised as to the kind of fertilizers they need for various soils that they cannot be imposed on. They know what they want as well as the manufacturers, and if the suitable goods are not offered they make no purchases. Superphosphates, potash salts, nitrate and ammonia salts, industrial by-products, such as tankage, dried blood, cotton-seed meal, etc., are the principal elements from which the standard fertilizers are compounded. Production of fertilizers has been greatly cheapened, and as the goods are reduced in price the market for them broadens. An experienced manufacturer makes the prediction that within ten years the production will aggregate $100,000,000 annually. The Agricultural Department is paying especial attention to this subject.

How to Buy a Horse.

If you want to buy a horse, take no man's word for it. Your eye is your market. Don't buy a horse in harness. Unhitch him and take everything off but the halter, and lead him around. If he has any failing, you can see it. Let him go himself away, and if he walks right into anything you know he is blind. No matter how clear and bright his eyes are he can't see any more than a bat. Back him, too. Some horses show their weakness or tricks in that way when they don't in any other. But, be as smart as you can, you'll get caught sometimes. Even the experts get stuck. A horse may look over so nice, and go a great pace and yet have fits. There isn't a man who could tell it until something happens. Or he may have a weak back. Give him the whip and off he goes for a mile or two, then all of a sudden he stops on the road. After a rest he starts again, but soon stops for good, and nothing but a derick can start him. —Southern Stock Farm.

How to Make a Cheap Ice House.

Select or make a level place of ground near the house where least exposed to the summer sun, and cover it with any kind of cheap boarding. Leave space between the board for drainage. Place stout posts at each corner, the two at the front being 2 feet higher than those at the back, to support the slanting roof. Nail rough boards all around to the height of 24 feet and then nail similar ones to the inside. Fill up this space on all sides with sawdust or tan bark, and cover the floor to a depth of 10 inches with the same. Select a freezing day, when the ice is in its best condition for storing. Have the ice cut in large squares as can be handled, and pack it as closely and evenly as possible, and fill up all gaps with pounded ice, also turning water over each layer. Nail on more boards when the space is filled, and put in more layers of ice until enough is stored for a summer's use; then cover the top with sawdust or tanbark 2 feet deep, and build over it a roof of boards covered with slabs. When ice is removed from it, care must be taken to replace the covering as completely as possible. —Practical Farmer.

Whitewash the Farm Buildings.

The most durable whitewash is that used by the United States Government for painting lighthouses. It is made of three parts fresh Rosendale cement and two parts of clean fine sand, well mixed with clean water. It must be kept well stirred when using and the wall must be wet with clean water just before applying the whitewash, which should be as thick as it can be conveniently spread with a whitewash brush. A good, double whitewash is made by boiling half a bushel of fresh lime with laking water, dissolve 6 pounds of fine salt in water and thoroughly mix this with the slaked lime and strain it through a fine sieve of coarse cloth, add half a pound of powdered Spanish whiting and one pound of clean glue, which has been dissolved in warm water, add to this five gallons of clean hot water and stir it well over a slow fire until it is thoroughly heated and well mixed, then set it away for a day or two so it will become well seasoned, and when using it keep it thinned with hot water to a consistency that can be readily applied with a white-wash brush and spread it while quite hot.

Feeding Whey to Hogs.

Whey contains more nutritive value than it is popularly supposed to have. Though most of the fats and caseine have been taken from it, there is a small proportion of both of these that goes through the press. These have some value, but not enough with the large proportion of water to be fed alone. There is also some sugar which makes the pigs fond of whey so they will eat until they are distended with whey, while growing poor in flesh and not gaining in weight at all. But mix some corn and oat meal with this whey, and add the least bit of linseed meal, and the whey becomes altogether a different food. It might be said that the whey contributes nothing of value to the ration. It does, for it makes it more palatable if given in moderation. The sweet in the whey makes it an appetizer, to encourage the animal to eat more than it otherwise would.

Strawberry Plants in Hills.

To successfully grow strawberries in hills the land must be very rich, and this causes many runners to start out. Now, if these runners are allowed to form leaves and do not strike root, and a great quantity of them are cut off but at once, it is not only a great waste, but it throws the plant out of balance of root and foliage, and thus weakened it is liable to be attacked with rust. If the runners are clipped before leaves form it at once proceeds to form new crowns and fruit buds and its roots and foliage will not be thrown out of harmony. There will be little difficulty of this sort if runners are cut every week. —Michigan Fruit Grower.

Quince Flavoring for Apple Pies.

Whenever apples are cooked for pies or sauce a quince sliced up and cooked with them greatly improves the flavor.

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Mrs. Pinkham Relieved Her of All Her Troubles.

Mrs. MADGE BARCOCK, 176 Second St., Grand Rapids, Mich., had ovarian trouble with its attendant aches and pains, now she is well. Here are her own words:

"Your Vegetable Compound, has made me feel like a new person."

Before I began taking it I was all run down, felt tired and sleepy most of the time, had pains in my back and side, and such terrible headaches all the time, and could not sleep well nights. I also had ovarian trouble. Through the advice of a friend I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and since taking it all troubles have gone. My monthly sickness used to be so painful, but have not had the slightest pain since taking your medicine. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too much. My husband and friends see such a change in me, I look so much better and have some color in my face."

Mrs. Pinkham invites women who are ill to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is freely offered.

To the Members of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union: I have made a careful investigation from the best sources of reliable information about the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co.'s Remedies, and found that they were giving good satisfaction. Yours fraternally, Jno. C. Hanley, Business Agent, F. A. & I. U., St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28, 1898.

Not to Be Caught.

Walters in Parisian restaurants always have an answer ready. Zola, the novelist, had noticed this fact, and according to the London Figaro, made use of it in perpetrating a joke.

"Bring me a sphinx a la Marengo," he said to a waiter.

"I am sorry to say they are out," was the answer.

"What, no more sphinx?" said Zola, in a tone of indignant surprise.

The waiter stepped close to the chair and whispered:

"The truth is, we have some, monsieur, but I don't care to serve them to you, as they are not quite fresh."

Why He Sought the Office.

"So you are a candidate for Mayor, are you?" inquired a friend of a Western village maid, whose years were rather more certain than otherwise.

"What salary does the office pay?"

"Oh," replied the female standard-bearer, "there is no salary at all; but you see the Mayor has authority to advertise for proposals, and—"

"Yes, I think I see," interrupted the other.

A Good Example.

Daniel Tichenor of Chelsea, on the occasion of his recent 96th birthday, set an example to the rising young men, by shaving himself. There is many a dude one-fifth Uncle Daniel's age who cannot shave himself. Mr. Tichenor had been a shaver eighteen years when Michigan was born and was ten years old when its first governor let out his natal yell. What has shortened Mr. Tichenor's trip is the fact that once or twice in his life he has taken a chew of tobacco. But for that, he might, today be 125 years old, just as well as not. Let every young man eschew the habit. — Jackson Sunday Herald.

Avoid Coughing.

Scientific American: A physician who is connected with an institution in which there are many children, says: "There is nothing more irritable to a cough than coughing. For some time I had been so fully assured of this that I determined for one minute at least to lessen the number of coughs heard in a certain ward in a hospital of the institution. By the promise of rewards and punishments I succeeded in inducing them simply to hold their breath when tempted to cough, and in a little while I was myself surprised to see how some of the children entirely recovered from the disease. Constant coughing is precisely like scratching a wound on the outside of the body; so long as it is done, the wound will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw a long breath and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and some benefit will soon be received from this process. The nitrogen which is thus confined acts as an anodyne to the mucous membrane allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal."

While Major Kirk was at Ann Arbor election night a few of his friends fixed up a surprise party in the law office of Judge Babbitt and himself. A more perfect imitation of the primeval chaos would have been difficult to find than the sight which met the major's eyes when he stepped over the official threshold yesterday afternoon. The four walls and ceiling were draped with national bunting and ornamented with such signs as "This is my busy day, call tomorrow." "The morning after election." "If you don't see what you want, ask for it." etc. The floor was covered to a depth of several inches with loose papers, parts of a broken chair hung from the gas fixtures and about twenty empty bottles were carelessly strewn about the floor and furniture. The major thanked the boys for their celebration in his honor, and told them that he was only sorry he couldn't have been with them in body as well as spirit. — Evening Times.

Harry West of Ann Arbor died Friday morning of lockjaw. He has been employed in draying, and about a week before he stepped upon a rusty nail, inflicting what was supposed to be a slight wound in the foot. It was however, much more dangerous than was anticipated. Medical treatment was thought to be unnecessary until blood poisoning set in, with the above result. He was 16 years of age.

The Washtenaw jail is terribly overcrowded and has been for a long time. There are those outside who have rights there which are denied them. A recommendation for a new jail is before the board of Supervisors. The jail roster shows that 178 men and 8 women have found accommodations there in the past six months. Of these 115 went for being drunk. The plea was that the water was bad. A short time ago a temperance lecture was given by a University professor who illustrated with a microscope. Said the professor: "I have here some swamp water containing microbes. Viewed under the glass you observe they are alive and squirming. Now, to show the deadly effects of alcohol, I will add a drop to this water." He did so and every microbe instantly straightened out as still as a mackerel. "That settles it," hiccupped a cardinal nosed hum who had staggered to the front, "that settles it, an I'll never drink any more wazzer long's I live—without some (hic) whisky in it." — Hillsdale Leader.

Charged $5 for "Sass."

A story is told of Fanny Kemble, whose favorite summer resort was Lenox, that on her first season there she employed a self respecting villager, who had a comfortable turnout, to drive her about. He, feeling it to be his duty to make the drive as entertaining as possible, began to call her attention to the beauty of the scenery—which she wished to enjoy undisturbed—and to tell her who lived in certain houses as they passed along, until finally Mrs. Kemble, being unable to stand it any longer, said in the high tragedy manner somewhat peculiar to her, "I have engaged you to drive for me, sir, and not to talk."

The driver ceased talking, pursed up his lips, and in all their subsequent drives his only remarks were such as he found necessary to address to his horses.

At the end of the season he handed in his bill for the summer services. Running his eye down his awkward columns, she paused at an item that she didn't understand. "What is this, sir? I cannot comprehend it."

With equal gravity he replied, "Sass, $5. I don't often take it; but when I do I charge."

She paid the bill without comment and continued to employ the same driver during many summers she spent there. — Boston Record.

Fond of Crab.

A jolly old boy from the Midlands entered into one of the hotels at the seaside and seeing on the slab on the right a crab dressed on the shell with legs, claws and parsley ranged round, said to the landlord:

"What'd ye call that?"

"Crab," was the answer.

"Looks good. I'll have un, and gie us a pint of ale."

Bread and butter was added and the diner left to his dinner. In about an hour the genial landlord entered the dining saloon to see if his guest was getting on all right. He found him chawing up the last claw, the chawer red in the face, but beaming.

"Like the crab, sir?"

"Yes, He was capital. I never tasted one afore, but I think you baked un a little too long. The crust was hard. Let's have another pint."

He had eaten the lot—shell, claws and all complete. — London Tit-Bits.

HOW TO LOOK GOOD.

Good looks are really more than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver is inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach is disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidneys are affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good alternative and tonic. Act directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils, and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at Glazier & Stimson's drug store. 50 cents per bottle.

THE GREAT

FOUR-C REMEDY

FOR

LA GRIPPE.

For Sale by R. S. Armstrong & Co.

What if Not Miracles?

The great Four-C Remedy is doing work wherever introduced as nearly miraculously as it ever falls to the lot of any human agency to do (I will esteem it a favor for any one interested to write the persons whose names appear below or anyone whose name may appear among these testimonials.)

My aim is to convince the public of my sincerity and of the true merits of this remedy.

BENEFACTORS OF THE RACE.

Office of "KINGSMAN TIMES," Kingsber, Okla., Dec. 12, '98.

GENTLEMEN—I believe it my duty to write you line in regard to the beneficial effect of Phelps' Four-C Remedy, so far as I am personally concerned. A week ago last Thursday, I was taken with a severe attack of la grippe and in a short time became so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. The night previous I had coughed nearly the entire night; just before retiring I took a teaspoonful, and slept the entire night as sweetly as ever I did in my life, not coughing once. I was entirely relieved before taking one bottle Phelps' Cough, Cold and Croup Cure should be in every household in the land. I send you this wholly unsolicited by anyone, for you are benefactors of the race in giving it the antidote for some of the worst afflictions to which it is heir.

Very Truly Yours,
C. J. NESBITT, Editor.

A MIRACLE.

Kansas City, Kansas, Dec. 24, '98.

Last Friday, Dec. 19, my attending physician stated unless I was better by morning he could do nothing for my relief. That night I commenced taking Phelps' "Four-C" remedy, stopped all other medicines. The first dose stopped my cough; slept and rested well; a few more doses removed all soreness from my lungs; the second day I was up; the third day I was out on the porch and to-day was up town purchasing holiday goods.

Miss JENNIE BASSETT,
Washington Ave. and Summit St.
