A LARGE CEMENT FACTORY

IS TO BE BUILT AT FOUR MILE LAKE WITHIN THE YEAR.—IT WILL BENEFIT CHELSEA.—SURVEYS TO BE MADE AT ONCE.

The charter election Monday was a very closely contested one, and resulted in the election of the whole of the Citizens' ticket with the exception of clerk and treasurer. Those who were most ardent in their support of the winning ticket put in their best digs from the morning after the caucuses until the polls closed Monday night and the results showed that their efforts had not been in vain. The total number of votes cast was 446. The retiring trustees are H. S. Holmes, J. L. Gilbert and G. Grau. Below is given the vote:

MANCHESTER.
A hot, but non-partisan election was the one held in Manchester, the two tickets in the field being the Citizens' and Young Men's respectively, the latter being headed by Fred M. Freeman, brother of L. T. and Ralph Freeman, of Chelsea, for president. The entire Citizens' ticket was elected by small majorities as follows: President, A. J. Waters; trustees, A. J. Wurster, E. S. Hagaman and Howard Clark; clerk, C. E. Lewis; treasurer, J. Fred Scoble; assessor, W. Kimble.

DEXTER.
There was a lively and closely contested election in Dexter Monday, the issue being "shall the saloons comply with the law?" For this avowed purpose a Citizens' ticket was put up in opposition to the other ticket which was headed as R publican. The Citizens elected R. C. Copeland president and B. C. Whitaker assessor. John Barley for recorder and Jay Keith for treasurer were on both tickets; Alfred Phelps and Charles Stebbins were tied for first trustee, and the Republican ticket elected A. S. Yost and Fred Kauska.

Cement Factory at Four Mile Lake.

A deal which will be of direct benefit to Chelsea is now in process of completion by Detroit capitalists. As mentioned in the Herald of Feb. 23, they have secured options on lands around Four Mile lake aggregating in all 1,000 acres. They have closed the deal with Nathan Pierce for 200 acres of land, paying therefor $20,000, and are now closing up the contracts for the other 800 acres. Mr. Pierce has of that amount the 160 acres of land he has just homesteaded.

Surveyor M. J. Noyes has been engaged to stake out the lands and the Michigan Central has already laid out the sidetrack, which will commence at the old gravel bed 1½ miles west of Dexter and will go thence northeast along the west bank of the Four Mile lake ditch.

The factory is to be in operation within a year and will give employment to a large number of men, many of whom would live in Chelsea. With the electric road coming into the village and the prospects of this factory located so near to us, the property interests of Chelsea should still hold up to their present good prices.

Mr. Sturgis, of Ann Arbor, visited the factory Monday.

Remember the senior library.

Creeping Consumption

Do not think for a single moment that consumption will ever strike you a sudden blow. It does not come that way.

It creeps its way along. First, you think it is a little cold; nothing but a little hacking cough; then a little loss in weight; then a harder cough; then the fever and the night sweats.

The suddenness comes when you have a hemorrhage. Better stop the disease while it is yet creeping. You can do it with

IN THE GREEN WOODS.

Oh, sweet it was, and fair it was, In the green woods to-day, With only tree-tops bending near, And all the world away,

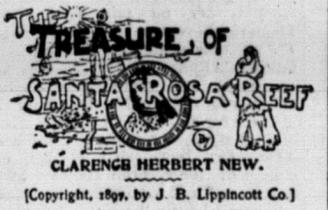

Oh, balmy was the pine tree's breath, Stirring its tasseled plumes; The slender birches, maiden-white, Leaned thro' the forest glooms;

Oh, sweet it was, and fair it was, In the green woods to-day, To hear the birds trill out their tunes, And all the world away;

Of fairy pipes the wood was full, And stir of airy feet; The nesting robin to his mate Sang only "Sweet, sweet, sweet!"

Oh, sweet it was, and dear it was, In the green woods to-day, The echo of a silent voice, And all the world away;

They made her grave the other day, And yet it well may be That all along that woodland path, Viewless, she went with me;

"Well, the Yap people are the only ones who would really kick. Even they would stand five or six days all right as far as leaving for Manila goes. But if we happen to have any sea-sick passengers, they'll never forgive the extra days of unpleasantness as long as they live; and I don't remember whether any of them are going to Tomil or not."

"There's but one for Yap—the cur—the youngest of the two padres."

"And one padre is fifty times worse to deal with than the ordinary passenger; the chances are that he can turn the whole machinery of government against a fellow if he chooses."

"Ay, that's verra true. But ef ye've the padre's enfluence wi' ye, it's quite another matter. Aa've a thoct in ma baid that ye may arrange it wi' these twa."

"Let's have it, Mac. That's what we want to get at."

"Well, the oold padre's a verra essential mon. Aa'm toold that he's tae be the haid o' all the Ledrones, an' he's verra ainxious tae reach Salpan at once; he's beziness there on Padre Julian's account. Tha young one says but little, yet Aa nootice that he's verra deferential whin th' ither's around. Noo, Aa'm thinkin' thit ef Aa fair tae stop th' aingine—say three days from this—an' gaive oot thit ma shaft wair cracked, ye might say ye wair forced tae put in at Apra, where ye'll get a couple o' rings from th' wrickaige o' the Dutch tramp thit wair cast ashore there twa year agoo. Aa kin scratch the shaft sae 'twill hae th' appearance o' a crack tae ma Spanish aingineers, an' there's na fithr pless where ye'll be laik tae find a bit o' machedetery. Then ye'll aplain the seetuation tae tha padre, an' say thit ef he'll gie a report in Maneela hoo tha chenge o' the coorse kem about, ye'll carry him tae Salpan—that he'll not oae tha treep tae mak' on a proos."

Halstead and I looked at each other. McPherson's idea seemed practical and plausible. There was no question whatever that a padre of sufficiently good standing could smooth over about anything he pleased, and, if an obligation to himself were part of the irregularity, it seemed very likely that he would see there were no questions asked. While we were discussing the matter, I couldn't help mentioning my instinctive dislike to Padre Sebastian. He was one of your plausible, fat and oily men, who study human nature almost from their infancy and read your thoughts in spite of you. In fact, my acquaintance with the Jesuits in the east had given me a wholesome respect for that marvelous penetration which is so important a factor in the influence they exert upon all classes. Both the captain and the engineer agreed with me that the padre was a dangerous man in more ways than one, but could see no reason why his peculiar influence should be exerted against us.

Having come to a definite understanding that we would investigate the wreck of the galleon as far as lay in our power, it was difficult to get the matter out of our minds. Several times we were on the point of taking McPherson more fully into our confidence, but, while we trusted him as one of ourselves, it seemed that matters were scarcely ripe for that yet; and I don't think he had the faintest suspicion as to the exact nature of the scheme. What the tie was between him and Halstead I never knew, but it was sufficiently strong to make the engineer follow my friend's suggestions blindly; and his assurance that Mac should be squarely treated if the speculation proved successful seemed to have all the weight of a bond. We agreed that it would be unwise for us to be seen in frequent conversation; so, beyond an occasional inspection of the machinery in his company, I saw very little of McPherson.

CHAPTER III.

Cultivation of the Padre Sebastian, in a quiet way, seemed an obvious policy in the light of our recent determination; but we found it necessary to be constantly on our guard against his subtle questioning. He seemed unwarrantably curious to ascertain my business on the steamer, and, thinking the bare truth might be the safest thing I could give him under the circumstances, I frankly detailed the severing of my connection with Lantini & Co. and the overworked condition which had induced me to take the voyage with my friend. These facts he could easily verify, and, for various reasons, I preferred not to be caught lying.

Among the other passengers were a rich old wine merchant and his daughter, from Seville, who were making a tour of the Spanish colonies and intended returning to Manila on the steamer. They were delightful people, the Senorita Gracia especially, and, mustering my very best Spanish, I began to cultivate their acquaintance. She was a beautiful girl, and she plied me with all sorts of questions concerning my countrywomen, our American customs, and the differences between our respective countries.

We sat over our dinner for quite awhile, discussing various subjects; then, excusing ourselves upon the plea of being responsible for the navigation, Halstead and I climbed to our quarters on the hurricane deck. We were then passing Banton island, in the open strait, and could dimly make out its 2,000 feet of rock in the starlight. The whole voyage from Manila bay to the San Bernardino passage is one grand panorama of precipitous volcano peaks and rocky islands, covered along their bases with luxuriant tropical foliage, which takes on an indescribably rich coloring in the sunlight and fills the air with fragrant odors that lull the senses into an oriental semi-consciousness which is simply delightful. Even in the half darkness it seemed like a dream of enchantment as the steamer slipped through the motionless water, softly purring black smoke from her funnel and hissing gently as the spray rippled alongside. It was so still that echoes of voices floated from all parts of the ship; liquid, blackguard patois from the crew, lounging about the foc'sle head; limpid Andalusian laughter, with now and then a snatch of song in a clear girlish voice, from somewhere down on the main deck; muffled echoes from the stoke-hold ventilators.

We had made ourselves comfortable at the starboard end of the bridge, and Diaz, the mate, was lounging over the rail to port, humming a love ditty to himself. Had we grounded on a rock or run into another ship, he probably would have plumped down on the gratings and pattered out prayers to the saints; but outside of emergencies he seemed to be a pretty fair officer.

Dick not only had good taste in the way of cigars, but he knew just where to get them, and the box we had opened that afternoon was a little ahead of anything I had ever smoked,—neither too heavy nor too damp, but of exquisite flavor and thoroughly seasoned.

Almost every one has experienced the rest and momentary inaction which come between periods of excessive mental or physical effort, especially upon the eve of some decisive attempt that is likely to be a severe tax upon the energies. It was something of this feeling which gave additional relish to the tobacco as we sat there in the starlight, thinking, planning, speculating. Diaz understood but little English, and, with the full length of the bridge between us, there was scarcely a possibility of his comprehending what we said; so now and then we ventured a remark which showed the drift of our thoughts. At first the possibilities and obstacles of the undertaking filled our minds; but after awhile the narcotic influence of the tobacco and our silent gliding along through the tropic night set us to castle-building. I've been often told by men who are now beyond the possibility of want of the relief and overconfidence which come with the first small successes in fortune-building. They are rays of light which brighten the years of weary effort and discouragement; and the eternal, irrefragable hope that they bring with them often stimulates a belief in continued success which leads to many a bad cropper in the struggles yet to come; yet what would humanity ever accomplish without those same rays of hope and sunshine?

Halstead's tastes, like those of most seafaring men, ran to snug country places on shore, racing studs, and good company, though all within sight and sound of the ocean. Mine, on the contrary, like most men who sail the sea for its witching pleasure and know nothing of top'sl reefing or foc'sle bellishness, were centered upon thousand-ton steam yachts, alternations between delightful cruises and months in a perfectly equipped town house.

He would mutter, between the puffs of smoke, "Gad, old chap, a fellow could have one of the finest places in Surrey and keep house parties going all the year round on the income of a million!" To which I would grunt an appreciative assent, followed by, "And think of the clipper yacht, triple-expansion and celluloid bottom, that a man could keep in commission; yes, and the town house, too. I could build one in the middle of Mayfair, with electric lights, modern plumbing, marble baths, and plenty of ground around it, for a hundred and fifty thousand." By which you will see that the captain and I were counting our chickens not only before they were hatched, but even while the eggs lay at the bottom of the western Pacific. This realization came to us after awhile with crushing force, along toward midnight, when the air had become pretty damp and we had smoked too many cigars. I could feel my heart sink down, down, like a lump of lead. But, before turning in, I thought: "Well, the voyage will make a new man of me, anyhow, and the excitement of the attempt will be something worth remembering, whether we succeed or not,"—in which my friend quite agreed with me.

Shortly after four o'clock I heard him tumble out of his bunk, and, being too restless to sleep, I soon followed. It was not yet daylight, but the gray shadows in the east were tinged with a rosy reflection against which were outlined the bold promontories of Point Bugui, the northwesterly limit of Masbate island and Point Sur, on Burias, the passage between being about eight miles in width. As we gradually altered our course around Point Sur, heading northeast toward Port Sorsogon, on Luzon, in order to clear San Miguel islet at the northerly end of Ticao, great flames of red shot up across the eastern horizon. The grayness overhead lifted, like a fog bank. There was a fresh and exhilarating dampness in the air. Then, as the top rim of the sun appeared, a broad gleam spread across the heavens, tingeing every line of the steamer's rigging and the sides of her funnel a deep crimson. Down on the main deck, the barefooted second mate, Moreno, was directing a stream from the hose over everything in sight, while his men of the starboard watch scrubbed and holystoned the planking.

Although there is plenty of water all through the San Bernardino passage, it has been but imperfectly surveyed and is thick with submerged rocks, navigation among which is rendered still more dangerous by a rapid current setting in from the Pacific; and a feverish desire to be at work made us doubly anxious to reach open water without accident. Halstead had been through the strait several times and knew his bearings perfectly, but we were well around the end of Ticao before he ventured below for breakfast.

At noon we were in the outer passage, between Calantas Rock and Capul, and by dinner-time were standing due east in the open sea north of Espiritu Santo. As on the previous evening, we stopped to chat with the passengers, the two padres and the Palacios especially, for an hour or so after the meal, then went on deck to size up the situation.

"To begia with," said I, when we were finally secure from interruption in our quarters, "where am I least likely to attract attention when I go ashore at Agana? Will it be advisable to take lodgings in a private house, or had I better go to the best hotel?"

"Oh, I should stop at the best hotel, by all means, if there were such a thing within a thousand miles. You would be far more likely to attract attention in any of the private houses, which are made of bamboo thatched with cocoa leaves and have a pounded mud floor; there's usually but one room, you know, and the whole family live in that quite sociably. Say, old man, what kind of a metropolis did you think you were going to? Why, besides the forts, the church, and government quarters, there aren't a dozen stone buildings in the town. No; being a white and presumably wealthy stranger, you will find yourself a big gun in Agana. And ordnance of your caliber are usually quartered upon the governor himself—free of charge, mind you. Fortunately, I happen to know Col. De Garma; Ferdinand Jose Felipe Jesus de Garma y de Lopez is his every-day name. You want to commit it to memory, too; because if you happen to get it De Something-or-other wrong, it might make considerable hard feeling. I've been thinking over the matter a little, and have concluded that your staying in the government house as his guest will be rather favorable to our plan than otherwise. He's one of the most hospitable men I ever met—give you anything he's got, except his daughter, and she's pretty enough to eat. Here's a picture of them, with the officers of the colonel's staff, taken with the patio. It's a pretty fair likeness of the crowd, considering the size. What do you think of them?"

I examined the photograph carefully.

"Why, they're full-blooded Spaniards, aren't they? They look like educated people."

"Hmp! If it comes to blood, De Garma can trace his family back to a branch of the Braganzas on the distaff side; the family are Portuguese, not Spanish, though they've lived in Granada for generations. But what do you think of the girl—Senorita Dorothea? Isn't she a peach?"

"She is a beauty, isn't she? What an infernal pity to hide away a girl like that in a forgotten hole where all the advantages she should have are denied her!"

"I think, myself, that Agana is no place for her; yet she won't stay here always, and the isn't by any means the untutored barbarian you imagine her to be. They lived in Granada and Madrid until she was 17."

"Then what the devil did they ever—"

"Come to the Ladrones for? Business; all in the line of business. As lieutenant colonel, the old man's ordinary salary of 2,700 a year didn't cut much ice in Madrid. Out here, as gobernador of the Ladrones, he gets about 400 more, besides the pickings."

"Pickings?"

"Yes. What he can squeeze out of the barrangays, or tax districts. Gobernadors don't work for their health, any more than United States senators. Then Guajan is one of the most delightful islands in the Pacific, and it costs them little or nothing to live there. At the end of his six years they get their passage home at government expense, and carry with them quite a respectable pot of savings, which means opera, cafes, bull-fights, wine, and innumerable cigarrillos, for several years. It takes a good deal of genius to work an influential relative in the cortes."

"His six years must have nearly expired by this time; I notice the senorita's gown isn't exactly up to date."

"That's the fault of her blasted cousins in Manila. I lost my temper, the day before we left, when they sent a lot of clothes down to the steamer for me to take to her. There was nothing but a flimsy string around the package, and when the quartermaster accidentally dropped it on deck it burst open; so I had the fun of raking together those female belongings and trying to guess which matched and which didn't. If the girl finds out that I saw some of the things, I'm afraid there'll be a coolness between us. You see, they're—well, mixed gear, I should say. What makes me so mad is the fact that those women in Manila have spent the money she sent last voyage on their own new clothes, and have sent her a lot of duds four years' out of style. I suppose they think that, being out of the world in those islands, she'll never know the difference, and that they are plenty good enough."

"What a beastly shame!"

"Yes; isn't it devilish! And that little girl likes to be well dressed just as much as they do. Got a heap better taste, too. Here, just look at these things in the box, will you?—they're almost as antiquated as the dress she's wearing in the picture." We gingerly lifted out one garment after another, speculating as to the use of those we were not sure about.

"Look here, Dick; you don't happen to have any nice, stylish dresses on board, do you?"

"No, I don't. I'm carrying hardware and stores this trip."

Afterward the conversation drifted into a description of the kind of life I might expect to find among the islands, suggestions in regard to the handling of catamarans at sea, and other details of my proposed movements; but I couldn't keep the Senorita de Garma out of my mind. It seemed likely that I should see a good deal of her before I left Agana, and the meanness of her Manila cousins made me speculate somewhat as to the effect of such surroundings upon a girl of refined tastes. Finally an idea occurred to me. But, fearing his objections upon various grounds, I didn't mention it to the captain at the time. It seemed somewhat risky, yet after another look at the photograph—which I absently put in my pocket—I determined to carry it out if possible

"Out of Sight Out of Mind."

In other months we forget the harsh winds of Spring. But they have their use, as some say, to blow out the bad air accumulated after Winter storms and Spring thaws. There is far more important accumulation of badness in the veins and arteries of humanity, which needs Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This great Spring Medicine clarifies the blood as nothing else can. It cures scrofula, kidney disease, liver troubles, rheumatism and kindred ailments. Thus it gives perfect health, strength and appetite for months to come.

Kidneys—"My kidneys troubled me, and on advice took Hood's Sarsaparilla which gave prompt relief, better appetite. My sleep is refreshing. It cured my wife also." MICHAEL BOYLE, 3473 Denny Street, Pittsburg, Pa.

Dyspepsia—"Complicated with liver and kidney trouble, I suffered for years with dyspepsia, with severe pains. Hood's Sarsaparilla made me strong and hearty." J. B. EMERTON, Main Street, Auburn, Me.

Hip Disease—"Five running sores on my hip caused me to use crutches. Was confined to bed every winter. Hood's Sarsaparilla saved my life, as it cured me perfectly. Am strong and well." ANNE ROBERT, 49 Fourth St., Fall River, Mass.

Hood's Pills cure liver illa, the non-irritating and the only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

MRS. M. C. COOPER

Mrs. M. C. Cooper, of the Royal Academy of Arts, London, England, is undoubtedly one of the greatest living sculptors. She has modeled busts of half the nobility of England, and is now in Washington making busts of distinguished Americans. Mrs. Cooper has just completed a bust of Mrs. Belya Lockwood, which is now in the Corcoran Art Gallery. Ruskin, the great artist, placed Mrs. Cooper as one of the greatest sculptors and painters of this century. Mrs. Cooper is an ardent friend of Pe-ru-na and in a letter dated January 26, written from Washington, says the following: "I take pleasure in recommending Pe-ru-na for catarrh and la grippe. I have suffered for months and after the use of one bottle of Pe-ru-na I am entirely well."—Mrs. M. C. Cooper.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1899.

Governor Pingree signed the Atkinson railroad taxation bill yesterday and it is now a law of the state.

Judge E. D. Kinne deservedly received the unanimous nomination of the Republicans of the 22d judicial district at the convention held in Dundee yesterday, for his third term as circuit judge. He will be elected, too.

Gen. Arthur F. Marsh, chairman of the Republican state central committee, is authority for the statement that Governor Pingree will not be a candidate for re-election in 1900. He may, however, loom up as a presidential possibility in 1900 and 1904.

Since our war with Spain the American navy has attracted world wide attention, its record being one that is envied by the great European powers, all of whom are sending naval attaches to Washington. All of which goes to show that America is away to the front in its appliances for naval warfare as she is in her mechanical appliances for use in the more peaceful pursuits of life.

The nomination of Martin J. Cavanaugh, of Ann Arbor, as the democratic candidate for circuit judge, on the first ballot, came as a great surprise to politicians generally, and as a thunder clap out of a clear sky to Judge Babbitt. That gentleman was so thoroughly convinced he had a cinch on the nomination that he would not even name a proxy for a delegate who was for him and could not go to the convention.

In spite of the protestations and talk of peace that is going on among the nations of Europe, England finds that in order to secure to herself "the embodiment of a peace-loving, determined nation," as Mr. Goschen, the first lord of the admiralty, put it, she must add four fast cruisers to her large navy and thus add a tax of $10,000,000 to her already heavily burdened taxpayers. America can take a lesson from this and keep out of the whirl of European politics, which is an expensive and profitless amusement.

When a man has been tried in the office of county school commissioner and has proved himself thoroughly efficient and has given a good administration to the affairs of that office it is unwise to turn him down and elect a new man. The present commissioner of schools, Mr. William N. Lister, has devoted the whole of his time to the important duties of the office, has been careful, conscientious and practical in the discharge of his duties, and by his courteous and affable bearing has made friends of even those who are politically opposed to him. As the nominee of the Republican party for county school commissioner Mr. Lister will receive a hearty endorsement from the friends of the party in this end of the county.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Heinzmann & Laubengayer, of Ann Arbor, will put up a chicory factory in that city, if the farmers in the vicinity will support them by raising the roots.

Thus the members are kept supplied with an array of the world's best books for a very small sum. Mr. Turner must get 30 members before Chelsea will be put on the circuit. The university of the traveling libraries issues diplomas to members who complete a prescribed course of reading.

The Columbian Dramatic Club will present the thrilling drama "The Colleen Bawn" at the opera house, Chelsea, on Friday evening, March 17. Catching Sparrows in Sharon.

County Treasurer Mann paid to Lewis Dresselhouse, treasurer of Sharon, last week on the order of County Clerk Schub, the largest sparrow order ever paid in this county, amounting to $133.84, representing the useless bounty of 2 cents a head which the absurd sparrow bounty law compels the taxpayers of this county to pay for the destruction of 6,692 sparrows. Mr. Dresselhouse explained the methods employed to catch so large a number of sparrows in his neighborhood. Many of the sparrows roost at night in straw stacks and the boys had rigged up large nets which they let down over the straw stacks and sometimes 100 were caught at a time in this way. Such a haul would net $2. County Treasurer Mann said that his man had caught 75 or 80 in a barn into which they had taken refuge in bad weather by fastening a string to the door and pulling it shut when they were inside. He then waited until after dark when with a lantern he found them sleeping and was enabled to pick them up.

A number of bicycle riders in Grass Lake have sent in a petition to the village council to be allowed to ride their bikes on the sidewalks "when the roads are bad." The News objects to the petition in the following terms: "The petition should by no means be granted. The roads will always be 'bad,' and the bike crowd will always be on the walks. To grant such a request will reverse the present order of things—the people on wheels will usurp the walks and those on foot will find their only safety in taking to the road. No greater mistake can be made than to suspend the ordinance governing this matter. If bikemen find the roadways poor for wheeling, let them do as others do, go on foot." Right, you are, Mr. News.

The following conversation took place near Chelsea:

Time: 2 a. m. "Ma, I want a drink!"

"Hush, darling; turn over and go to sleep!"

"I want a drink!"

"No, you are restless; turn over, dear, and go to sleep."

[After five minutes.] "Ma, I want a drink!"

"Lie still, Ethel, and go to sleep."

"But I want a drink!"

"No, you don't want a drink; you had a drink just before you went to bed. Now be still, and go right to sleep."

"I do, too, want a drink!"

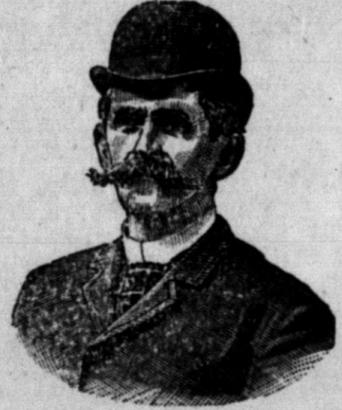

"Don't let me speak to you again, child, go to sleep."

[After five minutes.] "Ma, won't you please give me a drink?"

If you say another word, I'll get up and spank you. Now, go to sleep. You are a naughty girl."

[After two minutes.] "Ma, when you get up to spank me, will you give me a drink?"

The Michigan crop report for the month of February shows that in answer to the question "Has wheat during February suffered injury from any cause?" 632 correspondents throughout the state answered "yes," and 86 answered "no." The general opinion seems to be that fruit is injured more or less. From this vicinity Henry Gorton, of Waterloo, reports: The freeze has killed the peach buds and nearly 25 per cent of the trees; about 50 per cent of the small fruit is killed and it is estimated that 50 per cent of the potatoes are frozen; it is thought that all are frozen in pits and some in cellars; apple, pear and plum buds killed, but grapes are uninjured.

THE SOURCE OF POWER.

Description of the Immense Plant in Operation at the University of Michigan.

HEATS AND LIGHTS THE ENTIRE CAMPUS.

The Heating Is Done by Steam and the Lighting by Electricity—Nearly a Dozen Motors in Use—Thousands of Incandescent Lights Turn Darkness into Daylight.

[Special Correspondence.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 10.—Sited at the eastern side of the campus of the University of Michigan is the power plant. The building is a low, flat-looking structure of free-stone with a slate roof. At one side of it, towering 152 feet into the air, is the large smoke stack. The inside diameter of this is eight feet and its outside diameter much greater. Inside of the power house are the boiler-room, the engine-room and the pump-room. The boiler and pump-rooms are sunk well into the earth, so that even the top of the large boiler is several feet below the surface of the ground. This is the reason the building looks so low and small from the exterior.

Power Generated.

Here is generated the power for heating and lighting the entire campus with its 17 buildings; also the power to operate the machinery in the several buildings. The heating is accomplished by steam, and the lighting by electricity. Power is transferred to points where wanted in the form of electricity and then transformed into practical form by means of a motor.

Coal Consumed.

The boilers are 14 in number, four high pressure and ten low. They are placed in three rows, one down either side and the third across one end. At the opposite end of the room double doors open into a large underground coal reservoir, which is filled through manholes, over which the coal wagons dump their loads. Ordinarily the daily consumption of coal during the winter season is between fifteen and sixteen tons a day. During the recent cold snap, however, as high as 42 tons per day were used.

At the present time the 15, 16 or 42 tons, as the case may be, are shoveled into the furnaces by man power. It is hoped, though, that the day is not far distant when mechanical stokers will be used. Now the furnace-room crew consists of six men, who are divided into two watches of three men each. Each watch spends 12 hours out of each 24 in the furnace room.

Engine and Dynamo Room.

The engine and dynamo-room is level with the ground. It contains two 120-horse power engines, two 75-kilowatt dynamos, a "booster" run by a motor and a large switch board. The engines and dynamos are very compact. They are arranged so that each engine can run the dynamo next to it, as either engine can operate both dynamos, or the two engines together can run the two dynamos. The connections are made direct and without the use of any belting. The machinery rests on a solid foundation. The floor is cement, with a room beneath for the wires, which are removed from sight. The switchboard is a large white marble slab, on which the bright copper switches are fastened. In one corner of the room is the "booster" and the motor that operates it. The mission of this machine is to raise the voltage (or pressure) of the current sent to the hospitals and observatory, nearly two-thirds of a mile distant.

Pump Room.

The pump room is just off from the furnace room, behind the end row of boilers. Here are the pumps that force the water heated by the exhaust steam across the campus to the gymnasium, where it is used for bathing purposes. Here are also the pumps that bring the water back from the steam radiators in the many buildings to force it into the boilers, to be again turned into steam.

The Tunnel.

Another important feature of the power plant is the "tunnel." This starts from the boiler room, goes around the campus and comes back to the boiler room. It contains the steam pipes, the return water pipe and the electric wires. It is about seven feet high, with an arched ceiling, and from four to five feet wide. The floor is of cement. Unlike most tunnels, it is not a cold, dark, damp place, but is almost the opposite. The pipes containing live steam keep it warm and dry, and the row of incandescent lamps along the ceiling furnish an abundance of light. This tunnel comes out under the medical, law and literary buildings; elsewhere it is some half-dozen feet below the surface of the ground. There are two sub-tunnels branching off from this main tunnel. One rises to the engineering building and carries the pipes through which the high-pressure steam for the large engine in the building is sent. The other connects the medical and chemical buildings.

The Motors.

The motors for developing power at particular places on the campus number nearly a dozen. The largest of these, which is a 50 horse power machine, is in the physical laboratory and is used for running a large number of experimental dynamos. In the chemical and law buildings are several motors for operating ventilating fans. Two more are in the basement of University hall for running the bellows of the World's Columbian organ. Others are in the carpenter shop and laboratories.

Thousands of Lights.

Besides 40 arc lights, nearly 5,000 incandescent lamps are used to light the university buildings. By far the greatest number of these are on the campus. The arc lights are used for both outdoor and indoor lighting, and the incandescent for the indoor entirely. In wiring the university buildings 4½ tons of copper cables were used, and over 25 miles of rubber-covered wire for inside work. The current is supplied to the several buildings through a main, with four feeders. These are connected with the main at the points where the heaviest loads come. One is at the gymnasium building, another at law building, a third at university hall, and the fourth at the library building. Although the dynamos run the greater part of the 24 hours, the time when the greatest demand for light and power occurs is from four to six o'clock in the afternoon. Then nearly all the laboratories are open, the library lights are on, and lights in not a few of the recitation rooms. A second dynamo system has been established at the hospital, and in the summer, when the demand for lights is not great, the regular dynamos are stopped and the hospital machine creates the light for the entire system, the electricity being sent back to the campus on the very wires that at other times transmit electricity from the campus to the hospitals.

COLD KILLS GAME.

Quail and Duck by the Thousands Fall Victims, and Bears Slaughter the Deer.

Michigan has not only suffered a great loss from the killing of fruit and fruit trees by the severe cold weather, but sustains another loss that has not been noted. Never in the history of the state has the loss of game been so great. Reports come from all sections of the devastation caused by the cold weather. The tenderest of all birds are quails. There has been a law protecting them, and, greatly to the satisfaction of the sportsmen, they have been increasing rapidly, but the cold weather has exterminated them. When the storm came on the quail flew to swamps and huddled together in groups, and were found frozen a dozen in a mass. The ducks have suffered next to the quail. All bodies of water on which they have lived and from which they obtained food supplies have been frozen over so long that they have died by the thousands, and their bodies have been found on the shores of all the lakes. The loss of game to the state will be heavy.

In the north part of the state the wolves are slaughtering the deer. The snow is deep and crusted over so that the wolves can run on top of it, while the weight of the deer causes them to break through the snow, and they are run down and killed by the wolves.

WANTED TO DIE.

A Port Huron Woman, After a Family Quarrel, Tries to Kill Herself with Poison.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin, of Port Huron, had a family jangle with the result that the woman procured a supply of laudanum at a drug store, swallowed it and started on her return home. The drug operated on her quickly and she dropped on the street near Dr. Campbell's residence. Passers-by picked her up and took her into the doctor's office, where, after two hours' work, she was pronounced out of danger. The woman showed great determination to die, and fought the doctors in their efforts to counteract the poison.

A New Railroad.

Articles of incorporation of the Columbus, Marshall & North Eastern Railway company have been filed with the secretary of state. The company is organized with a capital stock of $1,200,000 for the purpose of constructing and operating a steam railway from the city of Marshall to Bay City, a distance of 140 miles. The line of the proposed road is through the counties of Calhoun, Eaton, Ionia, Clinton, Montcalm, Gratiot, Midland and Bay. Portland is one of the towns on the line of the road.

Apply for Pensions.

Henry W. Lamphear and Jacob Dukescherer, of Benton Harbor, members of company I, Thirty-third regiment, Michigan volunteers, have applied through Pension Agent Miller for a pension, claiming that they suffer from diseases contracted in Cuba during the late war. Their cases will be prosecuted under the same law that governs the pensioners of the civil war.

Don't Want to Come Home.

Washington, March 14.—It is expected that Gen. Otis will be authorized to organize three or four regiments of the provisional army out of the volunteers from the various states now at Manila when the time comes for mustering out these volunteers. At present the volunteers, it is stated at the war department, do not want to come home, having the American determination not to "retreat while under fire."

PERFECT womanhood depends on perfect health. Nature's rarest gifts of physical beauty vanish before pain.

Sweet dispositions turn morbid and fretful. The possessions that win good husbands and keep their love should be guarded by women every moment of their lives. The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their beauty, barely in time to save their lives. Many other thousands have availed of the generous invitation of Mrs. Pinkham to counsel all suffering women free of charge.

MRS. H. J. GARRETSON, Bound Brook, N. J., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with the best results and can say from my heart that your medicines are wonderful. My physician called my trouble chronic inflammation of the left ovary. For years I suffered very much, but thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kind advice, I am today a well woman. I would say to all suffering women, take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and your sufferings will vanish."

MRS. MAGGIE PHILLIPPE, of Ladoga, Ind., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For four years I suffered from ulceration of the womb. I became so weak I could not walk across the room without help. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wrote for special information. I began to improve from the first bottle, and am now fully restored to health."

LOST FAITH IN HIS TAILOR.

A Gentleman of the Old School Whose Clothes Were a Trifle Too Loud.

Col. Tarker is a staid old West side citizen who has made a fortune in land. He is an aristocrat of the old southern school, courtly and impressive. His collars are made in the fashion of 50 years ago, and his neckties the same. Withal the colonel is what New Englanders call "a bit near." He has his clothes made by a cheap tailor. They are always a modest, respectable black of remarkable pattern and fit. But they suit the colonel. One day last week he walked over to visit his daughter living on Prairie avenue.

"What makes you look at me so seriously?" he asked, presently, guiltily self-conscious.

"Why, father, what have you been doing to yourself?"

"Nothing, daughter, nothing. I—I have on a new suit of clothes."

Sure enough, the colonel had on a new suit of clothes. The effect was gorgeous and startling. The trousers were a loud check, very tight and a trifle short. The coat was a short blue frock, mottled with dark red. He wore a cheap red tie. The ludicrousness of the situation finally overcame the daughter's gravity, and she laughed until she cried.

"In heaven's name, father, where did you get those clothes?" she asked, at last.

"Wartz made them. He—he said checks were stylish, and the cloth came cheap, and I—I said I wasn't particular, you know; never am."

The mild and dignified old gentleman had transformed himself into a comic valentine without knowing it. His faith in Wartz is now somewhat shaken, and he has donned an old suit.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

He doubles his trials who complains of them.—Watchman.

HIS MORNING TRAIN.

Mr. Suburbanite Was in a Hurry and Got His Commission Mixed.

He had reached the door in his usual morning sprint for the train, when his wife called for him:

"Oh, Tom!"

"Yes," he answered, with his hand on the knob.

"I had the garden dug over yesterday," she cried, "and I want you to bring some plants from town."

"All right," he snapped; "what do you want? Hurry up; I must catch my train."

"Well," came the reflective voice from the dining-room, "you might bring me—"

"Oh, hurry!" he retorted, with a show of impatience.

"Well, I think—"

"Quick," he shouted, with the door open; "I hear the whistle. What is it?"

"Roses," was the answer that reached his ears, and he was off like a madman.

At noon he feared he might have been a little harsh in the morning, so he went out and bought two dozen varieties of roses, bushes, and carried the thorny, scratchy things home in the evening, to the peril of anyone who approached him.

Then he laid the offering at his wife's feet, and was surprised to see her burst into tears.

"What is the matter?" he asked, wondering.

"Are not these all right?"

"No, no," she sobbed; "I don't want roses."

"But, my dear," he protested, "you certainly said roses this morning."

"I—I—know it," was the weeping answer. "You made me—you were in such a hurry, and 'roses' was the shortest word I could think of at the moment. I wanted chrysanthemums and rhododendrons, but you would not give me time to say them!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

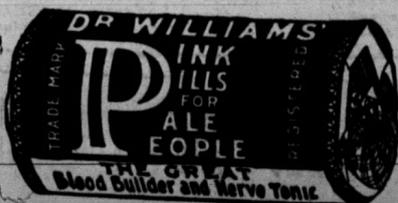

Modern Science Recognizes RHEUMATISM as a Disease of the Blood

There is a popular idea that this disease is caused by exposure to cold, and that some localities are infected with it more than others. Such conditions frequently promote the development of the disease, but from the fact that this ailment runs in certain families, it is shown to be hereditary, and consequently a disease of the blood.

Among the oldest and best known residents of Bluffs, Ill., is Adam Vangundy. He has always been prominently identified with the interests of that place. He was the first President of the Board of Trustees, and for a long time has been a Justice of the Peace. He says: "I had been a sufferer of rheumatism for a number of years and the pain at times was very intense. I tried all the proprietary medicines I could think or hear of, but received no relief."

"I finally placed my case with several physicians and doctored with them for some time, but they failed to do me any good. Finally, with my hopes of relief nearly exhausted I read an article regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which induced me to try them. I was anxious to get rid of the terrible disease and bought two boxes of the pills. I began using them about March, 1897. After I had taken two boxes I was completely cured, and the pain has never returned. I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken, and am willing at any time to testify to its good merits."—Bluffs (Ill.) Times.

A LEADER IS CHOSEN.

Thomas E. Barkworth Is Honored by Michigan Democracy.

Named as Its Candidate for Supreme Court Justice—Rest of the Ticket—Platform Adopted by the State Convention.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 9.—Thomas E. Barkworth, a leading attorney of Jackson, was nominated Wednesday afternoon by the democratic state convention for justice of the supreme court. He received 452 of the 772 delegates' votes cast on the first ballot, and it was made unanimous. The contest was wholly between Mr. Barkworth and ex-Justice Allan B. Morse, the four other candidates having withdrawn before the first ballot was completed. Prior to the convention it was asserted, and denied, that Judge Morse's sympathies in the last presidential campaign were with the gold standard democracy, and this is believed to have affected the result.

Other Nominees.
All the elements of silver fusion were well represented among the delegates, and the nominations for regents of the state university were given to Edward F. Legendre (dem.), of Calumet, and Stanley E. Parkhill (pop.), of Owosso. Hon. Justin R. Whiting, of St. Clair, late fusion candidate for governor, was the temporary chairman. His address was a strongly put argument for free silver, an arraignment of republican policies and condemnation of the encroachments of trusts and combines. Ex-Judge John Miner, of Detroit, was made permanent chairman.

The report of the resolutions committee was greatly delayed by discussion of a resolution offered by Fred A. Baker, of Detroit, indorsing the Hill amendment to the Chicago platform to the effect that the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one should not apply to existing contracts. This amendment was presented to the convention as a minority report and was tabled.

The Resolutions.

A synopsis of the resolutions adopted follows:

They reaffirm the Chicago platform, protest against retirement of treasury notes, denounce trusts, demand an amendment to the constitution making an income tax possible, favor equal taxation of all property in the state; declare for disposition of the people; protest against a large standing army and navy, and congratulate the party on having the leadership of Col. Bryan. We denounce the conspiracy now existing to retire all United States treasury notes and certificates and to confer on the national banks a monopoly of issuing all the paper money of the country, and we request the democrats and other supporters of the Chicago platform in congress to do everything in their power to prevent this being done at the next or any future session. The national banks and all other banking institutions should be confined to the business of banking, and should not exercise any portion of the sovereign power of the government of furnishing the people with an ample supply of both primary and representative money.

We commend the signal loyalty and valor of our soldiers and sailors in the performance of every military duty to which they have been assigned, and we pledge to them our hearty support and sympathy under all circumstances wherever engaged. The plank upon trusts says: "We believe the greatest menace at the present time to American civilization and to the industries and political liberty of the people consists in the growing tendency to place the business of the country in the hands of combinations and trusts; and we denounce the gold trust, money trust, sugar trust, oil trust, match trust, tobacco trust and every other trust, having for its object the control of production and prices; and we submit our candid opinion and deliberate judgment that a graduated federal and state income tax would furnish effective means of suppressing trusts. We request immediate passage of an income tax measure by the state legislature."

The plank upon expansion says: "We are in favor of making such disposition of territory brought into the possession or under the control of the United States in the war with Spain as shall best promote the interests and secure the welfare of the American people, and that to advance the cause of civil and religious freedom, a government should be established in the islands having for its fundamental principles self-government for the people."

The Census.

Washington, March 10.—The preliminary organization for the census of 1900 took definite shape Thursday night at a conference between Director of the Census Merriam and Assistant Director Frederick H. Wines, who arrived here Thursday. Several important offices in the census administration were filled. Col. Albert F. Childs, of the District of Columbia, will be chief clerk; Edward McCauley, of the District of Columbia, disbursing officer, and William A. King, of Colorado, is to be one of the chief statisticians. Both Col. Childs and Mr. King held similar offices under the census of 1890.

France May Raise the Duty.

Washington, March 10.—There is a sharp fight on between opposing interests in France, according to Consul Skinner, at Marseilles, over the continued importation of American cottonseed oil at the existing rate of duty. There is not only a large French trade in the refined oil classed as an edible product, but recently there have been large importations of soap stock which is one of the by-products of the refining process to which the oil is subjected. The total arrival of oil at the port of Marseilles during 1898 was 116,761,333 pounds, or nearly 10,000,000 pounds more than the previous year.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Private Butter.

I am reminded of an incident on one of the Atlantic steamers which took place not so long ago, and in which a married member of a family to whom it is not necessary to allude was a party. The husband and wife appeared at all meals, flanked on either side by a large dish of butter.

As it was an English ship and butter was not served at any of the meals, some Americans who were neighbors were delighted to see that the hor d'oeuvre had at last a place on the table. They helped themselves bountifully at luncheon.

At dinner they were surprised to see little sticks stuck in the middle of the mound of butter with a pastebord card attached. The card read:

"Private Butter. Keep Off the Grass."
It is needless to say that the hint was taken.—N. Y. Journal.

Have You Tried Swamp-Root?

To Prove for Yourself the Wonderful Merits of This Great Discovery Every Reader of This Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by diseases of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

Kidney trouble is in itself so insidious and deceptive that thousands have some form of it and never suspect it.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.

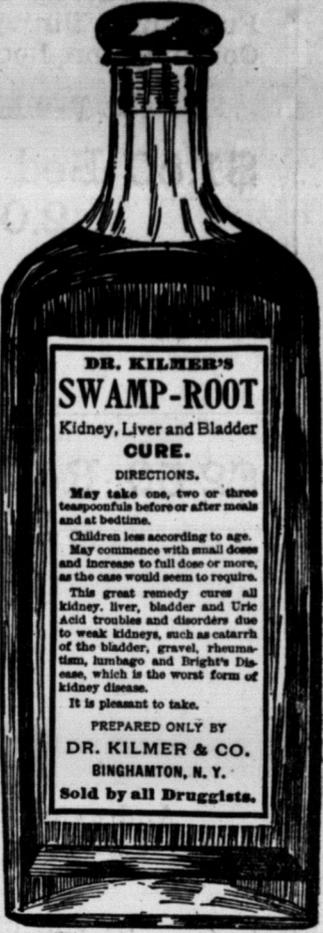

But not until recently was the discovery made. Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test on test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proven such a remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proved equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles, and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

This great modern discovery is for sale at most drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. Don't make any mistake, but make a note of the name SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember that it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

HOAG & HOLMES.

The Onion Industry in Chelsea.

Unless one stops to give it a thought they do not realize what the growing and shipping of that high smelling vegetable, the onion, means to Chelsea, and the towns of Sylvan and Lima. Lots of marsh land in this immediate vicinity is only fit for growing two things, onions and celery, and this has been turned to good account by those who have gone into the business of onion farming. Forty-three cars of onions, or over 22,000 bushels, have been bought by R. A. Snyder the past year, every car of which is sold and 40 of them have been already shipped. His trade extends from New York to the Gulf of Mexico.

The onion lands will grow from 300 to 800 bushels to the acre according to favorable or unfavorable conditions. Last year the average was about 400 bushels.

The pioneer onion grower of this section is John H. Waltrous, and the infant in the business is R. A. Snyder who is, however, the largest grower of them all.

In conversation with the editor of the Herald, Mr. Snyder said that at a rough estimate the 43 cars of onions he has purchased were grown as follows: R. A. Snyder, 6,000 bushels; J. H. Waltrous 3,100, G. W. Boynton 4,000, Daniel Hieber, Davis & Gates, Howard Everett, Roland Waltrous, George Chapman and Thomas Fletcher 1,000 bushels each, Dennis Spaulding 1,500 bushels, — Gutekunst 500 bushels. The balance were bought from small growers.

Two-thirds of the crop were the yellow onions, the other one-third red. The price paid ranged from 28 cents to 40 cents per bushel. Averaging the price at 34 cents per bushel, it means that the price paid for onions marketed at this point was $3,360, a snug sum.

Last year Mr. Snyder put in 12 acres of onions, but so great is his faith in the "strength" of the onion market that he will increase the amount of his acreage to 32 this season.

Another large grower of onions is M. Schanz, of Lima, who raised about 1,500 bushels last year.

"The Temple of Fame."

The presentation of "The Temple of Fame" at the opera house, Thursday and Friday evenings, under the auspices of the M. E. church society, was greeted by full houses on each occasion. The stage had been very prettily decorated and the bower in which the Goddess of Fame with her maids of honor, courtiers, pages, etc., were seated was a very unique creation. Excellent music for the proper carrying out of the program was furnished by Mrs. Nora McKain on the piano and A. M. Freer, violinist. The several characters were well portrayed and were all did so well it is useless to particularize.

A full list of those who took part in the production was given in last week's Herald with the exception that the name of Miss Satie Speer, who took the part of Tabitha Primrose in a most excellent manner, was unintentionally omitted. At the coronation of the successful claimant for the crown, the award was most justly made to "The Mother" as the most worthy of receiving the palm. This part was enacted by Mrs. Frank P. Glazier accompanied by her two little daughters.

Those who had the management of the affair in hand were so gratified with its success that it was repeated Saturday evening at reduced prices, when it was again greeted with a good house.

Homesteaded 100 Acres in Lima.

Nathan Pierce, of Lima, has just taken up a homestead under the United States law. The land homesteaded is described as the east half of the northwest quarter and the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section four township two north of range four east. It contains 100 acres of land and is the bottom of Four Mile lake and has probably contained too much water to have been very much in demand until now that there is a prospect of marl beds being found in that locality. The homesteading of a piece of land is of rare occurrence nowadays, but there was a time in the history of the county when it was of daily occurrence.

Cavanaugh Declines to Run.

The Democratic judicial convention for the 22d district has been full of surprises to almost everybody. It was a surprise when M. J. Cavanaugh was nominated for the position, and it was a still greater surprise when on Monday he sent the following letter to the Democratic judicial committee of the 22d district absolutely declining the nomination:

"To the Democratic Judicial Committee of the 22d Judicial District:
"Gentlemen,—Having so unexpectedly received the nomination for circuit judge at Monroe on last Friday without any solicitation on my part and against my wishes and best judgment, and after returning to my home and having an opportunity to consider the matter, I find that my business demands are such that it will be impossible for me to accept the nomination. The high honor which my friends have seen fit confer upon me is duly appreciated and I sincerely regret that circumstances are such as to require my withdrawal.

"I am, very sincerely,
"M. J. Cavanaugh."

Thanks His Supporters.

To the Voters of Chelsea:
I desire to thank you for the very generous endorsement given me at the charter election of Monday last. To be pitted against so popular a man as my late opponent, one so well versed in political methods, and without a cent of money or a moment of time being put into my canvass either by myself or my friends, and at the counting find myself far ahead of my ticket is all the satisfaction I could desire. For those who voted against me I have as a rule only the friendliest feelings, many of you I count amongst my best friends, and I promise you that no difference of opinion upon questions of public policy will, so far as I am concerned, ever interrupt that cordial feeling.

A Good Entertainment.

The elocutionary entertainment given by Prof. Byron C. King at the Congregational church, Monday evening, under the auspices of the Young People's Society, was well attended in spite of its being election night. Mr. King kept his audience well entertained for two hours with recitations pathetic, dramatic and humorous, interspersed with running comments and stories. At the close of the entertainment he gave some excellent ventriloquial specialties introducing the buzzing of bumble bees when in the hauds of boyish tormentors, the jingle of sleigh bells on a si ghe horse and double team, and on a horse driven by a young fellow with his "other" arm encircling his lady love's waist. The net receipts for the society was $16.
