CITIZENS MUST DECIDE.

Whether the Stove-Works Shall Remain in Chelsea or Not.

A $25,000 BONUS IS ASKED

Also Free Light and Power for at Least Ten Years.

IF CHELSEA DOESN'T WANT THE PLANT TO REMAIN IT WILL BE REMOVED TO CLEVELAND AT AN EARLY DATE.—A PUBLIC MEETING SHOULD BE HELD.

It has been current talk on the streets of Chelsea since last Saturday that the time had arrived when it would soon be known whether the Glazier stove works will remain in our midst or will be moved away to another place. In conversation with Mr. Frank P. Glazier yesterday afternoon the following facts regarding the matter were elicited:

The Glazier Stove Co. has become a part of the great oil stove trust, and the officers of the trust are desirous of removing the plant to Cleveland and amalgamating it with the United Gasoline and Blue Flame Oil Stove Co. But in consideration of certain concessions on the part of the citizens of Chelsea the stove works will remain here. What is asked for is a bonus of $25,000, free light and power for a period of not less than 10 years, and the closing up of Railroad street in front of the stove works property.

If these conditions are agreed to by the taxpayers of Chelsea the company on its part will spend this year in buildings and new equipment for the factory the sum of $50,000, and the erection of the buildings will be commenced as soon as the conditions are granted. The plans for the new buildings are the erection of a big three story shop extending from the foundry to the corner of Main street. The building on the corner of North and Main streets, north of the offices, would also be raised one story. The new machinery to be put into these buildings would be of the most improved type for rapid and economical work. The force of men employed would be tripled at least within two years.

Unless these conditions are met the stove works are lost to Chelsea and will be moved to Cleveland, Ohio, in June or July at the farthest. The taxpayers are the arbiters in this matter and it remains for them to decide it.

Should the stove works remain here under these enlarged conditions it will not be without its benefits to Chelsea in other ways than the largely increased force of men and consequently increased volume of business it would bring to the village. Better train service has been often demanded for the village, and we should then get it. The Michigan Central will stop another train west and another east daily. These would be No. 23 which goes west through here at about 2:25 p. m., and No. 14 which goes east through here at about 7:30 p. m. The railroad company will also agree to fix up its building and grounds, beautify its lawn, and otherwise improve its property.

It seems to the Herald that with such an important matter as this confronting us and one which vitally affects the material interests of Chelsea, a public meeting of the taxpayers should be called, at which the pros and cons of the matter can be discussed in a fair and dispassionate manner.

HEALTH and beauty are the glories of perfect womanhood.

Women who suffer constantly with weakness peculiar to their sex cannot retain their beauty. Preservation of pretty features and rounded form is a duty women owe to themselves. The mark of excessive monthly suffering is a familiar one in the faces of young American women.

Don't wait, young women, until your good looks are gone past recall. Consult Mrs. Pinkham at the out-start. Write to her at Lynn, Mass.

MISS EDNA ELLIS, Higginsport, Ohio, writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am a school teacher and had suffered untold agony during my menstrual periods for ten years. My nervous system was almost a wreck. I suffered with pain in my side and had almost every ill human flesh is heir to. I had taken treatment from a number of physicians who gave me no relief. In fact one eminent specialist said no medicine could help me, I must submit to an operation. At my mother's request, I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham stating my case in every particular and received a prompt reply: I followed the advice given me and now I suffer no more during menses. If anyone cares to know more about my case, I will cheerfully answer all letters."

MISS KATE COOK, 16 Addison St., Mt. Jackson, Ind., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am by occupation a school teacher, and for a long while suffered with painful menstruation and nervousness. I have received more benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound than from all remedies that I have ever tried."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

What "Alabastine" Is.

Alabastine is a durable and natural coating for walls and ceilings. It is entirely different from all "kalsomine" preparations. Alabastine comes in white or twelve beautiful tints, and is ready for use by adding cold water. It is put up in dry powder form in five-pound packages, with full directions on every package. Alabastine is handsome, clean and permanent. It can be re-coated and retinted at slight expense. Paint dealers and druggists sell Alabastine and furnish card of tints.

Any Girl Can Tell

A physician who makes the test and is honest about it can tell you that, in many cases, the number of red corpuscles in the blood is doubled after a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

That this means good blood may not be entirely clear from the doctor's statement, but any girl who has tried the pills can tell you that it means red lips, bright eyes, good appetite, absence of headache, and that it transforms the pale and sallow girl into a maiden who glows with the beauty which perfect health alone can give.

Mothers whose daughters grow debilitated as they pass from girlhood into womanhood should not neglect the pill best adapted for this particular ill.

Frank B. Trout, of 103 Griswold Ave., Detroit, Mich., says: "At the age of fourteen we had to take our daughter from school on account of ill health. She weighed only 90 pounds, was pale and sallow and the doctors said she had anemia. Finally we gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. When she had taken two boxes she was strong enough to leave her bed, and in less than six months was something like herself. To-day she is entirely cured, and is a big, strong, healthy girl, weighing 130 pounds, and has never had a sick day since."—Detroit Evening News.

The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold only in packages, the wrapper always bearing the full name. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. 50¢ per box.

THE GLORIFIED WAY.

What boots it how we walk the weary way— Or clad in homespun or in garments gay? For lo, there shines about us, haloed light. That wraps us in a glory, soft and bright. And tints to beauty garbs of dun and gray!

CHAPTER VII.

Next morning the result of Padre Sebastiano's discussion with the two mates was apparent, for Diaz came to the captain and broached the subject of heading for Santa Rosa. Halstead demurred a little at first—said the change of course would make him late, as it was, etc.—but finally admitted that it would take only a few hours more, and said that he had no objections. This was Thursday. I spent the afternoon and most of Friday with the seniorita Gracia, liking her better the more I saw of her. I was pretty sure that Halstead had a little the advantage of me in her regard, but she never showed it while we were together. In fact, as the time drew near when I was to leave the steamer, she seemed disposed, by unmistakable evidences of liking for me, to produce an impression that neither years nor absence would efface; and she certainly succeeded. When I said good night at the door of her stateroom, Friday evening, I wondered a little what the result would be should I throw up the enterprise and remain on board. But the captain was poring over the chart again when I reached our quarters, and one glance at his face was sufficient to banish all indecision. On my part, the affair had been, so far, merely speculative; there had been no opportunity for action. Halstead, on the other hand, was now fully committed. He and McPherson had taken a definite step which there was no retreating—which might cost them their positions whether we were successful or not—and, while he had certainly gone into the affair with the hope of bettering his condition, I knew that but for my persistence he wouldn't have attempted it. He looked up as I came in, and motioned me to close the door. Six bells had just struck, and all the passengers were below, so we were not likely to be disturbed. He asked me where I had seen the padre last.

"In the saloon, drinking rum and water. Why?" "You haven't noticed him around the after deck this evening, have you?" "No, not once." "I've had a patent log towing astern since eight bells, and I'm in hopes that no one has seen it. Here's where we were at noon" (pointing to a penciled cross on the chart), "and we've been running twelve knots ever since. Now, Findlay fixes the Santa Rosa at about twelve-thirty north, by a hundred and forty-four, fifteen east. And it is laid down here a mile or two each side of that. The wind has been so light that we won't have to figure much on leeway, and we've held her right on the point of east, quarter north, all day; so that she ought to make the shoal some time in the morning watch, say, six bells, or before. Diaz figured, this afternoon, that his watch would be on deck before we struck the position, and told the padre it would be around breakfast time. If no one sees that log, he isn't likely to change his mind. Now, if by any lucky chance we do find bottom there, I'll want your assistance; and you'll have to keep your wits about you. Watch my actions closely. When I order the quartermaster to steer for Guajan, go below as quickly as you can and make your way aft, on the lower deck, to cable lockers at the stern. Take the new log, in this box here, and pay it out through the bitt port, say about 30 fathom, being mighty careful you don't foul the screw with it. You'll find a cross-brace of angle iron, down there, that Mac fixed athwart the port to fasten the register on. It's a taffrail log—not like the one I've got astern now; you've got to haul that one in to read it. Tain't likely that anyone'll notice the line, but you'll have to haul it in when we get abreast of Cocos reef, so the men won't notice it when they go below to clear away the cable at Apra." Before turning in, he took the log from its box and showed me exactly how it worked, making me repeat the instructions until he felt sure I wouldn't botch the experiment. In fact, my mind was so full of it all that I slept badly, and dressed before sunrise. Halstead was as anxious as myself, but he had his nerves under perfect control and reserved his energies until they were needed. Diaz, though confident we would not reach the reef before breakfast, had turned out at five bells and was searching the horizon with his glass, on the bridge. Moreno taking an occasional squint also. At about half-past six the captain sang out to him: "Guess you'd better let one of the quartermasters get the lead ready, Moreno."

"Si, senior. Do you think we are near the position?" "Very close to it, now. Mr. McPherson says we've been making 12 knots through the night. Just figure it up, will you, Diaz, and see what you make it."

"Si, senior." Diaz disappeared in the wheelhouse, but came out again presently, exclaiming: "Por Dios, capitano, we are within three miles at this moment!"

"That's what I thought. Get your leadman out there right away, Moreno. You'd better try a 'dipsey' line at first, and see if you can strike anything at a hundred fathom. Be all ready when I give the word."

In less than five minutes the leadman was on his grating, outside the starboard rail, with a 75-pound lead and 300 fathoms of line. Halstead stood by the engine-room telephone, watch in hand, and Diaz was perched in the fore rigging, where he could watch the sounding. In about ten minutes the captain showed the lever over to the signals. "Stop"—Half speed astern—"Stop." And when the foam from the screw was abreast of us, he sang out: "Let her go."

There was a big splash, and the lead disappeared, whipping coil after coil of the line after it from the reel on the taffrail. Fifty fathoms, 100, 200, 300, and no bottom. Slowly the two men at the reel hauled in the line, and the captain signaled: "Half speed ahead." About a mile further he stopped and tried it again, but with the same result. Then he steered, successively, due south for three miles, and north, six, taking soundings at each limit. At eight bells Padre Sebastiano came on deck and became so absorbed in the proceedings that he actually forgot his breakfast.

Each time the lead was hauled up he would examine the tallow at the lower end to make sure that no sand or coral fragments were embedded in it, and as sounding after sounding proved unsuccessful at the full 300-fathom depth, he couldn't keep the disappointment from showing in his face. Finally the captain told him that further search was useless, and when the steamer was headed for Guajan he went below.

Halstead treated the matter as if it possessed but little interest for him, yet when he glanced at me I could see that he was thoroughly discouraged. The engines had just started at full speed ahead, and we were preparing to go below for breakfast, when I noticed a little bunch of cumulus cloud a few miles to the southeastward, and called his attention to them.

"Well, what about them?" he said. "They're just ordinary clouds, aren't they?" "That's all, but I was thinking of what Maury says about atmospheric condensation in the neighborhood of all these coral islands, even the lowest atoll having a tendency to collect vapor over it at times. Now, whether a few fathoms of water over a reef would absolutely prevent such condensation or not, I don't know. I should say the chances were that it would; but—well, the atmosphere does queer things sometimes. What do you think?"

Halstead watched the bunch of cloud for a second or two, noticed that there was nothing else of the kind in that direction, and then ordered the man at the wheel to head southeast. I saw that he considered the search hopeless, but he was determined to leave no chance untried. Diaz had gone down into the fore-hold with some of his men, to overhaul the last cases for Agana and Moreno was below at breakfast; so that no one but the helmsman noticed our again heading about, and he was dreaming of Visaya girls in Manila too deeply to do more than obey orders in a purely mechanical way.

It took less than half an hour to reach the position. Then Halstead himself climbed out upon the sounding perch with a hand lead and 30 fathoms of line. He had stationed me at the telephones on the bridge, hastily arranging a series of signals, and, after watching the water's surface closely for awhile, waved his hand for "half speed."

In about two minutes I saw him swing the lead forward, paying out the line rapidly as it tautened under his feet. Five times more he cast it, hauling in the entire length after each one, then signaled: "Full speed, ahead." After which, mounting the bridge, he ordered the helmsman to put her about and steer north by east, quarter east. I noticed great beads of perspiration upon his forehead, and was wondering if heaving a lead were really violent exercise, when, beckoning me to the end of the bridge as if to point out the position of Guajan, he whispered:

"Get below, quick, and pay out that patent log; I took the box down myself at four bells. Then eat your breakfast as if nothing had happened, and chat with the seniorita for awhile, but be back here by six bells at the latest; we've got a heap to talk about."

The change in feeling from despondency to well grounded hope almost made me lose my head, especially as I saw that we now had the game largely in our own hands. I watched my opportunity, and was paying out the log line astern, through the bitt port, in about ten minutes. Then I spent a good half hour over my meal, discussing with the padre, who remained to keep me company, the probability of Santa Rosa reef having sunk to the bottom, but advising him not to state this as a fact in his forthcoming book until he had persuaded the government to make a more exhaustive search with one of the cruisers. Then, after a delightful tete-a-tete with the seniorita, I returned to Halstead, whom I found removing the fastenings from a large bundle which one of the men had just brought up from the lazaret. There was also a sea chest, marked with my name, upon one of the transoms. He nodded toward this and said:

"I suppose you don't remember bringing that on board, do you?"

"Well, to tell the truth, I don't. And I think I was pretty sober, too. Where did I get it? What's inside?"

"Nothing at present. This diving suit is going in if I can make it. Now draw the curtains and strip to your shirt and drawers."

"What for?" "To try the thing on, of course. Hustle, now; we'll be in by two o'clock. I've read the directions over until I know them by heart, but I want you to be boxed up in it once while I'm by to help you. It's pretty risky business, no matter how often a man does it, and I don't want your death on my hands. You see, it will be simply out of the question to depend upon a pumper above water—you can't trust anyone—and it's going to take all the nerve you've got to go down without."

I put the suit on, piece by piece, obeying the printed instructions to the letter and fastening every clamp myself; for I knew assistance would be unobtainable when I came to actually use it. The screws at the back of the helmet collar were the most difficult to tighten, but I finally adjusted them to even Halstead's satisfaction. Fortunately, I had not screwed on the front lens of the helmet until the last, else I think I should have been suffocated before the compressed air in the reservoir began to work. The sickening nervousness I felt at being shut up in such a rig made me dread the attempt to go under water with it, but the captain assured me that, having had the thing on, it wouldn't trouble me as much next time. Then we packed it carefully away in the chest, together with several dynamite cartridges, two light but powerful steel bars, a couple of strong hatchets, and some saws and knives.

From another locker Halstead took a square mahogany box, covered with rubber and having a lens in one side. It looked something like a kodak, but proved to be a powerful reflecting light, the electricity for which was supplied by a chemical cartridge that lasted six hours and produced a brilliant illumination. He said he had used it when mate of an oil tank running to Batoum, the insurance regulations prohibiting anything in the shape of an open lantern on board. A small but reliable compass, 1,000 feet of half-inch braided linen line, a spare sextant, the taffrail log then towing astern, and a chart of the two archipelagoes, completed the equipment. The chart we spread upon the table, but the other articles were securely locked in the chest. Then we sat down to figure the exact position of the reef.

"To begin with," said the captain, "we took that first sounding as squarely upon that charted position as it would be possible for a ship to strike it. I got the sun at six bells in the forenoon watch and calculated backwards, so I'm dead sure of it. Then, under half speed, we made just about a mile further east—those two soundings I've marked with crosses, as you see. After that, three miles due south to this other cross, and six miles due north, to this one. No bottom anywhere at 300 fathom. While you were telling me about those clouds, we made about half a mile before we turned; then, as closely as I can figure it, about six miles to where I took the first cast. Well, you know how much water she's drawing, don't you?" "Fifteen feet?"

"Sixteen and a half feet; and the lead struck rock at an even three fathom first haul! I saw the line jerk as the leather strips went under, and every hair of my head felt as though it were standing on end. It scared me so that I dropped the whole coil from my arm luckily—and I had a mighty hollow feeling in the pit of my stomach. During the next 60 seconds I did more thinking than I ever did in an hour of my life. I knew you were watching me, and I was afraid others might be, too. By every law of prudence and seamanship I should have signaled you: 'Stop her! Hard astern!'—but if I did, I knew we'd have the deck full of people in a few seconds. Diaz and Moreno would have been up in two jumps, and what we knew about the reef everyone would know. Sebastiano would have sufficient data to chase you down there the first time you started. But I remembered that Dampier and the other old navigators who found the place gave an average depth of four fathoms. The galleon that struck in avoiding Dampier's ships was undoubtedly loaded down to her channel plates, and probably hit an isolated spot. So there seemed to me an even chance of steaming across the ledge in safety and without giving the snap away. On the other hand, if we struck, there would be an end of my business prospects for a good many years to come. It was a tighter spot than I ever care to be in again, but inside of two minutes I decided to risk it. At the second cast I got 'quarter less four.' Five minutes after, I struck bottom at 'half three;' then 'deep four;' and at the last heave the calico was just above the water when she touched."

"But, how the devil! I'll swear I saw you pulling up the whole length of line each time."

"Well, rather! You didn't suppose I was fool enough to give away what I was getting, did you? When a man's been chucking lead for 15 odd years it don't take more'n a fraction of a second to tell when he strikes bottom. No, I let the slack fall when the lead was under me, and we had way enough to carry it well astern. If anyone had been watching closely, of course, I couldn't have done it; but, as it was, it worked to a charm, and I don't believe another soul on board suspects there's a bit of rock within 2,000 feet of the surface. Now, I was heaving upwards of 20 minutes from first to last. At half speed that would be about two miles, wouldn't it? Well, this little star shows just where I struck it, and the other two would be a mile apart; so that we have the reef stretching from nor'-norwes' to sou'-sou'eas'. Then, from the glassy look of the water, I'm positive that it takes a curve to the sou'wes' for a good four miles further. The actual position of that three-fathom sounding is twelve thirty-three north by hundred and forty-four, twenty-two east—a good eight knots east of the Findlay and Imray approximates. And the true bearing from Point Orote, Harry, is the exact opposite of our present course; in other words, sou' by wes', quarter wes', or exactly 14 degrees wes' of sou'. The magnetic variation this year is one degree and 30 minutes east; so in shaping your course from Orote it should be 15 degrees 30 minutes to the westward of sou'. As for leeway, running down, the no'theas' trades'll be within a few points of dead astern, so you won't have to make much allowance; and, once at the reef, it'll be easy enough beating back, because you can see the island 20 miles away at least. When we get abreast of Cocos you can pull up your log, which will give you the exact number of miles on this course to a fraction; from Cocos to Orote the chart distances are near enough, because you've got land bearings."

"Then, if it should be impossible to get at old Fray Ignacio's document, we can practically do without it?"

"You can certainly find the reef in anything like fair weather, but you won't want to travel any further under water looking for the wreck than you are obliged to. I wouldn't, anyhow."

Chivalry of the "Slums." A touching story is told of an Edinburgh street waif. There was a Christmas treat given to poor children at a mission hall, and hundreds of little ones were assembled at the doors in advance of the hour of admittance, many of them barefoot. Among the number was a sweet-faced little girl, who seemed less hardened than most to the cold, for she shivered in her poor jacket and danced from one foot to the other on the cold, hard stones. A boy not much older watched this performance for a few minutes, and then, with a sudden impulse of protection, took off his cap, put it down before her, and said: "Ye maun stand on that."—Christian Endeavor World.

The judiciary committee of the state legislature has reported favorably a bill giving county surveyors a lien for compensation on lands benefited by their services.

A recent internal revenue ruling is that no legacy tax accrues in cases where the testator died prior to June 13, 1898, even though the estate has not as yet been settled.

Stephen Johnson Field, ex-justice of the supreme court of the United States, died at his home in Washington, D. C., Sunday night, of kidney complications. He was one of the most notable men who have sat on the bench of the supreme court. His term of service was from March 10, 1863, to Dec. 1, 1897. He would have been 83 years old had he lived until Nov. 4.

Kalamazoo Telegraph: It is perfect madness for the promoters of these speculative trusts to defy the public opinion. The men and women that are thrown out of employment; the business wrecks that strew the path of the cyclonic trust; the traders squeezed by these gamblers, will some day rise in their might and through state legislators of their own choosing, enact radical laws that will sweep out of existence the whole system of industrial competition and substitute therefor a system of governmental or municipal co-operation ensuring to every citizen steady employment and protection against want in old age.

The iniquitous divorce laws of North Dakota are nearing their end and the closing days of the old regime have been characterized by a rush of divorce emigres to that state so as to come within its 90 days' residence provisions. By July 1 the last suits for divorce under the old law, which Dakota ecclesiastics call a stench in the nostrils of the people, will have to be filed. Decrees are now being granted at the rate of three a day in the courts of the third judicial district. Those who were galled by the marital bond and who obtained freedom therefrom by the speedy "Dakota divorce" will miss this Mecca for the healing of their woes.

The beet sugar bounty question has occupied a good deal of the time and attention of the legislature this session. But, if the opinion of the late Judge Thomas M. Cooley is any good at all the legislators might just as well have saved their wind and labor. That able jurist handed down a decision in the case of The People vs. Salem, 20th Mich., which makes it very evident that the Michigan beet sugar law is unconstitutional. It is as follows:

In the course of this argument, allusion was made to the power of the state to pay bounties. But it is not in the power of the state, in my opinion, under the name of bounty or under any cover of subterfuge, to furnish capital to set private parties up in any kind of business, or to subsidize their business after they have entered upon it. A bounty law, of which this is the real nature is void, whatever may be the pretense on which it may be enacted.

If the Burch bill should pass the state legislature the doors of the divorce court will be opened still wider for the free egress of those who seek relief from marriage ties that have become irksome. The bill would make insanity legal grounds for divorces, but seeks to provide stringent conditions to prevent abuses. To guard against trumped up charges of insanity to secure divorces it is prescribed that the insanity must have continued for five years, during which time the person must have been confined in a state asylum, rather than in a private institution.

A certificate setting forth the fact of insanity must be produced in court. This may be all very well in some countries but should not become law here. If it does become law it puts an end to the sacredness of the promise made in marriage that the twain will cleave one to the other "in sickness and in health until death do them part." No, there are grounds enough for divorce already without adding any more to the list.

Remarkable Reasons.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this great discovery at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1, every bottle guaranteed.

Received a Hearty Welcome.

Rev. A. L. Wilkinson, who preached his farewell sermon at the Baptist church, Sunday, March 26, is now located at Sterling, Ill. From the Evening Gazette of that city we take the following from a long article, descriptive of the manner in which he and Mrs. Wilkinson were received by his new congregation: "Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Wilkinson were tendered a flattering reception at the Baptist church last evening (March 31) by a large number of the congregation of the church and many others prominent in church work in other denominations in this city. It was estimated that there were more than 250 persons present, the lecture room of the church being entirely filled." Speeches of welcome were made by representatives of different branches of the church work, the pastors of other churches in the city, and the Young Men's Christian Association. It was a warm and hearty welcome.

On account of the advance in the price of brick making will probably be resumed in Munnith this year, and the extensive brick yards and machinery there which have been idle for three years may now again be operated.

If the stove works remain in Chelsea there is one business man who will this season put up a number of medium sized houses for renting purposes. He would put up between 20 and 30 in all before he got through with his job. This would mean lots of work for our local contractors.

W. W. Wedemeyer, of Ann Arbor, will lead the discussion at the meeting of the Business Men's class at the Congregational church next Sunday. Subject "The election of U. S. senators by popular vote. What interest has the church in the settlement of this and other political questions?"

The different companies of the 31st Michigan are being reassembled at Cien fuegos, Cuba, preparatory to their start for home, which it is confidently expected will be made on Saturday. Some of the boys will be mustered out in Cuba and will get jobs there as clerks and in other capacities.

Prof. M E Cooley, head of the engineering department of the U. of M., has been engaged to appraise the machinery of the street railway plants in Detroit. Upon his judgment will rest the valuation which the city of Detroit will pay for the municipal ownership of that portion of the plants.

A Dexter man recently found three kernels of corn embedded in a tree, a solid inch of wood having grown over them. According to the usual rate of the growth of oak timber, the kernels must have been in the tree for about forty years. He is going to plant them this spring to see if their age has affected their growing powers.

A Michigan Central train pulled into the depot at Ann Arbor Thursday morning at 8 o'clock with one of the cars, in which was a load of hogs, on fire. The car was pulled under the water spout which supplies the engines and deluged with water until the flames were put out. Several of the hogs were suffocated or badly burned.

The members of the state legislature and senate paid a visit to Ann Arbor and the university on Friday and Saturday, and were royally entertained. They were greatly interested in the institution which is the pride of the state and numbers of them pledged their influence and votes to secure for it the necessary funds for its successful operation. Even "Pop" Goodell said when he came down there, he had made up his mind that he would not vote for the erection of any building of more than one story, but he had since added a couple of stories.

R. A. Snyder has purchased through W. J. Knapp a 50 bushel Kemp manure spreader at a cost of $110. The machine which is a new one in these parts is made by the Kemp & Burpee Mfg. Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., and for ease and rapidity in spreading manure, fertilizers, salt, ashes, etc., and getting it evenly on the land, its utility is said to be wonderful. A revolving cylinder, studded with steel teeth is situated in the back part of the box which revolves as the wagon moves along, tearing the manure into fine shreds and scattering it much as a hay tedder scatters hay. It will also sow manure and fertilizers in drills. It looks to be a very useful and economical machine.

The social given by the Ladies' Guild of the Congregational church was well attended and quite a success.

The evening services at the Congregational and Methodist churches will begin at 7:30 o'clock commencing with next Sunday evening.

The following appointments were made by the common council at its meeting last evening: President pro tem, James A. Bachman; members of the board of review, Henry M. Twamley and James A. Bachman; special assessors, Thomas and Peter Fletcher, and T. W. Mingay. The appointment of marshal was laid over until the next meeting of the council.

North Lake.

The longest spell of bad roads for many years past.

Mrs. C. E. Glenn is visiting her father-in-law's folks now.

Warren Daniels has been sick with croup but is better now.

Fred Schultz moved his trunk on Monday. He will live the summer with P. Gorman.

W. H. Glenn has three hives of bees left alive out of seven. The dead ones left a lot of nice honey.

Sam Schultz has come back to his old stamping grounds from a short stay in Lima. There is no place like home, tra, la.

A large mink was shot here Wednesday of last week, whose hide 25 years ago would have brought $12 or more, now about $1 or less.

W. H. Glenn endeavored to keep over a pit of white turnips to try and lay on a little fat this spring, but he found all melted down. Too warm or something.

The bridge between W. Glenn's and the church acts more like a dam than a bridge. A good many think it isn't worth a d—. It has caused several big dams of late. Some not made to stop water either.

The Grange met Wednesday evening of last week and will soon be in full working order. The master elect was on hand and the necessary equipment was ordered to be ready for the next meeting which will be called soon.

Miss Mildred Daniels spent Thursday last with Miss Blanche Glenn at her grandfather's, and helped to gather the sap from the maple trees. The girls had the sweetest time they had had in ever so long a time.

Mr. Warden, the cattle buyer at Gregory was through here Monday looking up a carload of stock. He is now the supervisor of Unadilla. Pretty good man if he wasn't a Democrat. He beat the best man too, Frank Ives, Republican.

Our minister failed to be with us on Sunday last as he had to officiate at the funeral of Mr. Foster, of Stockbridge, who died of pneumonia after a short but painful illness. His place was well filled by his namesake, Brother Griffin Palmer, of Unadilla.

Manchester.

Dr. Iddings has been quite sick for several days but is on the gain.

The workmen are digging the cellar for Mr. Hagaman's new residence on Boyne street.

Harmon Clark is having considerable remodeling and repairing done on the inside of his house.

The entertainment held in the school hall Friday evening was well attended and much enjoyed.

The work on Mrs. Lazell's house is being rapidly pushed. She expects to occupy it about May 1.

The Monday Night Club met with Mrs. John Wisner. After the work of the evening was done, ice cream and cake were served.

The funeral of Mrs. Jennie Bauer, of Iron Creek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silkworth, of this place, was held at the M. E. church Sunday, at 4 o'clock.

Found the Goods in Chelsea.

E. A. Williams, agent of the Michigan Central railroad, was routed out of bed at a very unseemly hour Tuesday morning, and by an officer of the law at that. It was just about 2:50 o'clock, when Mr. Williams answered the summons of Sheriff Potter, of Ingham county, who had come here on a freight train to get sundry boxes of household goods which had been shipped here from Lansing to Mrs. Harvey D. Coen.

There is nothing particularly strange in the circumstance of household goods being shipped into Chelsea, but in this case they were goods that had been taken from the home of Harry J. and Carrie A. Ingersoll, prior to the time when the terrace in which their home was located was set on fire, it is claimed, by the Ingersolls, and on which charge they are now under arrest.

The household goods had been insured a few days before the fire for $400. Some boxes containing goods had been taken from the house before the fire and after the insurance policy had been taken out, and these goods were shipped to Chelsea as mentioned above, to a person who was not known here. An examination of the goods showed that they were part of the Ingersoll household belongings. Mrs. Ingersoll made affidavit, however, that a number of the articles contained in the boxes had been destroyed by fire.

Both Ingersoll and his wife protest their innocence, but the woman has been suffering from nervous prostration and is greatly excited. She is a daughter of a well known business man of Lansing, and was formerly engaged in evangelistic work on the Pacific slope where she met Ingersoll and was married to him.

Sheriff Potter took the goods back to Lansing with him. Mr. Williams hopes that the next time an officer of the law calls on him it will be in the daytime.

The New County Directory.

Glen V. Mills, the well known hustling directory publisher, of Ann Arbor, will be here in the near future distributing the seventh edition of his directory of Washtenaw county. The book, which contains 640 pages exclusive of advertising, is the most complete and accurate that Mr. Mills has ever issued, and is far ahead of any directory published. He has spared neither trouble nor expense in getting it up and the result is just about perfection in directory publishing.

For the cities, maps, house and street directories, cross references of names of similar pronunciation but widely different spelling, and removal of persons since the last issue, are the principal features, few of which are placed in city directories generally. For the county, a complete house to house canvass has been made of the farming portion and names in full of all residents as well as absolutely correct post office addresses secured. To this is added the acreage and assessed valuation of real and personal property, thus making a complete directory of people and property in the towns. Names of non-resident owners are put in italics.

The directory is of incalculable benefit to business men and farmers, and should be in the library of every household.

The total enrollment of students at the University of Michigan for the collegiate year 1898-99 is 3,059, to which add 235 who attended the summer school in 1898 and the grand total is 3,294. Of this number 1,869, or 59 per cent, were from Michigan.

Geo. P. Glazier's auction sale of Jersey cattle Tuesday was attended by a small number of bidders and the prices obtained were only moderate. Twenty head, mostly small, were sold for a total of $646. Most of them were purchased by buyers from this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Welch gave a very pleasant tea party Tuesday to 10 of the little friends of their daughter Vesta, in honor of her attaining her fifth birthday. Several adult guests were also present. The little ones had a real jolly time, and wish that birthdays such as that would come at least three times a week.

A new feature has been added to the English department of the university in the way of opportunities for practical experience in teaching. Arrangements have been made whereby each member of certain classes can do some actual teaching in the high schools of the state. Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti will furnish the most of the field for the classes, but Detroit and other Michigan cities are to be included in the number affording this opportunity.

Rev. C. S. Jones delivered what was to have been the last sermon of his series on "The closing scenes of Christ's life" at the Congregational church Sunday evening. At the conclusion of the service, which was very largely attended, quite a number waited on him and requested him to continue the series still further. He will, therefore, speak on "The fishing scene on Lake Galilee" next Sunday evening, and on "The Ascension" April 23.

Change of venue was asked for Thursday in three of the damage suits growing out of the Judson-Moran fight. In the Canfield-Allmendinger slander suit the defense charged that its witnesses had been threatened with personal violence should they appear, and that the Judson influence is still so strong that no fair trial could be had in this county. The argument in both of the other cases, Moran vs. Judson and Canfield and Judson vs. Moran, is practically the same. The motions contemplate carrying these three celebrated cases to Livingston or Jackson county.

Reports received at the office of the secretary of state indicate that the damage to the fruit crop is not so great as was reported directly after the severe cold snap. As to whether wheat has suffered during the month of March the crop correspondents are about equally divided.

The social given by the Junior class of the high school at the opera house Friday evening was attended by about 150 people. During the evening a program of vocal and instrumental music and recitations was carried out, in which Mrs. Carrie Seper, Mrs. George Staffan, the Misses Kate Staffan, Bessie Kempf, Pauline Burg, Zoe BeGole, Mildred Hardie and Master Vernie Evans and others took part. After the entertainment dancing was indulged in to music furnished by Louis Burg and Richard Trouton.

The Masonic social held Friday evening at the Masonic hall was not very largely attended, but a pleasant evening was spent by those who were present. Games and visiting formed the features of the evening until after supper, when a recitation was given by Roland Waltrous, and some instrumental music by Mrs. Blanche Wood, Miss Edith Noyes, K. Otto Steinbach and B. B. Steubach. Prizes were given for a guessing contest—a first prize and a booby—they were won by Mrs. Depew and George Ward, respectively.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by Glazier & Stinson, Bank Drug Store.

A MEMORABLE OCCASION

Visit of the Entire State Legislature to the University of Michigan a Notable Event.

A RARE OCCURRENCE WELL APPRECIATED

Students Make It an Excuse for a Demonstration Not Soon Forgotten—The Visitors Are Shown Everything of Interest—Many New Things to Attract Attention.

[Special Correspondence.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 5.—The announcement that the entire state legislature would visit the University of Michigan on Friday, April 7, raised the spirits of the students to-day several notches. As this event rarely occurs oftener than once in a student's college career, it is made an excuse for a demonstration that is easily remembered for four years by both students and legislators.

Shown Everything.

The demonstration, however, is only a part of the legislative visit. The law givers are shown the university from cellar to garret, or rather from the underground tunnel to the dome on University hall, and from the dissecting-room to the art gallery. They see everything of interest from the Assyrian inscriptions in the museum to the evening stars as viewed through the large telescope, from a typhoid fever germ to an up-to-date electric lighting plant. Furthermore, their visit is made as pleasant as possible, receptions and musical programmes being given for their entertainment.

Ten Years Ago.

Back in 1889—ten years ago—the legislature visited the university on a tour of inspection. Besides seeing the things of interest they met the student cried at the top of his voice the following yells:

"Here we are, up to our tricks; Down with the sophomores, '96."

"Hoo, Rah! Hoo Rah! Hoo, Rah. Riz! Michigan, Michigan, '96."

Of course the tax should be one-six. Michigan, Michigan, '96."

The last yell was considered an argument in favor of the bill which was then before the legislators to give the university a regular income of one-sixth of one mill.

Need of Funds.

Another want of the students which was brought before the law givers on this occasion was the need of funds to complete the gymnasium which at that time was but little more than four walls and a roof. The students took the following method of telling the legislators about it:

"Gym, gym, gym, gym! Give us some money to build a gym."

"Gym, gym, we all need vim. Vote for the man who votes for the gym."

When there came a lull in the din because of sheer exhaustion of the students from yelling, President Angell welcomed the guests and presented the medd of the university, after which he introduced in turn Gov. Rich and a number of the senators and representatives.

Got the Gymnasium.

Two years after the visit of 1893 the legislature was again at the university. The evening reception was held in University hall, a concert being given by the Choral Union and the Glee and Banjo clubs. The usual meeting with the students occurred on the following noon. At this time speeches were made by Senators McLaughlin, Kilpatrick and James, and Representatives Waite, Fisk and Donovan. With the president and regents for guests the legislators inspected the gymnasium, which had been completed since their last visit to Ann Arbor, and the other buildings belonging to the university.

A WISH GRATIFIED.

The Slangy Young Man's Sire Gives Him the Wherewithal to "Raise the Dough."

"My son," said the old gentleman who very properly objects to slang, "I have been thinking over your request this morning, and I am inclined to think I may have been a little hasty in my decision."

"Thank you, governor."

"I believe in clearly understanding a case before reopening it. Now, as I remember the conversation, your call at the office was prompted by a desire to 'raise the dough.'"

"Yes; that is to say—"

"Never mind. I ask for no explanations. I do not seek to inquire into all the trivial whims of youth. I accept them as I do the wild flowers among the grain. They are useless, but they are cheering to contemplate. There are many things I do not understand, among them being golf, lawn tennis and football. But I do not assume to interfere with your innocent diversion any more than I undertake to keep track of the current fad. If you want to give up experiments with the chafing dish and go to work with an oven, I have no objection to offer, nor will I let the mere matter of expense stand in your way. I was rather busy when you spoke to me about raising the dough this morning. I know that I spoke shortly; but my heart is in the right place, and I am too generous and indulgent to deny your slightest request. Here, my boy, is two cents. Go and buy yourself a cake of yeast."—Washington Star.

America and Germany.

So soon as America showed her characteristic firmness the German cruiser left Manila Bay, and we now protect the German interests. In a like manner all stomach ills fly before the wonderful power of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It strikes at the root of all diseases—the stomach, and not only cures indigestion, constipation, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles, but cures them quickly and permanently. It makes a hearty appetite and fills the blood with rich red corpuscles.

Not Quite Ready.—"All those who want to lead better lives will stand up," cried the revivalist in a commanding tone. They all stood up excepting the stranger with the chin whiskers who sat in the front row. "Don't you want to be a better man?" demanded the revivalist. "Well, it's like this, parson," said the stranger. "I expect to be a better man, of course, but you see I ain't been to town before in ten year, an' I was calkylatin' to have a leetle fun fust."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

IN FAVOR OF THE CENTAUR CO.

Judge Adams Granted an Injunction in the Castoria Case.

In the United States Circuit Court Tuesday afternoon Judge Adams handed down an opinion in the suit of the Centaur Company, of New York City, against Samuel W. Eslinger, of St. Louis, the suit being for an injunction to restrain the defendant from using the plaintiff's remedy, "Castoria."

It was stated in complainant's bill that the Centaur Company, of which Charles H. Fletcher is president, is the sole manufacturer of "Castoria," and alleged that the defendant had been selling medicine in packages closely resembling those of the New York firm. A preliminary injunction was prayed for to restrain the defendants from in any way pirating upon the complainant's business. The bill averred that the damages sustained were large, but could not be estimated. The plea of the defendant was that he had a right to do as he had done.

Evidence in the case was taken by affidavits. Judge Adams, without leaving the bench, delivered an opinion in which he denounced imitators of well-known medicines. He said the practice was a species of robbery and he would grant the injunction sought.

The medicine "Castoria" was at first protected by patent and later by label and trade mark. The plaintiff claimed that other decisions similar to the one handed down yesterday have been secured in the Federal courts, cases being innumerable in Chicago, Indianapolis, District of Columbia, Texas and New Jersey, in all of which the courts granted injunctions.

The attorneys in this suit were Sedon and Blair, of St. Louis, and F. H. Scott, of Chicago, for the complainants and Michael Kineally for the defendant. The preliminary injunction is understood to settle the point of law involved, but the question of damages will be adjudged when the case has its final hearing.

The bottles of the original "Castoria" manufactured by the Centaur Company bear the facsimile signature of the president, Charles H. Fletcher, on the label, while the bottles sold by the defendant company bore on the label the words "Pitcher's Baby Castoria." It is said that criminal proceedings will follow, and that several arrests may be made.

Arctic Exploration.

For 45 years we had been imprisoned by the ice, and our situation was becoming desperate. It was not likely that we could hold out 45 years longer.

In this juncture a ship appeared. An officer disembarked and came to us.

"Who are you?" he asked anxiously.

"We are the Smith party," we replied.

"You, doubtless, are our relief expedition."

"No," said the officer, "the Jones party are your relief expedition. We are the relief expedition of the Jones party. So long. Merciful heavens! If we were not rescued soon, we should be too old to lecture!"—Detroit Journal.

His Successful Effort.

"I saw you on a suburban train last night and you seemed to be greatly amused at something an old gentleman was telling you."

"Did I really look as if I were tickled?"

"Yes. The story you were listening to must have been something very funny."

"By Jove, I'm glad to hear you say that. The old gentleman is the father of the girl I love best on earth, and he was telling me a yarn that I heard for the first time about nine years ago."—Chicago Evening News.

NEW LAW BUILDING OF THE UNIVERSITY.

body, which then numbered 1,900, in University hall. The legislators and their friends occupied the platform and the students and townspeople the auditorium proper.

The Governor Comes.

Again in 1893 another visit was made. On this occasion the legislators were accompanied by Gov. Rich, Lieut.-Gov. Giddings and the wives of many of the members. The party was met at Jackson and escorted to the city with great pomp, arriving late in the afternoon. An informal reception was tendered the guests in the university buildings in the evening. As part of the programme the "Yellow and Blue," the university song, was sung, also some verses that had been specially composed for the occasion. The lines ran as follows:

And long we'll remember the wise legislators,
Who visit Ann Arbor to hear the boys cheer,
Be they doctors or lawyers or raisers of 'taters,
They'll find a warm welcome awaiting them here.

Those kind legislators, those wise legislators,
They'll find a warm welcome awaiting them here.

Meet the Students.

After the reception the museum, art gallery and library were inspected by the visitors.

The following day was devoted to visiting the laboratories, machine shops, observatory and hospitals, and to meeting the student body in University hall. This latter incident was probably the most memorable of the entire visit. The one hundred and more legislators, with their families, the governor and other state officers and the university faculty were crowded together on the platform. The students, who at that time numbered 2,774, occupied the main floor and gallery, each department and class being together. The literary students had the floor, and the laws, medics, homeopoe, pharmics and dents were in the gallery. Each class was armed with flags, banners, special yells and songs; and each class did its best to entertain the guests upon the rostrum. The freshman lits those numbers were larger than those of any other class, were particularly demonstrative. Each freshman had a small white flag with "96" on it which he would violently wave all the time as he and demonstrations, there are many new things to attract attention. Since their visit in 1895, the Law building has been entirely rebuilt and increased to double its former size, a new dome has been placed on University hall, the $20,000 addition to the library book-room erected, the central power, heating and lighting plant with its 140-foot chimney established and the woman's gymnasium fitted up so that it is usable. But since that last visit the enrollment has increased greatly, so that the needs of the university have outstripped the improvements made. In consequence there is an urgent demand for several new buildings, including a laboratory for the medical department and a large hospital for the Homeopathic Medical college. Besides these the university has other needs which will be laid before the legislators at the time of their visit.

CURIOUS COLLECTION.

A Grand Rapids Woman Presents to University of Michigan Relics of Slavery Days.

Mrs. Laura D. Havelin, an old resident of Grand Rapids, has presented the university museum in Ann Arbor with a curious collection of instruments that were used for disciplining incorrigible slaves before the civil war. The collection consists of a number of heavy iron collars and handcuffs, and some machines that were used for stiffening the legs of the slaves. One of the collars resembles those worn by the slaves that were known to Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, and which are described by her in her novels. The collection has been in the possession of Mrs. Havelin for a number of years.

The Only Survivor.

Abram Minges, a well-known farmer of the township of Battle Creek, celebrated a unique anniversary. Just 50 years ago he left Battle Creek with the first party to depart from Calhoun county for the newly-discovered gold fields in California. The others forming the party were Charles Cooley, Charles Lovell, Christian Hanna, Thomas TenEyck, George McCamley, George P. Burrell, Josiah Cook, Samuel Cook and Albert Dewey. Of this company of argonauts Minges is the only survivor.

Her Little Joke.

Jones delights in a practical joke, but having one played on him is a vastly different matter.

The other day his wife rushed breathlessly into the room, gasping "Come, Henry, quick! There's a catamount in the barn!"

Jones grabbed his rifle and sprinted for the scene of action, but his most cautious reconnoiters failed to discover the animal. "Where is the beast?" he demanded.

"Why, Henry, dear," his wife replied, "Tabby has some kittens, and that makes a cat amount, doesn't it?"

Close observers declare that the roof of the Jones residence was seen to suddenly elevate, but it slowly settled again in the course of 24 hours.—N. Y. World.

The Final Test.—"To be perfectly exact, are the Philippines east or west?" "Well, we shan't know for sure, I suppose, until they've voted once."—Detroit Journal.

FALL OF SANTA CRUZ.

The Filipino Stronghold Is Captured by Gen. Lawton—Rebel Loss Is Heavy.

Manila, April 11.—Gen. Lawton has captured Santa Cruz, at the extreme end of the lake. He drove the rebels, who were commanded by a Chinaman named Pao-Wah, into the mountains. The Americans had six men wounded. The rebels lost 65 men killed and had 40 men wounded.

Santa Cruz was the Filipinos stronghold on Lake Laguna de Bay and it fell into the hands of Gen. Lawton's expedition after some sharp, quick fighting, forming one of the most interesting and important battles of the war.

The expedition started from San Pedro Macati at dusk on Saturday, intending to capture Santa Cruz by assault at daybreak. But in navigating the shallow, tortuous Pasig river, perhaps through the cunning of the native pilots, who were not anxious to see the Americans successful, several boats grounded, and it was nearly dawn when the troops reached the lake. The expedition then steamed cautiously forward, the Napidun and the Oeste a mile ahead, the Laguna de Bay guarding the rear. Rebel signal fires, however, were lighted on the mountain tops, giving alarm of the approach of the troops. It was noon before the white church towers of the city appeared in the shadow of the great volcanic mountain on a marshy plain, dotted with occasional palm groves.

A casco with a force of 200 picked sharpshooters, under Maj. Weisenberger, mostly belonging to the First Washington regiment, was run into a shallow inlet about five miles south of the city. Then a few shells were sent toward the intrenchments of the rebels at the edge of the woods, sending the enemy scampering inland. Then a number of Americans jumped into the water and, wading for about a hundred yards, crept forward and formed in line, covering the landing of the remainder, which finished about five o'clock. The three troops of the Fourth cavalry, unmounted, were sent ashore on a dangerous marshy point, directly south of the city, under fire from the enemy's trenches.

At sunrise Monday the assault commenced. The American outlines south of the city stretch two miles inland, and with its left sweeping the shore it moved north, while the Fourth cavalry men on the point advanced toward the city, pouring volleys upon the trenches. Simultaneously the gunboats hovered along the shore, shelling the woods ahead of the troops and driving the Filipinos inland. The Gatlings cleared several trenches.

The whole brigade was divided into squads of 12, and the fighting was carried on in the old-time frontier fashion, from behind trees, crawling through bushes or rushing across the open. The trenches that were not cleared by the gunboats gave considerable resistance when the line was nearing the city and the Laguna de Bay and Oeste bombarded for an hour in the hope of making them too warm for occupancy, but did not succeed in clearing them entirely. Gen. Lawton, with the Fourteenth infantry battalions, approached a narrow iron bridge across a creek on the south border of the town. Here a company of Filipinos was intrenched across the stream and behind a stone barricade at the entrance to the bridge.

The Americans rushed forward in single file, in the face of a galling fire, demolished the barricade with their hands and drove the enemy from the trenches, killing a dozen. The Filipino soldiers in the town, secreted in various buildings and firing from the windows, gave the invaders an interesting hour. There was a regular nest of them in the stone jail, which is edged in by a wall. This was a veritable pepper pot. The Americans singly or in pairs entered the houses and many warriors were taken prisoners. A considerable body of Filipinos fled northward, crossing the open marshes, but the Gatlings poured upon them a deadly hail until they disappeared in the woods, slaying dozens. Maj. Weisenberger deployed the sharpshooters along the shore and they crept steadily forward, aiding the Gatlings. Finally a large body was sent against the enemy in the woods, driving them toward the mountains.

Gen. Lawton established headquarters at the elegant palace of the governor and a guard was immediately placed in the church, as the sacred edifices are always the first objective of looters. Within an hour the town was patrolled and all looting rigidly prevented. Almost all the inhabitants had fled during the two preceding nights, and only a few Chinese shopkeepers have emerged from hiding and resumed business. On the marshes north of town were found 40 dead Filipinos, some terribly torn by shells, and many others wounded, to whom the Americans offered their canteens, as though they were comrades. A surgeon who traversed the field counted 80 killed, and Gen. Lawton will report at least 65. One Filipino, attempting to make his escape, slashed viciously at Maj. Weisenberger, who shot and killed him.

Sunday the insurgents captured two men of the Fourteenth infantry, while unarmed, but the Americans stole the guns of their captors, clubbed them, hid in the trees over night and returned Monday morning.

SPLENDID FIELDS OF GRAIN.

Following is copy of letter received from Dennis Twohey, who went to Winnipegosis, Manitoba, from Austin, Minn., March, 1898:

Winnipegosis, Man., Jan. 23, 1899.
Benjamin Davies, Esq., Canadian government Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Dear Sir: I have great pleasure in writing you these few lines to let you know how I like my new location, and how I have been getting along since I left Southern Minnesota. I like this country well, the climate agrees with me and my family at all seasons, and taken all around it is away ahead of Minnesota. I may say that we have not had one storm yet this winter. As regards the productiveness of the soil, I consider it beats Southern Minnesota. I am a practical farmer, but have never seen such vegetables in my life as I have seen raised here. As regards grain of all kinds, I have seen splendid yields, in fact any man who cannot get along here and make a good living cannot do it anywhere.

We have abundance of wood for fuel, timber for building, and lots of hay. I have got good water on my place, about 24 feet. I have a good class of neighbors around me, and have been well used by everybody. I have been able to get lots of work for myself and team at fair wages, whenever I wanted it, and I think any one else can do the same. I would not care to return to Minnesota.

I am, sir, yours very truly,
(Signed) DENNIS TWOHEY.

THE WHOLE SYSTEM

May Become Invaded by Catarrh—General Lewis' Case.

Hon. James Lewis, Surveyor General of Louisiana.

Per-ru-na Drug Mfg Co., Columbus, O.: "Gentlemen—I have used Per-ru-na for a short time and can cheerfully recommend it as being all you represent and wish every man who is suffering with catarrh could know of its great value. Should I at any future time have occasion to recommend a treatment of your kind, rest assured that yours will be the one. Gratefully yours, James Lewis."

Wherever the catarrh is, there is sure to be a waste of mucus. The mucus is as precious as blood. It is blood, in fact. It is blood plasma—blood with the corpuscles removed. To stop this waste, you must stop this catarrh. A course of treatment with Per-ru-na never fails to do this.

OVER WORK MAKES WEAK KIDNEYS.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE YOUR BLOOD FILTERS.

A Prompt Way to Cure Yourself When Symptoms Show That Your Kidneys Are Out Of Order.

To Test the Wonderful Merits of the Great Modern Discovery, Swamp-Root, Every Reader May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free By Mail.

The way to be well is to pay attention to your kidneys.

They are the most important organs of the body—the blood filters.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys strain or filter out the impurities in the blood—that is their work.

Purifying your blood is not a question of taking a laxative of physic.

Does your blood run through your bowels?

What the bowel-cleaner does is to throw out the poisons confined in your bowels ready for absorption into your blood, but the poisons which are already in your blood, causing your present sickness, it leaves there.

There is no other way of purifying your blood except by means of your kidneys.

That is why bowel-cleaners fail to do their work—they fail to help the kidneys.

When you are sick, then, no matter what you think the name of your disease is, the first thing you should do is to afford aid to your kidneys by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great Kidney Remedy.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician, and specialist, has attained a far-famed reputation through the discovery and marvelous success of Swamp-Root in purifying the blood, and thereby curing chronic and dangerous diseases, caused by sick kidneys, of which some of the symptoms are given below.

Pain or dull ache in back or head, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, irregular heart, sleeplessness, sallow complexion, dropsy, irritability, loss of ambition, obliged to pass water oftenduring the day, and to get up many times at night, and all kinds of kidney, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root is sold by all dealers, in fifty-cent or one-dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

To prove the wonderful merits of his great discovery he now offers to every reader of this paper a prepaid free sample bottle of Swamp-Root, which he will send to any address, free by mail.

A book about Health, Diet and Disease as Related to your Kidneys and giving some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from the sufferers cured, also sent free with the sample bottle.

The great discovery, Swamp-Root, is so remarkably successful that our readers are advised to write for a sample bottle and to be sure and mention this paper when sending their addresses to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

I have recently invented a very superior ICE MACHINE and applied for patents on same.

A large eastern concern are now building the first machine for me. This first, model machine, will be finished and in operation in Chelsea about May 15th.

I wish to thoroughly demonstrate the economy and superiority of this machine the coming season; in order to be in a position to manufacture and place them on the market next year. To do this it will be necessary to operate one in an experimental way the coming season. To dispose of the large amount of ICE that will be frozen, I make the following prices:

Private Residences $2.50 for the entire season.

Hotels, Restaurants and Bakeries $5.00 for the entire season.

This PURE CRYSTAL ICE will be delivered every day, and will be carefully washed and placed in your refrigerator.

If at the end of the season you do not say that it is the best ICE you have ever used, you need not pay one cent for your season's supply.

Yours Respectfully,

FRANK P. GLAZIER.
