SET ASIDE THE DIVORCE

Nelson E. Freer Granted a Re-hearing in His Case.

ANOTHER BONUS OF $12,500

IS ASKED OF THE PEOPLE OF CHELSEA—HIRAM LINTHALL WILL START A FURNITURE FACTORY IF HE CAN GET SUCH A BONUS AND FREE POWER.

Nelson E. Freer will be granted a re-hearing of the divorce suit brought against him by Alice Freer, provided he pays $10 into court on or before next Monday, and the case will be taken up at the next term of court. The hearing of the motion to set aside the decree was held Monday. Attorney Bennett represented the defendant and showed by an affidavit that Chas. R. Whitman, the attorney for Mr. Freer in the record, had never received a notice for trial and did not know that it was coming on at the time it was tried.

Mr. Sawyer, who represented Mrs. Freer, said that he had complied with the rules of the court. He had sent Mr. Whitman a proper notice, and it must have reached him as the letter had never been returned to him. "It is an outrage," said he, "to compel this woman to go to the expense of another hearing. She will have to subpoena all her witnesses again. The evidence submitted was so overwhelming that your honor asked us to desist. This woman had to trudge through the snow to teach a country school while she was in a most delicate condition, and her husband would sit by the fire too lazy to go out to the barn and hitch up the horse to take her there. If this defendant wants to put up $50 for costs and $100 for attorney fees for the two trials, we are willing to try the cause over a ain. But she should not be put to the expense again. The notice was served upon Mr. Whitman in conformity with the supreme court rules. Has it come to a point that we have got to go around with a club and knock an attorney on the head and say, 'There, do you know that you have been served with a notice?'"

The Court—"I have very decided views about this case, and if Mr. Freer would listen to me he would not want it tried again. But it was clearly the neglect of Whitman, and Mr. Freer would never be satisfied unless he had a chance to put in his defense. He ought, however, to pay something toward the expenses. I will set aside the decree and call for a hearing at the next term of the court on condition that defendant pays $10 on or before next Monday."

Another Boom for Chelsea.

To the Business Men and Citizens of Chelsea:

I notice in last week's issue of our local papers a proposition from the stove company for a bonus of $25,000, free power and lights for 10 years, with a promise on the part of the above named company to enlarge their plant, thereby employing more men, which would add much to our now thriving village. Now, fellow citizens, if one industry is a good thing for our village more are better. I, therefore, make you this proposition: If you will give me a bonus of $12,500 with free lights and about 40 horse power (electric preferred) to use 10 hours per day for 10 years I will agree to erect suitable building and add the necessary machinery for manufacturing furniture, some special lines of which are now in good demand. There is no better location in Michigan today for a factory of this kind than Chelsea, with plenty of material within short distance to run for years.

I have parties ready and waiting who have some capital, but not enough to start a business of this kind as it should be started. I, therefore, ask your kindest consideration in this matter, and promise if this meets your approval to employ as many hands in proportion to the amount of bonus I ask as the stove company would add to what they already employ. I make this offer in good faith and hope you will consider it as such. I have received prices on machinery this day and know just what is needed to equip a factory of this kind in addition to what I now have. Respectfully yours,

H. LINTHALL.

Suggestions for Spring Cleaning.

Much of the labor of house cleaning may be avoided by the exercise of good judgment and management. Pleasant weather must be selected for the work, usually the first of May is the best time to begin. Everything should be in readiness beforehand. Brooms, brushes, tacks and strings should be provided. The windows and paints can be perfectly cleaned by washing with warm water and Ivory Soap; the free use of lime and borax will purify and deodorize the premises.

ONE reason Mrs. Pinkham's treatment helps women so promptly is that they have confidence in her.

Through some of the many thousands of Mrs. Pinkham's friends an ailing woman will be led to write to Mrs.

Pinkham at her home in Lynn, Mass., and will tell her symptoms. The reply, made without charge of any kind, will bear such evidence of knowledge of the trouble that belief in her advice at once inspires hope.

This of itself is a great help. Then the knowledge that women only see the letters asking for advice and women only assist Mrs. Pinkham in replying makes it easy to be explicit about the little things that define the disease.

MRS. ELIZA THOMAS, of 634 Pine St., Easton, Pa., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I doctored with two of the best doctors in the city for two years and had no relief until I began the use of your remedies. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I suffered something terrible, could not sleep nights and thought sometimes that death would be such a relief. To-day I am a well woman, able to do my own work, and have not a pain. I used four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three packages of Sanative Wash and cannot thank you enough for the good it did me."

MRS. M. STODDARD, Box 268, Springfield, Minn., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For about four years I was a great sufferer from female troubles. I had backache all of the time, no appetite, pains in stomach, fainting spells, was weak and my system was completely run down. I also had falling of womb so bad that I could scarcely walk across the floor. After taking two bottles of your Vegetable Compound and one box of Lozengers, can say I am cured."

Life Saved by Swamp-Root

The Great Discovery That Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by diseases of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.

But not until recently was the discovery made. Doctor Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test after test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proven such remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proven equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Besure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

This great modern discovery is for sale at most drug-stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

DUCKS OR STOCKS?

An Investment That Pays Better Than Dabbling in Stocks on Tips.

A circular sent out by a firm of tipsters says: "It is now over three years since we first addressed you about our stock operations. During that time had you invested $100 at the beginning and compounded your profits, your $100 would now be nearly $4,775. Is there any business that will pay you better than $4,775 profits on $100 capital in three years?" A copy of the circular fell into the hands of a man who made the rejoinder:

"The answer is, yes—ducks, tame, peck, muscovy, Pekin, or any other breed. A little girl had 15 cents with which she bought a sitting of duck eggs. She hatched a brooding chicken hen from her mother, and all the eggs were hatched out. Her profits for the first six months were $8 and she kept three hens and a drake for the next six months' operations. It is hard to presume that her profits will be at least for each six months; one year $10; three years, $48. Divide $48 by her 15 cents and the quotient will be 320—that is, each of her 15 cents will produce 320 cents, or 100 cents the profit will be 32,000 cents, or $320; on $100 capital the profit would be $320, against the $4,775. Verily a good investment is in duck eggs."

CONFIDENCE HELPS TO CURE

A BIRTHDAY.

Another birthday is here,
How fast the years roll by;
It is useless to take count of them,
I will not even try.

It seems such a short time ago,
When I in pinafores ran,
Wondering "if I would ever grow big,"
The years passed so slowly then.

When I was asked my age,
How promptly I answered them;
Strutting myself as tall as I could,
"I am nine, but going on ten."

And I am "going on" still,
I am very sorry to say;
Why can't the years be kind enough
To go the other way.

After all, what does it matter,
We live in deeds, not years;
I find I am an infant yet,
So I will dry my tears.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

In this and our previous discussions we seemed to have covered every contingency, but now that we were upon the point of making a beginning in earnest our conflicting hopes and fears suggested innumerable complications. Presently I noticed that Halstead was looking at me intently.

"Harry," he said, "it has been a good many years since we saw each other last. We were scarcely more than boys then; yet, to the best of my recollection, you were always square in everything you did. I'm not worrying for an instant over your taking advantage of Mac and me in this deal. But I am afraid that you may be inclined to take unnecessary risks in putting it through. Now, whatever happens, don't. We want that money, and we want it badly, but we'd both rather have you back on the Countess here, safe and sound, even if you came empty-handed, than feel that you were likely to throw your life away in trying to make us rich. You won't do it, will you, old chap?"

"No, I won't, Dick; and if I make a go of it, you and Mac will find me, as I used to be, 'dead square.'" We gripped hands across the table, and felt better for doing so.

In a few moments he got up, looked through one of the forward windows, and called my attention to what seemed like a cloud-bank on the horizon, straight ahead.

"There's old Guajan," he said. "The white patch you see in the middle is the surf on Cocos, and that furthest point to the left is Orote; Apra lies just behind it, and Agana beyond. There's nothing but an open roadstead, with no holding ground, in front of the town; so we generally lie inside the reefs at Apra, about two miles from a little wharf at the end of the Agana road. We'll be abreast of Cocos in something over an hour. Wait until you can just see the surf through the starboard port, down aft, and then haul in your log. It's an even 12 miles from Cocos to Orote."

My feeling of anxiety may be imagined as I stood waiting, below decks, for that tip of coast line to come in sight. The loss of a taffrail log screw, from various causes, is a frequent occurrence; and I was greatly relieved to find the line still whirling every time the screw twisted it taut. To haul it in an instant too soon would be to throw me more or less out of my reckoning, and each time the recording swivel buzzed I feared the end of Cocos might appear before it could register again; but luck was on my side. The patch of white surf and the registering twist came together, and after hauling in the line the dial marked exactly 43 miles. So that, adding the distance to Point Orote, I now knew the northerly limit of the reef lay just 55 geographical miles from the outer head of Port Apra. I stowed my log carefully away in its box, knowing that if others had happened to see the record they were sure to be 15 miles out of their reckoning.

Then I hunted up the seniorita for a farewell chat, pointing out Umata bay and the different points alongshore as we passed. It was midafternoon when we rounded the point and began to whistle for a pilot. Either the captain or myself could have taken the steamer in with reasonable safety, from our knowledge of the soundings; but we were running no risks whatever.

CHAPTER VIII.

The port of San Luis d'Apra was depopulated during the smallpox epidemic of 1850, not a hut being left to show where the town stood; and had not one of the native pilots been, flashing two miles off shore, we might have wasted considerable steam before we could have summoned one from Agana, four and a half miles away. The islanders were not expecting our arrival for another two weeks at least.

We anchored safely, however, in 17 fathoms of water, and presently saw a boat putting off from the landing pier. The seniorita and I were leaning over the rail near the accommodation ladder when the party pulled alongside, and we noticed with considerable interest that there were two ladies among them. The first gentleman to come aboard we judged, by his gold-laced uniform, to be the gobernador, Col de Garma; and in this we were not mistaken. The ladies, with two of his staff, followed; and in one of them we recognized the original of Halstead's picture—which, by the way, failed to do her justice. Then the party went below for wine and cigars while they chatted over port regulations, the cargo and the latest Manila gossip. After the formalities had been concluded, one of the stewards was sent on deck for the Palacios, Padre Sebastiano and myself; and our cordial greeting by the colonel's party left nothing to be desired.

Halstead must have been telling Seniorita Garma something about me, for she seemed to be making a shy but friendly examination of my face when we were introduced, and when her father heard that I was to remain in Agana the hospitable manner in which he placed his belongings at my disposal was too sincere to be misunderstood. Visitors from the outside world were at a premium. I noticed that Seniorita Palacios seemed rather preoccupied during the conversation, and when she presently carried the colonel's daughter off to her stateroom—for a mutual exchange of gossip and confidences, I suppose—she must have dropped a few hints which opened her visitor's eyes to certain things later.

Padre Sebastiano was more surprised than he cared to admit when he found that I had accepted an invitation to remain with the gobernador, on the island, and Diaz also wondered why an active Americano should wish to bury himself in such a place for three months; but it afterward came out that I was credited with being more of a savant than a business man, my interest in navigation having strengthened this belief. What conclusion the padre arrived at, I neither knew or cared; if we were to be adversaries, muy bueno; we were at our destination, and would soon know where we stood.

My luggage, including the wooden chest, went ashore before dark, and, as the steamer could scarcely get away before the next evening, we made up a party to accept De Garma's hospitality overnight. The drive to Agana, from the pier, we made in a bullock-cart resembling a carramata, but much larger and thatched with palm leaves, and upon our arrival found a most appetizing supper awaiting us. There is a tradition that Magellan and his fellow-navigators left pigs and fowls upon every island in the Pacific, and the plentiful supply of this day rather confirms it. When the time came for retiring, I was shown to comfortable quarters on the upper floor of the gobernador's house, between San Ramon barracks and the church of San Juan Letran. Seniorita Dorotea accompanying me as far as the door to assure herself that all my wants were provided for.

She was a charming creature, that girl, in spite of her ridiculously old-fashioned costume; and I was impatient to see her in more becoming clothes, as I knew I should when she had time to examine the contents of her box. We had left the original gowns where they were, fearing that her Manila letters might contain a description of them.

Sunday morning we attended mass in the church, and had a delightful drive across the hills to Umata. A ceremonious dinner at San Ramon quarters followed; then we all went aboard the steamer for a final visit with our friends before they left. I found an opportunity to steal down into the engine-room, after supper, for a talk with Mac. His men had been busy all night unshipping odd bits of machinery from the wreck of the German tramp, which lay, about a quarter of a mile away, fast upon Luminan reef, and bolting three straps so obtained, around the Countess' shaft. When we went into the alley to look at the repairs, he asked, with a comical wink, if I thought they would hold until the ship reached Manila. Then, when we ascended to his room for a parting glass, he said: "Well, Maister Stevens, Halstead an' Aa hae done over parri sae weel as we c'd; an' Aa trust ye'll be sicsaisfu' wi' yer ain. Aa dinna ken muckle about th' matter, but Aa'm aye reddy tae stan' by ye baith whiles there's braith left tae me. We'll be seein' ye soon, Aa hoop. Here's tae ye, mon."

What Mac said he meant; he was the kind of a friend a man likes to keep through life. When I rejoined the company in the saloon, they were chaffing Padre Sebastiano upon his coming trip to Saipan in a piroa; and the gobernador unconsciously gave Halstead the opening he was looking for by commenting upon the incivility of government in not providing for the padre's passage in a more comfortable manner. He agreed with the colonel, and, after a little hesitation, said that it might possibly be arranged without direct instructions from headquarters.

In replying to their questions, he said: "If both the gobernador and Padre Sebastiano will agree to hold me harmless in the matter, I think we might drop him at Saipan to-morrow morning. We completed our repairs several hours sooner than I expected, and I should be glad to accommodate our friend if he doesn't mind writing to Manila a brief account of the accident."

"Senior Capitan, you are ungenerous! I will the letter write to-night. You shall have no fear of an examination at Manila. Santissima! have not I the casualidad myself seen?"

"Muy bueno, padre; I will land you safely at Tanapag in the morning, and, gobernador, I hope to see Guajan again before the compania's regular boat resumes the service. I feel as though you people were old friends now, and when the Countess is withdrawn I may never happen to return; so I'd like to keep on running here until your term expires, anyhow."

"You do us la gran honra, capitano mio. We are made rich by your friendship; and it shall be that a word is spoken in the administration de la compania. Villabos will cable Barcelona, perhaps—" and so on, with many assurances of regard and influence, until Halstead seemed in a fair way toward arranging matters as he chose. It was exceedingly well-handled, the whole affair.

Finally the whistle sounded, and we stepped into the boat alongside. Halstead said merely: "So long, old man, be good to yourself;" but there was a good deal in our parting handshake. Much was to happen before we saw each other again. The pilot was so cautious in getting clear of the port that we were driving to Agana before he rounded Calalan bank; but as we approached the town the good old Countess, her lights reflected in the water, caught up with us and blew three long whistles by way of good-by.

That night, in my quarters at the gobernador's house, I tried to arrange a plan of action, going over and over the various points until my brain was in a whirl. I had little doubt of being able to find the reef, but it was a matter of considerable importance that I should do so as near the wreck as possible. For this reason it seemed obvious that an examination of the document in Fray Ignacio's coffin was necessary. The church was in charge of Padre Bartolomeo and three brother priests; good-natured, easy-going churchmen they were, who could sing, drink rum, or wager their pesos upon a cock fight with the next man; and, as some one had mentioned a mass which was to be held at sunrise, I determined to hear it. Anxious to be on time, I rose half an hour too early, but was amply repaid by the freshness and quiet beauty of the little town.

Looking north, a spur of hills cut off the view of the bay; and at their base flowed a little creek which bounded the town on the east and north sides, crossed by two stone bridges, near the lower of which stood Fort San Rafael. Beyond the fort and alongshore to Port Apra, the view was open to the sea. On account of the shoal water for half a mile out, there was no surf, only ripples which showed the direction of the breeze. Between the church and the infantry quarters there was a small open square; and west of the barracks, between them and the artillery magazine, was a broad plaza which separated the bamboo native huts from the more pretentious buildings of coquina, or coral limestone, inhabited by the Spanish element. Outside of the town, the valley and hills were covered with tropical vegetation indescribably beautiful in its wealth of color and delicate tracery against the sky line. The streets, laid out in regular pattern, were wide and clean. At the right of the gobernador's house, looking east, stood the church, a small chapel, and the college of San Juan de Letran; at the left, between it and the plaza, were San Ramon quarters, the administrator's office, the pharmacy and the tribunal; on the southerly side of the plaza, the military hospital and prison. A few miles back of the town and its foothills rose the peak of Mount Tiniquio; and at the southwest the peninsula of Orote poked its nose into the ocean. I looked at Orote, its rocks and palm trees glowing red in the early sunrise, for several moments. It was to be the base and starting point of all my calculations.

A few of the natives were lazily sauntering into the church as I stepped across the square, and mass was just beginning. There was a girlish form kneeling by the pillar nearest me, and I recognized Seniorita Dorotea, who greeted me demurely as she rose from her devotions, expressing surprise and pleasure that I should have awakened early to attend mass. My appearance that morning was a fortunate one in several ways. Padre Bartolomeo was complimented, for one thing, and exhibited his satisfaction at my supposed Catholic tendencies by showing me what there was to be seen about the place as soon as the service was over.

After inspecting the college buildings and cloisters, we went through a narrow door into a room back of the chancel, where there were a number of votive images in wax, representing either miraculous escapes from violent death, recoveries from mortal illnesses, or the cures of foul diseases. Although it was as thoroughly unpleasant a collection as one could look upon, some horrid fascination induced me to examine many of the figures. One, for instance, was dressed in cotton breeches and shirt, over which gouts of blood from a fearful knife cut in the side were flowing, the supposition being that it represented the donor at a moment when the blessed Santa Catalina interfered in his behalf and enabled him to recover from a wound that would have killed an ox, exaggeration of the injury being presumably the essence of compliment to the blessed saint. Another recumbent figure had a gangrened sore over its wrist bone that would have made death from blood-poisoning a certainty in a civilized country; yet the blessed San Ambrosio had attended to this little matter for the victim and had got him a baragay to collect from in the bargain; though, as it usually took the form of a remitted consideration in which Bartolomeo was the medium, no embarrassing recognition of the latter service appeared. Hanging upon the walls were arms with festering sores upon them, legs with slashes which laid them open to the bone, torsos rotting with leprosy, etc., each with its appropriate saint ticketed thereon. It didn't occur to me at the time that I should have occasion to remember these things; so when Padre Bartolomeo lifted an iron trap in the floor, and descended a short flight of steps, I was more than willing to follow him without further examination.

The steps led to a series of vaults which seemed to be directly under the chancel, some of them being stored with various church appurtenances and others having the appearance of secret tribunals. I afterward learned that in former days a faint reflection of the inquisition had given the island a nameless horror to sundry travelers from Acapulco and the Philippines—governadors who had grown too suddenly rich, and the like. The vaults were connected by narrow and foul passages, after going through several of which we came to a chamber that apparently served as the church catacomb. There were a number of niches around the walls, and in each was the mummified figure of a padre in a semi-reclining position, similar to those in the Capuchin cemetery at Rome; the cowls and gray robes indicated their connection with the Franciscan order, so I was not surprised at this; though, from Halstead's story, I had expected to find the bodies inclosed in sarcophagi.

While we were looking about the place, Padre Bartolomeo gave me a general introduction to the figures in the niches, as brothers who had held his position in former years. It was an easy matter to appear interested—I was really afraid of seeming too much so—and I asked the name of a venerable mummy with an iron-bound chest, rusted and blistered with age, resting upon his attenuated stomach.

"That is the blessed Fray Ignacio, senior," he said, "the most worthy of all the brothers who have lived in the islands. Because of his great goodness and his labors among the natives, it was ordered by the lord bishop at Manila that he should forever be the guardian of our sacerdotal records. We do not make history very rapidly here; so that box which he holds is sufficient to contain them all. Possibly, a hundred years from now, we shall construct for him a larger chest upon which he may recline."

Knew His Habits.

The following anecdote is given me by an Indian officer as illustrative of the manners and customs of the wily Pathan. A certain general and his staff, while wending their way through one of the narrowest valleys of Tirah, were annoyed by the attentions of a solitary marksman, who from time to time sent a bullet unpleasantly close. At last the general turned to his orderly—a Pathan sowar—and told him to dismount, take his carbine, and try and stalk the mountaineer. The sowar started off, and presently there was a crack, and a gray-bearded old Afridi tumbled headlong down the mountain side. The sowar rejoined and fell into his place. "Well done!" said the general. "But how on earth did you manage it so easily?" "Oh," replied the sowar, "I knew his habits. He was my father."—London Truth.

Melbourne, which consisted of 15 huts, and was known as Beargrass, at the time of Queen Victoria's accession, is now classed as the seventh city of the British empire, coming in after London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Manchester, Birmingham and Calcutta.

HIS OLD YELLOW ALMANAC.

I left the farm when mother died, and changed my place of dwellin'
To daughter Susie's stylish house, right in the city street,
And there was them, before I came, that sort of scared me tellin'
How I would find the town-folk's ways so difficult to meet.

They said I'd have no comfort in the rustlin' fixed-up throng,
And I'd have to wear stiff collars every weekday right along.

I find I take to city ways just like a duck to water.

I like the racket and the noise, and never tire of shows;
And there's no end of comfort in the mansion of my daughter.

And everything is right at hand, and money freely flows;
And hired help is all about, just listenin' for my call.

But I miss the yellow almanac off my kitchen wall.

The house is full of calendars from attic to the cellar;
They're painted in all colors, and are fancy-like to see.

But just in this particular I'm not a modern feller,
And the yellow-covered almanac is good enough for me;

I'm used to it, I've seen it round from boyhood to old age,

And I rather like the jokin' at the bottom of each page.

I like the way the "S" stood out to show the week's beginnin'

(In these new-fangled calendars the days seemed sort of mixed),
And the man upon the cover, though he wasn't exactly winnin'

With lungs and liver all exposed, still showing how we are fixed;
And the letters, credentials that was writ to Mr. Ayer,

I've often, on a rainy day, found readin' very fair.

I tried to find one recently; there wa'n't one in the city.

They toted out great calendars in every sort of style;
I looked at 'em in cold disdain, and answered 'em in pity:

"I'd rather have my almanac than all that costly pile."

And, though I take to city life, I'm lonesome, after all,
For that old yellow almanac upon my kitchen wall.

WAS HE BLUFFING?

The Very Disagreeable Revelation of a Man Who Was in No Hurry.

At four o'clock one Friday afternoon not long ago as Mr. T— was busily engaged at his desk in a down town office a man walked in and inquired for Mr. B—, who occupies a desk at the opposite side of the same office. Mr. T— thought he recognized the man as an unwelcome caller. When asked if Mr. B— was in, without raising his eyes from the work before him, Mr. T— answered, "No, he is not," whereupon the caller remarked that as he was not very busy he thought he would sit down and wait.

At five o'clock he was still waiting.

At 5:30, still waiting.

A few minutes before six Mr. T— closed his desk for the day and prepared to go home. The caller ventured to ask if Mr. B— was likely to return to his office again that day. Mr. T— answered:

"No; he is in Buffalo and will be back next Tuesday morning."

The caller showed no anger. On the contrary he smiled.

"Don't apologize," he said; "my business was not important, and your office has proved a pleasant lounging place. Fact is," he blandly added, "I suppose I'm coming down with the smallpox and the doctor told me I must stay indoors and keep warm."

And Mr. T— anxiously wonders whether he was lying or not.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"What do you think of this wireless telegraphy?"

"I think it's one of the worst things that ever happened. It's an imposition, that's what it is. Pretty soon it'll be so that the man who goes into the woods 19 miles from the nearest postoffice for the purpose of getting away from his business may receive a message at any moment calling him home to attend to something that, in case it had gone wrong in his absence, he could have blamed somebody else for."—Chicago Evening News.

The United States government pays an average of 46 cents to collect every dollar of revenue.

Judge Kinne carried Washtenaw county by 1,168 and Democratic Monroe county by 26. These figures are striking proof that the people are satisfied with the way in which justice is administered by the judge.

Washtenaw, Monroe, Jackson and Lenawee will constitute a census district for the taking of the next United States census, and will be in charge of a supervisor who will receive $1,000 and allowances. He will have the selection of the enumerators in his district, who will probably make from $75 to $85 a month while their work lasts.

Queen Victoria, of England, will be 80 years old May 24th, and it is announced that next month will bring her last formal appearance in public. Such an action will practically bring to a close the longest, most peaceful and yet glorious reign of any British monarch. The Prince of Wales, who is next in line to the throne, is 59 years old next November.

The official returns of the board of canvassers for Washtenaw county were as follows: Grant 4,605, Barkworth 4,469, Grant's plurality 136; Dean 5,198, Sutton, 4,696, LeGe dre 4,164, Parkhill 4,024; Kinne 5,178, Cavanaugh 4,012, Kinne's plurality 1,168; Lister 4,858, Hoppe 4,251, Lister's plurality 607; amendments, circuit courts, Yes 997, No 1,808; state printing, Yes 1,298, No 2,025; highways, Yes 1,608, No 1,971, intermediate court, Yes 993, No 1,913.

The supreme court Tuesday dealt the saloonkeepers of the state a hard blow, in an opinion in a case brought to test the validity of the ordinance of the city of Holland, which imposes a license fee of $300 on retail liquor dealers above the $500 state tax. The court holds that it is entirely within the province of cities and villages to exact an additional license. This opinion opens a very wide channel for cities and villages of the state desiring to crush out saloons.

Grand Rapids Herald: In his Ann Arbor speech Governor Roosevelt, drawing upon his own experience, admitted he did not know which most to dread, "the machine politician or the fool reformer." He is quite right. The machine politician, taken in the worst sense, may be dishonest and corrupt, and he usually is, but good citizenship will assert itself when he goes too far, and there are laws upon the statute books to curb his greed. But the "fool reformer," that is, the reformer who would make all the world good by law, who would abolish sin and have wickedness done away with, is more difficult to handle. Happy would be the state and the municipality if both the machine politician, with his dishonesty, and the ram, ant radical reformer, could be disposed of, for with just ordinary, plain common sense the world would move along with a pretty fair degree of smoothness.

The United States supreme court on Monday declared unconstitutional the 1000-mile ticket provision of the railway laws of the state of Michigan, thereby knocking out Gov. Pingree's contention with regard to the price and transferable character of such tickets. The decision was handed down by a divided court, the chief justice and Justices Gray and McKenna dissenting. This was the celebrated case of Congressman Henry C. Smith vs. the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway, in which Mr. Smith sought to compel the company to sell him a 1000-mile ticket good for himself and wife. The Michigan courts issued a mandamus to compel the issuance of the ticket, the state supreme court sustained the lower court and the case was carried on a writ of error to the highest court. The case, which has been in court since 1891, was of a personal interest to a large number of people, but the railroad wins again.

Death of Joseph Schatz.

Joseph Schatz for 25 years a respected resident of Chelsea, died in Fresno, Cal., April 18, of heart disease, aged 66 years, 8 months and 17 days. His fatal illness was brought about by an attack of the grip which he had four years ago, from which he never recovered, and for two years he had been quite ill. Last December he went to California, accompanied by his wife, in the hope of regaining his health, and for a time was somewhat better. The improvement was only temporary, and he gradually grew worse until he quietly and peacefully passed away at 8:30 a. m. last Thursday.

Mr. Schatz was born in Korb, ober- amt Waiblingen Konigreich, Wurtemberg, July 26, 1832, and came to America when 22 years of age. He was married in Ann Arbor, April 17, 1859, to Miss Barbara Boos. Eight children, five sons and three daughters, were born of this union, six of whom are alive, viz., George, Henry and Herman, who are out west, William, of Chelsea, Mrs. Libbie Hayes, of Grass Lake, and Miss Sophie Schatz.

The funeral services were held at the house at 1 o'clock and at the Baptist church at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, and were conducted by Rev. F. E. Arnold, of Ypsilanti. The remains were laid to rest in Oak Grove cemetery. Besides his wife and children he leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn the loss of a loving husband, a kind father and a good neighbor.

Circuit Court Notes.

The adjourned session of the circuit court opened Monday at Ann Arbor. Several cases for damages were put over until the first week of the May term.

In the cases of the Bortles vs. William Judson et al., Attorney Lehman said that the order of the court for security for costs had not been complied with and the cause will not be heard this term.

In the case of Charles Meyers vs. Selby A. Moran, editor of the Ann Arbor Register, to settle up a copartnership Judge Kinne handed down his decision Monday, that the proofs in the case did not sustain the allegations in the bill and in his opinion no copartnership existed. The bill was therefore dismissed.

The motion for a new trial in the Schermerhorn-Mollie Bennett will case was denied and an appeal may be taken to the supreme court. Several other cases have also been disposed of.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Grotton, S. D.: "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial; took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1. Guaranteed or price refunded.

HOW DENTISTS ARE MADE

Instruction Given at the Dental Surgery College at the University of Michigan.

REQUIREMENTS TO SECURE ADMISSION.

Must Be Eighteen Years of Age and in Some Cases Pass Examinations—Three Years' Study Necessary—The Cost to Students—The Museum a Place of Interest.

(Special Correspondence.)

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 12.—The College of Dental Surgery of the University of Michigan has an enrollment the present year of 234. Sixty-six of these belong to the senior class and the remainder to the sophomore and freshmen classes. The course of instruction which leads to the degree of doctor of dental surgery covers three college years of nine months each.

To Gain Admission.

Students to gain admission to this department must be at least 18 years of age. Those who are graduates of recognized colleges, academies, or high schools are admitted to the department without entrance examinations, while those who do not enjoy this advantage are examined as to their previous education and their fitness to enter on the technical study of dentistry.

The First Year.

A large part of the work given during the students' first two years in the department is the same as that assigned to the medical students, the work, in fact, being conducted in the medical department. The forenoon of each day in the week, except Saturday and Sunday, is devoted to attending lectures, recitations and quizzes, and the afternoon to practical work in the laboratories.

Practical Work.

The freshman is required to devote $34 hours during the year to this practical work.

in the dental operating rooms, the largest of which contains 60 chairs. Here the senior is under the immediate supervision of a member of the faculty, who watches every step and sees that the work is properly done. Each patient, before being assigned to a student, is examined by a member of the faculty and then assigned to the one who is best able to do the work. This practical work continues throughout the entire senior year, each student being required to devote at least 13 hours a week to it.

How Patients Are Secured.

The patients for the clinical operating room are secured to a large extent

JONATHAN TAFT,
Dean of College of Dental Surgery.

from the students attending the university. Other patients are people visiting in Ann Arbor, who take advantage of the opportunity of getting their dental work done at a small cost. Not a few of the patients are from the farming community near Ann Arbor. As the only charge made for dental work is the actual cost of the materials used, the department has no trouble in keeping its 66 seniors busy at their chairs.

Some Statistics.

During the college year of 1897-98 11,193 patients were treated. The number of gold fillings was 6,260; plastic fillings, 1,450; extractions, 704; cleanings, 428; artificial plates, 154. The chief object sought in all clinic work is to save teeth; to fill and to build up rather

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Daily Summary of the Work Done by the Lawmakers in the Senate and House.

Lansing, Mich., April 11.—D. C. Imboden, of a Chicago gas lamp company, recently appeared before the senate committee on state affairs, in the interest of gasoline gas lamps, asking for an amendment to senate bill No. 153 to accept gasoline lamps the same as provided in the bill for accepting gasoline stoves. The committee was asked, however, to accept only lamps of a safe and proper construction, which is to be determined by the state through a careful inspection of lamps offered, and a fee of $100 to be paid to the state to defray the expense of such investigation by mechanical experts to be employed by the state, and only such lamps to be accepted as are approved and to which official certificates are issued for same to be allowed to be used.

Lansing, Mich., April 12.—The senate yesterday killed a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution providing for the initiative and referendum in all matters of legislation. Both houses passed a bill permitting the spring shooting of migratory ducks. In the house favorable reports were made on bills prohibiting the manufacture or sale of cigarettes in the state.

Lansing, Mich., April 13.—The senate yesterday passed the bill prohibiting prize fights under the name of boxing matches after a large number of counties had been exempted from the provisions of the measure.

Lansing, Mich., April 14.—Bills have been passed in the senate organizing fractional school district of Oakley in Saginaw and Shiawassee counties; enabling mining companies to incorporate with $5,000 capital stock; amending divorce laws so that testimony can be taken after 60 days filing notice of application for divorce; providing for public or private sale of all property pledged as collateral security for loans, and notices to be given before sale.

In the house bills have been passed authorizing the quartermaster general to furnish to each camp of Sons of Veterans not to exceed 20 of the condemned muskets belonging to the state; incorporation act for cooperative life or casualty insurance companies; providing for the retirement of state bonds, $19,000, interest upon which ceased in 1883. If bonds are not presented by December 30, 1899, to be forfeited to the state; closed season, September and October, for mink, raccoon, skunk and muskrats. The labor committee reported out favorably Mr. Watters' bill providing an eight-hour work day for all miners who work underground. The committee on fisheries and game reported favorably the bill to make a state park out of all of Lake county but six townships. The park is to be used for the propagation of fish and game, and to be under charge of the game warden.

Lansing, Mich., April 15.—There is a strong sentiment in the senate in favor of amending the beet sugar bounty appropriation bill which passed the house this week by limiting the amount a company shall be paid in a single year. Bills have been passed prohibiting the spearing of fish in lakes of Livingston county; making appropriation of $5,175.18 to cover deficiency of state board of fish commissioners during years 1896-7; changing name of Michigan normal school to Michigan normal college; fixing the salary of game and fish warden at $2,000. In the house bills have been passed amending general tax law so as to make the auditor-general a party defendant to all actions instituted for the purpose of setting aside any sale for delinquent taxes held by the state; providing payment of $10 a month, not to exceed $1,200, to Thomas Allen, who was convicted of a crime of which he was innocent and sentenced to Jackson prison; amending constitution to allow the introduction of bills at any time during the session of the legislature; appropriation for the horticultural interests of the state; amending charter of the city of Grand Rapids so as to place the appointment of city attorney in the hands of the mayor.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS.

Secretary of the Treasury Preparing to Meet Anticipated Demand for Small Bids.

Washington, April 15.—In anticipation of a largely increased demand for notes of small denominations when the fall crop movement begins, the secretary of the treasury is making arrangements materially to increase the treasury holdings of these small notes by raising the capacity for production of one, two, five and ten cents from $492,000 per day to $780,000 or $800,000 a day. It is thought that by July 1 a sufficient amount of these notes will be available to meet any possible emergency. Up to this time national banks have not seemed willing to exchange large notes for those of smaller denominations, but it is believed as soon as the coming fall crop begins to move the pressure will be too great to resist and the treasury means to be forehanded.

Bank Robbed.

St. Joseph, Mich., April 14.—The private bank of Ball & Son, of Coloma, a small village 12 miles north of this city, was robbed Wednesday night of $1,285. When Mr. Ball came down to the bank Thursday morning he found the door standing open and the bank vault wrecked by dynamite. Valuable papers were scattered all over the main floor. The clock had stopped at midnight, which was probably the time the explosion occurred, as the entire face of the clock was broken.

Asks for an Investigation.

Columbus, O., April 17.—Attorney General Monnett on Saturday filed with the supreme court an information regarding the attempt said to have been made to bribe him, and while he asks an order from the court for an investigation of the entire matter, he does not name the man who made the alleged propositions on behalf of the Standard Oil company.

Another Combine.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 15.—Arrangements have just been completed for the consolidation of the hoop iron and cotton tie interests of the country. The capital stock of the new company will be $33,000,000, of which $14,000,000 is preferred and $19,000,000 common.

THE WOMEN SAY

There is No Remedy the Equal of Pe-ru-na in All Their Peculiar Ills.

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered with sleeplessness from over-work in the school-room, such as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief by spending a couple of dollars for some Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-ru-na I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I feel healthy and well, but if I should be sick I will know what to take. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good."

ALABASTINE

LABASTINE is the original and only durable wall coating, entirely different from all kalsomines. Ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by adding cold water.

ADIES naturally prefer ALABASTINE for walls and ceilings, because it is pure, clean, durable. Put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions.

LL kalsomines are cheap, temporary preparations made from whitening, chalks, clays, etc., and stuck on walls with decaying animal glue. ALABASTINE is not a kalsomine.

EWARE of the dealer who says he can sell you the "same thing" as ALABASTINE or "something just as good." He is either not posted or is trying to deceive you.

ND IN OFFERING something he has bought cheap and tries to sell on ALABASTINE'S demands, he may not realize the damage you will suffer by a kalsomine on your walls.

ENSIBLE dealers will not buy a lawsuit. Dealers risk one by selling and consumers by using infringement. Alabastine Co. own right to make wall coating to mix with cold water.

HE INTERIOR WALLS of every schoolhouse should be coated only with pure, durable ALABASTINE. It safeguards health. Hundreds of tons are used annually for this work.

N BUYING ALABASTINE, see that packages are properly labeled. Beware of large four-pound package light kalsomine, offered to customers as a five-pound package.

USAGE of wall paper is obviated by ALABASTINE. It can be used on plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas. A child can brush it on. It does not rub or scale off.

ESTABLISHED in favor. Shun all imitations. Ask paint dealer or druggist for tint card. Write for "Alabastine Era," free, to ALABASTINE CO., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

The official crop report, based on reports from 700 correspondents, representing every section of the state, says: Wheat was seriously injured in March. Its condition now being but 73 per cent. as compared with average years. The absence of snow caused fields to be frozen to a great depth. Lost Her Voice.

Miss Augusta Brundage, a telephone girl in the Lansing exchange, awoke in the morning in a speechless condition and has been unable since to utter a word. The singular feature of the case is that she has experienced no pain or discomfort, but there is an apparent paralysis of the vocal organs. The affliction is believed to be the result of too much work at the exchange, and there is a difference of opinion among physicians as to whether the loss of voice is permanent.

Good Showing by Banks.

A statement prepared by the state banking commissioner shows the increase in the loans and deposits of the state and national banks of Michigan between December 1, 1893, and February 4, 1894, the dates upon which reports from both classes of banks were called for. The increase in state bank loans was $1,412,446, and in deposits $4,430,175. The increase in national bank loans was $824,699 and in deposits $2,664,895.

The appointment will hold until January, when Judge Mayne will enter upon the duties of the regular six year term to which he was elected at the last election.

Met a Horrible Fate.

Old Mr. Tracy, a farmer living in Arabela, was missing for some time and the family began searching, and were horrified to find his body in the hog pen, nearly eaten up by the hogs. It is supposed he went into the pen for something and was attacked by the hogs, and, being about 70 years old, was unable to escape.

PLEASED WITH ALBERTA.

An Excellent Report from Wisconsin and Minnesota Delegates.

The opinion of five delegates from Minnesota and Wisconsin, published by the Edmonton Bulletin, are very complimentary to Northern Alberta. The report says:

"We must say with all sincerity that, driving all over the country for six days, we have not found one settler who was not more than pleased with the country and its productions, and will not return to the land he left. We have seen people here from all parts of the states and all doing well. We met a Dakota farmer by the name of McLean, who has informed us that he has raised more grain here in three years than he did in 13 where he came from, on half as much ground. We have seen a number of others, both men and women, and all speak in the same strain about Alberta. They all look well and contented; even the children are happy. In our drives over the country, in passing the countless schoolhouses, we could only see happiness in the faces of the little ones. We noticed them all well dressed, equal if not better than the same class of children in the State of Minnesota.

The wheat that is raised here is just beautiful, the kernel full and plump and may well be termed golden grain, yielding 30 to 55 bushels to the acre. This statement is not from one farmer, but from hundreds, who tell the same tale. Oats yield from 70 to 100 bushels to the acre, barley from 40 to 60 bushels and potatoes from 300 to 400 bushels to the acre.

We have taken particular notice of the climate in regard to the difference between this country and our own. When we left Ada, Minnesota, we were in the midst of a real Dakota blizzard. When we arrived at Edmonton we found the people on the streets still wearing summer clothing, no mittens on their hands and far less use for them. The country is simply more than we ever dreamed of. The printed matter sent out by the Government does not half tell of the grand country in Alberta, open for millions of people to make beautiful homes for themselves. Too much cannot be said in praise. It is all and more than the greatest eulogist ever thought of giving to the public.

We saw cattle and horses in herds grazing on the prairie like in summer time, all sleek and fat. We were informed by several farmers that most of the stock run out all winter. We also found the market extra good here for beef and pork. Hogs fetch 4½¢ live weight. Three-year-old steers will bring from $40 to $45 right from the prairie. Coal and wood are here in abundance. Coal is sold in the town of Edmonton for $2 per ton and farmers can secure coal at the mines themselves for 75¢ per load.

Before closing we say to you one and all, come to Alberta, where there are homes for millions and a promise for something to lay by for an old age. We are well satisfied with this country, and as evidence have each bought a half section of C. P. R. land in township 55, range 21, west of the 4th initial meridian, and will return next spring to reside.

Hoping this may be of some benefit to the overburdened farmers of the United States.

Sent by Floyd Dean, son of E. S. Dean, of Beaverville, Mich., who is now in Alberta, and has taken up 160 acres there.

A thousand dollars' well expended on the road from Chelsea to Unadilla by way of North Lake would bring many more dollars' worth of produce to Chelsea, and nearly all the money would find its way back there for needed trade. What has been appropriated has been a great help and benefit to all owners and goers on the road.

On Saturday last we attended the funeral of Mr. Gilbert, one of the old residents of Unadilla, a blacksmith by trade. He was a respected member of society in which he lived so long, and will be greatly missed in the M. E. church of which he was a consistent member. Quite a number of those attending the funeral will in all probability not attend many more such occasions, as the aged must die. One daughter is left alone in the old home and one in Ohio. Rev. A Cure for Constipation.

I have been troubled with constipation for years. It was ruining my health, my comfort and my complexion, and I am glad to say that Celery King has restored all three, and this after trying many other medicines that were supposed to be good, but which were of no value whatever. I would like to tell every suffering woman what Celery King has done for me—Nellie Gould, Medina, Ohio.

I have recently invented a very superior ICE MACHINE and applied for patents on same.

A large eastern concern are now building the first machine for me. This first, model machine, will be finished and in operation in Chelsea about May 15th.

I wish to thoroughly demonstrate the economy and superiority of this machine the coming season; in order to be in a position to manufacture and place them on the market next year. To do this it will be necessary to operate one in an experimental way the coming season. To dispose of the large amount of ICE that will be frozen, I make the following prices:

Private Residences $2.50 for the entire season.

Hotels, Restaurants and Bakeries 5.00 for the entire season.

This PURE CRYSTAL ICE will be delivered every day, and will be carefully washed and placed in your refrigerator.

If at the end of the season you do not say that it is the best ICE you have ever used, you need not pay one cent for your season's supply.

Yours Respectfully,
