THE JUDSON-MORAN CASE

Put Over Until the Next Term of the Circuit Court,

ON DEFENDANT'S AFFIDAVIT

THAT JAMES GEDDES, OF CHELSEA, IS A MATERIAL WITNESS IN HIS BEHALF.—JUDSON WANTED THE CASE TO GO ON, BUT THE JUDGE WOULD NOT DO IT

The Judson-Moran case has again been put over until next term of court on the affidavit of the defendant, Selby A. Moran, who sets forth in his deposition as follows:

That James Geddes is a material witness for his side and that he fully believed that the case would be tried in some other court than that of the Washtenaw circuit. Consequently he made no preparation for the trial of the cause at the May term. The affidavit then proceeds:

"And this deponent further says that he expects and believes that he shall be able to prove by the said witness (James Geddes) the following facts and circumstances, to-wit: That the said witness, James Geddes, resides at Chelsea, in said county, and was at one time, shortly previous to an election to be held in the township of Sylvan and village of Chelsea, requested and importuned by the said William Judson to use money to be furnished by said Judson in influencing or attempting to influence voters at such election to cast their ballots for the candidate to be chosen by said Judson. And that in such conversation with said witness, Geddes, the said plaintiff (Judson) told the witness how the said ballots were to be cast and what precautions he (Judson) would take so as to be sure who did and who did not vote in the manner and for the candidates he (Judson) should select, and in what way and manner the ballots were to be marked and designated so that no mistakes should occur in the count, showing how many ballots had been cast according to the wishes of said Judson in such election. Deponent further says that since he knew said case was to be tried at the present term of court he has used every means possible, by sending messengers and by correspondence, to find the whereabouts of said witness in order to procure his attendance upon said trial at the present term of the court. That said witness is a traveling man engaged in traveling for some house in Bay City at the present time, the name and style of which is unknown to deponent, and that it will be impossible to obtain his attendance at said trial as a witness at the present term of the court. That at the opening of said term of court deponent expected to be able to get the attendance of said witness in a few days' notice at any time, and it was only at the time of making this affidavit that he was fully advised that it would be impossible to obtain the attendance of said witness.

(Signed by) "SELBY A. MORAN." When the affidavit was read in court, Attorney Brown objected to any further delay in the trial of the cause, and thought that the witness could be found. Judge Kinne, however, said that they could only go by the affidavit, and allowed the case to go over the term.

HOW HE LOST HER.

He Struck Out and She Gave Herself to the Young Man Who Didn't Play Ball.

A bright flush overspread the face of the young girl in the pink shirt waist, who sat in the grand stand, as the stalwart young man who had played in the field in the first half of the inning stepped to the plate, bat in hand.

"Line 'er out, old man!" "Three-base hit!" "Good boy!" "Home run!" "Hit it in 'de nose!" "Swat it good an' hard!" sung out the cranks.

The stalwart young man carelessly lifted his cap, replaced it, grasped his bat with a firmer hold, moved it in graceful circles over his shoulder, while the pitcher was doing the preliminary mysterious juggling with the ball that marks the high-priced player, and as the leather sphere—it is the correct form to call it—a leather sphere—came toward him like a rifle shot he swung his bat.

"Ah!" groaned the crowd.

He had fanned the air.

This phrase is also the correct form.

Again the high-priced pitcher juggled the ball mysteriously, again it came like a rifle shot, again the young man at the plate swung his bat—

And again the crowd groaned:

"Ah!"

The high-priced catcher rolled the ball carelessly down to third, put on his mask, came close behind the bat, spread his high-priced legs apart, placed his hands on his knees, leaned forward, and made an imperceptible signal to the high-priced pitcher.

The vast crowd held its breath.

Which is also the correct thing to do at a critical moment like this.

Like a shot the ball sped toward the plate.

With a mighty lunge the young athlete swung his bat a third time.

It smote only the air.

Another groan burst from the crowd.

He had not only struck out, but put the side out.

"Mr. Spoonamore," said the young woman in the pink shirt waist, turning with pale cheeks and flashing eyes to the pimply-faced young man who sat by her side. "I said 'no' to you the other day. I say yes now. I will marry you whenever you like!"—Chicago Tribune.

SAVED THE SECRET.

He Hoodwinked His Trusting Wifey But at What a Fearful Cost to Himself.

He had been out late. When he reached his residence the church clock was chiming five. Heavy, weary, disgusted, he opened the front door with some difficulty, and softly toiled up the stairs, entering the bed chamber with elaborate caution.

Thank goodness, she was asleep!

He dropped into a chair, and, without taking off his coat or hat, began to remove his shoes. One he placed with great care upon the floor, but, alas! as he took off the other it slipped out of his hand and fell with a loud noise.

"Wifey" awoke on the instant.

She looked at him and then at the summer sunlight that streamed through the blinds.

"Why, George, what are you getting up so early for?"

"Talk ab 'treprieves!"

"Why, my dear," replied George, with the clearest enunciation of which he was capable, "I found I couldn't sleep, so I thought I'd get up and go out and take a walk."

And out the poor wretch went, dragging himself round wearily for an hour upon the verge of tears and torpor.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

China's Powerful Sword.

There is an ancient and dreadful sword in China. It gives to the man who happens to hold it the power to cut off the head of any one he wishes without danger of punishment.

All people flee from this sword as fearfully as stomach ills flee before the approach of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This famous remedy cures all forms of stomach troubles, beginning with constipation and ending with liver or kidney disease. It will be found in all drug stores and it always cures.

Nervous People.

Nervous people not only suffer themselves but cause more or less misery to everyone around them. They are fretful, easily worried and therefore a worry to others.

When everything annoys you; when your pulse beats excessively; when you are startled at the least unexpected sound, your nerves are in a bad state and should be promptly attended to.

Nervousness is a question of nutrition. Food for the nerves is what you need to put you right, and the best nerve food in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

They give strength and tone to every nerve in the body, and make despondent, easily irritated people feel that life has renewed its charms. Here is proof:

Miss Cora Watrous, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. J. C. Watrous, of Clinton St., Bradford, Pa., was seized with a nervous disorder which threatened to end her life. Eminent physicians agreed the trouble was from impoverished blood, but failed to give relief. Mr. Watrous heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and was highly recommended for nervous disorders, and gave them a trial. Before the first box had been taken the pain in her head ceased, and she was stronger than ever before. "My daughter's life was saved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said taking them, but now she is strong and healthy. I cannot recommend these pills too highly."—Bradford (Pa.) Era.

The rock must have been at least 15 feet higher than the surrounding ledge, for I could see the sun through the water overhead. It was longest from east to west, and in the middle was a small projection as high as my shoulders. It was this which sent a shivering conviction through me that I had found the wreck at last, and I eagerly searched for another projection at the westerly end. After taking about 20 steps I found it, or rather I found a small lump of rock where it should have been; and this settled my last doubt. My first impression, that the foremast had broken off shorter than the main, was accounted for by the fact that the whole westerly end of the mound was two or three feet higher than the middle. Walking east, to the other end, I found it several feet lower yet; so our theory as to the drift of the coral fragments had been absolutely correct. It now remained but to ascertain how thick the coating was on the northerly side, and I rapidly scrambled down to where I had first stumbled against the wreck.

I had brought the smaller steel bar with me from the proa, and this I began driving against the perpendicular incrustation of coral at a spot near the stern. At the second blow, however, I slightly lost my equilibrium, and found that the rock upon which I stood shivered rapidly. A horror of the unfathomable depth which lay but a few feet beyond made me throw myself flat upon the bottom, digging my nails into the coral lest I should slip and sink to I knew not where. Lying there until the beating of my heart slowed down to something like a normal pulsation, I saw a faint reflection of light beneath the keel—enough to show that several feet of the stern hung sheer over the precipice.

It must have been at least ten minutes before I recovered strength enough to crawl back upon the higher portion of the ledge; then, realizing that my supply of air was nearly exhausted, I braced myself firmly and began driving away with the steel bar again. The coral easily crumbled under the blows, though at that depth it was filled with live animalcules, and in a few moments the bar had penetrated several inches; then it struck something soft and spongy, in which it stuck. Rapidly enlarging the hole until I could put my hand into it without tearing the skin, I felt about for a second or two and succeeded in detaching a splinter of water-logged wood—a piece of the hull itself.

This was enough for one day. I had found the reef. I had actually found the wreck of a ship which, from its coral deposit, must have lain in the one position for over a hundred years at least—presumably the galleon Nuestra Señora de Sevilla. And I had found that the coral jacket on the northerly side of her hull was less than six inches in thickness! I wanted to dance from sheer satisfaction, but it occurred to me that it might be safer to do so in the proa above water, so I started back toward her.

Now my mind was so filled with exultation at having accomplished seeming impossibilities that I tried to put my hands in my pockets and whistle as I strode along. But there were no pockets in the confounded rig, and the whistle was a mistake—a big mistake. It not only exhausted my breathing air, but it produced a concussion that cut copper helmet which nearly lifted the roof off of my skull. It shook my confidence so much that, when the ringing partially subsided in my ears, I hurried along even faster toward the proa. After walking considerably farther than what should have been the proper distance I began to curse my thoughtlessness in not towing the thing along after me, instead of leaving it to be hunted up when even seconds were precious. In my nervousness I must have gone too far. Finally I turned back, looking right and left for the line which had been fastened to the lump of coquina. Just when hope had almost left me I stumbled upon the piece of rock and grasped the rope to ascend. But things seemed to be turned around. Instead of slanting to the westward, as it should have done, the line hung over toward the precipice.

Thinking that I had surely lost my bearings, I took a step or two under it in an attempt to haul the proa directly overhead, but the rock shivered abruptly. In another second I lost my footing. I pulled frantically at the end which was fast to the rock, but only started it rolling after me. Then I clutched at the bare coral, but it was too late. Over I went, and the rock after me, with a jerk which nearly pulled the line from my grasp. Feeling sure that the line would hold at 50 feet, I clung to it desperately. For just the fraction of a second it did hold. Then I could feel those loops slowly but remorselessly pulling loose, and I shot downward.

Then down until the pressure gripped my arms and legs in an iron vise—until the blood gushed from my nose and ears. The water grew icy cold, and darker—darker. The helmet seemed filled with rushing noises, with whispers and mocking laughter. I tried to tear away the lead weights which hung from my belt and shoulders, but they wouldn't budge. For a moment or two I must have become delirious; I was kissing Dorotea's sweet lips, McPherson was talking about Gladstone in his broadest Scotch, Sam Hung Foo was making bobbly about a pink devil with red stomach and gilded ears, every face I ever knew flashed before my eyes as if the lens were a kinetoscope. Then—there came a jerk at the line! It must have caught on something. I knew I hadn't fastened the other end. To stay at that depth another second would have meant unconsciousness and death. Fearing with every tug that my weight, added to that of the rock, would pull the line loose, I hauled myself up, hand over hand, though the exertion was so great on account of the pressure that every motion seemed likely to burst a blood vessel. Of course, in doing this the air in the knapsack counted for a good deal; in all probability I couldn't have sunk much lower unless it had exploded; but the weights would have held me at that depth had it not been for that slender bit of rope. For several fathoms it needed but the slightest tug to send me shooting upward, and as the pressure increased I was better able to use my arms. My strength was going fast, however, and nothing but the animal instinct to fight for life saved me. Approaching the surface, I became weaker—or it required more strength to haul the extra weight—and when I finally got my arms across the gunwale and outtrigger it was impossible to move another inch. The supply of air had given out, and my last conscious motion was to unscrew the helmet lens.

In a few moments the fresh air revived me, and I succeeded in crawling into the proa. Then I got out of the diving suit, took a strong pull at the brandy flask, and hauled in my line. It had run out so rapidly, after fetching loose from the mast, that a snarl had caught the other steel bar and jammed it under the outrigger. Otherwise—well, I didn't like to think of that.

It is curious what an affection one will sometimes feel for inanimate objects. I petted that coquina anchor as if it had been a living creature. You see, we had gone down into the valley of the shadow together, and but for a direct interposition of Providence would have been likely to remain there. I must have been altogether upset by the experience, for, after hauling the rock on board, I held it in my lap and almost cried over it.

The position of the proa, over deep water, was explained by the light puffs of wind, which for an hour or two had shifted to the west'ard, as it will sometimes do shortly before the change of monsoon. But in half an hour it was again blowing steadily from the northeast, and I started on my return to Agana.

It was then two o'clock. Having the breeze well forward, I calculated that it would take me at least six hours to get back; but the witch of a boat made good headway within five points of the wind, and I sighted Tiniquio, bearing a little north of east, at four o'clock. Holding on the same course for half an hour, Agana then lay to the southeast'ard; and I put the proa about for a straight run in.

When about ten miles off shore, however, I discovered that I had company; for bearing down from the north'ard was the biggest catamaran I ever saw. The hull must have been at least a hundred feet long, and the sail looked like a gigantic balloon. The instant I noticed it, two words flashed through my mind—"Padre Sebastiano"—and I was convinced that my oleaginuous shipmate was coming to pay Guajan a visit.

Now, any companions, native or Spanish, who might accompany the padre were likely to be either in his confidence or under his influence; and it struck me that the sea chest might excite more curiosity than was really safe. So I did considerable hard thinking over what had been told me about the sparsely settled portions of the island, in the effort to decide upon a safe place for the concealment of both chest and treasure if it should become necessary. There was but one spot that I felt sure about—Port Tarofoto, on the southeast coast. This was a land-locked bay, surrounded by bold, rocky bluffs, and was uninhabited. In an air line, it was 9½ miles south of Agana; but, as the islanders never walked or rode that distance when they could travel in proas, there was but one chance in a thousand of any boat's being seen beating in—especially as the place had the unsavory reputation of being haunted. On the land side there had been an old sugar plantation known as Mount Tarofoto farm, but the gobernador had mentioned it as being abandoned; and the mountain, or bluff, shut out all view of the sea.

The more I thought of it, the more it seemed exactly the place I wanted. It needed but the falling off a few points to head for the Cocos Island instead of Agana, and by half-past six I passed it as close in shore as it was safe to go. By seven o'clock I had reached sufficiently to the east'ard for a straight run into Tarofoto, and, going about, rounded Point Palepouc just at dusk. As the depth of the water and the exact bearing of the bluffs were accurately shown upon my chart, I had no difficulty in running ashore at the westerly head of Palepouc cove, which I judged to be completely sheltered from observation on the land side. After lowering the sail, I noticed that the rocks descended abruptly into the water at the spot I had selected, and was on the point of running along to where the chart showed a small creek, when a slight opening attracted my attention. The precipice was so close that I could have tossed a pebble against it, and the spot so perfectly sheltered that I felt safe in using my lantern. Outlines were becoming indistinct in the gathering darkness, but the moment I turned on the current it revealed a fissure, about four feet wide, which led diagonally into the face of the rock. There was a good three feet of water right up to the opening, and upon throwing the light inside I could see that it ended in a cul de sac with perpendicular walls.

If I had searched the entire archipelago it would have been difficult to find a place more perfectly suited to my requirements; when I came again, in broad daylight, the fissure was invisible 100 feet away. It was something of a task to unload the contents of the big chest, but in a short time I had them stowed away under a tarpaulin, 60 feet from the opening, and was ready to leave the cove. The moon was not yet up, but the starlight was sufficient to navigate by, and I reached Agana by 11 o'clock. As the big proa I had seen was of too heavy draught to run across the shoal in front of the town, I was not surprised at her absence. The lights about the gobernador's quarters were sufficient indication that visitors had arrived, and I managed to sneak up the back steps to my room without attracting attention. It was well that I did so, for my face was a sight. Little rivulets of clotted blood covered the lobes of my ears and my upper lip; my eyes looked like burnt holes in a blanket; and, altogether, I presented a most dissipated appearance.

Padre Sebastiano was cordiality itself, but I could see that lay brother Felipe's miracle was working in his mind, and that he was trying to figure it out upon natural grounds. I was upon the point of asking him how he happened to find the big proa so conveniently forthcoming when he decided to proceed down the islands, but reflected in time that, if I had been fishing to the east'ard, as I had explained, it would have been obviously impossible to see his flagship; so I pumped him dry upon Ladrone data instead.

The Agana padres regarded his visit as complimentary in the highest degree, respectfully swallowing his yarn about collecting materials for island history; but I couldn't help chuckling to myself when I pictured his examination of Fray Ignacio's mummy and its precious charge. Sebastiano and I were adversaries; there now seemed but little doubt of this fact. And the more I thought of it the more certain I felt that my motions were likely to be watched during every hour of the 24

Every time I went sailing alone, there was a strong probability that the big proa would keep me well in sight. Making me the cat's paw to secure his chestnuts would comfort Sebastiano's very liver.

CHAPTER XI.

That—the combination against me had strong odds in its favor seemed obvious; and I began to speculate upon how far it was safe to trust Senorita Dorotea. Strolling down to the beach with her, before retiring—just to throw Sebastiano off his guard—I learned with intense satisfaction that she both feared and detested the man. She whispered also that her father had reason to suspect the padres Julian and Sebastiano of using their influence against him in Manila. For a moment or two I had a suspicion that she and the gobernador might be under the padre's influence and trying to work themselves into my confidence with the intention of betraying me afterward. But the more I thought of this the more improbable it seemed. In the first place, relations between the educated classes and the priesthood in Spain are rapidly approaching those which obtain in Italy—neutrality on the surface, distrust beneath. Then, it seemed as though the senorita must know too much to look upon Sebastiano in other than his priestly character; and if the friendship between us was warming as rapidly as I thought, it was reasonably safe to stake her woman's heart against her head.

Finally, deciding to risk it, I asked her if she cared to spend Monday upon the water with me; and she accepted the invitation with such evident pleasure that I shoved all worry about the padre clear of my mind for the time.

When Monday morning came, we breakfasted in the patio and made an early start before Sebastiano appeared, sailing leisurely around Coeos reef as if we had the day before us and were disposed to take things easy. When I asked Dorotea if she had ever sailed into the bays on the east side, she said that, as it was usually rough and windy there, few of the islanders cared about it, only remaining in the little villages during the wet monsoon or while they were gathering rice and sugar crops. She was willing to go anywhere I chose to take her, however, and had no suspicion of my object until we headed into Palepouc cove for the instruments and diving apparatus. Then, before taking them from the fissure, I told her of my intention to search for something under the sea at Santa Rosa reef, and asked if she would help me. Looking straight into my face for a moment, she said:

"Does not Senor Enrique know of a reason why I would do anything in the world for him?"

"Nothing more than the evidence of your friendliness, senorita mia."

"So! But you do have the bad memory. It may seem nothing that you try to give great pleasure to la senorita whom you never have seen. I suppose men do think it matters little to a woman whether she does appear like other women or like una barbara? Yet you must have known, Enriqueito, or you would not have tried to do me la gran benevolencia on el vapor, when mias primas despreciables did me defraudar ignominiosamente—"

"Why, how the dickens did you find out? Who told you?"

"Yourself, senor."

"I? How? Impossible!"

"You did just tell me, by your exclamacion. I but guessed before. True, Senorita Palacios did say that you were un generoso—that you did like my picture all of the time—also that if I did find anything which I could not understand, you all about it would know. Then, mias primas in Manila did write the letter about the trimming they did have put upon las vestidas. Y contemplar! they were as described. But there were others, not of the style antiguo. And of them there is no explanation in the letter."

"Oh, well, don't say any more about it. You caught me nicely, I must say. It was the senorita's generosity, not mine. She was very kind, and it was all her doing. Now make yourself comfortable, and we'll try to find Santa Rosa."

The dress business was dangerous ground, and I didn't want to discuss it; there was the possibility of her resenting an implication that her appearance in the picture wasn't perfect. Then, again, I couldn't tell how the other girl's having made such a present, merely from the desire to please Halstead and myself, would strike her.

He Obeyed the Rule. Arthur, who is forbidden to speak at the table, had his revenge the other day. As dinner began he was very uneasy, and finally said: "Ma, can't I speak just one word?"

"You know the rule, Arthur."

"Not one word?"

"No, Arthur, not until your father finishes the paper."

Arthur subsided until the paper was finished, when he was asked what he had to say.

"Oh, nothing! Only Nora put the cucardas outside the window to cool, and the cat has been eating them up!"—Tit-Bits.

Yale Hustler: The franchise which the city of Detroit granted Tom. Johnson for little or nothing will now cost about $11,000,000 if it is bought back. Queer how things work sometimes.

With the prospect of peace with the Filipinos come the editorial congratulations of all the great London papers. The Britishers heartily compliment the American troops which have brought about this much desired result.

Richard Croker, the Tammany leader, of New York, has no use for William Jennings Bryan's silver ideas. He says: "Mr. Bryan is a nice enough fellow personally, but his 16 to 1 idea won't do. In 1900 the platform should be anti-trust and tariff reform for revenue only."

Don M. Dickinson, in an interview in the New York World, says President McKinley cannot be beaten for a second term. That's just what we say, and we won't tack on his proviso to the statement either "that the advocacy of an Anglo American alliance would defeat him."

The religious sect known as the Dunkards have a committee out looking over some of the counties of Northern Michigan with a view to the exodus of thousands of families of these people from Ohio and Indiana. The Dunkards have peculiar religious views of their own, but they make good citizens.

The Bay City Tribune has started a boom for James O'Donnell, of Jackson, as the Republican candidate for governor of Michigan in 1900. The genial editor of the Citizen has been a candidate for governor on several occasions and will yet bear off the pennant if good grit has anything to do with success.

If the bill to increase the number of justices on the supreme court bench to seven should be brought out by the judiciary committee of both houses of the state legislature and become a law, there is no good reason to put forth why Hon. E. D. Kinne should not be one of Governor Pingree's appointees to the position thus created.

Representative Chandler, of the Soo, would like to see a constitutional amendment, making it lawful to tax railroads after the plan of the Atkinson bill, submitted to the people of the state at a special election. Such a proceeding would knock all the profit out of the bill for the first year or so, but it would certainly have the effect of clearing up the political atmosphere a good deal.

Richard Croker always has an eye open for a good bargain. Speaking of the Filipino struggle he says: "My idea regarding the Philippines is that we should subdue them so as to show the inhabitants that we own the territory and then turn the islands over to the inhabitants and let them govern themselves. But I would not be opposed to trading the islands off for Canada or a part of it, or the British West Indies." That wouldn't be such a very bad trade, either, if it could be affected.

Edward Atkinson and the men of his kind who compose the "Anti-Imperialistic League of Boston," are traitors to their country in all that the name implies. A man who confesses that he has sent copies of his mutiny-inciting pamphlets, "Criminal Aggression by Whom?" "The Cost of a National Crime," and "The Hell of War and its Penalties," for no other purpose than to incite the army to mutiny, should be brought to trial and punished for his treason. The fact that his writings have caused no serious trouble should not be taken into consideration at all. A man who is capable of such revolutionary antics is too dangerous a person to be treated as a baby, or as one who is not responsible for his actions.

The "embalmed beef" commission has ended its work, its findings have been approved by the president, and everybody who had anything to do with the stuff is censured except the contractors who furnished it. Gen. Miles is censured for "error" in not informing the secretary of war that the canned roast beef was an unfit article of food in tropical climates. Gen. Egan gets the razzle-dazzle for buying the stuff in such large quantities, and Col. Maus, of Gen. Miles' staff, is censured generally, as also are others who are not named. The packers were not at fault as the army beef was the same as that supplied to the trade generally. The question now arises how much did all this cost and what good has it done anybody?

One of the bravest of the brave acts that have been performed by American soldiers during the war of the past year was the swimming of the Rio Grande river at Calumpit by Col. Frederick E. Funston and his Kansas volunteer regiment. They landed in the face of a terrific fire, and howling and cheering like madmen carried fortifications that were considered impregnable. It was one of the greatest military achievements of modern times, outrivalling that of Lieut. Hobson and his brave fellows.

The entertainment given by Herbert Leon Cope last evening at the Congregational church, under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E., was but sparsely attended. His readings were mainly of a humorous character, but very pleasing. During the program R. A. Snyder gave a vocal solo, and Mrs. Carrie Cushman-Seper played a piano solo very acceptably.

Arthur Stark, confined in the county jail at Ann Arbor, awaiting trial on the charge of an attempted criminal assault on Miss Edna Reed, a Lima school teacher, attempted to break jail Sunday by digging a hole through the brick wall with a case knife. Sheriff Gillen missed the knife, instituted a search and found it hidden in a slit in the pillow case in Stark's cell. Stark is now confined in the "safety deposit vault" of the jail upstairs and will get no more chances at jail delivery.

In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth; then the editor, the liberal advertiser and the prompt paying subscriber—it was good; next day a blizzard set in and he created a man who didn't take the home paper; then he rested. Then the devil got into the moulding room and created a man who takes the home paper for years and never pays for it. After completing that sorry job and having a few lumps of mud left he made the excuse for a man who settles his subscription by instructing the postmaster to mark his paper "refused."

Lester Winans, who is a lineman in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Co., had a narrow escape from serious injury by a fall from a 35 foot telegraph pole at Niles yesterday afternoon. He was at the top of the pole when the pin which he had hold of broke and he fell. His spurs stuck in the pole and turned him over so that for half the distance he descended head downwards, then his body turned again partially and he fell into the loose sand which had been turned up when the hole in which the pole rested was dug. His injuries are slight, but it was a very lucky escape. He came home last night.

The total income of the Michigan Central railroad for the past year was $14,046,148.91, the net earnings were $3,500,176.73. Out of this a pro rata share had to be turned over to the Canada Southern railway company, per agreement, and the total net income from traffic and rentals, per share $4.40, amounted to $824,253.54. Two dividends were declared, and these with the amount set aside for double tracking the road from Dexter to Ypsilanti, left a balance over all of $4,733.54. This would have been much larger but that the taxes of the road were jumped $78,000, in round numbers, over those of 1897.

CIRCUIT COURT JUDGES.

Twenty Elected in Michigan in the Election Last April Have Been University Students.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICES ARE ALUMNI.

Brief Description of the Career of the Men Who Are an Honor to the State That Has Elevated Them to Positions of Importance and Usefulness.

[Special Correspondence.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 3.—Twenty of the 42 circuit judges elected at the April election in Michigan are graduates of the state university or have been students at that institution.

Hon. Orville W. Coolidge who was re-elected to the bench in the Second judicial circuit, which consists of the county of Berrien, was graduated from the literary department in 1863. While in college he belonged to the Phi Phi Alpha literary society, the Psi Upsilon fraternity and the 555 society. During his senior year the honor of class orator was bestowed upon him.

Four Out of Five.

Four of the five judges in the Third district, which is the city of Detroit, are university men. They are George S. Hosmer, William L. Carpenter, Robert E. Frayer, and Morse Rohnert. Mr. Hosmer was graduated from the literary department in 1875. During his sophomore year in the university he was class secretary, the next year he was among those chosen for football and when a senior was class seer. He belonged to the Alpha Nu literary society. He was selected as poet for the class anniversary of 1878. William L. Carpenter took the degree of bachelor of law in 1878. He belonged to the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. In 1859 Robert E. Frayer was graduated from the literary department and two years later completed the work in the law school. He was a member of the Delta Phi fraternity and in 1877-78 was a member of the executive committee of the Alumni association of the law department. Morse Rohnert entered the university in 1880 and completed the work leading to the degree of bachelor of arts in three years. He was one of the youngest of his class by over a year, being but 19 years of age. Mr. Rohnert was a member of the Alpha Nu literary society.

Received Degrees.

In the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh districts Hon. Clement Smith, George W. Smith and Charles H. Wisner were re-elected. The first was a student in the university law school during the collegiate year of 1865-66; the second received the degree of bachelor of law in 1875 and the third the same degree in 1871. The Fifth district comprises the counties of Barry, Eaton and Calhoun, the Sixth district includes Lapeer and Oakland counties, and Genesee county forms the Seventh district.

Was an Editor.

In the Eleventh district, which is one of those in the upper peninsula, Joseph H. Steere was re-elected. He is a graduate of the literary department. In his senior year at the university he was an editor on the Chronicle and class historian. Hon. Frederick W. Mayne, who has been elected in the Traverse bay (Thirteenth) district, was graduated from the law department in 1881.

One of the two judges in Grand Rapids is a university graduate. Willis B. Perkins received the degree of bachelor of law in 1883. He belonged to the Phi Delta Phi fraternity when in college.

Paid His Own Way.

Hon. James B. McMahon, who was elected for the second term in the Nineteenth district, received the degree of bachelor of philosophy in 1875. He entered the university in 1871 and to a large extent paid his own way through the institution. In his sophomore year he was class prophet; in his junior year an editor on the Chronicle, and in his senior year class poet. At the commencement day exercises he delivered a poem on "The Fairy of the Glen." He was also poet for the third reunion of the class of '75. The Nineteenth circuit is composed of the counties of Mason, Manistee, Lake and Osceola.

Hon. Peter F. Dodds was returned in the Twenty-first district, which includes the counties of Clare, Isabella and Midland. He was a student in the law department of the university in 1874-75.

Class Orator.

The Twenty-second circuit comprises the counties of Washtenaw and Monroe. Here Hon. Edward D. Kinne has been returned to the bench. He received the degree of bachelor of science from the university in 1864. He was a member of the Sigma Phi fraternity, the 555 society and the editorial board of the Palladium from 1862-63. The honor of class orator was bestowed upon him in his senior year. In 1876-77 he was secretary of the Alumni association of the literary department, and the following year he was vice president of the same organization.

Hon. Maine J. Connine was elected in the Twenty-third district. He was a student in the law department in 1878-

79. This circuit comprises the counties of Iosco, Alcona, and Oscoda.

Played Baseball.

In the Twenty-sixth circuit Hon. Frank Emerick has been elected to the bench. He attended the literary department of the university during the years 1866-68 and the law department during 1873-74. He belonged to the Zeta Psi fraternity and the Aristocles society. He was a director of the baseball club and a player on the team. In his sophomore year he was an editor on the Oracle. The Twenty-sixth circuit includes the counties lying just north of those in the Twenty-third.

Liked Football.

The judge for St. Clair county, which is the Thirty-first district, is Samuel W. Vance, who was given the degree of bachelor of law by the university in 1878. In college he belonged to the Phi Delta Phi fraternity.

Hon. Norman W. Haire, who was graduated from the literary department in 1880 and the law in 1883, has been re-elected in the Thirty-second circuit, which comprises the counties of Ontonagon and Gogebic. When a junior in the literary department he was a member of the class football fifteen, which position he continued to hold after becoming a senior. He belonged to the Adelpia Literary society and the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. As a member of the Chronicle board of editors during his last year in the literary department he wrote an article on "The Riot (?) By One Who Was There," in which he defended the students who were being attacked by a certain portion of the town element.

Both Graduates.

Hon. Stearns F. Smith and Hon. John R. Carr are the judges for the Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth districts, respectively. The first district includes the counties of Shiawassee and Livingston, and the second is the new district formed in the southwestern part of the state. Both judges are graduates of the law department, Mr. Smith with the class of '73 and Mr. Carr with the class of '70. The former was a member of the Jeffersonian society while at the university.

Supreme Court Justices.

Two of the justices of the supreme court of the state are alumni of the university. Chief Justice Claudius B. Grant was given the degree of bachelor of arts in 1859 and that of master of arts in 1862. Justice Frank A. Hooker, of Charlotte, was graduated from the law department with the class of '65.

CONVICTION REVERSED.

The State Supreme Court Liberates a County Treasurer Who Was Convicted for Embezzlement.

The conviction of County Treasurer Michael Raigel, of Bay county, for embezzlement, has been reversed by the supreme court, and the respondent discharged. Raigel was convicted of receiving collection charges in addition to a salary of $3,800 allowed him by the board of supervisors. The report of the committee fixing his salary recommended that he be paid the salary named and collection fees on liquor and other taxes. He received the fees of four per cent. for the collection of taxes. He was indicted by a grand jury convened by Judge Maxwell. The supreme court holds that the indictment was void and should have been quashed, as Raigel was entitled to the collection fees under the resolution of the board.

Fire Insurance Losses.

During the year 1898 there were 2,203 fire losses, with a total of $435,611.81. Of the losses 909 were caused by lightning. There were 53 fires of incendiary origin, involving a loss of $20,810.51. INSURGENTS WEAKEN

Rebels Give Daily Signs of Giving Up the Struggle.

Officials in Washington Encouraged Over the Situation—Filipinos Tear Up the Railway Tracks.

Washington, May 9.—The war department has received from Gen. Otis a dispatch giving the situation in the Philippines, some parts of which have been omitted by the war department in making it public. The dispatch is as follows:

"Manila, May 8.—Adjutant General, Washington: Situation as follows: Lawton at Maasin and Baliuag; scouting parties to north and east. MacArthur at San Fernando; . . . Population of country between Manila and northern points held by troops returning to homes; cheerful and contented. Army gunboats operating in rivers. Have cleared country west of MacArthur of insurgents. . . . Signs of insurgents' weakness more apparent daily. (Signed) "OTIS."

Encouraged.

Washington, May 9.—The war department officials seem to be even more encouraged over the condition in Manila. The report of Gen. Otis received Monday indicates that the American troops are well disposed. It has been evident that the insurgents which were operating in the swamps and jungles east of Gen. MacArthur have been very annoying, but the army gunboats have made it too hot for them to remain. Gen. Lawton appears to be pushing northward some 15 miles to the east of MacArthur. The Rio Grande river lies between them and there the gunboats are evidently at work. The portions of the dispatch which the department has not made public perhaps refers to the future movements of the two divisions of the army.

Perform a Daring Trick.

Manila, May 9.—The Filipinos surprised the United States forces at San Fernando with a daring trick on Sunday. A railway train with an engine at each end was run almost to the American outposts and in plain sight of the town. Before they could be reached a gang of natives sprang off the train, tore up several lengths of the railway track, boarded the train again and steamed away so quickly that there was no opportunity to capture the raiders. The Nebraska regiment is asking for a temporary relief from duty. Only 375 men of this regiment are left at the front.

Good Work of Gunboats.

Manila, May 9.—The army's gunboats Laguna de Bay and Cavadonga, under command of Capt. Grant, which started up the San Fernando river for Guagua on Sunday, as was presumed, to establish there a base of supplies for the troops engaged in the northern campaign, returned Monday. Maj. Gen. MacArthur having failed to connect with the expedition. The gunboats found rebels entrenched at Sosmoan and Guagua, on the water fronts of the towns. The vessels steamed past the works, shelling the occupants and driving them out. Landing parties from the boats entered both towns, capturing at Sosmoan a Spanish captain in uniform who was ostensibly a prisoner in the hands of the rebels, and also a native officer. Arriving at Guagua, the town and a small gunboat were found to be burning, and the natives were evacuating the place in consequence of the bombardment.

At Sosmoan the landing party captured a number of Filipino flags and a quantity of arms, chiefly bolos and bows and arrows, besides a lot of band instruments, which the men played as they marched back to the boats.

Capt. Grant's expedition will probably return up the San Fernando river after having been reinforced, on recently purchased light-draft Spanish steamers.

THROUGH A BRIDGE.

Accident to an Ore Train in Wisconsin Causes the Death of an Engineer.

West Superior, Wis., May 9.—An east-bound Minnesota ore train, consisting of 40 ore cars and several box cars, went crashing through the bridge of the Belt line railway that crosses the Nomadji river at noon Monday. Engineer Thomas Quinn was crushed to death. He was caught between the engine and tender. Fireman Harry Miller had his leg badly crushed. He was at first thought to be fatally injured, but will now recover, probably. The train fell a distance of 60 feet to the river. The coroner's inquest rendered a verdict in accordance with the facts without attaching blame to anyone. The cause of the accident is not known. It is supposed that the spring floods had weakened the structure at some hidden point.

Instructions to Peace Delegates.

London, May 9.—The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says: The United States delegates to the peace conference at The Hague have instructions to advance three leading principles—the institution of courts of arbitration, the extension of the declaration of Paris of 1856 to nonconfiscation of all cargoes not contraband of war, and the extension of the Geneva law of sea.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Daily Summary of the Work Done by the Lawmakers in the Senate and House.

Lansing, Mich., May 3.—Gov. Pingree sent a special message to the legislature yesterday urging the passage of a new bill providing for a state board of assessors for the property of railroad, express, telephone and telephone companies and the taxation of such property on an ad valorem instead of a specific basis. He further recommended that laws be enacted to correct existing inequalities in taxation whereby the property of corporations fails to bear its share of the taxes, and urged that, if the legislature did not see fit to repeal all existing special railroad charters, such charters be amended so as to bring the companies under the general railroad law so far as rates of fare and taxation are concerned. The message also advocated the creation of a state board to hear appeals and adjust inequalities in assessments.

Lansing, Mich., May 4.—Bills have been passed in the senate to provide that tax on insurance companies be levied on the net premium instead of on the gross premium, as heretofore; to specify what authorities shall issue medical diplomas and to kill fake medical colleges; providing for the incorporation of Mennonite churches; to prohibit the use of adulterated petroleum products for lighting purposes; providing for a session of the probate court of each county on every Monday morning; providing that abstracts shall be subject to execution; providing that towns of from 1,000 to 10,000 may incorporate as cities of the fourth class. . . . In the house bills have been passed appropriating $10,900 for new building and grounds at Pontiac asylum; making awards of damages for accidents prior claims on railroad companies; for the incorporation of societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals, children, etc.; amending act for the incorporation of fourth-class cities, giving mayor and aldermen salaries of $50 a year each.

Secretary of War Alger and Gen. Joseph E. Wheeler were guests of the Michigan legislature for a few hours yesterday.

Lansing, Mich., May 5.—The senate yesterday confirmed Charles T. Fairbairn, of Ishpeming, and Sanford N. Dutcher, of Newberry, as trustees of the upper peninsula hospital for the insane. The resolution fixing May 31 as the date for final adjournment was made a special order for next Thursday. . . . The house passed bills providing for day schools for the deaf, to be maintained at state expense, and increasing from $2,500,000 to $5,000,000 the maximum capital allowed mining corporations.

Both houses have passed a bill permitting the Detroit common council to submit to the people any phase of the municipal ownership proposition. Lansing, Mich., May 6.—In the senate bills have been passed: To provide that mutual benefit associations must provide a death benefit of $100 for funeral expenses; to authorize the county of Gogebic to purchase abstracts of titles; referendum bill. . . . Bills have been passed in the house: Authorizing the issue of $10,000 for the improvement of the Mackinaw State park; appropriating $150,000 for improvements at the state prison; authorizing school boards to establish day schools for deaf mutes; regulating fraternal societies organized in other states; amending act relative to punishing truancy. In committee of the whole the house agreed to bills appropriating $35,000 for the industrial home for girls, and $165,000 for the industrial school for boys; also a bill making it a felony to conduct a so-called bucket shop.

TORTURED TO DEATH

Massacre of 103 Soldiers of Gen. Pando's Army by Indians in Bolivia.

Washington, May 8.—The department of state has been informed by the United States minister at La Paz, Bolivia, of a terrible massacre of 103 soldiers of the army of Gen. Pando at the town of Mohoza. Indians locked them in a church over night and in the morning took out the unfortunate victims, two by two, and 103 were deliberately murdered, each pair by different tortures. Seventeen escaped death by having departed the day previous on another mission. Each day brings news of risings of the Indians in different sections of the northern part of the country. A large party of whites arrived in La Paz, fleeing from the Indians.

Miss Grant to Wed.

Paris, May 5.—Mrs. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, gave a brilliant reception Thursday evening at the Hotel Ritz in honor of the mother of Prince Michael Cantacuzene, of the Russian imperial guard, at which formal announcement was made of the betrothal to the prince of Miss Julia Dent Grant, daughter of Brig. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A. The company included Gen. Horace Porter, the United States ambassador, and Mrs. Porter, Ferdinand W. Peck, United States commissioner general to the Paris exposition of 1900, and Mrs. Peck, as well as other prominent members of the American colony in Paris.

Identified by His Victim.

Coldwater, Mich., May 8.—Bernard McCloy, deserter from the battleship Texas, who was arrested at Zanesville, O., charged with brutally assaulting Mrs. Effie Smith near here in 1897, arrived here in custody of officers Saturday. Mrs. Smith quickly picked him out from among a dozen men, as the culprit who had pounded her nearly to death with a stone. Edward Robinson, a young farmer, who attempted McCloy's capture after the assault, and was shot and maimed for life by the assaulter, also readily identified McCloy. The latter denies ever having been here.

Can't Agree on a Price.

Detroit, Mich., May 6.—The street railway interests, represented by Tom L. Johnson and the Detroit street railway commission, headed by Gov. Pingree, have been unable thus far to meet upon a price for the sale of the street railways to the city. It is admitted by the commissioners that their offer is something over $15,000,000.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Not Good Law.

The famous Atkinson law, passed by the legislature, under which Gov. Pingree appointed a board to assess the property of railroad, telephone, telegraph and express companies, has been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court. The court says that the tax provided is ad valorem, instead of specific, as contended by the friends of the governor's advisers, and that the law is unconstitutional because it does not conform to the constitutional requirement that a uniform rule of taxation shall apply to all property that is not taxed specifically.

Struck by Lightning.

During a heavy electrical storm at Northville lightning struck the Globe Furniture company's plant and the four-story factory building was completely destroyed. The American bell foundry and electric light plant which adjoined were also completely destroyed. The total loss is about $50,000, with insurance of about $26,000. The Globe company recently sold to the American school and church furniture syndicate for $80,000.

Many Buildings Wrecked.

Cassopolis was visited by a cyclone which cut a path a quarter of a mile wide through the east side of the town. A large warehouse was blown down, trees uprooted, porches and other woodwork torn from buildings and chimneys demolished. In the country near by a barn was blown down, killing 17 cows and four horses, and part of the roof was carried a mile. About $20,000 damage was done. No one was injured.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health from 58 observers in various portions of the state for the week ended April 29 indicate that measles increased and pneumonia and pleuritis decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported at 150 places, measles at 74, typhoid fever at 32, scarlet fever at 43, diphtheria at 13, whooping cough at 19 places and smallpox at 2 places.

High Water.

A heavy rain and hail storm caused serious damage in Ironwood and vicinity. Many rivers which are low in the summer have risen from four to six feet, and the spring thaws will make the rivers rise even higher than at present. Nearly all trains were delayed on account of swamped tracks, while the country adjacent to the rivers was flooded.

State Fair Directors.

The state fair directors met in Grand Rapids for the purpose of electing a secretary to succeed Henry S. Fralick, resigned, and President I. H. Butterfield resigned his place and was elected secretary, which is a salaried office, and Vice President Anderson, of Midland, was chosen president, with L. J. Rindge, of Grand Rapids, as vice president.

Murdered in Cold Blood.

Dan Gillis, a well-known resident, was murdered at Supervisor David Bowen's farm near Onaway. It is thought the murderer was waiting to kill Bowen on his return from the supervisors' meeting, and in the darkness mistook Gillis for Bowen and shot him dead.

CENSURE FOR THREE.

Miles, Eagan and Maus Criticized by Court of Inquiry.

Synopsis of the Report—Charge That Refrigerated Beef Was Treated by Chemicals Not Established—Some Other Features.

Washington, May 8.—By direction of the president, who approves the findings, Acting Secretary of War Meiklejohn has made public the report and findings of the military court appointed to investigate the charges made by Maj. Gen. Miles, commanding the army, that the beef supplied to the army during the war with Spain was unfit for the use of the troops.

Its Findings.
The most important features of the report are: The finding that the general's allegations that the refrigerated beef was treated with chemicals were not established; that his allegations concerning the canned fresh or canned roast beef were sustained as to its unsuitability for food as used on the transports and as a long continued field ration; censure of Gen. Miles for "error" in failing to promptly notify the secretary of war when he first formed the opinion that the food was unfit for the army; censure of the commissary general (Gen. Eagan) for the too extensive purchases of the canned beef as an untried ration; the finding that the packers were not at fault and that the meats supplied to the army were of the same quality as those supplied to the trade generally, and the recommendation that no further proceedings be taken in the premises.

Oppose Further Proceedings.
The conclusion of the court adverse to further proceedings based upon the charges is as follows: "It has been developed in this report, that in some instances some individuals failed to perform the full measure of duty or to observe the proprieties which dignify high military command, but the court is of the opinion that the mere statement in the official report of the facts developed meets the ends of discipline, and that the interests of the service will be best subserved if further proceedings be not taken."

Criticism of Miles.
Commenting upon Gen. Miles' testimony that he had first formed the opinion last August that the refrigerated beef had been processed, the court remarks: "Whatever the date upon which he formed a belief, or a reasonable suspicion, that the health of the troops was being impaired by the use of deleterious food, it was his bounden duty, in the opinion of the court, instantly to take the most effective measures within his control to ascertain the actual fact and to correct the wrong, if any should be found. It would have been practicable to obtain samples of the beef then being supplied to the army by contractors and to have submitted these samples to chemical examination, which would have resulted in the detection of the presence or absence of boric and salicylic acids or any other chemical agent that may have been used as a preservative agent. Yet no such precaution as that suggested was taken by the major general commanding at that time or at any subsequent time, so far as has been learned by the court."

Rebuke for Eagan.
The report places the quantity of canned roast beef purchased for the war by the commissary department at 5,847,174 pounds, including 550,000 pounds which was brought from Liverpool and other English ports. This amount is characterized as excessive, and the commissary general (Gen. Eagan) is severely criticised in several parts of the document on this score.

Other Conclusions.
Replying specifically to other questions set out by the president, the court says: "That the canned beef was described as 'fresh' because it was not salted, but that the meat was not old or stale.
That the refrigerated beef furnished the army was 'not doctored or treated with any other agency than cold air.'
That the meat purchased for the army was the meat of commerce; that 'both kinds—refrigerated and canned—were such as are well known in both hemispheres as commercial articles, of which there is and has been very large consumption not only by the trade generally, but by the United States navy and by the armies and navies of Europe.'
That no reports of unfitness or unsuitability of the beef sent from the United States were forwarded to the war department by any general officer serving in Cuba or Porto Rico while the field operations were in progress, nor were any such reports received until more than a month after hostilities ceased.
That, barring some defects in methods of inspecting the beef on its delivery to the subsistence department, the deterioration of the meat in shipment was due to the fault of no one.

Miles' Charges.
The charges of Gen. Miles, as made in newspaper interviews, as well as those made before the war investigating commission, are referred to at length, among them being the interview with the general sent out from the New York office of the Associated Press on the 31st of January, in which Gen. Miles was quoted as saying that he had "overwhelming evidence that the beef was treated with chemicals to preserve it and that he had affidavits from men who saw the beef undergoing the embalming process." The court notes the denial which Gen. Miles made of this part of the conversation as it was printed in the New York Herald, but prints the charge as a part of the testimony of both Mr. Reid and Mr. Berry, of the New York Times, agree in the verity of the interview as reported by the former, and this is found in the Herald clipping. The court does not therefore ignore this paragraph, but treats it as a part of the allegations which are under investigation.
Several pages of the report are devoted to the consideration of the allegation made by Gen. Miles that the refrigerated beef was treated with preservatives, but the statement is made upon the threshold of this question that "but little testimony was submitted by him in support of this contention." The inference drawn by the court from the absence of such testimony is adverse to the existence of the practice alleged to prevail by the major general commanding.

Approved by the President.
The report closes with the following statement: "The court with a deep sense of the responsibilities devolving upon it has labored zealously to bring out the truth and matters referred to it for investigation. That the calling of more witnesses from the large number suggested by the major general commanding, including all those who would only have resulted in additional testimony on the same lines as those pursued, without throwing further light upon the questions involved."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

"I had been in poor health for some time, my troubles having been brought on by standing, so my physician said, causing serious womb trouble. I had to give up my work. I was just a bundle of nerves and would have fainting spells at monthly periods. I doctored and took various medicines, but got no relief, and when I wrote to you I could not walk more than four blocks at a time. I followed your advice, taking Lydia E. A Notice to the Public.

About two weeks ago a man by the name of Conner, claiming to live in Anderson, Indiana, and representing himself to be an auctioneer of the firm of Conner & Williams, managers of the monthly horse and live stock sales in Indiana, struck this town and organized a monthly sale for the coming year and advertised for the same, the first sale to take place Wednesday, May 3. As Mr. Conner did not appear at that time, and as he associated my name with his in his advertisements, I shall take up the plan myself, using his advertisements which are paid for, for the same, and will open the first sale at Jacob Staffan's livery and feed barn on the first Wednesday in June, and will continue them on the first Wednesday of each month throughout the whole year. The plan is a good one and has proved a success to both buyer and seller wherever the sales have been established. Entries can be left with Jacob Staffan or myself of horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, fowls, farming tools, harnesses, household furniture, or any other merchandise you may have to dispose of, and for the consignment it will cost you nothing if not sold. If sold a fair satisfactory commission will be charged for selling.

Now this can be made very profitable to both buyer and seller. I will see to it that the rules of these auctions shall be perfectly fair and honorable to all parties concerned in it. If any mistakes are made they shall be rectified, and no crookedness or underhanded work will be allowed. Stock must be as represented and 12 hours will be given purchaser to test the same and if not found as represented they can be returned at owners' expense. I will be on hand at every sale to do my part. Will you do yours, and help to make it a success? If so consign your goods before Wednesday, June 7, to Jacob Staffan or myself and get full information. Very respectfully,

GEO. E. DAVIS.
Stock brought in before the day of sale will be well cared for at owners' expense.
