Wedding and Presentation.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's church, Chelsea, Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock, when Mr. Daniel McLaughlin, of Lyndon, was married to Miss Lena Lusty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lusty, of the same town. Rev. William Considine performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Lusty, as bridesmaid, and Mr. James McLaughlin, a nephew of the groom, officiated as best man. A number of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties were present.

After the ceremony a bountiful wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to the immediate relatives, and all through the day friends and neighbors kept dropping in to wish Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin godspeed.

A genuine surprise awaited them in the evening about 9 o'clock, after they had arrived at their own home, when a party of 10 members of the B. P. O. Elks, of which order Mr. McLaughlin is an esteemed member, drove up to the house and proceeded to make everybody at home. A pleasant evening was spent in playing cards and games, listening to the music of a phonograph, and partaking of the bountiful refreshments provided. During the evening Hon. James S. Gorman, as spokesman of the party, presented the newly married couple with two handsome polished oak rocking chairs, on one of which was a plate inscribed with the names of the donors. The party separated about 12 o'clock with mutual good wishes. Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin's many friends wish them long life and happiness in their new relations to each other.

Grass Lake Creamery Burned.

Fire entirely destroyed the Grass Lake creamery Saturday evening. Work was finished there at 4:30 o'clock, after which time no one was at the building and no cause for the fire is known. The loss will be heavy. The cost of the building and machinery was $4,800; insured for $2,000.

The burning of the creamery has put the farming community thereabouts in a dilemma. The creamery was built four years ago, since which time the farmers have been steadily adding to their dairy stock until at present there are over 400 patrons owning from five to 70 cows each, and some even more. What to do with the milk during the rebuilding is a vexing problem, as there are but few farmers prepared to care for the large product. The probability is that a new separator will be bought at once and business resumed as fast as practicable pending the rebuilding.

Went Off With a Horse and Buggy.

George Nisle, of Manchester, was in Chelsea yesterday looking for one Irving Verselius, to whom he had rented a horse and rig about eight weeks ago. It is now about three weeks since Mr. Nisle has seen Verselius and from certain transactions the latter had been engaged in during that time he had about given up the idea of ever getting them again. About two weeks ago Verselius traded the horse and rig to John Miller, of Sylvan, for a span of mules, afterwards selling the mules to some of the rag peddlers in "Wonderland." He then induced Miller to go off with him. The officers around the neighborhood were notified and this morning Miller returned to Chelsea with the horse. He says Verselius is at Dansville with the buggy, and has no money to get away from there with.

Epworth League Anniversary.

The anniversary services of the Epworth League of the M. E. church were held in the town hall on Sunday evening. The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational and the B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist churches had been invited to participate in the exercises and the invitation was quite generally accepted, so the hall was well filled. The address to the young people was made by Rev. E. E. Caster, of Howell, who spoke along the lines of the work of the society and gave them some good advice as to their choice of reading matter. Some good musical selections were rendered, and altogether it was a most gratifying and successful meeting.

Miss Rhea, the well known actress, died at her home in Montmorency, France, of cancer, and was buried there May 12. Her real name was Miss Hortense-Barbe Loreet. She was 56 years of age. Rhea was a favorite with most theater goers in Michigan.

The Blind Goddess.

Intensely modern is the new murder story by Randall Irving Tyler, entitled "The Blind Goddess." There is, it seems, evolution in murder stories as well as in everything else.

Those who read Tyler's "Four Months After Date," and said the book was clever though perhaps weighted down with business transactions, will find in "The Blind Goddess," just issued, a novel drawn in a new vein, but full of dramatic climaxes. To bring home the thoughts it contains to many who never read murder stories, incidents are used familiar to all who have followed the recent poison cases.

The prosecuting officer's theory of the crime, the appalling accusation of the innocent daughter of one of the murdered men, the web of circumstantial evidence around and against a man of unblemished character, who is also accused, the defenseless position both of these people occupy before the coroner, the subsequent indictment without a hearing before a magistrate—all these things make the reader think.

The underlying motive for the crime introduces a diversion in the person of an adventuress, for whose presence no apology is offered, as it turns out that she is the real culprit.

The occasional glimpses of an exclusive social circle, the charming heroine Helen Brownell, the strong willed but intensely human Sanford Crane, offer opportunities for Mr. Tyler's ability in character sketching which he has not neglected; even the adventures challenges admiration at times by the boldness and coldness of her method.

The title, as will be readily understood, applies to the more serious side of the novel, which has to do with prosecution for capital crime; but the well-handled romance running through it all and the satisfactory denouement make "The Blind Goddess" a marvelously entertaining book, running over with surprises in its movement and its literary style. It is more than absorbing; it is compelling. Stuyvesant Publishing Company, New York; cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Each Thought the Other Had Them.

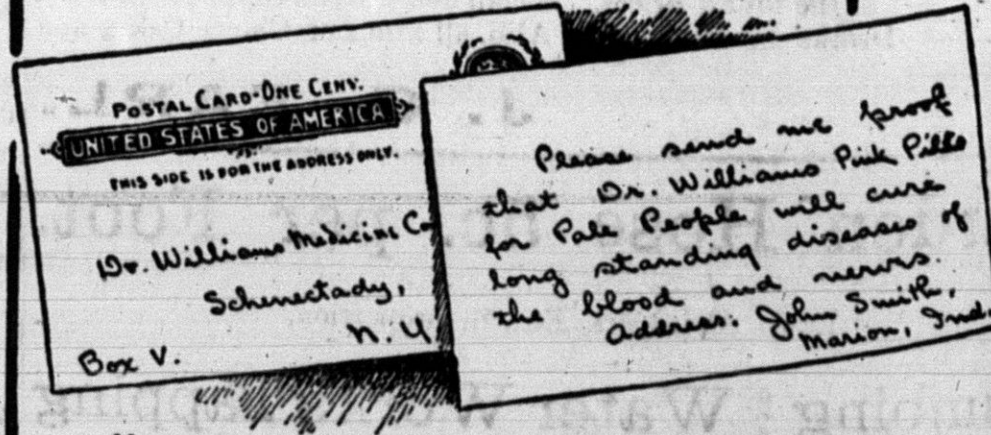

Two farmers had been enjoying a festive evening with another farmer, and both of them "had done themselves remarkably well," to use an expressive phrase. They had a drive of five miles before them, and it was a very dark night, but the horse knew the way. Side by side they sat in the cart, and went along at a spanking pace. At length they swung round the sharp turn which led to the house in a most alarming manner, only just missing the gate-post by an inch or two. "Gently, George, gently round the corner, old man," murmured Bill. George grinned. "What! haven't you got the reins either?" he said.—Answers.

Absolute Proof

Your name and address on a postal card will bring you absolute proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will cure you if you are afflicted with any disease of the blood or nerves. Mention the disorder with which you are suffering and we will send evidence that will convince and satisfy you that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will cure you.

These pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, partial paralysis and all forms of weakness either in men or women.

To a Lawrence Journal reporter Mr. G. H. Snyder, a well known citizen of Lawrence, Kan., related a wonderful story. He said: "I am now seventy years of age. About three years ago I experienced a coldness or numbness in the feet, then creeping up my legs, until it reached my body. I grew thin, appetite poor and did not relish food. I became unable to move about. I consulted several disreputable physicians, one telling me I had locomotor ataxia, another, worse. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Before I had finished my first box I found that they were doing me good. I used twelve boxes and was perfectly cured. Although the disease, I had feared, had been in me for many years, my appetite is good and general health better than for many years."

OZYMANDIAS.

I met a traveler from an antique land,
Who said: "Two vast and trunkless legs
of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them, on the sand,
Half-sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frown,
And wrinkled lip, and sneer of cold command,
Tell that its sculptor well those passions
read
Which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things,
The hand that mocked them and the heart that fed;
And on the pedestal these words appear:
My name is Ozymandias, king of kings;
Look on my works, ye mighty, and despair!
Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare
The lone and level sands stretch far away."
—Percy Bysshe Shelley, in Ainslie's.

CHAPTER XII.

Sebastiano looked like a wreck when he appeared that morning. He accounted for this upon the ground of illness to which he was occasionally subject, and said that he would be obliged to rest for several days—that he had been working too hard upon his book. But in some mysterious way the story of his night experience leaked out. The disappearance of Miguel's proa started the inquiries; then another island, who had himself received a bad scare, testified to having been awakened by a blood-curdling scream in time to see Padre Sebastiano running before Miguel's ghost, which subsequently embarked in his own boat and put to sea. This yarn was ridiculed by Bartolomeo until he prestigated his figure-chamber and found the gruesome company an apparition short; then he told Sebastiano about it and partook of his uncomfortable feelings. Their common sense told them that a wax figure couldn't transport itself without help; malicious human help; but their conviction that every door had been locked, and Sebastiano's positive assertion that the thing had certainly chased him of its own accord and absolutely without assistance or visible mechanism, simply couldn't be explained away. At first the churchmen were at a loss whether to feel complimented or alarmed by the various and peculiar manifestations with which they had been favored; but the more they failed to account for them on natural or scientific grounds the more they became impressed with a sense of unworthiness. As for Miguel, the native who had been at such expense to import a suitable effigy of himself, he thought his time had come. But after reflecting upon his ghost's departure from the island, which could be interpreted in no other light than as a solemn warning, he moved his entire family to Saipan, where, having no barangay to live upon, they were occasionally forced to work.

Judging that it would now be safe to leave Guajan for a few days, I told Dorotea of my intention. At first the attempt to reach Yap in an open boat seemed little short of madness to her, but after explaining that I was able to find my position from the sun, as she had seen officers do aboard ship, she reluctantly admitted that it might be done. We were beginning to understand each other pretty well by this time. Making me look straight into her beautiful eyes, she let me see why the thought of my possible danger tormented her.

Miguel's ghost had sailed away on Tuesday morning, the 14th, and, according to our previous calculations, Halstead would arrive in Tomil bay about daybreak of the following Sunday. Figuring that, before the wind, my proa would cover the 452 miles between Guajan and Yap in 23 hours at the outside, and not wishing to hang about Tomil among strangers who might ask dangerous questions concerning my strange appearance, I postponed the start until Saturday morning. There was, of course, an element of risk in this—a possibility that I might fail to reach the island on time; but I had a good deal of confidence both in my ability as a navigator and in the proa itself.

His nerves being completely upset, the padre was resting in good earnest; so, with Dorotea, I made two more trips to the wreck, bringing back heavy loads of silver ingots, which we stowed in the fissure. Then, early Saturday morning, after telling the gobernador of my intention to sail among the islands for a day or two and being most hospitably provisioned for the cruise, I headed the proa out to sea.

All day long the boat sailed like a witch, holding beautifully to her course, and it was not until after dark that a realization of my position impressed me. I had then made, according to my log, over 250 miles, and was consequently over 200 miles from the nearest land—a mere pin-point upon the open sea, with nothing but a hollow tree-trunk and a few sticks between me and eternity. It was a peculiar feeling, yet there was nothing of fear in it; the sense of exhilaration was too great for that. My chief danger lay in the possibility of falling asleep. This I provided against by drinking half a bottle of wine and a pint of cold, strong coffee; besides which, I smoked incessantly; cigars were good company about that time, and stimulated the imagination. My eyelids were pretty heavy toward daybreak, in spite of these precautions; but, lowering the sail for a few moments, I undressed and jumped overboard, rolling and floating in the cool water until thoroughly refreshed.

Pretty soon it began to get gray in the east, and when the sun poked its rim above the horizon I drew a great breath of relief; for there, 20 miles to the southward, was the peak of Yap, rising over a thousand feet from the sea-level.

But still another stroke of good fortune was in store for me that morning. I had noticed a peculiar haze across the sun when it first came up; and, looking again after heading for Tomil, I could plainly distinguish the smoke from a steamer's funnel; there being no other in that vicinity, I knew it must be the good old Countess. My proa was going through the water nearly two knots to her one; so, holding on until I was directly in her course, I took in sail and let her overhaul me. On she came, nearer and nearer; I could make out her yards, the boats at the davits, one of the mates on the bridge; then I could see Halstead come out of his room, climb to the bridge and fix his glass on the island. As the steamer came nearer, I waved my helmet and shouted. They recognized this with a salute from the whistle, but paid no further attention, which put me quite out of patience; I would show them their old tub wasn't in it with an island proa. Up went my sail, and in a few moments I was alongside, near enough to shout:

"What's that matter with you fellows? Can't you be civil enough to stop and pass the time of day with a friend? You needn't be so stuck up, Dick. I'll bet a doubloon onza that I can give the Countess five knots and beat her into Tomil from here."

I could see the color fade out of Halstead's face as he leaned far over the rail and looked at me. As for Diaz, his eyes almost started from his head.

"Harry, old man, it isn't really you, is it? For God's sake grab a line and come aboard. No, I'm not fool enough to race your proa. Here, Diaz, swing your starboard tackle over that catamaran and make fast to her, then lay her up on the 'gall'nt fo'e'sle, Stevens'll tell us all about it after he's had something to eat."

The compass, log, sextant and bag of doubloons I hastily stowed in a canvas sack which Halstead lowered to me at the end of a stout line; then, mounting to our old quarters, we hugged each other like two grizzlies before saying a word.

With the bag of doubloons upon the table between us, I told him what I had accomplished. It was all too good to be true. He couldn't sit still, but kept getting up and walking about, excitedly throwing away his cigars half smoked and lighting fresh ones. When I had brought the yarn down to my coming aboard half an hour before, he spread a handful of the doubloons upon the table and scraped one with a file to make sure of its genuineness. Taking his pencil out, he asked:

"How many have you in this bag?"

"A little under 1,300. I figured the weight at something like 80 pounds Troy."

"And they're worth more than $15.50 each. Why, man, there must be nearly $20,000 right here on this table!"

"About that. It was rather bulky luggage, but I thought we'd have to use money in getting the stuff away from Guajan, so brought it along. Now, how in blazes are we going to manage it? I've thought of a dozen schemes, but there's a hitch in every one of them. If I wait three months for you, we stand a chance of losing every dollar before the steamer shows up—always providing she is sent out here again. Sebastiano can't get the money where it is now, in the wreck;

that's practically certain. But he's more than likely to keep on with his fool soundings in the big proa until he finally strikes the reef. If he does, I may not have another opportunity to get anything up; he'll watch the place night and day. Just at present he's badly scared, and isn't likely to do much for a week or two, especially if he sees no necessity for immediate action; so I might easily store all the stuff in Tarofoto before he tackles the shoal again. The chances are that it would be safe in that fissure, unless I were spotted going there too often. But suppose I managed to keep it all right until your return, he would have strong suspicions about the packages when they were being shipped. Of course, if we got the treasure as far as Manila, he couldn't do much—"

"That's where you're very much mistaken. I'm more afraid of what he could do in Manila than here in the islands."

"Why so?"

"Because our fat friend Padre Sebastiano happens to be the bishop of Mindanao. The cura let that out the other night when he had taken too much rum and water. It would be an easy matter for him to have me arrested upon some trumped-up charge as soon as the steamer reached port, and have all her cargo stored ashore pending my examination. So, even if they failed to nold me, there would be time and opportunity for him to spirit away anything he wanted."

"The devil! Well, any way you look at it, Dick, we've got to remove that stuff inside of 30 days. If it can't be done one way it must another. There's money on that reef to buy a fleet of steamers, or to settle any indebtedness we may incur. Can't you charter a vessel in Manila?"

"I was just thinking of that. Yes, I could, of course. Yet it wouldn't be safe to take anything but an English or Dutch bottom. I'd want to pick my own crew and know pretty well who were on board; couldn't do that with one of the company's boats, and there might happen to be nothing else in port. There's one thing that might be done, and I guess—it would work."

"What's that?"

"Charter the Countess herself from the government, for a month. You know she connects with the Saigon Messageries boat, taking in Yloilo on the return trip, between the island voyages; at least, that is the temporary arrangement. Now, between each trip we usually lay up at Cavite for two weeks; and Ramirez has twice tried to charter her for a quick run to Hong-Kong in that time. The Countess would easily make Guajan and Hong-Kong, out of Manila, in 16 days at the outside, allowing a day and a half to load at the island, if we needed it. Then we could reach Saigon in five days more, and turn her over to the government in time to make the Messageries connection all right."

"What would it cost to charter her?"

"Well, probably a little more than what the company pays. She'll register over 3,000 tons, gross, and can do 14 knots when she wants to; that's pretty stiff traveling for compound engines of this size. But the government don't care for more'n ten knots; so they pay Ramirez & Co. $5,500 a month. I guess we could have her at $6,000, easy enough."

"Any expenses besides that?"

"Of course there are. Coal bills, at least $9,000 a month, if you keep shoving 14 knots out of her. She'll burn over 36 tons a day at that speed, and you can't get decent, free-burning coal in Manila for less than eight dollars. Then there are port charges, consul's fees, demurrage and numerous incidentals, all of which fall upon the charterer. The owner pays the salaries of officers and crew, repairs and the special expenses of the ship."

"So that we'd blow in the whole twenty thousand on the mere use of the steamer for a month?"

"H'm, well, at least eighteen, I should say. A 3,000-ton yacht is a pretty expensive luxury; and she'd be practically nothing more than a yacht for our purpose. There's no cargo at Guajan worth handling."

"Seems to me a steamer ought to be a pretty good investment."

"That depends a great deal upon the cargo and the time of year she's in commission. Freight rates are so low at present that half of them don't pay expenses; still, the tramps that make over 12 knots are doing most of the business, and at something of a profit."

"Dick, we've got to buy the Countess; that's what we've got to do. How much would Ramirez take for her?"

"H'm! she cost $45,000 to build on the Clyde, and she's as good a 'compound' tramp as there is on salt water. But the triple expansion boats that they're turning out carry more cargo with less coal, and he couldn't begin to get that for her now. If we were to offer $100,000—$10,000 down and the balance within six months—and he were satisfied as to our responsibility, I think he'd let us have her."

"Then we'll take her. If you don't care about the investment I'll buy her myself. Now, how soon can you get back to Agana?"

"I'd want at least six days in Manila to discharge, coal up and settle matters with Ramirez. The government may kick a little if they want the steamer for another trip, but I guess the old man can fix that; we'll pay them a few thousand rather than have any hitch about it. Say 18 days from now; how would that do? Will you be able to manage it, and beat the padre for that length of time?"

"Y-e-s, that's fairly safe. No matter what he may discover, it will be impossible for him to head you off in Manila this trip; and when we own the ship the passenger list will be as limited as the mail contract. Then, again, you'll have an entirely new crew, regularly shipped for our own voyage. By the way, why did you speak of making Hong-Kong first?"

"Because the Hong-Kong & Shanghai Banking corporation will undoubtedly be able to handle the silver for us. They have a capital of ten millions, a reserve fund of four and a half, and Mexican dollars, coined even as far back as 1700, are the current medium of exchange in China to-day. Anywhere else the discount on silver—especially old silver—would be so heavy that we'd have to sell the stuff by weight; so we would get more for them on the Chinese coast than in any other locality."

"Guess you're right. I didn't think of that. Now, how about getting it on board without showing what the cargo really is?"

"Well, let's see. Have you noticed whether any of the fishermen stay over night around Apra bay?"

"Don't believe there's one. Even the Kanakas that Sebastiano brought down on the big proa walk over to town as soon as they've made fast for the night, and those who belong in Agat sail away up to the neck of the peninsula, so they'll only have a mile to tramp."

"That's what I thought. You've noticed the stone building and sheds belonging to the harbor-master, haven't you?—about 500 yards from the landing pier at Punta Piti?"

"On the road to Agana? Yes, frequently."

"Well, have you also seen the big lot of copra, in bags, under another shed about half way between them and the pier?"

"I remember the bags, but I didn't know what was in them; copra's dried coconut meat, isn't it, ready to have the oil tried out when it gets to civilization?"

"That's right. There wasn't a full shipment of the stuff when we arrived, on the 4th, so I told De Garma that I'd take all he could get together next trip. It'll come dribbling along, two or three bags at a time, according to how the islanders happen to feel about working; and there isn't a man in the western Pacific who would steal the stuff, or handle any more of it than he was actually obliged to—that is, among the native population. Where those bags are dumped, under that shed, there they stay until the steamer comes to ship them. I don't believe Sebastiano himself could induce a native to disturb them; and the whites out here don't believe in manual labor at all."

JONES' PROPERTY.

The Clever Trick by Which a Stern Father Was Led to Take a Son-in-Law.

Life was a forbidden blank to James William Jones. He had studied law one year and his prospects were bright. He hadn't been admitted yet, but he knew he would get there when he was admitted. He knew that old Digby, with whom he was reading law, had said that he had a head that wasn't all wood. Despite all this, old Lofter, Digby's most important client, refused to permit James William to marry his daughter. And to add to the desperate unreasonableness of the situation Miss Lofter was willing, and even anxious,

In a moment of impulse James William Jones opened his heart to Digby and begged him to intercede with Lofter. Digby did so. Lofter wanted to know what property James William Jones had. Digby said he didn't know, but would find out.

In the office next day Digby said to James William: "Jones, what will you take for your right leg? I'll give you $20,000."

"Are you crazy, or do you think I am?" replied James William.

"Well, you won't take it?"

"Of course not."

Digby walked out of the office. That night he informed Lofter that James William had no money in bank, but that he owned a piece of property for which he had refused $20,000. Soon after, the wedding occurred with Lofter's consent. Within ten years James William Jones had nearly as much money as old Lofter himself. Lofter couldn't be anything else than satisfied, though he was once heard to remark, touching that piece of property upon the strength of which he had consented to the match: "If it could not take wings, it was liable at any time to walk off!"

Could Tell by the Hour.

It happened at the club.

"This telepathy or thought transference or whatever it is isn't such a wonderful thing after all," he said. "I can sit here with you fellows, and still be conscious of what my wife is thinking about and just about what she is saying to herself."

"Undoubtedly," replied one of the others, "but you couldn't do it if you couldn't see the clock."—Chicago Free Press.

O'Brien J. A'kinson has been appointed one of the judges of the St. Clair circuit
by Governor Pingree.

The Dexter Leader says, "Wonder what Aguinaldo will take to when he gets through the woods?" To which the Ann Arbor Courier answers that he will "Take to drink, probably."

One of the finest things about the war with Spain is the cheerful bravery that was shown by the troops and seamen, both regulars and volunteers, in all the service they were called on to perform.

Would it not be a good idea to capture Aguinaldo, introduce him informally to a certain well known judge named Lynch, and then turn the hose on his followers?
They would be cleaner and possibly better for it.

Governor Pingree has named Samuel J.
Tomlinson, of the Pontiac Gazette, as member of the board of trustees of the Upper Peninsula hospital for insane for the term ending April 17, 1909, vice Con
D. Danaher, resigned.

The bill before the legislature to give saloonkeepers the right to sell liquor on the Fourth of July failed of passage Wednesday of last week by a vote of 44 to 49.
Both the Washtenaw representatives voted against its passage. The bill has been tabled for another trial.

Rev. C. W. Blodgett, the well known minister of the Simpson M. E. church, Detroit, characterizes Christian Science as
"the most damnable system of absolute falsity that this nation has ever seen."
That is good, strong language and fully describes the situation. Thanks, doctor.

The Industrial Home for Girls at Adrian has again been undergoing an investigation at the hands of a legislative committee. When all the investigations are ended the time will have arrived to apply a coat of whitewash and cover up all the defectiveness in its system of management.

Senator McMillan is in the race to succeed himself as United States senator.
Secretary of War Alger has also announced his candidacy. With the people arrayed on the side of the McMillan forces and Senator Burrows and his friends also favorable to McMillan, General Alger's ambition to be a senator from Michigan is not very likely to be satisfied this trip.

A certain American magazine has been so squeamish as to refuse a story by Ian McLaren, because it refers to a pugilistic battle between two boys. The editor said it was a menace to the morals of the youth of America. Poor editor, poor boys.
The public will look on the first as a member of the long eared tribe, through whose foolish ideas the latter have lost the reading of a good and wholesome story.

In striking relief to the usual long drawn out shilly-shallying trials of murderers that take place in the courts of Michigan is the trial and conviction of Joseph Harvey, of Howard City, who murdered his wife, grandmother and uncle May 10. He was put on trial Monday morning at the opening of the Montcalm county circuit court, and a few hours afterwards was sentenced to Jackson prison for life for his crime. That was quick justice, but it was real justice.

Speaker Adams threw Governor Pingree down hard on Monday when the latter's message to the legislature on the report of the military investigating committee was read. Before any disposition of the message could be made by motion the speaker said, "I am well aware that this is Monday and wash day. I am also aware that the privilege of the floor of this house is open only to members, and will declare this motion out of order."
He had evidently read up for the occasion.

Remarkable Recovery.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this great discovery at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1. every bottle guaranteed.

The Home Coming of Co. A.

The welcome home plans at Ann Arbor last Friday got all disarranged. The train bringing Co. A, 31st Mich., lost time all the way along the route until it reached Toledo at 6 o'clock p. m., then the Ann Arbor road hustled them home in a hurry, getting them into Ann Arbor at 7 o'clock. The signal that was to be given announcing their time of arrival was also bungled, consequently the parade or a part of it was late in getting on the ground. Then to crown all the crowd of relatives and friends of the boys swallowed them up and when the procession moved along the line of march only one solitary soldier boy, Max Willinger, was to be found in it. He received an ovation on the arrival of the parade at the armory when on opening its ranks he marched down the line the sole and only representative of his company. The speeches and presentation of the army were omitted, but at the banquet Monday night that part of the program was carried out.
At that time the enthusiasm made up for what was lacking Friday. The company was away from home a year and 23 days.

School Social.

A lawn box social will be given by the pupils of school district No. 8, Dexter, on the lawn of James Walsh, one mile south of Silver Lake, in the township of Dexter, on Friday evening, June 2. A continuous program consisting of vocal and instrumental solos and duets, selections by a ladies' quartet, and recitations, will be rendered from the porch. Progressive croquet will be one feature of the evening.
Young ladies are requested to bring a box containing supper for two, which will be sold at auction. Everybody is cordially invited.

own work." This supreme remedy for

There Are Over Six Hundred Women Students Enrolled at the University of Michigan.

TEN HAVE PLACES ON THE FACULTIES

How the Institution Became Coeducational—The College Girl Is on a Perfect Equality with Her Brother Student and Makes Good Use of Her Advantages.

[Special Correspondence.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 17.—There are 673 women students at the university, and ten women, including one full professor, on the faculties. The institution, however, has not always been coeducational. During the first 33 years of its life it was open to men only.

The first woman to enter classes at the university was Miss Alice Boise, daughter of Prof. Boise. From September, 1866, until December, 1867, she was a visitor in her father's classes and those of one or two of the other professors. Although she prepared her lessons the same as the other students, she received no official recognition.

Opened to Women.

In January, 1870, the board of regents, after considerable urging, passed a resolution saying that no rule existed "in any of the university statutes for the exclusion of any person from the university who possesses the requisite literary and moral qualifications." This formally opened the institution to women. She writes the excuses for absence of the women from classes, attends to disciplinary matters, looks up the girls when absent and exercises a general oversight over them. In the position of superintendent of the women's gymnasium she is responsible for the success or failure of that feature of the university life.

Large Enrollment.

The 673 women students enrolled in the university the present year are 22 per cent. of the total enrollment. The members in the several departments are as follows:

Literary department	597
Medical department	47
Law department	4
Pharmaceutical department	6
Homeopathic department	10
Dental	10
Total	673

A Good Showing.

While the percentage of women in the entire university, exclusive of summer schools, is but 22 per cent., the percentage for the literary department is 46.6. The only department in which there are no women is the engineering. This department, however, has had an occasional woman student in the past. Four of the ten women in the dental department are from Germany. Nineteen of the 75 persons studying for an advanced degree are women.

Graduates.

Last year (1897-'98) 127 women were graduated from the university. This is 17.9 per cent. of the total number graduated. Of the 127 women graduates 110 were from the literary department, 11 from the medical, three from the law and one each from the pharmaceutical, homeopathic and dental departments.

Perfect Equality.

The college girl at the University of Michigan is on a perfect equality with the university are open to women. They are eligible to membership and to office in the Graduate club, Philosophical society, Students' Lecture association, Pedagogical society, Choral union, Oratorical association, Comedy club, Alpha Nu Literary society, Students' Christian association, Philological society, Shakespeare troupe, Student volunteer missionary band, Dental society, Athletic association, Hahnemannian society, etc. In nearly every case they hold one or more of the offices. It is not a rare thing for the class president, who is almost without exception a man, to remain away from a class meeting when an exciting question is to come up, so that the vice president, who is generally a woman, may have the honor of presiding and holding the meeting in check with her diplomatic tact.

MRS. ANGELL,

Women Only.

The Fruit and Flower mission is a society composed entirely of women. Its object is to visit the patients in the university hospitals and to assist those who are in need. The freshman spread is an annual reception given by the sophomore girls to the freshman girls to introduce them to the women in the university. This event takes place usually in November.

In Journalism.

Women are also prominent in college journalism. At the present time there are women on the editorial staffs of the Michigan Alumnus, a monthly magazine, official organ of the Alumni association; the Inlander, the literary publication of the university; the S. C. A. Bulletin, the weekly organ of the Students' Christian association, and the Michiganian and Oracle, two college annuals. Although there is no woman on the editorial board of the V. of M. Daily, they have occupied a position there in the past and have done work that was a credit to the paper. Wrinkle, the humorous publication, has never had a woman on its board, although in previous years several artistic centerpieces were from the pen of a woman student; but should one aspire to the place there would probably be no objection. Women's editions of the Daily and the Inlander have been gotten out in the past entirely by women, and both were successful.

Fall of Enthusiasm.

The women of the university are not behind the men in college spirit. While their enthusiasm does not take as noisy a form, its intensity is just as great. They are loyal to the "yellow and blue" even to the extent of contributing money to football and baseball teams on which they cannot play. They observe the college traditions, talk of "tutes" and "boltes" and "flunks," and stand for the U. of M. through thick and thin.

In the Gymnasium.

An interesting feature of a girl's life at the university is the "gym" work. This is now compulsory for freshmen. On entering the university they are given a medical and physical examination. Then gymnasium work is prescribed which will be of the most possible value to them. They are under the constant attention of Dr. Mosher and his assistants, and pains are taken to see that each girl gets thorough exercise, but not too much, and that the exercise taken is of the proper character for the development of a healthier body. At present the women taking the gymnasium work are divided into three classes, each of which is drilled twice a week. The exercises consist of movements with the dumb bells, wands and Indian clubs. For the more advanced students in the "gym" work, there are swinging rings, parallel bars and weight machines. Occasionally the girls are formed into teams and games of basketball played. Once each year an "open afternoon," when visitors can attend, upon invitation, is observed. The rest of the year the women's "gym" is closed to the eyes of men. On these afternoons an exhibit of the actual work being done is made. At the reception recently held the programme closed with a game of basketball, which was almost as exciting as a good game of football.

The Women's League.

Another interesting phase of women in the university is the work of the Women's league. It is through this society, which organized in 1890 and incorporated in 1898, that the women's dean exercises an influence over each individual girl in the university. The purpose of the organization is to promote acquaintance, unity and loyalty and to elevate social life. The girls of the university who form the active membership of the league are divided into tens, each ten having an upper class girl for a leader. The wives of the members of the faculty are the associate members, and for each ten there is an adviser from among these associate members. Each leader is responsible for the social happiness of her ten. Each ten has one or more entertainments during the year. Other subdivisions of the league are the welcoming and chum committees. The first meets the new girls on their arrival at the beginning of the college year and aids them in locating, finding a boarding place and getting started in their college work. The duties of the second committee are to secure chums for the girls that are not already provided with room-mates and yet do not want to room alone.

Equal the Men.

A few of the women attending the university earn a portion of their college expenses by writing for newspapers, reading to old people, doing light housework, caring for children, etc. The past year there has been a committee among the wives of the faculty members to aid women in securing work. Through this medium not a few women have secured employment.

As students the women equal the men. In some lines of study they may, on the whole, surpass them while in other lines they may not be quite as successful, women are now an essential element at the University of Michigan; and were they all to be "transported beyond the sea" it would not be quite the same great U. of M. that it is to-day.

RAILROAD TAXES.

Michigan Railways Must Pay More This Year Because of an Increase in Their Earnings.

Under the present specific tax laws of the state the railroads of Michigan will this year pay taxes aggregating $1,087,616.89, an increase of $145,802.35 over the taxes paid under the same law last year, the increase being due to increased earnings and the new construction placed upon the law by Commissioner Osborn, which has resulted in the addition of taxes aggregating $43,874.98. The computation of taxes has been placed in the hands of the auditor-general for collection, and all taxes must be paid by July 1.

The total earnings of all Michigan roads for the first quarter of 1899, according to a report issued by Commissioner Osborn, were $7,667,970.81, as against $7,045,865.82 for the corresponding period of 1898. The per cent. in increase is nearly nine.

Measles in Villages.

Reports were received in St. Joseph that the villages of Stevensville, Sawyer, Livingston and Bridgeman were upon the verge of a measles epidemic. The health authorities of Bridgeman, where the disease has been central until a few days ago, state, after a careful canvass, that there are fully 200 well-developed cases within the limits and immediate vicinity of the four affected villages, which all lie south of St. Joseph.

To Colonize Lands.

D. W. and Frank Filer, of Ludington; Mary J. Saxton, of Milwaukee, and the R. G. Peters Salt & Lumber company, of Manistee, have conveyed to the Michigan Trust company, of Grand Rapids, as trustee, about 70,000 acres of land in northern Michigan counties from which timber has been removed. It is proposed to colonize the lands, and agents will be employed in the east to encourage settlers to take them up at low prices.

Potato Patches for Poor.

Superintendent Kuhnle, of the cemetery board of trustees, has informed the public that the new 40-acre tract of land to be added to the cemetery at some future day is now available for gardening purposes by the poor people of Menominee free of charge, who may want to raise potatoes or garden truck. The land was recently cleared, the soil is good, and the same will be divided into acre or half-acre patches as desired.

Novel Experiment.

An experiment is to be tried at Ludington in the line of road improvements which is interesting because of its novelty. It is the idea of Mayor Cartier, who proposes to spread refuse salt from the numerous salt blocks in the city on the unpaved streets. The salt is said to hold the sand and work in with it, forming a hard, durable surface.

Farmers Victimized.

Many Mason county farmers who cut down their fruit trees after the severe cold spell last winter and set out new trees are now discovering that they have been victimized by unscrupulous nursery agents, as their new trees are all dead, and probably were so when delivered by the agents.

Last Thoughts for Brother.

Emelia Ecarious, sister of Edward Ecarious, who is serving a life sentence at Jackson for killing Louis Buchler on December 22 last, died recently in Saginaw, leaving an estate of $2,000. She directed that the money be used in an effort to clear her brother, whom she believed to be innocent.

FOR MEMORY'S SAKE.

Memorial Day a Time for Especial Remembrance for the Loved Ones That Are Gone.

Memorial day, with its sweet, and significance, is again at hand, the one day of all the year devoted to memory, and to beautiful and tender offices for those who have gone just beyond our sight.

Especially set apart as a day of loving recognition of the deeds of the brave young heroes who gave up everything for God and country during the civil war, it has gradually grown to be observed by all who miss the familiar presence of loved ones, who have gone out from their lives, never to return, as a time of especial remembrance.

In thought, however, Memorial day is still especially associated with the veterans of the civil war, and year by year, as the line of march has grown shorter, and the aged participants feeble and grayer, a deeper tinge of pathos has been added to the beautiful custom of strewing with flowers the graves of comrades who fell in battle, or who have since fallen out by the wayside of life, and all of us have been forcibly reminded of the time, so near at hand, when the last of these men shall have gone home, and the work of decorating their graves shall be left to the children of our day, and so on to their children's children.

And these children have been taught, in homes and in schools, the meaning of the day, and of late they, too, have joined in the loving work, their tiny hands and sweet voices lending a tender note to the loving message of the season.

In our fancied security, however, we have confined our thought to the past, believing that the number of heroes' graves would be complete when the last veteran of the civil war had gone to his reward. But this year the day has taken on a new meaning. The unexpected has occurred, and one does not need a vivid imagination to picture the Memorial days of the future, when a younger generation of men shall pay loving tribute to their comrades, brave men all, who gave up their lives in the service of humanity.—Elizabeth Robbins Berry, in Boston Budget.

Memorial Day.

We have shed bitter tears for loved and lost ones.
Yet our dear dead are never far away.
'Tis we who drift in thought and feeling from them.
Though toward them still we turn, Memorial day.

Then may these flowers bear tidings to those loved ones—
The subtle fragrance rising like a prayer—
And tell our longing and our deep devotion
To those—not lost, but dwelling elsewhere.

Our Father's house, we know, has many mansions;
They dwell in others while in this we stay.
Could we but see their loving hands reach toward us
And draw us near again, Memorial day.
—Judith Spencer, in Good Housekeeping.

First Decoration of Soldiers' Graves.
The first systematic decoration of soldiers' graves is said to have been in 1862, when the wife and daughter of Chaplain May, of the Second Michigan, visited the cemetery at Arlington and placed flowers upon the graves of soldiers buried there. It was the women of Charleston, S. C., who were the first to decorate the graves of both friends and enemies, a graceful act which was celebrated in the beautiful poem: "The Blue and the Gray." The custom was followed for some years, particularly in the south before the establishment of a regular day for this ceremony.

WHERE HEROES SLEEP.

They died for country. 'Neath the somber sod
They lie in silence, heroes all,
Where the soft winds murmur and the grasses nod;
They died for country at their country's call.

Deck with flowers that sacred mound,
In solemn gratitude. On hallowed ground
Ye stand, where brave men sleep, a sainted throng.
Your tearful tribute and your solemn song
Shall prove the fervor of a nation's woe.
The glory of the sacrifice they made,
And as your chant arises, soft and low,
Upon the grave God's gentle sunlight plays,
As if in blessing on the resting place
Of those who perished in the darkness of days.
—Edward S. Van Zile, in Once a Week.

GIRLS EXERCISING IN GYMNASIUM.

to women. Almost immediately Miss Madelon A. Stockwell, of Kalamazoo, entered the sophomore class of the literary department. The following autumn 34 women students were received by the various departments. Eleven of them entered the literary department, three the pharmaceutical, 18 the medical and two the law department. Since that time the number of women has constantly increased. In 1876 there were 117; in 1884, 170; in 1888, 284; and to-day, 673.

Given Positions.

As early as 1875 a woman was appointed an instructor in the university. Twenty-one years later—in 1896—Dr. Eliza M. Mosher, a graduate of the medical department with the class of '75, was called to the university as professor of hygiene. She was also made women's dean and superintendent of the women's gymnasium. Among the other women now on the university faculty are Fanny E. Langdon and Dr. Julia W. Snow, instructors in zoology and botany, respectively; Dr. Jeanne C. Solis, demonstrator of nervous diseases in the medical department; Alice G. Snyder, instructor in the women's gymnasium, and several assistants.

Gives Three Courses.

Dr. Mosher, as professor of hygiene, gives three courses in hygiene and household economics. Course 1, which is known as Personal Hygiene, has to do with the structure of the human body, the phenomena of nutrition, the influences which favor and retard body metabolism, foods and their adulterations. Course 2 is divided into domestic hygiene and municipal hygiene. The first treats of air, water, soil, house building, heating, lighting, ventilating, draining, etc.; and the second of municipal sanitation, water supply of cities, sewerage removal, destruction of garbage, street cleaning, sanitary construction of public buildings, school sanitation, control of diseases, etc. Course 3 is household economics and has to do with house finishing, furnishing and cleaning, diet in health and disease and household emergencies.

Adviser for Women.

As women's dean Prof. Mosher is an adviser for the women in the univerher brother students. She pursues the same courses as he, recites in the same classes, works in the same laboratory and receives the same degrees. In the literary department she, like him, chooses her own course of study and arranges the order in which the different subjects are to be taken up. She rooms where she pleases, boards where it is most agreeable and arranges her hours of study and recreation to suit her own convenience.

Have Their Societies.

The women of the university have their sororities, which correspond to the men's fraternities. They are chapters of national secret Greek letter societies with from 15 to 25 members each. The sorority rents a house, engages a housekeeper or chaperone, and the members make it their college home. The sorority to a certain extent bears the same social relation to a woman while in college as her father's family when she is at home, forming a background and protection and giving a certain social status. At present there are eight sororities at the University of Michigan, with a total enrollment of about 150.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Young Woman Murdered.
Near Dimondale, ten miles south of Lansing, Miss Mollie Flagler, aged 22, who lived with her widowed mother, was murdered. For several years there has been living in the family, more or less of the time, a stock buyer named James Brumm, who had been greatly attached to the girl, but as he was a widower nearly twice her age his love was not reciprocated. Mrs. Flagler was also opposed to her daughter marrying Brumm. The murder was committed while the girl was alone in the house, Mrs. Flagler having gone to visit a neighbor. Brumm was captured and seemed unable to give any account of his crime. He is undoubtedly insane.

Heavy Fire Loss.
Fire broke out in the Grand Rapids veneer works, and an hour later the plant had been completely destroyed. It was the largest institution of the kind in the country and contained a large amount of expensive machinery, which cannot be duplicated here. The loss is estimated at $80,000 to $100,000. It is insured for $40,000 or $45,000. Over 20 men were employed and have been working overtime for the past six weeks.

Health in Michigan.
Reports to the state board of health from 92 observers in various portions of the state for the week ended May 13 indicate that pneumonia, scarlet fever and consumption increased and cerebro-spinal meningitis decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported at 166 places, measles at 86, typhoid fever at 16, scarlet fever at 42, diphtheria at 16 and whooping cough at 15 places.

Aged Woman Slain.
The dead and mutilated body of Mrs. Sarah Newberry, an aged woman who lived alone in Yankee Springs township, ten miles from Hastings, was found in her house, and later Charles Smith, a half-witted man of 30 years, was arrested on suspicion of being the murderer. The crime was committed some time during the night.

No Fee Necessary.
Attorney-General Oren decides that express and telegraph companies are not required to pay a franchise fee under the franchise law of 1893. It is not essential, says the attorney-general, that they file their articles of incorporation at Lansing, and unless they should attempt to do so the act of 1893 does not apply to them.

Woman Suffragists.
The State Woman's Suffrage association has elected these officers:
President, Leonore Stacker Bein, of Saginaw; vice president, Elizabeth A. Willard, of Battle Creek; treasurer, Emily B. Ketcham, of Grand Rapids; auditors, Dr. L. B. Jacques, of Grand Rapids; Margaret H. Downs, of Grand Rapids.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Daily Summary of the Work Done by the Lawmakers in the Senate and House.

Lansing, Mich., May 17.—In the senate yesterday bills were passed providing that a copy of the application shall be made a part of every insurance policy, and prohibiting the labeling as "pure white lead" every package containing any composition other than white lead and oil. The house yesterday deferred action on the railroad taxation bills until next Tuesday, when they will be considered as a special order. The railroad committee reported a bill providing for specific rates that will increase the railroad taxes $120,000 annually, but exempting the earnings of car ferries, because the boats are taxed locally. The entire afternoon was spent considering resolutions proposing taxation measures, but all were defeated, the most noteworthy providing for a commission to report to a special session next January a plan of tax law revision.

Lansing, Mich., May 18.—In the senate yesterday the anti-trust bill was recalled for the purpose of amending it, the claim being that it is a reproduction of the Ohio statute, which Attorney-General Monett is alleged to have declared worthless. Two important bills were defeated: Providing that the stock of all corporations be assessed at cash value, and that saloon keepers might keep their places of business open on Independence day. The house passed a bill designed to prevent mob violence. It provides that persons injured by mobs, or the relatives of those killed, shall have action for damages against the county in which the mobbing occurs, the damages to range from $1,000 to $5,000. The house refused to concur in the senate resolution for final adjournment on June 7, but deferred action until the 25th inst. The committee on private corporations favorably reported several unusually important bills. The list included the anti-trust bill which recently passed the senate; the bill providing that beet sugar companies that in any way affiliate with the sugar trust shall forfeit all claim to state bounty, and the bill prohibiting foreign building and loan associations from doing business in Michigan.

Lansing, Mich., May 19.—The senate passed the following house bills: To amend the charter of the city of Marquette; fixing November 15 as the time by which highway commissioners must report; providing for only one highway commissioner in the county of Chippewa. In the house yesterday the reports of the majority and minority of the committee which investigated the expenditure of the war fund were read, leading to vigorous debates, but no action was taken. Bills to abolish contract labor in prisons, to employ convicts in making binder twine and to label all goods made in prisons were recommended.

Lansing, Mich., May 20.—Bills have been passed in the senate providing for an extra judge in the St. Clair county circuit; providing for a state library commission; providing a salary for supervisors in St. Joseph county; for the relief of soldiers outside of the soldiers' home; to give greater latitude to poor commissioners in deciding what persons need help; providing for the incorporation of employment insurance companies; making the auditor-general defendant in suits to set aside taxes. The house yesterday killed the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor in any building on the grounds controlled by the national guard. The labor committee favorably reported a bill requiring railroad companies to have fortnightly instead of monthly pay days, and the ways and means committee recommended a bill providing for the payment of 48 cents a day additional to Michigan soldiers in the recent war. This applies to every soldier mustered in from Michigan and covers the entire period of his service. The bill providing home rule for cities advanced to third reading.

Lansing, Mich., May 21.—At last night's session of the house Speaker Adams exploded a bomb by refusing to receive a special message from the governor, in which the executive issue with and criticised the report of the minority members of the committee which investigated the expenditure of the war fund of this state. When the clerk completed reading the message, Speaker Adams said: "I am well aware that Monday is wash day, but the floor of the house is open only to the members of the house for that purpose. The chair will rule that the message is out of order, and order it returned to the governor."

Appropriation Exhausted.
Washington, May 23.—The state department has cabled to United States Consul Hanna at San Juan, Porto Rico, and to United States Consul Williams at Manila to close up their offices on July 1. After that date neither of those officials will be in the service of the United States, and the consulates will be abolished. Congress omitted appropriations for their maintenance, owing to the acquisition of Porto Rico and the Philippines as a result of the war, and the state department has been retaining the officers at their posts for some time past in the capacity of special agents.

Portland Cement Trust.
Columbus, O., May 23.—A special to the dispatch from Toledo says a syndicate backed by English capital is being organized to control the largest Portland cement works in the United States. The headquarters will be at Quincy, Mich. The plants to be absorbed are located at Sandusky, Castalia and Cleveland, O., Chicago, Union City, Ind., Coldwater and Bronson, Mich., besides others. The company is now capitalized at $250,000, but this will be increased to $1,000,000.

Admiral Schley Given a Reception.
Omaha, Neb., May 23.—Admiral Schley was tendered a reception by the Commercial club Monday from 11 to 12, at which were present practically all of the men who represent the great commercial and industrial interests of the city. The reception was of an informal character. There was a jam at the rooms during the hour. In the evening he was entertained at the Omaha club.

Will Extend Road to Columbus.
Columbus, O., May 22.—A special to the Dispatch from Lima says the withdrawal of the Detroit & Lima Northern railroad from Columbus makes it absolutely certain that the Columbus & Milwaukee railroad will be extended to the Ohio capital just as soon as possible.

The Power of Storm.
The Cayman Islands in the West Indies were nearly overwhelmed by the recent storm. Even apparently secure things are not safe. Even if you have health be on your guard. Disease works stealthily—it undermines and trouble occurs where it is least expected. An occasional dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will keep the bowels regular, the stomach sweet and disease at bay. If you have indigestion and constipation try it. It cures.

Worth of Words.
Once upon a time a beggar importuned a lawyer for alms.
"Let me give you some advice," said the lawyer.
"I'd rather you sold the advice and gave me the proceeds," ventured the beggar, trying not to seem forward.

HOME duties to many women seem more important than health.
No matter how ill they feel, they drag themselves through the daily tasks and pile up trouble. This is heroic but a penalty has to be paid.

A woman in New Matamoras, Ohio, Mrs. ISABELL BRADFORD, tells in the following letter how she fought with disease of the feminine organs until finally forced to take to her bed. She says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write to you to tell you that I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think there is no medicine in the world like it. I suffered for nine years, and sometimes for twelve weeks at a time I could not stand on my feet. I had female troubles of all kinds; backache, and headache all the time. Seven different doctors treated me. Some said I would have to go to the hospital and have an operation performed. But oh! how thankful I am that I did not, that I tried your Vegetable Compound instead. I cannot say too much in its praise, nor thank you enough for what it has done for me. I want you to publish this in all the papers for the good of other sufferers."

advice is promptly given without charge.
The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled; for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, advising and helping by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

Manchester.

Hiram Part and family visited friends in Adrian Sunday.

Mrs. McCord went to Bay City last week to attend the golden wedding of her sister, Mrs. Richards.

A large number of our citizens went to Tecumseh last Friday to be present when the members of Co. C arrived.

The teachers of the school, accompanied by Misses Julia Kirchhofer and Maude Goodell, drove to Saline last Saturday to attend the Teachers' Association meeting.

The school in the Palmer district, taught by Miss Ellenore Lehn, has been closed for the remainder of the year, on account of scarlet fever.

Tuesday was set apart as a gala day when the citizens attempted to do honor to the boys who took part in the late war. The guests of the day included all who went from this place and also the members of Co. C, 31st Mich., of Tecumseh, with which company a large number of the Manchester boys enlisted. After a short parade on the street, a large crowd assembled in Arbeiter hall and listened to an interesting program. The address of welcome by the village president, A. J. Waters, was responded to by Adj. Harry Kies. Further speeches were made by Rev. Shier and Rev. Heidenreich, and Capt. Kyle, of Tecumseh. Duets, solos, and instrumental music enlivened the program. The Chelsea Band deserves special mention on account of the excellent music rendered by them both on the street and in the hall. At 6 o'clock the returned soldiers were banqueted at the Freeman House. A reception and dance at Arbeiter hall in the evening concluded the festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Guerin, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. English, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luick and daughter Eva, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Luick, Phil and Lula Steger spent Sunday at Jay Wood's.

The Walter L. Main Circus.

The parade this season with the W. L. Main shows which exhibits at Ypsilanti, Saturday, May 27, is especially noteworthy in that it contains more novelties than ever before, notably the Zouave Drum Corps, a troupe of performing elephants, and an ancient historical Quebec Calash properly costumed. The parade is said to be of unusual length and brilliancy, and worth going miles to witness. The parade will leave show grounds at 10 o'clock a. m. A free exhibition will be given at the show grounds after the return of the parade. In order to give all a chance to see the grand exhibition in the menagerie tent the doors will be open at 1 and 7 o'clock.

Where Do the Coins Go?

It is estimated that there are 199,000,000 old-style copper pennies somewhere. Nobody knows what has become of them, except that once in a while a single specimen turns up in change. A few years ago 4,500,000 bronze two-cent pieces were set afloat. Three millions of them are still outstanding, but are never seen. A million of three-cent silver pieces are scattered over the United States, but it is very seldom that one comes across any of them. Of the 800,000 half-cent pieces not one has been returned to the Government for coinage or is held by the Treasury.
