DECORATED THE GRAVES

Of Those Who Surrendered Their Lives in Order That

THEIR COUNTRY MIGHT LIVE

A FINE CELEBRATION OF DECORATION DAY IN CHELSEA.—REV. J. I. NICKERSON GAVE AN EXCELLENT ADDRESS. EVERY SOLDIER'S GRAVE DECORATED.

Another Memorial Day has come and gone, and the one this year possessed peculiar significance to all in that our country has gone through another war. This time as an united people and has come out victorious. The sight is also presented at this time that while all the other nations of the world are at peace with each other the United States is engaged in a warfare with a barbarous nation thousands of miles away from home, a war which has been forced upon us as the result of our conquest over the Spaniards.

At Germantown, Pa., the spectacle was presented Tuesday of the graves of both Union and Confederate soldiers being alike decorated. Time has thinned out the ranks of the old veterans of '61-'66, and many who have been seen in the parades of former years were this year conspicuous by their absence.

The day was all that could be desired for such an occasion, with cloudless skies and a nice cool breeze and all nature seemed to shine its fairest, as though in perfect harmony with this beautiful custom.

Memorial Day has always been one of the days most observed by the people of Chelsea and surrounding country, and last Tuesday was no exception to the rule. The town was filled with people from all directions, there being fully 1,500 people at the cemetery.

Promptly at 2 p. m. R. P. Carpenter Post, the W. R. C. and Chelsea Tent, K. O. T. M., headed by the Chelsea Cornet Band, marched from their halls to the opera house, where the exercises were held.

The hall was filled to overflowing, many being unable to gain admittance. T. E. Wood presided, and the services, after the reading of orders by Post Adj. G. J. Crowell, were opened by music by the band, after which Rev. C. S. Jones, pastor of the Congregational church, offered an invocation. A double quartet composed of Louis Burg and C. H. Kaiser, first tenor, Geo. A. Ward and R. A. Snyder, second tenor, John Eisenman and Mort. Conway, first bass, Geo. H. Kempf and Floyd Ward, second bass, rendered two numbers which were very fine and appropriate.

The address was delivered by Rev. J. I. Nickerson, pastor of the M. E. church. It was an excellent and forceful talk on the manner in which Memorial Day and like holidays should be celebrated, in a quiet and thoughtful manner and not with so much boisterousness and levity as too often prevails. He then spoke of the great civil war of '61 to '66, what the causes were that brought it about, the men who fought its battles and conducted the councils of the nation at that time, and which culminated in the freeing of the negroes who were held in bondage in the slave states.

Then followed the benediction by Rev. William P. Considine, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church.

After the close of the exercises at the hall the procession was formed in the following order:

Band.
Chelsea Tent, No. 281, K. O. T. M.
R. P. Carpenter Post, No. 41, G. A. R.
The Dewey Guards,
W. R. C.

The Village Clergy.

Citizens in Carriages and on Foot.

The procession marched along Middle street and Willow avenue to Oak Grove cemetery to the soldiers' monument, where the G. A. R. ritual services were conducted. The graves of all deceased comrades in both Oak Grove and Mt. Olivet cemeteries were then decorated and a salute was fired by a detachment of the Chelsea Rifles. The procession then reformed and marched back to the opera house and disbanded.

The graves of deceased soldiers in St. Mary's cemetery, the German M. E. cemetery, Vermont cemetery and Maple Grove cemetery, in Sylvan, the John Moore burying ground, in Lyndon, Porter's cemetery near Jerusalem, and the Lima Center cemetery were also all decorated.

Thus ended the memorial services of 1899, and long may the veterans live to impress the lesson of patriotism upon the minds of those who are coming after them.

PLUNGE OF A TRAIN.

Washout on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern Road Causes a Disaster—Eight Lives Lost.

Waterloo, Ia., May 29.—The most terrible wreck in the history of Blackhawk county was that which occurred Saturday night on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern railroad, about four miles northeast of this city. A passenger train of seven coaches, including the mail and baggage cars, was wrecked with a terrible loss of life and great injury to many living. The cause of the disaster was a washout, due to a waterspout or cloudburst in Orange township. Crossing the railroad track where the wreck occurred is a little stream called Sink creek. The sand and gravel was washed out from under the track, leaving it unsupported for stretches of from ten to twenty feet. The rails and ties held stoutly together, and there was little to indicate to the engineer the insecurity of the road before him. All at once a lurch of the engine warned the engineer of the impending disaster. He and the fireman leaped from the cab, and by good fortune that can be counted as scarcely less than miraculous escaped with but slight injuries.

Freed from the track, the engine plowed its way deep into the earth along the side of the track until its momentum could carry it no further, and it stopped. Lying on one side in the ditch behind it cars of the train were piled up in a confused heap. The mail car rolled over close to the engine; the baggage car partly telescoped the mail car; the first coach partly telescoped the baggage car, and the second coach partly telescoped the first coach. The third coach telescoped the first sleeper, the floor of the coach resting just about on a level with the lower berths in the sleeper. Here is where the greatest casualties occurred. The rear sleeper was not injured, and its passengers were not injured to any great extent.

Relief trains carried surgeons and nurses at once to the scene of the wreck to care for the injured. Seven or eight of the injured were brought to Waterloo. Afterwards all were taken to Cedar Rapids and placed in St. Luke's hospital, where they are being cared for. The surgeons state that none of the injured are seriously hurt, and all will recover.

Following is a complete list of the killed and injured:

KILLED—E. L. Arnold, Minneapolis; William A. McLaughlin, Minneapolis; H. R. Sheppe, Alton, Ill.; David Hello, Minneapolis; George Wainwright, Burlington, Ia., conductor of the train; F. S. Carpenter, St. Louis; one body not yet identified; William Schollin, of Waterloo, whose arm was amputated in order to release him from the wreck, has since died at his home.

Injured.

S. H. Basher, Waterloo; W. F. Burke, Cedar Falls; A. L. Fox, Waterloo; D. W. Fleming, Albert Lea, Minn.; C. W. Whitney; William Hayden, Chicago; U. D. Morris, Cedar Rapids; J. H. Bates, Toledo, Ia.; Mrs. W. J. Stevenson, St. Paul; E. D. Drummond, Finchford, Ia.; Jerry Murphy, Castledoon, Ireland; John Miller, Hunter, N. D.; Mrs. M. I. Myers, Prentice, Wis.; J. M. Gibney, Cedar Rapids; Amond Nordby; Norwood, N. D.; Mrs. J. Morganstern, St. Paul; Charles Frazier, Morning Center, Ia.; E. L. Hogford, Burlington; J. H. Jackson, West Liberty; C. W. Matthews, Grand Rapids; W. H. Myers, Barrington; Emil Joansbill, Norwood, N. D.; Ostrander Nordbill, Norwood, N. D.; William Durlin, Cedar Rapids; H. C. Tunnell, Albert Lea, Minn.; Frank Gray, Allison; S. Sullivan, Terre Haute, Ind.; Claud Williams, Peoria, Ill.; R. L. Calvin, St. Louis; William H. Heale, Albert Lea, Minn.; Anna Urban, Tower, Minn.; Frank Petrosic, Tower, Minn.; J. L. Neal (colored), Minneapolis; Cora Neal (colored), daughter of J. L. Neal; E. C. Ikaug, Lemond, Minn.; B. W. Carrington, Chicago; John Bauer, St. Louis; unknown man, Alton, Ill.; W. B. Arnold, Minneapolis.

One of the saddest cases was that of R. H. Sheppe, of Alton, Ill., who died at 8:15 o'clock Sunday morning at the Beck, Naumann & Watts building, where many of the injured were taken. When brought in it was plain that he had sustained bad internal injuries. He was cut about the head and his wounds, both external and internal, were bleeding freely. To a physician he confided that he was on his way to Minneapolis to get married. He expected to reach Minneapolis at seven o'clock Sunday morning and was to have been married Sunday. He asked a physician to telegraph his father and his sweetheart. "Tell her," he gasped, "that I have been detained by a wreck and cannot keep the appointment on time. Don't say any more," he said. He expected to get better, but breathed his last at 8:15 o'clock.

DREYFUS IN LUCK.

French Government Officially Announces That a Revision of His Case Will Be Held.

Paris, May 29.—The government announces officially that former Capt. Dreyfus, now a prisoner on Devil's island, will be retried by a court-martial. The sittings will be held in a garrison town distant from Paris. The prisoner will be brought to France at an early date.

Mr. Manau, procureur general of the court, is now in possession of Ballot Beupre's report. It will be read by him at the public hearing of the case which opens to-day and will probably occupy two days. The attorneys for Mrs. Dreyfus will take up the time of the court until Thursday evening. The court will then deliberate, and final judgment, it is expected, will be rendered on June 3.

The Case in a Nutshell.

Alabastine is a permanent coating for walls and ceilings, designed to take the place of kalsomines and wall paper. Alabastine sets with the wall. It is practically a stone cement, as hard and smooth as paint, but much less expensive, and is applied just as easily by anyone. It can be mixed with either cold or hot water, and applied with a kalsomine brush. It is clean, healthful, and economical. Every one of the strong points of Alabastine, proved to be such by the test of twenty years, is picked up by every new manufacturer of ordinary kalsomine and claimed for his goods. These claims are absurd on their face. Alabastine alone can prove its durability by the test of time. It is sold by paint dealers, in 5-lb. packages, properly labeled.

A NECKLACE OF LOVE.

No rubies of red for my lady—
No jewels that glitter and charms,
But the light of the skies in a little one's eyes
And a necklace of two little arms.
Or two little arms that are clinging
(Oh, he'er was a necklace like this!)
And the wealth o' the world and love's sweetness impiered
In the joy of a little one's kiss.

A necklace of love for my lady
That was linked by the angels above.
No other but this—and the tender, sweet kiss
That sealeth a little one's love.

"Oh! I begin to catch the idea. Pack the treasure inside of them at night and let it lie in those innocent-looking copra bags until you come back, eh? By Jove, old chap, that beats my ghost-haunted fissure all hollow. We'll call that settled. I guess we've covered everything likely to come up before you get back. Now, what day shall I look for you?"

"This is Sunday, the 19th. I'll get away from here by Tuesday morning at the latest—the 21st. Two weeks from that would be May 5—and four days more? You can look for the steamer off Orote Saturday morning, May 4, about sunrise. And be mighty careful you don't let anyone suspect she's coming before the middle of July; not even Senorita Dorotea. By the way, what are you going to do about that young lady?"

"Oh, shucks, Harry! don't beat about the bush. If that girl continues to help you as she has, and keeps her mouth shut, she's a trump. Are you going to sail away and leave her at the end of the world with merely a conventional promise to call if you ever happen to be in Spain when she's living there?"

"No, I'm not, old one. When the Countess of Devon change owners, it is possible that Senorita Dorotea may have an interest in her. My mind has been pretty well occupied with this speculation of ours for the past two weeks, but—well—How's Gracia?"

"You'll see for yourself when we go below for breakfast. She thinks a good deal of Senor Enrique—to tell me all the time that I don't half appreciate his friendship for me; so you're welcome to be as brotherly or cousinly as you please with her, especially as she's likely to sail with us on the Hong-Kong voyage."

"Really? Good! The girls ought to be very chummy together. But, I say, suppose anything should happen to me, or, through some unforeseen misfortune, I should lose the stuff? If you'd contracted to buy the ship, and support a wife in the bargain, you'd be in a good deal of a hole. After all, Dick, it's a frightful big gamble. And I don't know that you're justified in taking chances."

"Oh, bosh! I'd like to know what chances I've taken, or am likely to take, compared with yours. I've got $20,000 in gold, right here on this table, to do with as I see fit; I could get married and skip with even that much, couldn't I? And I'm likely to sit up nights worrying about a partner who went under water for me in mid-ocean, bottled up in a diving suit, who tumbled off a submarine precipice and managed to get on top again, who's been prowling about with ghosts and skeletons, and who hit an island, 450 miles away, with a proa, as plumb as if he'd had it fast to a cable; ain't I? Why, man, you've got more lives than a Kill-kenny cat! I reckon I can stand the chances if you can."

"Well, we'll do our level best and hope that everything'll come out all right. I'm not particularly interested in Yap, so I'll start back in an hour or two and get down to business."

"Not much you won't. It was pretty good navigating to make the island as you did, running before the wind; but going back is another matter. You'd have to make a reach of 400 miles north-west before you could put about for Guajan, and you couldn't go 48 hours without sleep. Of course, you could get the sun and figure about where you were; but it might take a week, standing off and on; and we can't afford either the risk or the time. As it happens, there are two Pouynipe Spaniards aboard who want to reach Agana this voyage; but under the circumstances I'd run you up there regardless of consequences. I reckon that letters from Sebastiano and De Garma will smooth over the irregularities of this trip, and when we own the Countess I can do as I please with her."

Here the conversation was drowned by the whistle, as we signaled for a pilot off Tomil bay; and by six bells we were anchored opposite Rul inside the reefs. The cura Juan was almost paralyzed when I shook hands with him. How my presence on the steamer was possible, when he had last seen me rowing ashore at Apra, he simply could not understand; and when Diaz told him of my being picked up at sea, he crossed himself several times. That the natives sailed from one island to another, in the Carolines, he knew, but the trips were seldom long ones, and very rarely beyond sight of land.

CHAPTER XIII.

The next three days passed very pleasantly. The time had not yet arrived for explanations to either Mel'herson or Senorita Gracia; but we gave him 30 of the doubloons as an evidence of the progress we were making, and discussed various plans for the future with both, on the way back to Guajan.

We were all very anxious that the padre—or, rather, his eminence the bishop—should have no opportunity to come aboard at Apra. So, as the two passengers had but little luggage, it was arranged that we should be dropped in the proa somewhere off Cocos island, the steamer then heading for Manila without further loss of time. This arrangement was carried out, and the people at Agana had no suspicion of the Countess' visit until after we landed. The Pouynipeites, having been occupied with their own affairs, were not positive as to just when or how I had come aboard; so the impression got about that, having been blown out to sea, I had been picked up a long distance from land and conveyed to a safer neighborhood merely because the two strangers were going that way.

Inquiring for Sebastiano that evening, the gobernador told me he was suffering from a severe attack of gastric fever, which seemed likely to keep him in bed for some time; so I paid him a visit of condolence; it was the least I could do. Then I took advantage of his indisposition to get the treasure above water while safe from interruption.

First, I spent a couple of nights in removing the silver, already secured, from Tarofoto and stowing it away in the copra bags at Apra. Then I made regular trips every second day to the reef, returning with a long reach to the north-northwest which brought me into Apra bay about midnight, and working at the stowage until after three. This, with staying under water at the wreck, was pretty exhausting work, and but for the rest on the odd days I couldn't have kept it up. To have slept all day at the gobernador's house would have aroused comment very shortly, so I spent the time upon the water with Dorotea, napping in the bottom of the proa, while she fished and kept watch, as soon as we were well away from land.

Sebastiano's illness was the thickest streak of all my luck. I was beginning to feel careless because of our interrupted good fortune, when, returning from the last trip but one, a shadowy proa followed me into the bay. I held off toward the Agat road until two figures landed from her and walked into the copra shed; then I steered out to sea as fast as the wind would take me. Before rounding Punta Orote I thought of and discarded a dozen different plans. I had taken great pains to stow the treasure in the very center of the bags, so there was nothing but innocent copra for a thickness of several rows around and above it; and I knew if the strangers examined each bag as they went along they would scarcely reach the stuff before morning. It then occurred to me that Br'er Miguel's ghost wasn't earning its salt as guardian of the empty fissure at Tarofoto, and might be employed to advantage nearer home; so I sailed around after him as fast as possible. I had reached Apra a little early that night, so had time to return before daybreak; and, running ashore near the watering place, about three-quarters of a mile from the shed, I hurried toward it, holding my apparition before me.

The intruders had evidently investigated until they were tired out, and were sound asleep on top of the pile of bags. This was just the opportunity I wanted. Propping the figure up under the roof, about ten feet from them, I crawled out of sight on the opposite side and turned the ray from my lantern upon it. Then I dropped a piece of copra upon the stomach of the man nearest me. He was sleeping so soundly that I had to try a heavier piece, which startled him with a grunt of surprise and pain. In about three seconds his eye fell upon that faintly illuminated was figure, and, with a howl of terror that made my own nerves jump, he ran for his boat as if he were trying to break a record. His companion wasn't more than five seconds after him, and the two fought like madmen in their attempt to shove off and get away. To make the effect permanent, I grabbed my dummy, and, holding the lantern so that its rays would be reflected back upon it, glided swiftly after them. The horror of the thing had reduced their cries to inarticulate gasps, and they worked like demons to get out where the wind would fill their sail; so, as it was low tide, I waded after them, holding Br'er Miguel high enough to give him the appearance of walking upon the water.

When I finally waded back to shore, it was getting gray behind Tiniquio, so I lost no time in stowing my friend under several layers of copra bags, where he was likely to be undisturbed, but where I could get him in short order if his services should be required again. Then, hurrying back to my proa, I dumped the cargo of specie overboard in four feet of water, where it could easily be found whenever there should be an opportunity for secreting it.

This affair so thoroughly awakened me to the danger of delay that I removed all the remaining treasure from the wreck in one big load, next trip. Standing for the last time in the lazaretto of Nuestra Senora de Sevilla, four fathoms under the Pacific, I felt as though I were saying good-by to an old friend; for I shall probably never see her again. There was something wonderful in the way she had guarded those millions for me all the years since they first disappeared under water, and I speculated a little as to whether strict honesty wouldn't require my searching for heirs of the original owners. This didn't trouble me very long, however. The risks Halstead and I had undergone, and the way we had worked the problem out to a successful result, seemed to give us a better claim upon the money than anyone else—even our fat and scheming friend Sebastiano.

So the days slipped along through April into May, while I rested and learned what it was to have a beautiful woman's personality creep into the deepest corners of my heart. Then one morning there came a cloud which threatened disaster to all our hopes; and but for Dorotea's position and ready wit this narrative would be merely one of fruitless adventure. A schooner came sailing into Apra—one of the island schooners which trade in coconuts, beche-de-mer, and other products—in search of water, poultry, and any cargo there might happen to be in the place. Noticing the bags of copra under the shed, her captain offered the harbor master a higher rate than that which obtained at Manila, and was told that, as the gobernador would undoubtedly be glad to sell at such a price, he might send ashore for it whenever he pleased. We were just coming in from a sail, and saw the schooner's men loading some of the bags into a jolly-boat as we skirted along outside of Apra island. My face must have been absolutely colorless, for Dorotea laid her hand upon my arm and exclaimed:

"Madre de Dios, querido, what is it? que tiene V.?"

"No tengo nada; but look! They are taking away the copra in that schooner! The treasure! It is packed away in the bags. I never dreamed they would be disturbed until Halstead came for them. Oh, good Lord! how on earth can I stop them without giving the whole thing away?"

"Steer inside Apra and land at the pier. I will stop it very quickly."

"But how? What can you say that will not arouse suspicion that there is something more valuable in the bags?"

"I cannot tell until I ask of the harbor master why he does permit it; then I will think of something. Does el Capitan Halstead know?"

"Of course he does, and expects to take them next trip."

"Then he would surely give more than other men for them?"

"Yes, yes. So will I. Only keep them where they are until he comes. I have it! Say that I spoke to you of a new chemical discovery which Halstead told me about—one which increases the value of copra, and which made him think of buying this lot on speculation. The treasure will need chemicals to get the corrosion off, anyway."

"Al, that will do. But you must not so alarmed appear, Enriqueito. Do you light one of your cigars. Smoke as if it did make no difference to you. Leave the rest to me. Now—vivo—take the frown from your forehead. Come, there is el official—Senor Legaspe! Senor Legaspe, why do los hombres remove the copra?"

"El capitano gives two dollars more than the Manila rate, senorita. I knew el gobernador would accept such an offer, so I have given him permission to load."

"You have made a mistake, senor! the gobernador will be greatly displeased. The price of copra has risen very much, and the stranger capitano thinks we have not heard of it. Stop them instantly. I should regret to see you in trouble, Senor Legaspe."

"A thousand apologies, senorita; it shall be as you say. I knew nothing of the rise in values, and I but thought el gobernador would be pleased to sell. Hola, hombres! The copra is not for sale. Take those bags out of your boat and bring them back."

The sailors looked at one another and then grumblingly began to do as they were told. The schooner's captain must have been watching through his glass, for inside of five minutes he dropped another boat into the water and came ashore as fast as his men could row. Hailing the harbor-master in bad Spanish when he was within ear-shot, he asked what the devil was the matter, and why his men were taking the stuff out of the jolly-boat. Legaspe was smarting a little under the sharp trick he thought the captain had played upon him, and was very short in his reply that "the gobernador would not sell, and that was all there about it."

"Who says he won't?" shouted the captain. "I've had my glass on the shore for half an hour, and no one has spoken to you but this yellow-faced chap and the girl yonder. He ain't the gobernador, I'll take my oath; and as for the girl, I don't allow no damned native women to interfere in my business."

It took all the self-control I had to keep from knocking the man down. His cool appropriation of our millions was a serious enough offense, without the gratuitous insult to the girl I intended to marry. I stepped in front of the fellow and looked him over. Then I said:

"This lady, sir, is Senorita de Garma, only daughter of his excellency, Col. De Garma, gobernador of the Ladroneas. I supposed from your colors that you were a German, but I'm ashamed to see that you came from my own country. You will doubtless see fit to apologize to the lady at once."

The man's cold, fishy eyes met mine for a second or two before he spoke; he seemed to be sizing me up. Finally he drawled out:

"Waal, perhaps I war a leetle hasty. I dunno who you mought be, stranger, but yer kin tell ther leddy I didn't mean no offense; wimmin's a good deal alike out here'n—ther islands, an'—I didn't judge her right, that's all. But about that thar coppa; I want a cargo of it, an' I'm willin' ter pay er fa'r price. I'll give the gobernador four dollars more'n thar Manila rate, an' he kin pocket thar difference; but I don't cal'late ter leave Apra without it."

"I'm afraid you'll have to. I happen to know the stuff is worth a good deal more than the price you name; and, rather than let you have it, I'll buy it myself on speculation."

"Oh, ye will! What's ter purport my layin' down my money here on thur sand an' tellin' my men ter put it aboard? I reckon you an' that dago ain't goin' ter stop me."

"That's where you make another mistake. Senor Legaspe sent for the gobernador an hour ago, and he'll be here with the officers of his staff very shortly. In the meantime, if you or your men lay a finger on those bags, I'll shoot you without a second's warning." (I was playing for millions, and I meant what I said.) "More than that, as you have grossly insulted the senorita, I'll kill you if you stay another five minutes on shore."

A WOMAN'S WAY.

She Took Time to Write a Letter When a Telegram Would Have Been Better.

"Speaking of conscientious service on the part of a lawyer," said the citizen who came to Detroit when young and is now past his three score and ten, "I want to tell you what was done by one who always stood high in the esteem of the bar and but recently died. He had gone through college and taken his legal course with a young man who afterward settled in an interior town of Pennsylvania, where he grew wealthy by looking after the legal interests of mining and manufacturing corporations. Part of the property left his wife at his death consisted of 3,000 shares of railroad stock that had cost but little and had been given in return for professional work. The widow did not know what to do with this part of the legacy, and so she sent it to the Detroit friend of her late husband and asked him to dispose of it on the best terms he could get."

"When the shares touched 70 he wired her that he thought it time to sell and asked an immediate reply. Woman-like, she wrote instead of telegraphing, and in the meantime the lawyer concluded to sell, receiving a $21,000 check in payment. But the letter, when it arrived, told him that the writer had been informed that the stock was likely to go to par, and that she preferred to wait. The lawyer succeeded in buying the stock back. Meantime she received his letter telling what he had done on his own motion, and she at once replied that the sale was acceptable, and would he please forward the proceeds. Here was a dilemma, but the lawyer had a conscience that was as good as his friendship. He sold at 67½, made up the $7,500 difference out of his own pocket, absolutely refused to accept any commission from the wife of his old chum and sent her the full $21,000 just as though the sale at 70 had stood. The stock is now quoted at 21. And yet the world has a way of laughing at the idea of honesty among lawyers.—Detroit Free Press.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Daily Summary of the Work Done by the Lawmakers in the Senate and House.

Lansing, Mich., May 24.—The house yesterday refused to concur in the railroad taxation bill passed by the senate increasing railroad taxation under the present law about $32,000 annually, and passed a bill by a vote of 72 to 22 which increases the taxes on railroads operated in this state $500,000 in round figures over last year's assessment. This renews the fight over the question of railroad taxation and it is not possible that the legislature can now adjourn on the date fixed in the pending senate resolution, May 25.

Lansing, Mich., May 25.—The senate yesterday passed a beet sugar bounty bill which had already passed the house providing a bounty of one cent per pound. This will call for an appropriation within the next year variously estimated at from $200,000 to $700,000. Other bills have been passed providing that officers in a forced sale of land may set aside a portion to be exempt as a homestead; appropriating $160,000 for the industrial school for boys; appropriating $105,000 for the Central normal school; appropriating $24,803 for the Michigan asylum for the insane. A bill permitting saloons to be kept open on the fourth of July was defeated. In the house a bill was passed appropriating $50,000 for a Michigan exhibit at the Buffalo exposition and increased the standing appropriation for the university by $32,000, making the annual appropriation $378,000. A bill prohibiting the giving of any manner of entertainment either in or out of doors on Sunday was defeated.

Lansing, Mich., May 26.—The senate yesterday adopted resolutions expressing sympathy with Finland because of the abrogation of its charter and autonomy and asking President McKinley to have our representatives at the peace conference intimate that it is the wish of the people of this country that the liberties of Finland be not interfered with. A resolution was also adopted fixing June 17 as the time for final adjournment. In the house a bill appropriating $70,000 to be distributed among Michigan soldiers in the Spanish war at the rate of 48 cents a day for each man below the rank of commissioned officer was agreed to. Bills providing for the incorporation of fidelity, casualty, accident, plate glass and sickness insurance companies were favorably reported, as was a bill taxing express, telegraph and telephone companies two per cent. on their gross earnings.

Lansing, Mich., May 27.—A bill taxing the output of copper mines has been prepared in the senate and will be vigorously pushed. It levies a tax of one-half cent a pound on mines having an output in excess of 50,000,000 pounds a year, one-fourth cent on from 10,000,000 to 50,000,000 pounds, one-eighth cent on from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 pounds, and one-sixteenth cent on all under 5,000,000 pounds. The house has agreed to bills changing the law so as to tax fire insurance companies on their net earnings, the commissioner of insurance having interpreted the present law to tax gross earnings; also making it unlawful for fire insurance companies to reinsure in companies not licensed to do business in Michigan. The Sayre income tax bill, already passed by the senate, has been recommended by the house committee on taxation.

Lansing, Mich., May 28.—The senate on Saturday adjourned to Tuesday night. Competent authorities express the opinion that the house has jeopardized the legality of all legislation that may be enacted during the remainder of the session by adjourning to Wednesday afternoon. The point is that the adjournment is for more than three days, that being the constitutional limit of time for which one house can adjourn without the consent of the other.

HARRISON MEETS LOUBET.

The Ex-President of the United States Calls on the French Executive.

Paris, May 29.—Former President Harrison, accompanied by Gen. Horace Porter, United States ambassador, on Saturday had an interview lasting 20 minutes with M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs. The interview was of a most cordial character. After discussing the friendly relations between the two republics, the president and ex-president drifted to the general subject of arbitration. Mr. Harrison expressing the view that it was essential, in order to make the use of arbitration general, that the representative idea should be eliminated from such tribunals. In order that they should retain purely judicial character, every member of arbitration tribunals should, he thought, be absolutely indifferent to the individual interests of the parties in litigation. In the course of an interview, after leaving the Elysee, Mr. Harrison said that President Loubet seemed to be a sincere friend of arbitration. Regarding the peace conference, Mr. Harrison said he thought the principal object for which it has been called would not be attained, but that some form of arbitration or a step towards its adoption may be the outcome of the meeting.

INCLINED TO RETALIATE.

Our Government Displeased with Canada's Action in Hindering Negotiations in London.

Washington, May 27.—There is little doubt that our government is inclined to retaliatory considerations against Canada by the discouraging results of the negotiations in London looking to the clearing of the field for the reassembling of the joint Canadian commission. It is gathered that the British foreign office, which had seemed desirous to meet Mr. Choate's advances in the spirit of compromise that promised well, has been again influenced by Canada's refusal to agree to anything less than a concession of all of her demands, which has stopped all progress.

The department of state has referred to the treasury department the arrangement of a plan to protect the interests of the United States, and a decision from Secretary Gage is expected very soon.

The University Students' Lecture Association is already laying plans to try and induce Admiral Dewey to be the star attraction on the next year's course. Failing him they would like to book Admiral Schley. There is no game too big for those boys.

Admiral Dewey will be four months on his voyage home from the Philippines. He probably thinks that during that time the superabundant enthusiasm of a grateful country will have effervescenced somewhat, and the greeting accorded him while being no less hearty will be more dignified and without so much noise and worry.

The path of the Detroit, Ypsilanti & Ann Arbor Street Railway Co. is not all strewn with roses these days. In fact the thorns of legal processes are besetting the company from every side, and in every instance they have brought the suits upon themselves by the arrogant manner in which they have dealt with everyone they have come in contact with. In their idea they alone have rights, the public generally have no rights whatever. 'Tis ever thus, and we sincerely hope that the authorities of the several townships through which the proposed line from Ann Arbor to Jackson will run, particularly Sylvan, will see to it that the terms of the franchise granted to them shall be sufficiently strong and binding as to secure for the public at least a modicum of the rights and benefits they are entitled to.

Whatever other good laws the present legislature may have enacted it has none to its credit that show more wisdom than the passage of the one fourth mill bill for the support of the University of Michigan. This great state institution has always been hampered in its work by a lack of funds and its friends have been constantly on their marrow bones, so to speak, before each succeeding legislature, begging for the necessary crumbs with which to try and keep up with the march of other great institutions of learning, and everyone knows how sparingly these crumbs were dealt out. It is a matter for congratulation to all that the university will now be placed in a position where such a course will not be needed. To Senator Charles A. Ward, of this district, is due much of the credit for securing the passage of this bill.

BOARD OF STATE CANVASSERS.

The board of state canvassers have completed the canvass of the returns from the counties, giving the votes cast at the April election. The canvass has been considerably delayed on account of recounts in Bay, Wayne and other counties, and it was not completed and signed until Friday last.

The board declared that all the gentlemen previously announced as having been elected were elected. That the amendment relative to circuit courts was carried by 3,313 majority, and the good roads amendment by 36,994. That the amendment relative to establishing a state printing office had been defeated by 2,606 majority, and the amendment relative to the establishment of an intermediate court by 2,878.

It is to be regretted that the intermediate court amendment was not carried, as it would have eventually proved of great benefit to the people at large.

That the amendment relative to establishing a state printing office failed of passage should be no matter of surprise to anyone, the only wonder is that it was not defeated by a larger majority. The reason for it, however, can be found in the aversion of voters in the rural districts to vote on amendments. We believe that had they thoroughly understood that if the amendment had carried it would have cost $100,000 more per year to do the state printing than it now costs by the contract system, the amendment would have been defeated by 100,000 majority, instead of 2,606. It was a salary grab of gigantic proportions.

The present legislature has passed a new law relative to the sale of gasoline and other liquids of an explosive nature. It went into effect May 1, and its provisions are as follows: "Every grocery, druggist, peddler or other person who shall sell and deliver at retail any gasoline, benzine or naphtha without having the true name thereof and the words 'explosive when mixed with air' plainly printed upon a label securely attached to the can, bottle or other vessel containing the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to a fine not exceeding $100 or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three months, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court."

The Freer Divorce Case.

The somewhat sensational divorce case of Alice Freer vs. Nelson E. Freer, of this place, came up for trial in the circuit court Monday. From the evidence given it was apparent that both parties wished for a divorce, but the bone of contention was the title to the $1,050 house and lot in Chelsea on which there is a $500 mortgage.

Mrs. Freer swore that Freer had called her vile names, accused her of unfaithfulness, struck her three times, and that she was obliged to take boarders and roomers to support herself. She further said he was of such character that she would rather sleep on a bed of straw with pigs than to live with him again.

Nelson E. Freer denied most of his wife's testimony, thought he had given her proper support, had never called her vile names or abused her, the blows she swore he had given her he defined in substance as "love taps." He swore he had never cast suspicion upon the parentage of their child and had never known or had reason to suspect anything in his wife of such a nature, that he would not willingly live with her again, if it could be satisfactorily arranged.

Judge Kinne granted Mrs. Freer a decree of divorce and held the matter of alimony and the custody of the child in abeyance, but there is little doubt but that Mrs. Freer will get all she has asked for.

What We Shall Pay Taxes On.

The Sylvan township board of review was in session at the town hall Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Only three slight changes were made in the assessments as made by Supervisor Bacon. The footings of the assessment roll are as follows: Real estate in village, $397,150; in township, $498,525; assessed to non-residents $34,600; total real estate, $930,275; personal in village, $180,625; in township, $31,850; assessed to non-residents, $11,775; total, $223,759. The total assessment of real and personal is $1,154,025, an increase of about $28,000 over that of last year. Over 100 dogs were assessed this year.

The village board of review was in session Friday and Saturday last. A few changes were made in the assessments, but on the whole the taxpayers were satisfied with the amounts placed opposite their respective names. From the footings of the assessment roll the following figures are gathered: Real estate assessment, $453,675; personal, $223,125; total assessment, $676,800.

At a special meeting of the village board held Monday evening the assessor was ordered to spread a tax of 1 per cent on the rolls. This will realize $6,786 for the current year's expenses, $1,500 of which is needed to pay borrowed money.

Elmer Bates returned home from the Klondike Friday. He had the misfortune to get his leg broken while working on one of the rivers in that country. There was no surgeon at hand to set the limb and his companions did the job as best they could. It has not knit properly and he may have to have it rebroken and reset before it will be of use to him again. Mr. Bates says there is not much chance for a man up there unless he has plenty of money.

The Congregational church had its capacity taxed to almost its fullest extent Sunday afternoon to accommodate the large congregation that had assembled to listen to the memorial sermon, which was preached by the pastor, Rev. C. S. Jones. Between 400 and 500 people were present. It was an eloquent sermon and showed that much thought and care had been bestowed on its preparation. It was listened to with rapt attention. R. P. Carpenter Post and the W. R. C. attended the service in a body.

A rumor has been current the past week that the common council had granted the saloonkeepers permission to keep open July 4, and considerable adverse criticism has been given the council in consequence. In justice to the council it is only fair to say that such a power is not vested in them, and they have never thought of usurping it. The state alone has the power to fix the law when the saloons shall be open or remain closed, and even if the council did grant them such a permission the saloonkeeper would be liable to be prosecuted by the county officers for violation of the liquor law. Rumors like these are usually floated by irresponsible parties who do not know what they are talking about, and such was the case in this instance.

M. A. Lowery is now Michigan agent for the Colton Smead underfeed furnaces.

A special meeting of Olive Chapter, No. 108, O. E. S., will be held Wednesday evening, June 7, for the purpose of initiation. A good attendance is requested. Commence promptly on time.

The piteous rains that have fallen in this vicinity during the past week have made all nature smile and the farmers wear the pleasantest kind of faces over the good it has done to the growing crops.

Raynor H. Newton, of Chelsea, has commenced suit for divorce from his wife Lovina Smith Newton. They were married March 14, 1861, and have had nine children of whom one is living, a daughter, aged 18, of whom the bill contains the strange statement that the father thinks she is married but that her present name is unknown to him. The complainant charges that the wife whom he married 38 years ago was cruel to him and that her manner of life rendered it impossible for him to live with her and that on July 22, 1893, he had been driven from home and into a far distant country.

Attorney General Oren has given an answer to the prosecuting attorney of Branch county in response to a question as to how much pay supervisors are entitled to, that will be news to a good many of those gentlemen. He says: "Supervisors are limited to pay for one regular session of not to exceed 12 days, and not to exceed two special sessions of six days each making a total of 24 days. There is nothing in the law to prevent supervisors from remaining in session and doing business beyond the limit noted, but they are not entitled to draw pay for the extended time."

A STORM KILLS MANY.

A Farmer and Six of His Children Lose Their Lives—Great Damage by Wind, Rain and Hail at Other Points.

Omaha, Neb., May 29.—A special to the Bee from Chamberlain, S. D., says: Word reached town Sunday afternoon of a disastrous and fatal cyclone which passed over the country in the vicinity of Bijou hills, 25 miles south of this city, Saturday afternoon between four and five o'clock, resulting in the death of seven persons and the serious injury of two others. The killed are: Charles Peterson and six children, the latter being four boys and three girls, ranging from three to fifteen years old. The wife and two remaining children were so badly injured they may also die.

The cyclone formed on a section in plain view of hundreds and moved in a southerly course, the first place reached being that of Ara Coden, which was totally destroyed. The storm then destroyed a church and a schoolhouse, after which it reached the Peterson place, where the execution done was simply appalling.

The dead and injured were strewn all about the premises, all being bruised and maimed in a shocking manner, while the buildings were smashed to splinters.

After doing its worst here, the cyclone destroyed the Criegor premises, then passing into the range of hills, skirting the Missouri river, where it appears to have been dissolved. The path covered by the storm was only about 20 rods wide and about three miles in length. The wind was accompanied by a heavy fall of rain and hail, the latter being as large as goose eggs. The cyclone was fearfully destructive, everything in its course being completely destroyed, a large amount of stock also being killed.

A Heavy Loss.

Omaha, Neb., May 29.—A special to the Bee from Central City, Neb., says: Probably the most destructive cyclone that ever visited Nebraska passed through the northern part of Hamilton county Saturday night, at seven o'clock, destroying from $75,000 to $100,000 worth of property, including 15 dwellings, one church, one schoolhouse, two iron bridges across the Blue river, barns, corn cribs, outbuildings, orchards, groves, fences and stock.

Storm Causes Havoc in Iowa.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 29.—Terrific storms swept over Iowa Sunday evening. At Tama there was almost a cloud-burst and much damage was done. There was a small cyclone near Kewick and five people were injured. The Chicago & Northwestern railroad sustained much damage. Between Watkins and Blairstown the track is in a dangerous condition and several trains are tied up in this city. A large force of men is working on the break. It is reported that Dows was destroyed by the cyclone Sunday evening, but no particulars are obtainable yet.

Great Damage by Hail.

Beatrice, Neb., May 29.—A severe hailstorm visited Beatrice early Sunday evening, doing immense property damage, injuring several persons, killing birds and breaking glass by the wholesale. The storm came up suddenly and hundreds of people were caught while driving. Several runaways occurred in which people were injured, the most serious being Louis Cox, whose shoulder blade was broken, and his wife, who sustained painful bruises. Dead birds lie in the streets by hundreds, trees are stripped of their leaves and fruit and crops destroyed. The storm is reported to have been more severe out in the country than in the city.

Much Glass Broken.

Hastings, Neb., May 29.—A terrific hailstorm struck this city at 3:45 Sunday afternoon and continued for 15 minutes, during which time over 2,000 panes of glass were broken, fruit and grain destroyed, chickens and birds killed and injured and several persons hurt. At the asylum for chronic insane 400 panes of glass were broken, in the main building and 1,300 in the greenhouse, where a great amount of damage was done. The hailstones were as large as hens' eggs and came down with such force as to kill many chickens, knock birds out of trees and break shutters on windows. Young fruit on cherry, apple and peach trees was all knocked off and many limbs stripped from the trees. All winter wheat was destroyed, but corn and other grain was not up far enough to be affected. Garden truck is partially destroyed.

In Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., May 29.—Specials from cities in Berrien county report a severe and disastrous electrical storm at 12 o'clock Sunday. Seven houses are reported damaged by lightning in Benton Harbor. Considerable damage was also done at St. Joseph. Coloma and Watervliet report several houses badly damaged, and in the latter place one man, whose name is unknown, was killed. He had taken refuge, with his bicycle, under a tree, which was struck by lightning. He was instantly killed. Fields in a number of places were inundated.

ROUT THE REBELS.

Gen. MacArthur and Funston Have a Severe Encounter with Insurgents Near Santa Arita.

Manila, May 25.—Thirty Filipinos were killed and over 60 wounded in the battle which took place Wednesday morning between the American forces and the insurgents at Santa Arita, one mile north of San Fernando. The Americans lost one man. Twelve of our troops were wounded.

The insurgents made the attack. About nine o'clock the Filipinos opened fire upon the outposts of Gen. MacArthur's command. The American scouts fought bravely, and held the natives back until they were reinforced by troops from San Fernando.

Gen. MacArthur, at the head of two battalions of the Montana regiment, and Gen. Funston, leading two battalions of the Kansas regiment, two guns from the Utah battalion, one hotchkiss and one gatling gun, hurried to the assistance of the outposts. The insurgents were occupying the trenches which they had previously vacated at the fall of San Fernando. The Kansas troops deployed to the right, while the Montana soldiers went to the extreme left. The artillery was left in the center of the line.

The Filipinos made a desperate resistance. Finally they attempted to retreat, but found themselves flanked by the Kansas troops. Gen. Funston charged his men, and drove the insurgents right over into the fire of the Montana volunteers. Finally they escaped from this fearful fire, but they left their dead and wounded where they had dropped on the battlefield. Besides the killed and wounded 90 were made prisoners, while over 100 stands of arms were captured, having been dropped by the natives in their wild flight from the Americans' fire.

Gen. Lawton is at Malolos. Practically his entire command is withdrawing to the region of the railroad. The Americans will find it difficult to hold the captured territory during the rainy season. In a few days the roads will be impassable.

Gen. Lawton, with most of his troops, has arrived at Malolos. His expedition marched 120 miles in 20 days, had 22 fights, captured eight towns, destroyed 300,000 bushels of rice and only lost six men killed and 31 wounded. On the other hand, Gen. Lawton estimates that his troops killed 400 insurgents and wounded double that number.

HEAVY LOSS BY FIRE.

An Area of Fifteen Blocks Burned Over in St. Johns, N. B.—Loss About $500,000—Two Deaths.

St. Johns, N. B., May 26.—Fire that broke out in a building adjoining the general warehouse of P. Nase & Sons, Main street, North End, Thursday afternoon, did enormous damage. A leading underwriter estimates the loss at $500,000, and the insurance at $300,000. The area burned over comprises 15 blocks, or portions of blocks, and the buildings destroyed number 150. Probably 1,000 persons are homeless, a majority of them laboring people. Two deaths are to be set down to the fire. A Miss Cunard, an aged lady residing on Holly street, was burned in her house, and Mrs. Arnold Mowery, who resided a short distance from the scene, died from shock.

Iowa Prohibitionists Meet.

Des Moines, Ia., May 25.—M. W. Atwood, of Estherville, was Wednesday nominated for governor at the prohibition state convention here. Other nominations were as follows: For lieutenant governor, George Prigsley, of Harrison county; D. S. Dunlevy, of Jasper, for superintendent of public instruction, and A. B. Wray, of Creston, for railroad commissioner. Resolutions were adopted demanding entire suspension of alcoholic liquor traffic; favoring woman suffrage; election of senators by ballot; commenting Secretary Long in suppressing the canteen on board American warships; demanding one day's rest in seven by all corporations; commending the czar of Russia for peace proposals.

Unanimously Accepted.

Washington, May 27.—Meetings of the disarmament conference at The Hague indicate a unanimous acceptance of the principle of international arbitration and mediation. It is now generally thought by the delegates that the outcome of the conference will be as outlined by Andrew D. White, head of the American delegation, and that there will be nothing more than a suggestion as to disarmament.

Cholera Raging in India.

Bombay, May 25.—Cholera is raging in Karachi, the principal seaport town of Sindh. Two hundred and thirty-two new cases were officially reported Wednesday and 208 deaths for the day. The official returns show a total of 1,197 cases and of 1,099 deaths since the beginning of the outbreak. Karachi, or Kurrachoo, is on an inlet of the Indian ocean, 18 miles from the west branch of the Indus.

COLLEGE LIFE LONG AGO.

Notable Changes at the University of Michigan Have Been Made in Past Fifty Years.

NO WOMEN WERE THEN IN ATTENDANCE.

Customs in Vogue in the Early Days Were Very Different From Those of the Present Time—Brief History of the Olden Times Will Be Found Interesting.

[Special Correspondence.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 24.—In the '50s and '60s college life at the University of Michigan was very different from what it now is. Then there were no women students. The men occupied the dormitories, which long since became the north and south wings of the main building. Chapel exercises were compulsory and were held at 5:30 or 6:30 o'clock in the morning and 4:30 or five in the afternoon, according to the season. The morning chapel was immediately followed by a recitation which continued until the breakfast hour. There were three recitations a day—except Saturday, when there was only one and an elocution exercise—for each student. On Sundays all were obliged to attend service at some one of the local churches. Monitors from among the students were chosen to report delinquencies.

Arranged in Groups.

The dormitories were arranged in groups of three rooms, each group composed of a study and two bedrooms, being occupied by two students. Each sophomore. Another donkey story is that told by Noah W. Cheever, of the class of '63. The story is as follows:

"During the sophomore year for the class of '62 there was a rather aged, but very long-eared donkey kept in a pasture about a quarter of a mile south of the campus. He was a sleek, well cared-for donkey, and very mild and amiable in his disposition, and not at all liable to strike out with his hind feet, as is characteristic of many of his tribe. The sophomore boys were careful to ascertain the disposition of the animal before they attempted any tricks with him. In some way they managed to get him into Dr. Williams' room, which was in the fourth story of the south wing. There they tied him behind the doctor's desk and generously put a large bundle of hay in the desk for him to eat during the night. When the doctor reached the room the following morning, after laboriously climbing the three flights of stairs, he found the class all assembled and apparently hard at work looking over the lesson. Dr. Williams was a very deliberate man, never hurrying about anything. As he reached the door he took off his hat, smiled at the class, looked blandly around, then deliberately surveyed the desk and donkey. 'Well, young gentlemen, I am extremely delighted this morning to see that you have chosen one of your own number to preside, and consequently do not need me. You may take the next 14 propositions in geometry for to-morrow,' and he turned with a smile and said: 'Good morning,' and went down the stairway."

A Costly Raid.

In those early days freshman spirit expressed itself in more violent forms than now. In the spring of 1870 the sophomore class made a raid upon the dilapidated and aged sidewalks—"a raid unsurpassed in Michigan annals for extent and thoroughness." The reaction was greater than was anticipated. The city officers were wild with rage and prosecutions were only prevented by Acting President Frieze, who paid out of his own pocket $225, the estimated amount of damage done.

Poetry on Envelopes.

In the early '60s it was the custom among the boys to write ornamental superscriptions on the envelopes that student furnished his own bedroom, while the study was furnished by the two in common. The students took care of their own rooms, their instructions being to sweep the dust and dirt into the hall, from where it was removed by the professor of dust and ashes, as the janitor was called.

The College Bell.

In the morning the students were aroused for chapel by the ringing of the college bell, which had been borrowed from the Michigan Central railway and was swung at the top of a pole near the college buildings. It was not only the duty of the professor of dust, etc., to ring the bell at the proper hour, but to see that it met with a ready response. Patrick Kelley, the first janitor, accomplished the latter half of his task by yelling through the keyholes of the doors behind which silence seemed to reign: "Did you hear the bell? Did you hear the bell?" until there was reasonable evidence that the morning nap had been terminated. It is said that owing to the early hour of morning chapel "it was often a sleepy, unwashed, half dressed assembly who rose to their feet during prayers."

Tricks on the Janitor.

On two occasions the students got the better of the janitor with his bell. The first of these was when on a cold winter night the boys turned the bell bottom side up, filled it with water and kept it turned until the water became ice. Their slumbers were not disturbed the next morning, but when the ice melted it was found that the freezing had cracked the bell and somewhat marred its musical qualities.

At another time the students hoped to escape the 5:30 chapel by spiriting the bell away. Dr. Tappan, however, informed them the next day that the bell had been rung purely for the accommodation of the students, that the faculty all had watches and clocks, that recitations would go on as usual, and woe unto the student that was late. The bell was in place the following morning.

Jokes on Professors.

In those early days jokes on the professors were more freely indulged in than now. One cold winter morning the janitor discovered a donkey in a recitation room. On informing the professor at his residence of the state of affairs the professor calmly inquired: "Only one?" The janitor returned and removed the offending inclosed their letters. The following is the way one letter was addressed:

"Please take this quick, kind Uncle Sam, Up to the state of Michigan; Look up Ann Arbor's blooming son, Frank C. Loomis, lock box one. Now, uncle, see how fast you'll tramp, And for your trouble here's your stamp."

Another, a drop letter from a student, read as follows:

"Take this package, postmaster sweet, To 34 West Washington street; Deliver it there to my darling girl, The brightest gem and purest pearl. Assure her that my love endures, And I will ever be, truly yours."

Troubles of His Own.

The Ann Arbor policeman has always had troubles of his own. He has rarely enjoyed the friendship of freshmen and soph. Back in the fall of 1874 he rushed a group of sophomores and succeeded in capturing the smallest fellow in the lot. He had started toward the "jug" when his prisoner, who is now a congressman, made a sudden jump, freed himself and was on the point of escaping. The "copper" caught his coat-tails, but the sophomore adroitly slipped his arms out of the coat and was soon beyond reach.

Sign Stealing.

Once during the old dormitory days, after the students had been out on a sign-stealing expedition and had hidden the trophies in the closets and under the beds, a shopkeeper who was able to guess pretty closely what had become of his sign went to the professor in charge of the dormitory and asked that a search be instituted for the lost property. The guilty students, suspecting a visitation that evening, were prepared. When they heard the professor coming down the hall they began their evening devotions, and as the professor put his ear to the keyhole he heard: "A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign, and there shall no sign be given unto it."

A Humbug.

One day one of the boys in Dr. Alexander Winchell's class ingeniously prepared, with the aid of mullage, fine wire and the different parts of a half dozen different bugs, a new specimen. The head belonged to one animal, the wings to another, the body another, the legs another, etc. The specimen was put in a box and handed to the doctor just before class with a request to know what kind of a bug it was. The doctor quickly pronounced it a humbug.

BOTTLES OF POISON.

They Were Worn as Jewels by the Beauties of Ancient Phoenicia and Greece.

Modern jewelers have been accustomed to rely to a large extent upon the ideas of ancient artificers for the designs of to-day. Indeed, many of the most popular designs in jewelry to-day are derived from a very remote antiquity, as, for example, the bracelet made in the shape of a coiled serpent. At the Metropolitan museum of art in New York city there is a great collection of ancient jewelry, much of it in gold richly adorned with precious stones. Jewelers in the metropolis frequently visit the museum for the purpose of obtaining suggestions. This collection at the Metropolitan museum is in fact the finest assemblage of antique objects of personal ornaments in existence. Some of them date as far back as 900 B. C. Those of them which are made of silver have been practically destroyed by oxidation, but the gold ones being cleaned are as bright and new-looking as they were 2,500 or 3,000 years ago. The jewelry from Cyprus is the work of ancient Phoenicians and Greeks. One thing very noticeable is the frequency of tiny gold bottles attached to objects of jewelry derived from those ancient times. All evidence points to the conclusion that they were employed to hold poison; for in those days life was by no means secure, and at any time an emergency might arise where a man or woman would be glad to end existence promptly, to escape lifelong imprisonment or indescribable torture by the horrible means used by the ancients.—X. Y. World.

SHIRT WAIST JEWELRY.

A Few of the Dainty Trinkets with Which the Summer Girl Can Bedeck Herself.

Women who are fond of jewelry have been specially favored by Dame Fashion this year, for the style is to wear as much jewelry as one pleases, taking for granted, of course, that some discretion will be exercised to avoid being "a walking jewelry shop."

Two stick pins, a pair of fancy collar buttons and a gold chain to which is attached a small purse are amply sufficient to wear with a shirt waist and skirt, without mention of the belt with its jeweled buckle.

Stick pins in the shape of hearts and crowns are the vogue, and one sees them designed in turquoises, pearls, rhinestones, emeralds and garnets.

Diamond chips set in around the edge of the collar button make a pretty collar set, and the stones to match the stick pins are strung at frequent intervals upon the purse chain. Or it is sometimes composed entirely of stones, while the purse is a delicate network of fine gold or silver threads.

Canned Salmon Salad.

This is a specially delicate dish for luncheon. Get a can of best brand salmon and, opening, take out the fish in as large pieces as possible, and lay upon a platter. Mix with one quart of celery cut in squares and seasoned with pepper and salt, add a cup of rich mayonnaise dressing. Add to the salmon. Be careful not to break the fish in mixing it with the celery. Pour over the whole half a cup more of dressing, garnish with celery tips, slices of hard boiled eggs and squares of boiled beets, arranged tastefully. Serve with salted wafers.

An Inexpensive Window Seat.

If there is a good view from your summer room window a window seat is a necessity. This may be easily made out of a soap box, and should be upholstered in blue and white cretonne. A down pillow to match is a comfortable addition. All the chairs in the room should be of willow painted white, and the cushions covered with the blue and white cretonne. White muslin curtains, tied back with blue ribbons, should hang at the windows.

DAINTY DANCE FAVOR.

An Inexpensive and Pretty Souvenir of the Last Social Meeting of the Season.

In many cities where the theater season closes early society whiles away the hours by attending dancing schools. These schools are kept open until the last of June, and at the closing reception dainty little favors are presented to the guests as a souvenir of the evening.

A delightful little favor is the pen or pencil holder. It is executed in sterling silver or other metal and has a plain plate upon the front, upon which the owner's initials may be engraved. The holder can be adjusted to any small desk implement. Or it will probably fit one of the small accessories of the manicure case.

There is a small ring at the end through which is run a yard or two of fancy ribbon tied in a bow with several loops and ends.

THE SUPPLY OF BABIES.

Thirty-Six Millions of Cherubs Born Into the World in the Course of Every Year.

It has been computed that about 36,000,000 babies are born into the world each year. This rate of production is, therefore, about 70 per minute, or more than one for every beat of the clock.

With the one-a-second calculation every reader is familiar, but it is not everyone who stops to calculate what this means when it comes to a year's supply. It will therefore probably startle a good many persons to find, on the authenticity of a well-known statistician, that, could the infants of a year be ranged in a line of cradles, the cradles would extend around the world. The same writer looks at the matter in a more picturesque light. He imagines the babies being carried past a given point in their mothers' arms, one by one, and the procession kept up night and day until the last hour in the twelfth month had passed by. A sufficiently liberal rate is allowed, but, even going at the rate of 20 a minute, 1,200 an hour during the entire year, the reviewer at his post would have seen only the sixth part of the infantile host.

In other words, the babe that had to be carried when the tramp began would be able to walk when but a mere fraction of its comrades had reached the reviewer's post, and when the year's supply of babies was drawing to a close there would be a rear guard, not of infants, but of romping six-year-old boys and girls.—Woman's Life.

FOR THE SUMMER ROOM.

A Convenient Way of Heating Water for the Afternoon Tea During the Dog Days.

Here is a pretty and convenient scheme for heating water for the five o'clock tea.

This outfit consists of a wire frame and a small brass kettle large enough to hold about a quart of water. The frame can be purchased at any hardware store with the little bowl attached for holding the alcohol. The kettle is filled with water and set over the frame. In a few minutes it is boiling and ready to pour upon the tea. The vessel can be refilled as often as desired. If kept clean and bright it makes an attractive ornament in the corner of the summer girl's boudoir. A wire frame can be fitted at home to an old standard, or you can purchase a very cheap standard and make a fancy border for it.

Universal "Peace" Inventions.

A new electric gun and a new armor-piercing projectile are the latest contributions of the inventors reported by the Chicago Record to the work of inaugurating universal peace.

Sixty Miles an Hour.

A steam motor car, designed for use on the railroads, recently made a trial trip, going at the rate of sixty miles an hour. This will probably be as much of a record as has Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the quickest known road to health. There is no quicker way for sufferers from all stomach ills to reach strength and happiness than by this great remedy. It cures indigestion, constipation, nervousness, liver and kidney trouble, and best of all the user stays cured.

Opinions of a Pessimist.

The fact that you can make a mule work in harness constitutes one of the chief differences between a mule and a genius.

Every dog has his day. The cat is on the night force.

The Maid and the Miracle

Miss Lucy Tucker, the daughter of a prominent farmer of Versailles, Ind., was the victim of nervous prostration. Most of the time she was confined to bed, and was on the verge of St. Vitus' dance. It was a pitiful case which medical science failed to conquer. Finally a doctor prescribed Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Her father said:

"We began giving the pills at once, and the next day we could see a change for the better in her. We gave her one pill after each meal until she was entirely well. She has not been sick a day since. We think the cure almost miraculous."

The proposal of the board of regents to build a new homeopathic hospital in connection with the state university at Ann Arbor, has called forth a petition to the common council, by a number of prominent citizens, to donate a site for the building. It is estimated that unless Felch Park can be made available for the purpose that a suitable site will cost from $15,000 to $20,000.

The Lansing, Dexter and Ann Arbor electric railway people are anxiously awaiting the result of the experiment now being made with compressed air as a motive power. The heavy advance in price of iron and copper has increased the cost of building the road $200,000 over what it would have cost last year. With compressed air all the expensive poles and overhead copper wiring would be done away with.

The body of Louis Bischoff, who was drowned in Joslyn lake, in Bridgewater township, Nov. 10 last, was found Friday afternoon, by a boy who was out fishing. A part of the nose was gone from the face, but the rest of the countenance looked very well considering the length of time it had been in the water. It was Bischoff's own foolhardiness that caused his death, as he purposely upset the boat in which he and three companions, Albert Westphal, Wm. Sanders and George Glotts were crossing the lake.

Memorial Sunday at Lima Center.

Memorial Day exercises were held at Lima Center on Sunday, May 28, and were attended by a large crowd from the surrounding country. The Lima Band furnished splendid music while the crowd was assembling. In the church the program began with singing by the quartet. Jay Easton introduced the speaker of the day, Wm. W. Wedemeyer, who delivered an address appropriate to the occasion.

After the exercises at the church were concluded, the band led the march to the cemetery, east of the Center, where the graves of the soldiers buried there were beautifully decorated. The flowers were very pretty and were carried by a number of small boys who marched with the band. After the return from the cemetery the band played a number of selections at the Center, and the crowd slowly departed for their homes.

Those in charge of the Lima exercises are deserving of the highest praise for the interest shown by them in the celebration of Memorial Day. The occasion was in every way a pleasant and successful one.

A Dangerous Prisoner.

Arthur Stark, the farm hand who is in jail for assault on a young lady teacher in Lima, is a very determined "cuss" in his efforts to break out of the county Bastille. Thursday of last week Deputy Sheriff Fred Gillen found in his cell three saws made from a knife, a bar of iron which he had filed off his bed, and an eight inch long three cornered file with which he had done this work. This is Stark's second attempt to get away since he was first put in jail. He is very ugly tempered. In a fit of passion brought about by having his kit of tools discovered he took the dishes on which his dinner was carried to him and broke them into pieces by stamping on them. He has had a bread and water diet the past week.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D.: "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial; took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stinson's Bank Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1. Guaranteed or price refunded.
