MODERN SURGICAL FEATS

Albert West, of Sylvan, Nearly Cured of Tuberculosis.

MAN'S UPPER JAW CUT OFF

AND HE WILL HEREAFTER WEAR ONE OF RUBBER.—HALF OF A WOMAN'S STOMACH CUT OFF AND YET SHE IS ALIVE.—U. OF M. DOCTORS DO THIS.

The remarkable case of Albert West, of this place, who has for two years been in the homeopathic hospital at Ann Arbor, and who is now in a fair way to be cured, is well known to most of our readers. The following history of his case is taken from the columns of the Ann Arbor Daily Argus and was gleaned from an interview a reporter of that paper had with Dr. S. Porter Tuttle, house surgeon at the hospital: "Mr. West is a young man about 27 years old, and when he entered the hospital two years ago was found to be suffering with tubercular abscess of the spine and was in a serious condition. In order to reach the seat of the disease, cavities were made in the back, two on either side. These were so large that the hand was easily inserted. Parts of three ribs were removed and several pieces of the vertebra were taken out. As high as 15 yards of iodoform gauze, three inches wide were inserted in one of these cavities at a time. At times the patient would be so weak that he could scarcely move his head or hand, but would lie and gasp for breath. At times he was not expected to live another day. This gauze is not considered an antiseptic, but germs will not grow in its presence. At different times incisions have been made, to the total number of perhaps 40 or 50. Two of the large cavities are now closed and the other two are in a state of healing and are greatly reduced in size. For some time the patient has been wearing a plaster cast. He wears one of these for from three to five weeks and has worn in all about 15 of them. Holes are made in the back through which the cavities in the back can be dressed. Mr. West has so far progressed that he can be about the room. The plaster cast aids him in getting about. The physicians have feared pulmonary tuberculosis but it has not appeared, the lungs being sound. When the disease attacks the lungs there is no known remedy, except that in the earliest stages it may be arrested. The physicians expect Mr. West to recover from the trouble, and think, if he continues to improve at the rate he is now doing, he will be out of the hospital in a month or six weeks. Dr. O. LeSeure is the surgeon in charge of the case."

Unusual Surgical Operations.

A short time ago Dr. C. B. Nancrede, of the medical department U. of M., performed the operation of cutting off half of a woman's stomach in order to save her life and she is getting along well. Last week, assisted by Drs. Darling and Spitzley, he performed an unusual operation upon Mr. Sligh, of Owosso. Nearly two-thirds of his upper jaw, which was affected by cancer, was cut away. As soon as this had been done an artificial jaw, constructed of the ordinary rubber used by dentists for false teeth, will be made and fastened in, and to all outside appearances he will look the same as if he had retained the natural jaw in a normal and healthy condition. At present he is being fed through a tube.

Had His Watch Stolen.

Israel Vogel had his watch stolen from the pocket of his coat, which hung in his blacksmith shop, Tuesday afternoon. It is supposed that a young man named Henry Young, a stranger in Chelsea, and who was working for James Harrington in his paint shop over the blacksmith shop, was the person who took the watch. He had been in the habit of running downstairs into Mr. Vogel's shop and taking the watch out to look at the time. Tuesday afternoon Mr. Vogel had to go to his house to get some nails and while he was gone the watch was taken. He did not miss it until 5 o'clock and then it was found that Young was also missing. Constable Jacob Staffan telephoned around the county to the officers to be on the look out for him and it is possible he may be arrested. Mr. Vogel values the watch very highly not for its intrinsic value alone but because it was a present to him from his brother who is dead.

MARCHING FORWARD.

American Troops Continue to Capture Filipino Strongholds and Drive the Rebels Back.

Manila, June 6. — Two battalions of the Washington troops under Col. Whalley, on board cascoes, were towed from Pasig to Morong on Sunday and landed under cover of a well-directed fire from the "tin-clad" army gunboats Napidan and Covadonga.

The rebels, who were entrenched in the outskirts of the town, reserved their fire until the troops were ashore and in the open. The American artillery opened fire on the insurgents and drove them from their positions, killing nine of them and wounding five. The Washington troops then took the town, the rebels fleeing to the hills.

While the Americans were on their way to Morong, the insurgents opened fire from a shore battery at Acona, their first shot striking the Cavadonga's awning aft at a range of 3,500 yards.

Manila, June 6. — Binangonan was taken Monday by the Americans without resistance on the part of the insurgents. Treumann's column, consisting of the North Dakota volunteers and one battalion of the Twelfth infantry, captured this village, which is on the west shore of the peninsula. The insurgents had retreated to the northward. Gen. Hall's column was supposed to be able to cut off just such a retreat, but the Filipinos eluded him and reached San Maeto. The insurgents had a shore battery consisting of two small guns. They succeeded in removing these also before the Americans entered the town. Treumann marched across the peninsula and joined Hall's brigade, which was moving toward Binangonan from Morong.

New York, June 6. — A special to the Herald from Washington says: In dispatching Gen. Lawton to capture Morong, Maj. Gen. Otis is understood to have the purpose to destroy or drive back the strong force of insurgents which has been operating from that section against the Pasig river line.

There is no expectation here that Lawton's column will go far from rivers or lakes, upon which supplies will be carried to him. The authorities appreciate the extreme difficulties of a campaign during the rainy season and all they expect is that the American forces will make short incursions into the enemy's country, breaking up any large organizations which may establish themselves in the vicinity of Manila, especially near Laguna de Bay.

It is apparent from the line which Lawton is following and the dispatch of the Washington troops to Morong that it is hoped to get the insurgents between that point, Taytay and Antipolo and the lake, hemmed in so that they can be destroyed or captured.

A SAD AFFAIR.

Three Young Ladies, Students of McKendree College, Drowned in a Creek Near Lebanon, Ill.

St. Louis, June 6. — A special to the Republic from Lebanon, Ill., says: Miss Ruth Jepson, of Lebanon; Miss Florence Spies, of St. Jacob, and Miss Helene Jack, of Beaucoeur, Ill., students of McKendree college, were drowned in Silver creek two miles north of here Monday afternoon. The young ladies were members of a party of six who had planned a trip to Blue Bend, on Silver creek, about two miles north of Lebanon. They were in bathing, when Miss Jepson got beyond her depth. The other two girls went to her rescue and all were drowned. Miss Annie Smith, another of the party, made a heroic attempt to rescue her comrades, but her strength failed and she almost lost her own life in the struggle. The bodies were recovered after an hour's search and a futile attempt was made to resuscitate them.

TOOK REVENGE.

Brutal Agent of Weyler in Cuba Lynched by Relatives of His Many Victims.

Havana, June 6. — A dispatch from San Antonio des Losbanos says that Jose Labraget, a notorious agent of Gen. Weyler, who outraged defenseless women and killed children, arrived here Sunday. His appearance was the signal for a gathering of relatives and friends of those whom he formerly persecuted. The excitement continued throughout the day and night. About midnight a crowd surrounded the house where he was and began to threaten him. He attempted to escape and, on meeting the demonstrators, emptied his revolver, wounding two persons. The crowd closed in and captured him, and he was lynched in the public square.

The Usual Result.

City of Mexico, June 6. — Capt. Lorenzo Santibanez, the leader of the presidential staff band, who has frequently taken that organization to the United States, was shot and instantly killed late Sunday night. Capt. Santibanez was at a party given at the house of Alejandro Cassillas, who, pretending to jest at the expense of Capt. Santibanez, pointed a pistol at him. The pistol went off and the bullet entered the left eye of Capt. Santibanez, causing instant death. At midnight Cassillas was arrested, and the law will determine whether it is a case of murder or an accident.

Those Absurd Names.

"What ridiculous names they have over there in the Philippines," said the man who had just walked up to the counter and been assured by the clerk that he could have the best room in the hotel. "There's Calumpit, for instance. That name would make a horse laugh. Who ever heard of anything so absurd as to give a town such a postmark as that?"

Then he took the pen that the clerk had been holding out toward him and wrote upon the register: "J. Crawford, Woonsocket, R. I."—Chicago Evening News.

Dewey Bought a Ticket.

When Commodore Dewey left Washington in November, 1897, to take command of the fleet in the Pacific Ocean, he did not ride on a pass or a half-rate ticket. Being a personal friend of S. B. Hege, General Agent of the Baltimore & Ohio passenger department in Washington, the now famous sea fighter bought two first-class tickets from Washington to San Francisco via the B. & O., Chicago & North-Western, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines. Lieut. Brumby accompanied the admiral and they departed on November 27th.

Some time ago Manager of Passenger Traffic D. B. Martin, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, set out to collect the coupons of the ticket and only recently secured all of them. He has had the ticket, containing Dewey's signature, lithographed, and is issuing fac-similes as souvenirs.

THE SUN AND THE WIND.

(Modern Aesop.)

When the Easterly Wind and the hot Summer Sun were walking together one day, just for fun, they met, on their way, with a Traveler who walked gaily on, spite of wind, rain, or cold.

"Just look at that fellow!" the Wind quickly said; "I'll wager I'll soon make him bend his proud head."

But the Sun interposed: "We have tried this before. When I proved that my power equaled yours, and much more."

"Let me rather try, and I'll venture to say the cloak that he wears he will soon throw away; whereas, if you rudely insist on your right, you will find he will surely hold on to it tight."

So saying, the Sun gave a beautiful smile, and smiled, and continued to smile all the while; but the Traveler seemingly suffered no harm.

But said: "This is genial, and pleasant, and warm."

The Sun now began in a furious way. To send beam after beam, and then ray upon ray; but the Traveler apparently minded them not.

For he simply remarked: "Ain't it lovely and hot?"

The Sun gave it up in despair and disgust; the Wind then remarked: "I suppose if I must, I still may succeed in the point where you failed."

Then he blew such a blast that the Traveler quailed.

He blew down his neck, and he blew in his boots; he blew till his hair was torn out by the roots; he blew till the cloak was all tattered and torn.

And the Traveler wished he had never been born.

With some kinds of people it certainly pays to adopt easy methods, and smooth, pleasant ways.

But others there are who will never give way till force and decision are brought into play.

TREASURE OF SANTA ROSA REEF

CLARENCE HERBERT NEW.

(Copyright, 1897, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

I thought the man would have a fit of apoplexy; even his vast store of deep-sea profanity failed him for the moment.

His crew were Germans, but enough of them understood English to keep the run of what was going on, and I could see they were rather enjoying the situation; evidently the skipper was a thorough brute at sea.

He was speechless with rage; but, as I had the advantage of him, there was nothing to do but pull off to his schooner and sail away.

control the shore each night in a proa. As it was likely to be a three-months' job, the soldiers didn't relish this; but they had to obey orders.

It was the 6th of May when we came so near losing the copra. On the third morning after Halstead was to appear, if everything had gone right with him; and as the time approached I became strangely apprehensive—so much so that I found it difficult to maintain an air of careless ease.

In fact, had it not been for Dorotea, I might have betrayed my real interest in Guajan a dozen times. But with each day that passed it became more evident that I had no rival in her heart.

Sometimes she would speak with dread of Halstead's return, and breathlessly ask me to promise that I would surely visit them in Granada the following spring.

Still, July was yet so far away that my departure seemed only a dim possibility to her—a something which she must not even think about.

I wondered a little what she would say when she knew, and how the colonel was going to feel.

Sebastiano had fully recovered by this time, and had resumed his investigations. Bearing the old fellow really no ill will, I one day suggested to him the possibility that Santa Rosa might be eight or ten miles to the eastward of the charted position; and on the evening of May 8 he burst into the patio, where we were at dinner, with his oily countenance fairly shining.

He had been out in his big proa all day, and at last had been successful. There were exultation, greed, many things, in the look he cast upon me; but the man had suffered disappointment and illness, and the Lord knows I didn't feel like begrudging him this bit of good luck.

I listened to him, congratulated him heartily upon his great discovery, and prophesied great things for his book, until midnight—a child could have seen that I had no personal interest in the reef—then I said good-night and went upstairs.

Stepping quietly along to the door of Dorotea's room, I gave a few faint taps upon it, and in a moment her voice asked:

"Quien llama?"

"Soy yo—Enriquito. Open the door for a moment." In a second she stood before me in a loose wrapper that made her look wonderfully pretty.

"Dorotea, querida, I'm going for a long sail before daylight. Will you come with me, about half-past three?"

The request would have been a severe test of any woman's love, but, with her arms upon my shoulders, she whispered:

"I will go anywhere at any time, with you, Enriquito mio."

So, while the stillness was unbroken save for the rustling banana leaves, we stole away to the beach and put to sea in the proa; it was to be for the last time.

I wanted to remove my friend Br'er Miguel in time to prevent complications next day; so, gliding along in the wake of the guard-boat until it almost reached the head of the bay, I landed and hastily dug the figure from its concealment among the bags.

Wrapping a piece of matting about the thing, so as not to frighten Dorotea, I lugged it along to where she sat waiting for me. She had heard all about Br'er Miguel as we came along, and, though frightened at my temerity—to call it by no stronger name—her sense of humor afterward got the better of her fears.

Having decided that our waxen companion could find no better final resting-place than the big proa—the padre certainly owed it a "requiescat"—we floated cautiously along to where it lay, near the landing-pier, and left our friend with the tiller under his arm. Then we headed out to sea.

The first streaks of red were silhouetting the peak of Tiniquio against the eastern sky when we left Orote behind us, and in a few moments it was light enough to see the horizon. Moment after moment I strained my eyes to the westward until, finally, I saw a tiny black mass that grew more distinct as I looked.

The relief was so great that I felt chilly. Dick was really coming, at last—coming precisely when he said he would—and the suspense was almost over. How I blessed McPherson and his faithful old engine!

How I wanted to get Dick's honest hand between my own fingers! Then a sudden thought occurred to me, and I looked at Dorotea. She had seen the smoke; and if ever a woman's face expressed the grief of approaching separation, tormenting fears and doubts concerning the future, hers did at that moment. Her dark, melting eyes were swimming in tears; and with her arms tight about me she hid her face in my breast, sobbing out:

"Is it true, querido mio, that—you—are to—leave me? Ai, santissima Maria! I shall die!"

"No, you won't, Dorotea—Dorotita. Listen. Halstead is on that steamer; he and I own her now; we are going to ship the copra to-day, and leave Guajan this evening. But when we go away la Senora Stevens—la Dorotea Catalina de Garma Stevens—will be with us."

Friends, have you ever seen the sunshine break over a beautiful woman's face? Have you ever seen the lovelight in her eyes struggle for mastery with speculations about her trousseau at the end of fifteen minutes? Have you ever been half strangled by warm, bare arms, as red lips whispered shy, tremulous questions, which your imagination must supply? Because, if you haven't, it will be impossible for you to appreciate what occurred that May morning, twenty miles from shore, while the sun reddened every stick of the proa, and the good old Countess steamed nearer and nearer, until her anchors towered over us and Halstead's own hands dropped the ladder by which we climbed on deck.

Another beautiful girl stood with outstretched arms in the doorway of Dick's cabin when we mounted to it—a girl whom Dick introduced as La Capitana, la Senora Halstead—and who embraced both Dorotea and myself with delightful impartiality.

So we sailed into Port San Luis d'Apra under English colors, and with a most original house-flag at the fore peak. It bore, upon a white field, the perfect representation of a Spanish galleon, such as sailed the Pacific a hundred years ago, and was the joint handiwork of Mrs. Halstead and McPherson.

Repeated blasts of the Countess' whistle brought the gobernador hurrying over from Agana without his breakfast—though his daughter and prospective son-in-law were careful to see that he suffered nothing on that account—and, by his orders, the loading commenced before we rose from the table. He was a most delightful man, as simple and easy-going as a child. He couldn't account for the steamer's sudden reappearance; the fact that his daughter was going to be married and leave him that evening was inexplicable; so he gave up trying to puzzle it all out, and smoked and drank wine with us in the best of good fellowship. The only question he asked me—and it was asked in a gentle, apologetic way—was whether my position and prospects were such that I could undertake to support a wife.

I answered cautiously that I didn't quite know how far a million would go in that line, so much depended upon the girl and her requirements, but that I thought of risking it if he were satisfied. The million he regarded as my little joke, one of my American figures of speech. He had read of millions, of course, but that he should ever be related to one was a delirious bit of humor which he often related to his friends over coffee and cigars until we took him back to Spain in our own ship, the following year; then he began smoking cigars at $20 the bundle, as became a man of his dignity and connections. He also developed a fondness for Chamberlain and grandchildren which I hope to humor as long as he lives.

Dorotea and I were married in the saloon after dinner. His grace, the bishop of Mindanao—otherwise Sebastiano—and Padre Bartolomeo officiating, as was eminently proper (one isn't married every day by a real bishop at the end of the world), and just as they were going ashore I handed them their fee. It was heavy, though not very handsome at first glance. There were 150 rusty old coins in the lot, and I had to rub one with brickdust before I could persuade them that it wasn't a joke. I explained that their acquaintance, and the service they had just rendered me, were worth all of the twenty-three odd hundred which the blackened old curios represented, but that if there were any change coming to me they might invest it in services for the final repose of Br'er Miguel, who would undoubtedly appear to them before long.

Bartolomeo didn't understand it at all. Sebastiano did, and, like the astute churchman he was, gave me his benediction before he walked down the accommodation ladder. But if ever he gets me in a corner! Ah, well, let us hope that he never will. I should hate to have anything unpleasant occur to mar our friendship.

That night, as the Countess steamed away from old Guajan, her nose pointed straight for Hong-Kong, a happy family party gathered in the captain's room. An enormous bag of copra, taken haphazard from the cargo, lay broached upon the table; and nestling among the bits of dried cocoanut kernel were doubloons, globe dollars, bars of pure silver. The treasure was safe on board, and we were rich—rich beyond the dreams of avarice.

POSTSCRIPT BY THE AUTHOR.

In arranging Mr. Stevens' narrative for publication, I find he has neglected to state the amount he and Capt. Halstead actually realized from the galleon's treasure; so, thinking that this may be of interest to many of his readers, I venture to add a few details supplied from our conversation at various times.

The steamer made a quick passage to Hong-Kong, where the Hong-Kong and Shanghai banking corporation readily undertook to handle all the silver, both in coin and ingots, giving Mr. Stevens drafts on London to the amount of £450,000. The two gentlemen, with their wives, Mr. McPherson and Don Silvestre Palacios, then made a most delightful voyage, by way of Singapore and Suez, to England, where they were successful in disposing of the gold, at an average price of three pounds six shillings to the doubloon, realizing upwards of £300,000 more.

After giving McPherson £40,000, and paying Ramirez & Co. in full for the Countess, Mr. Stevens and Capt. Halstead finally netted, in round numbers, $1,600,000 each. They then went into partnership as steamship owners, building four triple expansion steamers, and refitting the Countess of Devon with quadruple expansion engines. This fleet has been steadily making money for them, and they have each built luxurious homes, where they live most of the time when ashore—though several months of each year are spent by both families upon the Countess in cruising all over the world, sometimes carrying full cargo and sometimes merely in ballast, for pleasure.

Halstead's home is on the coast of Cornwall, near St. Ives; and Stevens owns one of the most beautiful places on the California coast, near Santa Barbara. Senor Palacios and Gen. de Garma divide their time between the two families; while McPherson, a confirmed bachelor, can always be found in luxurious quarters on the Countess of Devon, of which he is part owner.

Sebastiano is now an archbishop; and, though he occasionally accepts the hospitality of his friends, Stevens and Halstead, they are careful to avoid passing through his part of Spain when traveling in that country.

The Stevens boys are born sailors, inheriting much of their father's love of adventure. The youngest one, when visitors come to Santa Barbara, will drag them into the great hall and, pointing to a rusty diving-suit over the fireplace, say:

"Those are pa's fishing-clothes that he used to wear in the Pacific ocean, but he's getting too fat to wear them any more."

As for his mother and Gracia Halstead, they are sisters in everything but blood. Sometimes they take from an old camphor-wood chest three dresses which were Worth masterpieces not so very long ago, and are still serviceable, while they talk of the night Dorotea was married, the stories suggested by every fold of the gowns, and the wreck on the Santa Rosa reef.

THE END.

FEAST OF THE DEAD.

A Day of Strange Gifts and Tokens in the Sister Republic of Mexico.

The feast of the dead is the day in Mexico that takes the place of St. Valentine's day of this country. The custom is that of giving gifts the same as the custom of this country, but the people differ greatly as to the gifts. Here the tokens are bits of painted silk and verse telling of regard, trinkets as symbols of friendship, flowers as a happy remembrance that the good old times of the good old saint are not entirely forgotten. As the name of the day signifies, the people of Mexico have their shop windows filled with puppets and groups supposed to commemorate the dead, and odd little things some of them are and many are very costly. One gift to go to some wealthy person was an ebony hearse, about a foot long, trimmed in inlaid pearl. Miniature horses were attached and a miniature man held the lines, wearing a very doleful expression on his face. Then there are slabs of board with tiny figures of priests marching in procession, bearing between them the coffin of the dead, on which is the sign of the cross. These little slabs are supposed to represent the funerals of persons in every walk of life, and are given as gifts on the day of the feast of the dead, and varying in price and pomp according to the station of the recipient. If a person really has had a death in the family then greater care is taken in the selection, but if he has not had a death the gift finds its way to his home just the same to remind him that life is but transient at best.

These little gifts are in many designs, some of them being, but single figures, musicians, bakers, gypsies, devils and so on, to take the place of the comic valentine. Then they appear in little skeletons, reading from the books of life or fate, sitting on an altar or a grave. Or a figure in the agony of death or a mummy being removed from some ruin, but always of death or the dead.

November 2 was the time for celebrating the day, which is observed annually with much enthusiasm.—Chicago Chronicle.

Johann Strauss, the famous composer, is dead aged 74 years.

Ambassador Choate is putting in a good many hard kicks in favor of the release of Mrs. Maybrick from her English prison and with good prospects of success.

The Stockbridge Sun has started out on its 16th year of existence. It is a bright, new paper and we wish Editor Gildart many more years of successful proprietorship.

The Fowlerville Review says: There is only one way the present legislature can square itself with the people. If it will enact a law that the next legislature shall not convene in 50 years the people will forgive them for the present session.

The vicious beet sugar bounty bill has been passed by both houses of the legislature and will become a law as soon as it is signed by Governor Pingree. It is confidently expected that it will cost the state in round numbers $1,600,000 during the next two years. It is an atrocious steal from beginning to end.

Considerable bad blood seems to have sprung up between Ann Arbor's two daily papers. Each accuses the other of being the author of fake stories about different things. Birds in their little nests should together agree. Better stop it, gentlemen, quarrels between newspapers do no one any good and are not at all elevating.

Flint Globe: The Michigan legislature appropriates thousands of dollars biennially to enable Michigan men and women to learn the science of medicine at our great university, so as to prolong human life and diminish human suffering, and then sneaks home without passing laws to prevent citizens from being murdered by all sorts of ignorant quacks.

The somewhat phenomenal situation is seen in Detroit this week of three bishops, each of a different religious faith, all of whom are of the same belief with regard to the Philippine war. They are Bishop Thomas F. Davies, Episcopal, Bishop John S. Foley, Catholic, and Bishop W. K. Ninde, Methodist, who all believe that this war which has been forced upon us should be fought out to a finish.

The armor plate trust seems to have the U. S. government somewhat on the hip at present. The different firms have refused to bid on the 24,000 tons of armor plate at present required by the government. This has revived the talk of the government building and equipping an armor plate factory of its own, and the eyes of those naval officers interested naturally turn towards the iron ranges of Michigan where a site for such a factory could be secured free with the raw material right at hand. If the government does what is right it will at once take a portion of the $8,000,000 appropriated for this armor, build its own plant and then turn out the 24,000 tons of armor with the balance. It could be done and the government would be that much ahead. Things have come to a pretty pass when the trust thieves can, like a band of highwaymen, hold up the government of the country and compel it to pay whatever exorbitant prices they may choose to ask. Well may foreigners scoff at the vaunted patriotism of Americans when they see such spectacles as this constantly held up to their notice.

Many enlisted soldiers now in the Philippines are desirous of remaining there when their terms of enlistment expire and have asked the government to have them discharged at Manila, with allowance of travel pay to the place of their enlistment.

Attorney General Oren has informed Governor Pingree that the beet sugar bounty bill is unconstitutional and the governor has sent a special message to the house asking the recall of the bill. It has been contended right along by many newspaper men and others, the Herald among the number, that the bill was unconstitutional, and we are pleased to see that Attorney General Oren coincides in that opinion. The bill is a very harmful one in its provisions and should be killed outright at the start.

The legislature had far better buy up the whole beet sugar industry in the state than drain the treasury in an insane effort to bolster it up and keep it alive. If there is not profit enough in the business to keep it up without a bonus it had better be allowed to die a natural death. If, on the contrary, the business is a good enough paying one for shrewd, far-seeing financiers to invest large sums of money in the purchase of blocks of stock, the giving of a bonus is just simply putting that much money into their pockets which rightfully belongs to the taxpayers, and is, therefore, a downright theft.

Governor Pingree has refused to sign the bills granting appropriations to the several state institutions unless the legislature will pass a law to raise the extra amount required for the state budget during the next two years and a half from wealthy corporations that now pay a very little tax. He particularly emphasizes the raising of more taxes from the mining companies of the upper peninsula. The total assessment of 111 mines, located in seven counties, at present is $9,570,985 and the tax raised is $338,552.42. The difference between the assessed valuation and the total market value of the mines is shown by the figures obtained from the counties of Ontonagon and Keweenaw where the market value of eight mines is placed at $18,745,000, nearly twice the assessed valuation of the whole 111 mines, and the assessed valuation is put at $219,290. Such valuations are ridiculous. It is well known that the great mining companies own nearly every man in that country, body, soul and breeches, and that they practically fix their own assessments. Governor Pingree is right, some measure should be passed to remedy this evil and put a proper share of taxation on those who ought to and are able to pay it. Still, we do not like to see the state institutions which need the money voted them hung up for the lack of it.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

The Homœopathic Medical Society of the State of Michigan will hold its next meeting in Ann Arbor, in May of 1900. Dr. Roy S. Copeland and Dr. W. A. Dewey, professors in the homœopathic medical department of the University, were elected first vice president and chairman of the section on materia medica respectively.

Dr. Eliza M. Mosher, professor of hygiene in the literary department of the University of Michigan is giving a series of lectures on School Hygiene. Under the general topic she considers the subjects of (a) school architecture, (b) school furniture, (c) school diseases. These are considered from the three standpoints of sanitation, convenience and artistic effect.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Ann Wallace was held at the house Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. J. S. Edmonds. Mrs. Wallace was born in Montreal, Canada, and would have been 60 years old had she lived until September. She was a woman of unselfish, cheerful disposition, greatly beloved by her family and friends. She only survived her husband one month. She leaves a family of four daughters one of whom is married.

Sarah Cushman, of Manchester, was declared an incompetent last October by order of the probate court. She did not think she was and did not care for a guardian to be placed over her. Consequently she appealed the case to the circuit court. Thursday, upon stipulation signed by her attorney and Lulu Weaver, who signed the original petition, the decree was set aside by Judge Kinne and she is now at liberty to transact her business as she pleases.

Another will has popped up in the now celebrated Allport estate. The valuable property was about to be divided between the heirs, but now this new "will" must be fought and settled. As the will was drawn by an attorney who figured in the forged will case that has lately been disposed of it is not believed to be anything other than another forgery. Mrs. C. E. Miller, of Dexter, is one of the heirs to the estate. John Allport was also a resident of Dexter before he went west nearly 20 years ago.

Ypsilanti will celebrate the Fourth of July in fine style this year. There will be bicycle races, base ball tournaments and athletic sports of all kinds and the day will wind up with a magnificent display of fireworks. There will be prizes for a 1 games. Everything is free and Ypsilanti cordially invites everyone to attend. It is 30 years since Ypsilanti celebrated the Fourth and 75 years since that city held the first Fourth of July celebration given in Washtenaw county, and this year they propose to have a "buster."

Grass Lake News: The ball game between Chelsea and Grass Lake high school teams Tuesday, resulted in favor of Chelsea by one score. The Grass Lake boys who have always beaten Chelsea heretofore, thought it would be no more than proper courtesy to let their visitors win once. Therefore they so played as to permit the score at the close to stand 9 to 10. [That was very considerate, and no doubt the Chelsea boys appreciate it accordingly, but we hardly think Grass Lake is so overburdened with generosity as all that.—Ed.]

NO THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL

But Student Life at the University of Michigan Is Far from Being Irreligious.

NO COMPULSORY CHAPEL EXERCISES.

A Number of Organizations Whose Purpose Is to Help Scholars to Build Up Christian Characters—They Work in Perfect Harmony with Other Societies.

[Special Correspondence.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 31.—Student life at the University of Michigan is far from being irreligious. To be sure, there is no theological school at Ann Arbor nor compulsory chapel exercises in the university, but there are a number of organizations with the avowed purpose of helping the students to build up noble Christian characters.

The Christian Association.

Directly across the street from University hall is Newberry hall, the home of the Students' Christian association. The purpose of this association is "to lead men to an earnest study of the Scriptures, to a renunciation of sin, to a knowledge of Jesus Christ as their Divine Lord and Saviour, to the acceptance of His words and the Holy Spirit as the guide of life, and to the cultivation of Christian fellowship." The organization is undenominational. Its membership includes members of the university faculties, their wives and students in the university, and the university school of music. The members are divided into four classes: Active, associate, sustaining and contributing. The work of the association centers about Newberry hall, which contains parlors, library, reading room, prayer-meeting rooms, kitchen, secretary's office and an assembly room.

Friend of the Student.

The association aims to aid and promote Christian living by becoming the friend of the student, and thus interesting him in its work. At the beginning of each college year a canvass of the student body is made, and all those students who are not members of the association are extended a cordial invitation to join. The religious meetings of the association are a devotional service each Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock, prayer, song and testimonial services in each of the hospitals Sunday afternoon, a freshman prayer meeting for a half hour Monday evening during the early part of the college year, and a general prayer meeting every Wednesday evening.

Large Enrollment.

The present year the student enrollment of the association is 650, the number of sustaining members, who pay five dollars annually, 75; and two-thirds of the trustees are members of the university faculties.

Newberry hall is also the home of the Students' Christian association of the Harris Hall.

Ann Arbor high school. This organization holds the same relation to high school students that the other does to the university students. When a person is graduated from the high school into the university he changes from one Christian association into the other.

Work in Harmony.

Working in perfect harmony with all the other organizations, and yet having a field peculiarly its own, is the Students' Volunteer band. This is an inner circle of Christian men and women, who have consecrated themselves to the work of the Master. Most of the members of the band expect to go out sooner or later as missionaries. The band has a membership the present year of about 30. Weekly meetings are held for mutual aid.

Bible Chairs.

The Ann Arbor Bible chairs were established in 1893. The purpose of the chairs is to provide Biblical instruction for students of the university and for others who may desire to study the Bible according to university methods. At present there are two instructors in this work, T. P. Coler and W. M. Forrest. During the college year just drawing to a close nine courses were given. In one course, "The Life and Writings of Paul," there were three classes, with a total enrollment of 60. The enrollment for the nine courses was 183. Of these 160 were students.

The Supporters.

Prof. Coler, in answer to the question: "Who supported the Bible chairs?" said: "The Christian Woman's Board of Missions with headquarters at Indianapolis. The idea has occasionally got abroad that the Bible chairs were a part of the university. That is incorrect. The work is done by the Church of Christ through the woman's board. We are in hopes of endowments so that the scope of the work can be greatly enlarged. However, we have no theories to advocate and no theology to defend. We engage in this work as truth seekers. Each student in our classes is asked to think for himself and to express his opinion freely."

McMillan Hall-Sackett Hall.

The Hobart Guild.

St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal church reaches the students of the university through its Hobart guild. Rev. Henry Tatlock, rector of St. Andrew's church, says: "The object sought in establishing the guild was to throw the influences of the church around all the students who had been reared in church homes, and around as many more as were disposed to come within that influence. 'The guild,' he further said, 'is merely a means to an end. It aids us in getting in touch with the students. All our religious meetings are held in the church. This is the center of influence.'"

Home of the Guild.

The home of the Hobart guild is Harris hall, a large two-story building of brick and stone. This is a clubhouse for the members of the guild. It contains a gymnasium, bowling alley, bathroom, parlors, library, reading-room, offices and an assembly-room. It furnishes a place for meetings and gatherings of every kind.

St. Andrew Brotherhood.

Within the church is the brotherhood of St. Andrew, which is composed largely of students. The object of the brotherhood is the spreading of Christ's kingdom among men. Two other movements in which the university students take an active part are the mission Sunday schools at Geddes and Fosters, two small communities outside of Ann Arbor.

Students and the Church.

Rev. Tatlock, in speaking of the university students and the church, said: "The number attending services is 406, of whom 226 are communicants. The total number of all students, including those in the school of music and high school, is 508, of whom 301 are communicants. During the eight years ending May, 1898, 55 university students were received into the church through the rite of baptism, and 145 were presented for confirmation."

To Build a Hall.

The Methodist Episcopal church reaches the students through its Epworth league and the Wesleyan guild. This guild has an endowment of $15,000, the income of which is used in giving an annual course of lectures. The guild also has the money to build a hall and has already purchased a site. As soon as an endowment, the income of which will pay the running expenses of the guild hall, is received the structure will be erected. Then through the guild and its hall the Epworth league will bring itself into close touch with the student world. Already the student members of the Epworth league number several hundred.

Hope for Endowments.

Both the Congregational and Presbyterian churches work through their young people's societies. McMillan and Sackett halls, although the latter is occupied by the university Y. M. C. A., are the property of the Presbyterian organization. Rev. J. M. Gelsfon, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, when asked what his church was doing among the university students, said:

"We are in hopes of getting two endowments of $50,000 each. With the income from one of these we will pay the running expenses of our hall, the salary of a librarian and such other officers as are needed. With the other endowment we will establish a chair of Biblical literatures in the university. At present our religious work among the students is confined to securing a list of these of our denomination in the university and personally inviting them into our church."

Religious Census.

A religious census taken at the University of Michigan during the college year of 1896-'97 showed that 1,646 of the 2,878 students enrolled in the university were church members, 886 church adherents and 329 neither members nor adherents. Reports for a few students were not obtained. Of those reached 57.5 per cent. were church members.

R. H. ELSWORTH.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Severe Storms.

A severe and disastrous electrical storm occurred in Berrien county. Seven houses were damaged by lightning in Benton Harbor. Considerable damage was also done at St. Joseph. Coloma and Waterliet report several houses badly damaged, and in the latter place one man, whose name is unknown, was killed. He had taken refuge with his bicycle under a tree, which was struck by lightning and was instantly killed. Fields in a number of places were inundated.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health from 82 observers in various portions of the state for the week ended May 27 indicate that tonsillitis, pleuritis and intermittent fevers increased and influenza decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported in 164 places, measles at 45, typhoid fever at 19, scarlet fever at 37, diphtheria at 12, whooping cough at 13, and cerebrospinal meningitis at 14 places.

Shot His Parents.

George Stalker, aged 23, shot his father twice, his mother once and then sent a bullet into his own head at Mayville. It was thought that the father and mother would recover. Stalker died half an hour after shooting himself. He had been drinking and his parents were remonstrating with him for quarreling with a neighbor. He had made frequent threats of shooting his parents before.

Fatal Collision.

Christopher Bowman, aged 75, and Mrs. Dora Lang, both of Detroit, were fatally injured by the collision of a Rapid railway electric car with the buggy in which they were riding. Two other occupants of the carriage received serious but not fatal injuries. The accident occurred 15 miles from Detroit, on Gratiot road.

Crime of a Brute.

While the eight-year-old daughter of Rufus Van Patton, who resides two miles south of Berrien Springs, was returning from school she was assaulted by an unknown tramp and was fatally injured by the brute. He was arrested and gave the name of Harry Smith, and was placed in jail.

Old Landmark Gone.

Workmen have torn down the old Calhoun mills in Homer, on the site of which an electric light plant will be built. This mill was one of the first built in southern Michigan. It was erected in the wilderness in 1839 by a stock company at a cost of $35,000.

Not Legitimate.

Leading physicians throughout the state protest against the registering in Berrien county of newly-graduated physicians from the Independent medical college of Chicago, which they declare is not a legitimate concern.

News Items Briefly Told.

Wheat is badly injured by the Hessian fly throughout Van Buren county. The Home Security Life association of Saginaw, which recently suspended business by direction of Insurance Commissioner Campbell, has gone into the hands of a receiver.

Since January 1 Alma merchants have sold more farm implements and machinery than during any previous 12 months.

Plint's board of equalization and review have completed its labors and find the valuation of the city property to be $5,255,849, an increase of $250,000 over last year.

At the annual meeting in Detroit of the Michigan State Homeopathic society G. A. Robertson, of Battle Creek, was elected president.

Miss Almira Marshall, of Owosso, celebrated her ninety-first birthday.

While Mrs. Silas Squires, aged 81, was smoking at her home in Albion her clothes caught fire and she received burns which caused her death.

Marshall and Tekonsha will unite and hold a Fourth of July celebration at Lyon lake.

Alfred Pack, capitalist and recent republican candidate for United States senator in opposition to Senator Burrows, died at his home in Detroit from the effects of a surgical operation.

The semicentennial anniversary of the founding of its public schools was celebrated at Ypsilanti.

The business men of Ann Arbor have decided that a movement be made toward securing the erection of a new homeopathic hospital. A site will be donated.

The Lake Shore railroad has paid $29,169 taxes to the state treasurer on its leased lines in Michigan.

The route of the proposed electric railroad between Lansing and Coldwater will be from Coldwater through Union City, Burlington, Tekonsha, Marshall, Bellevue, Olivet and Charlotte to Lansing.

Claude Downing, of Port Huron, a freight conductor on the "Soo" line, was killed in a wreck. Two brothers, Grant and Albert, went down with the Chicora on Lake Michigan in 1895.

Matilda Robinson was granted a divorce in Grand Rapids from George J. Robinson, and was given the custody of their daughter, $8,000 cash and $50 a month alimony.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Daily Summary of the Work Done by the Lawmakers in the Senate and House.

Lansing, Mich., June 1.—Gov. Plagge sent an unexpected message to the legislature yesterday afternoon asking recall of certain bills which carry heavy appropriations, and urging large reductions in the amounts. The governor says he makes these suggestions because an examination shows the appropriations for the two years to be $5,000,000 in excess of the state tax for the past two years.

Lansing, Mich., June 2.—The senate dealt with a bill increasing from four to five dollars a ton the minimum price paid to growers for beets containing 12 per cent. of sugar. In the house bills taxing express companies five per cent. and telephone companies three per cent. on their gross earnings and a joint resolution permitting the taxing of corporate property on its cash value were passed.

Lansing, Mich., June 3.—The house has agreed to the Neldermer bill setting aside the submerged swamp lands of the state bordering on the great lakes and bayous thereof for a public park and fishing grounds. The bill was amended so as to exempt those parts of the St. Clair flats which had been improved previous to June 1, 1899. The vote by which the house passed the bill increasing the rate of taxation of fire insurance companies of other states from three to five per cent. has been reconsidered.

Speaker Adams had prepared a statement showing the appropriations made in 1897 for current expense, repairs, new buildings, and additions of the state institutions for 1897 and 1898, with the amounts recommended for similar purposes by the ways and means committees this year for 1899 and 1900. Last year the aggregate appropriations for current expenses were $1,132,976; repairs, $22,617; new buildings and additions, $208,588. The amounts recommended this year are: For current expenses, $1,634,610; repairs, $127,640; new buildings and additions, $696,613. The aggregate increase this year is $1,095,692.

LONDON CELEBRATES.

Official Celebration of the Queen's Birthday—Ambassador Choate Witnesses Trooping of Colors.

London, June 5.—The queen's birthday was officially celebrated Saturday in London. The chief event was the trooping of the colors in the morning on the Horse guards parade. The immense concourse present included the United States ambassador, Mr. Joseph H. Choate, and most of the prominent Americans now in this city. Detachments of the Grenadier guards, Coldstream guards and Scots guards participated in the ceremony, accompanied by their massed bands. The prince of Wales appeared, in a field marshal's uniform, attended by the duke of Connaught, the duke of Cambridge, the duke of York and Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, preceded by a brilliant headquarters staff and the royal equestrians. The duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, the princess of Wales, the duchess of York, Princess Charles of Denmark and the duchess of Connaught reviewed the ceremony from the windows of the Horse guards. After an inspection of the troops by the commander in chief, Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, the royal party took up a position at the saluting point and the troops marched past to the music of the massed bands.

REST DOES HIM GOOD.

Admiral Dewey Goes Aboard the Olympia—Sails from Hong-Kong Tuesday.

Hong-Kong, June 6.—Admiral Dewey left the Peak hotel and returned to the Olympia Sunday. Monday morning he paid farewell calls to the governor, Gen. Gascoigne, and the commanders of the warships in the harbor.

Admiral Dewey's health has been considerably benefited by his residence at the Peak. He has refused all social invitations and has taken a perfect rest. He appears somewhat haggard from the effects of the continual strain he has been under and of the climate.

The Olympia will sail at four o'clock Tuesday afternoon, but Admiral Dewey will not give a farewell dinner nor will he accept one.

It is hoped that the quiet change and the voyage will quite restore him to health by the time he reaches New York. The details of the ports at which he will call are still undecided, but it is probable that stops will be made at Singapore and Colombo. The admiral seems anxious to avoid all display and merely to seek rest.

WOMAN MURDERED.

Discharged Negroes in Alabama Shoot at Their Ex-Employer and Kill His Wife.

Birmingham, Ala., June 6.—Mrs. R. H. Hubbard was shot and instantly killed by two negroes at Ealine station, on the Memphis & Charleston railroad, in Bibb county, Monday. Mr. Hubbard is a farmer and had in his employ Alex Hill and Bud Hargrave. The negroes were discharged for indolence, and some dispute arose over the amount due them. They went to the house and called for Mr. Hubbard, who was ill in bed. One report says Hubbard came to the door and was fired upon, one bullet striking his wife, and another is that Mrs. Hubbard went to the door and was shot down. Mr. Hubbard, hearing the shots, came to the door and was seriously wounded. Armed bodies are scouring the woods, and a second Sam Hose affair is threatened. It is said Hill first fired the fatal shot.

FIFTY YEARS OLD.

Marquette Has Been Founded Half a Century and the Event Is Appropriately Remembered.

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Marquette was duly remembered. The original party of Marquette settlers came from Sault Ste. Marie in a Mackinaw boat. There were 12 of them, the only one who is now living being Hon. Peter White. This party stopped but one day, when its members shouldered their packs and tramped on to the mines, where they remained until word was received of the arrival of a second and larger party headed by A. R. Harlow, one of the members of the company, and its agent. Mrs. Harlow came with this company, and with her, a babe in arms, was Mrs. F. O. Clark. It is probable these two share the honor of having resided longer in Marquette than any other women. The name of the town was originally Worcester, its founders having hailed from that Massachusetts city, but later it was changed to Marquette. At time of settlement there was an Indian village of about 100 inhabitants, which was presided over by Chief Kawhaw-gam. The chief was quite wealthy in those days, but is now living in poverty in a little house which was built for him on the neck of Presque Isle. The chief is now more than 100 years old.

GONE TO MANILA.

George W. Sickles, of Pontiac, Takes a Position in the Commissary Department of the Army.

George W. Sickles, of Pontiac, left for Manila, having accepted a position in the commissary department of the army. Mr. Sickles has had a varied experience, which will prove valuable to him in the work upon which he is about to enter. At one time a conductor on the Illinois Central railway, afterwards a warden in one of the large western prisons, he accumulated, by saving, a small fortune. He went to San Francisco and invested it in a trading expedition to the South Sea islands. The vessels which had been chartered were wrecked upon the rocks of one of those foreign islands and everything was lost, the members of the party barely escaping with their lives. Following this a year was spent among the Fiji islands as captain of a trading vessel, and later he was manager of the leading hotel in Apia, Samoa, for six months. He returned from his adventures last January, and has been residing with his brother in this city from that date until the present.

A SMOOTH SWINDLER.

He Has Been Working Merchants in Southern Portion of the State Very Generally.

A smooth swindler has been working the merchants in many villages in the southern portion of the state. He appears at a store where tobacco and cigars are sold and announcing himself as a revenue inspector, examines the stamps on the tobacco in stock. He finds that some of the stock bears counterfeit stamps and claims that he is authorized to confiscate the goods, and unless the merchant has cut his eye-teeth and refuses to be bulldozed without investigating the matter, he carries it away, while the merchant finds out later, when he reads the newspapers, that he has been swindled.

It Avails Nothing.

A jury in Marquette gave seven-year-old Mary Ryan a judgment for over $5,000 for injuries to her spine received while playing around a power wheel in the Bice Manufacturing company's idle factory. The suit was for $15,000. J. M. Longyear, president, and E. H. Tower, director, were included in the suit as the defendants, but the judge ordered the jury to find no cause of action against them and assess its damages, if any, against the company. The concern is practically bankrupt, so the judgment will do the child no good.

All in the Family.

Mrs. Warren Neal, of Long Lake, is deputy game and fish warden, her husband is justice of the peace, and her son is constable. This makes a very complete arrangement. The warden watches out for lawbreakers and enters the complaints, the justice issues the warrant, the constable makes the arrest and arraigns the defender before the court and the warden prosecutes the case and furnishes the proof to convict. No complaint has been made that the ends of justice are not properly served by this arrangement.

Copper Specimens for Paris.

Peter White, of Marquette, has been selected to make a collection of copper specimens for the Paris exposition in conjunction with Senators Wolcott, of Colorado, and Clark, of Montana. The Michigan college of mines at Houghton has been designated to collect all general minerals coming under the head of "native elements."

Vile Plot Foiled.

An incendiary started a fire under a house in Bay City occupied by Joseph LaFond, his wife and five small children, early in the morning. LaFond was roused and rushed out and subdued the flames. Had the fire gotten under headway the family would have been smothered or burned to death.

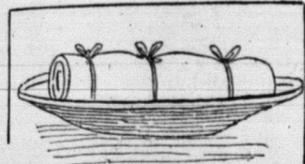

A BREAST OF VEAL.

This Article Tells Exactly How It Should Be Prepared and How to Stuff and Roast It.

In the spring, when lamb and veal are in season, they are not only the cheapest but the most wholesome of flesh food. Heavy beef and mutton, which are in prime condition for food in cold weather, when they can be hung until they are tender, begin to pall upon the appetite in spring. A lighter and more easily digested meat is demanded. Veal comes first into season to meet this demand, and young lamb a little later. The acid vegetables, fruits and sauces for meats which are so appetizing at this season are demanded when these easily digested young meats are served. Thus the conventional diet of the spring months, and the one which is the easiest to procure, may be readily proved to be the most wholesome for the season.

The breast of veal is the cheapest portion of the animal. The large proportion of the bones are in a semihardened state, when they can be softened by cooking. The hard bones of the breast should be removed. Flatten out a breast that has been freed from hard bones, leaving those that are soft and flexible. It should weigh about 2 1/2 pounds when prepared. Dredge about a tablespoonful of salt and an even teaspoonful of pepper. Stuff it with a well-seasoned veal stuffing. Roll it up and tie it into shape. Lay it in any flat-bottomed shallow saucepan, with a cover that has no solder about it.

The saucepan must be large enough to hold a gallon, and should be at least nine inches across the top, in order to be broad enough. Rub the roll of veal with butter, dredge it with flour, slice an onion over it and a carrot. Put a pint of rich brown gravy or stock over it, cover it and set it in a hot oven to braise. Baste it every 15 minutes. As the stock boils down add boiling water to thin it, and continue the cooking in this way until the meat has been braised for at least two hours, or until it is a very rich brown in color and perfectly done.

The stuffing for this breast of veal is made as follows: Brown over the fire two onions minced fine. Soak a loaf of bread freed from its crust in cold water for 15 minutes. Press out the water with the hands from the soaked bread. Add two or three whole eggs, a tablespoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of pepper, a tablespoonful of sage leaves, three skinned sausages and a teaspoonful of parsley. Add the mince of fried onions, and after thoroughly mixing the forcemeat rub it through a puree sieve. Spread this stuffing in the center of the breast of veal before it is rolled up. Tie it closely at the ends, so as to resemble the roll in the illustration.—N. Y. Tribune.

Hints About Summer Portieres. The draperies in the summer house have much to do with its effect. Take away from the house the pretty curtains that drape the walls, windows and doors and it will assume a decidedly bare appearance. Among the new materials for draperies that are within the means of women who are planning for the summer home is snow flake cloth. It is a very light tan in color—almost cream—scattered with flaky white dots and showing a striped silk border in china blue, sage green or old rose. The silk border is also in Roman colors. Another new portiere, somewhat more expensive, is of Bombay cloth with a large empire design embroidered in tinsel. For a library this is very effective in wood brown with the design in cream white outlined with gold threads.

Pretty Window Hangings. White muslin curtains for windows will be much used this year in summer houses. The frilled border is out of fashion and an embroidered open-work edge is in vogue. That this launders more easily than the frilled edge may be one secret of its popularity. These curtains with the flat open-work border and an embroidered design scattered over the surface may be bought for a very small sum. The new dotted Swiss curtains with a scalloped edge are extremely dainty and pretty for summer draperies. The dot is large enough to be conspicuous.

When a Woman Faints. To care for a person who has fainted, lay the person down, keep the head low, loosen the clothing, give plenty of fresh air and dash cold water in the face. Smelling-salts and stimulants should only be used when consciousness has returned.—Ladies' Home Journal.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS.

It Consists in the Acceptance of the Talent and the Tasks God Has Appointed.

"Happiness comes through quiet acceptance of the talent, temperament and task that God hath appointed. Unable to add one cubit to the stature, or make one hair white or black, man is also impotent to alter his birth-gifts," writes Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, on "The Secrets of a Happy Life," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Through heredity our fathers chose the life work for us, and try as we may we cannot alter their choice, though we can break our hearts. To-day one part of society is making itself miserable through an overestimate of great deeds and an agonizing desire to do striking things. Yet struggling and agonizing never did anything worth while. The first sign of a great piece of work is the ease and swiftness with which it was done by him appointed for the task. Another part of society destroys happiness by underestimating small deeds and duties. God's mountains are not made out of huge chunks of granite, but out of minute flakes of mica. Size has nothing to do with the valued work, and man cannot be happy until he surrenders his will and cheerfully accepts the one talent, or two, or ten, counting it honor enough to do his appointed work more perfectly than any other can possibly do it. We do not need great and splendid things, but that common things shall be lifted up and illuminated by a quiet and beautiful spirit. One of the secrets of happiness is found in the habitual emphasis of pleasant things and the persistent casting aside of all malign elements."

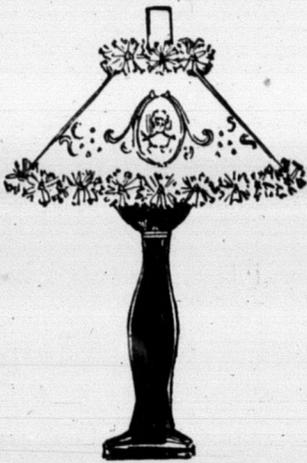

A MOURNING LAMP.

An Eccentric Bit of Furnishing Designed for a New York Society Woman's Room.

In a search for fashion novelties your correspondent has come across a most unique bit of furniture. It is in the shape of a mourning lamp. In the New York home of a well-known society matron whose sister died abroad a few years ago there is a room furnished in remembrance of the deceased relative.

Everything in the room is black, save the carpet, which was made to order, and has a violet background with black flowers standing out upon it in somber relief. The furniture is of richly carved ebony. The curtains of black satin brocade, and all the ornaments are black.

But the oddest bit of decoration yet is the lamp—the only light-producing ornament in the room. It is black enamel and stands 18 inches high. The shade is made of china silk and a miniature of the sister is painted upon it.

Each year at the anniversary of her relative's death this New York matron has memorial services held in the room, which is the only time that it is ever entered.

Evidence of Indigestion.

Coldness of feet and limbs is almost invariably an evidence of indigestion. The coldness is due not to the weakness of the heart or febleness of circulation, as is generally supposed, but to the contraction of the small arteries, preventing blood from entering the parts. There is generally an irritation of the abdominal sympathetic nerve centers which control the circulation of the lower extremities. This difficulty is not to be removed by exercise or by any special application to the limbs, but by removal of the causes of irritation. This may be a prolapsed stomach or chronic indigestion. Hot and cold footbaths are valuable. These act not simply on the feet and limbs, but by reflex action affect beneficially the abdominal sympathetic centers, which are in a diseased condition.

Strawberry Lemonade.

Here is a delicious drink with which to cool the palate these warm days. Take a quart of thoroughly strained juice from stewed strawberries. When cool pour into a stone pitcher and add this mixture: One cupful of crushed peaches; half a cupful of lemon juice, a cupful of finely-chopped pineapple meat, pulverized sugar to taste and a liberal supply of cracked ice. Stir in thoroughly with the strawberry juice and fill the pitcher with vichy, or plain ice water. This is a new drink and one that is very refreshing.

Victoria Getting Young.

In view of the fact of the Queen's approaching visit to the continent, Englishmen are especially interested in her majesty's health. It is announced that her hearing has grown acute and her eyesight keener. Youthful faculties in old age depend merely upon the health. The blood should be kept pure and the stomach sweet with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It cures indigestion, constipation, biliousness, nervousness, liver and kidney troubles, as well as malaria and fever and ague. It keeps people young.

Very Busy.

May and Edith are sisters, four and five years old respectively. May had been very naughty, and mamma had taken her over her knee to administer corporal punishment, when Edith suddenly pushed the door face as far round toward her sister as her peculiar position would admit, May said very gravely:

"Go out, Edie, don't you see I'm busy?" It is needless to add that mamma granted a respite.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A BOOK THAT SHOULD BE IN THE HANDS OF EVERY WOMAN.

Mrs. McKee Rankin.

Mrs. McKee Rankin, one of the foremost and best known character actresses and stage artists of this generation, in speaking of Pe-ru-na, says: "No woman should be without a bottle of Pe-ru-na in reserve."—Mrs. McKee Rankin. Mrs. Eliza Wike, 120 Iron street, Akron, Ohio, says: "I would be in my grave now if it had not been for your God-sent remedy, Pe-ru-na. I was a broken down woman, had no appetite; what little I did eat did not agree with my stomach. It is now seven years past that I used Pe-ru-na and I can eat anything."—Mrs. Eliza Wike.

Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's book entitled "Health and Beauty." This book contains many facts of especial interest to women. Dr. Hartman has treated more ailments peculiar to women than any other physician in the world. This book gives in brief his long and varied experience. Send for free books on catarrh. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Ypsilanti and Saline electric railroad has had two temporary injunctions barring its progress filed against it. People are beginning to understand that these companies do not own the whole earth and sky when they have a franchise, to construct a road granted them.

The Ann Arbor Evening Times is authority for the following statement: "Last Saturday evening, about half a mile west of Dexter, occurred one of the hardest fights that has taken place in that vicinity for some time. The sons of two prominent farmers came together all on account of a rustic beauty who lives in that section. A ring was made in the road, and after fighting until both were tired out, the mill was called a draw. The young lady will decide who is to be the lucky man."

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and ill-run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store.

Future of Recreation Park.

An effort is to be made at an adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Chelsea Recreation Park Association to be held Saturday, June 17, to meet the payment of the mortgage now due on the park and buildings, which is in process of foreclosure, and to save at least a part of the land to the stockholders. It is proposed to continue Middle street 3 1/2 rods wide through the fair grounds and sell off the land north of the street in acre lots or otherwise that will bring the most money, and also sell off the buildings in lots to suit purchasers. Then sell the 18 acres of land south of the street with the grand stand and horse sheds in one lot to be used for a show ground. It is believed that this will take about $1,200, and as the society is practically bankrupt it is proposed that 40 of the ex-stockholders subscribe $30 each to meet this deficiency and thus become owners of the south 18 acres of land and buildings. The plan looks to be a feasible one and the land should surely be worth the $1,200 even if it has to be parceled off among those who may subscribe to the fund.

Bay View Reading Circle.

Chelsea's old-established literary society at present in existence was reorganized this year after its usual summer vacation as a Bay View Reading Circle. The year passed pleasantly and the annual closing reception was held Monday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Holmes. To those who had met there before this fact fully guaranteed the pleasure and general success of the entertainment. Rain came down in a heavy downpour at intervals during the evening, generously interspersed with thunder and lightning, giving to the weather a fine layer cake effect suitable to the occasion. The people also came in layers to correspond to the weather. The reception committee was Mesdames H. S. Holmes, J. S. Gorman, D. C. McLaren, F. H. Sweetland, T. E. Wood. When all were assembled the president announced the call to order and the company was presented with the following "Rose" program:

Quartette—"Welcome," Mesdames Congdon, Keenan, Cummings, Miss Nickerson. "There is more than one knows to the leaves of my rose," Mrs. D. B. Taylor. Stringed Quartette—Soprano, Mrs. Seper, Messrs. Gifford, Holmes, Palmer. "The Rose," Mrs. C. Martin. "The Token of the Rose," Mrs. Geo. W. Palmer.

Vocal Solo—"The Mission of a Rose," Miss Maggie Nickerson. The Rose in History and Legend, Mrs. R. S. Armstrong. Piano Solo—"Feast of Roses," Mrs. E. Keenan.

"Samantha Trying the Rose Act," Miss Nellie Hall. Quartette—"The Lonely Rose," Mesdames Congdon, Keenan, Cummings, Miss Nickerson.

From the opening "Welcome" to the closing quartette each number was fine and well rendered. Through the kindness of Mrs. Seper and three of her young gentlemen pupils the stringed quartette furnished a pleasant addition to the music which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Refreshments were served after the program. The decorations on tables, mantles, etc., were all of roses, which fittingly emphasized the theme of the program.

At a rather late hour the company departed with the general impression of having had a very pleasant and enjoyable social time.

Wixom Bros'. Trained Animal Show.

The name of old Mat. Wixom is well known to every circus goer in Michigan, and even though he has given up the active management of the show and turned it over to his sons he and his wife still travel with it. This wonderful trained animal show and gymnastic performance such as trapeze work, tumbling, etc., will be in Chelsea next Tuesday, June 14, and will live two exhibitions, afternoon and evening, on the lot just south of the school house on Harrison street. The show travels in its own railroad cars and has been newly refitted with tents and wagons this season. It carries 25 fine horses, 40 dogs, 30 monkeys and trained goats. About 40 people are employed in and around this show, which although not the largest in the world is still one of the best for the money that is now on the road. The wonderful Adams family of gymnasts makes its appearance at each performance. The price of admission is 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

Another Stolen Horse and Rig.

Deputy Sheriff Will Lehman recovered another stolen horse, buggy and harness, for the party from whom it was stolen, this week. A man named Louis Mitchell stole a horse and rig from E. J. Hitchings, a liveryman, of Detroit, on May 25. Descriptions of it were sent to officers all through the state, and one of them came to Mr. Lehman. Saturday last the horse was brought into Hirth & Lehman's blacksmith shop by Mat. Lancaster, of Clinton, to be shod, when Mr. Lehman at once recognized the animal. The horse was traced by Lancaster to Charles Downer and from him Mr. Lehman got the horse Saturday night. Tuesday night he went over to Clinton and got the buggy and harness. Now, Downer has had Lancaster arrested for disposing of stolen property to him and the case will come up for hearing in Justice Turnbull's court Tuesday, June 20.

The Great Wallace Shows.

Those of our readers who appreciate wholesome amusement should plan to spend the day at Ann Arbor, Monday, June 19, when the Wallace Shows will exhibit there. The Daily X-Ray, of Charles City, said of the shows: "The afternoon performance was presented before a tent full of people, who were wildly enthusiastic over every feature. There is an absence of sameness about the Wallace Shows, every part being new, novel and artistic. Not a single thing on the bills was omitted, and when the magnificent exhibition ended the great throng filed slowly out, loth to depart from a place which had provided them with such a pleasant afternoon's entertainment. The performance with variations, will be repeated this evening."

Probate Order.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Washtenaw. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, on Thursday, the 1st day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine. Present, H. Wirt Newkirk, Judge of Probate.

Charles L. Kaercher, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, comes into court and represents that he is now prepared to render his final account as such executor.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Friday, the 9th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and allowing such account, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, in said County, and show cause, if any there be, why the said account should not be allowed.

And it is further ordered, that said administrator give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this Order to be published in the Chelsea Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Mortgage Foreclosure.

DEFAULT having been made in the payments of a certain mortgage made by Robert G. Barnes and Nettie E. Barnes, his wife, to Theodore J. DeForest and Carrie A. DeForest, his wife, dated the first day of April, 1898, and recorded in the Register's office of Washtenaw County, Michigan, on the 4th day of April, 1898, in liber 96 of mortgages, on page 548, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Nine Thousand and Twenty-two dollars and Fifty cents, ($9,022.50), principal and interest, the mortgagee electing to consider the whole sum now due for the non-payment of interest, and no suit at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the said amount or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 31st day of July next, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the south front door of the court house, in the city of Ann Arbor, that being the building in which the circuit court of said county of Washtenaw is held, there will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder the premises described in said mortgage, together with taxes, insurance and the costs of this foreclosure. The premises so to be sold are described as follows:

Beginning at the south-east corner of section 36, in town two south, range six east, and running thence north on the township line 8 chains and 50 links to a post, thence north 23 degrees and 49 minutes east along the north-westerly line of land formerly deeded by Robert Geddes to Robert L. Geddes to a stake standing at the north-westerly corner of said Robert L. Geddes' land thence north-easterly along the northerly line of said Geddes' land (now owned by D. C. Griffen), and the continuation of the same to the land of the Michigan Central Railroad Company, thence westerly along said railroad company's land to a point where the said railroad crosses the Huron river, thence southerly and westerly along the southerly line of said river to a point where said railroad crosses said lands on said section 36, Ann Arbor, thence along said railroad westerly to the center of the highway running north and south through said section 36, thence south on the quarter section line to the south line of section 36, thence east on said section line to the place of beginning. Also the north-east quarter of the south-west quarter of section 36, town two south, range six east, intending hereby to describe all the land owned by Robert G. Barnes and wife on section 31 in the township of Superior in said county of Washtenaw, and on section 36 in the township of Ann Arbor, in said county, (except one and one-half acres of land lying south of the highway running from Ypsilanti to Ann Arbor on the south-west corner of the north-east quarter of section 36 aforesaid), containing three hundred and fifty acres more or less.
