ADVERTISING INCREASING RAPIDLY

commodate this Increase.

This week The Standard starts on a new path, and that is printing the entire paper in our own office. The large increase in the amount of advertising which has been steadily growing necessitates this move. When the Standard came into the possession of the present owner eight years ago this month only two pages of the paper were printed at home, and they were smaller, being but five columns to the page. Within a few weeks after assuming control, a change was made and two more pages were printed at home. The advertising and circulation steadily increased and four years ago the paper was enlarged to six columns to the page. Again the advertising increases and the four pages printed at home are not large enough to hold it and allow room for the local and neighborhod news We have had this step under consideration for some time. Chelsea is and branching out, and the newspapers, which reflect the business and social growth of the place where they are published, should keep up with the procession. The Standard thanks all those who have contributed to its success in the past, and wishes to assure them that it is appreciated, and that every effort will be made to merit a continued patronage.

The horseman to whom we allude i our opening sentences was riding leisurely along a rugged road-or rather ane-bordered by tall hedges, with a sprinkling here and there of pine, larch

Suddenly the horse stopped, trembling in every limb.

And no wonder, either, for right in front of them, and not more than half a dozen paces away, was suspended a human form, with ghastly face and wide-open eyes, flooded up by the full light of the yellow moon.

The form was that of a man who, a few short hours before, was in the very plenitude of health and strength, but who swung now with pendulous motion in the night winds.

In the first place, the victim was not suspended by the neck, as is usually the case.

A strong rope had been secured under his arm-pits, his arms being pinioned tightly to his sides; and then the rope had been thrown over the stout limb of an oak and tied there.

This was not all. A closer inspection revealed the fact that a bowle-knife had been driven through the suspended man's heart, and the merciless haft, where its silver mountings caught the light, emitted a metallic glitter in the moon's rays.

There was no doubt but the man had been murdered before he had been suspended to the tree-but not a drop of blood could be detected where the murderous blade had entered his body. The horseman had by this time dismounted, and approached the corpse. His attention was attracted to an article of the man's dress, to which a small square of paper had been at-

There were two or three scrawling lines on the paper-lines of dread im-

They warned him to beware of the fate which had overtaken the corpse, and if he set a value on his life, to pass on without inquiry.

"Whoever you may be, I'll act on your advice," said the horseman, as that my Willie loved so well. I will, an icy shudder passed through him. "Poor fellow!"-gazing pityingly at the murdered man-"I am sorry for you, but I can do nothing! And by staying here I endanger my own safety He was soon mounted again, and er on the road took an abrupt turn. Horse and rider had just emerged from the shadow of some overhanging trees, so dense that not a ray of moonlight penetrated their interlacing branches.

The road had been pitch dark for about three hundred yeards, when this sudden turn brought him once more into the clear moonlight.

Her he discovered that he was not

Not more than five yards in front was a rather tall, stalwart-looking man, mounted on a fine bay horse. Horse and rider stood motionless in the road.

The stranger's back was turned at the time, so that our traveler did not at first see his face; but the sounds of horse's hoofs on the now hard, flinty road fell on his ears, and hearing such, he wheeled with the suddenness of thought, until the light of the generous moon reflected on features that were pallid and corpse like.

Our traveler could not repress the exclamation of horror and surprise which broke from his lips-for there sat the exact prototype on the bay that he had seen suspended from the

He could scarcely believe it possible that two men could look so much alike. Again he rubbbed his eyes, to make sure that he was not dreaming Dreaming-indeed!

He wished he was at that moment. No, he was not dreaming, for there sat the man with the identical face and expression of the corpse, even to the clothes he wore; in fact, everything that could identify him with the dead, excepting that the one was on horseback and the other hanging some three-quarters of a mile lower down

It was a marvelous resemblance. "Hillo, friend!" shouted the man on the bay. "You look as though you had seen a ghost! You're not afraid of me,

"Afraid of you-why?" gasped the

"That I leave for you to explain. You seem to be, anyhow. Going far in this "lirection?" asked the stranger with a sinister look on his ghastly face

"You may if you like," replied our weler, recovering from his nervousss somewhat; "but I'll reserve the aht to answer.'

Well, that's nothing but fair and Our are," rejoined the other, good hujust redly. "Besides, it's no business of thine, anyhow."

tl "That's what I was thinking," said the traveler "Are you, yourself, journeying in this direction?"

Language Study.

Broadly speaking, there are two methods which are used for the teaching of a language—that of the mother and that of the grammarian. The child learns its own or mother tongue from the mother. It learns a foreign tongue from a teacher, whose highest ambition is to be a grammarian. Does the child earn better from the mother or from the grammarian? Without doubt, from the mother, according to the mother method.

If this is so, must we use the examole of the mother or of the grammarian Foreign securities in France are free when we are to begin the teaching of a from tax when they have paid no divi- foreign language? A Colored Man Lynched in Mississippi. Simon Brooks, colored, was lynched by a mob of 500 Negroes near Sardis, Miss., on the 11th, having been taken from the jail some time between midnight and dawn. The crime which was thus avenged was most atrocious. A Negress named Asmistead, while returning home was assaulted by Brooks and another Negro. The woman was outraged, her throat was cut and she was severely beaten about the head and her jaws were tightly tied to prevent breathing. Her body was then concealed in rubbish. The woman rallied sufficiently to give the alarm and the names of her assailants. Part of the goods taken from the woman was later found in a trunk bewas composed entirely of Negroes, did its work quietly.

England's Trouble With Transvaal.

The London papers are beginning to talk quite seriously of the possibility of war in South Africa. Mr. Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, in his speech in the house of commons on the 8th announced that burned the town. his reply to the petition of the outlanders, which had been held back pending the result of the conference at Bloemfontein, would now be presented to the Transvaal. This reply is semi-officially described as "explicit but conciliatory," but is believed to be in the nature of a practical ultimatum. The resources of diplomacy are reregarded as exhausted with the failure of the conference. Nothing is left, i is felt, but a recourse to force.

Arrangements for the Cable is Completed The final details have been arrange fot the laying of the cable between the United States and Germany, th last step being a satisfactory arrange ment concerning government message and rates of cable tolls. The author ities at Washington have been informed that the actual work of laying the cable will begin during the presen summer months, so that the first mes sage may pass over the line during th coming fall. In this connection it is denied in official circles that Germany reciprocated the courtesy of allowing this cable to land, by granting a similar right to land an American cable line on one of the new German possessions, the Carolines.

Two Wisconsin Towns Wiped Off the Earth The towns of New Richmond and Boardman, Wis., were practically wiped off the earth on the 12th by a cyclone. The estimated loss of life is placed at 150 killed and 400 injured. The first appearance of the storm was a funnel-shaped cloud, which was sufficient warning for some who thoughtfully took shelter in cellars and thus escaped death. A terrible heavy rain followed and greatly delayed the work of those trying to rescue their friends or relatives from the wreckage.

Tunnel From England to Ireland.

At a largely attended meeting of peers, commoners, engineers and others held in the house of commons in London, Eng., recently, a resolution was adopted to address a petition to the Toledo first lord of the treasury, Arthur J. WAR NOTES.

Under the naval personnel bill Ad miral Dewey will receive $13,500 whether on duty at sea or on shore.

The senior rear admirals' pay is fixed at $7,500 at sea and $6,375 on shore. Rear Admiral Schley is in this list, but only receives the minimum amount as he is assigned to shore duty. The junior rear admirals receive $5,500 while on sea duty and $4,675 on shore, Rear Admiral Sampson is in the junior list, but having a command at sea receives the maximum pay. Should James J. Jeffries, another sturdy Schley be given an assignment at sea he would receive $2,000 more a year 'than Sampson, but as it now is his pay amounts to but $875 more. Captains receive $3,500 at sea and $2,975 on shore. The United Labor league of Philadelphia, has taken up the cause of the 3,000 seamstresses, mostly soldiers wives, widows and daughters, who complain that the government has soldiers' clothing made by contract. taking from them their means of livelihood. It is said about $1,000,000 worth of contracts are to be given out, and if so the seamstresses will have no work. The league proposes making a prompt appeal to President McKinley to stop the award of the new $1,000,000 worth of advertised contracts, and let the 3,000 women do the work at the United States arsenal.

Gen. Brooke is seriously handicapped in his administration of affairs in Cuba by the absence of a large number of officers from the regiments. In a cablegram received at the war department he complains of its action in extending the leaves of absence to their homes on short vacations. Not only does the absence of a full quota of officers materially increase the labors of those who remain on duty. Gen Brooke states, but it demoralizes discipline in the ranks. The war department will hereafter be more rigid in the rules for government of leaves of absence.

The U. S. transport Meade, having on board the 19th infantry, from Porto Rico, arrived at Jersey City on the 6th. where the soldiers were met by many of their friends. The regiment is en route for Camp Meade, where the soldiers will remain until about June 15. then proceeding to San Francisco, and from there to the Philippines for active duty. Wages Higher Than in '98.

Labor Commissioner Cox, who is chief factory inspector for the state, says that in the inspection of the first 2,200 Michigan factories, from January 1, 1899, to June 1, 1899, there were found 77 new factories which had been built since last inspection. Of these 58 gave the amount of capital invested as $614,291, or an average of $10,591.23 for each factory. At the same ratio the other 19 would have invested $201,-233, making an aggregate for the 77 factories of $815,524. The 77 factories were employing 752 males and 319 females, a total of 1,071 employes, or an average of 14 employes for each factory. The aggregate wages paid the employes was $1,424.43 per day, or a monthly wage of $37,035.18. The average daily wages of these employes was $1.33, which, taking into consideration that nearly 30 per cent were females. brings the average wages about 8 per cent above that paid in 1898.

Petrified Sheep and Man's Body Found. While digging in a sand pit near Pontiac, Jack Wilder unearthed a petrified sheep of more than usual size. The animal had evidently been buried for scores of years. The body, head, legs and tail were perfectly preserved and the weight was nearly 100 pounds. Shortly afterwards a workman in the Pearce gravel pit unearthed a human skeleton. The skeleton was also in perfect condition with the exception of a small hole at the base of the skull. How any one came to be buried in such an out-of-the-way place is a mystery, and it is thought that perhaps the hole at the base of the skull may have some connection with the strange burying > Councils Cannot Ignore Liquor Dealers. In deciding the case of Hawkins vs. the village of Litchfield, the supreme court made an important ruling relative to the authority of village boards in connection with liquor bonds. It was contended on behalf of the village that the council could suppress saloons by simply refusing to consider bonds at all. The court decides against this contention, holding that it is the duty of the council to pass upon the sufficiency of the bond, and if it is found to be sufficient to approve it.

ern Union Telegraph company's mair office in filing dispatches and other work requiring no great skill. Now, although they get only the current wages of workers in such employments, there are always many applicants for every vacancy. In view of this fact the company has adopted an interesting method of dealing with applications. Mrs. Martin Wedemeyer is improv- Every girl applying is questioned as to her age, education and residence. Furthermore, her height is taken. The facts as to the applicant are then filed for future reference, and she is advised in case she is really anxious for a place to return at the end of four months should she not hear from the company before Miss Minn: Daly of Dexter visited that time. The reason for this adviceis that the list of applications is destroyed every four months.

Many applicants never come a second time. Some, however, come a second, a third or even a fourth time, and, although the officers of the company hold out no special hope to any applicant, Mr. and Mrs. B. Landner of Saline they do say that here, as elsewhere, perseverance often succeeds. The requirement that the applicant shall appear in person each time is an ingenious means of weeding out those applicants that lack the perseverance, which, other things being equal, is likely to make a girl more useful to the company than a girl with less of that quality. - New York Sun.

of pillar roses the end desired is as rent an amount of bloom as the nts are capable of bearing. Such nts are, as a rule, strong growers and if the soil fertility is kept up they are capable of producing an immense nber of good blooms. Perfection of form and large size of bloom is not a direct object, as in the case of hybrid perpetuals, hybrid teas and tea roses. re close pruning is resorted to to attain such results. Knowing the plant to be of a vigorous variety, and in good condition, as shown by the growth of wood of the previous year, it is safe to assume that it will be able to carry nearly as much bloom as can set on the strong canes and shoots of the last year's growth. It is always to be understood that the soil fertility is maintained in the highest condition by the use of stable manure or artificial fertilizers. The essential pruning. therefore, of climbin, roses, in the condition mentioned, consists in shortening in the long canes by removing some of the smaller growth at their tips, which was made late in the season, and also shortening in the last public proceedings of the university. year's growth from the older canes, allowing as many buds to each shoot as, in the judgment of the pruner, may be well developed the coming season. ing pruning directions:

John Ruskin's entering on his eighty-first year has called forth many kind notices in England. They cannot that the temperature is greatly affected disguise, however, the sad fact that his mental powers are already gone. He is described as sitting for hours at from which the plant will be able to his window looking at the hills, as the effects on temperature of both latirarely going out of doors, even into his garden, and as keeping silent, even on one man, and isothermic maps were when spoken to. Bonn on the Rhine has been investigating the liquor-drinking habits of its small school children. Out of 247 children, seven or eight years of age, in the primary schools, there was not one that had not tasted beer or wine, and but a quarter of them had not tasted brandy. Beer or wine was drunk regularly every day by 25 per cent, of the children, while 8 per cent. including more girls than boys, received a daily glass of cognac from their parents to make them strong, and 16 per cent, would not drink milk because it had no taste.

Biddenden, a quiet country village in Kent, was recently the scene of a remarkable murder. The rector's doughter, a middle eved spinster, had quarrelied with everal parishioners and wrote to six of them to meet her at church on a certain Sunday, as she wished to make up. It happened to rain, so that only one of the persons addressed, a Sunday school teacher, attended church. After the communion, of which both partook, the woman invited him into the vestry and asked the curate to be a witness to the reconciliation. She then drew a revolver and shot the teacher dead. She had several spare cartridges on her person, so it is inferred that she to whom she had written. She was perfectly calm after her act and has kept silent about it.

Are Rarely Learned at School.

Here are some definitions of isotherm at appear in American textbooks of

"Those lines which are drawn through places with an equal average of temper-ature are called isotherms.

"Isotherms are lines connecting places having the same mean temperature for particular periods, as the whole of the year, the winter or summer months, etc.

"If upon a map all places having the same mean temperature are connected by lines, such lines are called isothermal lines or simple isotherms."

These definitions are part of the truth, but not the whole of it. It may not be a great calamity, but the fact is that most boys and girls leave school with a misconception as to what an isotherm is, and they rarely find out in later years.

They all know that two elements, latitude and altitude, are the main factors in determining the mean temperature of a place; that the farther a place is from the equator and the higher it stands above sea level the cooler its climate is. But they do not know that isothermic maps take into account only one of these elements, and that is latitude. They eliminate the influence of altitude. The isotherm passing over the top of Pike's peak does not show the mean temperature at the summit of the mountain, but what the mean temperature would be in that immediate neighborhood if the land, instead of rising high above the sea, stood at the level of Coney Island.

Do you see the reason for this? It may be easily explained. Most of the land does not rise so high above the sea by altitude. To the majority of mankind latitude is a far more important climatic element than altitude. Now, tude and altitude cannot well be shown devised to show the effects of latitude and some other element, such as posi-

An isothermic line, therefore, does not show the actual mean temperature of a place on it unless that place is at sea level. But it is easy to deduce from the isotherm the actual mean temperature of a place, if we know its elevation above the sea. How this is done is very clearly explained by Dr. H. R. Mill, the British geographer, as follows:

"The air grows cooler by 1 degree F. for every 270 feet of elevation above sea level, but isothermic lines show the sea level temperature. In using isothermic maps we must therefore remember that places 600 feet above the sea level have a temperature 2 degrees lower than the isotherms indicate; places 6,000 feet above the sea, 22 degrees lower; those 12,000 feet above the sea, 45 degrees lower, and the mountain slopes 18,000 feet above the sea no less than 66 degrees lower than the sea level temperature shown by the isotherms. This accounts for the fact that none of It's Nobody's Fool the important towns in the temperate zones is situated more than 2,000 feet above the sea, while in the tropics they are built at as great elevations as 8,000 or 10,000 feet."

Weather charts are an exception to this rule. They record the actual thermometrical readings at the points of observation. - New York Sun.

Some man he dreaded an avalanche of shirt welsts this summer from the enormous number he had seen displayed in the windows of the shops, which might be called (to coin a new word) "women haberdasheries" "Where do they ill go?" he continued. "I often wonder, but after I have gone through one warm day the wonder comes to me, how do they manage to manufacture so it would seem! Simultancously with the shirt waist there has more to the fore the straw hat, and the thirt waist girl has seized the first opportunity to don her sailor. These are very pretty this year and call for a little more trimming in the way of searfs and wings than any previous summer; but the thoroughly "nifty" girl will still cling to her mannish shirt and sailor. To the wise woman the word to the vise should be given, and if she has not already included in her summer Wardrobe at least one gown of transarent material, it would be well for er at once to buy one. There is a perfeet eraze for gowns of thin fabricsso-called thin, because they look cool. a reality, they are warm, for they lust needs be made up over heavy linegs. They are, however, airy in apsign. While black is fashionable, and there are a great many smart black gowns, there are also a great many more and smarter gowns of these abrics made up of blue, dark purple, an and gray, the materials of many which are inexpensive. There are, to be sure, some transparent materials it is not necessary to buy those to have sown made in the latest style.

As exceedingly pretty gown in dark lue grenadine is made up over a cution lining—one of those new linings that look like moire silk and have onsiderable body to them. ray, made also with an overskirt, out on the underskirt there are four ows of ruffles, bias ruffles, each of which is a mass of tucks. It is said that these ruffles take a week to make. However this may be, the gown is one of the most expensive models of the season, and also one of the prettlest. The overskirt (for there is an overskirt at the back and sides) is trimmed with two ruffles, also tucked, rejected by the City Council. Down the front of the skirt is a panel made of an applique of cut work of tan' satin over white cloth, embroidered around each open place with yellow silk. The body of the waist is made with a yoke and front piece of this cut work, and the back of the waist is all tucked over a belt that is made of stitched cloth. The top of the sleeves is tucked; the lower part is plain, and there are tiny turned-over cuffs of orange velvet. The coloring is odd, for the gown is French and

In front the fichu is tied, the ends falling down upon the skirt. This, too, is odd, but smart, and has been worn only by smart women.

An inexpensive dark blue gown is of grenadine that costs only fifty con's in the woods adjacent to the town with a yard. It is made up over silk, so that the lining really costs more than the material of the gown. On the underskirt is a deep flounce of the grenadine, accordion pleated and trimmed with three rows of blue moire ribbon. The overskirt fits closely and is finished in scallops, around each of bon. In making most of the transparent materials into smart gowns it is necessary to choose the lining carefully. Pearance and certainly attractive in Often silk linings are absolutely indispensable, but of course they add so much to the expense that it is not possible for every one 'o indulge in them. Fortunately, there are many varieties of lining to be had this year. There are some that look like moire silk and, while they are "I cotton, they are remarkably good. They do not possess which are enormously expensive, but the same attributes - silk, and after a time get stringy, but they wear forever, and if they have to 'a replenished, the expense is not so great as to make it impossible. The nersilk linings are soft and attractive but are scarcely firm enough to be suitable in waists. A good plan is to have the lining of some of the cheap cotton materials (not too cheap), and then make the flounce of the material of the gown. In making up a dark foulard, however, it is a mistake to use a white lining. An fort should be made to have the linas near the color of the gown as suble—that is, in these transpart things, unless a contrasting color used. It should be remembered that the petticoat worn with all gowns this ear must be fitted carefully.

A NATURAL SOLDIER.

Soldier by nature, from earliest b ood at home on horseback, with firm, ect and easy seat, rode at the head of he column an ideal of the beau sabreur. from beneath the wide and slightly up turned brim of the soft felt hat, which bore no tawdry plumes, the large, deep-set blue eyes were peering with more than usual alertness. The look of kindliness which came in moments of repose or gentler mood was gone, and some-thing hard and almost savage had re-placed it. The broad, high forehead, the shaggy brows, prominent cheek bones and bold assertive nose told not only the story of his Gaelle origin, but the bulldog tenacity of the man.

About the ears and neck heavy half curling tufts of deep black hair hung so stiffly and stubbornly that they were scarcely swayed by the strong, cold wind which swept the snowflakes in miniature clouds from the tree tops and sent them scurrying to the ground. The dark mustache and heavy short chin beard were gray with frozen moisture of the expired air. The massive, firm set jaw told of the strength of will which mastered all. The compressed lip and deep flush of the face bespoke the bloody business of the hour. Six feet and two inches in stature, broad shouldered and of athletic frame, well might one say there was in him

A combination and a form indeed Where every god did seem to set his seal To give the world assurance of a man.

A plain caped overcoat of coarse, heavy homemade gray, close buttoned to the throat, reached amply beyond the knees. About the waist, and buckled on the outside for quick and ready use, there was a broad black belt in which two "navy sixes" showed and from which hung that famous saber, heavy and long and, against all military rules, ground to a razor edge, and swinging from the right side of the cavalier. No regulation saber or school drilled swordsman, this left handed scion of the American pioneer, but in all our war there was none other that did such bloody work. To his crude and earnest mind "war means fighting and fighting means killing." He could cut or thrust deeper with a sharp than with a dull sword, and if in the melee he should happen to hit one of his own, it was all intended for the good of the cause .- "Lieutenant Colonel Forrest at Fort Donelson," by John A. He even thinks the ancient Egyptians were familiar with it, because in monuments of the fifth dynasty and others the sign of "Kha," representing the rising sun, has the outer streak of a blue color and applies to boxes that have their lids the two inner streaks are green. Their writings also speak of the greenness of the sun on rising, and they liken it to is surprising. The average receipts in that to the cold, damp weather last an emerald

Gunners' Patron Saint.

Why was St. Barbara chosen to be the patron saintess of all gunners? It is ticed an advertisement of a caul for one of those things which are to be known and which one ought to know, but does not. Meanwhile there is the fact that she does intercede for all gunners by land or sea. In the old French navy the Ste. Barbe was the gunroom, and the name may be found with | whatever if parted with by gift or sale that meaning attached to it in all dictionaries. The Hungarian aristocracy has the largest estates of any nobility in Europe. The manner of living of these grands seigneurs is strongly patriarchal. Their country chateaux are comfortable, but unpretentious, and are lordly in nothing but the hospitality of their owners. The stranger and the native are alike made welcome within the doors of these old manor houses and invited to sit down at table like friends of the family.

If a stranger drives up to the en-trance door of a Hungarian chateau, immediately and before any questions are asked concerning the visitor's business, even before the master of the house has made his appearance, a legion of servants rush forward and carry the visitor's baggage to one of the half dozen rooms always ready to receive guests, invited or otherwise. When the Hungarians wish particularly to honor a guest, 15 or 20 courses are served at dinner, but as the Magyars have in everything the utmost respect for indi- daily. vidual liberty no guest is ever pressed to eat or drink.

"You are at home. Do as you would at home," says the master of the house as he greets you on your arrival. > Where Coleridge Was Wanting. Coloridge has a lamentable want of voluntary power. If he is excited by a remark in company he will pour forth in an evening, without apparent effort, what would furnish matter for a hundred essays. But the moment that he is to write not from present impulse but from preordained deliberation his powers fail him, and I believe that there are times when he could not pen the commonest notes. He is one of those minds who, except in inspired moods, can do nothing, and his inspirations are all oral and not scriptural. And when he is inspired he surpasses, in my opin-ion, all that could be thought or imag-ined of a human being.—"Charles Lamb and the Lloyds," by E. V. Lucas.

> The Bridge of Lions. The largest bridge in existence is not, as one would imagine, the work of some famous English or French engineer.
> This bridge, comparatively little known, > was constructed long ago, in China, in the reign of the Emperor Keing Long.

It is situated near to Sangang and the Yellow ses, and measures not less than eight miles and a half.

The Bridge of Lions, as it is called, is supported by 800 immense arches and its foundation is 21 meters under water. On each pile of this wonderful bridge is a marble statue of a lion, three times larger than life size. The coup d'coil of these 800 enormous lions, each one supporting an arch, is stupendous in its magnificance.
