An Old Landmark Gone.

At 9:40 Thursday evening the fire alarm sounded loud and long. It was not hard work to find out where the fire was as the flames were rolling up from the old frame building in which D. B. Taylor had his office, just north of the Chelsea House. The fire department could do nothing but keep down the violence of the flames, and pretty soon the only frame building in the business portion of Chelsea was a mass of ruins. The boys further demolished it later on by pulling down the blackened portions of the frame that remained standing. Not a sound of regret was heard that the old building was burning. It is believed that it was deliberately set on fire by some person.

D. B. Taylor lost his law books, on which he had $75 insurance, less than half their value, but saved his desk and some other articles of office furniture. On that part of the building owned by Frank Staffan and M. J. Noyes there was no insurance. It was occupied by a carriage painter named Cole. Mr. Taylor had $100 insurance on the part occupied by him.

Thus another old landmark has passed away. The main building was erected in 1855 or 1856 by Elisha Congdon and was used as a store. The lean-to was put on in 1860. For many years it was occupied as a saloon by William Smith and Milton Alexander. Later Charles Wunder occupied it as a bakery until 1880, when D. B. Taylor moved his law office into it. If its walls could speak they could have told many queer stories of doings that had happened within them in bygone days.

Cost of the County's Poor.

The annual report of the superintendents of the poor of Washtenaw county for the year ending June 30, 1899, to be presented at the next meeting of the board of supervisors will show the following figures.

The whole number of male paupers in the county house during the year was 51, female paupers 21, the average maintained during the year was 39.37; under 16 years of age 2, idiots 5, blind 2. Their nationality was as follows: American 34, English 6, Irish 10, German 12, French 1, Negroes 6, Mulattoes 1, Italians 1, Bohemian 1. The number of deaths was 5, number outside of poor house temporarily relieved 588, number of permanent paupers outside of poor house 40.

The number of insane from Washtenaw which are in the Eastern Michigan insane asylum is 23 and there are about four in the other parts of the state. The total amount expended for persons not in the poor house who received temporary relief is $642.32. The total expense of maintaining the poor house and farm for the year, exclusive of interest on capital invested and value of paupers' labor is $3,565.66.

The cost of maintaining Washtenaw's insane in the state asylum is about $2,454.17 or about $200 less than last year.

Arrested Three Burglars.

Thursday night of last week W. S. Sprout's store at Anderson was broken into and several pairs of shoes, socks, etc., were stolen from it. The parties who did the job were tracked to Chelsea by two young men, who when they located their men informed Deputy Sheriff W. R. Lehman. He arrested three men who gave their names as James H. Murphy, Frank Cavanaugh and Frank Miller as the burglars. They had the stolen shoes and stockings on their feet when arrested. They were put into the lockup to await the arrival of the Livingston county officers.

Before they were arrested they were seen to hide something under the battery house on the M. C. track. When Mr. Lehman went to investigate he found two revolvers, four ladies' watch chains, $1.35 in pennies and a quart bottle half full of gunpowder. The fellows were evidently up to further mischief had they remained at liberty. Deputy Sheriff Michael Lavey and Village Marshal Brown, of Pinckney, arrived here at 2 a. m. Friday, and later took the three men to Pinckney. On Monday they were arraigned before Justice Carr and were bound over for trial at the next term of the Livingston circuit court.

Yesterday morning while Adam Cebulski, of Manchester, was framing Jacob Girbach's house in Freedom, a fellow workman's adze glanced off a timber and struck Cebulski on the leg, nearly severing the limb from the body. He is in a critical condition.

BROOKLYNITES WALK

Employes of Street Railway Lines Go on a Strike.

Refusal to Grant Pay for Overtime the Cause—Only Few Cars Are Run, and the Service is Very Badly Crippled.

New York, July 17.—Another trolley strike is on in Brooklyn. So far it has not been as effective as the strike of 1895, but there is no telling how long or far reaching it may become. For some weeks past the employes of the several lines controlled by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company have been complaining that the management did not live up to the ten-hour law. The men demanded a revision of the time tables at the different barns and also claim that they should be paid 20 cents an hour for overtime, which is equivalent to two dollars a day, the price which they set for a working day of ten hours. Meetings have been held daily and nightly for the last week, and it was inferred from the reports given out by the employes and their advisers since Thursday last that while a strike was imminent it would not occur for some days to come.

The Strike Is Ordered.

General Master Workman Parsons and District Master Workman Pines had charge of the men's affairs, and a strike was called at 4:30 Sunday morning. At this hour most of the motormen and conductors on the Brooklyn Traction company's lines had completed their night trips, and the leaders decided that this was the most opportune moment to begin what was expected to be a stubborn fight with the traction company.

Shortly after midnight about 1,000 policemen from the precincts in Manhattan and the Bronx districts were conveyed to the different barns, and many were placed along the several routes comprising the territory covered by the Brooklyn Traction company. Up to half-past seven o'clock there were very few cars run over these lines, and those that were sent out by the different barns were policed by two, three and four constables. On the Putnam avenue line only a few men refused to work, and it was notable that scarcely a half dozen of the cars on this division were policed. The Flatbush and Bergen Beach cars, the Nostrand avenue, Gates, Ralph and Myrtle avenue cars, as well as the Third avenue trolleys, had a meager service in the early hours of the day, but traffic on the old Nassau avenue lines, which comprise the Fifth, Seventh, Park and Vanderbilt avenues, and Douglass and Butler streets' roads were practically at a standstill. The men on the Nassau avenue road were most determined, and not one of the motormen or conductors went to work.

A Few Cars Run.

The cars remained idle for several hours, but by ten o'clock about one-tenth of the regular rolling stock was working. These cars were manned by inspectors and linemen, and in fact officers and helpers were pressed into service, so as to maintain a partial running of the system. Many of the old conductors and motormen reported for duty on the Gates, Ralph, Broadway, Myrtle Avenue, Flushing and Third avenue roads, and President Rossiter said that shortly after noon over 50 per cent. of the old hands were at work on these lines. Later in the afternoon the cars on the latter road were running at intervals of ten minutes, which meant that the service was crippled about one-third.

Shortly before noon President Rossiter's private car Ampere started from the city hall and made a round trip of the traction lines. Coming back from Coney Island the president's car traveled over the Fifth avenue route, and as it neared Twenty-third street and Fifth avenue those on board found their further progress impeded by a stalled car near the Fifth avenue barn. Here a crowd of some 500 people, many of whom were women and children, had congregated, and the motorman of the Ampere, Howard Jackson, was attacked by several men who were strikers or in sympathy with them. The motorman received some nasty bruises on the head and legs. Secretary Wickes was one of the first to run to the man's assistance, and he was finally rescued from the mob. Six arrests were made, and the track was soon cleared.

President Rossiter said Sunday night that the Brooklyn rapid transit officials would not arbitrate the strike difficulty with their striking employes. He said the number of men on strike would not exceed 1,000. Only about 200 of the 2,800 or 3,000 Brooklyn Heights men went out, he declared. He also said the company had enough men to run every trip to-day, and would do so, if not interfered with.

General Master Workman Parsons spent the greater part of the day in Brooklyn and a considerable portion of the afternoon in conference with Messrs. Delehanty and Webster, of the state board of mediation and arbitration. Mr. Parsons said the strike had the sanction of the Knights of Labor, and that the men would receive the moral and financial support of the organization.

REGISTER OF TREASURY.

Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Register of the United States Treasury, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says:

April 23d, 1899.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'g Co., Columbus, O.: Gentlemen—I find Pe-ru-na to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Pe-ru-na.

John W. Lyons.

No man is better known in the financial world than Judson W. Lyons. His name on every piece of money of recent date, makes his signature one of the most familiar ones in the United States. Hon. Lyons' address is Augusta, Ga. He is a member of the National Republican Committee, and is a prominent and influential politician. He is a particular friend of President McKinley.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

No man is better known in the financial world than Judson W. Lyons. His name on every piece of money of recent date, makes his signature one of the most familiar ones in the United States. Hon. Lyons' address is Augusta, Ga. He is a member of the National Republican Committee, and is a prominent and influential politician. He is a particular friend of President McKinley.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Register of the Treasury.

April 23d, 1899.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'g Co., Columbus, O.: Gentlemen—I find Pe-ru-na to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Pe-ru-na.

THIS BEAUTIFUL EARTH.

This beautiful earth! and this beautiful life! And only one span to enjoy it. And we in our folly exhaust it with strife; We do not know how to employ it. Our loves and our hates get so painfully mixed.

CHAPTER VII.

THE GARDEN OF ST. MICHAEL.

On our way back Ceci was somewhat separated from me, whether by accident or design, I cannot say. I did not quite regret this, as I had made up my mind to see as little as possible of him for the future, thinking he had repaid himself for his kindness, by the proposals he had made to me.

During the night I had but little sleep, for the affair of the mad partisan of the Medici, and the declaration of war, had roused the citizens to fever heat, and all night long crowds thronged the streets, their hoarse shouts of "Popolo! Popolo!" mingling with the incessant clanging of the war-bell, which itself was loud enough to wake the dead.

"Why not, signore?" "Tush, man! You look old enough to understand that orders are orders."

I accordingly did so, and found myself in the presence of a short, thick-set man, seated at a table, on which was spread a map, over which he was looking intently. In a corner of the room lay his helmet and sword, and he himself was in half-mail, wearing a Milanese corselet, on which was emblazoned the red dragon of his house.

I was accustomed to strange sights, but for the moment was startled, so horribly disfigured was the man. The sight of one eye was completely gone, and half his face looked as if a red-hot gridiron had been pressed against it. The other eye was intact, and twinkled ferociously under its bushy gray eyebrow.

They stopped their laughter, staring laughingly at me, and De Brienne said: "Your way, signore, lies before you," and he pointed down the corridor.

I made my way to my ordinary, and sat there to cool, which took some time. I was able to see that the rebuff I received was due in great part to my own mismanagement; also that there was no hope for me from La Palisse, and that my steps must turn elsewhere if I wished my purse to show a full appearance.

She stopped a little helplessly, and seeing she had observed my appearance, and anxious to end the affair, I put in: "Madam, I did nothing but drive off a cur—you thank me too much. Good day!"

"What is it, De Brienne?" a sharp voice called out from within. The officer lifted the curtain, and went inside. I was determined to gain an interview with the great man, and had therefore said my business was of importance.

ner of the walk, and went out of sight beyond the trees. I began in a useless manner to speculate who they were, and to weave together a little romance in my heart, when I was startled by a shriek, and the next moment the fair-haired lady came running round the corner of the road, crying for help. It was not 50 yards, and in less time than I take to write this I whipped out my sword, and was hurrying to the spot.

"Hold, signore!" he cried, "enough! I yield—what! Would you draw on a friend?" "A friend?" I said in astonishment, as he slowly rose to his feet.

"We thank you for your kindness, sir," said the shorter and elder of the two, "but I see our servants approaching, and we will not therefore trespass on you. Believe me, however, we are grateful—my cousin and I."

I struck him with my fist and the cross handle of the sword clenched in my hand.

was playing with a bracelet on her wrist, now looked up. "I think we had better get back; we will not trouble this gentleman further. He has already done too much for us."

"Madam, I did nothing but drive off a cur—you thank me too much. Good day!" I stood cap in hand until they turned the elbow of the walk, and then retraced my steps to my lodging. As I went back, I could not help railing at my luck. I was enabled to do a service, which, for no reason I could assign, I would rather have done to this particular woman than any other—a service which should have made her look kindly at me, and yet by a cruel stroke she was made to think me nothing else but a thief, for Luigi's charge was definite, and it was clear I knew him. My name was also known to her, and perhaps the rest of my story, as it was understood by the public, would be told to her, and then, adieu to my little romance, if it was not adieu already. Then again what business had I to have such thoughts? I had yet to learn that these things come unbidden, and when they come take no denial. Thinking in this way as I walked on, I was surprised to find I had reached the old Albizzi Palace. This building, like all the other houses of the nobles of Florence, was fortified with braccia or towers, joined to each other by bridges. These towers formed refuges during interurban wars, and stood many a siege from the people. The Albizzi Palace had four such braccia, but the two towards the Ultramar quarter had been half demolished in some forgotten riot, and never restored. The others were, however, intact, although the bridge between them had long since given way. It was in one of these that I had my abode, and reaching it about sundown, I began to slowly ascend the stairs which led to my chamber. Occasionally I stopped and rested, and it was during one of these rests that I looked up to the landing above me. It was still in light, for the setting sun shone through a giglio-shaped window in the western wall. As I glanced up, a figure suddenly appeared at the head of the stairway, and leaning one hand on the balustrade peered down into the dim light below it. I recognized the extraordinary dress at once, and a moment's survey of the face assured me it was my host of the hotel, he who had so strangely disappeared with the girl, when I fought with Bricco at Perugia.

"A good day to you, friend!" I called out, "and well met."

"Who calls? Who is there?" he answered. "One moment; let me climb up these stairs," and I made my way to the landing, and held out my hand.

"Signore," he said, after a moment, "I do not know your name, but whoever you are, Mathew Cortes owes you much, and will some day show himself grateful."

"How long have you been here?" I asked. "Some days."

"I, too, am on the rocks," and he laughed bitterly, "and feed with the goats."

"Not yet," she spoke so low I could hardly catch the words, "but I shall sleep soon."

"My best wine, signore! All my wines are good. There is Chianti from our own Tuscan grape, Lacryma Christi from Naples, Barolo from Piedmont, Roman Orvietto and White Vernaccia of the same brand that the Cardinal Ippolite d'Este—"

"Fool," I interrupted, "answer my question. What is your best wine? Have you any of the wines of France?"

"I can hardly believe the statement of that fellow who said one trolley car could not hold all the women he has married."

"What's the matter?" asked the machinist. "Come quick to the motor!" cried the foreman. "It's rapidly stopping!" Philadelphia North American.

A GOOD IDEA.

The suggestion is made that the corner lot north of the Chelsea house, on which the old building stood that was burned Thursday night be purchased, together with the Flagler lot, and turned into a park in which the soldiers' monument, now in Oak Grove cemetery, might be placed. The plan proposed is to take a sufficient portion of the east end of the Flagler lot and give it to the proprietors of the Chelsea house in exchange for the front part of the lot on which their barn now stands. A long, oblong strip of ground would thus be obtained which could be leveled and sodded down and a nice park made of it. The whole outlay, it is estimated, would be about $1,200, of which amount one gentleman offers to subscribe $25. It would be a nice thing if such a result could be accomplished. The appearance of the village to persons passing through it on the railway would be so much improved, added to which it would be a refreshing sight for those going to and from the depot after looking so long at the old eyesore that has disfigured the street for so many years. It looks like a good idea and should be pushed along.

The record for divorces in this country at the present time is 200 per day, or 63,000 a year. One hundred years ago divorce was almost unknown here, today Americans are known abroad as "The Masters of Divorce." Although at the head of the list in numbers, America is not alone in this growing tendency to break the matrimonial bonds. All the European countries, despite the opposition of the clergy, have been compelled to put divorce laws on their statute books. Even the Queen of England has been compelled to break her rigid rule excluding divorced people from her court, and has admitted at least one lady who was the victim of extreme brutality on the part of her husband. "What is the cause for such an alarming increase in the number of divorces?" is the question that interests sociologists.

The Ann Arbor Evening Times has already gone into the slate making business for the fall campaign of 1900 for the county offices and trots out the following string of favorites: Judge of probate: H. Wirt Newkirk, Republican; prosecuting attorney, Fred W. Green, Ypsilanti, A. J. Waters and F. M. Freeman, Manchester, all Republicans; county clerk, S. W. Bibbins, Augusta, A. C. Schumacher, Ann Arbor, Republican; Nate Schmid, Manchester, Philip Blum, jr., Lodi, Sid W. Millard and John Baumgardner, Ann Arbor, Democrats; sheriff, John Gillen, Democrat; James E. Burke, Northfield, Republican; treasurer, George J. Mann, Democrat, with some popular German Republican from Sylvan pitted against him. For register of deeds no names have yet bobbed up.

"Uncle" James Monroe, postmaster of Kalamazoo and a well known Republican politician, died Sunday night after a week's illness, aged 80 years. He was the "power behind the throne" in three senatorial contests in this state, and was a great manipulator in all political moves in which he was interested.

The 48-year street railway franchise ordinance was killed by the common council of Detroit at its meeting Tuesday evening, and the people now breathe somewhat easier.

It is amusing to notice the ardor with which some of the Democratic newspaper men of Washtenaw county, the Ann Arbor correspondent of the Detroit Evening News and the editor of the Ann Arbor Argus in particular, are seeking and spoiling to bring about a division in the Republican ranks by egging on a political fight between William Judson and Editor E. J. Helber. Of course, the gentlemen have no ulterior motive in view, other than "to give the news." But, ostrich-like, while the head is hidden, the body of a great bird shows up, which is in training to scoop in the county offices for the Democratic office seekers in the fall of 1900. The Republicans of Washtenaw county are not to be deceived by the time-worn tactics of the newspaper men in question.

Dr. D. A. MacLachlan has at length got his desire fulfilled and the Detroit Homeopathic College, which is to down the school at Ann Arbor, is to be opened in September. The doctor will now doubtless draw a fat (?) salary as its treasurer and dean. He should do so, for he has done more twisting, turning and squirming than any other man the Herald knows of to bring about his scheme for the undoing of the U. of M. homeopathic department. That institution, however, is still doing business at the old stand and will continue to do so long after the D. H. C. is dead and forgotten.

Hon. James O'Donnell, of the Jackson Citizen, is out in an open letter announcing himself as a candidate for governor on the Republican ticket. The motto on his banner is "Reduced state expenses." The Grass Lake News suggests the name of E. W. Barber, of the Jackson Patriot, as the silver candidate for that position. Now, if Tarbox, of the Star, would run on the Independent or Prohibition ticket, what a pretty triangular editorial duel it would make, and right at home, too.

Gen. Russell A. Alger personally presented his resignation as secretary of war to President McKinley yesterday afternoon. The document contained but two lines and was a formal tender of his portfolio, to take place at the president's pleasure. Already the ever shifting current of public sentiment is setting in towards the ex-secretary and many have expressed themselves as of the opinion that he is a much abused man.

The supreme court has decided that an officer who makes an arrest and gives testimony in the case cannot receive witness fees. That is good, sound, common sense law.

Ann Arbor Evening Times: Detroit, July 15.—Governor Pingree has brought an action against the Detroit Evening News for alleged libel in connection with the street railway controversy and aldermanic bribery. He fixes damages at $100,000. The matter was suppressed by all the Detroit papers except the Legal News.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

LOCAL ITEMS.

St. Mary's church is making preparations for its annual picnic in August at Cavanaugh Lake.

A party of gypsies are camped at the fair grounds. One of their fair sex advertises herself as a fortune teller.

The Chelsea Stars played a game of ball with a Manchester nine on Tuesday. They were victorious by the score of 19 to 17.

Thomas Walsh, aged 49 years, a former resident of Chelsea, died Wednesday, July 5, at Kalkaska, Mich., and was buried at East Jordan, Mich.

Loren Babcock says this is the 65th wheat harvest that he remembers in Washtenaw county, and it comes the nearest to being a failure of any of them.

Rev. F. A. Stiles, of Mendon, will preach morning and evening at the Baptist church next Sunday. It is important that every member of the church and society hear him.

The ladies of St. Mary's parish will hold an ice cream social at the opera house next Saturday, July 22. Choice refreshments will be served. Our citizens are cordially invited to attend.

Delos Cummings was taken to Ann Arbor Tuesday morning by Deputy Sheriff W. R. Lehman and Frank Leach, and lodged in the county jail. The action was necessitated by his insane conduct on the streets and at his home.

A merry-go-round is located on the vacant lot next to the town hall and the music of the hand organ and the stentorian tones of the man in charge of it are doing their best to rake in the stray nickels from the pockets of those who are fond of riding.

The sidewalk on the south side of the McKune block on East Middle street has been fixed. The Herald is glad to see that it has been attended to before someone got injured. Now, if the hole in the street is fixed it will effectually remedy the whole matter.

The will of Gottlob Bahnmuehler, of Freedom, has been allowed in the probate court. His wife Mary was appointed executrix and Herman Niehouse and Jacob Bahnmuehler appraisers. The estate which consists chiefly of a farm is willed to Mrs. Bahnmuehler.

The Michigan monthly bulletin of vital statistics shows that during the month of June there were 31 deaths in Washtenaw county, divided as follows: Ann Arbor city 9, Ypsilanti city 2, Chelsea 4, Dexter, Milan and Pittsfield 3 each, Bridgewater, Salem, Superior and Webster 1 each.

The 10th German-American day of Washtenaw county will be held in Saline, Thursday, Aug. 17. At 8 o'clock in the afternoon speeches will be delivered in the Arbeiter Park by Eugene J. Helber, of Ann Arbor, Congressman Henry C. Smith, of Adrian, and Charles Werner, of Detroit.

A flock of martins—a gang of boys—and some grasshoppers—have furnished lots of amusement on the corner of Main and Middle streets during the past week. The boys would catch the grasshoppers and throw them up in the air, where the martins would swoop down on them and carry them off for food. The way in which half a dozen of the birds would rush after the lucky captor of one of the 'hoppers was quite amusing.

Stockbridge Sun: This story is told at Lansing on Senator Collingwood, who was recently coming out from Detroit: He fell asleep in the parlor car and dreamed that the baby had fallen out of bed. He made a terrific lunge to save the infant and awoke to find himself the possessor of the foot of the lady who occupied the seat next to his. Profuse apologies were in order. And the Grass Lake News will no doubt say the foot belonged to a Chelsea woman.

Ann Arbor Lodge, No. 325, B. P. O. Elks, has received a pressing invitation from the Detroit lodge of Elks to attend the Elks' Carnival or "Street Fair" which will be held in that city August 21 to September 2. The entire length of Washington avenue from Michigan avenue to Grand Circus Park, will be devoted to the entertainment and it is expected to be the "Greatest Show on Earth." One day will be denominated "Ann Arbor Day" and will be devoted exclusively to entertaining all those visiting from Ann Arbor. The members of Ann Arbor Lodge will attend in a body. In the evening a social session will be given in honor of the Ann Arbor Elks. It is possible some of the Chelsea Elks will attend.

Capt. Ross Granger, of Ann Arbor, has been recommended by Col. Gardener for a commission in the new Thirtieth regiment now being raised for service in the Philippines.

Rev. O. C. Bailey, formerly pastor of the Congregational church, delivered two sermons at that church Sunday to large congregations. His old friends were glad to hear him again.

Adrian Press: Three Washtenaw county farmers lately sold their wool crop, that they had harvested each year for seven years. They had 30,000 pounds. If they had sold each year, put the money at interest at 6 per cent and saved the extra cost of insurance, they would have been better off by $100 each.

Senator Charles A. Ward, of Ann Arbor, has entered the summer law school, and next fall will go through the university, hoping to complete his course in one year.

The Rev. Charles O. Reilly, D. D., of Adrian, is spending this week in Chelsea. He will celebrate mass at 8 a.m. next Sunday, July 23, in St. Mary's church, and preach on "Christian Education and Schools" at 10:30 a.m. Our citizens are cordially invited.

Rumor has it that there is every likelihood that by this time next year continuous electric lines will be in operation from Detroit to Kalamazoo, which will parallel the Michigan Central and touch all the important points on that railroad between those two places, Chelsea included. The line will be from Detroit to Ann Arbor (already built and in operation), Ann Arbor to Jackson, Jackson to Battle Creek, Battle Creek to Kalamazoo, a total of 144 miles.

An exchange says: "The latest and most novel use for old newspapers that has come to our notice occurred Saturday when a gentleman stepped into this office and purchased 100 or more to feed to his hens. He tears the paper into shreds and soaks it in sour milk until the whole mass becomes a pulp, when he feeds it to his hens, and he claims that it adds greatly to their egg producing qualities. The newspaper is gradually extending its field for usefulness. From food for thought it has expanded until already within its sphere is included food for goats and hens."

Michigan's Divorce Record.

Recently compiled statistics develop the startling fact that Michigan is probably the most promising field for divorce in the entire country. Dakota's well earned reputation is likely to be eclipsed by this superior prestige unless she can match the figures presented below, which are based on accurate returns sent to the secretary of state by the clerks of all the State counties. Chief Vital Statistician Wilbur says that the reports for the year 1897, if they had been made with the same care, would be equally astounding. Because of the pretty general realization in Michigan of the advantage taken in the divorce laws, Senator Monaghan, of Detroit, tried at the recent session of the legislature to introduce bills increasing the stringency of the laws. The measures he proposed were defeated.

Appropriately enough, marriages are accomplished in Michigan with the same fatal facility as divorces. Two towns, Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, on the west shore of the State, have recently become famous by their lively fashion of making every holiday a hymeneal feast. Runaway couples have learned where to go, and there has not been a Sunday or holiday since the excursion season commenced that fewer than a dozen couples have been married in each of these little towns. On the Fourth of July the total was twenty-eight. Most of these happy-go-lucky marriages are performed in public, and these excursionists who choose these resorts do so for the fun of witnessing them.

The following statistics speak for themselves.

University Hospital Statistics.

An Ann Arbor paper says: The annual report of Superintendent Clark, of the University hospital, shows that for the year ending July 1, 1899, a total of 1,851 persons received treatment, which shows the great amount of good work which the medical school is doing at a moderate cost. The receipts have been $24,437.81 and the average cost for getting the best medical and surgical treatment in the state has been about $13.20.

The hospital was designed as a 64 bed hospital, but the report shows that the average number of patients for the entire year has been 70.08, or six more than was intended that the hospital should accommodate. The greatest number of patients was during the month of March when 84 were crowded in.

The hospital is just about self-supporting. Mr. Clark has not the exact figures of expenditures at hand, but he estimates that the institution has cost during the past year, about $24,000. This does not include coal or light which is received from the general University supplies.

HIS PLAN DON'T SUIT.

Protest Against Gen. Otis' Rigid Censorship at Manila.

American War Correspondents Declare They Are Forced to Misrepresent Actual Conditions in the Philippines.

Manila, July 11, via Hong-Kong, July 18.—The constantly increasing strictness of the censorship of press dispatches from Manila, which has prevented the cabling to the United States of anything that did not reflect official views of important events and conditions, has resulted in a united effort on the part of correspondents here to secure an abatement of the rigor of the censorship. The initiative in this direction was taken a month ago and resulted in the framing of a statement which was presented on Sunday, July 9, to Maj. Gen. Otis, commanding the military forces of the United States in the Philippine islands, with a request for permission to telegraph it to the United States. The correspondents also asked that they be allowed to cable to their respective papers all facts and the different phases of events as they transpired here. The correspondents had two long interviews with Gen. Otis, in the course of which they complained that the evident purpose of the censorship was not to keep information from the enemy, but to keep from the public a knowledge of the real condition of affairs here. It was also asserted by the correspondents that newspapers printed in Manila, which reach the enemy quickly, are permitted to publish statements similar to those which correspondents are forbidden to cable. It was made clear to Gen. Otis that the objection was to the system and not to the censor.

Gen. Otis finally promised greater liberality, agreeing to pass all matter that he might consider not detrimental to the interests of the United States. The statement of the correspondents is as follows:

"The undersigned, being all staff correspondents of American newspapers stationed in Manila, unite in the following statement: We believe that, owing to official dispatches from Manila made public in Washington, the people of the United States have not received a correct impression of the situation in the Philippines, but that these dispatches have presented an ultra-optimistic view that is not shared by the general officers in the field.

"We believe that the dispatches incorrectly represent the existing conditions among the Philippines in respect to dissension and demoralization resulting from the American campaign and to the brigand character of their army.

"We believe the dispatches err in the declaration that 'the situation is well in hand,' and the assumption that the insurrection can be speedily ended without a greatly increased force.

"We think the tenacity of the Filipino purpose has been underestimated and that the statements are unfounded that volunteers are willing to engage in further service.

"The censorship has compelled us to participate in this misrepresentation by excising or altering uncontroverted statements of facts on the plea, as Gen. Otis stated, that they would alarm the people at home, or 'have the people of the United States by the ears.'

"Specifications: Prohibition of hospital reports; suppression of full reports of field operations in the event of failure; numbers of heat prostrations in the field; systematic minimization of naval operations and suppression of complete reports of the situation.

Caused a Sensation.

Washington, July 18.—The publication of the war correspondents' formal indictment of Gen. Otis' management of the Philippine campaign caused a sensation in the departments here. Secretary Hay had received advices as late as Monday from civil as well as military sources in the Philippines which led him to declare that the situation there was certainly improved materially, and the prospects for the future had brightened very much. With these advices, the secretary said, Gen. Otis had had nothing to do, and they were from disinterested persons whose opinions must carry weight. Generally there was a strong disinclination exhibited by the officials to discuss the last "round robin."

Cabinet to Discuss It.

The Manila dispatch sent from Hong-Kong by the newspaper men will be taken up by the cabinet to-day. So far as can be learned nothing has been done or decided on concerning the communication. Officials are exceptionally reticent on the subject and it could not even be ascertained whether the newspaper card had been cabled to Gen. Otis, though it is presumed that this has been done, since otherwise he would not learn of it, in the ordinary course of things, for some weeks, when American and European mails reach him. It was said by a prominent army officer that Gen. Otis probably would be left free to act on the card as he thought best. Nothing, he added, has been heard from Gen. Otis on the subject.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Failed to File Reports.

The secretary of state has furnished the attorney-general with a list of several hundred Michigan corporations which had failed to file their annual reports for the year 1898, and proceedings will be commenced to require the corporations to pay the penalties provided by law. It is expected that it will be found that many of the corporations have gone out of existence, as in numerous cases reports have not been received for several years.

Crop Outlook.

The crop report of the agricultural department says for Michigan: Frequent and moderately heavy showers have delayed cultivation, haying and harvest, but greatly improved corn, oats, potatoes and pastures; some hay damaged by showers, but generally a good yield is being secured; wheat and rye harvest becoming general; sugar beets, beans, barley and buckwheat making good progress. The condition of corn is 87; oats, 93; beans, 91; potatoes, 94; clover, 90. The prospect for fruit in the state is as follows: Apples, 51 per cent.; peaches, 6; pears, 28; plums, 42; grapes, 63.

Out of Money.

Michigan state institutions voted appropriations by the last legislature are up against a waiting game unless they can borrow the money with which to proceed. Auditor-General Dix has notified them all that the money would not be available until next year. The Michigan agricultural college, the normal schools at Ypsilanti and Mount Pleasant and the proposed new school at Marquette are among those hit the hardest.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health from observers in various portions of the state for the week ended July 8 indicate that dysentery, measles and inflammation of the bowels increased and cerebro-spinal meningitis decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported in 182 places, measles at 48, typhoid fever at 35, scarlet fever at 31, diphtheria at 13, whooping cough at 18 and cerebro-spinal meningitis at 5 places.

Kalamazoo Asylum.

The annual report for the Michigan asylum for the year ended June 30 has been submitted. It shows that 319 patients were entered during the year and that there were 1,308 in the institution at the close of the year. The amount disbursed was $214,855.92. The board of patients at 42 cents cost $199,587.78; clothing, $12,264.93; miscellaneous, $2,762.92.

Closed Its Doors.

The Citizens' national bank in Niles was obliged to close its doors, owing to a run on the bank by depositors. Two days before there was a sudden change of officers in the bank, and disquieting rumors arose, and depositors withdrew $38,000. As the funds were exhausted the national bank examiner, J. W. Seldon, of Lansing, ordered the doors closed.

First Anniversary.

Members of the Michigan naval reserve from Detroit, Saginaw and Bay City, who composed the crew of the auxiliary cruiser Yosemite during the late war, had a jolly reunion in Detroit, the first anniversary of their successful engagement off San Juan.

News Items Briefly Told.

The Chicago & Northwestern railroad has paid its Michigan taxes for the current year, amounting to $57,363.46.

The State savings bank of Detroit has increased its capital stock from $200,000 to $500,000.

THE STRIKE IN BROOKLYN.

Company Able to Run Some Cars During the Day—Night Service Practically Abandoned.

New York, July 18.—The strike situation in Brooklyn remains unchanged. The striking employes are even more determined than they were Sunday, and the management of the Rapid Transit lines is obdurate and unflinching. Cars were run on most of the lines governed by the traction company from early morning until seven o'clock in the evening, but after sundown there was a considerable falling off in the service, and by nine o'clock not a car was moving on any of the lines affected by the striking motormen or conductors. The roads comprising the Nassau system were most effectively crippled. None of the striking employes returned to work, and most of them were busy during the day influencing union and nonunion men on the other lines to quit work. In this respect the strikers were partially successful, but they made no inroads on the running of the Putnam avenue cars. This line is practically intact, not more than half a dozen of its employes being affiliated with the strikers. The Coney Island Railroad company reaped a rich harvest on all of its lines during the day. The Franklin avenue, Smith and Jay street, Hamilton avenue and Dekalb avenue lines were running on full time, and carried a great number of passengers throughout the day and night.

The Coney Island company lived up to its agreement with the employes, and consequently its business was not interfered with in the slightest. In fact, the business on these roads was considerably augmented, as many travelers patronized the cars, although in many cases going blocks out of their way to do so.

President Rossiter, accompanied by Seth L. Keeney, visited the barn on the Flatbush avenue line near Vernon avenue during the afternoon. The strikers were there to a man, and when the railroad magnates drove up in a coupe the strikers adjourned to a near-by hall and held a meeting, to which they invited Messrs. Rossiter and Keeney. Speeches were made on both sides, but toward the close of the meeting President Rossiter told the men that they could come back to work at six o'clock p. m., but he assured them that the company would not concede any of their demands, and expressed himself as believing that the strikers had no grievances to back up their actions. "There is no strike nor cause for it," said Mr. Rossiter.

"You lie! you lie!" came from 500 throats in answer to this assertion, and it looked for a time as if serious trouble would ensue. Fortunately wiser heads governed the most active strikers, and no damage was done to either of the representatives of the company.

During the excitement attendant on the president's departure two cars arrived at the barns of the Flatbush avenue line and were attacked by the mob. The police, however, charged and drove them back. Some 20 strikers took advantage of the excitement in the vicinity of the barns to obtain stones, bricks and other things from a new building and they scattered debris for half a block along the car tracks of the Flatbush avenue line below Church street. When a car came along towards the barn the strikers rushed for it. One aimed a blow with a heavy iron bar at the motorman. He jumped into the arms of the strikers and was roughly handled until he said he would strike. The conductor was pulled from his place also and agreed to strike. The next car was guarded by four policemen, and these resisted the attacks from the strikers until a detail of 15 men was rushed from the Grant avenue station. These soon charged the crowd and drove it back.

At seven o'clock in the evening President Rossiter issued instructions to shut down all the traction company's lines, and from that hour until long after midnight, not a car was run, with the exception of a couple which were placed at the service of the city authorities to transport policemen to the outlying districts. Chief of Police Devery spent the greater part of the afternoon in Brooklyn. He allowed nearly half of the New York policemen, who had been on duty since early Sunday, six hours leave of absence, and in the meantime their places were taken up by others who had managed to snatch a few hours sleep earlier in the morning. When asked for his opinion of the strike and its probable outcome, Chief Devery said: "This strike should never have occurred. The men will surely lose. They are not organized, and I think the whole matter will be adjusted inside of 24 hours."

With the exception of the Dekalb and Ninth avenue cars, and the Marcy and cross-town cars, all other lines of transportation were closed up tightly shortly after six o'clock. From this hour until midnight the streets seemed to be deserted, and after sundown many thousands of people were compelled to walk home.

At midnight Chief of Police Devery and Deputy Chiefs McLaughlin and McKellar held a conference at police headquarters in Brooklyn. The police authorities aver that the strike is almost over, as the men who are out have not sufficient capital to back them up for any kind of a prolonged fight.

POPULAR IN LONDON.

Mrs. Craigie, an American Writer, Has Become the Fashion in England's Metropolis.

An American girl is the rage in London; not Edna May in the "Bell of New York," but "John Oliver Hobbes," Mrs. Craigie, author of the successful play, "The Ambassador," and the writer of many other dramas.

Mrs. Craigie began playwriting some years ago and won success from the start. The last two years she has devoted herself to it entirely, and has now reached that delightful stage of a writer's career when everything she writes is engaged before it leaves her pen.

Thirty-two years ago there played in Boston a little girl, Pearl Mary Theresa Richards, a tall progressive little girl, who could be very serious at the slightest appeal to her imagination. Her pastimes were dolls and a stage, also a whole lot of writing materials.

As the girl grew up she was taken abroad for education, and on one of her visits she married Reginald Walpole Craigie. She was then only 19 years old; and in the next four years she suffered much unhappiness, out of which grew the flower of genius.

Mrs. Craigie, at 24, secured a divorce and the custody of her boy; and with the child went to live with her father, Dr. Richards, editor of the Athenaeum, who resides in a splendid mansion in Lancaster Gate, near Hyde Park, London.

One day Mrs. Craigie sat down to think. She had written a little and had an audience who admired her under the name of John Oliver Hobbes. Why not go on writing! She came of literary stock. Her great-grandfather was the founder of Auburn Theological seminary, her grandfather was the noted New York clergyman; her father a well-known man of letters to-day. Yes, she would follow in their footsteps. For a while her mind turned toward religion, during which she became converted to the Roman Catholic faith; but her love for the drama asserted itself, and she began playwriting as a profession. Within two years she had written three plays, all of which were successes.

Mrs. Craigie is a slender woman, not very tall, but very well built. Her face, eyes and hair are dark, and she has a wonderful sort of personal magnetism which her friends believe would have served her well had she gone on the stage.

Mrs. Craigie has the singular habit of concentration, a rare gift to-day. When she is about to write she sits long hours and thinks about her plot. Its characters become human beings to her; the scenes real places. To secure perfect quiet she goes in a convent, where she engages a room for meditation and remains there as long as it pleases her to do so. She cannot work where there is noise and liability to interruption, and for that reason she goes to the convent to think and write if only for a day at a time. Her best scenes, the most worldly, sharpest lines in her plays are written from the walls of the convent.

Mrs. Craigie has only just begun her work, she believes. She wants to write a comedy, a tragedy, another society play and several curtain raisers in the near future. She has contracted for each one of these. She writes, when once she puts pen to paper, very rapidly, and without erasure. She does her thinking from beginning to end before she begins, and when her thoughts are completed she writes.

Her library is a magnificent thing, on the first floor of the great mansion. Her father's book shelves line the room, and there are exquisite pieces of statuary, wonderful first editions on the shelves, rarest objects of bric-a-brac from India and rugs from Belochistan. It is the ideal writing spot. Mrs. Craigie's boy is an active little lad of eight years, whose instruction is left to a governess and a tutor. He has a nurse and a maid who care for him when his mother is busy. Mrs. Craigie does not like to leave her boy too much to hirelings, and in spite of her work she manages to be with him a great deal. When putting on a new play her hours are very irregular. The rehearsals begin at 12 o'clock midnight and last until two in the morning.

NEW NECK FANCIES.

The Princess, the Loie Fuller and Twentieth Century Among the Latest Novelties.

Fancy neck trimmings play such an important part in summer neckwear that the designers must needs keep continually at work to supply the demand. Three new fancies are shown in the "Princess," the "Loie Fuller," and the "Twentieth Century," with an improved edition of the broad puff tie, making the fourth.

The "Princess" is a prim little affair consisting of a plain band of stiff goods with turn bands of linen hemstitched and turned over the edge.

An ethereal design is suggested by the "Loie Fuller," which has a stock of dark satin finished with bows of chiffon tied a la papillon.

The "Twentieth Century" is, naturally, very "mannish," and simple. It is rather narrow, finished with two little points of lawn scalloped at the back, and a small bow in the front.

The broad puff is as stylish and becoming as ever. Its newest feature is that it is made wider and comes in a greater variety of fabrics.

THE MEDDLING HABIT.

Are Mothers-in-Law as Much Addicted to It as They Are Generally Said to Be?

From time immemorial the mother-in-law has been an object of reproach, says the American Queen. It is infrequent that one pauses to inquire where, why or how she first earned her unenviable reputation as a disagreeable and objectionable person, and we fear the inquiry would be futile and profitless.

How many of the mothers-in-law of our immediate acquaintance deserve the reputation with which they are universally accredited? Their chief fault (which varies, according to all tradition) is their persistent inclination to steer and rule the private and domestic affairs of their married sons and daughters. That this meddlingness exists, and in many instances is carried too far, nobody can deny; instances are constantly exhibited, usually more glaring in the early stages of young married life.

Of course, the explanation of this is natural and excusable. The mother, who for years has been in close sympathy with the son or daughter, and has known and gratified each wish and desire instantly, is suddenly called upon to give up every claim. This is a superhuman task, and it is not remarkable that for the first few months she finds it an impossible one. It is given to but few women to keep eyes and ears and mouth shut when they want most to open them.

Spinach a la Normandise.

Wash one pound of potatoes, peel them and cut them in half lengthwise. Bake till soft and brown, with a piece of good beef dripping as big as a walnut on top of each. Pick off stalks, weeds and rubbish from two pounds of spinach, and put it into a saucepan with half a pint of water, a tablespoonful of salt, and a small pinch of soda. Cook quickly for ten minutes, pressing down with a wooden spoon, and don't let it stick. Drain, chop fine, melt two ounces of butter in a saucepan, turn in the spinach to get thoroughly hot, then put it down the center of a hot dish, in a straight heap. Put the baked potatoes down the middle of the spinach, letting the slices overlap, and pour around one pint of tomato sauce, or put half a pint of peas, either fresh or canned, in four heaps around the dish.—Housewife.

Exquisite Sachet Perfume.

Lavender flowers, one ounce; pulverized orris, two drachms; bruised rosemary leaves, one-half ounce; musk, five grains; attar of roses, five drops. Mix well, set up in small, flat muslin bags, and cover them with fancy silk or tinted lawn.

BARRELING APPLES.

A Home-Made Contrivance Which Does as Good Work as Any Patented Device.

There are manufactured barreling presses on the market, but the home-made affair shown in the cut will do as good work, and in some points will do it more conveniently than the commercial press. A blacksmith, with a few moments' work, will bend a stout iron rod into the shape shown, the rod passing down one side of the barrel, across under it and up the other side, the upper ends being bent as shown. A long lever of wood is slipped into the loop and just the right thickness of blocks placed beneath it to spring the cover down into place. Now draw the lever under the lip of the rod on the other side, and the whole will remain in place until the head is nailed in. Both ends of the rod should project the same distance above the upper edge of the barrel.—N. Y. Tribune.

STRAWBERRY BEDS.

How They Can Be Renewed Effectively for a Number of Years Without Resetting.

It is not necessary to set a new strawberry bed every two years where only enough are grown to supply the wants of the family. We know of a little strawberry patch that has been going at least ten years without having been reset in all that time. The owner of this bed renews it every year after a plan of his own that has worked successfully. After the berries are picked each year he takes a single shovel plow and plows right through the rows of plants, tearing them out without heed. This tears out most of the old plants and leaves the runners that have grown at the outer edge of the rows still in the ground. Then the patch is given a good harrowing, and by this time a good many more plants are torn out. The patch is then raked over and made smooth and the plants that remain are thinned out to a foot apart and left in rows between where the old rows stood. Finally a good dressing of rotted manure from the barnyard is spread over the patch and it is kept clean during the season. By the time winter comes there is a lot of vigorous new plants in the patch and the crop of the next year is as good as it would have been if new plants had been set in by slow and laborious hand work.—Farmer's Voice.

TIMELY GARDEN NOTES.

Celery is a good garden crop to follow the early peas.
Break out the seed stalks from the pieplant hill. If the seed is allowed to ripen it injures the root and lessens next year's growth.
An hour or two some wet day spent in transplanting beets and rutabagas will increase the yield and make the rows prettier to look at.
Should the melons be slow in growing apply a small quantity of nitrate of soda around each hill and chop it in with the hoe. One of the best modes of forcing cabbages to grow is to hoe them after each rain or cultivate so as to have the soil loose and the ground clear of weeds and grass.—Farmer's Voice.
Weeding Rye from Wheat.
The wheat-growing farmer dislikes much to cultivate rye because wherever grown on the same farm some of the rye will find its way through straw or manure to the fields where the wheat is grown. It is not a difficult matter to separate the two grains as they grow in the field together. The rye heads out several days earlier than the wheat, and it sprouts up a foot or more higher, making it very conspicuous. It is an easy matter to go through the field with a pair of shears and clip off all the rye heads, cutting down low enough to reach those that are behind in growth. Wheat that is free from rye is worth several cents more per bushel, and, of course, wheat free from rye should always be used for seed.

SPECKS IN BUTTER.

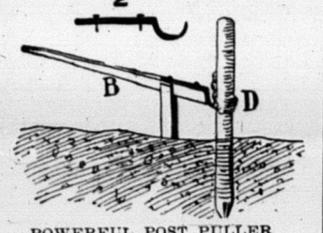

Carelessness is the Cause of Them in Most Cases, Faulty Working and Setting in the Rest.

The cause of specks or mottles in butter is not always an easy matter to find out, for there are several things which may be held accountable for it. Everyone knows mottled butter when they see it, for it contains light spots and streaks. Carelessness on the part of the butter maker is the cause in nine out of ten cases, but even the most careful person will sometimes get a batch of streaky goods. Probably the majority of cases can be traced to the manner of salting and working. If a coarse kind of salt is used it does not dissolve rapidly and eventually brings out the color more deeply in spots, for it is well known that salt deepens the color in butter. Likewise a poor quality of salt containing lime will bring out the color unevenly. Failure to work the butter enough leaves the salt unevenly distributed. It is a good plan to work butter twice, letting it stand for two hours or so after the first working. Mottled butter is often caused by failure to maintain a uniform temperature, either of the cream before churning, or of the butter afterward while salting and working it. If part of the butter gets too hard or too dry it will not dissolve as much salt as the rest of it. If some of the butter globules in the cream are heated too much above or cooled too far below the rest they will not take color and salt uniformly with the others. Poor butter color will also cause it, as well as improper handling of the milk or ripening of the cream. It would seem, therefore, that the way to avoid streaky butter is to follow carefully the most approved methods of handling the milk and cream, to keep as uniform a temperature as possible in ripening the cream, to use the best kinds of butter color and salt, and finally to thoroughly work the butter or better still to rework it before making up. But above all these rules must be placed experience and knowledge.—Prairie Farmer.

STRONG POST PULLER.

With It Two Men Pulled Out Fifty-Two Stubborn Posts in Less Than One Hour.

I had a lot of posts to pull out, and I invented the device shown in sketch—a lever, fulcrum and chain—made of such material as I could find lying around. With this device my hired hand and I pulled out 52 posts in less than an hour. The lever (B) is made out of an old sulky plow tongue, about nine feet long. Fourteen inches from the large end I bored a five-eighth hole for the fulcrum. A hook, shown at 2, was bolted on top end of lever, with two three-eighth bolts, the hook projecting over the end to catch in links of chain. I use an ordinary log chain with hook on end. The fulcrum is made of three pieces spiked together, the center piece two feet eight inches long and thick enough to allow the lever to move easily between the two outside pieces, which are six inches longer, and project above the center piece that much. These outside pieces are one and one-half by four inches. Bore the five-eighth hole through these projecting outside pieces about one and one-half inches from the top. Put in the lever, run a bolt through, and the puller is ready for business. I pulled up some old barnshed posts with this device that I could not move with two horses and chain. This device is not patented.—S. L. Snyder, in Ohio Farmer.

High-Grade Farm Butter.

Better butter can be made on the farm than at the creamery if the same care is given. The managers of creameries secure the best assistants to be had, and they aim to put good butter on the market. The advantage possessed by the farmer who makes dairy butter is that he can feed his cows on the best foods, use more care and work with cleaner surroundings. A large proportion of creamery butter is not uniform, as the milk comes from many sources, but dairy butter is injured in the churning and manipulation of the product by inexperienced persons.

The Salting of Butter.

Butter taken from the churn in granular form will take the salt more evenly than if gathered into a lump, besides which the milk can be more thoroughly separated. Tastes differ as to the amount of salt, but this is not essential to the keeping qualities of butter; anywhere from one-half ounce or more will keep it if the milk is out of it. For laying down a stone jar is as good as anything; press the layer down as solid as possible, then sprinkle a handful of salt over to keep the next layer from sticking. A cloth may be put between the layers, but it is not essential.

FEUD BREAKS OUT.

Five Killed and Three Wounded in Kentucky—Result of a Family Row in Pennsylvania.

Louisville, Ky., July 18.—A special to the Courier-Journal from London, Ky., tells of a report reaching there of the outbreak of another feud in Clay county, by which five men lost their lives Monday. The dead are said to be: Robert Philpot, Ed Fisher, Aaron Morris, Jim Griffin and Hugh Griffin. These fatalities resulted from a pitched battle fought near Little Goose creek, three miles from Manchester.

The feud dates back nearly two years. On Christmas, 1897, James Philpot was killed by Aaron Morris, but before he died he shot and killed William Bundy, a friend of Morris'. The Morrises and Griffins were closely affiliated. Since then, the feeling between the two factions has been very bitter, and it has been aroused recently by the White-Baker hostilities. The Philpots, who are the strongest faction in the mountain, numbering about 750 voters, openly espoused the cause of the Bakers, while the Griffins took sides with the Whites.

The story that reaches here from Manchester is to the effect that Bob Philpot was arrested Monday morning by Deputy Sheriff Wash Thacker. While very circumstantial in other respects, the report does not show clearly the origin of the trouble nor give the reason for Philpot's arrest. It is said that while Thacker was taking Philpot's bond, the latter was shot from behind by a member of a crowd that had gathered. This precipitated a general fight with winchesters and revolvers, which was participated in by George, Granville, Robert and Peter Philpot and Ed Fisher on one side, and Aaron Morris, Hugh, Jim and Green Griffin on the other. The battle began at about nine o'clock and raged fiercely for ten or fifteen minutes. When it was over it was found that the five men mentioned above had been killed outright, three of the belligerents were seriously wounded, while Pete Philpot was the only one on either side to escape injury.

Granville Philpot is said to be one of the most seriously wounded. He is a union veteran, having lost a leg at Stone River. He is an ex-member of the Kentucky legislature, and is said to have killed three or four men. Ed Fisher, who is reported dead, was another man with several nicks in his cane. He was but 23 years old, but was said to have killed three men.

Nearly every man in Clay county is armed and on horseback, hastening to either one side or the other, carrying and going for news and protecting each other's homes. Lights were flashing from housetop to housetop Monday night and the conch horns were blowing signals from hilltop to hilltop, conveying information that could be understood only by the clan for which the message was intended.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 18.—A family feud is responsible for a shooting affray at Milesville, near Monongahela City, the result of which is one woman probably fatally wounded, another in a serious condition and a man with two bullets in his body. The wounded are: Mrs. Stella Davis, aged 22 years, shot twice through lungs, will probably die; Mrs. Sarah Weddell, aged 22 years, head and face badly cut, condition serious; John H. Sickles, shot in arm and hand. The trouble occurred Sunday morning when Mrs. Weddell, who is the wife of a wealthy farmer in Forward township, was visiting a neighbor, Mrs. Behanna. As Mrs. Weddell was leaving the Behanna home she was met by her stepmother, Mrs. Alice Davis, who, it is claimed, began abusing her.

The two women have been bitter enemies for several years, and their wordy duel was loud enough to attract quite a crowd of men and women, whom Mrs. Weddell claims attacked her with rocks. She then returned to Mrs. Behanna's house and secured a revolver. Standing in the doorway, she fired point blank into the crowd. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Stella Davis, who was one of the attacking party, was shot twice through the lungs, and John H. Sickles, Mrs. Weddell's uncle, received one bullet in the arm and one in the hand. He succeeded in disarming the frenzied woman, and then, it appears, the crowd, composed mostly of women, rushed upon Mrs. Weddell and beat her unmercifully with rocks taken from the railroad ballast. She was finally rescued and placed in jail.

KILLED BY HIS PLAYMATES.

Sad Result of a Quarrel Between Small Boys in an Indiana Town.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 18.—Ralph Schelly, eight years old, lies dead in his home at Montpelier as the result of a vicious attack on him by four playmates. The boys were all playing together, when some difficulty arose over a trifling matter and the four combined to thrash him. The boys implicated in the murder are Cliff Haskins, Ora and Dock Borman and Herman Payne. Two of them held Ralph Schelly while the others kicked him and pounded him on the neck, head and back with stones. Lockjaw followed and then death.

Beautiful Women.

Every woman should have the beauty, vivacity and vigor of perfect health. A strong stomach is the first essential to physical beauty in either man or woman. Nine-tenths of the sickness of the human race comes from weak digestion. Thousands of people, after years of discouragement, have tried Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and regained their health. There is nothing like it for the cure of stomach troubles. See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Brothers in Affliction.

The czar can sympathize with that ancient Indian who is credited with giving his name to the city of Cheboygan. He had just returned from a long hunting trip through the northern wilds of the Michigan peninsula when the native nurse hurried forward and dashed his hopes by telling him he was the father of a third little daughter. The noble red man straightened up, and, with a look of deepest disgust on his coppery face, gutturally exclaimed: "She-boy-gain!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

COUNTY NEWS.

Dexter's new arc lights for street lighting have been placed in position.

The Ypsilanti & Saline electric road will probably not be in full operation until Sept. 1.

There are now five young men from Porto Rico in Ann Arbor. They are going to study at the University of Michigan.

Fire destroyed the home and household effects of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, colored, of Ypsilanti, Saturday evening while they were absent.

Mack & Co. have sold their wool stored at Ann Arbor, Bridgewater and Manchester. It will be shipped to Milwaukee, Wis., and Louisville, Ky.

The railroad crossing board has ordered an overhead crossing at the crossing of the Ypsilanti & Saline electric railway with the Ann Arbor near Pittsfield junction.

Jonathan Sprague, a well known resident of Ann Arbor, and at one time grand master of Michigan I. O. O. F., was stricken with paralysis at Flat Rock Friday evening.

The Ypsilanti Whist Club did not make much of a running at the national whist tournament held last week. The players came out next to last in rank. Boston was first.

The Washtenaw Pioneer Society will make an attempt shortly to hold a reunion of all those persons now living who attended the Fourth of July celebration held in Ypsilanti in 1849.

Alber L. Pierce, a barber at Gregory, had a quarrel with his sweetheart and Sunday decided life was not worth living. He took a dose of poison, but doctors pumped it out of him and he will recover.

Charles Kruger, a Michigan Central laborer, was found in an alleyway at Ann Arbor Sunday night, with his face and head in a battered up condition and minus $21 which he had had prior to being attacked.

The Ann Arbor Argus says Jacob Braun, of Manchester, ex-deputy county treasurer, is slated for an appointment as assistant secretary of the Michigan Agricultural board, a position which commands a salary of $600 a year and lodging.

Horace A. Wilkinson, a former wealthy mill owner of Dundee, committed suicide Friday morning by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. Temporary insanity caused by heavy financial embarrassment was the cause for the act.

Mrs. J. B. Scott, of Durand, Mich., had 40,000 gall stones removed from her liver at the University hospital as the result of an operation. There was one large one the size of a walnut and six tablespoonfuls of tiny ones the size of a rice grain.

A careful canvass has been made by Dr. W. W. Nichols looking to the establishment of rural mail delivery around Ann Arbor. Every farmer approached was in favor of it, and a big petition went to Washington Monday asking that it be established.

Lemuel Monroe, at one time a wealthy hotel keeper of Jackson, died at the county house one day last week, where he had been a charge for the past 12 years. He had no relatives to bury his remains and they were sent to the University at Ann Arbor for dissection purposes.

Saturday evening John Kubler, sr., of Ann Arbor, went to Undertaker Dieterle and told him to get a casket ready as he felt as if he was going to die. Next morning he was found dead in his bed having suffered a stroke of paralysis during the night. He was 76 years old.

Sparrow bounty workers have been scattering poisoned grain about the streets at Ann Arbor to kill the sparrows by wholesale. Numerous other birds, as well as squirrels, have fallen victims to the trap set for the sparrows, and there is trouble in store for the person who has been scattering the poison, if he can be found.

Henry A. Cornwell, the last of the famous Cornwell Brothers who were the establishers of the vast paper milling interests in Ann Arbor, Geddes, Ypsilanti, Fosters and Jackson, died at his home in Ann Arbor last Thursday evening. A week nearly to the hour before his death he was stricken with paralysis and did not recover consciousness thereafter.

Wm. Heselachwerdt, of Sharon, had a horse killed in a peculiar manner recently. When he went into the field to catch the animal he found it fastened by its hind foot to the top wire of a fence, evidently having kicked at another horse on the opposite side of the fence and the wire being drawn under the shoe it could not free itself. It had been dead some time when found.

Mrs. Lester Lyke, of Northville, near the Washtenaw county line, was knocked down by a tramp whom she refused to let enter her house Saturday. She fired two shots at him from a revolver as she lay on the ground and thinks the bullets took effect as the tramp fell at each shot but finally gained the shelter of some woods, and although the neighbors searched diligently they could find no trace of him.

The profits of the Ypsilanti postoffice last year were $4,822.16.

The city taxes in Ypsilanti vary from $9.50 to $10.80 per $1,000 valuation. The assessed valuation of the city is $3,027,275.

Ann Arbor will make the consideration of the deed to the property which Ann Arbor donates for a site for the new homeopathic hospital, the condition that the regents permanently maintain a hospital thereon.

Frederick Nauen, a cigarmaker, was struck by a Detroit, Ypsilanti & Ann Arbor electric car while walking on the track two miles out of Detroit at 11 o'clock Saturday night. He was thrown into the ditch alongside the track. When picked up his skull was found to be fractured, his arms broken and his body a mass of cuts and bruises. He died at St. Mary's hospital, Detroit, half an hour later.

Wilbur Farrington, a white youth of Ypsilanti, flourished an imitation snake in the face of a young colored woman of Ypsilanti Thursday night, for which she reproved him. Words passed between them and the affair was brought to the ears of William McCoy, the colored hero of many a street fight, who is interested in the girl. He hunted up Farrington and at once meted out his punishment, beating him until he was almost insensible.

No Right to Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store.
