A WELL BARNED PROMOTION.

George A. Gilbert Made Assistant Superintendet of the Railway Mail Service.

George A. Gilbert, of Ann Arbor, brother of James L. Gilbert, of Chelsea has received a well merited promotion in large of the railway mail service.

The appointment came to Mr. Gilbert last week through the regular channel. The commission is dated August 80, and accompanying it was a letter from General Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service James E. White, stating that it was the desire of the department that the new appointee report to that office in Washso without embarrassment to the service." A letter from George W. Pepper, superintendent of the ninth division of the railway mail service, advised him to report at once, so Mr. Gilbert went to Washington and reported for duty Mon-

The position to which Mr. Gilbert has been appointed is a comparatively new one in the service, having been created less than two years ago. There are fifteen assistant superintendents at large, and they work under the immediate direction of the second assistant postmaster general's office. The duties of the position are to inspect the star routes, steam ship service, messenger service and other special work demanded by the department. The salary is $1,600 a year and an allowance of $4 a day for traveling expenses.

George A. Gilbert is a type of the selfmade man. He is 54 years of age now, but ever since his 18th year he has been dependent upon his own resources to gain a livelihood. He was born in Livingston county, Mich., but most of his life was spent in Ann Arbor, whither his family moved while he was still young. An abbreviated public school education in the University city was followed by a few ears' clerkship in a clothing store. From this position he entered the railway mail service. This move was made

He has been in the railway mail service about 25 years, and has risen from the ranks. He served as a clerk on the New York and Chicago fast mail for five years. He was then transferred to the Michigan Central, between Detroit and Chicago where he remained for nine years, when he was promoted June 1, 1889, to the chief clerkship of the ninth division, which he held until his recent promotion.

Mr. Gilbert is very popular among the 170 clerks that report to him, his gentlemanly manner and never failing courtesy having secured for him the friendship of all. He is a prodigious worker and his elevation to his new post comes to one who has earned it well and faithfully. During the ten years that he has been chief clerk he has not been absent from his place of duty thirty days, including days of illness and holidays.

Although Washington will be Mr. Gilbert's headquarters, he will retain his present residence at Ann Arbor, where his wife and daughter make their home.

M. B. Church Assignments.

The M. E. conference, which has just closed its session in Detroit, has made the following assignments for the Ann Arbor Presiding elder, E. W. Ryan; Ann Ar bor, B. L. McElroy; Chelsea, J. I. Nickerson; Dexter, H. W. Hicks; Dixboro, Howard A. Marsh; Waterloo Horace Palmer; Whitmore Lake and Hamburg, F. E. Pierce; Ypsilanti, C. T. Allen.

Have Compromised Their Suits.

The damage suit in the circuit court brought by Stowell Wood against Eugene B. Freer to recover $5,000 for defamation of character has been discontinued. On Thursday last the parties got together and in Justice Parker's court to have him put under bonds to keep the peace and Wood withdraws his suit against Freer in the circuit court. Each party pays his own next the fee charged for orders will be costs incurred in the cases.

BAPTIST CHURCH RECEPTION.

The reception tendered by the members of the Baptist church to their new pastor, held at the church last evening was in the United States postal service, he having every way a very pleasant one and was been appointed assistant superintendent at largely attended by the good people of Chelsea irrespective of creed. The welcome to Mr. Stiles was warm and hearty, and if it is any augury of a successful ministry his will surely be a most successful one.

After a period of introductions and visiting George E. Davis called the gathering to order and Mr. Jay Everett opened the program with prayer. Then followed ington as soon as he could "consistently do addresses of welcome by Nathaniel Laird on behalf of the church and the B. Y P. U., Rev. J. I. Nickerson on behalf of the clergy of Chelsea, Mrs. R P. Chase for the Women's Home and Foreign Mission and Aid Societies, and President George P. Staffan on behalf of the village. To all of these Mr. Stiles responded in a very pleasing, hearty and heartfelt manner, expressing his appreciation for the kind words spoken.

> Ice cream and cake were then served and after another period of visiting the company gradually dispersed.

AFTER THE TAX DODGERS.

The Register of Deeds Must Make Returns of All Deeds Recorded.

The tax commission blanks which are to unearth the tax dodgers have been received at the register of deeds office, and 36 boxes Parlor Matches for 25c. Register Cook or Deputy Creech will now have to go over all the deeds received for record for June 1, 1898, to June 1, 1899, and make answers to the following questions:

- 1. In what liber found.
- 2. Upon what page,
- 8. The name of the granter. 4. The name of the grantee.
- 5. The consideration.
- 6. The town or city.
- 7. The number of the ward.
- 8. The number of the town as per survey.
- 9. The number of the range as per survey.
- 10 Description of the property.
- 11. Remarks.

Then the county treasurer will have to place on the blanks for comparison the assessed valuation of the property during the years 1890, 1894 and 1898.

This means a great deal of extra work for the register of deeds office for which there is no provision made for remunera-

Miller-Liebeck.

A very pleasant wedding occurred at St Mary's church Tuesday morning when Miss Alice Eleanora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob P. Miller, of Sylvan, was married to Mr. John F. Liebeck. The ceremony was performed by the pastor Rev. W. P. Considine, who celebrated a solemn high mass. During the ceremony Mr. Louis Burg sang "Ave Maria" in a very beautiful manner. The bride was attended by her sister Miss May Agnes Miller, while Mr. Joseph Liebeck, a brother of the groom, acted as best man.

A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents at noon, after which a reception followed. The wedding presents were many and quite hand

Mr. and Mrs. Liebeck left on the 3:15 p. m. train for Detroit where they will make a brief visit. On their return they will go to housekeeping on the Joseph Webber farm in Sylvan, which Mr. Lie beck has rented for a term of years.

New Form Domestic Money Order

The post office department has adopted a new form of domestic money order, which will be introduced gradually, or as supplies of the old form become exhausted at the various post offices throughout the country. Its dimensions are about those of the ordinary bank draft. Its color is blue. The receipt, which is to be furnish ed by the issuing postmaster to the remitter showing the number and date of the order and the amount for which issued. will be greatly appreciated by the public.

Detroit which has been dubbed "The model office" was honored by being secompromised the matter. Freer with- lected as the office to receive Book No. 1 draws a suit he had brought against Wood of the new issue. It will be some time before the new issue reaches the Chelsea

SLIGHT RAY OF HOPE.

Dreyfus Encouraged in His Confidence of Pardon.

His Judges Ask That He Be Spared Disgrace of Public Degradation-Movement to Boycott Exposition Gains Ground.

Rennes, Sept. 12 .- The judges of the Drevfus court-martial on Monday, by mutual agreement, expressed to the president of the republic, through Gen. Lucas, the commander of the army corps at Rennes, their sincere desire that Dreyfus would not be submitted to a fresh degradation. When M. Labori's secretary informed Dreyfus of this action, he was greatly affected and said: "I still have hopes."

Favors Conciliatory Policy. It is understood that President Loubet opposes such an extreme course as prosecuting Mercier or the other generals. He is rather inclined to a conciliatory policy, extending even to a pardon for Dreyfus.

M. Demange has been blamed for conceding so many points in his speech, but it appears that he did so in the hope of winning another waverer among the judges, who, however, finally joined the majority on the condition that the verdict would be accompanied with a proviso as to extenuating circumstances.

Fear of Trouble in Paris.

Paris, Sept. 12.-Except for slight street disturbances, Paris has remained unexpectedly quiet, but this condition of affairs is not likely to continue. The long, heavy rains Monday, combined with the fact that the leaders of the opposing parties were all at Rennes, prevented any organized demonstration. Then, too, the general public were delighted with the verdict as confirming the chose jugee. Now, however, they are beginning to see the want of logic in conceding "extenuating circumstances" to a convicted traitor, a concession which excites doubt as to the strength of the case against Dreyfus.

Moreover, public opinion is being sobered by reading the comments of the world at large and by the prospect, however remote, that the exhibition will be boycotted, which would mean a loss of millions to the country.

There is little doubt that the trial of the Derouledists next Monday, at which it is asserted that sensational evidence will be developed, and the reopening of the chamber of deputies will be signals for fresh troubles. At present both parties are taking breath, but the latent animosities are undiminished.

It is estimated that the last year's proceedings have cost the Dreyfus party at least 1,500,000 francs. They do not intend to let matters rest, and rumors are revived of the impending arrest of Gen. Mercier.

May Not Participate.

Washington, Sept. 12.-It is believed that when congress assembles there will be considerable agitation of a proposition for this government to abandon its participation in the Paris exposition. It is known that expressions hostile to the exposition quoted from Senator Stewart are very widely sympathized in, and it is thought that if the conviction of Dreyfus is permitted to stand there will be very little friendly feeling for France among members of either the house or senate.

Such a move, however, would be a grave one. It is pointed out that to withdraw from participation in the exposition would be regarded as an officialinsult to France. No further legislation on the part of congress is needed to carry out the plans of this country for the exposition. About $1,200,000 has been appropriated for the expenses of the commission and the government exhibit; the commission has been appointed and the space desired for exhibits from this country has been se-

To Boycott Exposition.

Berlin, Sept. 12 .- It is rumored that a committee composed of leading manufacturers here is being formed for the purpose of preventing German participation in the Paris exposition of 1900.

The private agitation against the exposition is beginning to find vigorous expression. The Vossische Zeitung says that a number of the largest German firms have pledged themselves to withdraw. The Berliner Tageblatt says the Berlin council at its next session wiff consider a special motion to withdraw the Berlin municipal exhibit.

On the other hand, it is learned on the highest authority that the German government considers the Dreyfus case now, under all the conditions, done with and does not intend to relinquish official representation at the exposition. The official responsible for this assurance adds that it should be borne in mind that, despite the Dreyfus case, the official relations between the two governments had steadily improved during recent years.

In Italy. Rome, Sept. 12.-Col. Panizzardi, referring to the verdict at Rennes, said: 'I felt horror, but not surprise." Spontaneous demonstrations in favor of Dreyfus have occurred in many parts of Italy. In Florence a crowd shouting "Down with the Jesuits!" threatened the French consulate. The police interfered and a fight ensued in which many persons were hurt. Twenty arrests were made.

Polly in Paradise.

Their parrot had died, and young Master Tommy, with his little sister Jennie, had just concluded the funeral services over the grave of their feathered pet. "I s'pose Polly is in Heaven now," remarked Jennie, tearfully. "Yes," returned Master Tommy; "I s'pose he is." "He—he's got wings, but he wouldn't be an angel up there, would he?" inquired the little maid anxious short. he?" inquired the little maid, anxious about his present status. "Oh!" cried Tommy; "he wouldn't be an angel; only people is that." "Then what do you s'pose he is that." "Then what do you s'pose he is now?" persisted his sister. Tommy thought for a moment. Then the light of inspiration dawned on his beaming countenance. "I guess Polly is a bird of paradise now," he announced joyfully.—Troy Times.

DARLING.

So oft, my friend, you speak of her. It bids my inner being stir.

And who is darling, this I pray?—

A sunny child, a bud of May,

Whose laugh and shout and cherub face, At every time, in every place Are of your heart its sweet employ-Is this your darling, this your joy?

Ah no! I see it is in truth A maiden in the growth of youth, As lovely as a morn in June, There scarce could be a sweeter boon: Expectancy upon her face. And joy and hope add dimpled grace; The dewdrop clearness in her eye, As blue and soft as yonder sky.

My darling is not thus, ah no! Her eye it hath no lustrous glow, Her brow bears marks of age and care, Like symbols, too, her cheek doth wear Her hands are trembling, pallid, weak, Her steps her feeblaness doth speak, Her voice has quavers in its tone, The verge of life by her is won.

And yet to me more passing fair Than sunny child or maiden are That face where age has set its sign, Has patient smile almost divine, And those dim eyes have holy light, As if they saw beyond our sight, The hands so trembling, pale and weak Of long and faithful service speak.

These marks of beauty, friend, are such, Not age nor sense, but heart that touch; They tell me in a little while I'll miss the patient face and smile. I touch her lips, I grasp her hand, With reverent awe before her stand, And whisper soft, aye, tenderly, My mother darling is to me. -Christian Work.

CHAPTER XVI. FRIEND OR FOE.

I used to sup alone in my rooms, occasionally asking St. Armande to join me; and after supper we diced together for an hour or so, for very small points. He was an infant at the game, and I taught him a good deal, so much so that after a little practice, for he was very quick with his wrist he mastered my favorite throw, and one evening after returning from the vatican he knocked me up in my rooms, and flung on the table a bag of gold pieces.

'Three hundred of them, cavaliere!" he said; "I won them from Fabrizio Colonna, who is looking green with rage. If your purse is running short, they are at your service. Ha! I see a flask of Orvieto-may and he poured himself out a goblet, at which he began to sip, in apparent defiance of his vow. "The devil!" I exclaimed, "but you are flying at high stakes, chevalier. Your Picard estates must be broad. Thanks all the same for your offer, but my purse is as full as I want it at present.'

"I meant no offense, cavaliere; but what is the use of money unless one can share it with a friend?" "There was no offense taken, St. Armande," I replied; "and if you will take none, I would like to have my say at you." He looped one finger in his golden mustache, and showed his even teeth in his smile, as he said:

"Speak on." "Then, chevalier, it seems to me a thousand pities that a young man like you would waste your time here, as you appear to be doing. I understood you to say you had never seen a sword drawn in earnest as yet-and your mustache is grown! Take my advice. Play no more for gold pieces with Colonna or anyone else. Mount your horse, and join Tremouille at once."

"Ah! that is good," he said; "and why does the grave and reverend Cavaliere Donati waste his time here, hanging at the heels of a churchman, and moping o' nights like an owl on a ruined wall, instead of stirring the times himself with the point of his

With any other I would have been annoyed; with the youth before me I was slightly amused, and at the same time a trifle surprised. Hitherto he had appeared so shy and reserved, and now, of a sudden, he had thrown this off, and had put on an air which I had not noticed before, but which became him vastly. I set it down to the fact that perhaps he was slightly warmed with wine, having apparently absolved himself from his vow; although of course I did not appear to notice this last, as he was in a manner my guest. therefore made reply:

"My reasons for my action, chevalier, are good, and when the time comes I promise you I shall not be found sleeping."

The gentle reproof in my words seemed to bring him back to his old self, for by the light of the candles I observed him flush scarlet, and that curious look which recalled a strange resemblance to some one I knew, but could not remember, came over his features. I began to relent as I saw his confusion, almost as soon as I had spoken; and added, "I may say that the time is not far distant-that it is a matter of days only." "Take me with you."

He asked this almost in a tone of entreaty, keeping his eyes away from me, however, and nervously twisting at his mustache.

"And your secretary, as you call him, the abbe?"

"Oh, he will come, too, and we could confess to him." I hesitated for a second, and then made answer: "Very well. Only you must be prepared to start at a moment's notice, and there will probably be hard riding and hard fighting, and there is yet another thing."

"What is that?" "You must come as a simple volunteer, and must make no inquiry as to what the business is on which I am engaged. I risk my life for my own purposes; if you wish to do likewise you are welcome to join me, on the condition I have stated."

"I accept with pleasure." "Then that is settled, and I have a new comrade.'

'Hurrah!" and he raised his glass to his After that he retired, it being late. I saw him across the courtyard as far as his apartments, and then, returning to my rooms, unconsciously took the chair St. Armande had vacated. The goblet of wine he had filled was before me, and I idly lifted it in my hand. It was barely touched. In fact he could but have tasted a few drops only.

Like lightning-a suspicion of treachery came on me. The man had been pretending to drink. With what object? I could not make out. Was the offer of the money a blind? Perhaps so, and if then? I had been a fool to agree to his joining me, with that sour-looking abbe of his. Yes, I had been a fool, but it was lucky I discovered my own folly in time. I should keep my eyes on this silken diplomat, and if necessary pick a quarrel with him, and run him through. Somehow I did not like the idea of this, however; but determined to get rid of him in one way or the other. I would allow nothing to stand between me and the road back to honor. So musing, I sat for a half-hour or so, and was startled by Jacopo's sudden entry, so lost was I in thought. He came and stood, bolt upright, next to my chair, without saying a word. I knew from this that he had some request to make, some favor to ask, as otherwise he is tongue at once

"What is it, Jacopo?" He shifted uneasily from one foot to the other, and then replied:

"Your excellency, I want leave." "Leave! What for? You are not going to be married, are you?"

"Heaven and the saints forbid, excellency. No-no-it is not that, it is only leave for the day I want, and also for our

"And wasting those crowns you got the other day, Well, that is your affair, not mine. Yes, you can have the leave.'

"A hundred thanks, excellency." "Mind you, there must be no brawling, no trouble.'

'Excellency.' "Well, good night, and remember what say. Here, you may remove this winecup as you go.

"Good night, signore," and Jacopo, lifting the goblet, went out. The night being fairly warm, I kept my door open, and as he passed into the portico I saw him drain the contents of the goblet with a gulp, and heard him draw his lips together with a smack of approval, and march off to his quarters, chuckling at something or other.

The following afternoon I rode out with Bayard and half a dozen others. It was a hawking party, and there was a long gallop to our point of operation, which was to begin a little way beyond Ponte Molle. In a short time we started a noble heron, and, Bayard flinging his peregrine into the air, we rode after the birds. It was a glorious ride, and Castor and Pollux far outstripped the others, so much so that when we drew rein beside the stricken heron, and Bayard slipped the hood onto his hawk, our companions were not in sight. This, however, troubled us little, and turning rein we made backwards. On our way back, I seized the opportunity to mention to Bayard that St. Armande had volunteered to aid me in my task, and that I had accepted his offer.

"It will do him good," he said; "he seems a noble youth, who has been tied too long to apronstrings."

"Do you think so?" I said; "he strikes me as being effeminate to a degree—and yet I cannot help liking him."

"He has a wonderful pure mind," said Dayard; "the boy, for he is no less, is as innocent as a child.

"The vatican will not improve him then, especially if he plays for gold crowns with

"Plays for gold crowns!" exclaimed Bayard; "you are surely mistaken, cavaliere. "Did he not do so last night, my lord? 1 understood he won three hundred off Fab-

"Impossible," said Bayard, "I was at the vatican last night, and the party in which Colonna was playing consisted of Strigonia, Mgr. Florido, our lord the pope, and Colonna himself-no more. St. Armande was standing hard at hand for some little time, but never took a wager. In fact, he passed most of the evening with Giulia Bella, thrumming on a lute, much to the annoy-ance of his holiness. I should say it would be well for him to quit Rome."

"Then I am wrong," I said; "yes, I fancy it would be well for him to quit Rome."

tiring manners and apparent want of knowledge of the world, was nothing more nor less than an accomplished actor. Then again he was a Frenchman, and how came he, obviously fresh from France to become an agent of the Medici plotters, for so I put him down to be? There were the let-ters from Mme. de la Tremouille, his incroductions were unimpeachable, the cardinal believed in him-the whole thing was contradictory. Above all, there was my strong personal liking for St. Armande. In his presence I never felt that secret warning which all men feel when they are with an enemy. I have never known it fail with tiously peeped in. He withdrew his head me, and with St. Armande there was no such warning, no such silent signal which goes straight from soul to soul. On the contrary, I felt he was almost more than friendly towards me, and I felt, in my turn towards him, despite our short acquaintance, very nearly the same protective feeling that | there had been trouble, repeated my order one has towards a defenseless child. Asy may be imagined, I was in no very confortable frame of mind about this, and rolle back silently, revolving the point. When we reached the palace, almost the first person I met was St. Armande, and as I dismounted he came up to me with a cordial greeting, and asked:

Well, cavaliere, good sport, I trust?" "Very." I replied, shortly, and [then looked him straight in the face as I added: "Do you intend to give the Colonna his revenge to-night?"

Something in my tone caught him, he met my eyes for a moment, then dropped his gaze, and looked towards the ground. We stood thus before each other for a little time before he replied, and his voice was almost inaudible.

"Perhaps-I am not sure," he added, with an effort.

I was standing, holding Castor's reins: but as he spoke I handed the horse over to a groom, and, linking my arm in St. Armande's, said, loudly, and with a tone of affected gayety:

"You missed a great ride, chevalier-come take a turn with me in the garden." He yielded passively, and in a few steps would not have hesitated to make play with | we had crossed the courtyard and were in secluded portion of the palace gardens that was called the Lemon walk. This I may add was subsequently improved out of existence by the architect, in the course of completion of the palace and grounds. When we reached this point, I unslipped my arm, and, turning round, faced St. Armande, having resolved to end my suspi-

"See here, chevalier," I said, "I am playing for heavy stakes, I am walking on dangerous ground, and must know where I put my feet, will you answer a plain question? Are you friend or foe?"

He looked round in a helpless sort of way, his color coming and going, but said noth-Was it possible the man was a cow-

"If you do not reply," I said, "I will take the risk, and treat you as an enemy, do you hear? You lied to me when you said last night you had played at the vatican with Colonna-now draw." I pulled out my weapon, and stood before him, expecting every instant to see his rapier in his hands; but he stood absolutely still, his head hanging down. "Man," I said, "have you not heard? Am to think you a coward as well as a liar?"

"How dare you say that!" he burst out. "You-you of all men-Oh! what am I saying? Yes, I did not play with Colonna; but I thought you were hard pressed for money, and-and invented the fiction, thinking that perhaps-

"That perhaps I would accept your winnings over the gambling table, rather than the offer of a friend. You do me much bonor, chevalier."

"You wrong me, Savelli-nay, start not. I know your name and story, and, before heaven, I say I am your friend." "You know me!"

"Yes, I am working for you; come, put by your sword. Look at me! Do I look ike an enemy?"

He had recovered himself, and met my gaze fearlessly. Where could I have seen that face before? I drew my hand over my forehead as if to sweep the cobwebs from my memory, but with no avail.

"Well," he went on, with a smile, "do I look like an enemy? If I do, your sword is ready. Strike now, it will be quick rid-

I put back my sword with a snap. "I do not understand, but I accept your explanation." He held out his hand frankly.

"That is right, and you will still let me be your comrade?" I took his grasp.

Yes, if you wish it." We walked back together in silence, and on reaching the courtyard St. Armande

"I am afraid I have fallen much in your esteem.'

"My esteem, chevalier, is at present of no value to man or woman. "Do you think so?" he said, and then, rapidly: "Adieu for the present; remember, I hold you to your word that you think me a friend.' I made no answer, and he ran lightly up the steps of the principal entrance. I supped that evening for a change with the gentlemen of the suite; but St. Armande was not there, and there were a few free remarks made concerning the man-

"He never struck me as a man to run after the ladies." I said. "No," replied the abbe, "but it is the other way. You would stand no chance against him, cavalier, for all your long mustache -a thousand thanks," and the genial Le Clerc seized the flagon of Orvieto 1 passed to him, and filled his goblet.

After this the conversation changed, and I shortly retired to my apartments and, dismissing my lackey, sat down to read a book on falconry that the cardinal had lent me. I had not been occupied thus for an hour when the door opened, and Jacopo canon catching my eye, and I heard him shuffling outside. "Come in."

'Excellency," and the sound of further shuffling, but no Jacopo. I lost patience at this, and fearing at the same time that to come in sharply. This had the desired effect; but as soon as my henchman appeared in view I made certain there had been a brawl. He was very red in the face, and from under the helmet he wore I could see a white bandage. "What the devil does this mean, Jacopo?"

asked, sternly. "I have come to report, excellency."

"You hardly appear in a fit state to do "Perfectly nt, excellency," and Jacopo drew himself up to attention and saluted.

"Is the matter of importance? For, if not, you had better come to-morrow." "Yes, your excellency-matter of importance. By your worship's leave, as you are aware, I gave a dinner to-day, and we

"The inn, where we rested the day of our arrival in Rome, your worship. What with one thing and another, the landlord footed up his bill to four crowns. And I said to my friends: 'What! are honest soldiers to pay like this?' Whereat there was trouble, excellency; but we came off best."

I rose without a word, and seizing Jacopo by the neck, ejected him from the room, with, I am sorry to say, very considerable violence. Cursing myself for my folly in having been so generous, I banged the door after him, and returned to my book. I could not, however, read, for my mind was full of the consequences that might arise from this mad freak of my followers, and I determined to seek out the cardinal the next day, and obtain his permission to move out of Rome to some quicter spot, and there await his instructions. Amidst it all, however, I could not help being pleased at the thought that retributive justice had overtaken the scoundrel tavern-keeper, the memory of whose bed made me shudder. I had no doubt that Jacopo was speaking the truth, and that, even as he spoke, the flames were sputtering merrily above that

Settling the Boy's Career.

An old Dutchman had a beautifui boy, of whom he was very proud, and he decided to find out the bent of his mind. He adopted a very novel method by which to test him. He slipped into the little fellow's room one morning and placed on his table a Bible, a bottle of whisky and a silver dollar.

"Now," said he, "ven dot boy comes in, ef he dakes dot dollar, he's goin' to be a beesniz man; ef he dakes dot Bible, he'll be a breacher; ef he dakes dot whisky, he's no goot-he's goin' to be a drunkart," and he hid behind the door to see which his son would choose.

In came the boy, whistling. He ran up to the table and picked up the dollar and put it in his pocket; he picked up the Bible and put it under his arm. then he snatched up the bottle of whisky and took two or three drinks, and went out smacking his lips. The old Dutchman poked his head out from behind the door and exclaimed:

NOT BUYING ARMS.

Joubert Says Transvanl Government Is Making No Purchases-Only Besire Is for Peace.

Pretoria, Sept. 12.—Commander General Joubert denies that the war department is ordering heavy ordnance and rifles. He declares that he is anxious for the preservation of peace.

The tension remains high, pending the receipt of Mr. Chamberlain's dispatch. It is asserted on excellent authority that the Transvaal government, with a view of keeping the mining industry going, has decided to protect it in every possible way. As a first step the government has notified the rand companies that their men will receive protection as long as they remain peaceful, and should war unfortunately occur the men will be given a reasonable time to leave the country if they desire.

Pretoria, Sept. 12.—Excitement prevails here pending the decision of the cabinet. Secretary of State Reitz has left this city for Johannesburg and Cape Town. The likelihood of war is much discussed. The coming of British troops is not regarded as meaning certain war, but merely as making up for the paucity of troops in South Africa, much commented upon during the past month.

London, Sept. 12.—The Times, in an evidently inspired article, intimates that Great Britain will make fresh demands on the Transvaal republic, as follows:

1. The Boer government will be expected to pay expense of recent negotiations, including dispatch of troops to the cape.

2. Great Britain's suzerainty must be acknowledged in plainer terms.

3. The Transvaal must give assurances that no fresh claims for independence shall be made in the future.

Cape Town, Sept. 12. - Four trains containing refugees from Johannesburg have arrived here. Four hundred refugees have also arrived at Durban.

During the past week the relief committee at Johannesburg assisted 2,000 cases of distress reported throughout the Transvaal.

London, Sept. 12.—The activity in the war and admiralty offices continues, though there is nothing new regarding the Transvaal situation.

It is said that orders have been sent to America for light iron girders and bridging sections for probable use in South Africa. Transports are moving to the docks, preparatory to embarking troops.

TO TALK OF TRUSTS. All Sides of the Important Question Will Be Discussed at the Conference in Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 12.-Trusts and combinations will be on trial from ten a. m. Wednesday until next Saturday evening in Central Music hall. It is expeeted that more than 200 political economists, statesmen, labor leaders, lawyers and successful business men will conduct the suit. Papers covering both sides and all features of the great question will be read, discussed and commented upon. It is now admitted by politicians throughout the country that the trust problem faces both parties, and is a political issue for the campaign of 1900. But the promoters of this conference, which has been conceived and planned out by the Civic federation of Chicago, say they have been careful to eliminate all semblance of political schemes from it. They declare that the leaders of thought who have been invited to participate will strip the trust problem of everything sentimental and theoretical and will consider it purely as an economical

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.-Two members of the fire department and a child of four years were killed by gases in a vault Monday afternoon. # THE OLD HARTFORD.

Admiral Farragut's Flagship Again Placed in Commission.

De Used as a Training Ship for the New Navy - She Looks Old-Fashioned, But Still Is a Powerful Craft.

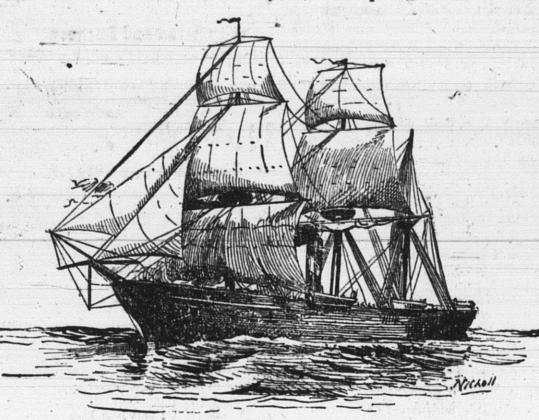

[Special Washington Letter.] The men and women of the present generation do not know the history of the battleship Hartford, the fa mous old wooded vessel which was used as a flagship by Commodore Farragut, the fighting ship of the past generation upon whose decks Farragut won the renown which made him an admiral, and placed his name in the highest niche of fame in naval

There is very little left of the Hartfort, except her keel. She has been rebuilt, but not remodeled; and, like the famous Constitution, looks exactly as she did in the days of her greatest fame. The theory and impulse which prompts men to revere historic things, prompted the old naval officers to seek the renewal of the Constitution and the Hartford, and both of them are sailing on their old keels, but all of their superstructures are new, although precisely proportioned upon the original plans. The congress appropriated the money | heroes, and deserves greater celebrity for their reconstruction, and the old battleships will be kept in repair forever, as visible monuments of the glories of the dauntless American navy. The Constitution is already in Atlantic in the battle off Santiago on July 3, old battleships, where they will learn their history, and with it the history of the glories and achievements of the navy. After that, with other young men to take their places, they may be sent on board of the modern cruisers and battleships.

They must learn how to go aloft, to run about the rigging, and be at home with sure footing, in calm and storm. They must learn all about the fore, main and mizzen masts, their spars, garnets and shrouds. They must learn to furl, unfurl and clew garnets, just as the American sailors did under John Paul Jones, Ingraham, Farragut, Foote and Porter. Upon the decks of these historic old terrors of the seas the sailors of the rising generation must learn all that is to be known of our navy; and, practically, they will thus be taught to feel that they have grown up with the navy from its incipiency. They will love their calling better, and love their country better for the experience.

With this idea in view, Lieut. Alexander Sharp, Jr., has been on a tour of the western and far western states, selecting the 300 recruits who are to man the Hartford. He has also been designated to be executive officer of the ship, when she is in commission, again carrying the flag to foreign ports on her way back to the waters in which she won fame and everlasting glory. It is well indeed that the old battleship is to have such a man for executive officer. He is one of our naval than has been given to him. His name has been overshadowed by the names of Schley, Evans, Philip, Clarke and others of higher rank who participated waters, and the Hartford soon will be. 1898, when Spanish Admiral Cervera's

THE OLD CRUISER HARTFORD, ADMIRAL FARRAGUTS FLAGSHIP.

Information is received at the navy | fleet was destroyed. But he was an across the Atlantic ocean. If the Hartford goes across the Pacific, she will the Asiatic ports which have been recently visited by Dewey. This itinerary will be particularly sentimental, the journey of the Hartford in Dewey's wake, because it was upon her old deck, and in the fleets of which she was the flagship, and under the command of Farragut, that George Dewey learned his first lessons of actual warfare.

When the Hartford reaches Atlantic ports she will, in her new sphere occupy the unique position of being the first one of Uncle Sam's fighting craft to be used exclusively for the training of green landsmen into the ways of typical man-o-wars-man. The mayor of Hartford has requested that the staunch may well be proud of the records they and sturdy old ship be sent to that city, and the secretary of the navy has issued the appropriate orders, so that, as soon as she arrives on our Atlantic coast, she will sail to Hartford, where, for the city of Hartford, the mayor will present a silver service as magnificent as any that has yet been given to our modern cruisers and battleships.

After that the Hartford will cruise about the principal coast cities, visiting those places where, almost 35 years ago, the Hartford cruised with Admiral Farragut on board, the hero of the nation; just as the Olympia has just been cruising about bearing proudly the hero of Manila. But not only the people of the coast cities are to be interested in the rejuvenation of the famous Hartford, but the people of the middle west and far west are being given an opportunity to infuse their vigorous blood into the enlisted branch of the navy, and 300 ablebodied men of the sections named are recruited for terms of four years, and they are to serve first on the Hartford, studying practical seamanship. Similar crews are to be enlisted and serve on the old Constitution. It is the theory of the older naval officers that nlisted men of the new navy ought to know how to sail any kind of a slip; whereas it has recently been customary to enlist men and set them instantly at work on the steelclad cruisers and batnice girl all right—she was a model in Sharp kept Dewey, and come through the Suez her well to the fore all the time, and canal, and the Mediterranean sea, and she sent death-dealing missiles through the Spanish torpedo boat destroyers. The navy department did well in setouch at Hawaii, the Philippines and lecting such a man for the special reeruiting service for the Hartford; and also in designating him to be the executive officer, or "first luff," as the sailors call that officer.

Commander Hawley, who also participated in the great naval engagement, has been designated to command the Hartford, and he has diligently attended to the work of supervising enlistments. He says: "The desirability of having western men for jackies was demonstrated during our late war with Spain. We had a number of recruits from the west, particularly from Illinois, who performed splendid service during those trying months, and they made. Although they lacked the original training of sailor men, they soon overcame this handicap by their intelligence and zeal, and they rapidly became familiar with their duties in the strictest sense. Besides, they were hardy and endured climatic conditions which would have prostrated less hardy

So the old Hartford has not outlived her usefulness. In her old age she will furnish the sinews of strength for the navy, and will give to all of our fleets men of intelligence and skill, who will be the peers of all modern artillerists, and probably the superiors of those in other navies; men who have been given ample opportunities to prove what they can do to targets a thousand or more rards' distant.

If Admiral Farragut is to-day where he can view the American navy, and if there be tears of joy in the heaven of the heroes, his eyes must be moist with pride in his old flagship, the Hartford; the ship once so dear to him, the ship which never knew defeat.

Court-Martial Finds Him Guilty of Treason.

on-The Condemned Man Thinks He Will Be Pardoned, However -Indignation at the Result.

Rennes, Sept. 11. - Dreyfus ha been found guilty and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

The court stood 5 to 2 for the condemnation of the prisoner, but found extenuating circumstances existed.

The crowd outside the court soon greeted the verdict with cheers for the

Dreyfus' Last Protest.

At the conclusion of speeches by M Demange and Maj. Carriere, Col. Jouaust, president of the court, asked Dreyfus if he had anything to add in his behalf. The prisoner rose and in a voice choked with emotion declared he had only one thing to say, but of that he was perfectly assured. He said: "I affirm before my country and before the army that I am innocent. My sole aim has been to save the honor of my name, the name borne by my children. I have suffered five years of the most awful torture. But to-day, at last, I feel assured that am about to attain my desire, through your loyalty and justice.'

Col. Jouaust-Have you finished, Drey-Dreyfus-Yes, Mr. President.

The court then retired to deliberate and the prisoner left the hall, never to return, as, in accordance with the law, the verdict was rendered in his ab-

Verdict Rendered.

The ringing of a bell announced the entry of the judges, an officer ordered "Carry arms," and "Present arms," the rattle of rifles followed, and then Col. Jouanst marched in, saluted, and laid his kepi on the table. The other judges did likewise, the gendarmes shouted "Silence," and the stillness of death fell on the audience who were waiting heart in mouth for the announcement of Dreyfus' fate.

Col. Jouaust then began reading the judgment, which opened with the question referred to the judges by the court of cassation: "Was Dreyfus guilty of entering into machinations to send secret documents to a foreign power?" He then gave the answer that the court, by a majority of five to two, found Dreyfus guilty.

The gendarmes then closed around the audience and pressed them outside. Not a cry or a word was raised by any-

Everything passed off with perfect

As the people emerged the gendarmes kept them moving away from the court. The small crowd of people outside cheered for the army, but the gendarmes did not interfere and there was not the slightest disorder.

Dreyfus Appears Unmoved.

The judgment was read to Dreyfus in an adjoining little room by the clerk of the court, M. Coupois. Dreyfus listened impassively, did not give the slightest sign of emotion, did not utter a word, and marched back to prison like an automaton.

It is understood Dreyfus will be sent to Fort Corte, in the island of Corsica. A large crowd, which the police kept moving, waited around the square in which the telegraph office and the principal cafes are situated. When the people learned the court had been out an hour, it was argued that this meant a disagreement in favor of Dreyfus. The first indication to these watchers that a result had been reached was when a soldier on a bicycle came tearing along as fast as he could from the Lycee towards the artillery barracks.

Dreyfus Holds Up Well.

Rennes, Sept. 11.—Dreyfus passed a quiet night and rose when his orderly brought him water at five o'clock Sunday morning, just as he did during the trial, when it was necessary. Mme. Dreyfus and Mathieu Dreyfus, his brother, visited him during the course of the afternoon, his brother subsequently leaving for Paris. The application to the court of revision was taken to him at noon by Maitre Labori's assistant and he signed it. He has spoken but little, though he has seemed in better spirits than might have been anticipated. The meeting with his wife was naturally very affecting, but both held up as well as possible.

Expects to Be Released.

He is convinced that the ten years' imprisonment to which he is sentenced will be wiped out by the five years of solitary seclusion he has undergone on Devil's Island, and he expects to be released by October 15, which will be five years from the date of his former condemnation. He is so sanguine that he has made an extraordinary request of his wife for a novel to read in the meantime, explaining that his mind is so shaken and weighed down by recent events that he needs to divert his thoughts and try to get all the recollecwill afford the desired mental repose and keep him from breoding.

OTIS' PLANS FORMED.

His Army to Be Divided Into Two Commands to Prosecute the War Against Filipinos.

New York, Sept. 12. - A special to the Herald from Washington says: Considerable progress has been made by Maj. Gen. Otis upon the plan of campaign he will inaugurate immediately upon the beginning of the dry season. To prevent similar preparations being made by the insurgents and perhaps as a forerunner to the comprehensive operations to occur when the conditions permit, an offensive movement by the commands of Maj. Gens. MacArthurand Lawton will begin at once. It had been expected that this movement would have begun last week, but evidently either the preparations have not been completed or the elements have prevented, for up to this time, so far as the department has been advised, nothing has been done. The officials are in hourly expectation, however, of advices showing that the columns under command of the officers named have begun a new campaign against Aguinaldo's troops.

Gen. Otis proposes to divide the army of 64,649 combatants and the mountain batteries and dynamite guns which he will have in December into two divisions, commanded by MacArthur and Lawton. One of these will operate to the north of Manila and the other to the west and south. Each division will operate in two military provinces to be defined by Gen. Otis, but there will be effective and prompt cooperation when it is desirable.

It is expected that each commander will have six brigades under his command, the remainder of the troops being employed to garrison Manila and other seaport towns through which the insurgents are receiving supplies. Lawton will be required to make quick movements and it is proposed to place the cavalry brigade under his command.

The navy and marine corps will also be doing effective work. It is understood to be the intention of the administration to enforce a strict blockade of the Philippine ports. This action has been considered upon the recommendation of Rear Admiral Watson, who has called attention to the amount of supplies which the insurgents have been receiving. The blockade which will be enforced will be municipal in character. so as to prevent any foreign nation seizing upon the blockade, if it were formally declared, as a pretext for the recognition of the Filipinos as bel-

It is apparent from the plan of campaign prepared by Gen. Otis that his duty will be more of a supervisory and supplying character than anything else, He will remain in Manila sending supplies and troops to the front and keeping the two divisions in the best possible condition, but the military operations themselves will be directed by the division commanders. Of course Gen. Otis will be charged with the responsibility, but it is evident that the administration is quite satisfied to trust the conduct of the field operations to Gens. MacArthur and Lawton.

New York, Sept. 12.—The World publishes a dispatch from Gibraltar giving an interview with Admiral Dewey just before the Olympia sailed for New York. The World's correspondent asked the admiral for a statement of

"Did you read what Mr. Schurman, one of the commissioners, had to say upon his return from the Philippines?" As he is quoted in the newspapers he definitely explains my position. I quite agree with what Mr. Schurman says. Indeed, I attach great importance to his opinions. He is an able and high-minded man, whose intelligence and conscientious devotion to the task assigned him won my admiration. We were invariably in ac-

Admiral Dewey has never expressed regret that he asked to be made one of the Philippine commissioners. On the other hand he has said that he is glad that he was a member of the commission and his greatest desire now is to put its report in the hands of the president as soon as possible.

"You may add this," the admiral said, with great earnestness. "I have not changed my opinion which I stated in the early days at Manila, then speaking of knowledge of both peoples, that I consider the Filipinos more capable of self-government than the Cubans.

"I took the keenest interest in those Filpinos who were employed at the arsenal in Cavite, and often I was surprised by their intelligence. With fair and properly irected opportunities there are great possibilities in the Filipinos."

Washington, Sept. 12.-Gen. Otis informed the war department that two companies of the Nineteenth infantry left Sunday night for Iloilo, to be followed Monday by headquarters and the balance of the two battalions to relieve the Tennessee regiment at Iloilo and Cebu. The following also was received from Gen. Otis:

"Following minor affairs reported: Capt. Butler, Third infantry, with portion Baliuag troops, drove insurgents at San Rafel, capturing seven with arms. Insurgent forces made demonstration against Santarita on Porac road; loss, two officers; six privates with arms captured by Col. Bell; no casualties among our troops.

Condition of Crops. The weekly crop bulletin for Michi.

The rainfall generally has been insurthe principal agricultural counties. Corn cutting has been quite general and the yield will be poor. Buckwheat has been blasted in many localities and late potatoes are badly in need of rain. Pastures offer scant fodder for stock, apples are falling and rotting under the trees. Sugar beets may still turn out fairly well. In the upper peninsula the crop conditions are very promising. Pasturage is good and the hay yield has been heavy. Oats and wheat harvests are in progress and yields are

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

Three men were killed and three fatally injured by the explosion of the boiler in Chapman & Sargent's bowl and tray factory in Traverse City. Portions of the machinery were blown half a mile, and the bodies of the victims were mangled beyond recognition. The killed are: Charles Handy, engineer; Perry Meltfont, sawyer, and Leo Estabrook, turner; injured, Charles H. Taylor, Oliver Sanders, Howard Ketcham, Robert Peterson, Al Le Count and George Rice. Loss on factory, $5,000.

Mining with Machinery.

Mining coal with machinery has been started in Bay county, and its promoter feels confident that hereafter his mine will not be troubled with strikes, which have kept all of the mines in that vicinity idle about half of the past year, The new machine was tested at the Michigan mine and worked successfully for several hours. Ten of these machines are to be introduced, and, while no men will be discharged, a greater quantity of coal will be taken out.

Brotherly Love.

The state military board held a meeting in Lansing and turned over to ex-Auditor General George W. Stone the flag of the Petersburg (Va.) Grays, in accordance with a joint resolution of the legislature authorizing the return of the colors to the regiment. Gen. Stone was a member of the First Michigan sharpshooters, which captured the colors during the civil war, and with several others was detailed by Gov. Pingree to return the flag.

A Fatal Quarrel.

John Melcher and William Graves fought over the action of Melcher in closing up a piece of road in Coleman which had been used as a highway. Graves was getting the better of his adversary, when Melcher drew a revolver and fired seven shots at Graves, but only wounded him in the knee. Graves' wife started to her husband's reseue, carrying a rifle, and Graves took it and shot and killed a bystander and mortally wounded Melcher.

State Lands.

The annual report of the state land commissioner says: During the last year, the end of the fiscal eriod being June 30, the traffic in state ands has been the largest in the history of the state. The number of acres sold was 39,327.03, the amount received being $171,-004. The total number of acres of land held for sale and homestead entry at the close the year was 642,319.53. The total receipts of the land office were $226,565. No tax homestead lands were deeded by the auditor general to the state during the year, but there were taken as homesteads

WEEDS GOOD TO EAT.

Europe Many of Them Are Considered Delicacies and Used as Rare Flavorings.

Go out on any farm and see the farmthreaten to choke his crop. You may he chooses. hear him say things that wouldn't sound nice about the weeds.

eaten by people who know what's good | take another; also for other reasons, to eat. Take wild cherry, the plague of the farmer. It makes one of the finest salads served, piquant, tender and to take as many wives as they like, wholesome. Charlock, or wild mustard, is another bane of the farmer. He doesn't know that as a pot herb it can give a soup a delightful flavor. The dockweeds-how annoying the whole family are! Yet the broad leaf variety and the curly leaf are used all over Europe as table vegetables.

There's pokeweeds, commonest of them all. In France it is cultivated. It takes its place with sage, thyme, parsley and bay leaves as a flavoring for Everybody in America hates a nettle and can't see what use it is. In Scotland, Poland and Germany tender young nettle leaves are used as greens. The Germans boil it with other vegetables to give them a piquant flavor. Purslane is another weed that can be treated the same way.

Most people think milkweed poisonous. It is a medicinal vegetable with a delightful flavor all its own. The young leaves, when they are in just the right condition, are a cross between spinach and asparagus, and in a salad are de-

Sorrel, fetticus and chevril are looked on as field pests by ninety-nine out of every hundred farmers. The hundredth one picks the choicest leaves from these weeds and sends them to market, where they find a ready sale for salads to be eaten with game and for flavoring herbs-for herbs they are and not weeds .- N. ## LININGS FOR CASKETS.

Directions by Which the Ingenious Home Artist Can Make Her Own Safety Vault.

Here is an ingenious device by which any home artist can convert her jewel casket into a veritable safety vault. And by this treatment the casket can be impressed into service as both a receptacle for valuables and a pin cush-the smallest, then the size can be more evenly regulated. The jewels are laid between the first and second linings and the third is covered with silk to serve as a cushion cover. The advisability of placing valuables between the first and second linings can readily be recognized, as the existence of a second compartment would never be suspected after raising the cushion lining.

Moths Routed by Perfume. It has become known to the wise ones that the destructive moth despises the pleasant fragrance of perfumes. For this reason the pungent and disagreeable remedy is not always necessary to rid wardrobes and closets of the ruinous insect. The mixture which is said to work this magical result is prepared as follows: Take one ounce each of cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, caraway seed, mace and tonka beans, pound to powder and mix them with six ounces of orris root, which must also be in powder. These ingredients may be obtained ready crushed at a druggist's.

Washing Knuckles.

There is a new appliance which seems likely to lighten the labor of laundresses. Half a dozen rubber balls about an inch in diameter are suspended beneath a handle so that they can revolve independently of each other. # WOMEN IN THE ORIENT.

Among the Hindoos They Have No. Interest in Heaven and Very Little in Earthly Things.

The Mohammedan peasant woman is pared all the jealousy and misery of sharing her title of wife with others, since her husband cannot afford to indulge in polygamy, though a Mohammedan of the better class may indulgs in as many as four wives at a time, but it is not supposed to exceed that number. However, he can have just ar many wives in his lifetime as he pleases, since he may resort to divorce on the er hoeing away at the weeds that smallest pretext, and as frequently as Women of all ranks make a great display of jewelry, the rich wearing gold and precious stones, and the poor either silver or some manufactured material of little value. Numberless rings adorn the ears, nose, fingers and toes. A necklet, a score of bracelets and two or three anklets encircle the neck, arms and ankles respectively. Sundry ornaments are also placed in the hair. The bracelets most commonly worn are made of glass ornamented with colored shellac. The necklet is often composed of the current coin, but the size increases and diminishes with the fluctuations of the income.

Having no individuality apart from her husband, a woman is practically an irresponsible creature, except that should she have the ill grace to outlive him she is blamed as the cause of his death, but then the circumstances are quite beyond her control, since it is the consequence of some crime of which she is guilty in a former existence, and therefore must be accepted as her fate in her present life.

She takes no part in public worship, and they say that serving a husband is the wife's religion, for that to worship the husband is to worship the gods. She only takes part in such ceremonic as relate to her position as wife an mother.

In recognition of the superiority the man an Indian woman always si on a lower seat than her husband. Sl walks at a respectful distance behin him, and never presumes to eat wit him, always preparing his food an waiting upon him while he eats it, b fore she gives any thought to her ow meal. It is not thought correct for woman to utter her husband's name.

The laws of Hindooism teach that woman must at no period of her li do anything according to her own pleas ure, since in childhood she is dependen upon her father, in youth on her hu band, and in widowhood on her son or, should she have no sons, on the kin men of her deceased husband, or o other male relatives, and failing a such relatives she becomes dependen upon the rajah."

Mohammed wrote: "Men shall hav the preeminence above women, because of those advantages wherein God hat caused the former to excel the latter."

NATION'S GREETING TO DEWEY.

Features of the Reception to the Manfie Here in Washington.

The central idea underlying the grand welcome to be given Admiral Dewey in Washington the first week in October is its national character. His arrival at the Capital will mark his real home-coming to the American people, where the officials of the government will participate, and the magnificently jeweled sword voted by Congress will be presented. To that end all the arrangements will be of a simple but most dignified character. The welcome to the hero of Manila at the National Capital will probably occur on Monday, October 2, although the date will depend upon the length of the celebration in New York, which is still unsettled. The principal features of the reception in Washington, as planned by the citizens, with the cooperation of the President and Cabinet, will be two in number-the presentation of the sword voted by Congress and a the Admiral by President McKinley The sword will be presented by Secretary Long, at the east front of the Capitol, in the presence of Mr. McKinley and all the ernoon, while the parade, consisting of organizations of all kinds, will be accompanied by an illumination of the city on a scale of beauty never before witnessed in Washington.

The different features of the preparations are in the hands of a central body of citizens and eleven committees, embracing in all over a thousand people. Preparations for the celebration have been in hand for over a month.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and other railroads entering Washington have agreed upon cheap rates for the celebration, and the committee expects that there will be an outpouring of patriotic citizens almost equal to the inauguration of a
