A BEAUTIFUL SERVICE.

Class of 73. Persons Confirmed at St. Mary's Church, Thursday Evening.

St. Mary's church was crowded to the doors last Thursday evening when Rt. Rev. John S. Foley, D. D., made his episcopal visitation to St. Mary's parish and bestowed the rite of confirmation on a class of 73 persons, 27 boys, 36 girls, 5 men and 5 women. It was a beautiful and impressive service, and for the first time in the history of St. Mary's church pontifical vestments were celebrated. Bishop Foley sang the vespers himself, and was assisted in the service by Rev. C. H. Schenkelberg, of Jackson, who was deacon; Rev. M. J. Comerford, of Pinckney, sub-deacon; Rev. John Ryan, of Dexter, and Rev. Joseph Joost, of Cadillac, deacons of honor; Rev. Joseph Hallissey, of Hudson, master of ceremonies. After the vesper service Bishop Foley delivered a powerful sermon, which was listened to with strict attention by the large congregation.

Following the sermon came the laying on of hands in the sacrament of confirmation by the bishop. Hon. James S. Gorman acted as sponsor for the boys, and Miss Margaret Hagerty, of Lyndon, as sponsor for the girls.

The music by the choir, under the direction of Mr. Louis Burg, was exceptionally fine, the "O, Salutaris," being sung for the first time in Chelsea by that gentleman.

THE WASHTENAW FAIR.

Larger and Better Than It Has Been for Many Years Past.

The Washtenaw fair at Ann Arbor is in full blast with every prospect of greater success than it has had in many a year. The entries are three times larger than they were last year. In the horse department, Henry C. Waldron, the Percheron horse breeder, alone has 54 entries. The Shorthorn cattle predominate in the cattle department, and there are many Holsteins; the absence of Galloways is noticeable. There are large exhibits of sheep and swine. Thomas Birkett's exhibit of Cashmere goats creates much attention. Poultry is shown in large numbers.

Floral hall is finer than ever with its rich display of flowers, fruits and vegetables. Three granges have special exhibits. A member of one of the granges shows a 100 pound pumpkin with the name and number of the grange grown in the side. The school exhibits are very interesting.

The main hall is filled with the merchandise exhibits of a large number of Ann Arbor firms. A number of new exhibits have been added to the pioneer log cabin display. Dr. W. B. Hinsdale's fine collection of Indian relics is also shown there.

The attendance is good with promise of being larger today and tomorrow.

NEW STATE INSANE ASYLUM.

Strong Efforts to Be Made to Have One Located in Ann Arbor.

At the regular meeting of the Washtenaw County Medical Society held at Ann Arbor Monday evening, the project of attempting to secure the location of a new state insane asylum in Ann Arbor was discussed at length. A committee consisting of Judge Newkirk and Drs. Darling, Breakey, Spitzley and Wessinger was appointed to arrange for a citizens' meeting, which will have for its main purpose the passing of resolutions addressed to the board of corrections and charities, asking them to establish such an asylum here. It is known that the crowded state of the asylums causes the board to look with favor on locating another asylum at Ann Arbor.

Congregational Thank Offering.

The annual thank offering and supper of the First Congregational church was held in the church parlors last Friday evening and it was successful beyond the expectations of the most sanguine. An excellent supper was spread and was heartily enjoyed by all present.

After supper a program of music and recitations was given in which Otto and Miss Helena Steinbach played cello and piano duets; little James Schmidt and Miss Nellie Mingay gave recitations; the Misses Helen Hepfer and Mamie Drislane played a piano duet; Miss Gladys Mapes, Rev. C. S. Jones, and Mrs. L. T. Freeman sang solos, and Mrs. Carrie Cushman Seper played a piano solo. The numbers were all well rendered, and Miss Nellie Mingay, Mrs. Seper and Rev. C. S. Jones were accorded hearty encores.

The attendance was large and the receipts of the evening amounted to $42.

WASHTENAW COUNTY JAIL.

Is the Worst in the State and Will Be Condemned Unless the Board of Supervisors Improve It.

Dr. Arthur Worden, commissioner of the state board of corrections and charities, was in Ann Arbor last Thursday making an official inspection of the county jail. To an Argus reporter he said:

"Washtenaw county's jail is the worst in the state. The board of supervisors will meet Oct. 9, and if they do not make some provisions for the improvement of its sanitary condition the building will be condemned and Washtenaw will have no place in which to confine its prisoners. And they must tend to it right away."

"Sheriff Gillen is not so much to blame. The board of supervisors do not provide him with a sufficient quantity or quality of bedding."

"And then, again, the board must make some provision so that there will be a separate woman's ward and a place for the detention of witnesses."

"The city supervisors went to the jail with me and they are fully convinced that something must be done. It is the country supervisors who must be made to appreciate the situation, and unless they fully grasp it, the building will be condemned."

The jail has been a source of great discredit to the county for many years and these firm statements of the commissioner will doubtless result in a more creditable state of affairs being brought about.

ENTERTAINMENT COURSE.

The Epworth League Will Have a Fine One at a Popular Price.

The Epworth League of the M. E. church is making preparations to give under its auspices a course of seven entertainments, the equal of which are seldom seen in towns of this size. The course tickets will be sold for $1 each, or a trifle over 14 cents a number. Of these there will be only a limited number sold. The single admission for five of the entertainments will be 50 cents, and for the other two 35 cents. The dates and numbers are as follows.

Nov. 6. Ariel Ladies' Quartet. Violinist, pianist and reader, assisted by Karl Germain, magician.

Dec. 17. Lovett's Boston Stars.

Jan. 3. Rev. J. J. Lewis, "The Passion Play of Oberammergau."

Feb. 7. Rev. Fr. Francis C. Kelly, chaplain 32d Michigan Volunteers, "The Yankee Volunteer."

March 21. The Detroit Grand Concert Co., including Harold Jarvis, the noted tenor song singer.

April 8. DeWitt Miller.

April 18. The Park Sisters, assisted by C. Edmund Neil in readings.

A course like this at such a reasonable price should be patronized by everybody.

Three Years for Attempted Assault

Arthur Gunong, alias Stark or Starr, who attempted to commit a criminal assault on Miss Edna Reade, at the house of A. J. Easton, in Lima, on the night of April 21 last, was tried in the circuit court Tuesday and sentenced to three years in the Jackson prison. His mother pleaded for mercy for him on the ground that there was insanity in the family, his father being now confined in an insane asylum. Judge Kinne, however, could not see that the young man's acts were those of an insane person, and said that he must protect society, although he did not think punishment would do him much good. He then sentenced him as stated above.

Gunong is a desperate character and has made two attempts to escape from prison. Yesterday morning when he was searched two saws were found concealed about his person.

Teachers' Institute Fund Short.

The state superintendent of public instruction a few days ago sent an agent to Ann Arbor to examine the county treasurer's books, and, if possible find the whereabouts of $140 which should be in the teachers' institute fund. It was found that at the time of Treasurer Suekey's defaulting when a settlement was made by his bondsmen, the amount they put up did not cover the shortage, and that was why the institute fund was dry. Superintendent Hammond has forwarded a letter to be presented to the board of supervisors, asking them to transfer the necessary money from the general fund to the teachers' institute fund to make good this shortage.

Amos L. Allen, formerly private secretary to Thomas B. Reed, has been nominated for congress by the republicans of the First Maine district, and the democrats have nominated Luther McKinney.

Thomas B. Allen, a veteran of three wars and the oldest person in West Virginia, died in Crafton, aged 108 years.

Gen. A. J. Vaughn died in Indianapolis, Ind. He was one of the few surviving major generals of the confederate army.

William Griffenstein, the founder of Wichita, Kan., died at Shawnee, I. T.

FOREIGN.

The decision of the Orange Free State to join with the Transvaal in the event of hostilities is the leading news and will, naturally, stiffen the Boers' independent attitude.

The Dominion liner Scotsman was wrecked south of Change island and ten of her passengers were drowned.

The little two-masted Herald of the Morning was overwhelmed in the Atlantic off the entrance to the St. Johns river and Capt. Hollis and five of the crew were drowned.

By the burning of the steamer Montoya on the Magdalena river in Central America 30 lives were lost, including that of Gen. Julio Rengifo, minister to the United States.

The American authorities in Manila were arranging the details of the delivery of the American prisoners at Angeles.

It was reported that Castro, the insurgent leader in Venezuela, had established a provisional government at Valencia.

The Transvaal's reply to the last British dispatch says the South African republic adheres strictly to the London convention of 1884. Boer forces were hurrying to the frontier from all sides.

The German government has paid into the Spanish treasury 25,000,000 pesetas, the price of the Caroline islands.

The schooner Edna, of Baltimore, was wrecked off St. Pierre, N. F., and her crew of seven lost their lives.

A telegram received at the Harvard college observatory states that a new comet has been discovered by Jacobini at Nice.

Advices from South Africa say the Boers continue to concentrate between Utrecht and Volksrust, where their artillery is known to have moved, and threaten Laing's Nek. Large commands have also assembled on the western frontier of the Transvaal near Kimberley.

An attempt was made at Caracas to kill President Andrade of Venezuela. Fourteen American prisoners, all enlisted soldiers, were delivered up by the Filipinos at Angeles. The insurgent commissioners called upon Gen. Otis with fresh proposals from Aguinaldo. Gen. Garcia, leader of the insurgents in the eastern part of the island of Mindanao, has offered to surrender the arms of his followers and has asked the American authorities to send a garrison to take full control of the country.

LATER.

Admiral Dewey arrived in Washington and was given a magnificent reception. He was given the freedom of the District of Columbia, greeted by his old friends of the navy department and then was presented to the president and Mrs. McKinley. Later in the evening he reviewed a parade that filled Pennsylvania avenue from one end to the other.

The total circulation of national bank notes on September 30 was $243,290,128, an increase for the year of $7,933,178.

The town of DeQueen, Ark., was destroyed by fire. Fifty-four buildings were burned, entailing a loss of $250,000.

The total coinage executed at the mints of the United States during the month of September was $9,566,794.

The insurgents along the Bacoor-Imus road attacked the American troops under Brig. Gen. Fred D. Grant and were repulsed with heavy loss. One American was killed and four wounded. The Filipino commissioners spent several hours with Gen. Otis in Manila and at the conclusion of the conference it was announced that nothing had been accomplished.

Mrs. Kate Jungels and her 11-year-old son and John Teidt were asphyxiated by gas in Chicago.

A buoy marked "Andree Polar Expedition" which, with an anchor attached, was found September 9 on the north coast of King Charles island, is the buoy which Andree arranged to drop if he succeeded in passing the pole.

A London dispatch says it is reported that the Boers have commenced fighting, and have captured Dundee.

Returns from the municipal elections in Connecticut show republican victories in 101 towns and democratic successes in 32.

It is now estimated that 1,500 persons perished in the earthquakes in Asia Minor, around Aidin.

A treasury statement shows that for the three months ended September 30 the receipts of the government exceeded the expenditures by $3,703,801.39.

The steamer White Cloud while proceeding from Hong-Kong to Manila under an American charter foundered and seven men were drowned.

The public debt statement issued on the 2d shows that the debt decreased $8,400,775 during the month of September. The cash balance in the treasury was $1,015,241,086. The total debt, less the cash balance in the treasury, amounts to $1,148,905,780.

Dewey Celebration.

Americans are quick to appreciate merit. The Dewey celebrations prove that, and it is again forcibly demonstrated in the praise and confidence which is accorded to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one of the most meritorious remedies ever compounded for indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver or kidney disease or any trouble arising from a weak stomach. If you have a weak stomach don't fail to try it.

BEFORE AND AFTER.

When she married, often she
Forcefully asserted,
On the threshold-throne she'd be
Sovereign sole, none dominated
By her chosen minister;
Others might be held and harried;
None should dictate unto her.
When she married!

When she married—as she did—
Found her throne of love rose-hidden,
And she walked as she was bid
Never knowing she was bidden.
He could reign enough for two.
And her maiden plans miscarried;
She became the gentle shrew
When she married!

When he wedded, so he said,
He'd none of the bonds that tie men!
She, his choice, would know who led
Ere they'd quit the shrine of Hymen.
She might make and mend his things;
See him fed and softly bedded;
He would hold the house-horse strings
When he wedded!

When he wedded he would check
Butchers', grocers' bills and bakers';
And would find him no soft geck
Milliners and mantua-makers!
He would manage stern and well,
Marriage he in nowise dreaded;
But the records do not tell
When he wedded!

CHAPTER XIX.

EXIT THE ANCIENT BRICO.

I had gained my point without waste of words or time, but it was to be my way or not at all. My lady was in dire peril. Against this could I for a moment weigh any thought of myself? What cared I whether France, Spain, or the Borgias ruled in Italy? What mattered it to me whether one crafty statesman held the reins of power, or another outdid him in craft and fished away his bone? My lady was in danger, and my honor might rot, and the Most Christian, the Most Catholic, and Most Holy wolves might tear each other's throats out before I would move a finger, take one step, until she was free. If I had to pull down Bagnioni's hold with my own hands, I would free her. If a hair of her head was injured I should take such vengeance as man never heard of, and then—my foot caught in the carpeting of the passage, I tripped up and fell heavily, the shock sending stars before my eyes.

"Too much haste, cavaliere," and a hand helped me to rise. As I gained my feet I saw Machiavelli beside me.

"I followed you at once," he said, "but you went so fast I had missed you but for that lucky trip. A word more—if you free her, take her to the convent of St. Jerome, two miles northwest of Magione—the abbess will do the rest. I will see to that."

"Very well. God grant I succeed!"

"Amen to that," and Machiavelli took my hand. "Adieu, cavaliere, once again; I must go back to his eminence, we have a point or two to discuss yet, but no more Falernian. Corpo di Bacco! I grow cold when I think of our escape."

"Good-by, your excellency," and we parted.

I went on with a little more care, and, being a trifle cooled by my fall, was able to think better. By the time I reached my apartments I had decided on my route. I should leave by the Porta del Popolo, keep on the right bank of the river as far as Borghetto, there cross the Tiber, and on to Perugia in a straight line by Narni and Todi. It was close on three and thirty leagues; but I did not mean to spare horseflesh. As I reached the entrance which led to my rooms, I found Jacopo and my men ready, and Castor whinnied a glad welcome, pawing at the air with his forefoot in his impatience. St. Armande and the abbe, already mounted and attended by a couple of men, were a little to the right.

"I will not keep you a moment, chevalier," I called out as I passed him, and, running up the stairs to my room, began to dress rapidly. Jacopo attended me, and, as he handed me my sword, pointed to the open window.

"A fair night for a long ride, excellency!"

"Yes, the moon stands well—my cloak—quick," and we descended the stairs.

"All ready, Jacopo?"

"Your excellency."

"Steady, Castor," and I swung into the saddle.

There was the jingle of bit chains, the clank of steel scabbards, the ring of iron-shod hoofs on the pavement, and with St. Armande by my side and my troop behind me, I left the Palazzo Corneto.

To avoid risk of stoppage I did not go down by the Alessandria to the Ponte di San Angelo, but determined to cross at the Rippetta. Therefore, crossing the Borge di San Angelo, we went northwards by the V. d. Tre Papazzi, up the Via Cancellieri, and then, turning to the right, rode up the Via Crescenzo. To our right, as we rode, the moon hung over San Angelo and the dark outlines of the gloomy stronghold loomed like a vast shadow of evil above us. In front of us lay the Tiber, and the long line of fires of the charcoal-burners. The latter overhung by a blue cloud of smoke, into which the forked flames leaped and danced. At the bridge we were stopped by the guard, but the safe-conduct set us free, and we crossed at a slow pace. Above the hollow beat of the horses' hoofs I heard the waters churning around the piers, and, looking over the side, saw the gray river as it hummed past below me, flecked with white foam-tipped waves, chasing each other in lines of light across its surface, or, as they broke, catching the moon rays, and dying in a hundred colors with an angry hiss.

Passing through the ruined Porta del Popolo, where the breaches made by took the Flaminian Way, and galloped down the road almost in darkness, owing to the shadows thrown by the high walls on each side of us. We recrossed the Tiber at the Ponte Molle, and, still keeping the Via Flaminia, turned our horses' heads in the direction of Castel Nuovo.

Not the best horse in the world could keep up the pace we were going for long, and I was old enough soldier to know that our speed must be regulated by the slowest beast if we wanted to reach in full strength, so I slackened rein to a walk and gave the animals a rest.

Excepting once, when Jacopo rode off to make his duty to the Fountain of Trevi, I had not exchanged a word with St. Armande, indeed I was in no mind to talk; but he broke the silence with a question.

"Do we ride all night, cavaliere?"

"We have many leagues to go, St. Armande."

"Ciel!" he muttered under his breath, and I heard the abbe as he leaned forward whisper: "Courage! would you give way now? Courage!"

Clearly there was a mystery here to which I had no clew, and it troubled me. I glanced at St. Armande, and through the moonlight saw the white of his cheek, showing all the paler for the black patch he wore transversely across it; but looking at him did not explain matters.

"What the devil does this mean?" I said half aloud to myself.

"Did you speak?"

"Merely something to myself, chevalier. Diavolo! But this is a dull ride."

"Do you think so?" and his tone softened suddenly.

I made no reply, but stirred up Castor, and we jogged along. I left the mystery to take care of itself, and mapped out a line of action. I would take only two men with me into Perugia, and send the rest with Armande to the convent of St. Jerome to await the result of my attempt to free Angiola.

It sounded like foolishness to give St. Armande the control of the stronger party, especially if he meant treachery; but this I was persuaded he did not. On the other hand, a following of six troopers was a trifle too many to pay a peaceful visit to Bagnioni, and might arouse suspicion, while they were too few to attempt open force. In short, if I could not do what I wanted with two men, I would not be able to effect it with six or a dozen, and made up my mind to split our party, either after crossing the Paglia, or beyond at San Fortunato.

In this manner, sometimes galloping, sometimes trotting, and at other times walking our horses to give them a rest, we reached Castel Nuovo, but did not enter the town, skirting it by our right, although one of the troopers suggested our going westwards by Campagnano, a useless detour as it seemed to me. We passed the little town exactly at midnight, and the chime of bells striking the hour fell pleasantly on our ears.

A short way beyond we found the road so cut into ruts and fissures that it was not possible to go at any other than a snail's pace, so that within the next two hours we barely covered as many leagues. The moon was now on the wane, the road became worse, and one or two of the horses showed signs of fatigue. Jacopo rode up beside me.

"By your leave, excellency! We have the road by Soratte to cross soon, and in the coming darkness may possibly lose our way. I would suggest, therefore, that we halt here until dawn. It will rest the horses, and with the light we could press on."

"Very well. Hark! Is not that the sound of water?"

"Yes, your worship."

"Then we will stop here."

A few yards beyond we came to a ruined temple, near which a fountain was bubbling. Here I gave the order to halt, and in less time than I take to write this the troopers had sprung to earth, the saddle-girths were loosened and all the preparations for a two hours' halt begun.

I shared a little wine with St. Armande and the abbe, and the former, rolling himself up in his cloak, leaned his back against a fallen pillar, and seemed to drop off at once into sleep.

The abbe followed his example, but my mind was too impatient for rest, and I walked up and down, watching the ending of the moon, until it finally sank out of sight, and darkness fell upon us.

Dark as it was around me, my mind was in a still greater darkness, for I was unable to think of any plan by which I could gain access to Angiola, after reaching Perugia. Time, too, was short; but that did not matter, for I was prepared to let the affair of the ducats slide, rather than lose any chance of rescuing her.

A straw yet remained. Luck might be on my side, and with luck and a strong heart one might do anything. There was nothing for it but to content myself for the present with this. Until I reached Perugia I could develop no plan. So I paced up and down with an unsettled mind, and finally, seating myself on a stone, awaited the morning, alternately nodding and awakening with a start.

At last! The east began to whiten, and, getting up stiffly, I touched Jacopo with the end of my sword. He jumped with an exclamation, and, recognizing me, began to apologize. This I cut short, and bade him arouse the men.

"This instant, your worship! Cospetto! To think I should have overslept myself! Ho, sluggards! Buffaloes! Awake! Think you that you are going to snore here all night?" and he began to stir the men up. They rose willingly enough, with tremendous yawnings and stretching of arms, and we were soon on the march again, through the increasing daylight.

The coming day seemed to warm the hearts of the men, and one of them broke into song, the chorus being taken up by the others, as we jogged along. When this had lasted some little time, I gave Castor's reins a shake, and off we went at a smart gallop.

Shortly after passing San Oreste the road led along the side of Soratte, and, the morning being young, besides very bright and clear, we had a glorious view. To the left lay Civita Castellana, the walls of the new citadel standing high above the town, which lay in the middle of a network of deep ravines; to the right and behind us the Sarravines; to the right and behind us the Sarravines; to the right and behind us the Sarravines.

Silvestre, and Soratte itself reached towards where Borghetto stood, on a bend of the river, in a series of descending peaks. Cool puffs of air caught us, and freshened the horses as well as our hearts, and it was a cheery party that finally reached the Ponte Felice, and entered the town. Here our safe-conduct again stood us in good stead. Indeed, we had difficulty in getting away, for the Captain Lippi, who held Borghetto for the Borgia, wished to press his hospitality on us for a few days; but on my eventually taking him aside, and whispering to him that I was bound on a confidential mission, he gave in, but with some little reluctance. He, however, invited us to share his table at dinner. I accepted, but Sir Armande, who was looking very weary, declined, and dined quietly with the abbe at the "Silver Eel," where I quartered my men.

Lippi was an old soldier risen from the ranks, with a head more full of drill than suspicion; but in order to remove any such weed that might be growing there I affected to be so delighted with his conversation at dinner that I begged the favor of his accompanying me for a league or so on my way, after we had dined. To this he agreed with alacrity, and I was subsequently sorry for my pains, for the old bore did not quit me until we had all but reached the Nera, and saw the campanile of St. Jovennalis rising above Narni. We did this portion of the journey at a rapid pace, as I wanted, if possible, to shake off the captain, but, mounted on an Apulian, he stuck to me like a burr, dinning into my ears his opinion as to how the cross-bow was a weapon as superior to the arquebus as the mangonel was above even Novarro's new cannon. At length he wished us the day and departed, and the horses, scenting the end of their day's journey, put on fresh speed as we galloped through the oaks that studded the valley of the Nera. The river here was hemmed into a narrow ravine, and, crossing by an ancient bridge of three spans, supposed to have been built by the Romans, we climbed up the steep ascent that led to Narni, and there found food and lodging for both man and beast, at an albergo, the name of which, somehow, I have forgotten. St. Armande was quite worn out, and I saw he was unfitted for any long strain. We supped together, and he retired almost at once. After supper I had a detailed examination of the horses, and found that one of them had a sore back. The trooper who owned him vowed he would not part with him, so I had to dismiss the man, which I did. This reduced my fighting strength to six men, including Jacopo. I did not include St. Armande and his followers in estimating this, putting them down to so much incubance, of which I would soon take care to be rid. I was anxious, however, to hurry on, and so altered my original plans a little, and in the morning, after we had gone about a league, I turned to St. Armande, and said:

"Chevalier, it is necessary for me to press on with all speed. I want you, therefore, to do me a favor."

"Anything you like, cavaliere; but we do not part, do we?"

"It is this. I am going on at once; I want you to take four of my troopers, and with your own following make for the convent of St. Jerome. It lies a little beyond Magione. Your arrival will be expected. If not, say you are awaiting me. Await me for a week. If I do not come then, go back to Rome, and tell the cardinal what you have done."

"But I thought I was to go with you and share your adventure?"

"I give you my word of honor, St. Armande, that you will share in the adventure for which I agreed you should come—share up to the elbows—but you will spoil everything if you do not do what I say."

"There is no danger to you?"

"No more than there is to you; in one word, St. Armande, do you agree or not?"

"Very well."

"Then there is no time to lose. Jacopo!"

"Excellency!"

"Pick out a man, and he, you, the lackey and myself, will go on ahead. The rest can follow. I have given all other orders to the signor, St. Armande."

"There is Bando Nere, your worship."

"I am ready, cavaliere," and a tall, thin, gray-mustached trooper saluted as he spoke.

He looked the man I wanted. My lackey was a stout horseman, and at a pinch might hold a sword as well as he held my valise. So, shaking hands with St. Armande, I put spurs to Castor, and we dashed off. Turning the corner of a belt of forest land, I looked back and waved my hand in further adieu to the chevalier. I caught the flutter of the white handkerchief the young dandy carried, as he loosed it to the air in reply to my salute, and the next moment the trees hid them from view.

We rode hard now, Castor going almost as freely as when we started. Indeed, I would have far outpaced the others, if I did not let him feel the bit once, and the noble beast, as if knowing his duty, required no further warning not to outstrip his companions.

Going as we were now Perugia was but a few hours away; but the pace was too great to last long, and from Todi to Perugia there were nine leagues and a trifle over of an ascending road. Castor might do it, the others I was sure would not. In order, therefore, to rest the horses, as well as to avoid question, I resolved that we should dine at Rosaro, and after an hour or so of rest, press forwards, passing by Todi, and traveling all night, so as to reach Perugia in the morning. If we went faster, we would only reach at night, and so late as to find entrance into the town impossible.

We clattered past the villages of San Geminio and Castel Todino, and about noon drew up our now somewhat blown beasts at the gates of the "Man-at-Arms," the only inn in the village.

It was a poor place I saw at a glance, and as we pulled up, a crowd of yokels in holiday attire gathered around us. The inn seemed full, too, for the yard swarmed with people, and a half-score heads of contadini were at each window, staring at us open-eyed.

As I took this in, the landlord came running out, cap in hand and full of apologies.

"Ohime! But my house is full to the gullets, signore, and it is nothing I can do for you to-day. To-morrow is the feast of St. Mary of the Consolation, and all the country is going to Todi."

"I do not want to stay. We merely halt here to bait our horses and to dine. Can you manage that?"

"If that is all, excellency, yes, oh, yes. The beasts, they can rest anywhere, and there is a polenta and room for your excellency's followers; but for yourself, signore," and he shook his head mournfully.

"What is the difficulty?" And I dismounted, my men following suit.

"But this, signore. There is but one room in the house you could use, and that is occupied by two gentlemen of the army. Violent men, signore, who will not allow anyone to share it. Lasso me! But not a paul have they paid me as yet!"

"Give them my compliments, and say that the Cavaliere Donati begs to be allowed a corner of their table for his dinner."

"Alas, signore! It is useless. They have been here two days—"

"Then it is time they made room for other travelers. Give my message, landlord, and say I am following."

My horse trotted off with considerable misgivings expressed in his face, and followed by my lackey, bearing my valise, I went after him at a slower pace.

When I reached the room, which could hardly be missed, seeing it was the only one in the house that had any pretense of appearance, I found the door open, and heard a half-drunken voice shouting:

"Begone, dog! Blood of a king! But are two gentlemen to be disturbed because a signore with a long name wants to dine? Skull of St. Jerome! Did you ever hear the like of this? Cospetto! Tell him to go hang, or I'll spit him like a lark."

I heard enough to recognize the voice, and, turning to the lackey, said:

"Send Jacopo here at once with a stout cudgel—run."

The man went off on the double, and I remained without the door listening with amusement to the ancient Brico's bluster, for it was he, and he was having all the talk, his companion, whoever he was, now and then giving a grunt of assent.

"Mitte and cowl! Hell and sulphur! Will you begone, fool, or shall I slit your windpipe?" and I heard him beat the table with his fist. "Out, rascal," he roared, "and bring in another skin of chianti."

Out came the wretched innkeeper, and, seeing me at the door, began to urge me to go; but at this moment Jacopo came running up with a stout stick in his hand, and, pushing the landlord on one side, I stepped into the room, followed by Jacopo.

Brico's friend, who was quite drunk as it seemed, had fallen asleep whilst he was talking, and lay with his head between his arms, half on the table, half on his chair. The ancient was seated with an empty skin before him, and rose in wrath as I entered.

"What the—," he began in a wine-blown voice, and then his face paled a little as he saw me.

I did not waste words. "Cudgel me this fellow out, Jacopo," I said, and Jacopo attended to the task as if he loved it. The ancient attempted to draw his sword, but it was useless, and a minute or two later he was flung out into the courtyard, beaten to a jelly and howling for mercy. He lay where he was flung, too bruised to move.

His friend slept through it all; but as my lackey lifted up his head in an attempt to eject him, I recognized Piero Luigi, and felt that some more stringent action than I had taken with Brico should be adopted here.

"This man is a thief," I said to the landlord, "and his friend little better."

"Then to the stocks they go; and now," almost screamed the host, "not a paul have they paid me, signore, I swear this, the bandits. Hi! Giuseppe! Giovanni!"

A couple of stout knaves came running in, and the innkeeper, trembling with anger and fear combined, yelled out:

"Bind this brigand and his companion securely, keep them in the stables, and to-morrow we will hale them before the podesta."

I enjoyed my dinner comfortably, and on going out to see after the horses was met by Bando Nere, who took me aside to where, in a corner of the stables, two men were lying securely bound. One was Luigi, still happily drunk. The other was the ancient, whose bones must have ached sorely, for he had been beaten sober, and was feeling the full effect of the cudgel and the ropes. He was groaning terribly, and, being sorry for the wretch, I was about to interpose for him with the landlord, when Jacopo interposed with a whisper:

"Let the scotched snake lie, signore; he knows too much."

I let wisdom take its course, and left the ancient to his sorrows.

The Cook's Feelings Were Hurt.

A first-rate chef was in the employment of Lord Seaford, who, not being able to afford to keep the man, prevailed on the duke of Wellington to engage him. Shortly after entering the duke's service the chef returned to his former master and begged him, with tears in his eyes, to take him back at reduced wages or none at all. Lord Seaford asked: "Has the duke been finding fault?" "Oh, no—he is the kindest and most liberal of masters; but I serve him a dinner that would have made Ude or Francatelli burst with envy and he say nothing! I go out and leave him to dine on a dinner badly dressed by my cook maid and he say nothing. Dat hurt my feelings, my lord!"—Cornhill Magazine.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Married Her Prosecutor.

Mrs. Mary H. Brooks, the first woman ever convicted of murder in Michigan, was married in Charlotte recently to D. H. Stewart, the complaining witness whose testimony was largely responsible for her spending 23 years in Jackson prison. Simon Brooks, a wealthy resident of Eaton county, died March 15, 1876, under mysterious circumstances. His widow, Mary Brooks, was arrested, charged with the murder, on complaint of D. H. Stewart, a neighbor, was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. She was pardoned after she had served 23 years. Stewart worked faithfully to secure her pardon. Both are old and have plenty of means.

Apple Crop Damaged.

Reports received in St. Joseph from various parts throughout the apple district are to the effect that a terrible northwest gale which visited that vicinity stripped of fruit hundreds of apple trees, as well as many peach trees. Many apple trees were twisted and broken, and in many instances entire trees were wrenched from the ground. Leading growers estimate that fully one-fourth of the apple crop has been blown from the trees and that 100,000 bushels of apples will be a total loss.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health from 65 observers in various portions of the state for the week ended September 23 indicate that whooping cough, remittent fever and influenza increased and inflammation of the bowels and kidneys decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported at 203 places, measles at 11, typhoid fever at 98, scarlet fever at 44, diphtheria at 20, whooping cough at 16, cerebro-spinal meningitis at 3 places, and smallpox at Battle Creek and Maple Grove.

Bank President Killed.

President William Smith, of the First national bank of Charlotte, was killed at Wolverine by being thrown from a log car against a moving saw. Mr. Smith had vast lumber interests in Cheboygan county and went to that point to make final arrangements for the transfer of the property to a Chicago gentleman, who was with Mr. Smith at the time of the accident. Besides controlling the stock of the First national bank he was rated as one of the richest men in Eaton county.

The Marriage Record.

Statistics completed by Secretary of State Stearns say:

There were 20,135 marriages in Michigan last year, the rate being 18.9 per 1,000 of population. This is the greatest number ever reported in a year. The greatest number of marriages were solemnized in November, and the least in February. There were 12,953 marriages between native Americans. As to ages the greatest number of marriages were of persons between 20 and 25 years. Eleven of the grooms were past 60, but only one bride had reached that age. Washtenaw county reported an authentic case where the groom was 110 years old.

Crop Conditions.

The final crop bulletin of the agricultural department for the season says for Michigan:

Ample rains have broken the drought; late sugar beets and pasturage much improved; wheat and rye seeding are well advanced, the soil being in splendid condition; early seeding germinating finely and evenly; potato digging and corn husking general; apple yield poor.

Three-Cent Fare Dead.

It is announced on authority of Elliott G. Stevenson, member of the late street railway commission appointed to purchase the street railways of Detroit for the city, that the entire Pin-gree plan of municipal ownership and three-cent fares is dead and permanently abandoned.

News Items Briefly Told.

Work has begun on the post office block in Houghton, to cost $35,000.

General Manager Sherman announces that a long-distance telephone line connecting the copper country with the balance of the world will be completed to Houghton by December 1.

The Michigan school for the deaf at Flint has an enrollment of 275 pupils.

John Kenwendeshon, of Beaverton, an Indian doctor, died from poison taken by mistake.

The new cottage for male epileptics at the feeble-minded home in Lapeer is completed.

Col. William Crichton, a well-known capitalist of Cincinnati, died at Traverse City, Mich., aged 67.

John Sullivan, a well-known woodsman, was killed in Menominee by falling from his buggy.

The college year was begun in all the departments of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and indications point to a record-breaking attendance. It is estimated that the enrollment will reach the 3,500 mark.

Crops in Berrien county have been peculiarly affected by pests this year. The latest is a small bug which has cut short the melon crop, causing a loss of $20,000.

The Michigan Republican Newspaper association will meet in Owosso October 10 and 11.

Chris Schroeder, aged 68, for over 40 years the superintendent of shipbuilding and carpenter work for the Goodrich line, died in Manitowoc from injuries received in a runaway.

Dewey clinched his hold on the affections of the people when he said "I cannot even make a speech."

It is really unkind for the Nebraska voters to keep asking Mr. Bryan about the alleged partnership between silver and wheat.

There are Democratic newspapers so particularly partisan that they refuse to recognize on the editorial page the existence of prosperity, although their advertising columns show conclusively that they are participating in the improved business conditions in an unrestrained manner.

The Anti-Imperialists of the country are having a hard time of it with the young men of the country, who persist in enlisting despite the awful stories found only in the circulars and other literature of the "Anti-Imps" about the climate of the Philippines and the terrors of army diseases.

Although the navy department did not include Rear Admiral Schley in any of the arrangements for the reception of Admiral Dewey, it could not exclude him from a big share of the popular enthusiasm accorded to the great naval officers during Friday and Saturday's demonstration in New York.

Secretary Gage's predictions at the beginning of the present fiscal year that there would be no deficit in the government revenues, and that the country might even expect a surplus at the end of the year, now seems certain to come true, notwithstanding the increased expenditures due to the war in the Philippines.

It is perhaps too much to expect that the newspapers, which have been abusing the President because of the Carter case, will now be ashamed of themselves. Since the sentence of the court martial has been approved in all particulars, we hardly think that the most rancorous of Carter's pursuers can find fault with the conclusion of the case.

Grand Rapids Herald: The attendance at the Michigan university this year, it is expected will reach 3,500, the largest number to be enrolled in the sixty years' history of the institution. The reports from other colleges are to the effect that the attendance generally will be much larger than in former years. This is a direct and tangible result of the country's new prosperity. In hard times the young man must work to support himself or to help in the support of the family, instead of continuing his studies. He must become a toiler instead of going on with the education preparations for an active and useful career. But now the college is within reach. The specter of poverty has vanished.

Wants to Get a Clear Title.

Feb. 7, 1862, Mary O'Connor, of Sylvan, and her husband, gave a mortgage for $390 on their land situated in the township of Sylvan, to her unmarried brother-in-law Patrick O'Connor. On this mortgage they paid $48. About Dec. 27, 1862, Patrick O'Connor decided to go west and gave her the mortgage as a gift. For the past 30 years he has not been heard from, and now Mrs. O'Connor has filed a bill in the circuit court to have the mortgage discharged and the cloud on the title cleaned up.

*Genevieve Young is again attending school here.

Jacob Forner commenced school in the ninth grade this week.

Report cards are now in the hands of the pupils, and are being freely commented upon.

Nellie Savage, Linna Runciman and Inez Marshall attended the Stockbridge fair Friday.

Considerable excitement was caused in the high school Thursday by the blowing of the fire whistle.

One of the "seniors" is so interested in the study of Wilhelm Tell, that she even brings his name into American history, stating the wonderful fact that Pennsylvania was settled first by him.

The class average of the seniors is 95 for the month of September. The percentage for the high school is: 12th grade, 95; 11th grade, 88; 10th grade, 86; 9th grade, 79. Average percentage for the high school, 87 1/4. Thus it is always with the class of '00.

A new system has been adopted in the high school, whereby the different grades are divided into classes and ranks. In the ninth grade, four classes exist with as many ranks as there are pupils in each class, the rank being determined by the monthly averages. In the tenth and eleventh grades, there are three and two classes respectively, while the seniors have but one class and each one ranks according to his standing.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D.: "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial; took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's Bank Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1. Guaranteed or price refunded.

Sells Horseflesh at 5c. a Pound.

When Tommy McNamara was at the Plymouth fair the other day he offered to make a novel sale of a horse. It was not a valuable horse and a good judge of horseflesh would have hesitated about paying Tommy a $10 bill for the animal. He struck a fellow, however, who had more money than wit, who asked him how much he would take for his horse. "Five cents a pound," said Tommy. "All right," said the man, "he's mine." "Give me $2 to bind the bargain," said Tommy and the horse was put on the scales. That horse weighed 737 pounds and would have cost the fellow just $36.85—but he backed out.

A Frightful Blunder

J. L. Gilbert & Co. have so far evaporated 5,000 bushels of apples and now have 600 boxes of 50 pounds weight each ready for sale and shipment.

Anthony Wynoska pleaded guilty in the circuit court yesterday to assault and battery upon George Connors, of Dexter, and was sentenced to 90 days in jail.

Miss Agnes F. Greenman, daughter of Isaac Greenman, of Ann Arbor, dropped dead yesterday of heart disease while riding on a merry-go-round at the fair in Ann Arbor.

If you want a good laugh go to the maiden ladies' convention Friday night at the town hall. Price 25 cents. Reserved seats, 10 cents extra, for sale at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

Several of the Chelsea students at the U. of M. come home every Friday night to spend Saturday and Sunday with their parents, returning to college on Monday morning by the early trains.

S. L. Jenney and Ed. H. Croarkin, of Dexter, have come to an amicable settlement of their lawsuit over the alleged breach of contract in the lease of Mr. Jenney's store by Mr. Croarkin.

R. A. Snyder already has orders for 28 cars of onions. He will ship the third car of this lot today. He has a large force of people at work topping onions at the rate of 1,000 to 1,200 bushels a day.

Fr. W. H. I. Reaney, of Detroit, who is chaplain of Admiral Dewey's flagship Olympia, is an old friend of Rev. W. P. Considine, and is known to many people in Chelsea, where he has visited in days gone by.

Chelsea Lodge, No. 194, K. of P., conferred the second rank on R. A. Snyder Tuesday evening. The event was followed by a banquet at which 40 of the brothers sat down and enjoyed a pleasant and sociable hour.

The marriage of Miss Helen Ames, a well-known society young lady of Ann Arbor, and Dr. MacDonald, of Rockland, Mich., took place Tuesday afternoon. Miss Ames has many friends in Chelsea, where she has frequently visited.

Dwight L. Moody, the great evangelist, will be in Ann Arbor Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Two services each day will be held in University hall. Several Chelsea people are talking of going down to attend one or more of the services.

The jury in the case of the People vs. Charles M. Cole, charged with the larceny of John Webber's horse, rendered a verdict of not guilty in the circuit court yesterday, owing to a lack of sufficient evidence to show that Cole really intended to steal the horse.

Haydn's Third Mass, better known as the Imperial, will be sung at the dedication of the new St. Thomas Catholic church, in Ann Arbor, on Nov. 26. It is considered one of the finest masses ever written. It will be sung by a select choir led by a very strong quartet. Prof. Lamson will sing the offertorium.

D. C. McLaren was drawing up hay into his warehouse Monday afternoon when the pulley slipped from its fastenings and it and the hook fell striking Mr. McLaren across the mouth. Some of his teeth were loosened and his lower lip was so much cut that Dr. Bush had to take four stitches in it to close the wound.

Frank Miller, John H. Murphy and Frank Cavanaugh, who were arrested here July 14, for burglarizing W. S. Sprout's store, at Anderson, the night previous, and who were subsequently taken to Howell for trial in the circuit court, escaped from jail Sunday night. They sawed through the iron bars with a notched case knife.

In the circuit court at Ann Arbor Monday all the defendants in the criminal cases pleaded not guilty. Nine of them, including Arthur Gunong, alias Stark, for attempted criminal assault on Miss Edna Reade, and Charles M. Cole for stealing John Webber's horse, had attorneys appointed by the court to defend them.

The heavy frosts of Saturday night did considerable damage in this neighborhood. George P. Glazier's celery crop is damaged about $400 worth, and Stephen Laird will lose $150 on his crop. Apples on the trees were frozen clear through in some instances, although those that were picked and laid on the ground did not suffer much. R. A. Snyder's onions got badly nipped as did those of others who had their crops out on the marsh, but it is generally believed that the weather of Sunday was favorable to drawing out the frost without damaging the vegetables.

The difference in price of building materials is illustrated by the present price of lath. Last year it was $4.50 per thousand, and this year $9.50.

The congregation of St. Thomas' Catholic church, Ann Arbor, will hold a fair Oct. 18, for the purpose of raising more funds for the new church.

Robert Schwikerath has moved his family into part of George Barthel's house on Garfield street, until such time as he can build up his own home again.

The B. Y. P. U. will serve a warm supper in the Sherry building Saturday, Oct. 7, beginning at 5 o'clock. The proceeds will go toward the new furnace for the church.

The Congregational Business Men's Class will discuss the question of "The Social Evil," at its meeting next Sunday morning. W. F. Hatch will open the discussion.

At the Jackson Congregational Association meeting to be held at Pinckney, Wednesday, Oct. 18, Rev. C. S. Jones will read a paper on "Responsibility of the Membership for Service."

B. S. Rummier moved his family back to Jackson last week and has gone there himself to enter into partnership with his brother in the restaurant business. His saloon business here will be conducted by Frank Carringer, who comes here from Jackson.

Miss Alice Isabel Finley, of Detroit, assisted by Professor Blinkinsop with his wonderful makeover machine, and 25 or 30 spinsters of Chelsea, will hold their maiden ladies' convention at the town hall Friday evening, Oct. 6. Everybody come. Price 25 cents.

The Bay View Reading Circle met at the home of Mrs. C. Martin, Sept. 11, to reorganize. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. C. Stimson; first vice president, Mrs. J. R. Gates; second vice president, Mrs. G. W. Palmer; secretary, Miss Mary A. VanTye.

Fred J. Vogel, of Pleasant Lake, postmaster of Freedom, is strongly in favor of rural mail delivery. He says it would be worth more to him to receive his mail daily, than the paltry salary he is now paid as fourth class postmaster. He thinks the farmers want rural free mail delivery and they should have it.

The supreme court has decided that an ordinance requiring property owners to build sidewalks of tar, stone, or cement is not void as being unreasonable or an unlawful interference with private property. The court says: "A wooden sidewalk requires more constant examination and care than does a stone or cement one" and speaks of its getting out of repair or unsafe more easily.

Homer Townsend was out in the country Sunday afternoon and tied his horse to a fence while he went over in a field to a tree to get some hickory nuts. When he returned and attempted to get into the buggy the horse moved on and Mr. Townsend was thrown out. His right arm struck the wheel which also passed over it, breaking it about half way between the elbow and shoulder.

Rt. Rev. John S. Foley, D. D., bishop of Detroit, confirmed a class of 50 at St. Joseph's church, Dexter, on Friday morning in the presence of a large congregation. The bishop was assisted in the solemn service by Rev. Frs. Baumgardner, of Detroit; Ryan, of Dexter; Comerford, of Pinckney; Goldrick, of Northfield; Considine, of Chelsea, and Hennessey, of Brighton. In the afternoon the bishop confirmed a class of 44 at St. Patrick's church, Northfield.

Mr. Bert J. Howlett and Miss Carrie McClaskie, the former preceptress of the Chelsea high school, are to be married at the home of the bride in Lapeer on Wednesday evening next at 6 o'clock. Rev. C. S. Jones, pastor of the Chelsea Congregational church, will perform the ceremony. The young couple will enter the U. of M., where Mr. Howlett will study dentistry and the lady will enter the literary department. They have a host of friends in Chelsea and vicinity who will wish them Godspeed.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wackenhut, of Sylvan, had been married 20 years last Sunday, and in order that they might not forget the fact their numerous relatives planned a surprise on them. About 10 o'clock Sunday morning 30 of them proceeded in a body to the Wackenhut home carrying with them the wherewithal for a bountiful dinner, which was heartily enjoyed at noon. A number of handsome presents were left as mementoes of the occasion. It was a complete surprise and Mr. and Mrs. Wackenhut were highly pleased to be so kindly remembered.

DEWEY HOME AGAIN.

Unexpected Arrival of the Olympia Off New York.

In Ahead of Schedule Time—The Great Naval Hero Receives a Magnificent Ovation at the Naval Parade.

New York, Sept. 27.—Admiral George Dewey arrived off New York at dawn Tuesday morning, and anchored in American waters in the light of Sandy Hook.

The admiral was in his own country again, after 23 months' absence. He had returned "great with the arduous greatness of things done," and he scarcely seemed to realize it.

Visitors Arrive.

The admiral's first business was to send an officer ashore with telegrams for the navy department, Mayor Van Wyck and Gen. Butterfield, announcing the arrival. During the day he had many notable visitors, among the first being Sir Thomas Lipton, Rear Admiral Sampson, Rear Admiral Philip, Commander P. D. J. Kelley and Capt. Chadwick also called to pay their respects.

A Message of Welcome.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The navy department has sent the following formal message of welcome to Admiral Dewey:

"Navy Department, Washington, Sept. 26.—Admiral George Dewey, Sandy Hook: The department is happy to learn of your safe arrival, and extends to you and your officers and crew the most cordial welcome. (Signed) "JOHN D. LONG."

Welcomed by Gen. Roosevelt.

New York, Sept. 29.—Gov. Roosevelt officially welcomed Admiral Dewey to New York Thursday in the name of the people of the Empire state. This was the most interesting event on Thursday's Dewey card.

The governor, with his entire staff and under escort of the naval militia of the state of New York, made his official call at one o'clock in the afternoon. He also paid his respects to Rear Admirals Howison and Sampson, while at the naval anchorage at Tompkinsville. Gov. Roosevelt, who was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Avery D. Andrews, Gen. Greene and all the ex-captains of Admiral Dewey's fleet, went down the bay on the steam yacht Wild Duck at noon.

After Gov. Roosevelt's official call he held a reception on the old frigate New Hampshire, now used as the headquarters of the naval militia of the state of New York, moored at Tompkinsville.

Gen. Wesley Merritt, commander of the department of the east, also visited the admiral Thursday and congratulated him in the name of Secretary Root, the war department and the army.

Official visits were paid in return Thursday by the admiral and the officers of the Olympia.

Three hundred and fifty men who fought under Dewey at Manila were presented Thursday morning, on board the Olympia, with the bronze medals awarded them by congress.

Receives a Magnificent Ovation.

New York, Sept. 30.—No victorious king or prince coming home from a successful war ever received such a magnificent ovation as overwhelmed Admiral Dewey Friday as he stood on the bridge of the Olympia at the head of a magnificent fleet of steel thunderers of the deep, followed by a thousand vessels of peace, each tiered and coated black with people, and sailed over the bright waters of the upper bay and up the broad pathway of the sunlit river, whose banks were gay with millions of flags and streamers dancing in the wind.

Salute at Grant's Tomb.

As the tomb of Gen. Grant on Riverside drive was reached the fleet paid its tribute to the memory of the great warrior with a national salute of 21 roaring guns. The fleet then anchored and reviewed the almost endless procession of craft that steamed past. Toward the end the parade became disorganized and it took hours for the heterogeneous flotilla to get by. Darkness at last brought relief to the tired admiral, who had stood on the bridge for six hours bowing his acknowledgments to the stentorian expression of homage.

Viewed by 3,000,000 People.

New York has never witnessed before anything approaching this wonderful, remarkable demonstration. The Columbian naval parade, the dedication of Grant's tomb and the reception of the North Atlantic squadron last fall all pale before this gigantic ovation to the sailor who in a single morning destroyed an enemy's fleet without the loss of a man or a ship. It is not beyond the mark to say that 3,000,000 people viewed the pageant from ashore and that a quarter of a million were afloat. There were nearly 500 vessels in all in the parade, and it took them more than three hours to pass a given point.

At Night.

At night, viewed from the roofs of any of the high buildings downtown, New York appeared an enchanted city. The great buildings were bright with dazzling light and gorgeous color. On the rivers were fairy barges; in the sky flashing shafts of blue. The water seemed a river of lambent flame. Brooklyn bridge was a halo of glory from end to end, the feature being an electrical welcome to Dewey. Great searchlights played from Brooklyn over the East river.

WRECK OF THE SCOTSMAN.

Fifteen of Her Passengers Are Lost—Survivors Robbed by Members of the Crew.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 30.—Two hundred and fifty scantily-clad, baggage-bereft men, women and children were on board of an intercolonial special which steamed into Bonaventure depot Friday night. They comprised the greater number of those who sailed from Liverpool on September 14 on board the steamship Scotsman, bound for Montreal, which was wrecked on the shores of the straits of Belle Isle at half-past two on the morning of the 21st. It was not only a tale of shipwreck that they had to tell, but one of death, of suffering and pillage. For 15 at least of the Scotsman's passengers perished; all suffered cruelly from cold and privation, and, almost the worst horror of all, the men who were supposed to succor and assist those committed to their care in the hour of need turned on the helpless passengers and with loaded guns and revolvers compelled them to part with the few valuables saved. Capt. Skrimshire and his officers were exceptions. For the honor of the British merchant marine the crime may not be ascribed to the men engaged in it, but to a gang of wharf rats and hangers-on, picked up on the docks at Liverpool to replace the usual crew of the Scotsman, which joined the seamen's strike on the other side.

All who perished were women. This is accounted for by the fact that they were occupants of the first boat which left the steamer after she struck and which was swamped before it could get clear of the ship.

Hardly had the vessel struck before men from the stokehole rushed into the cabins, and, slitting open valises and bags with their knives, took all the valuables they could lay their hands on. Several of them fired shotguns and tried to force men to leave their cabins. In more than one instance rings were torn from the fingers of fainting and dying women. Capt. Skrimshire and his officers could do nothing against the mob.

When morning came it was found that the Scotsman lay close inshore, alongside a cliff fully a thousand feet high. After much hard work the passengers were gotten safely ashore.

A quantity of biscuit was carried on shore, and on this, with a very little corned beef and wild berries, over 200 people existed for four days, when they signaled the Montfort and the steamship Grecian and were taken ashore.

IS ALMOST DUE.

Development of Transvaal Crisis Is Expected Within a Few Days.

London, Sept. 28.—A few days now should witness a definite development in the crisis in the Transvaal. The volksraad was sitting in secret session Wednesday evening and the burghers doubtless had the result of the deliberations of the Orange Free State volksraad to guide them in making a decision as to the reply to Mr. Chamberlain's latest dispatch, which will probably be handed to the British diplomatic agent at Pretoria, Mr. Conyngham Greene, to-day, and be discussed by the British cabinet Friday.

It is understood that the next British note will virtually demand the absolute fulfillment of the conventions of 1881 and 1884, which have been violated in numerous points, but will accept a five-years' limit for the franchise.

Cablegrams from Pretoria and Cape Town show that the general impression prevails there that the Boers will not recede from their position, and that the feeling of unrest at Pretoria has been intensified. A dispatch announces that the Transvaal government has begun to appoint officers to go to the front in case of hostilities.

The First Snow.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 30.—The first snow of the season fell here Friday morning. Light flurries followed during the day. A strong wind prevailed. This is the earliest snowfall here in many years.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 30.—A heavy snowstorm prevailed here all day and reports are that the storm was general all over the upper peninsula. Three inches of snow fell. A heavy gale on the lake has driven in a dozen boats for shelter.

Off for Manila.

San Francisco, Sept. 30.—Three transports will sail to-day for Manila. They are the Charles Nelson, Glengole and Sheridan. The Sheridan will carry the Thirty-third regiment, three companies of the Thirty-second and 75 recruits. The Glengole will carry seven companies of the Thirty-second and the Nelson two companies of the same command. In all over 2,500 men will be on their way to Manila by to-night.

Three Boys Burned to Death.

Princeton, Ill., Sept. 28.—Three boys were burned to death Tuesday night in a farmhouse 15 miles southeast of here. The father and mother saved themselves because they were sleeping on the ground floor. The victims were James and Henry, nephews, and John, a son of Miguel Wild, who was the owner of the burned dwelling.

NOW IN WASHINGTON.

President and Admiral Meet at the White House.

Imposing Greeting to Dewey at the National Capital—City Decorated and Illuminated—Reviews a Great Parade.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The homecoming of Admiral George Dewey—henceforth the national capital is to be his home—was made the occasion for the greatest tribute ever paid by Washington to any individual. After the preliminary welcome in New York, itself unsurpassed in its kind, it remained for the highest and greatest in the official world to hold out the hand of greeting to the famous admiral and to join with the people who are to be his fellow citizens in bidding him welcome.

The train, as it reached the line of the District of Columbia, stopped for a few minutes at the little station of Deanwood while the reception committee went through the formality of presenting the nation's guest the freedom of the district. The ceremony was performed by District Commissioner Wight in the presence of the admiral's fleet captains, the military and naval members of the party and as many of the reception committee as could be crowded into the admiral's car.

In a few minutes the train was in the brilliantly lighted depot. The middle aisle of the station had been carpeted clear to the carriage entrance. The committeemen and the "fighting line," as the brilliantly uniformed officers were termed, all alighted, while W. H. Moses, the chairman of the reception committee; Theodore Noyes, of the Evening Star; Commissioner Ross, and Archibald Greenlee went into the admiral's car, and after a few words of formal greeting, brought him out. Taking the arm of Mr. Moses, the admiral headed the procession down the station, while the officers and committeemen fell in at the rear. It was a procession as brilliant as a diplomatic reception.

Greeted by Secretary Long.

As the admiral's carriage swung around the treasury towards the white house a brilliant spectacle was spread out before him. To the right La Fayette square was ablaze with electric lights, the great trees and flower beds sparkling with many-hued lights, while in the midst shone out in huge electric letters: "Welcome, Admiral." The navy department beyond was ablaze with lights, as were the white house grounds. A mighty roar went up from the crowd as the admiral alighted at the portico of the executive mansion. As he stepped from the carriage Col. Bingham, representing the president, stepped forward to escort him to the east room, where Secretary Long, Assistant Secretary Allen and a brilliant assemblage of naval officials were ready to extend to him the greeting of the navy. Secretary Long was at the door, and as the admiral entered the secretary grasped his hand and with enthusiasm said: "Admiral, I welcome you home. This is the navy department for the moment, and your associates of the navy are assembled here to give you a hearty greeting."

"Thank you, thank you," responded Admiral Dewey, first exchanging a few words of greeting with the secretary and then with Mr. Allen and the other officials.

President and Admiral Meet.

There was little need of introduction, as Admiral Dewey had served alongside most of these officials. There was no formality, and after the first greetings Secretary Long invited the admiral to accompany him to the president's library, where Mr. McKinley and the members of the cabinet were awaiting him. Arm in arm Secretary Long and the admiral proceeded by the elevator to the upper floor of the mansion. The members of the cabinet had assembled in the cabinet room, while the president was alone in the library adjoining. As Secretary Long entered with the admiral, the president came forward to greet the famous sailor, and grasping his hand wished him a hearty welcome.

The admiral acknowledged the cordial sentiments expressed by the president, and then asked as to the health of Mrs. McKinley, saying he had heard with great regret that she had not been well. In reply the president suggested that the admiral meet Mrs. McKinley. They stepped out to the corridor, which Mrs. McKinley makes a sitting-room, and here found her with some of her lady friends. The admiral was presented and received from Mrs. McKinley as well as the president a most hearty welcome home.

The head of the civic parade which had been arranged in honor of the admiral began to pass in review before him shortly after eight o'clock. There were many novel and interesting features relieving the sameness of the ordinary civic parade. The spectacle as the marchers came up the length of the avenue in the glare of the red lights under sweeping arches of stars from thousands of roman candles, was beautiful and impressive. The beginning of the march was heralded by the bursting of thousands of giant crackers while bombs along the line sent showers of fire into the air.

DO GIRLS LACK HONOR?

Some of Them Make It a Practice to Neglect Their Small Monetary Obligations.

Many men there are who insist that the majority of girls of to-day are lacking in honor if not in common honesty. One man, who is well to do in the world and does not care a rush for a dollar and is continually loaning small sums to his young women friends, asserts that he has seldom if ever been repaid, and fears that he would be attacked with heart palpitation if a tender of payment of these loans should be made. But men are not the only victims of the borrowing girl. She frequently mules those of her own sex. It may be safely said that the girl who borrows half a dollar from a girl chum when shopping because her own funds have been exhausted and then fails to return it as soon as she receives her next week's allowances is the very girl who, when she becomes a housekeeper, will thrust all of her bills into a drawer, shut them up, and finally scheme all sorts of ways to meet them, and, failing in her ability to do so, pout and say that the tradespeople are "mean things" not to extend her credit, says an exchange. Every school-girl knows the type of girl who would not be thought stingy for the world, is jolly and ready to "go halves" on all sorts of fun, yet who often neglects to reimburse the one who has stood the whole expense because at the moment it was more convenient or less conspicuous to do so. This girl will finally meet the obligation, but she will do so at her convenience. Maybe the girl who has "footed the bill" will suffer all sorts of little inconveniences because of the unusual demand made upon her purse, but pride forbidding her mentioning it she just suffers in silence.

The girl even with an almost limitless income should be taught to know that she is one of the fortunate few, that perhaps her girl associates must be as careful of their pennies as she is of her dollars, and that without show or any indication of patronage she should always meet and never neglect any obligation.

TAFFETA PETTICOAT.

Fashion Leaders Consider This the Very Latest Novelty in Dainty French Lingerie.

A design which reflects positive pride upon the very elegant family of silk petticoats can be developed after this pattern in striped turquoise blue taffeta with trimmings of lace and black ribbon velvet. The skirt is close fitting at the top and is hung upon a pointed yoke of black satin, or turquoise blue can be substituted for the black.

The front panel of the skirt is made of heavy insertion which has its pattern outlined with narrow cords of black

TURQUOISE SILK PETTICOAT.

It seems a pity too that so much elegance must be kept from view, but when it is considered that these petticoats are worn in the boudoir with fancy dressing saques to match, the trouble and expense of getting them up are not regretted.

Around the foot of the skirt are six accordion plaited ruffles, each put on with a heading finished with a tiny ruffle of lace. Lover's knot of the ribbon velvet are scattered over the skirt with studied negligence. Worn under a thin gown of the same color, without a lining, the effect of such a petticoat is delightful.

Gloss for Shirt Fronts.

Pound two ounces of fine white gum arabic to a powder, put it in a pitcher and pour over it one pint of boiling water. Cover and let it set all night. Carefully pour from the dregs into a clean bottle. Cork and keep for use. One tablespoonful stirred into a pint of starch produces a lovely gloss on linen, and is quite harmless to the material.

MISS LEONORA JACKSON.

Talented Young Chicago Violinist Who Has Recently Been Honored by Queen Victoria.

Miss Leonora Jackson is the young American violinist who lately had the honor of playing before the queen and royal family at Windsor, and was presented to her majesty and has since received a jeweled star bearing the royal monogram in rubies and sapphires. Miss Jackson played Mendelssohn's concerto and the rondo of Saint-Saens with the queen's private band, conducted by Sir Walter Parratt. It is now only just over a year since she made her truly triumphal entry into London at the Queen's hall symphony concerts, and since has played at all the leading London concerts as well as all over the provinces with the Scottish, Halle and Philharmonic orchestras; and during a very successful visit to Paris she played before the king of Sweden and the Infanta

Eulalie of Spain. Long before she ever came east Miss Jackson's talent had attracted much notice, and it was her admirers, amongst them the Vanderbilts and the Pullmans, who subscribed for her further education in the old world; and after spending two years in Paris she went to Berlin and there worked under Dr. Joachim for four, and in October, 1896, made a most brilliant debut at the Berlin philharmonic concerts, her master conducting. Miss Jackson is always accompanied by her brother, who is a very clever pianist and his sister's most devoted admirer. —St. Paul's (London).

CRUMBS OF BREAD.

How to Prepare Them So That They Can Be Kept Almost Indefinitely Without Moulding.

Crumbs of bread are always valuable in breading chops and other meats for frying, to spread over scalloped dishes, fried meats, fish and for other purposes, as well as for puddings and sweet dishes.

The secret of preparing these crumbs so they will keep indefinitely without mold is to dry them so that all moisture is removed from them. Spread the bread on a tin in the warming oven under or above the stove, as it is located, and after it is perfectly dry roll it out and sift the crumbs. Roll out those that will not go through the sieve, and roll and sift them again until there is merely a handful of crumbs in the sieve. These few coarse crumbs are valuable for frying in butter, when used to scatter over macaroni, noodles and other pastes prepared to serve with meats. For puddings dried crumbs should have boiling milk poured over them, and they should remain soaking in the milk for half an hour or longer until the milk has cooled, when eggs, raisins or fruit is added and seasoning is put in. Such puddings are excellent baked slowly or boiled in a form. For stuffing the soft crumbs inside a loaf of stale bread are used instead of dry crumbs. Dried crumbs make sweeter puddings. Toasts for use as a garnish to soup or to serve with game or chicken should be cut up in ornamental shapes in the quantity while soft, dried thoroughly and stored away in boxes for use when required. When needed, brush them over with melted butter and brown them in the oven or fry them a delicate brown in hot fat. —N. Y. Tribune.

Something New About Palms.

A new wrinkle which a florist of New York city indorses is that the leaves of palms should be washed, not with pure water, but with milk and water, which has a wonderful way of preserving them and preventing the appearance of brown spots which are so disfiguring. Another suggestion about palms is that a little cold coffee poured over the earth at the roots occasionally will be found beneficial. Coffee is a good fertilizer and is used a great deal by reputable florists.

Shopping by Mail.

The John M. Smyth Co. of Chicago are devoting a great deal of attention to developing trade throughout the West and South by mail. The concern is one of the largest in the City of Chicago, and has been well and favorably known throughout that city and the North and West for many years. They are now ready to mail to any ready of this paper on receipt of 10c, to partly pay postage or expressage and as evidence of good faith, their mammoth catalogue, which contains illustrated descriptions and prices of every conceivable article and necessity needed in the home or on the farm. The ten cents paid for the mailing of the catalogue is allowed on the first purchase amounting to $1.00 or above. Everyone sending for the catalogue will also receive their monthly grocery price list free every month. People living outside of large cities should send for the John M. Smyth Co. catalogue and compare prices quoted in this catalogue for all articles of home consumption, hardware, dry goods, grocery, notions, clothing, etc., with prices which they are paying. Readers who send to John M. Smyth Co., 150 to 166 W. Madison St., Chicago, for their catalogue should not fail to mention this paper.

Chicago is all agog over the Festival, and the Battle of Manila, Wabash Ave. and Hubbard Ct., has made extra preparations for presenting Dewey's victory on a grand scale during the festival. The building will be one of the most gorgeously decorated in the city. The already incomparable electric effects, that have held hundreds of thousands of people spellbound, and caused all patriotic and loyal hearts to beat fast, will be given on an extraordinarily grand scale. Visit the Battle of Manila when you go to Chicago. Let the other person miss it, but not you. The world has never seen such an exciting realistic and inspiring exhibition. JOE WHEELER'S CHARGE AT SAN JUAN HILL.

Major General Joseph Wheeler, commanding the cavalry forces in front of Santiago and the author of "The Santiago Campaign," in speaking of the great catarrh remedy, Per-na, says: "I join with Senators Sullivan, Roach and McEnery in their good opinion of Per-na. It is recommended to me by those who have used it as an excellent tonic and particularly effective as a cure for catarrh."

United States Senator McEnery.

Hon. S. D. McEnery, United States Senator from Louisiana, says the following in regard to Per-na: "Per-na is an excellent tonic. I have used it sufficiently to say that I believe it to be all that you claim for it."—S. D. McEnery, New Orleans, Louisiana.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

If there is one thing on which the housewife prides herself, it is that of having her laundering done nicely, so that the wearing apparel may be the admiration of all. The washing is a small matter, any one almost can do that, but to have the linens present that flexible and glossy appearance after being ironed requires a fine quality of starch. Ask your grocer for a coupon book which will enable you to get the first two packages of this new starch—"Red Cross" trade mark brand, also two of the children's Shakespeare pictures painted in twelve beautiful colors as natural as life, or the Twentieth Century Girl Calendar, all absolutely free. This is one of the grandest offers ever made to introduce "Red Cross" laundry starch, J. C. Hubinger's latest invention.

FOE DRIVEN BACK.

Fourth Regiment Indulges in Some Severe Fighting with Filipinos Near Imus.

Washington, Oct. 3.—A dispatch from Gen. Otis was received at the war department Monday morning giving an account of his meeting with the insurgent envoys. Gen. Otis said the interview with Aguinaldo's representatives indicated that the leaders were maneuvering solely with a view to secure recognition of the insurgent government. All such overtures were rejected and the envoys were informed that the only thing the United States would recognize was a white flag and the grounding of arms. He also informed the envoys that such capitulation on the part of the insurgents should come quickly, in order to avoid the consequences of active war, as the United States did not intend to permit any delay in the matter. The course of Gen. Otis is approved at the war department.

Secretary Root took the dispatch from Gen. Otis over to the white house for the president's consideration.

Manila, Oct. 3.—The Filipino envoys called on Maj. Gen. Otis Monday and discussed matters with no result. Gen. Alejandrino said to a representative of the press that he had no instructions, except to deliver a letter, which was rejected.

Gen. Alejandrino and the two other Filipino envoys who accompanied him have returned to Angeles by special train.

The Fourth infantry regiment, Maj. Price commanding, has had a series of encounters with the insurgents about Imus since Saturday. The natives were led, it is supposed, by a former mayor of Imus, and made a general attack upon the American lines from Imus to Bacoor. A captain and a corporal of the American forces were killed and eight men were wounded. A Filipino colonel is known to have been killed. Maj. Price requested Rear Admiral Watson to send two gunboats to his support. The fighting began on Saturday, when Capt. Brown took the same battalion that distinguished itself at Perez Das Marinas and Lieut. Knabenshue's scouts against a large force of insurgents on the Perez Das Marinas road and a general engagement followed. The Americans, lying in the mud in the rice fields, kept up a fire for an hour and a half, when reinforcements were sent to them until seven companies were engaged. The insurgents retreated. During the engagement three Americans were wounded. The fighting Sunday began with an attack by the insurgents on a party repairing the telegraph lines, one member of which was wounded.

AWFUL RESULTS.

Recent Earthquakes in Asia Minor Estimated to Have Caused Loss of 1,500 Lives.

Constantinople, Oct. 3.—It is now estimated that 1,500 persons perished in the earthquakes in Asia Minor, around Aidin. The first shock occurred at four in the morning of September 20 and lasted 40 seconds. The effects were appalling. Whole villages were completely destroyed. The earthquake was felt as far as Scio, Mitylene and Smyrna. The latest advices from the stricken area show that men, women and children were buried in the ruins of their dwelling places before they realized their danger. Numbers of bodies still lie beneath the debris. About 500 persons were killed at Sarakeni and some 500 at Denizli, where three-fourths of the buildings fell. There was proportionate loss of life in many of the smaller villages. The disturbance has not yet subsided, although its strength appears to be spent. The shocks continue almost daily, but with no great violence. The population is encamped in the open. One consequence of the earthquake is the subsidence of the level of the Aidin district by two yards. Sulphurous springs burst out in the valley of Noander and the country between Aidin and Denizli became full of swamps, out of which rushed black, muddy water with sufficient volume to wash away a flock of 1,000 sheep.

Connecticut Elections.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 3.—One hundred and sixty-two of the 168 towns in the state Monday elected officials. Returns up to midnight had been received from 133 towns of the 162 voting, and the tables show republican victories in 101 towns and democratic success in 32. Full returns from all the towns in the election of 1898 showed 98 towns to be republican, 27 democratic and 43 divided. Comparing the full returns of last year with the returns received thus far from Monday's election, the republicans have gained nine towns and the democrats five, these gains coming from the towns classified last year as divided.

Andree Passed the Pole.

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 3.—The buoy marked "Andree Polar Expedition," which, with an anchor attached, was found September 9 on the north coast of King Charles island by the master of the Norwegian cutter Martha Larssak, was opened in the presence of a number of experts and members of the cabinet. It was found to be the so-called north pole buoy which Andree had arranged to drop if he succeeded in passing the pole.

THE very word "operation" strikes terror to a woman's soul. Nearly always these operations become necessary through neglect. If the menses are very painful, or too frequent and excessive, get the right advice at once and stop taking chances. It will cost you nothing for advice if you write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for it, and if you let, the trouble run along it will surely cost you a great deal of pain and may mean an operation.

by prompt attention to it. Pinkham's advice.

WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

MISS SARAH J. GRAHAM, Sheridanville, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I had suffered for several years with female troubles and doctored until I was discouraged. I felt wretched and tired of living. I had disease of kidneys, bladder trouble, dropsy and bloating, had womb trouble and a large tumor had formed; in fact all my organs were out of fix.

"Seeing a woman's letter praising your remedies, I wrote to her and she begged of me to try it, telling me all that it had done for her. I bought six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now cannot express my gratitude to you. The tumor began to come away in pieces and I got better all the time. I believe now that I am entirely cured.

"My doctors could not believe it at first, as they all had told me that my case was a hopeless one, and no human power could do me any good. They were astounded. If I can say anything that can help other women, I shall be glad to."

It is not safe to wait until the last moment. Head off trouble. Don't be satisfied without Mrs.
