A FINE ENTERTAINMENT.

That Given by the Ariel Ladies' Quartette Monday Night.

The financial success of the Peoples' Popular Course of entertainments under the M. E. church is assured by the large number of season tickets that have been most stirring nature. sold, and its success as an amusement feature is as fully assured if the balance

The ladies are gifted with excellent harmonious sweetness. Particularly was he was devotedly attached. It was after being closeted for two hours with the dead body of this brother that Sir Arthur Sullivan sat down at the piano and composed the song, all through whose beautiful harmony can be heard the strain of grief. Their other numbers were bright, cheerful and pleasing, the rendering of 'Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son," in which an exceedingly clever imitation of the bag pipes was given, being very amusing.

Miss Annie F. Abbott's violin solo was a gem and her selection for an encore was equally attractive. She played with an ease and brilliancy that was charming.

Miss Edith Woodill's readings possessed a charm that was irresistible. Her rendition of "Old Folks" made one almost see the great race for the Oaks and the quaint little nigger jockey riding for dear life to win the race for his master. In the reading "Woman's Rights," she convulsed her hearers with laughter with her imita tion of the absurd gestures made by a speaker who used her cork arm to Mention was made in the Herald some time ago of the spell that had been cast over the family of Thomas Curtis, a wealthy farmer of Rome township, Lenawee county, who is the father-in-law of Herbert Rushton, of Manchester, even vented from turning his farm and other property over to them by his son-in-law starting the machinery of the law in operation against the apostles by applying to the probate court of Lenawee county to have a guardian placed over him.

Four of the apostles, Theodore Bird, Theodore Williams, Charles Ray and Jay Lawrence were arrested and last Thursday in the Lenawee circuit court they were convicted of conspiring to gain control of Curtis' property.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

Rev. C. S. Jones Designates Intemperance as America's Great Foe from Within.

At the Congregational church Sunday evening, Rev. C. S. Jones delivered before the auspices of the Epworth League of the W. C. T. U. and a large audience an address on temperance which was of a

He prefaced his remarks by saying that it was the greatest of all the questions of to the day. That America has no reason to fear her foes from without, but it is the foe of intemperance within that will ruin her fair prospects unless it is stamped out.

Among other things he spoke of the 76 voices which blend beautifully together in saloons in Washtenaw county as compared with 49 in Kalamazoo county, the populathis noticeable in the last number, Sir tions being about equal, but the University Arthur Sullivan's famous melody "The is in this county, and said those who are to Lost Chord," the wail of a throbbing heart blame for such a condition of affairs are stricken with the grief of desolation the people themselves. The law gives the caused by the death of a brother to whom people power to stamp out the saloous and they are too apathetic to move in the Coming down to figures he showed that the educational bill of the United States was $83.500,000; the army and navy bill $184,500,000; there was only $500,000,000 appropriated for the war with Spain, and that was not all used; the standing armies of six great nations cost only $806,287,549 a year; but the drink bill of the United State was as much as all these put together being in round numbers $1,500,000,000. The total mortality in the war with Spain was 2,910. The "foe from within" killed 70,000 people last year.

There are laws to regulate the saloon business, but the business men and citi zens are afraid to enforce them. Michigan imposes a tax of $500 on each saloon. The municipality has the power to increase the tax. If it is a matter of busi ess with the people as to how many dollars they get out of the tax, why not get enough out of it to make it worth while-make it $2,000.

He urged on his hearers the necessity of united action in dealing with the sup-Miss Florence Dyer has a fine soprano pression of the saloon and intemperance.

STORY OF FINANCES.

Treasurer Roberts Reports on the Nation's Revenues.

Effect of the New Law on Receipts-Increased Growth of Circulation of Gold Coin and Standard Silver Dollars.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Hon. Ellis H. Roberts, the treasurer of the United States, in his annual report to Secretary Gage sums up the operations of the last fiscal year by saying that "A notable activity was exhibited in all kinds of currency, with a marked increase in the use of gold coin and in a less degree of silver coin, while the prosperity of the country has at no time left any part of the government notes in the treasury above the demands of daily business in its several offices."

The Revenues. He says: The effect of the new revenue law is shown in the receipts for the year, in which there was an increase over 1898 of $56,553,419 from customs and $102,536,520 from internal revenue. The collections of internal revenue were larger than those for any previous year, with the exception only of 1866, and the total ordinary receipts, which amounted to $515,960,620, were also the largest on record, with the same exception. The net ordinary expenditures were a little over $605,000,000, an amount exceeded only twice-in 1863 and 1864. There was a deficiency of $89,111,559 in the ordinary Inclusive of loans and the issue of notes and certificates the total receipts on all accounts, by warrants, were $1,038,451,840 and the total disbursements $946,222,148. With the addition of the proceeds of the new three per cent, loan to the ordinary revenues there was a fiscal surplus of $100,-791,521 for the year. The receipts from the soan represented every part of the country.

In an Independent Position. By the improved revenues and the new loan the treasury, notwithstanding the heavy war expenditures, was placed in the independent position so necessary to the soundness of the financial system of the country. The change was no less marked in the aggregate of available resources than in their character, for the gain in the total holdings was almost entirely in gold, and the treasury not only refused tenders of gold in exchange for paper, but increased the use of gold in the disburse-

Pacific Railway Bonds.

Aside from the issue of the three per cent. bonds the most important event affecting the public debt was the falling due, on January 1 last, of the last of the bonds issued for the construction of the Pacific railroads. Of these $13,970,000 were presented and paid, leaving $79,000 of the loan outstanding, all past due and bearing no ir-

Our Paper Money.

There were in circulation June 30, 1898, $286,572,329 in United States notes, $98,665.580 in treasury notes, $390,659,080 in silver cernotes. On June 30, 1899, the amounts were: United States notes, $310,547,349; treasury notes, $92,605,792; silver certificates, $401, 869,343, and national bank notes, $237,832, 594. The paper in circulation was thus increased during the year by $43,828,386. As result of these changes the treasury holdings of government paper fell, between the two dates, in United States notes from $34,-063,687 to $15,278,667 in treasury notes from $2,541,700 to $912,488 and in silver certificates from $7,897,424 to $4,216,161. By continuance of the process of retiring treasury notes of 1890, redeemed in standard silver dollars, the amount of the notes outstanding was reduced during the year from $101,207,280 to $93,518,280.

Gold Circulation.

The gold coin in circulation, all in these denominations, steadily increased from $478,771,490, September 30, 1896, to $646,361,185 on the same date in 1899. In the small notes there was a shrinkage of $11,522,157 from 1896 to 1897, but in the next year there was an increase of $41,657,037, and from 1898 to 1899 the amount ran up by $58,665,456. During that year the increase of these denomi nations of both gold and paper was $82, 576,789. The total addition to the paper circulation in the same period was $101,839,641, of which $43,174,225 was in the larger denominations. The addition to the gold in circulation during the year was $23,911,378, and this, added to the increase of the paper outstanding, makes a total increase of $125,

Silver Circulation Increases.

In the fiscal year 1898 the ten treasury offices paid out $40,832,149 in standard silver dollars, and in 1899 $42,532,296, an increase of $1,700,147. At the same time the receipts of standard dollars were $54,007,934 in 1898 and $37,581,040 in 1899, a decrease of $16,426,-894. These changes indicate a growing circulation of these coins. Previous to this year the maximum of silver dollars in circulation at the close of any month was reached in December, 1890, as the result of urgent efforts to promote their use, when the record was $67,547,023.

Shows Healthy Increase.

In the fiscal year 1898 gold coin was taken for 10.03 per cent. of the receipts from customs, amounting to $2,076,736,587, and given for H.83 per cent. of the disbursements, amounting to $2,195,973,013. In 1899 the receipts of $2,393,199,747 showed $7.6 per cent. and the disbursements of $2,371,283,629 showed 35.37 per cent. in gold coin. For the quarter ending September 30 gold formed 38.5 per cent. of the receipts and 35.2 per cent. of the disbursements. For 21 years there has been a natural and healthy increase of gold in circulation. While disbursements of gold have been so heavy the holdings of the treasury in coin and bullion have surpassed all previous records, both in gross amount and in net excess over outstanding certificates. The former gross maximum is found in September, 1888, at $332,551,306, and the net maximum, before 1898, was $218,818,253, in March of the same On June 30, 1898, the gross gold in the treasury was $202,825,049, and the net $167,004,410. These figures rose to $353,002,380 gross and $254,328,821, net, September 30 1899. These statistics make plain a tendency to an increase in the use of coin of all kinds. On October, 1, 1899, the estimated amount of gold in circulation was 33.18 per cent. of all the currency, and the gold in the treasury was 60.44 per cent. of the United States notes and treasury notes outstanding. Easy to Establish Reserve.

These resources, the treasurer suggests, would make it easy to establish a permanent and adequate gold reserve. He points that while the reserve of $100,000,000 several times has been trenched upon under pressure of necessity, the trust funds set apart for a specific object, as the gold pledged for gold certificates and the standard dollars for silver certificates, have always been kept intact. A fund of $150,$00,000 devoted by law to the purpose, with a provision that the notes once redeemed in gold should not be paid out again except for gold, would be self-sustaining and would prove a perpetual gurrantee of

How Mrs. Pinkham HELPED MRS. GOODEN.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 12,733]

"I am very grateful to you for your kindness and the interest you have taken in me, and truly believe your medicines and advice are worth more to a woman than all the doctors in the world. For years I had female troubles and did nothing for them. Of course I became no better and finally broke down entirely. My troubles began with inflammation and hemorrhages from the kidneys, then inflammation, congestion and falling of the womb and inflammation of ovaries.

"I underwent local treatment every day for some time; then after nearly two months the doctor gave me permission to go back to work. I went back, but in less than a week was compelled to give up and go to bed. On breaking down the second time, I decided to let doctors and their medicine alone and try your remedies. Before the first bottle was gone I felt the effects of it. Three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of her Sanative Wash did me more good than all the doctors' treatments and medicine.

"The first remark that greets me now is 'How much better you look!' and you may be sure I never hesitate to tell the cause of my health."-MRS, E. J. GOODEN, ACKLEY, IA.

men, and the arrangement was that we were to charge out after a volley, the first shot of which I was to fire. All being now ready, it was only necessary for us to wait. I would merely add that in order to prevent discovery by the neighing of the horses, we had muzzled ours as far as possible. There was now a dead silence, that was only broken by the rustle of the leaves overhead, an occasional crack amongst the dry boughs as a squirrel moved against them, or the uneasy movement of a horse, which caused a clink | it was done, Carillon bade me farewell. He of a chain-bit, and a straining sound made by the leathers of the saddlery, that was not | Armande, and when he reached it, I wit in reality so loud as it seemed; but caused | there was sorrow in the Picard chateau, Jacopo and Bande Nere to scowl fiercely at whence madame took her name. It was with the unfortunate rider, a scowl which was a heart of lead that I rode into Sassoferrato, only equaled by their stolidly impassive and there, as arranged, made over my prize faces, when their own beasts sinned. We to Hawkwood. The tale of the ducats was had not long to wait; presently we heard | complete, and the Englishman, giving me my voices shouting, the clatter of horses trot- | quittance, held out his hand, saying bluntly: ting, a rapid reining in at the ascent, and a number of followers and lackeys, some mounted on horses, others on mules, with led mules beside them, came past, and went on, heedless of the eager faces watching them through the trees. One or two of our had flung me forth as a thing too vile to horses became so uneasy that I was afraid touch, and now—it was an easy matter to that what with this, and the thwacking of | wound. The kind world was going to forgive their animals, and in some cases the efforts to remain on, we remained unnoticed. Then there was a short interval, and the suspense was strained to breaking point. In a while we heard the firm beat of a war horse's hoof, and our quarry came in view. First came Monsignore Bozardo, a tall, thin man, wrapped in a purple cloak, with a fur cap on his head. He rode a strong ambling mule, and by his side was the commander of the escort. Immediately behind were four troopers, then the mules with the ducats, adien! behind these again six other lances, whilst the rear was brought up by half-a-dozen lackeys, without a sword amongst them. But what struck me almost dumb with surprise was that the leader of the escort was none other than D'Entrangues himself. There could be no mistake, his visor was up, and I | trangues as well. Recognition was almost saw the sallow face, the long red mustache, and almost caught the cold glint of his cruel eye. At last! I raised my arquebus and covered him. At last! But a touch of my nnger and the man was dead. I could not | the oak forests of the Nera, that the face of miss, my heart was mad within me, but my wrist was firm as steel. In another moment he would be dead, dead, and my revenge accomplished. It was already in my hand. I looked aside for a second at the line of breathless faces watching me, then back again to the muzzle of my weapon. D'Entrangues was now not 20 yards away. I could scarcely breathe as I pointed the arquebus at his heart. I had already begun to press the trigger, when something seemed to come across my mind like lightning. I saw in a moment that lonely room in the Alcity, and making across country in all dibizzi palace, where I had kneeled to my God and sworn to put aside my vengence. The weapon shook in my grasp. 'Fire, signore," whispered Jacopo hoarsely.

With an effort I jerked the muzzle in the air, and pulled the trigger. The report was followed by four others, and two of the troopers feil. The next moment we were on them with a shout, and there was a clash of steel, as fierce blows were struck and received, now and again a short angry oath, and sometimes a cry of pain. I did not want to take life, but a trooper came at me, so I had to run him through the heart, and the man fell forward under Castor's hoofs, with a yell I shall never forget. The next instant D'Entrangues and I crossed blades, and whether he recognized me or not I do not know, but he fought with a skill and fierceness I have never seen equaled. At last I lost my temper, and cut savagely at him. He parried on the forte of his blade, but so furious was the stroke that it broke the weapon in his hand, and almost unhorsed him. Reining back skillfully he avoided another cut I made at him, and drawing a yell from my men told me the day was won; but I had no ears for this, no eyes for anything, except the slight figure, which lay in and he glanced over his shoulder towards my arms gasping out its life.

'Congratulations, signore, we have taken the lot," and Jacopo, bleeding and dusty, rode up beside me. "At too great a price," I groaned; "help me to carry—" I could say no more. "Here, two of you secure those mules-Bande Nere, see to the wounded-Queen of Heaven-the chevalier-" and Jacopo, giving his sharp orders, sprang down beside me, and together we bore our unconscious burden under the shadow of the oaks. A dark figure stepped to our side, and kneeling down supported the lifeless head on his arm, whilst hot tears fell from his eyes, as he prayed over her. It was the abbe

"How did this happen?" I asked, "did I not say you were not to move?" "It was done at once," he answered, "I could not prevent it alas! How can I carry this tale back to St. Armande?"

"Water, excellency." Jacopo had brought some clear water in his helmet. I thanked him with a look, and he stepped back, leaving us three together, two who were living, and one who was going

I bathed the forehead and drawn lips, from which flowed a thin stream of blood, and as I did so her eyes opened, but the film of death was on them.

"Di Savelli-Ugo-," and she was gone. Gone like a flash, flung swiftly and fast into eternity, struck down, perhaps unwittingly, by the arm which should have been a shield to her. I have often wondered if D'Entrangues ever knew who fell to his pistol shot. If he did, God pity him! In the one glimpse I caught of his white face, as he swung round and rode off, I thought I saw a look of horror. But everything went so quickly, that then I had no time to think, and now I can recall but the end.

To her dead lips Carillon pressed his crucifix, into her dead ears he mumbled prayers. 1 knelt tearless, and prayerless, beside him, thinking only of the great love that had laid down a life.

One by one my men stole up, and stood in a half circle, leaning on the cross-handles of their swords, over which the grim, bearded faces looked down on us in pity.

Suddenly Carillon raised his crucifix aloft. "My Father," he cried, "receive her soul!" And some one said softly: "Amen!"

CHAPTER XXV. THE VENGEANCE OF CORTE.

We buried our dead; and madame slept beneath the ilex, in the courtyard at the castle, below the north wall. Over her nameless grave we raised a rude cross, and after was going, he said, to bear the story to St.

"I wronged you, Di Savelli; but I know now. We all know, for Bayard has told us." I hesitated. Many memories came to me, and there was bitter resentment in my soul. They had all been too ready to believe. They of immediate discovery, but so occupied were held out a hand, to say: "I am sorry," to the knaves in babbling together, all at once, think that a civil word would heal a hideous me, because it had wronged me. Such as it was, however, it was the world, and things had made me a little humble. After all, if the positions were reversed; if I stood in Hawkwood's place, and he in mine, how should I have acted? I would not like to > "Come," said Hawkwood, "let the past be covered. Come back-we want you." "As you will," and I took his grasp; "I will come back in a little time. Till then

"Good-by!" and we parted. Five minutes later, I was spurring to Rome, my following at my heels. It was, in a manner, putting my neck on the block, for Bozardo was probably making his way thither with all speed, and doubtless D'Encertain; but risk or no risk, I was bound to see the cardinal, and tell him my task was done. Little did I think, however, as Costor bore me, with his long, easy gallop, across affairs in Rome had been changed in an hour, and that, had I so wished, I might have, in safety, proclaimed what I had done from the very house tops. As we came nearer the city, it was evident that there was some great commotion within, for, from every quarter pillars of dim smoke rose up in spiral columns, and then spreading out like a fan hung sullenly in the yellow of the sunset. It was clear that houses were burning, and swords were out. We soon began to meet parties of fugitives, hurrying from the rections. They avoided us like the plague, and the mere glint of our arms was sufficient to make them scatter to right and left, leaving such property as they could not bear with them to the tender mercies of the roadside. Some of my men were eager to ride after the runaways, and question them; but I forbade this, knowing we should hear soon enough, and that if there were danger, it would be best to hold together. "Per Bacco!" and Jacopo, riding up beside me, pointed to a black cloud, which slowly rose and settled above the vineyards of the Pincian hill, "we had best go with a leaden boot, excellency. There is a devil's carnival in Rome, or I am foresworn.'

At this juncture, we turned an abrupt corner of the road, coming upon a crowd of fugitives, who seemed to be running forwards, caring little where they went, so that they put a distance between them and Rome. Amongst the throng was a figure I recognized; and in a mean habit, mounted on a mule, which was seized with an obstinate fit, and refused to budge, although soundly thwacked, I saw the cardinal of Strigonia. Bidding Jacopo keep the men together, I

"I see," I answered with a smile, "but if the poor brother of Mount Carmel will look more closely at me, he will see a friend. In short, your eminence, I am Di Savelli.'

"Corpo di Bacco! I mean our Lady be thanked. And so it is you, cavaliere! Take my advice, and turn your horse's head to Foligno. On beast!" and he kicked at the mule, which moved not an inch.

"I am for Rome, your eminence; but what has happened?"

"Oh, that I had a horse!" he groaned. "What has happened? Everything has happened. Alexander is dead or dying. Cesare dead, they say, and burning in hades by this, Orsini and Colonna at the old game of hammer and tongs-"

"And the cardinal-T'Amboise?" "Safe enough, I believe, as the Orsini hold the Borgo, and have declared for France." "Trust me, your reverence, you will be safer in Rome than out of it. The whole country will rise at the news, and the habit of Mount Carmel will not save the cardinal of Strigonia. Turn back with me, and I will escort you to the Palazzo Corneto.'

To make a short story, D'Este agreed after a little persuasion, and the mule was kind enough to amble back very willingly to Rome. We placed his eminence in the center of our troops, and went onwards, entering the city by the Porta Pinciana, riding along leisurely in the direction of S. Trinita di Monti, and thence straight on towards the Ripetta. It was a work of no little danger to make this last passage, for everywhere bands of plunderers were engaged in gutting the houses, many of which were in flames, and we continually came across dead bodies, or passed houses from which we heard shrieks of agony. We could help no one It was all we could do to keep our own heads on our shoulders; but by dint of shouting, 'A Colonna!" with the Colonna, and "Orsini! Orsini!" with their rivals, and sometimes hitting a shrewd blow or two, we crossed the Ripetta, and in a few minutes were safe in the Palazzo Corneto.

Here we were received by Le Clerc, who comforted the trembling Strigonia, with the assurance that an excellent supper awaited him, informing me, almost in the same breath, that D'Amboise was in the vatican. I lost no time in repairing thither, which I did on foot, accompanied by Jacopo alone, and made my way without let or hindrance to the Torre Borgia. Here everything was in the wildest confusion, and the Spanish soldiers of the pope were plundering right and left. I stumbled across De Leyva, who, with a few men at his back, was trying to maintain order. He gladly accepted the offer of my sword, and we did what we could to prevent the wholesale robbery from going on. In a brief interval of rest, I asked:

"Do you know where D'Amboise is?" "In the Sistine chapel, with half-a-dozen others; De Briconnet guards the entrance.' "And Alexander?"

"Dead or dying-I do not even know where is is; Don Michele has seized as much as he can, and, carrying Cesare on a litter has escaped to Ostia.'

"Then Casare is not dead—' "No. Cross of St. James! see that?" and he pointed to a reeling drunken crowd, full with wine and plunder, who passed by us with yells, into the great reception-rooms.

Followed by the few men who remained steady, De Leyva dashed after them, and with Jacopo at my heels, I made for the Sistine chapel. I reached the Scala Regia, and although I knew the Sistine chapel was but a few feet distant, yet, owing to the darkness that prevailed, I missed the way, and Jacopo was of course unable to help me. Groping onwards we came to a small door, and pushing it, found it to open easily. It led into a narrow, vaulted passage, where the darkness was as if a velvet curtain of black hung before us. "I do not like the look of this, excellency," said Jacopo, as we halted in front of the door.

"Keep a drawn sword," I answered, "and follow me. We could only go in single file, and picked our way with the greatest care, our feet ringing on the stone floor. Except for this, the silence was intense, and we could hear no sound of the deviltry outside. The passage continued, until we almost began to think it had no end, but at last the darkness gave way to a semigloom, and a faint bar of light gleamed ahead of us. At this we increased our pace, finding a sharp corner, a little beyond which rose a winding flight of stairs, ending before a half-open door, through which the dim light came. I put my foot on the first of the steps, and was about to ascend, when we were startled by hearing a moan of mortal agony, followed by a laugh, so wild and shrill, so exultant, and yet so full of malice, that it chilled us to the bone. It pealed through the door, and echoed down the passage behind us, until the horrid cadence became fainter and fainter, finally dying away into the black darkness.

'God save us!" exclaimed Jacopo, "it is a fiend laughing its way to hell.' He went on, with chattering teeth, to adjure me to go no further; but crossing mystammered out:

"You are mistaken, sir; I am no eminence, stead, on which lay a man bound, and writhing in the throes of death. The light, though faint around the room, fell full on the face of the man, and horribly as the features were changed, distorted as they were, I saw hey were those of Alexander, and that he was in his last agony, alone and friendless in his splendid palace. Yet not alone, there was another figure in the room. As I looked, it stepped out of the gloom of the rich curtains at the window, and standing over the bed, laughed again, that terrible laugh of devilish joy. At the sound, the dying man moaned through his black, foam-clothed lips, and Corte, for it was he, bent over the body and mocked him.

"Roderigo Borgia, Vicar of Christ, hell yawns for you; but a few moments, Borgia, but a few moments of life; think you, that you suffer now? There is more comingthings I even cannot dream of." In the face of Alexander came so awful a look of entreaty that I could bear it no longer. I stepped into the room, and putting my hand on Corte's shoulder, said:

"Come, let him die in peace." He turned on me with a snarl, but recog nizing me, laughed again. "Ha! ha! Let him die in peace. Why man, you saw her die, and can say this? But he is going too. It is a week since his doctor, Matthew Corte, bled him for an ague, and touched him with a little knife, just a little pin prick. He began to die then; but hell is not yet hot enough for him. He dies in too much peace. Why, my dog died in more agony! But he has felt something. See those torn curtains! See this disordered room! He tore those curtains in his madness. He bit at the wood of the chairs, he howled like a dog at the moon, and they tied him here, and left him. I alone watch. I will let him die in peace. Ha! ha! It is good. I do not want him to die yet. I give him food, and he lives. In a little while perhaps he will die. But in peace! ha! ha! I could almost die with laughter, when I hear that. It is too good! Ha! ha!'

I saw it was hopeless to do anything with Corte, and the pope was beyond repair. might have cut down the madman, but it would have served no purpose. For a moment I thought I would pass my sword through the Borgia, and free him from pain. It would have been a mercy, but I luckily had the sense to restrain myself. Again, Alexander deserved his fate, and a few minutes more or less would make no difference. So I left the wretch to die the death of a dog, that befitted his life, and turning on my heel, went back through the passage.

Jacopo heaved a sigh of relief as we came out, and I felt a different man as I ran down the steps of the Scala Regia. Here I met with De Leyva again, and told him what I

"The Camerlengo has just gone to him," he answered, referring to the pope, "and you have missed D'Amboise. He has returned to the Palazzo Corneto. I can do nothing here, and am going myself. Do you walk or

"Walk," I answered, and the Spaniard linked his arm in mine, as, followed by Jacopo, we took our way back to the car-

On reaching there I sought D'Amboise at once. He had heard of my arrival, and was awaiting me. After a brief greeting, I told him his business was done, and handed him the quittance I had received from Hawkwood. He was mightily pleased, as may be imagined. I felt it my duty to inform him of the death of St. Armande, telling him how it occurred, without in any way disclosing my knowledge of the secret. He was much

"It is a sad business," he said, "but we have other things to think of now. Mon Dieu! mon Dieu!" And to this day I am unaware if he knew or not.

But the night was not yet over, and late as it was, there were yet things to be done. About midnight we heard that Alexander was dead, and a few minutes later Gentil' Orsini hurried to the cardinal. They held a hasty council, and De Briconnet and I were summoned. News had come that Cesare had not yet left Ostia, that he was too ill to travel, and D'Amboise and Orsini resolved on a bold stroke. It was nothing less than the capture of Borgia. Orsini offered to lend 200 lances for the purpose, but a leader was wanted. He could not go himself, as his arch enemy, Fabrizio Colonna, held all Rome on the left bank of the Tiber, and was in sufficient force to make a dash for the Borge at any moment. The short of it was, that at the cardinal's recommendation, I received the command, and about two in the morning set out for Ostia. If the ships Cesare had hired had arrived the matter was ended, and we could do nothing; but if not, there was every chance of his surrendering without a blow, as although he had about 500 men with him, they were not to be relied on, except the half-dozen cut-throats who formed his personal guard, and who might be trusted to fight to the last. The luck which | suicide while temporarily insane. had followed me so far favored me again and pressing on as fast as our horses could bear us, we came up with the fugitives in the early morning. Only one ship, too small to hold all, had come, and they were crowded on the banks of the Tiber, making every effort to embark. The river shore was strewn with the enormous quantity of baggage they had with them, and a scene of the utmost confusion took place on our arrival. The ship was drawing up to the quay, and we could see the litter of the Borgia, surrounded by the few men who meant to fight. The affair was over in five minutes, and Cesare was my prisoner. Seeing how matters stood, the master of the ship anchored in mid-stream, heedless of the yells and execrations of the followers of the Borgia, who were not spared by my men. Indeed, I had great difficulty in keeping Cesare from harm. He was in truth very ill, but was able to gasp out as he yielded:

"Maldetto! It is my fate. I had prepared for everything except being ill." Re then lay back in his litter, and spoke no

Michigan Fish Law.

At the request of the state game worden, Attorney General Oren has given an opinion as to the construction of the Michigan law relative to commercial fish, his conclusions being as follows:

Foreign fish that are immature, according to the Michigan standard, cannot be held or marketed in Michigan at any time, the season as to such fish being continuous y closed. Foreign fish that were caught contrary to the laws of the state or country where caught cannot be held or marketed in Michigan. Between November 15 and December 15 fish caught in foreign waters between those dates cannot be held or marketed in Michigan.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health from 62 observers in various portions of the state for the week ended October 28 indicate that consumption and influenza increased and inflammation of the kidneys decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported at 205 places, measles at 22, typhoid fever at 121, scarlet fever at 73, diphtheria at 29, whooping cough at 17, cerebro-spinal meningitis at 5 places, and smallpox at Maple Grove, Chesaning, Marine City, Benton Harbor, Benton township, Battle Creek, Chase and Saginaw.

One Man Kiled.

Shortly before midnight as a Rapid railway line car, Detroit bound from Mount Clemens, was crossing Beaufait street it was run into by a freight train and Conductor Tony Schneider, of Mount Clemens, was killed. There were 25 passengers on the car, many of whom were injured, several very severely.

Bear Killed.

Chic Chris, Wallie Neno, George Gagnon and others killed a large black bear near Menominee after a hard struggle with the animal. A dog was killed by the bear and the owner's clothes torn in shreds before bruin was dispatched. The bear weighed 300 pounds and was sold to a local butcher for $40.

The case of Mrs. Marie Butterfield Sanderson, the professional nurse of Battle Creek who is charged with attempting to murder her aged husband, Rudolphus Sanderson, by giving him pulverized glass in his oatmeal, was called in the circuit court in Marshall and continued to December.

Three Miners Killed.

Charles Nelson, Richard Stone and Albin Forsterison were killed by an explosion of dynamite in the Cundy mine at Iron Mountain. The men were preparing a blast at the time, and it is supposed the accident was caused by carelessness in driving the charge.

Lost in the Woods.

Johanna Gursky, the Crystal Falls girl who was lost in the woods, was brought home by a sheriff from a homestead near Atkinson. She was 17 days in the woods without food, living on wintergreen berries during the time.

British Public Unable to Secure Much News of the War.

Latest Information from Ladysmith, However, Is More Encouraging -Stories of Disaster Denied-More Heavy Fighting.

London, Nov. 7.-An immense weight was lifted from the public mind by a day morning, by which the continental sorties and risking another Nicholson's Nek disaster. Generally, however, the cheery tone of the dispatch, showing that there is no anxiety at Ladysmith as regards the ability of the beleaguered garrison to hold its own. has had an excellent effect on the country. From the fact that Gen. White a Box camp it seems that Ladysmith is not so closely besieged as was supposed. Not much importance, however, is attached to the shelling of the Boer laager, as the war office has no confirmation of the story that the Orange Free Staters' camp at Besters has been captured. Were this true, it State, which is not so directly concerned in the conflict as the Transvaal. Ladysmith Surrounded.

London, Nov. 7.—The officials of the British war office when shown the dispatch from Durban of November 3 said they had no further news regarding the military situation in Natal, but thought no undue significance should be attached to the concluding phrase. They could not say whether the railroad to Ladysmith was intact, but they admitted that Ladysmith is now completely surrounded.

Boers' Heavy Losses.

Estcourt, Natal, Nov. 4.-It is reported that the Boers lost 800 in killed and wounded and captured in Thursday's battle on Tathams farm, near Ladysmith.

Has No News.

London, Nov. 7 .- The war office announced at midnight that no dispatches had been received beyond those already made public, and that nothing further would be issued before noon today. Thus not a solitary official item of news has been posted for nearly 24 hours. This has given rise to a crop of rumors that Ladysmith's ammunition is exhausted; that Sir George Stewart White is mortally wounded; that both facts are being concealed, and that other unlucky happenings have taken place. For all of these reports there is absolutely no foundation. At the same time the Britisher has had little to stimulate him within the last 24 hours except the news of the confident attitude of the Ladysmith garrison and its slight successes last Thursday and

Situation Critical,

Advices from other parts of South Africa are distinctly unpalatable and everything points to a critical situation in Natal and the northern portions of Cape Colony, likely to grow more acute until Gen. White is either relieved or decisively defeated. Nobody dares to think of capitulation. Rather than that he is expected, in last resort, if . Ladysmith becomes untenable, to make a desperate effort to cut his way through the Boers back into lower Natal and to join hands with the garrison there, which is now almost certain to be reenforced by the first arrivals of the army corps from England and to be pressed forward to renew touch with him. It is generally assumed, however, that Gen. White, with the aid of the naval guns, will be able to cope with any bombardment, and the idea that the Boers could take Ladysmith by assault is scouted as absurd.

Meanwhile vague remarks in the dispatches point to the arrival of further big Boer guns from Johannesburg, to be mounted among the hills within range of Ladysmith. Such considerations explain the anxiety felt regarding Gen. White's movements and position, not only by the public, but in official circles.

The British retirement to Estcourt has given the impression that it is intended to make a stand there. Estcourt is the least important town between the Boers and the capital of Natal, and if the Boers sweep past Estcourt, nothing can stop them from laying siege to Pietermaritzburg, which cannot be expected to make a protracted defense, while its fall would be a tremendous blow to British prestige throughout South Africa.

Heavy Fighting.

Estcourt, Natal, Nov. 4 .- A reliable messenger has just arrived from Lady smith, passing the Boer lines during the night, who reports that heavy fight ing occurred on Thursday around Lady smith. The hottest engagement was on George Tatham's farm, on the camp. The enemy suffered great loss, and 30 mounted Boers were captured. Peconic bay.

Warm Welcome Is Accorded the Fifty-First Volunteers on Reaching Council Bluffs.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Nov. 7 .- The Fiftyfirst Iowa volunteers returned to their native state Monday, after service in the Philippines, and received a welcome in this city that warmed their hearts. A crowd of fully 5,000 people flocked hither from all parts of the state to join in the greeting. The first two sections of the troop train arrived at eight brief official dispatch, published Mon- o'clock in the morning, but unfortunately the third section, among whose stories of disaster at Ladysmith were passengers was company L, of this city, proved to be false, although the dis- did not get in till late in the afternoon. patch itself revived the anxiety of the . But the programme for the regiment's more timid in another direction, as it reception was carried out. The parade indicated that Gen. White, instead of left the Rock Island station at ten sitting tight and acting wholly on the o'clock, and passed through the princidefensive, as it is held in many quar- pal streets, bringing up at Bayliss ters he ought to do, persists in making park, where a stand had been erected. Here Gov. Shaw extended the state's official welcome, while the city spoke through Mayor Jennings. Others who spoke briefly were Hon. Fred White, Hon. Lafe Young and Congressman Mc-Pherson. Hon. Forty bands furnished the music for the occasion. is able to take the offensive and shell After the exercise in the park, the soldiers were served a banquet by the ladies. The various companies left late in the afternoon for their home towns. The men of the regiment were well and in good spirits.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 7.—The two Des Moines companies and the Knoxville and Oskaloosa companies, of the Fiftymight have considerable effect on the first Iowa regiment, arrived here future attitude of the Orange Free Monday evening on their return from the Philippines, after about 18 months' service. They were given a royal welcome, by at least 50,000 people on the streets, and any amount of noise from whistles, bells, cheering and fireworks. The Oskaloosa and Knoxville companies went on to their respective homes, and the Des Moines boys were given a reception at the auditorium. There is great rejoicing that the boys returned in such good condition, but few falling by war or disease, and few others being detained in hospitals.

A BIG DEFICIT.

The Postal Service Fails to Pay Expenses in the Last Year by More Than $6,000,000.

Washington, Nov. 7.-The auditor for the post office department in his annual report of post offices in the United States increased from 72,976 to 74,384. The number of domestic money orders issued increased 29,007,870, representing $442,483,354. The revenues of the postal service increased from $89,012,618 to $95,021,384, and the expenditures from $97,853,407 to $101,632,160. Upon this showing the auditor asks for an increase of 30 clerks as a minimum requirement for the year 1900.

A statement is given which shows that the money order system was conducted at a loss to the government of approximately $105,105, which fact, the auditor says, would suggest the exercise of great care in legislating for the employment of new financial features in the postal service

Of the deficit due to excess of postal service expenditures over receipts the treasury has advanced $6,000,000, the balance be ing unpaid. The amount of second-class postage collected from publishers and news agents was $3,527,032, and the amount of stamps, stamped envelopes, newspaper wrappers and postal cards sold was $87. 280,654. The cost of mail transportation is given as $54,423,058, of which amount $1,629, 749 was paid for the transportation of for-

ELEVATOR FALLS.

Ten Persons Seriously Injured by the Drop of a Car in a Minneapolis Building.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 7 .- The elevator in the Phenix building, one of the largest structures in the city, fell five stories Monday afternoon when filled with passengers. Ten persons were injured, several of them seriously. The injured: C. B. Trafton, L. Armstrong, Garvey Donaldson, J. H. Tallmage, Sr., W. H. Place, Arthur Fredenburg, Edwin Lindahl, Charles B. Marvin, J. H. Tallmage, Jr., and an unknown woman. The cause of the accident was the giving way of the cable in the socket attached to the car, and when the carriage dropped, the heavy weights, detached from their fastenings at the eleventh story, fell on it, crushing the occupants of the cage in the basement. The most severe injuries are broken legs, and it is thought all the victims will recover. The elevator was inspected a few days ago and reported to be in a first-class condition.

New York, Nov. 7.-Under the waters of Peconic bay, on Long Island sound, a marvel was accomplished Monday which the naval officers who witnessed it say is destined to revolutionize naval warfare. From the Holland submarine boat, at a depth of ten feet, a Whitehead torpedo was discharged without causing so much as a ripple on the surface of the bay. New York, Nov. 6 .- Admiral Dewey said Sunday: "I do not want to be president. I said this when I was at Manila. I meant it then. I mean it now." The admiral arrived in New York on the Washington express, which reached Jersey City at 2:50 o'clock Sunday afternoon. No one met him at the Jersey City station. He was with President John R. Proctor, of the civil service commission. Upon alighting from the train Admiral Dewey and Mr. Proctor started for a Twenty-third street ferryboat. President Proctor and the admiral parted when they reached the New York side of the river. Dewey' summoned a cab and directed the driver to take him to the Cambridge hotel, Thirty-third street and Fifth avenue. Admiral Dewey said he was not here on official business.

"I have never wanted to be president," said the admiral. "I would not under any circumstances be a candidate for the office. RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Assastant Postmaster General Heath Presents a Strong Plea for the System.

Washington, Nov. 6 .- A vigorous plea for rural free delivery is made in the annual report of First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath. Mr. Heath says the service so far has resulted in increased postal receipts, enhancement of the value of farm lands reached by rural free delivery of from two to three dollars per acre; a general improvement of the condition of the roads traversed by the rural carrier; better prices for farm products, the producers being brought into daily touch with the state of the markets, besides educational benefits conferred by relieving the monotony of farm life through ready access to wholesome literature and knowledge of

On November 1 rural free delivery was in successful operation over 383 services, radiating over 40 states and one territory, Idaho, Wyoming, Mississippi and Montana bethe beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, 1899, and November 1 an additional expenditure of $150,000 rural delivery has been extended to nearly 180,000 persons, at an annual cost of about 84 cents per capita, against an average per capita cost of $2.80 in small towns of 5,000 population.

"It is a small matter to the resident of a town," says the report, "to be saved a walk of a few hundred yards to the post office, while on the contrary it is a great accommodation to the farmer to be spared a drive of five or ten miles over country roads to get his mail. In a recent public discussion advocates of the system who took the value of the time thus lost in the busy farming season at only 50 cents per head found that their figures ran up into many millions of dollars lost to the agricultural interests through being obliged to send to the village for the mails."

THE AGE OF CHIVALRY.

Its Passing Away, Cleverly Arguer This Woman Writer, Is a Sign of True Equality.

When we sigh over what we are pleased to call the "decadence of manners" and long for the return of "chivalry," do we, as women, realize what such a state of affairs would mean for us? It would mean no more clubs, no gymnasiums, no education higher than housekeeping, fine needlework and dancing. It would mean weakness, both mental and physical, dependence, loss of personal liberty in every form,

Whether chivalry was the cause of the weakness and dependence of women, or vice versa, it is impossible to say. It is always difficult to judge bemade up my mind I would not think of tween cause and effect in such matters; such a proposition. I have never had | but the fact remains that weakness and chivalry existed at one and the same time, and both ceased to exist simul-

> No, this is not an age of chivalry; but never before in the history of the world have women had so much liberty-liberty in thought, in action, in everything-or been such an influence in public affairs. True chivalry does not consist in knowing how to pick up a lady's kerchief gracefully-and doing it-nor in guiding the steps of a healthy woman as though she were a wooden doll. Nor does it consist in ordering "coffee and pistols for two" in the gay dawn of early morning because of some implied insult. But rather does it consist of a recognition, an appreciation and-what is more to the point -an acknowledgment of our moral and mental qualifications.

What we call a "decadence of manners" is only an avowed recognition of woman on the part of man as his equal We defer to our superiors and patronize our inferiors; but those whom we consider our equals, those whom we meet on the same social and intellectual plane we treat with a "bon homie," a good fellowship which has in it a refreshing sincerity.

In the days when "chivalry" flourished with all its benefits and harmfulness, physical delicacy was considered "good form," and women resorted to all kinds of villainous devices and cosmetics to produce an "interesting pallor." Firm rose-tinted flesh was frowned upon as "yulgarly healthful" in any but housemaids. Nowadays not to have good health is almost criminal, and is usually an acknowledgment of the, at least practical, ignorance of sanitary laws.

In the rush and whirl of the business of to-day, would it not be foolish for us strong women to exact the slavish attentions which the leisure of 50 years ago made possible to our weaker sisters? The wife of to-day is a companion to her husband, and often in business her timely advice saves him thousands of dollars.

We do not now have men for our knights errant, expending life and blood for our sake while we sit idly by and drop flowers on half-dead victors; but a man will fight with "nature's weapons," as a rule, just as quickly today as in "ye olden time" for the fair fame of mother, wife or sweetheart.

Of course there are men-specimens, not types-in every profession and in every grade of society who cannot see a woman enter a public office or pass along the street without expressing the sneer of baseness. These "specimens," however, existed half a century ago, just the same as to-day, the only difference being that women never venturing outside their own doors without a protector, they feared the ready sword thrust, considered "discretion the better part of valor," looked wise and said-nothing.

Women, then, were dressed up dolls, pretty playthings, to be petted or caressed, or flung out of the window, ac- able to most people. This perfume has cording to the temper of their several the advantage of being healthful, and lords and masters. GOOD MANAGMENT.

Haste Makes Waste in Housekeeping as in Every Other Pursuit or Undertaking.

The best managers in household affairs are not those who never sit down from early morn until night closes about them. Ah, no! the best managers are those who secure for themselves an hour of that healthful tranquillity so necessary to every human heart, says Portland Transcript. The habit of rush and haste takes possession of some housewives and their life is a burden to them as well as to those who love them.

Every woman loves to be thought a good manager. You are, if every device known to make your work lighter is used. For instance, the washing of dishes three times a day and cleaning up the cooking vessels is a business in itself. So make it easier, and to do it in half the time let me tell you the New England way. Always have plenty of hot water, as hot as you can bear your hands in, in fact, it's best to use mops with china and glass, so as to use very hot water and to have a nice lather instead of using soap. Use washing powder in the hot water and wash quickly and have plenty of nice tea towels to wipe with. You can get through a large pile of dishes directly. Clean the cooking vessels the same way. You will gain an hour by this process of washing. Then, if you have a dining room where you can keep the table set and ready for use, it saves many steps to have a waiter ready to put your dishes in, and to place them on the table after washing them. The morning hours should be the busy ones, but manage to have the afternoons and evenings for agreeable work. It is a beautiful sight to see a wellbalanced, well-poised woman, who is a true homemaker, elevating every phase of life, making it subservient to her good and those around her. This is good management. We all feel its

NEGROS HAS HOME RULE.

First Autonomous Filipino Government Is Established in the Island-Natives Rejoice.

Manila, Nov. 7.—At Bacolor, in the island of Negros, the first autonomous government of the Filipinos was established Monday. Gen. Smith, governor of the island of Negros, administered the oath of office to the judge of the supreme court, who in turn swore in the governor, three judges, 12 councilmen, the auditor and the secretary of the interior. The natives of the entire island attended the ceremony. The officers from Iloilo were also present. Three days' feasting will follow, in celebration of the new government and the first anniversary of the surrender of the Spaniards to the Negros revolutionists, ending with a ball in the government house. American flags are displayed in the villages. Elections were held October 2, the number of votes cast being 5,248. There were 40 candidates for the various offices. Melecio Reverino was elected governor, receiving 1,305 votes. Senor Gaime received 1,277 votes. Suffrage was determined by property qualification and ability to read and write. Gen. Smith announced the granting of freedom to the political prisoners in commemoration of the event. Gen Smith, in an interview, remarked that it was of the utmost importance that the Filipinos should be taught to recognize the sovereignty of the United States. "The gravest danger," he added, "threatening a peaceful administration is intrigue among the insular politicians," and he declared that the United States government must for years keep control of the Philippines in order to prevent such conditions from existing.

Washington, Nov. 7.-With forces aggregating more than 30,000 fighting men Gens. Lawton, MacArthur and Wheaton are now closing in on Aguinaldo's army.

Gen. Otis' dispatches are optimistic in the highest degree, and the officials are predicting that the rebellion will be crushed before the end of the present month and that important victories will be announced within a few days.

The military situation was thus analyzed by an official familiar with Gen. Otis' plan of operation, as reported to the war department:

"Aguinaldo, with his army greatly reduced, owing to recent disintegrations, is at Bayambang, 20 miles north of Tarlac, which was his headquarters and the objective of Lawton's and MacArthur's armies up to a fortnight ago.

"Gen. MacArthur moves northward along the railroad to Bayambang, taking the towns of Tarlac, Panaque, Moncoda and others as he goes along. Gen. Lawton moves northward from Colanatuan as his base, and with columns swerving to the right and left to sweep the country to the Rio Agno river, and to head off Aguinaldo's escape to the mountains through Rio Agno valley. At last accounts detachments from his command had taken Aliaga, west of his base, Talavera being to the north and Bayambang to the northwest.

"Gen. Wheaton moves southward from Dagupan to Bayambang. His movements up to this time have been kept from the public; but now that the campaign is in progress I am at liberty to mention that he headed an expedition sent out on transports for the Gulf of Lingayen last week. The navy's task was to shell the towns on the southern part of the gulf, so as to effect the safe landing of his expedition.

"Although Gen. MacArthur's main forces were at Angeles at last accounts it is believed that one of his columns has reached and taken Tarlac before this, that the railroad to that point is now in control of the American forces and that it is only a question of a few days when his command will reach Bayambang.

"From the plan of campaign mapped out Aguinaldo's only possible means of escape would seem to be to the eastward through the Rio Agno valley into the mountains, as the forces under Gens. Lawton and MacArthur moving northward are keeping scouts well out to the front so as to prevent the enemy from escaping southward." etc. Read

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE Co.: When I wrote you for a sample bottle of "5 DROPS" my wife was suffering terribly from Rheumatism and was very discouraged, as I had tried everything the doctors prescribed, even sending her to Richfield Springs, etc. My doctor is very much surprised at the progress my wife is making, and she is so well that she refused to keep her seamstress and is now doing her own sewing. The doctors insist on her taking "5 Drops" and assure her that it is now only a matter of a few days and she will be entirely cured, and as we are very well known here, the "5 DROPS" is receiving considerable atten-
