CHELSEA TELEPHONE NUMBER 8

WERE MARRIED FIFTY YEARS

MR. AND MRS. JAY EVERETT CELEBRATED THAT EVENT TUESDAY.

Surrounded by Children and Friends the Day is Passed in a Fitting Manner.

Tuesday, September 25th, 1900, was an eventful day for Mr. and Mrs. Jay Everett. Their pleasant and commodious home on Summit street had been the scene of varied activities for many days which culminated in one of those rare occasions, the celebration of a Golden Wedding.

Judging from the completeness of arrangements for the comfort and pleasure of the guests there had been much planning and executing and loving care. A tent on the green east of the house was appropriately decorated with yellow hunting, evergreens and flags, an evidence that patriotism was not forgotten even for such a momentous occasion.

Under this tent was served by the children an elaborate dinner in two courses. Seven tables were spread, six of which were tastefully decorated with yellow flowers, pond lilies being used for the table of the bride and groom with whom were seated ten others who attended the wedding fifty years ago. As one looked upon those faces which bore the imprint of having risen triumphantly above the world's cares and difficulties and resulted in beautiful old age, a testimony of well spent lives, one could not but think,

"The last of life is better than the first Or else that life has by itself been cursed; Who backward looks and longs to be again A simple child, has well nigh lived in vain; But who looks on and sees new joys each day Shows he has fought and conquered all the way."

At another table which was very attractive and quite in contrast to the one just mentioned were the small grand children of Mr. and Mrs. Everett, the other tables being filled by near relatives, sixty partaking of the tempting menu. At the close of the dinner the children sang to the tune of "The Old Oaken Bucket" "The Golden Wedding" the words of which were written by Mrs. Carrie E. Coe and were very apt and expressive of the occasion.

Jay Everett feelingly spoke of the occasion and some of the events leading to it and gave their guests a very pretty greeting which was indicative of his generous hospitality.

Miss Emily Rowe, a cousin of Mrs. Everett and her bridesmaid fifty years ago, furnished a paper which was largely reminiscent and with the tone of long ago was a humorous strain which showed the good times were not all reserved for the young people of today. This was read by Mrs. Rowe.

Fred Everett of Seattle responded to the toast "The Home as I have known it." He thought it was lamentable that he should have been the last born of the family as he had to stand so much "bossing" and never had a chance to reciprocate. He very humorously described some of their childhood pranks and rejoiced that they were always merry and some of them would always be gay. He tenderly referred to the "home nest" and how distance could never efface the longing to return to it and when one of the dear ones was thought to be beyond earthly help her desire was so strong to come home that she was brought across the continent to gratify that longing, but she was kindly spared and participated in the pleasures of the Golden Wedding. He paid a beautiful tribute to the father and mother and the true home made by them, not only for their children but many others who had found it a pleasant, transient abiding place. He said he had never seen a frown upon his mother's face and although three thousand miles separated him from her she was always near. What a blessed memory to leave posterity! Surely "Her children arise and call her blessed." He very appropriately referred to the union of two links fifty years ago which has expanded into a chain of twenty-eight unbroken and unblemished links. As one looked upon the happy, contented faces of parents and children it was evident that their early home had been ideal and was being perpetuated.

Immediately following the children sang "Home Sweet Home."

A poem, "Fifty Years," written by a cousin, Mrs. James Wilkinson of Rochester, N. Y., was very witty and must be read or heard to fully appreciate its pithiness. This was read by Mrs. Lottie S. Thompson, sister of Mrs. Everett.

Hon. S. H. Rowe of Lansing very humorously referred to their youthful days and tenderly spoke of later years. G. H. Gay read two letters of regrets, one from Curran White of this place, which contained many beautiful expressions and good wishes; the other from Rev. A. L. Wilkinson of Sterling, Ill., a former pastor of the Baptist church of this place of which Mr. and Mrs. Everett are charter members and Mr. Everett is deacon. This also contained many happy thoughts fitting to the occasion.

Another letter was read by W. B. Everett of Marion, Ohio, from relatives, then he spoke in a happy manner of finding his Michigan relatives and regretted the acquaintance had not been formed before.

The children sang "God be With You 'Till We Meet Again" which was a fitting close to this part of the festivities.

The seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Everett, Howard of Sharon, Mrs. Carrie E. Coe of Seattle, Wash., Henry of Stockbridge, Mrs. Helen Gay of Stockbridge, Mrs. Irene Fenner of Gaylord, Fred of Seattle, Wash., and Miss Jessie of Chelsea, together with their wives, husband and children were all present, except Dr. Coe who was detained at home by sickness, to celebrate the day with them.

The following were the relatives from out of town: Mr. and Mrs. John Everett of Antioch, Kansas; Mrs. Mary Everett Mr. and Mrs. R. Boyden of Sharon; Prof. and Mrs. J. P. Everett of Ann Arbor; Mrs. Lottie Thompson of Mattawan; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Nordman of Lima; Mr. and Mrs. Milo Rowe and Miss Emily Rowe of Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Everett and Mrs. E. L. Everett of Marion, O.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Jedelle of Dexter; Mrs. Clara Robinson, Mrs. Abbie Dibble, Mrs. W. A. Boland, Mr. and Mrs. W. Burchard, Mr. and Mrs. David Rowe of Grass Lake; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Spaulding of Sylvan; Miss Gertrude Breed of Ann Arbor; Edward Phelps and son of Pontiac; Hon. S. H. Rowe of Lansing; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nordman, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Beach of Lima.

Each guest was favored with a suitable souvenir consisting of yellow satin ribbon with a beautifully inscribed card, the work of G. H. Gay, bearing the name of the guest and date.

A little later the photographer appeared and took a lasting remembrance of the scene.

The house decorations were smilax interwoven with yellow satin ribbon festooned in the bay windows and arches, cut flowers and potted plants tastefully arranged in convenient places. A glance through the spacious rooms conveyed the idea that Midas had recently gone through, not forgetting to touch things as he passed.

Many beautiful and useful gifts were brought as mementos to the worthy recipients.

In the evening a reception was tendered the friends and neighbors, one hundred and fifty being present. Dainty refreshments were served in the tent, the guests being nicely waited upon by members of the B. Y. P. U.

The Golden Wedding was planned and carried out by the children and it surely was complete in every detail. The neighbors partook of the spirit of the occasion and the whole street was at the disposal of the Everetts. Even nature, not to be outdone by her children, was upon her best behavior, retaining her summer garb and warmth thus lending an added charm to the festivities.

Appropriateness suggested itself in every thing the eye saw or the ear heard and the day closed happily leaving with all "a majestic memory."

Jay Everett was born in Superior, Washtenaw county, October 2, 1827, and was the son of John and Paulina (Phelps) Everett, who were natives of Vermont and Massachusetts, in which latter state they were married in 1818. In 1820 they came to Michigan and settled at Troy Corners, Oakland county, where they remained until 1827 when they removed to Superior, this county. They lived in Superior for four years then Mr. Everett's parents removed to Ann Arbor where they kept the old Washtenaw House until 1833. The family then removed to Sharon where the father engaged in farming and dairying. The father's death occurred in 1848, but the mother survived until 1872 when she had already passed by three years the mile stone of fourscore.

In the old log schoolhouse Jay Everett received his start in book lore, and he had ordinarily only about forty days' schooling each year but so well did he improve his time and opportunities that he fitted himself to teach school and taught for two winters in Sharon. He commenced farming on a part of the old homestead of one hundred and ten acres, and thus continued until 1851 when he took a trip to California, remaining there until 1856. While there he engaged in both mining and farming, conducting the latter upon quite an extensive scale and was in the commission business. He returned to Sharon and settled down to a thorough cultivation of the farm and added to it by purchase until it amounted to two hundred and sixty acres in one body. He has served as justice of the peace, and supervisor for four terms and has filled nearly all the township offices.

The most eventful act of his life was the one that was celebrated on Tuesday, and which was his marriage, September 25, 1850, with Miss Susan A. Smith.

Mrs. Everett was born November 21, 1828, at Rochester, N. Y., and a daughter of Henry and Wealthy (Foster) Smith, natives of New York. Mr. Smith was a manufacturer of wagon and carriages and came to Michigan in 1832, settling in Freedom township and following his trade along with farming. In 1853 Mrs. Everett's parents removed to Ann Arbor where her father continued the wagon-making business very extensively until his death in 1855, aged 54 years. The mother lived until 1876 and died at the age of 76 years.

SELECTING A SITE.

Zenith Portland Cement Company at Grass Lake.

A Grass Lake dispatch says: A special committee from the board of directors of the Zenith Portland Cement Co., consisting of B. H. Rothwell, R. H. Evans, R. R. Bane, George Johnston and T. E. Beebe, consulting engineer, visited here yesterday for the purpose of selecting the site of their plant. They were met at the train by C. C. Corwin, E. J. Foster, and E. A. Cronan, who are heavy stockholders. Mr. Foster is also a member of the board of directors. They were accompanied by Mr. Stilton, civil engineer, representing the Michigan Central railroad. Two sites were carefully examined, and Mr. Beebe was instructed to make a survey of both sites immediately and report to the board Monday next, when the location will be definitely settled. The company has floated their entire proposition, including building machinery, to eastern capitalists, whose heavy purchases of stocks and bonds will enable them to build and equip their plant at the earliest moment possible. Work will be pushed vigorously and the plant will probably begin the manufacture of cement by May 1, 1901.

Dexter Excited Over a Bridge.

In Dexter, according to the Leader, they are having a hot time over the letting of a contract for an iron bridge over Mill Creek. They had a meeting of the township board at which the prosecuting attorney was present, and he has taken charge of the township's interests.

The Leader says:

"The contract was signed by Supervisor Whitaker, Justice Stein and Highway Commissioner, Seyfried, Clerk Barber and Justice Cook refused their signatures."

"Supervisor Whitaker says the contract was presented to him in Ann Arbor on Wednesday just after his defeat for the nomination for county clerk and while he was laboring under intense mental excitement; that it was represented to him that the other members of the board had agreed to sign and expected him to, and that his signature was obtained in this manner. As soon as he found things to the contrary he at once notified the bridge company to cancel the contract."

Washtenaw Fair.

The Washtenaw county fair takes place at Ann Arbor October 2, 3, 4 and 5, and the managers are working hard to make it the most successful in its history. Col. A. T. Bliss, republican candidate for governor, will be at the fair on Thursday, Hon. Wm. C. Maybury, the democratic candidate, on Wednesday, and the prohibition candidate on Friday. The races will be of the best, a large number of fast horses being expected. The society has spent much money this year in making improvements and everybody should attend the fair.

CAMP FIRE STORIES

A SALUTE WASTED.

Military Honors Intended for a General Unwittingly Rendered to a Negro Cook.

The flagship Monongahela was anchored off the navy-yard at Pensacola bay in 1866, and Admiral Farragut, who was then in command, was on board. He had been very busy the week before paying official calls on the mainland, and among those who had entertained him was Gen. Canby. When, therefore, word was received that the general would visit the ship the next day, the admiral was determined to have everything ready to receive him in a style becoming his rank, says Youth's Companion.

The old boat was scrubbed and holystoned from stem to stern, the bright work was given an extra rub, and things generally were put into the best of order. Capt. Heywood, now brigadier-general commandant of the marine corps, had a special inspection of his company of marines, and not a spot of rust or a dull helmet spike escaped his notice. When night closed in, darkness settled down over a very clean ship and a very tired ship's company.

Bright and early the next morning the admiral's launch was sent off to bring the general aboard. At the last moment it was discovered that there was no fruit for luncheon, and Pompey, the admiral's cook, was sent in the dingy to get some.

Pompey was a character in his way, and had been with the admiral for many years. He was very proud of what he called his military bearing, and wore his beard carefully trimmed to a point. His hair and beard were nearly white, and although he was 60 years old, he ruled the other negroes with a rod of iron.

By ten o'clock every one was standing by in full dress, when the quartermaster came aft and reported that the admiral's launch was returning.

The officer of the deck walked to the rail and took a squint at the boat through his glasses. A man clad in a blue uniform was seated in the admiral's cane chair in the stern, but as the gunwale struck him just below the shoulder and the awning hid his head, the officer of the deck was not certain that it was Gen. Canby until, as the wind lifted the edge of the awning, he caught a glimpse of a gray beard.

Word was passed that the general was coming off. The crew were beat to quarters, the marine guard paraded, and the gun squad, detailed to fire the salute, took their stations.

Everything was in readiness, and the admiral and his staff stood at the head of the gangway to receive the guest. A hush of expectancy settled over the ship.

The boat drew nearer. Just as the launch scraped alongside, boom! boom! came the salute from the guns.

"Present arms!" came the command to the guard, and at a sign from the flag officer the band struck up "Hail to the Chief."

Amid all this military pomp and splendor the occupant of the launch was slowly clambering out, feet foremost, and just as the last gun was fired he stood erect at the top of the gangway.

Merciful heavens! It was Pompey, with a bag of fruit in each hand!

Confusion! The honors intended for a general had been rendered a negro cook! As the situation dawned on the men, even discipline could not check a general shout of laughter. The old admiral himself laughed until he could laugh no more.

It seemed that in some way the dingy had gone off and left the old negro, and that he had managed to convince the coxswain that "Marse Farragut was juss bound to have dat fruit befo' de general came."

Pompey wanted to land at the port gangway, but the coxswain insisted that the admiral's launch never went to the port side, and that the old man would have to land on the starboard side, aft.

Had the awning been a little higher, the mistake in identification would not have occurred. As things were, no one could be blamed, and the affair was treated as a joke, while Pompey was nicknamed the "General."

When, an hour later, Gen. Canby did come off, he was received with all due ceremony, and on being told the story, laughed till the tears rolled down his cheeks, and demanded to see the man who had stolen his salute.

ENGINE AGAINST CAVALRY.

A Veteran's Reminiscence of the Capture of Gen. Early's Confederate Cavalry.

"One story brings another," said the colonel, as related by the Chicago Inter Ocean. "I went down the other night to the meeting of Encampment No. 102 Union Veterans' legion, held in Memorial hall. There were present men who had worn the blue as well as men who had worn the gray, and it was a great night for stories. After the addresses and the music and the recitations had stirred the boys up we could scarcely mention a general or a brigade or a division or a regiment, without calling out a story of stirring incident or adventure or without bringing to the front an anecdote.

"A member of the Fifth New York cavalry, Custer's division, smiled at some reference to Gen. Jubal Early and said: 'I was present at the capture of the remnant of Gen. Early's confederate army at Waynesboro in March, 1865. My most vivid recollections are of the muddy roads between Waynesboro and Staunton. Early had marched his army over the route, and was followed by Gen. Sheridan's army in pursuit, and the roads were a bed of mortar from fence to fence, and the fields on either side were almost impassable. Gen. Sheridan had made a special detail of well-mounted men to guard 1,800 prisoners back down the valley to Winchester, and I was with this detachment.

"The people told us that Gen. Imboden would capture the prisoners before we reached Winchester, but neither the guards nor the prisoners believed it. The latter were in the most distressing and hopeless frame of mind and we felt to comparing notes as to where we had met them in previous campaigns, and we soon cheered them up and they seemed to us like old friends.

"At Roods Hall Flat, as we were marching down the valley, Imboden, who had been following us all the way, practically surrounded us and took possession of all the fords except one. We availed ourselves of this ford, which the rebel general had overlooked, got our prisoners across the river, and prepared to give Gen. Imboden a reminder that Custer's cavalry was still in the valley. When Imboden's men charged on us we held our fire until they were less than 100 feet away. Then we let them have it, made a counter charge, and drove them back three-quarters of a mile.

"Scarcely was the cavalryman's story well out of his mouth when another Union Veteran legion comrade said: 'Do any of you boys know how Gen. Early escaped after that battle of Waynesboro, in March, 1865? When old Jubal saw the day was lost he boarded a freight train attached to an old, wheezy, wood-burning engine on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, and, with a few of his staff, struck out for Richmond. Sheridan in the meantime had dispatched some cavalry to hold the gap through which runs the railroad and under which is the big tunnel.

"As this cavalry command neared the west mouth of the tunnel, they heard Early's train coming, and deployed along the side of the road. As the train passed the boys pegged away with their carbines, galloping alongside. Plainly it got so hot that Early climbed over the tender into the engine cab. The cars were cut loose and Early and his staff crouched on the engine and escaped through the tunnel, simply by outrunning our cavalry.

EARLY'S ESCAPE.

ally. Gen. Early does not appear to have reached Gen. Lee's as the records do not mention that he was found in the last ditch, but I certainly saw him go into the tunnel.

"Speaking of Gen. Early," said the major, "I saw at Gen. Sheridan's headquarters a day or so after the fight at Cedar Creek, October 19, 1864, 42 cannon captured from the confederates, on which was written with chalk 'From the C. S. A. arsenal, Richmond, Va., for Gen. Phil Sheridan, U. S. A., care of Gen. Jubal Early, C. S. A.' and one of the boys who went along and parked these same guns at the war department yards at Washington said the guns bore this motto when they were turned over to the custody of the war department."

"This story stirred up an ex-confederate who served as courier on Gen. Longstreet's and Early's staff, and he said: 'When I was in Staunton, just prior to the evacuation of that place by the confederates, I saw on some flat cars waiting to be unloaded a lot of light field artillery sent from the confederate arsenal at Richmond to replace the guns captured by Sheridan. Upon these guns was written by some joking confederate: "For Gen. Jubal Early, C. S. A., care Gen. Sheridan or the Yankee army." Quick as a flash one of Custer's cavalry said: "We got those guns all right, and in good condition, for I helped unload and put them on wheels when we captured Staunton."

STATE GOSSIP.

Interesting Bits of Information Gathered from Many Localities in Michigan.

The Lansing presbytery has voted against a revision of the Westminster creed.

Grand Rapids Texas relief committee sent $1,000 to Gov. Sayres of Texas.

Thieves broke into the post office at Chauncey, Kent county, and stole $75 in cash and $100 in stamps.

A building boom has been in progress in Three Oaks this summer, many new residences having been erected.

The Three Oaks Creamery company, the members of which corporation are all farmers, pays out about $1,200 each month for milk.

Mail messenger serve No. 237,027 is to be discontinued; while the post office at Fleming is to be served by rural carrier, mail to Fowlerville.

Temperance folks are circulating petitions in Hillsdale county, asking for the submission of the question of local option to the voters next spring.

Gov. Pingree has reappointed Russell C. Ostrander, of Lansing, a member of the state board of law examiners for the full term of three years.

Mrs. N. E. Deull, wife of the proprietor of the Hotel Hodges, Pontiac, reports that her room was entered by a thief who stole $2,000 worth of diamonds. There is no clew.

Croswell's business men have recognized the necessity of good roads leading into town, and have donated a large sum of money for the purpose of improving the highways in that locality.

John Baker, a 70-year-old farmer of Harrisville township, was gored by a bull while leading it to water. A gash nine inches long was torn in his leg and he received severe injuries about the body.

Apples are so plentiful in the orchards around Croswell that they are rotting in heaps on the ground. There is little prospect of the evaporator plant being operated this year on account of the large crop of apples in the east.

The death of Herman Kramer, of the Thirtieth United States volunteers, in the Philippines is announced. He lived near Halloway, was a member of company, B, Thirty-first, in the Cuban war and was a young man highly esteemed.

In 1890 a total of about $8,000 was paid for deer licenses in Michigan. The largest sum collected by any one county was $1,466, which was paid in Dickinson county. The smallest sum was $4.25, which was collected in Alcona county.

It is probable that Romulus will have another industry soon, a deer having been practically closed by a Detroit company for the purchase of some idle factory buildings in the village, with the idea of using them for the manufacture of oilcloth and window shades.

Rural free delivery service has been ordered established October 1 at Pontiac, with E. L. Morris, C. E. Little and P. S. Longmir as carriers. The routes will be 63½ miles in length; will cover an area of 97 square miles; will serve a population of 2,003; number of houses on the routes, 447.

The scheme to get Grand Rapids' water supply from Lake Michigan will probably be abandoned as being too expensive. The lowest bid on the proposition would involve the expense of $327,478 per year, including cost of local distribution and interest on outstanding water bonds, and the water revenues last year were only $125,946.

New Village Proposed.

Houghton, Sept. 22.—Residents of Houghton, Houghton's principal suburb, are moving for incorporation as a village. The place contains about 1,500 people and is located on the high hill immediately south of this city. Citizens of Hancock and Houghton are trying to secure the annexation of Ripley, East Hancock, Quincy addition and other populous suburbs. The federal census will credit only about 6,000 people to Hancock, whereas fully 18,000 people are served with their mail from Hancock post office.

Work Begins.

Marshall, Sept. 21.—The Kalamazoo Valley Electric company has begun work at Marshall on the electric road. It proposes to build across the state. The franchise granted by the city council of Marshall provided that work on the line must be commenced within six months. The time is up on September 26, hence the present operations. Considerable grading work will be done all along the proposed line this fall, although little steel will be laid before spring.

Burned to a Crisp.

Benton Harbor, Sept. 24.—Joseph Brennings, aged 40, was burned to death at the Morrill fruit farm. Brennings was a tramp who had been employed for the summer and had been given sleeping quarters in the farm packing house. Coming home he accidentally set fire to the packing house, which was burned to the ground. The body was taken out, burned to a crisp.

Peacemaker Shot.

St. Joseph, Sept. 21.—Richard Sawyer was shot and dangerously wounded while acting as peacemaker in a quarrel in which a friend was involved. Charles Huggins, a bartender employed in the O. A. Rider saloon, Ship street, did the shooting, but escaped. The bullet caused a partial paralysis of Sawyer's left leg.

Died of Lockjaw.

Bay City, Sept. 20.—An eight-year-old son of Joseph Grandmason, of West Bay City, stepped on a rusty nail one day last week. Saturday there was no inflammation noticeable, but Sunday lockjaw set in and the lad died before night in terrible agony.

PROUD OF HIS FAMILY.

Lord Roberts is Greatly Devoted to His Wife and Mourns His Soldier Son.

As a husband and father Lord Roberts, or "Bobs," as the soldiers and people generally are wont to call him, is a model in every respect. If common report is to be believed, the most perfect sympathy has existed between Lord and Lady Roberts since they were married 41 years ago, and Lady Roberts, herself the daughter of a soldier, has always been able to associate herself with the chief interest in life of her husband. Her work in India in the cause of the soldiers' wives will long be remembered by the English, and among her own sex she is as much beloved as Lord Roberts is by men, says a London paper.

The death of their son at Colenso came all the more severely to Lord and Lady Roberts, as they were a singularly affectionate and united family. The greatest affection existed between the distinguished father and his promising son. Lord Roberts was most anxious that his son would achieve distinction in the same profession, and his valuable experience and sympathy were always at his son's service. "Bobs" was very proud of his son's prowess in the saddle. At a race meeting some time ago in Ireland Roberts rode clean away from the field and won by a dozen lengths. "My son must not be encouraged to ride; a soldier has to keep all his abilities in the service," said Lord Roberts, and then with a burst of paternal pride, "but in all my life I never saw anyone ride a better race."

MAY COST HER A THRONE.

Recent Reckless Escapade of the Dowager Duchess of Aosta May Be Costly.

At one time it seemed likely that the famous dowager duchess of Aosta, Letitia, would reach the summit of her ambition, the throne of Italy. Rumor had her betrothed to the young duke of Aosta, who later became her stepson, and who was madly in love with her before she married his father. That was in 1888. This duke of Aosta has just become her apparent to the throne of Italy. He is a cousin to the new king, says a foreign exchange.

The duke overcame his attachment for Letitia, who was always mixed up in some affair in spite of the iron hand of Humbert. At any rate, he married Helen of Orleans, a daughter of the late count of Paris, and a sister of the queen of Portugal. Many believe the new king is doomed to an early grave, and the next move in the royal chess game would bring Emmanuel and Helen to the throne.

This young duke is very handsome and dashing. The wife of the young king is said to be very jealous of the duke's beautiful wife, and certainly Letitia, the dowager duchess of Aosta, has much to repent of her mad conduct, which may cost her a throne. She has traveled incognito on the Riviera and in Switzerland, living a wild life at times. She was always found by royal messengers in time to prevent any scandalous conduct and hurried home to sleepy Turin, where the worst she could do was to ride her bicycle in a risqué French costume.

HERE BEFORE COLUMBUS CAME

Dr. De Costa Says the Catholic Religion Antedates the Great Discoverer.

Rev. Dr. De Costa delivered a lecture before the Catholic summer school at Detroit recently, in which he aroused great enthusiasm by his declaration that the establishment of the Catholic church in America antedates by hundreds of years Columbus' first landing at San Salvador. He set out to show that the Catholic church was established here long before the great discoverer even conceived his plan. He said:

"The Catholic church was founded in America several hundred years before the time of Columbus, and although said to have been established in Greenland in the tenth century by Eric, this was only properly a re-establishment, for the church had been in North America long before. Rome took care of the spiritual needs of the people of Greenland and what are now known as the New England states long before the new world was known to the old, save to those who were in the secrets of the church."

Dr. De Costa made his deductions from what he learned about the advent of Catholic bishops into Greenland in 1226 and 1448.

Sparkling Atmosphere of Peking.

A German diplomat is responsible for the epigram: "You approach Peking in tears, but you leave it weeping." The reason for this appears to be the pure atmosphere. The quality of the air is described as one continual exhilaration; "in winter, dry and sparkling, the very champagne of atmospheric vintages; in spring and autumn, a delicious blending of frost and sun." The keen air braces the nerves like a tonic. They admit, however, that summer is hot in Peking, but residents enjoy health and physical comfort in the crisp Peking air.

Beer-Drinking in Germany.

No country rivals the Germans in the consumption of beer. More beer is drunk in Bavaria than in any other part of the world. The Bavarians, according to statistics, drink 241 quarts of beer per head in a year. In spirits, again, it is the Germans who are the largest consumers, the total amount of whiskey, etc., drunk a year being 429,000,000 quarts, while the United States confines itself to 268,000,000 quarts. In France 312,000,000 quarts are drunk yearly.

Vocal Exercise.

The value of vocal exercise upon the general health is not sufficiently recognized by the majority, but those who have studied the matter tell us that even the practice of reading aloud has a great and beneficial influence upon the health. To quote the words of an authority:

"Persons who have a tendency to pulmonary disease should methodically practice those actions of the body through which the chest is in part filled or emptied of air," and further advice is given to the effect that those whose chests are weak should read aloud at stated intervals and even recite or sing, using due caution as to posture and articulation.

These regular exercises of the voice may be rendered as salutary to the organs of respiration as they are agreeable in their influence on the voice. Moreover, vocal exercise often improves the contour of a thin throat, and is thereby a beautifier.—Washington Star.

Memory.

"Where n the dickens is that vest of mine?" exclaimed the young married man on a hot morning a little while ago. He had decided to put on his thinnest serge. In the closet he found his trousers and coat, but the waistcoat was missing. The young married man searched in vain for the garment.

He scolded and stormed to himself. Then he scolded the servant girl and set her to looking for the missing piece of wearing apparel. At last his wife was appealed to.

"Clara, dear, where in the world is that blue vest of mine?"

"Why, don't you remember, Frank, I used that last summer to piece out your trousers?"

And the Y. M. M. remembered.—Detroit Free Press.

Wisconsin's Deep Well.

The well on the grounds of the Good Shepherd in the town of Wauwatosa, Wis., has been bored to a depth of 2,330 feet, one of the deepest wells in the world. The contractor has concluded that he cannot obtain a flowing well, and therefore stops. The water rises within 80 feet of the surface. It will have to be pumped up by an engine.

Where the Horse Hair Comes From.

There is a vast amount of horse hair annually used in the United States for making and repairing violin, violoncello and bass viol bows. All of the hair comes from Germany and Russia, in which countries the tails of horses are generally allowed to grow much longer than here.

MILLAIS WAS VERY KIND.

One Touch of the Great Artist's Brush Made His Friend's Painting a Success.

There is not always jealousy between artists, as many suppose. Indeed, instances are many in which the warmest friendship subsisted between people of that calling, and one of these is related by G. H. Boughton, an artist of considerable celebrity, says a London exchange. Mr. Boughton is especially loud in his praises of Mr. Millais. "If you were in a bother about your work," said he recently, "he'd come in with his beautiful great presence and say, after looking at it: 'Let's see! Oh, I'll tell you what's the trouble—give me a piece of chalk or a pencil or something, and then he'd make the most beautiful drawing, correcting the action of a limb or whatever else was wrong.' On one occasion Mr. Boughton was painting the portrait of a little girl and could not get it like her. His wife was out shopping, and, meeting Millais by accident, she told him how her husband was worried about his picture and could not get it right. 'I'll go up and see him,' said Millais. 'He came,' says Mr. Boughton; 'he looked at the picture. 'Oh, I know that girl,' he said. 'It's her mouth you've got wrong; give me a bit of pencil. This is the way her mouth goes,' and as he said the words he drew on a piece of paper the correct lines. 'That's the only thing wrong with it. Put that right and you won't have any more trouble with it.' And so it was.

CHAFFEE'S BLUNTNESS.

Astonished the Minister Who Was Praying at His Supposed Deathbed.

Gen. Chaffee, who has been placed in command of the American forces in China, has a brusque way about him. He was once stationed in Mississippi, and while at Oxford was quite popular, says a Chicago paper. Going to Jackson while the yellow fever was raging there, he was stricken with the plague. He and his friends thought the disease would have a fatal termination. An Episcopal minister, Rev. Mr. Carnahan, was sent for to make the dying soldier's peace with the world.

The minister read several Scriptural passages and then knelt beside the sick officer's cot in prayer. At that juncture several soldiers outside the tent engaged in a quarrel and became so boisterous that the minister's invocation was interrupted.

The supposedly dying soldier raised himself on one elbow and, ripping out an emphatic oath, demanded of one of the subalterns in waiting that he maintain quiet while the parson was praying. Rev. Mr. Carnahan had been scarcely as much astonished by the noise outside as he was by the robustness of Chaffee's oath. The minister finished his prayer and, receiving the thanks of Chaffee, left him, apparently dying.

But the gallant officer did not die. He regained his health and made a host of friends among the best citizens of Mississippi by the justice and fairness of his course.

MANY CAVES CONTAIN ICE.

Huge Quantities of It Are Being Found in Subterranean Caverns in This and Other Countries.

Comparatively few freezing caves are known as yet west of the Mississippi, but there is no doubt that many will be discovered in time, as freezing caverns are not an uncommon phenomenon, says an exchange.

Some of these freezing caverns—incorrectly termed ice caves—are very large. In the one at Dobosina, Hungary, there is a mass of ice about 110 yards long, 65 yards wide and at least 15 yards deep.

The formation and retention of subterranean ice always seems mysterious at first, but it is in reality a simple matter. In freezing caves the entrance is always above the body of the hollow and the cold air of winter sinks down into the hollow, and on account of its weight is not easily displaced by the lighter warm air of spring or summer. The cold of winter thus permeates the hollow, and when thawing snows or spring rains supply drip water to the cave the cold within freezes the drip into a mass of ice, in some cases large enough to last through the following summer. There are at least four other theories in regard to the formation of underground ice, but they do not stand the test of observations.

Hatching Fish.

According to the science column of a German weekly paper, the hens of China lead busy lives. When not engaged in hatching out a brood of their own kind they are put to the additional and novel task of hatching fish eggs. Chinese cheap labor collects the spawn of fish from the water's edge, puts it in an empty eggshell, which is then hermetically sealed with wax and placed under the unsuspecting and conscientious hen. In a few days the eggshell is removed, and the spawn, which has been warmed into life, is emptied into a shallow pool. Here the fish that soon develop are nursed until strong enough to be turned into a lake or stream.

Cost of Letters in China.

China has still the old-fashioned system of private letter carrying. Letter shops are to be found in every town. If he has a letter to send the Chinaman goes to a letter shop and bargains with the keeper thereof. He pays two-thirds of the cost, leaving the receiver to pay the rest on delivery.

MODERN TALL BUILDINGS.

They Are Not Now Regarded with So Much Wonder as at First.

Those who have occasion to travel about in the neighborhood of business Chicago must have observed that fewer people nowadays stop to gaze up at the tall buildings. When the first of these were under erection, says the Inter Ocean, the city dwellers halted on the sidewalk opposite, from time to time, to watch the towering giants, and for a long time visitors were accustomed to stand and look up at the completed buildings with frank admiration and wonder. They do this now to some extent, but not so much as they did. The buildings are more familiar, and in cities other than the greatest they put up nowadays some pretty tall buildings; so that the modern skyscraper, wonderful as it still is if one stops to think about it, has lost the edge of novelty.

When the first tall buildings were erected visitors and tenants were permitted to go up to the roof for the view, but as the buildings filled up and settled into their regular business life it was found impracticable to permit this without serious inconvenience, and there are now few, if any, of the tall, modern business buildings to whose roofs visitors have access. At one tall building it was said that the number of applicants for such permission was much smaller than formerly, and it was thought that this might be due to the fact that to people generally the modern tall building had now become familiar. At another tall building it was said that the requests for permission to visit the roof had fallen off but little. At other buildings it was said that it had not fallen off at all.

LADY CHO ON ETIQUETTE.

China's Polite Code Was Written 2,700 Years Ago by a Learned Woman.

The standard book of etiquette in China was written by Lady Cho 2,700 years ago. Lady Cho was the widow of a distinguished literary man of north China and after his death was faithful to his memory. Her husband's brother was historian of that dynasty, but when his work was half completed he lost his sight. The emperor sent a messenger to him asking him who could finish his book, and the reply was returned that only his brother's wife was capable of doing it. The emperor sent for Lady Cho and she was conducted in the greatest of state to the emperor's palace. There she completed her brother-in-law's work so satisfactorily that it is impossible to tell where the man left off and the woman began. Lady Cho afterward wrote "Instruction for Women and Girls," which has even yet no rival. In the book she gave the duty of women from birth to death. There are chapters on "Instruction of Children by Mothers," "Duty of Daughters to Parents," "Duty of Children to Teachers," "Filial Piety," "Hospitality and How to Receive Women Guests," and directions for caring for clothing, how to put it away at various seasons, how to prepare their husbands' food, reverencing their husbands and reverencing their mothers-in-law.

KING IS A COIN COLLECTOR.

Victor Emmanuel, Italy's New Monarch, Has a Great Liking for Numismatics.

Numismatists will be interested to learn that the prince who has succeeded King Humbert on the throne of Italy is one of their guild. A private collector says that Victor Emmanuel began two or three years ago the compilation of a monograph entitled "Corpus Numorum Italicorum," containing an account, with illustrations, of the coinage of his native country from the beginning of history to the present era. As there have been at least 280 different mints in operation at various times in the little states and principalities into which Italy has been divided, and the number of separate issues have been roughly estimated at 60,000, this is an undertaking which might well appall even an enthusiast and expert. It is understood that the prince himself had collected for his cabinet some 18,000 coins of all dates and supercriptions, which had come to him from all parts of the world. He had attracted to his cooperation with him a large number of private collectors and many who were not willing to part with their treasures permanently have consented to lend them to him till they could be properly classified in his work or have sent him complete descriptions and photographs of them.

Habits of Carrier Pigeons.

The carrier pigeon when traveling never feeds. If the distance be long, it flies on without stopping to take nutriment and at last arrives thin, exhausted and almost dying. If corn be presented to it, it refuses to eat, contenting itself with drinking a little water and then sleeping. Two or three hours later it begins to eat with great moderation and sleeps again immediately afterward. If its flight has been very prolonged the pigeon will proceed in this manner for 48 hours before recovering its normal mode of feeding.

Only Three Seminole Bands.

There are to-day but three bands of Seminoles left in Florida. So completely have these people been disintegrated that no tribal relations now exist between them; they have no acknowledged chief, and they recognize no man's authority. They number about 600.

The celebration was held here on account of its being the same place where occurred the marriage fifty years ago.

Forty-four relatives attended the happy couple in their golden age. "Our respected and venerable aunt and uncle have indeed reached the golden age of maturity.

"Hand in hand have they ascended the hill. Hand in hand are they descending into the valley lighted with the undying and unshifting lamp of faithfulness, love and devotion.

"What a privilege for us to be here to witness this beautiful sight, to see the bride and bridegroom of today in soul, in heart, the bride and bridegroom of this day half a century ago, and in this same place was that wedding celebrated, also their fourteenth anniversary.

"Time has sown fresh flowers in their old hearts; time has garlanded their brows with choicest flowers; time has but mellowed their affections, which like good wine, have but improved with age.

"We have come here to enjoy with them the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage; to wish them many a long year yet before they snap the golden link that binds them together, that their bark may sail upon a golden sea, and that their sunset may be golden is our united sentiment."

The happy couple were then presented with a purse of gold coins.

The day happily spent by all, and the generous hospitality with which the friends were entertained will never be forgotten.

Among the guests were: Mrs. A. Dietz of Danville, Mrs. L. Glover and daughter, Lulu, of Sylvan, Mrs. Ira Glover and son, Lin, of Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. M. Boyd of Chelsea, A. H. Preston of Pittsfield, Mrs. Charlotte Preston, Chas. Preston, Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Preston and daughter, Maggie, Dr. C. S. Chadwick and family of Grass Lake.

The regular meeting of the North Lake Grange is held this week. A good attendance is expected as matters of interest are to be discussed.

Some days of this week have been as warm as July. This is a very busy time for farmers, and they haven't much time for gadding or attending to outside business.

On last Wednesday evening the 19th inst., Miss Esther Reade and Dr. Wm. Wylie were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents. The minister from Dexter performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by a great many invited guests, and friends of the family. The happy couple were the recipients of many costly and useful presents together with the heartiest wishes of all present for their future happiness.

Resolutions.

The angel of death having entered the ranks of the Western Washtenaw Farmers' Club, and removed from our midst our aged and much esteemed member, Thomas Jewett, the members in regular meeting assembled, offered these resolutions in honor of his memory:

Whereas, It has pleased God to remove from the home circle, and from our midst one of our successful pioneer farmers, Thomas Jewett who took a keen interest in the deliberations of the Club, and ever highly respected by the members.

There are a few beans to be got up yet, although quite a quantity have been already threshed and sold; corn is about all cut, except a few belated pieces, left presumably for want of help. There has been some discussion here as to the merits of the corn blinder and the majority are against it. It costs more per acre to use a harvester, than it does to cut it up by hand, so farmers hereabouts are sticking to the old fashioned method. Wheat is not being sowed so early as usual this year, on account of the Hessian fly, which almost ruined it last year.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by all druggists.

"We saw a young fellow the other day," says an exchange, "insist on carrying a young lady's parasol which seemed to tax her strength greatly, just then, to permit the freedom to her hands to carry a billet doux in one hand and her skirts in the other. The young lady thought the fellow very gallant. In the evening we saw the fellow sit on the back porch of his father's house reading a yellow back novel, while his mother carried in the big family washing she had done that day."

A Hillsdale boy was equal to the occasion when his sweetheart sprung the old saying, "Oh! this is so sudden," and then further added "I did not know that you truly loved me," after he had made a proposal. The young man being cool headed and well versed in bible scripture spoke up quickly, saying, "If it were not so I would have told you, I go to prepare a place for you, and where I go you will know and the way you will know, and I will come again and receive you unto myself." The young lady was so much astonished at this sudden outbreak that she had given her consent before she had fully recovered and there will soon be another house wanted in the city.

James Dodge Turnbull.
Hon. James Dodge Turnbull of Alpena, a brother of Geo. W. Turnbull of Chelsea, died at his home in that city on Tuesday morning, September 11, 1900, and the obsequies were conducted from his late home on Thursday afternoon, the 13th.

He was just 57 years, 7 months and 6 days old and his life is an honorable record of a man as soldier, lawyer, public officer, business man and citizen.

He leaves a wife and two sons, L. Burt Turnbull and James D. Turnbull Jr., and a brother in Chelsea.

James Dodge Turnbull was born in Harvey, New Brunswick, on the shore of the Bay of Fundy, February 5, 1843. His father died when he was six years old and three years after the family moved to Sparta, Elgin county, Ontario, where he attended school and learned a trade. He became a resident of Chelsea when he was 15 years old and attended school there.

At Chelsea July 24, 1862, he enlisted as a Civil war private in Company K Twentieth Michigan Infantry and was almost immediately assigned to the Fourth army corps, under General Burnside. He went through the Jackson campaign of 1863, the East Tennessee campaign in the fall of 1863, and on April 9, 1864, he received a commission as second lieutenant of his company and served through the Virginia campaign with Grant in 1864. He was mustered out May 30, 1865, at Jackson.

In 1866 he entered the State Normal school at Ypsilanti and graduated in 1868. He then taught school at Memphis as principal for three years, and then read law with his brother, G. W. Turnbull, at Chelsea.

He was admitted to the bar by the Ann Arbor circuit court in 1871, and has thus been a member of the bar 29 years.

In June, 1872, he came to Alpena to reside. That fall he ran for judge of probate and was defeated by only 25 votes, when the normal Republican majority was 200. The next year, 1873, he was married at Memphis. For six years he was chairman of the Democratic county committee, was comptroller six years and chairman of the board of supervisors for two years.

He was elected a representative to the state legislature from the then Alpena-Alcona-Presque Isle district in 1878 and served two terms, ending 1882. The same year he was nominated for circuit judge on the Democratic ticket, but was defeated by Judge Emerick. In 1888 he was again nominated for the state legislature, but was defeated. His last public office was that of state senator, to which he was elected for the term of 1893-94, by a vote of 5,247 to 4,966 for William A. French, Republican, the present state land commissioner. In 1899 he was nominated by the Democrats for circuit judge and made a strong run, but for the second time Judge Emerick was the candidate against him and was elected. During the few months that followed before his final illness Mr. Turnbull had lived quietly. His last noteworthy public appearance was when, as president of the newly-organized Alpena Bar association, which was formed in his office and to the head of which he was elected as dean of the Alpena bar, he responded to a toast.

In 1882 Mr. Turnbull commenced lumbering on an extensive scale and continued it to a considerable extent ever since, with the assistance of his sons. Besides his important practice, he held many business interests and owned considerable property in the city, as well as in the surrounding region.

Mr. Turnbull was a man of decided individuality. He was always radical in his friendship or opposition to men and measures, and was a successful man in his business and his profession. Without possessing much of the flourish of the orator, he was an almost invincible jury speaker and his legal equipment was thorough.

In an unusually busy life and in the involved interests of a public man he sustained a simple seriousness of character. He was an enthusiastic advocate of temperance and gave his voice, time, money and example to its support.

Judge Emerick paid his departed friend a glowing tribute as did the Alpena bar association.

CALLS OUR TROOPS AWAY

President McKinley Sends Two-Thirds of the Force in China to the Philippines.

WILL LEAVE ONLY A LEGATION GUARD.

Notes Sent to the Various Powers Concerning the Policy the United States Will Pursue—More Warships to Reinforce the Asiatic Fleet Ordered by the President.

Washington, Sept. 23.—About two-thirds of the American troops now at Peking have been ordered to retire and return to the Philippines. A legation guard of one regiment, one battery and a squadron of cavalry—about 1,850 men—will be left at Peking under the direct control of Minister Conger.

German Plan Not Favored.

The United States declines to support the proposal made by the government of Germany to the effect that punishment of guilty Chinese officials should be made a condition precedent to the opening of negotiations.
While the United States wants punishment of the guilty, it makes such punishment a part of its negotiations, and not a preliminary thereto.

Negotiations Invited.

The United States recognizes Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching as negotiators on the part of the Chinese government, being satisfied of the prima facie validity and sufficiency of their credentials. Minister Conger has not yet been instructed to open negotiations. But the United States will appoint a commission to negotiate, and by implication invites the other powers to do the same.

Situation Cleared Up.

The foregoing important decisions concerning China were made by the president and cabinet yesterday after two conferences, participated in by Secretaries Long and Hitchcock, Attorney General Griggs and Postmaster General Smith. President McKinley has in two days cleared up every important phase of the Chinese situation demanding attention. The president left for Canton in the evening.

Note to Germany.

A note was handed to the German charge d'affaires, Baron von Sternberg, containing the reply of the American government to the German proposal. The note is short and to the point. The United States favors punishment, and in Secretary Hay's circular of July 3 proposed to hold those who had wronged American citizens "to the uttermost accountability." But the United States cannot support a proposition to put punishment before negotiation.

Note to Russia.

A note was handed to the Russian charge, M. Wollant, in reply to the inquiry of Russia as to the attitude of the United States, informing that power that Minister Conger will remain in Peking and have a legation guard of a regiment, a battery and a squadron of cavalry.

Note to Minister Wu.

Minister Wu has been handed a note informing him that this government recognizes Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang and will presently institute negotiations with them, probably in cooperation with other powers.

Clear the Docket.

These decisions of the president and cabinet clear up the Chinese docket so far as the United States and the immediate future are concerned. The United States does not abandon Peking, but leaves there a legation guard strong enough to meet all emergencies and to afford protection, not only to our ministers, but to the Chinese converts as well.

Send More Ships.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The United States maintains a position independent of all the powers in its replies to notes of inquiry, so that troops may be withdrawn from China at any time.
America may negotiate alone. Six war vessels have been ordered to reinforce the Asiatic fleet, as the president fears a worldwide war is impending.

Likes America's Plan.

London, Sept. 25.—The Chinese minister to London declares America's plan for settling it will be hailed with joy in China, and that all the powers will adopt a similar policy, thereby keeping peace. France, Russia and America hold to a common policy opposed to that of Germany, Italy and Austria, and diplomats believe peace or war over China hinges on England's turn.

The Turning Point.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The position of the United States on China, as made known in the notes made public, is receiving the earnest consideration of the other powers and their representatives here. It is looked upon as a sort of turning point in the negotiations, on which the alignment of the several countries will be determined and their programmes framed.

Fight Under Compulsion.

London, Sept. 22.—Further reports from Lord Roberts say the Boers who remain in the field include a few irreconcilables, but the majority are fighting under compulsion. Gen. De-lairey, it is added, holds 300 burghers as prisoners in his laager.

IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Members of the Commission Report on Situation of Affairs in the Far Western Islands.

Washington, Sept. 20.—In the full text of the latest report of the Philippine civil commission, made public Wednesday, the chief recommendations of the commission are for the organization of native militia and constabulary and for the granting of railway franchises, with the objects of restoring order in disaffected districts and of opening rich agricultural regions to free trade with the seaboard.
The commission states that with the rejection of the present administration the insurrection will fade away within 60 days.

Manila, Sept. 24.—The insurgent demonstrations last week prove to have been more extended than was at first reported. From Cagayan and Isabela provinces and the northwestern districts of Luzon come accounts of insurgent operations and American precautionary measures. The American casualties in killed, wounded or missing during the last ten days approach 100, including that at Siniloan, at the east end of Laguna de Bay, where the insurgents after the engagement delivered ten bodies of our dead.

Manila, Sept. 24.—Senor Buencamino has received from Aguinaldo an answer regarding his peace proposals.
Aguinaldo declines to consider them and declares that he is unwilling to agree to a compromise.

DEATH OF DE CAMPOS.

Spain's Famous Marshal Expires—He Was the Counselor of the Queen Regent.

Madrid, Sept. 24.—Senor Marshal Martinez Campos, who led the Spanish army in Cuba before the coming of Gen. Weyler, died Sunday morning at Zarazua, near San Sebastian. The death

MARSHAL ARSENIO MARTINEZ DE CAMPOS.

of Marshal Campos rides Prime Minister Silvela of a very probable successor, but the event is a serious loss for the monarchy and the present dynasty.
The queen was accustomed to confer with Marshal Campos in all serious difficulties and always found him a staunch friend. He dies poor. His funeral will be made a state affair.

WARNING IS SENT.

Gov. Sayers Notifies Texans of Danger from Flood in Colorado River Region.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 25.—Gov. Sayers wired Monday night to all points south of here warning notices that the most terrible flood in the history of the Colorado river, which flows by this city, is now surging down through the mountain gorges to the northwest of here, and is expected at this place very soon.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 25.—A special from Goldthwaite says there has been no loss of life, but that the rise in the Colorado river has swept all bridges away and destroyed cattle and crops.
Many houses have been destroyed and a hundred families are homeless, though they escaped to the highlands.
A special from Llano says the Llano river, a tributary of the Colorado, is 17 feet above normal and has done much damage in the valleys. No loss of life has been reported. Reports from various points in west and north Texas are to the effect that all the small streams are greatly swollen and are sending a large volume of water into the larger streams.

Bold Bank Robbery.

Winnemucca, Nev., Sept. 20.—The First national bank was robbed of about $15,000 at noon yesterday by three men who entered the front door of the building and with revolvers made five men in the bank throw up their hands. After securing the money the robbers escaped.

The Census.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Director of the Census Merriam says no bulletin will be issued for a town under 25,000, and that the bureau will soon begin announcing the population of states.
The returns from the several states will also show the population of cities under 25,000.

Will Have No Ticket.

Boston, Sept. 22.—The national party, composed of men who feel that they cannot conveniently vote for either McKinley or Bryan, at a conference held at Young's hotel abandoned the idea of keeping a presidential ticket in the field.

A Wonderful Feast.

Paris, Sept. 24.—President Loubet gave a dinner to the 22,000 mayors of France in the Tuilleries Gardens.
The tables extended a distance of nearly five miles.

Is Captured.

Newport News, Va., Sept. 24.—William B. Dunton, wanted in Chicago for stealing $20,000 from the Union national bank of Chicago, was arrested at Old Point Comfort Saturday.

Steel Mills to Resume.

Cincinnati, Sept. 24.—The wage scale for the Amalgamated Steel Workers was signed Saturday and mills will resume to-day, employing 60,000 men.

EIGHT LOSE THEIR LIVES.

A Cyclone at Morristown, Minn., Does Great Damage to Property and Kills Citizens.

THE TORNADO CAME WITHOUT WARNING

Brick Building Used as a Saloon Crushed Like an Eggshell—All Those Killed Were in the Structure—Everything Storm Touched Was Completely Wrecked.

Faribault, Minn., Sept. 25.—The village of Morristown, 12 miles west of here, was visited by a cyclone shortly after five o'clock Monday afternoon.
Besides destroying several buildings eight persons were killed. The storm came without warning from a southwesterly direction, passing over to the northeast. The length of its path in the village was less than a half mile, and owing to its peculiar action the distress and damage resulting were not as great as might have been.
The storm made jumps of one block, but whenever it came down everything was crumpled by the power of the wind. The barn belonging to Dr. Dargabel on the outskirts of the village was the first structure destroyed. The barn was picked up and carried a block, leaving the floor uninjured with two horses standing on it. The building was crushed.

Eight Killed.

From here the storm jumped a block to the saloon of Paul Gatzke. Before reaching the Gatzke saloon there is a two-story building, which was left untouched. All the killed and injured in Morristown were in the saloon, having hurriedly taken refuge there when the storm was seen on the outskirts of the village. There were 16 in the structure at the time the storm struck. The building was raised from its foundation and crushed like an eggshell. Before the building fell three men managed to escape, but the others are found in the lists of dead and injured.

The killed are: Jake Miller, Jake Weaver, Jr.; Frank Pitman, of Waterville; Otto Gatzke, John Rohrer, Jr.; Elmer Brooks, H. S. Waite, Frank Wilder. The injured are: Paul Gatzke, Porter White, Lewis Pitman, Jr.

After leaving the saloon the storm crossed the street and destroyed the barn of J. P. Temple, and took the roof from the barn of W. M. Biggill.
It then crossed the Cannon river and destroyed the barn of Adam Snyder, killing several hogs.

Henry S. Waite, one of the killed, was a farmer residing three miles east of Morristown, and was a republican candidate for representative. He was 40 years of age, and had resided here all his life.

Other Buildings Wrecked.

Many other buildings in the village were wrecked. Telegraph poles were blown down, and the wires broken, making it impossible to receive details of the catastrophe by telegraph.
Whole families are missing, and search is being made in the darkness through the debris for them. It is estimated that 100 buildings were destroyed, and from the country come reports of loss of life and great destruction to property.

Third Disaster This Year.

Morristown is on the Chicago Great Western railroad, in the southern part of this state, and was a thriving village of about 500 inhabitants. This is the third disaster that has visited the town this year. In February the entire business district was destroyed by fire, and among the structures rebuilt was the saloon of Gatzke. The village was visited by another fire in May, which did a damage amounting to $10,000.

River Steamers Burned.

St. Louis, Sept. 22.—In the destruction at an early hour Friday of the steamer War Eagle, of the Eagle Packet company, and the steamer Carrier, operated by the Calhoun Packet company, at the foot of Locust street, one man was burned to death, another is missing and a third painfully injured and property valued at nearly $100,000 was destroyed. The wharf-boats Eagle and Illinois were badly damaged and the cargo of the Carrier, consisting of wheat, apples and other produce, was totally burned.

Big Fire Loss.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 22.—The town of Nunda, 15 miles north of here, was badly damaged by fire Friday afternoon. The flames destroyed the city hall and seven other buildings. Many persons are homeless. The fire was aided in its devastation by a fierce north wind. The burned portion comprises the eastern portion of the town. The losses are mostly covered by insurance.

Prisoners Were Counted In.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 25.—The citizens of Joliet were disappointed to learn that the new census figures included 1,867 prisoners in the penitentiary, although that institution is not within the city limits. This cuts Joliet's population from 30,720 to 29,343. The prison figures appear in the total for the Sixth ward, which is a mile from the prison. "An investigation is under way."

Four Drowned.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 25.—Four men at least met death in the equi-noctial storm that burst over the Gulf of Georgia. The fishing boat was seen to capsize just inside the narrows and its four occupants were thrown into the water. Great anxiety is felt for other fishermen who are still out.

MUST QUIT POLITICS.

Methodist Conference in Session at Battle Creek Adopts a Drastic Resolution.

Battle Creek, Sept. 20.—The closing session of the Methodist conference was marked by a sensation. A resolution was introduced that any Methodist minister belonging to the conference running for political office must leave the conference. It was amended to read that they must withdraw from their candidacy. The resolution was aimed at Rev. George Killeen, of St. Louis, democratic candidate for congress, and Rev. C. A. Varnum, who is pastor of a small church at Leroy, ten miles south of this city.
He was nominated for judge of probate by the social democrats. In a letter he sent his withdrawal to the county chairman. The bishop gave both a lecture.

A PLUCKY WIFE.

Farmer Near Muskegon Is Saved by Her from a Horrible Death.

Muskegon, Sept. 24.—The heroism of a wife who could handle a gun undoubtedly saved the life of Benjamin Eak-wright, a Moorland township farmer.
Eakwright was attacked by a vicious bull and thrown to the ground. He kept the brute off with the aid of a "poke," meanwhile calling lustily for help. His wife came to the rescue with a shotgun, and the man called to her to shoot the animal in the flank, and if it still persisted in its efforts to kill him to shoot to kill. The woman did as directed, and her aim was true, the first shot driving the infuriated beast away. Eakwright's shoulder was dislocated, one leg badly torn and he was frightfully cut up and bruised.

SHOWS A LOSS.

Saginaw's Census Discloses a Decrease in Population—Residents Are Dissatisfied.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—The census bureau announces that the population of Saginaw, Mich., is 42,345, as against 46,322 in 1890. This is a decrease of 3,977, or 8.59 per cent.

Saginaw, Sept. 24.—Business men here are much dissatisfied with the census figures. Coal mines and new factories have brought hundreds of families to Saginaw, and vacant houses are less numerous than in years. It is believed that the census was not taken thoroughly, and there is talk of retak-ing it, to prove that the figures are too low.

IS ONLY A RUIN.

Collapse of the Grand Portal, One of the Most Remarkable Natural Wonders on Lake Superior.

Marquette, Sept. 24.—Word has just been received here that the Grand Portal at Pictured Rocks collapsed during a recent northeaster of great severity with a crash which was heard for miles around. The Grand Portal was the most remarkable natural wonder on the south shore of Lake Superior.
Its height was 100 feet and its breadth 170 feet on the water line, while the cliff in which it was cut extended for 30 feet above the arch. The huge cave to which it gave entry has often received large excursion boats.

Campaign Opens.

Detroit, Sept. 20.—The feature of the weather furnished for the formal opening of the democratic campaign in Michigan consisted principally in pouring rain, but nevertheless the big Light Guard armory was filled to the doors with an audience which enthusiastically applauded the utterances of the speakers, Senator George L. Wellington, of Maryland; Mayor Jones, of Toledo; Rev. S. W. Sample, of Minneapolis, and Mayor Maybury, of Detroit, democratic candidate for governor.

A Great Loss.

Kalamazoo, Sept. 24.—Kalamazoo college has sustained one of the most irreparable losses in its history in the death of Eliphalet A. Read, late professor in the chair of philosophy and pedagogy. He died after a brief siege of typhoid and a complicated heart trouble at his home in Waterville, Nova Scotia, where he had been called by the illness of a brother. His death cast a deep gloom over the opening of the college year and the loss is a severe blow to both faculty and students.

A Prosperous Year.

Muskegon, Sept. 25.—The session of the Michigan Federation of Labor was opened by President Hamilton. The reports of the committee on president's reports was adopted. The report was very complete. During the past two years 13 organizations had affiliated, and several labor laws which were advocated by the convention two years ago had been passed by the legislature and others amended.

High Assessment.

Marquette, Sept. 21.—The state tax commission, in session here, announces that the summer homes of wealthy nonresidents at Mackinac Island, now assessed at one-tenth their value, will be assessed at much higher figures when the commissioners reach that resort at the end of this week.

She Is Safe.

Lansing, Sept. 25.—Miss Gertrude Howe, of this city, who has been a missionary in China for a large number of years, has been heard from at last. She was one of the last to leave the country, and she has taken refuge in Japan. She is safe, but is in straitened circumstances.

Made a Big Haul.

Traverse City, Sept. 20.—Thieves entered the dry goods store of Wilhelm Brothers and stole about $1,200 worth of fine silks and furs.

The Great Anthracite Coal Strike in Pennsylvania Is Assuming Vast Proportions.

OVER 100,000 MEN DROP THEIR PICKS

First Three Days Were Peaceful, But Trouble Came on the Fourth—Sheriff's posse Fires Into a Crowd of Rioters and Two Persons Are Killed—Troops Ordered Out.

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—The leader of the strike says at the end of the second day that 118,000 of the 141,000 mine workers in the anthracite coal fields are idle. No representative of the mine operators makes a statement for their side of the matter, but individual mine owners dispute the strikers' figures, saying there are more men at work than the union leaders will admit.

Numbers Increase.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 20.—The third day of the strike passed off as quietly as the two preceding days. Beyond the occasional stoning of a mine worker going to or from his work, there has been no disorder. It is estimated that about 70 per cent. of the mine workers of this region were idle Wednesday, which is quite an increase over Tuesday's figures.

Began to March.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 21.—Striking miners have begun to march, and it is feared disorder will follow. Deputy sheriffs are being posted around mining properties. Strikers claim that they are gaining in numbers, while operators claim that many are returning to work.

Riot at Shenandoah.

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—The tragedy that has been looked for since the coal workers' strike was inaugurated came suddenly and unexpectedly at Shenandoah Friday afternoon. A posse hurriedly gathered together by Sheriff Toole, of Schuylkill county, to meet an emergency, was forced to fire on a mob that was threatening workmen on their way home under escort.
A man and a little girl were instantly killed, and seven others fell more or less seriously wounded. Sheriff Toole lost no time in calling on the commander of the national guard of Pennsylvania to send troops to aid him in keeping the peace. After consultation the state authorities at Harrisburg decided at midnight to send troops to the turbulent region.

Troops Called Out.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 22.—Three regiments of infantry, a battery and a troop of cavalry were ordered out at midnight by Gov. Stone to assist Sheriff Toole in maintaining order in the Schuylkill mining region. This action was taken after a conference between the governor, Adj. Gen. Stewart and Gen. Gobin on the urgent solicitation of the sheriff, borough council of Shenandoah and many prominent residents of that locality. Gen. Gobin has been placed in command of the provisional brigade.

To Resume Work.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 24.—Yesterday was quiet, unusually quiet, throughout the mining district, but many observers predict that it was the unnatural calm that precedes a storm.
Coal operators at a number of points announce their intention to start the collieries to-day, as they have plenty of miners willing and anxious to work if guaranteed protection. Gen. Gobin and the sheriffs of the various counties promise this protection. The strikers, on the other hand, say there will be no work until the strike is called off.

Miners Stay Away.

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—Contrary to the expectations of the mine operators, the lines of strikers remained unbroken yesterday and the second week of the strike in the anthracite field opened with the tie-up of the mines as complete as at any time since the strike began. Reports indicate that 130,000 of the 142,000 miners are now out. Troops visited several towns in the Schuylkill valley and made demonstrations, and at McDade a battalion was stationed. Gen. Gobin says that he will not allow the miners to hold secret meetings.

Missionaries Reach London.

London, Sept. 25.—The American missionaries, J. H. Roberts, Mark Williams, William Sprague, Mrs. Sprague and Mrs. Virginia Murdock, who escaped from Kalgan, province of Chi-li, China, in June, were chased across the Gobi desert. Thence they traveled by way of Siberia and have just reached London in good health. The missionaries will proceed immediately to the United States.

suspected of burglarizing the residence of Henry Hatfield, whose victims are: Isaiah Rollins, aged 18;

On the Trigger's Pull

By Gwendolen Overton.

THERE is always trouble of one sort or another when a woman meddles with those things which do not concern her sex.

Obviously, carbines were none of Miss Mivart's concern. If she felt that she had to play with firearms she should have kept to Flobert rifles.
Nothing would do, however, but that she must learn to shoot a carbine, and the result was that the whole post rose up and cut Burton, to a man; so that there was no peace for him any longer in that regiment, and he had to seek transfer to another.
There were other results, also, but they come later on.

Some thought that what Miss Mivart did was done on purpose, and some thought that it was a piece of idiotic silliness. The latter based their argument upon the general frivolous-ness of her ways, and upon the innocency of her round, blue eyes. The former held to the belief that Miss Mivart was one of those women favorites of Fortune who look greater fools than they are. They said, with a certain show of reason, that Georgia Mivart was a child of the service and not an importation from civil life.
She had been born in a garrison, and had played with rows of empty, greenrimmed cartridge shells at an age when most little girls played with paper dolls. She had hummed snatches of the bugle calls before she could talk, and the person she had admired the most and obeyed the best for the first dozen years of her life had been Kreutzer, Capt. Mivart's tow-headed striker. A few years of boarding-school back east could not have obliterated all that.

Besides, the veriest civilian, who has never come nearer to a carbine than to watch a Fourth of July militia parade, might reasonably be expected to know by intuition that in a target practice competition every trigger has got to pull just so hard, whatever the regulation number or fraction of pounds may be. Otherwise, it is plain that the nearer you come to a hair trigger the better your aim will be.

However, whether Miss Mivart was fully aware of what she was doing, nobody ever knew, unless perhaps it was Greville—and he, like Zuleika, never told. But Burton had a bad time of it, and all his beautiful score went for worse than nothing at all.

There was a target practice competition going on at the post; not one which was of any interest to the service, or even to the department at large; just a little local affair, devised to keep up the esprit de corps of the troops and to lighten the monotony of life. There were three contests, one for troops and companies, as such; one for individual privates and one for the officers. This last was to finish off, and then there was to be a big hop.

Everyone knew from the first, when Burton and Greville shot with their troops, that the officers' competition would lie between them. This made it interesting in more ways than one, because the rivalry was not confined to the target range, but extended to the winning of Miss Mivart's hand and heart, and everyone believed that this would settle a matter she did not appear to be able to settle for herself.
Not that she was to blame for that.
Anyone, even a person much more certain of her own mind than Miss Mivart was, would have been put to it to choose.

They were both first lieutenants, and both cavalymen, and both good to look upon. Burton was fair and Greville was dark, but she had no fixed prejudices regarding that. She had often said so. Also, both were as much in love with her as even she could have wished, and were more than willing that all the world should see it—than which nothing is more pleasant and soothing to a right-minded woman.

The rifle contest lasted ten days, during which time the air hummed with the ping and sing of bullets over the range, and with the call of the markers in the rifle-pits. Only scores and records and bets were thought and talked about.

Miss Mivart herself had bet, with all the daring wickedness of a kitten teasing a beetle. She even went so far as to bet on both Burton and Greville at once. The adjutant undertook to explain to her that that was called "hedging," and was not looked upon as altogether sporty. Miss Mivart was hurt. Was it really dishonest, she wanted to know. The adjutant felt that he had been unkind. He hastened to assure her that it was not—not dishonest in the least; only that it took away from the excitement of the thing to a certain extent. Miss Mivart smiled and shook her head. No, she didn't think that it did, because, of course, she knew herself which one she wanted to have win. The adjutant admitted that that might possibly be just as interesting for herself and the fortunate man. And which was he, if he might ask. Miss Mivart shook her head and smiled again. No, she didn't think he might ask. As the man himself didn't know, she could hardly tell anyone else just yet, could she? She had her own ideas about fair play.

"I can shoot a carbine myself," she told the adjutant, with her left chin proudly raised; "and my shoulder is all black and blue. Mr. Burton is teaching me."
"Oh!" said the adjutant, "and what does Greville think about that?" The adjutant was married, so he was out of the running.
"Mr. Greville is teaching me, too," said Georgia; "and here he comes for me now."

Burton was safe on the target range, over behind the barracks. Miss Mivart and Greville went in the other direction, by the back of the officers' row, over in the foothills across the creek.
Greville nailed the top of a big red pasteboard box to the trunk of a tree.
Miss Mivart hit it once out of 16 times—when she was aiming at the head of a prairie dog at least 20 feet away to the right. The other 15 shots were scattered among the foothills.

Then her shoulder hurt her so that she was ready to cry. Greville would have liked to have her cry upon his own shoulder, but, as she didn't, he did some fancy shooting to distract her.
He found a mushroom-can, and threw it into the air and filled it full of holes.
She had seen Burton do the same thing that morning with a tomato-can. In fact, from where she sat now on a lichen-covered rock, she could see the mutilated can glittering in the sun, over beyond the arroyo. So she thirsted for fresher sensations.

"I'll tell you," she said to Greville, as he held up the mushroom-can for her to inspect the eight holes he had made with five shots, "let me toss up your hat, and you make a hole through the trade mark in the crown."

It was a nice, new straw hat. Gre-ville had sent east for it and it had come by stage the day before. It had cost him, express paid, $4.75. This, too, at a time when anything he had left after settling his mess and sutler's and tailor's bills, went into stick-pins and candy and books and music and ridingwhips for Miss Mivart. But he took off the hat and gave it to her without even a lingering glance at that high-priced trade-mark within. And he felt that it was worth four times $4.75 when she picked up the tattered remains, at last, and asked that she might have them to hang in her room.

Then she looked down at her grimy hand and considered the first finger, crooking it open and shut. "I think it's going to swell," she pouted. "That is a perfectly awful trigger to pull."

The next morning it was Burton's turn. Greville was over on the range now, vainly trying to bring his record up to where Burton's was. This time Miss Mivart fired at a white pasteboardbox cover, and hit it three times out of twenty. She was jubilant, and so was Burton, because she was making such progress under his tuition.

"That's an easy carbine to shoot, isn't it?" she asked, as they wandered home; "it isn't at all hard to pull the trigger."

Burton glanced at her, and she met his eyes innocently. "It's just like any other trigger," he told her.

"Yes, of course. And is that the very same carbine you use in the competition—the one you shot with yesterday, and will use this afternoon when you finish up?"

He told her that it was.

"Well," she said, complacently, "I think I'm doing very nicely, don't you.
I hit the target three times, and my first finger doesn't hurt a bit—this morning."

That afternoon the competition came to an end, with Burton a good many points ahead of Greville. And that night there was the big hop. It had been understood from the first that the man who won was to take Miss Mivart to the hop. So she went over with Burton, and gave him one-third of her dances. Greville had another third, and the rest were open to the post at large.

Greville did not look happy at all. It was not the target record he minded.
He never thought about that. It was having to go down the board-walk to the hop-room behind Burton, and to watch Miss Mivart leaning on his arm and looking up into his face from under the white mists of her lace hood. He was not consoled at all when she looked up into his own face even more sweetly at the beginning of the second dance, and whispered that she was "so sorry."

Now as the second dance had been Greville's, the third was Burton's.
That was the way it had been arranged.
As the band began the waltz, Miss Mivart stood beside Greville in the center of quite a group. The commanding officer was in the group, so was Burton's captain, and so was the adjutant.
There were some others as well, and also some women. Miss Mivart may have chosen that position, or it may simply have happened so.

Anyway, just as the waltz started, Burton, light-hearted and light-footed, came slipping and sliding over the candle-waxed floor, and pushed his way into the midst. "Ours," he said, triumphantly.

But Miss Mivart did not heed him at once. She was telling them all how she had learned to shoot a carbine as well as anyone, and they, the men, at any rate, were hanging on her words.

"Mr. Greville taught me," she said, "and so did Mr. Burton." (This was the first either had known of the other's part in it, and they exchanged a look.)
"They taught me with their own carbines, too. The very same ones they used themselves in the competition.
But I shot best with Mr. Burton's carbine. He must have fixed his trigger to pull more easily; it was almost like what do you call it, a hair-trigger?"

She looked about for an answer, and saw on their faces a stare of stony horror and surprise. They had moved a little away from Burton, and the commanding officer's steady eyes were on his face. The face had turned white, even with the sunburn, and Burton's voice was just a trifle unsteady as he spoke.

"This is our dance, I think, Miss Mivart," he said.

The innocent, round, blue orbs looked just a little coldly into his.
"No," she told him, "I think you are mistaken. It is Mr. Greville's dance." And she turned and laid her hand on Greville's arm.—San Francisco Argonaut.

County and Vicinity

There has been an unusually large amount of tile laid by the farmers around Manchester this season.

Over in Hillsdale county the republicans have nominated a Stone for judge of probate, and a Chestnut for sheriff.

George C. Raymond of Grass Lake, a worthy veteran of the civil war, and a respected citizen, died at his home on Thursday.

An old circuit court calendar of 1875 gives the names of 55 attorneys practicing at the Washtenaw county bar. Of that number 26 are now dead.

After a good deal of suffering during a four weeks' illness, Henrietta, wife of Charles Cassidy, died at her home in Grass Lake, Wednesday, September 19th. Her age was 69 years.

Ex-president Grover Cleveland has

New York of which the ex-president's father was pastor. The gift is a kind

Several weeks ago Waddell Herrington stepped on the tooth of an iron rake while at play in his bare feet.
The wound has caused him considerable trouble since the accident, and on tion by removing three bones from the boy's foot.—Livingston Herald.

Mrs. Florence S. Babbitt has returned from Chicago, where she had the honor of being chief postmistress of the National W. R. C. convention.
The convention badge of yellow ribbon bears a beautiful portrait of Lin-

The nomination of Adelbert W.
Dwelle of Grass Lake for sheriff, by the republicans, the News says "is the first time in 45 years that this township has had a like distinction bestowed upon it, although at remote intervals a candidate for one or more of the important offices has been chosen from the ranks of our people.
And we wish to point out that no man thus selected was ever yet defeated, a fact of some significance."

J. F. Schuh had a queer experience on Forest avenue recently, which fortunately did not prove fatal. While driving on Forest avenue the reach in his wagon broke, the front axle and wheels pulled out and the horse continued down the street. In the meantime Mr. Schuh was turning flip-flops over the dashboard, and the people who saw it say that his work in the acrobatic line would make some professionals turn green with envy.

The Quiet Hour.
Lord, I have shut my door—Shut out life's busy care and fretting noise—
Here in the silence they intrude no more.
Speak, Thou, and Heavenly joys Shall fill my heart with music sweet and calm,
A holy psalm.

Lord, I have shut my door!
Come Thou, and visit me. I am alone.
Come, as when doors were shut Thou camest to me.
And visitedst Thine own.
My Lord! I kneel in reverent love and fear,
For Thou art here.
