FREE RURAL DELIVERY.

Two Routes Have Been Laid Out From This Place—Two More in Sight.

Ex Judge Daboll was here this week looking over the routes for free rural delivery.

Route number one is twenty-six miles long and goes south on the Manchester road to the Vermont cemetery and then east, south, west and north to near the Gus. Boos farm, thence east to Mrs. M. Conway's farm, then north and then east into Chelsea. Theodore Wedemeyer will be the carrier.

Route number two is twenty-six miles long, and goes east on the Territorial road to Lima Center, thence south to within a mile of Fredonia, thence to Rogers' Corners, through Jerusalem and back to Chelsea. William Wolff will be the carrier.

These routes will start either March 15th, or April 1st.

The Standard is also informed that there will be two more routes from this place within two months, one northwest and the other northeast.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

Interesting Meetings Were Held Wednesday and Thursday of Last Week.

The fifth annual farmers' institute was opened in the Staffan block Wednesday afternoon of last week, with Geo. T. English, president, in the chair.

The first thing upon the program was music by the Western Washtenaw Farmers' Club. This was followed by prayer by Rev. Thomas Holmes, D. D.

Wm. Bacon, president of the village, welcomed them and gave them the freedom of the village. Geo. T. English responded to the welcome with a few words of thanks. To the farmers the society took pleasure in submitting the program as arranged and hoped that all would take personal interest in the institute.

Alfred C. Smyth of Sharon then presented the subject "Co-operation Among Farmers." He thought it hard to change a man's mind after he had farmed it for twenty-five years. Success needs energy from daylight to darkness. He spoke of the fruit handling of California as being down to a science, and said that co-operation was necessary to promote any industry. Thought that if farmers would organize for legislative purposes it would be for their best interests. Would have more commission men, but would have them divide only one profit among the many. Did not think that the time had come for the farmers to organize for the purpose of shipping their produce and buying their merchandise.

W. E. Stocking thought that one could work too hard; there is a time for all things; co-operation is all right in its place. Every business is in a syndicate; believes that the Grange has done more for the farmers than any other organization. Believes that a young man can save more money today than they could thirty five years ago.

James McLaren believed that the middle man is a necessity.

E. A. Nordman would not believe that the young men of today are as successful as those of the days of his youth, but could not make the young people present agree with him. You must dress as your neighbor does, or you are out of company, and this is too expensive for the ordinary farmer.

Mrs. F. A. Stiles then sang a solo, entitled "Tell mother I'll be there."

Wm. Glenn believes that the almighty dollar is not all that the farmer needs. More co-operation is needed in mind and voice.

M. L. Raymond believes that a farmer has equal chances with other business men. Too much responsibility makes a man grow old too fast. Is willing to farm it and let the other fellow run the bank.

Wm. Bacon thought that the business man should attend to his business and the farmer to his farm.

The subject of good roads was then taken up, and discussed from every point of view.

Frank Storms then gave a recitation in a pleasing manner.

The evening session opened with a song by the Western Washtenaw Farmers' Club. Prayer by Rev. C. S. Jones.

The road question was again taken up, and in the absence of R. S. Whallan, who was to have presented a paper on the subject, it took the form of a general discussion.

Thursday morning's session opened with music by Mrs. Herman Fletcher. Prayer by Rev. J. I. Nickerson.

Prof. J. D. Towar then presented the subject "Forage Crops" in a very interesting manner. The subject is old and yet ever new. The forage crops of today are those that can be raised at the least expense and the shortest time. Corn is one of the best forage crops. Would not plant closer than three feet each way. We advocate common field dent. Clover is the best crop for the fertility of the soil. Crimson clover is not a good forage crop, but a fertilizer. Advocates millet if necessary to have more forage on the farm, it being an excellent feed for the cows. Would advise sowing corn for feeding cows through the drouth during the latter part of the summer. Would advise sowing peas and oats. An important crop is rape, making a good sheep pasture, and is also excellent for hogs. Would only recommend the raising of cow peas as a fertilizer. They can be used as feed, but are not relished at first by the stock. Would recommend winter vetch, it is an annual, or can be sown in August and harvested the next June. Will usually give one and one-half tons of hay to the acre. Has not much use for alfalfa, believes it is not a rotation crop.

Questions were then fired at the Professor, who answered them very ably.

Chas. Foster then presented the subject "Root crops." Believes that roots are not appreciated as they should be. Raised one acre each of mangels, sugar beets and carrots at an expense of eight cents per bushel. Would sow in rows thirty inches apart. Prefers carrots to mangels, would advocate the use of a root cellar. Thinks there is nothing better for fattening hogs than roots. Does not like raising sugar beets. Thinks it does not pay.

K. L. Butterfield then presented the subject of "Farm Organization." The nineteenth century farmers were pioneer farmers, the twentieth century farmers must be scientific farmers. Believes that farmers must organize, as all other businesses are organized, not only to bring dollars and cents into their pockets, but in order to train the mind. Farm organizations should not set themselves up as a particular party. Farmers should quit grumbling, work shoulder to shoulder for better things.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—O. C. Burkhardt.
Secretary and treasurer—N. W. Laird.

Vice Presidents—E. S. Spaulding, Sylvan; R. W. Boyden, Sharon; Charles D. Johnson, Dexter; Wm. Stocking, Lima; John Clark, Lyndon; M. K. Preston, Grass Lake.

At the afternoon session A. J. Easton presented the treasurer's report, which was accepted.

Prof. Towar then spoke on "Soil fertility: What it means and how maintained." Fertility means your revenue to draw from. The elements that go to make up a fertile soil are thirteen in number. Clover is the cheapest remedy. Fertilizers in the shape of barn yard manures must have their place on the farm, and should be better cared for than they are. Does not recommend commercial fertilizers. Keep all the live stock that you can, even if you have to buy more feed. Kinds of crops to raise are corn, oats, clover, millet, peas, rape and roots. Thorough cultivation is necessary to retain the fertility. If it is necessary to use fertilizers buy such as your land lacks. You must first know what is lacking in your land.

Music by the Misses Eva Lewick and Mabel Yager.

Miss Olive Cadwell of Grass Lake presented a very interesting paper entitled "The business woman and her responsibilities."

Solo by Mrs. F. A. Stiles.

Frank Dwelle of Grass Lake then presented the subject of Dairy Products. He believes that the cow is the first thing that you want to look after if you want to make a success of the dairy business. First select good cows and fat those that are not worth feeding for milk. Some farmers have received $15 per cow, while their neighbor gets $5. The cow will only produce according as she is fed. Never have the cows out of doors only long enough to get exercise. Do not let them stand in the bleak wind. You can not afford to starve the dairy cow.

Mr. Sweetland advocated the creamery plan. It is a labor saving way.

Mr. Hindelang observed that the cows of this vicinity are very poorly kept. Believes that the men should be more careful and neat.

The evening session was opened by instrumental music by Mrs. H. Fletcher and Geo. Steinbach, followed by prayer by Rev. F. A. Stiles.

Prof. Towar then told of the Agricultural College, the farm has 680 acres and 63 buildings, and today room is at a premium, and more buildings are necessary. An average student can get a year's schooling for $150. He told them that if they had any seeds of any kind and there was any doubt about their growing, send them to the college and have them tested free of charge.

Miss Ball thinks that is no better place for young ladies to get a general education than at the Agricultural College.

Music by G. E. Davis.
Recitation by Miss Nellie Mingsay.
Instrumental music by Mrs. H. Fletcher and Miss Nellie Lowry.

Extensive alterations are being made in the county clerk's office. Desks and files are to be rearranged and a wire screen with railing put up.

Refused to Resign.

The following from Laingsburg was taken from the dispatches in the daily papers:

Quite a little excitement has been wrought up in the First Congregational church of this village over the ousting of its pastor Rev. John S. Edmonds, formerly of Chelsea and Ypsilanti. It appears that a feeling existed that Rev. Mr. Edmonds was not holding the church up to its normal condition, and one of the deacons intimated to him that his resignation would be accepted.

He refused to resign until a meeting of the church and society was called and its pleasure ascertained. At this meeting a motion was made and carried that the trustees give the present pastor the customary notice that his services would be dispensed with three months from date, the "three months' notice clause" having been inserted in his contract at his special request.

Sunday morning, during the church services, Mr. Edmonds accused the church society of using him in a manner as if he had committed some awful crime. He declared that it had no reason to remove him in the middle of his year, and that he felt like demanding an explanation of its action. He was not given a reply, and the final outcome is looked forward to with considerable interest.

Communication.

Chelsea, Mich., February 7, 1901.

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish every parent of small children in Chelsea could have witnessed an incident that took place on east Middle street, yesterday noon. A double sleigh was stopped opposite the drive into Dr. Palmer's residence and the driver went into one of the houses there leaving the horses unhitched and unattended. A bevy of little girls of six or seven years promptly piled into the sleigh for a ride. Their chatter excited the horses, who started off slowly but gaining momentum as they advanced. There was no one in position to do anything to prevent what looked very much like a serious disaster, except a small boy about in front of Mensing's house, he made an effort to seize the line of the "off" horse but failed. Just at that moment a young lady, about in front of Dr. Avery's, called out to the boy, "Catch hold of the line!" "Catch hold of the line!" Again the little hero essayed to do so, but the great horse towering far, far above him was more than his little nerves could stand, and he stepped back, and again the young lady called out, "Don't be afraid, Johnnie, catch hold of the line." This time the child succeeded, and the horses feeling a slight degree of authority stopped, and a threatened calamity was averted. Too much credit can not be given the young lady, who, though she must have been torn with anxiety, shouted her encouragement to the boy with perfect coolness. She was Miss H-mans, a teacher in the public school, and the boy, I think, the son of Jacob Hummel. J. P. Wood.

A Sad Case.

Mrs. Hogan—Thot little sphalpane av a Jerry Horrigan must be a bad penny entirely.

Mrs. Duggan—Phwy?
"Shure, he's bin th' manes av makin' his poor woife a confir-med husband-bater."—Puck.

Her Explanation.

George—How is it, Cousin Clara, that you gave your age to the census enumerator as 22, when we were both born in the same year and I am 31?

Clara—Oh, that is easily explained. You have lived much faster than I.—Chicago Daily News.

How It Impressed Her.

Old lady—Just think, only one missionary for 10,000 cannibals.

Young Lady—Dear me! They must have very small appetites or very big missionaries!—Woman's Journal.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The republicans of the township of Sylvan will hold a Caucus at town hall, Chelsea, on Saturday, February 9th, 1901 at 3 o'clock (local time) for the purpose of electing 14 delegates to attend the county convention to be held at the City of Ann Arbor, on the Fourteenth day of February, 1901, and for the purpose of transacting such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

Dated, Sylvan, February 2, 1901.
By Order of Republican Township Committee.

A. W. Wilkinson, Chairman.

A FIREMAN'S CLOSE CALL.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa, "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by Glazier & Stimson.

$80,000 FIRE AT DETROIT.

Dreskell-Jupp Paper Co. are the Heaviest Losers.

FOURTH FIRE IN 25 MONTHS

In Which This Firm has Been the Principal Loser—Fire Started Early in the Morning—The Property Destroyed was Fully Insured.

Another Bad Fire at Detroit.

For the fourth time in 25 months the W. C. Jupp Paper Co., now known as the Dreskell-Jupp Paper Co., at Detroit, was a heavy loser by fire at an early hour on the morning of the 2d. The total losses as a result of the fire will amount to $67,000 or $80,000. The Dreskell-Jupp Co. being the principal sufferers. Their stock was valued at $40,000 and was a total loss. It is fully insured. The Heinman estate, owners of the building, will lose in the neighborhood of $20,000, while the minor losses will swell the total losses to about $80,000.

While the Dreskell-Jupp Co. fire was still burning, fire broke out in the old Wonderland building on Woodward avenue. Losses unknown at this writing.

It Sounds Rather "Fishy."

Charles Dillion, a well-known resident of the southern part of Hillsdale county, tells a strange story of a sum of money guarded by spirits that is buried on his farm. Mr. Dillion states that the location of the treasure was revealed to him by a friendly spirit, but that there are unfriendly ones who prevent him from digging it up. Frequent attempts have been made by different people, but none are able to dig more than a short distance below the surface. All attempts to go beyond a few feet in depth are failures, and no one can tell why. The soil is apparently a common clay soil, and in other places quite easily excavated. The place is regarded with superstitious awe by the neighbors.

Livingston Farmers Making Money.

The Michigan condensed milk factory at Howell had its banner day on Jan. 29 when it took in 135,276 pounds of milk. This is the largest amount of milk ever taken in one day by any condensed milk factory in Michigan. It required 60 teams to take this amount of milk to the factory, and at the current price of $1.10 per 100 pounds, cost more than $1,622. At this rate the farmers of the county would receive more than $42,172 for their milk for a month. The teamsters for hauling the same would receive something like $3,510.

Will Put up a Legal Fight.

The Anheuser-Busch Brewing company of St. Louis, Mo., has decided to back its agent, F. H. Fos, of Battle Creek, and make a fight against compelling him to pay a license of $500. He has been paying a wholesaler's license of $65 a year, but the county prosecuting attorney thought that he ought to pay the manufacturers' license of $500 and the state attorney-general sustained him in his opinion. This case will interest all agents in the state for outside breweries.

Editor Cannon Dead.

John W. Cannon, editor of the Oxford Globe for nearly a quarter of a century, is dead. His dead body was found lying at the foot of the cellar stairs at his residence at noon on the 3d. There was no witness to the accident, but it is supposed he tripped while descending the stairs and fell. Deceased was 55 years old; was a member of the Masonic order and the K. O. T. M. He leaves a widow but no children.

Annual Meeting of State Press.

The annual meeting of the Michigan State Press association will be held at Lansing on March 14 and 15. At this meeting will be chosen the officers for the ensuing year and also the representatives to the national association meeting at Buffalo.

Athens has a Curiosity.

An Athens man has a curiosity in the shape of two interlocked deer heads, which were found in the upper peninsula. The antlers are so firmly locked together that the skulls would have to be broken to separate them. The heads are those of full-grown bucks, and the battle that ended in death for both must have been fierce indeed.

Jan. 25—Escorted to railway station at Hope, Kan., by two saloonkeepers.

Jan. 28—Invaded state house at Topeka and lectured Gov. Stanley. Carrie Nation Club organized at Indianapolis.

Jan. 29—More lectures. Announced that she would stay in Topeka till all the 19 saloons are closed.

Jan. 30—Women inspired by Mrs. Nation's example, wreck four saloons at Anthony, Kan.

Feb. 4—Mrs. Nation and other women attempt to demolish a saloon, but are disarmed.

Feb. 5—Mrs. Nation wrecks the Senate saloon at Topeka.

While engaged in breaking up the Senate saloon Mrs. Nation got into a scuffle with the bartender, and while the latter was trying to wrench the hatchet from her grasp Mrs. Nation was struck on the right temple with the weapon. The blow did not disable her and she at once seized the hatchet carried by one of the other women and proceeded to put the joint out of business.

Fear an Epidemic of Rabies.

The people of northern Muskingum and southern Coshocton counties, Ohio, are wrought up with apprehension of an epidemic of rabies. Last November a band of gypsies traversed the country, having with them a savage dog which fought with the village and farm dogs, wounding many. While passing through Dresden the dog attacked Howard Stuller, a boy, lacerating his face. It was thought at that time that the dog was mad and the citizens raised a purse and sent the boy and his parents to the Pasteur institute at Chicago, where the lad was thoroughly treated and discharged as cured. Despite the Pasteur treatment, however, the boy was attacked by the rabies a few weeks ago and after three days of terrible suffering died in convulsions. So great is the fear that the other dogs will go mad and more deaths result that the killing of all the dogs along the route traversed by the gypsies is being strongly agitated and will probably be done.

Minister Shot by a Man He Wronged.

On the 4th Thomas G. Barker shot and seriously wounded Rev. John Keller, secretary to Rt. Rev. Bishop Staley, pastor of Trinity Episcopal mission, in Arlington, N. J., and chaplain of the First New Jersey regiment. The shooting was the result of an assault committed by Keller upon Mr. Barker's wife. The assault, it is alleged, during which Mrs. Barker became unconscious. The Barkers and the minister were very friendly and had continued apparently friendly for some time after the assault, but when Barker heard his wife's story he waited until morning and then lay in wait for the minister and shot him.

Great Tribute to the Dead Queen.

Half a million of the late Queen Victoria's devoted subjects lining the shores of the Solent on the 1st witnessed a majestic and awe-inspiring pageant and bade a last farewell to their beloved ruler, while her remains were being moved from Cowes to Portsmouth. The ceremony was a fitting tribute from a nation-owning Nelson for its hero to its dead monarch. All who were witnesses of the function testify to the profound emotion it inspired and agree that the spectacle could not have been surpassed for splendor and solemn effect.

7,000 Reported Killed.

A dispatch from Cairo, Egypt, dated the 1st, says news has been received there from Abyssinia of a great battle, in which 7,000 men were killed. It is supposed the chiefs rebelled during the absence of King Menelik, who has gone to the Egyptian frontier, in connection with the delimitation of the Egypto-Abyssinian frontier.

Later—The British foreign office officials know nothing of any difficulty in King Menelik's territory.

TRANSVAAL WAR ITEMS.

Gen. Kitchener, telegraphing from Pretoria, under date of Jan. 31, says: "DeWet's force crossed the Bloemfontein-Ladybrand line, near Israelpoort, during the night of Jan. 30. Hamilton's men, at the water works, were unable to get in touch with them. French, with cavalry and mounted infantry, is sweeping the country east of the Pretoria-Johannesburg railroad, between the Delagoa bay and Natal railroad, as far as Ermelo. He engaged about 2,000 of the enemy at Wilge valley. The enemy retired with four killed and nine wounded. Our casualties were one killed and seven wounded. Knox reports that he engaged DeWet's forces south of Welcome, Jan. 23. There was continuous fighting for some hours. Five Boers were buried. They removed many of their casualties in carts. Our casualties were one officer and one man killed and 13 wounded."

The following was received from Lord Kitchener from Pretoria under date of the 3d: "Our casualties at Modderfontein were two officers killed and two wounded. It appears that the post was rushed on a pitch dark night, during a heavy rain, the enemy numbering 1,400 with two guns. Campbell, south of Middleburg, engaged 500 Boers, who were driven back with loss. Our casualties were 20 killed or wounded. In view of the possibility of a Boer raid, all the ammunition surrendered by burghers at Komatiopoot has been loaded on lighters and moored in the bay."

Four or five hundred Boers recently evaded the British patrols, reached Benoni and attempted to destroy the mines. Some fighting resulted and the Boers were beaten off, carrying away most of their wounded and leaving two wounded behind them. One Briton was wounded. Commandant Marais was wounded during the attack and was subsequently captured. Two other prisoners were captured.

The London war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener: "Our post at Medderfontein, on the Gaterand, southwest of Krugersdorp, was attacked by 1,000 Boers recently. The relief column sent out from Krugersdorp failed to prevent the fall of the post. No details yet at hand, but officers and men captured at the post are arriving at Vereeniging."

The commissioner at Kroonstadt reports that Andries Wessels, one of the peace envoys, was shot at Klipfontein Jan. 28, by order of Gen. DeWet. Morgan Daal, who was another of the two Boer peace envoys, and who accompanied Andries Wessels, was shot near Lindley, Jan. 10.

There is a commando of 2,000 Boers on Portuguese territory. It is supposed that their intention is to rescue the Boers there.

The Portuguese authorities have decided to remove to Madeira such Boer refugees as decline to surrender to the British.

A recent Boer attack on the Boksburg mines resulted in damages amounting to $300,000.

U. S. Consul A. S. Hay, at Pretoria, sailed for the U. S. from Cape Town on Jan. 30.

The British have re-occupied Petersburg.

PHILIPPINE NEWS.

In anticipation of the passage of the army reorganization bill, the war department issued preparatory orders for the transportation of 5,200 regular troops to the Philippines to replace an equal number of volunteers under orders to San Francisco for discharge. The soldiers to be sent to the Philippines first include eight troops of the 5th cavalry, eight companies of the 10th infantry, eight companies of the 11th infantry and the provisional battalion of the troops at the Presidio of San Francisco. There are now about 2,000 recruits at San Francisco awaiting transportation to Manila, and the number will be increased as rapidly as the recruiting officers in various parts of the country obtain the necessary material.

Natives have reported at Bantanga that a week ago the natives of Mindoro rose against the insurgents and killed the insurgent governor. There are no troops on Mindoro. The federal party of Bataan province, including the presidents of each pueblo, held a big meeting at Orani on the 3d and resolved to notify the insurgents of Bataan that they must cease operations within a week or the people will assist the Americans to capture them.

Capt. Cameron and 50 cavalrymen had a fight on the 29th with insurgents at Bundooparay and routed them, killing 20 men and capturing a quantity of arms. Geronimo was present, but escaped. Minor captures and surrenders continue in the island of Luzon. Many Filipinos are taking the oath of allegiance to the U. S.

The first general order issued by the war department in execution of the provisions of the army reorganization act directs the discontinuance of the sale of beer, wine and intoxicating liquors on all military reservations and army transports. The order was issued on the 4th and is very terse and concise in its terms.

By direction of the President, Brig.-Gen. Wade and William Ludlow will be relieved of their present duties and ordered to San Francisco in time to sail from that port after March 1, on the first transport for Manila, where they will report to the commanding general, division of the Philippines, for assignment to duty.

Bethune's column, after a heavy march, joined De Lisle's column on the 29th. Col. Bethune is now in command, and it is understood that he will undertake what is recognized as the extremely arduous task of driving the Boers out of Cape Colony.

Thomas J. Jefferson's Sons-in-Law.

Both of the sons-in-law of Thomas Jefferson were members of congress from Virginia while he was president. Thomas Mann Randolph, who married his daughter, Martha, was Governor of Virginia from 1819 to 1822 and a member of the House of Representatives from 1803 to 1807. John W. Eppes, who married his only other daughter, Mary, familiarly called "Polly," was a representative from Virginia from 1803 to 1811, and from 1813 to 1815. In 1817 he was elected to the United States senate, but after two years of service resigned on account of his health. Thomas Mann Randolph impoverished himself in trying to save Mr. Jefferson's property.—Chicago Record.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP.

Released by Pe-ru-na---Congressman Howard's Recovery---Congressman Geo. H. White's Case

La Grippe is epidemic catarrh. It spares no class or nationality. The cultured and the ignorant, the aristocrat and the pauper. The masses and the classes are alike subject to la grippe. None are exempt—all are liable.

Have you the grip? Or, rather, has the grip got you? Grip is well named. The original French term, la grippe, has been shortened by the busy American to read "grip." Without intending to do so a new word has been coined that exactly describes the case. As if some hideous giant with awful Car had clutched us in its fatal clasp. Men, women, children, whole towns and cities are caught in the baneful grip of a terrible monster.

Per-na For Grip.

Mrs. Dr. C. D. Powell, President of Epworth League, also President of Loyal Temperance Legion, writes from Chehalis, Wash.:

"I have used several remedies in cases of severe colds and la grippe, but none I consider of more value than Per-na."—Mrs. Dr. C. D. Powell.

After-Effects of La Grippe.

Miss Emma Jouris, President Golden Rod Sewing Circle, writes from 40 Burling Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"This spring I suffered severely from the after-effects of la grippe. As the doctors did not seem to help me I bought a bottle of Per-na."—Miss Emma Jouris.

A VISIT TO POMPEII. THE CITY THAT WAS BURIED 1700 YEARS.

The Reproduction of the Excavated City a Big Artistic and Educational Success—Thousands Who Visit are Enthusiastic.

At the beginning of the Christian era Pompeii was one of the principal cities of the fertile Campania of sunny southern Italy. Situated on the blue Bay of Naples at the mouth of the Sarno, it was at once a center of wealth and commerce, of pleasure and luxury, of art and civilization, of just and licentiousness. With the splendor of Rome reflected in its daily life its people gave themselves up to festivities, such as the world had seldom seen. In the amphitheater the thousands witnessed gladiatorial combats and other scenes whose chief attraction was bloodshed, and as Nero had made it fashionable to persecute the Christians Pompeii likewise fed the followers of the meek and lowly Nazarene to the wild beasts for the delectation of the populace.

Pompeii, however, was a religious city, for were not the beautiful temples of Venus, of Jupiter, of Mercury and other Roman deities, and had not the Temple of Isis, the cult brought from the land of Pyramids, become "the rage," with its numerous lascivious priests and priestesses.

The people of Pompeii were public-spirited and besides having well paved streets had a score of magnificent public baths, many of beautiful and pleasure forum grand in dimensions as well as in materials and workmanship. There were statues and monuments, memorial arches and gateways, Pompeii also had a system of waterworks and was far more "modern" than is generally imagined.

In the year 64 A. D. this Pompeii was visited by a terrific earthquake which wrecked many of the public buildings, temples and residences, but from the ruins rose structures of even greater grandeur and almost every trace of the disaster had disappeared within the next dozen years. This shaking up had almost been forgotten and the pleasure-loving, cosmopolitan people were again riotously enjoying themselves with the utmost of liberty and license, when, like a second Sodom, it was visited by the wrath of an avenging Almighty.

The glorious month of August was about half past in the year 79 A. D., when one night, as the greater portion of the residents of Pompeii were gathered in the places of amusement the hearts again began to tremble, men's feet sank and a most sickening sense of dread pervaded the frames of all, as they felt the approach of an awful doom, which none could surmise. Then, with a roar and crash which shook the earth and the heavens, grim old Soma (the sleeping mountain) burst asunder and was Soma no longer, but thence henceforth was Mt. Vesuvius, and there as a belch of flame, ashes, scoria and lava belched forth from the summit and spread like the top of a broad pine tree, so heavy and dense "at the sun was hidden within the hour of its appearance arrived, and the awful " " continued for a period of three days.

Bulwer Lytton, in his famous story, "The Last Days of Pompeii," thus describes the progress of the destruction: "The cloud resembled less even the thickest gloom of a night, and the darkness of some narrow room. But in proportion as the blackness gathered, did the lightnings around Vesuvius increase. Now his horrible beauty confined to the usual hues of fire; no rainbow ever rivalled their varying and prodigal colors. Now a southern sky—now of a livid and snake-like green, darting restlessly to and fro as the fumes of an enormous sea; or lower still, the grinding and hissing murmur of the escaping gases through the chasms of a distant mountain. The cloud appeared to break from its solid mass, and by the lightning to assume quaint and vast mimics of human or of monster shapes, striking terror to the heart, and one upon the other, and vanishing swiftly into the turbulent abyss of shade; so that to the eyes and fancies of the beholders, the forms of the most gigantic foes—the agents of terror and of death.

The ashes in many places were already knee deep; and the boiling showers which came from the steaming breath of the volcano forced their way into the streets, and suffocating vapor. In some places, immense fragments of rock, hurled upon the house roofs, bore down along the streets, and in the more archaic places, obstructed the way; and as the day advanced, the motion of the earth was more suddenly felt, the footing grew slippery and creep—now could chariot or litter be kept steady, even on the most level ground.

Scattered the huge stones, striking against each other as they fell, broke into countless fragments, emitting sparks of fire, which caught whatever was combustible within their reach; and along the plains beyond the city the darkness was now terribly relieved; for several houses, and even vineyards, had been seen by the flames; and at various intervals the fires flared up, and fiercely against the solid gloom. To add to this partial relief of the darkness, the citizens, the herds and flocks, in the more archaic places, such as the porticoes of temples and the entrances to the forum, endeavored to place rows of torches, but these rarely continued long, the showers and the winds extinguished them, and the sudden darkness into which their feeble light was converted had something in it doubly terrible and doubly impressive on the notice of human hopes, the lesson of despair. Frequently, by the momentary light of these torches, parties of fugitives encountered each other, some hurrying toward the sea, others flying from the sea back to the land; for the ocean had retreated rapidly from the shore, and these groups encountered each other, but without the leisure to speak, to consult, to advise. If in the darkness, wife was separated from husband, or parent from child, vain was the hope of reunion. Each hurried blindly and confusedly on. Nothing in all the various and complicated machinery of social life was left save the primal law of self-preservation! At the moment when the volcanic lightning's incensed over the city, the people, in the progress; yet, little did the view it presented to them cheer or encourage their path. The story told within these walls, and uncommitted with the boiling torrents, east upward from the mountain at capricious intervals, the surface of the earth presented, each other, some hurrying in heaps, from beneath which emerged the half-burnt limbs of some exhibit doubly ghastly. The victims of the dying were broken by shrieks of women's terror—now near, now distant—which, when heard in the darkness, were rendered doubly appalling. Darkness, with a rushing sense of helplessness and the uncertainty of the perils around; an clear and distinct through the Patna's Mountain; its rushing winds; its whirling torrents; and, from time to time, the burst and roar of some monstrous vapors, whose explosion and poisonous vapors, swept howling along the street, their bore sharp streams of burning dust, and took away for the instant, breath and consciousness. Suddenly a duller shade fell over the air, and behold! one of the two gigantic crests, into which the summit had been divided, rocked and wavered, and then, with a sound the mightiness of which no language can describe, it fell from its burning base, and rushed, an avalanche of fire, down the sides of the mountain! At the same instant gushed forth a volume of black smoke—rolling on, over air, sea and earth. Another—and another—and another showed their peaks, far more profuse than before scattered fresh desolation."

The doomed Pompeians rushed thither, thither in the stifling darkness, stones, ashes, mud and hot water deluging them constantly; groping their way with only the vivid flashes of lightning or brief burning and feeble torches to help them pick their way through streets filled with ruins, scoria and the bodies of fallen fellow citizens. Families were separated and above the terrible noises rose the pitiful cries of thousands of beings almost bereft of reason by their peril and suffering. Many of the Masons of Detroit were anxious sought safety by fleeing toward the country while others turned to the sea for escape, but death overtook the multitudes on either side. Sarno had receded over a mile from the city while the road without the city were even more danker than the city itself. Towns and cities nearer the burning mountain were more completely and quickly engulfed. Herculaneum, for instance, being lost in the vast stream of molten lava. For three days and nights the bowels of the earth were poured forth on helpless Pompeii and while hundreds perhaps, escaped, thousands perished. The miser with his gold, the thief with his booty, the slave in his chains, and the rich man in the midst of his luxury, all classes were mingled in the common destruction.

When at last the mountain had finished its work of devastation and Old Sol once more was able to make his presence known, what a change had come upon the erstwhile fair landscape. Cities, vineyards and olive groves all lay buried under 20 or more feet of ashes, mud and scoria. The River Sarno had been raised up and changed its course, the contour of the seashore was altered and thus whet those who had escaped returned they were unable to locate their former habitations. Year upon year passed away and generation succeeded generation, until Pompeii, Herculaneum and other places which had been in the hands of the mighty Roman empire, which then comprised the whole known world, crumbled into decay. But Pompeii knew not of it, for the ruins were so firmly established new races sprang into existence. France, Germany, Britain, Spain became nations. Then came centuries of ignorance and superstition, called the Dark Ages, which were followed by a reawakening of the world to a greater intellectuality. A new world was discovered and peopled, and became a nation, first Europe, and for 1,700 years. The vicinity of Vesuvius had again become a productive and beautiful country. Vineyards and olive groves, and here and there a few villas again covered the site of the devastated country.

It is less than 150 years ago that while digging to secure water for irrigation, a vineyard and olive grove, an Italian farmer found 20 feet from the surface a beautiful vase. His curiosity being aroused he made further excavations and found numerous articles which led to others following his example and finally a small bronze was unearthed bearing an inscription containing the name "Pompeii." The interest soon became widespread and the Italian government took charge of the work and the arted houses, temples, the forum, and the various buildings of importance was carted away to Naples or Rome and placed in the museums, until it occurred to someone that this system would soon destroy the remains of the city and also prevent an intelligent study of the life of the people of Pompeii. As a consequence everything, statues, paintings, and the like, is now restored to the position it is supposed to have originally occupied and while the houses of Sallust, the Fawn the Temple of Isis, and the others have been denuded of their treasures, the later discovered houses of Pansa and the Vettii are carefully protected from wind and weather and display their former beauty as nearly as possible.

Thus was Pompeii disinterred from its silent tomb, all undimmed: its walls fresh as if painted yesterday, and the floor of the rich mosaic of its floors—in its forum the half-finished columns as left by the workman's hand—in its gardens the sacrificial tripod—the marble chest of treasure—in its baths the strigil—in its theaters the counter of admission—in its saloons the furniture and the lamp in its richly furnished rooms of the feast—in its cubicles the perfumes and the rouge of faded beauty—and everywhere the bones and skeletons of those who fell in the spring of their lives, that pure yet gorgeous machine of luxury and of life!

The houses of Sallust and of Pansa, the Temple of Isis, with the juggling calculations behind the statues—the lurk-in-place of its holy crucifixes—are now bared to the gaze of the curious. In one of the chambers of that temple was found a huge skeleton with an ax beside it; two walls had been pierced by the ax—the victim could penetrate no further. In the middle of the city was found another skeleton, by the side of which was a heap of coins, and many of the mystic ornaments of the fane of Isis. Death had slain a man in his career.

The House of the Vettii, the most magnificent yet discovered, was unearthed in 1872, and is visited by over 50,000 people annually.

The Masonic fraternity of Detroit has arranged for a gigantic reproduction of the principal square of Pompeii as it lies in the ruins of the city. The Vettii fully restored to illustrate how the people of that city lived when Vesuvius overwhelmed them. The Masonic temple of the city is being reconstructed, which gives ample room for the big undertaking. On the seventh floor, which is one immense room 110x100 feet, will be the Palace and a distance with a distance of Vesuvius and the Bay of Naples. Ruined temples, the forum, theater and other buildings, the street opening off the forum. The bake-shop, where bread such as we eat every day was made, will be shown with its mills for grinding grain, and the scene will be a revelation of harmonizing coloring. The frescoes, hangings, furniture; the baths, the garden, the fountains, the statuary, and all the features which have been the admiration of wondering thousands will be there so nearly like the original as almost to deceive the most experienced traveler. The story told within these walls, and supplies information which volumes of printed pages would not convey.

Another feature will be a museum of Pompeian curiosities of various kinds which have been secured specially for this Pompeian festival and which will add much to its effectiveness and instructiveness.

Prof. A. H. Griffith, director of the Detroit Art Museum, is director-general of the festival and his well-known success in numerous other art ventures assure the artistic excellence of this.

Besides the features already mentioned there will be a Pompeian theater, an Exedra, an art exhibit and a series of lectures on Pompeii. The former is to be an exact reproduction of the old Teatro Comico of Pompeii, but here the ancient features and beautiful Turkish maidens supply seductive camel's milk, lemonade nectar, cigars, etc. King Wizard and Witch Mab, the most renowned prognosticators of the future, here have their headquarters, while splendid music adds to the charm of this novel retreat.

The March of Time, an immense historical painting, portraying an allegorical story of the last march of the G. A. R. in Boston, is the center of the collection of 50 or more paintings. The art exhibit, figures in the "March of Time" are life size and very striking. There is plenty of action and that martial spirit which people admire pervades the entire exhibit.

Prof. Rolfe and Swain, of the University of Michigan, both of whom have long been students of the Pompeian, are now engaged to deliver lectures on Pompeii, its destruction, its people, their life and habits, the discovery and excavation. These lectures will be given in the amphitheater Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, illustrated with the finest collection of stereoscopic views in existence.

The dates of the Festival are Jan. 31st to Feb. 21st, inclusive.

THE NERVES OF WOMEN

"I am so nervous and wretched." "I feel as if I should fly." How familiar these expressions are! Little things annoy you and make you irritable. You can't sleep, you are unfit for ordinary duties, and are subject to dizziness.

That bearing-down sensation helps to make you feel miserable. You have backache and pains low down in the side, pain in top of head, later on at the base of the brain.

Such a condition points unerringly to serious uterine trouble.

If you had written to Mrs. Pinkham when you first experienced impaired vitality, you would have been spared these hours of awful suffering.

Happiness will be gone out of your life forever, my sister, unless you act promptly. Procure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. It is absolutely sure to help you. Then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., if there is anything about your case you do not understand.

You need not be afraid to tell her the things you could not explain to the doctor—your letter is seen only by women and is absolutely confidential. Mrs. Pinkham's vast experience with such troubles enables her to tell you just what is best for you, and she will charge you nothing for her advice.

Mrs. Valentine Tells of Happy Results Accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM.—It is with pleasure that I add my testimony to your list, hoping it may induce others to avail themselves of the benefit of your valuable remedy. Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I felt very bad, was terribly nervous and tired, had sick headaches, no appetite, gnawing pain in stomach, pain in my back and right side, and so weak I could scarcely stand. I was not able to do anything. Had sharp pains all through my body. Before I had taken half a bottle of your medicine, I found myself improving. I continued its use until I had taken four bottles, and felt so well that I did not need to take any more. I am like a new person, and your medicine shall always have my praise."—MRS. W. P. VALENTINE, 566 Ferry Avenue, Camden, N. J.

$5000 REWARD

Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing, we have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who can show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—LYDIA E. La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called La Grippe" says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most popular preparation in use for these ailments. For sale by all druggists.

There They Were.

This story was told by a Philadelphia man who dislikes nothing so much as to be asked questions: "My little girl is very fond of seashells," he said, "and, having been called to Atlantic City on business the other day, I took advantage of the opportunity to run down to the beach to see if I could pick up a few. I was strolling along the sand, gathering a few shells and pebbles, when along came one of those old fellows who ask questions with their mouths which their eyes could answer. He smiled upon me and said: 'Fine day, isn't it. Are you gathering shells?' 'No,' I snapped back, saying the first thing that popped into my mind, 'I'm looking for a set of false teeth I lost while in bathing.' He expressed his sympathy, and then his face lit up as he caught sight of a pink and white object on the sand. 'Well, I declare! Here they are now!' he exclaimed, and, sure enough, he picked up a set of false teeth lying right at his feet. I was too surprised to do anything but grab them and put them in my pocket. The funny part of it is that I never had a tooth pulled in my life. I wonder whom that false set belongs to."—Philadelphia Record.

County and Vicinity

There was a hot time over in York township recently. Mr. and Mrs. Pepper celebrated the forty-first anniversary of their marriage.

Howell's streets are in darkness. Thursday night the council decided not to pay the electric light company any more money. The electric company had just served an injunction on the council, restraining them from issuing $15,000 in bonds for a municipal lighting plant. The company claims the vote for issuing bonds was not carried by a two-thirds majority. So the war goes on, and the village will be in darkness.

Geo. Waldron and William Larkins of Plymouth are in jail at Ann Arbor, charged with the larceny of fourteen sheep from the farm of Heaney Bros., of Salem township. Larkins is one of the three men tried some years ago for the murder of the Dixboro hermit, James Richards, and with the others acquitted of the charge. White Waldron and Larkins were being registered at the jail Saturday morning, they attacked the turnkey in a desperate attempt to escape. Quite a fight ensued and both men gave up only after rough treatment at the clubs of the officers. Another of the three Richards suspects has been arrested charged with complicity in the sheep stealing affair.

There was a lively incident in connection with the testing of the new Metropolitan fire engine at the corner of Main and Mechanic streets yesterday afternoon. The coupling of the hose and engine did not fit perfectly, and when the engine was running at a high rate of speed, the coupling was forced apart. A stream of water came rushing from the engine which might have knocked a horse over. It did strike three men who were in the large crowd around the engine, and those men were tumbled over one another for forty yards, before they were removed from the force of the stream. They scrambled to their feet wet as rats, but not much the worse from bruises.—Jackson Patriot.

Our advertised agents guarantee every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and will refund the money to any one who is not satisfied after using two-thirds of the contents. This is the best remedy in the world for la grippe, coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough and is pleasant and safe to take. It prevents any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. All druggists.

We request all patrons and friends of The Standard who have business at the probate office, to request Judge Watkins to send all legal notices to The Standard to be printed therein. We shall appreciate the favor and the Judge will be pleased to grant your request. 20

Pity and Beauty

The most beautiful thing in the world is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain. And the mother does not know that a little fat makes all the difference.

Dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear; the fat, that was comfort and color and carve-all but pity and love—is gone.

The little one gets no fat from her food. There is something wrong; it is either her food or food-mill. She has had no fat for weeks; is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers; and that is gone. She is starving for fat; it is death, be quick!

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the fat she can take; it will save her.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, N. Y. 409 Pearl St., N. Y. 50c. and $1.00 all druggists.

A Good Sleep.

Nothing adds more to vigor of body and cheerfulness of mind, or aids so well in chasing away the lines of worry and care from the weary brow, as good, sound, refreshing sleep. But when the gray matter of the brain has been robbed of its vitality and constructive strength by weak, worn-out and exhausted nerves, sleep gives way to restless tossing and long hours of feverish distress. Do you want a good sleep? You can get it if you go about it right.

"For six months I had not slept on an average of more than three hours a day. Although I had been doctoring with physicians at home and abroad, and had tried many kinds of patent medicines, I did not seem to improve. Dr. Miles' Nervine brought me sound sleep the first night. My appetite and digestion improved, the nervousness disappeared and in a few weeks I was restored to health." GEO. C. LOCK, Kinderhook, Ills.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Relaxes the strain on the excited nerves, and gives the repair shops of the brain a chance to make good the damage of the waking hours. It is a great brain-food and nerve-builder. Sold by all druggists on a guarantee. Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

PROBATE ORDER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF WASHTENAW, s. s. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate office in the city of Ann Arbor on Tuesday, the 22nd day of January in the year one thousand nine hundred and one. Present, W. L. Watkins, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Squire S. Covert, deceased. Theodore T. Covert the administrator of said estate, comes into court and represents that he is now prepared to render his final account as such administrator. Thereupon it is ordered, that Thursday, the 14th day of February, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and allowing such account, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Ann Arbor, in said county, and show cause, if any there be, why the said account should not be allowed. And it is further ordered, that said administrator give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Chelsea Standard a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. W. L. WATKINS, Judge of Probate. (A true copy.) George R. Gurn, Register of Probate. 1

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, dated the third day of December, A. D. 1880, executed by John Frederick Barth and Christina Barth, his wife to Jay Everett, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said county of Washtenaw, in said state of Michigan, on the 7th day of December, A. D. 1880, in liber 60 of mortgages, on page 12, by which the power of sale in said mortgage has become operative and whereas there is now claimed to be due the sum of seven hundred and thirty dollars, for principal and interest and thirty dollars as an attorney fee as provided by law, and whereas no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale and the laws of this state on Monday the 1st day of April, 1901, at 12 o'clock, noon, at the east front door of the court house, in the city of Ann Arbor, county of Washtenaw, state of Michigan (that being the place where the circuit court for said county of Washtenaw is held), I will sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, the lands and premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the account due, interests, costs and expenses of said sale, said premises being situated in the township of Sharon, county of Washtenaw, state of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: The Northeast quarter of the Southwest quarter of section Fourteen, (14). Dated at Chelsea, Mich., Jan'y 2, 1901. JAY EVERETT, Mortgagee. G. W. TURNBULL, Attorney for Mortgagee. 7

CHANCERY SALE.

IN PURSUANCE AND BY VIRTUE of a decree of the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, in Chancery, made and entered on the 8th day of October, 1900, in a certain cause therein pending wherein Reuben Kempf is complainant and Maria L. Barker, James E. Sumner and May B. Sumner are defendants.

Notice is hereby given that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder, at the south front entrance to the Court House in the City of Ann Arbor, County of Washtenaw and State of Michigan (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw is held), on Wednesday, the 6th day of March, 1901, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, the following described property, viz: All those certain pieces or parcels of land situated and being in the Township of Pittsfield in the County of Washtenaw and State of Michigan and described as follows, to wit: The northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section number five (5) in town three south and range six east; containing forty acres more or less. Also the following described land: Commencing at the southeast corner of the south half of the northeast fractional quarter of said section number five, running thence west on the quarter line of said section, twenty chains and sixty-two links, thence north parallel to the east line of said section, five (5) chains and eighty-two links to a stake, thence east parallel to the quarter line of said section twenty chains and sixty-two links, to the east line of said section, thence south on the east line of said section, five chains and eighty-two links to the place of beginning; containing twelve acres. Dated, Ann Arbor, Michigan, January 15th, 1901.

WILLIAM H. MURRAY, Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Washtenaw County, Michigan. Geo. W. TURNBULL, Solicitor for Complainant, Chelsea, Michigan. 3

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. Baby's Head Was "Wobbly." She is a very little girl, only five years old, but in the short period of her few years she has enjoyed a large experience of life with dolls of all kinds and descriptions, who, in the course of their existence under her loving but not always kind administrations, have undergone many vicissitudes. So the little five-year old, when there came a real live baby into the house, felt herself something of a connoisseur in children. When it was put into her arms, this real live baby, she regarded it with a critical air. "Isn't that a nice baby?" cried the nurse with the joyous pride with which a nurse always regards a new baby, in which she feels that she has a proprietary interest. "Yes," replied the little girl, hesitatingly, "it's nice, but it's head's loose."—N. Y. Times.

Her Celestial Credentials. "Put it down that," said the old man to the obituary writer, "that she wuz 42, an' likely fer her age." "That's down." "That she wuz never known ter speak a cross word—bein' deaf an' dumb from childhood." "All right." "That she is now at rest on Abraham's bosom—but hold on. Ain't that whar Lazarus is?" "I think so." He paused a moment, as if in deep thought. Then he said: "No matter! Put it down that she's thar, too; fer ef ever Lazarus sees her comin' he'll vacate an' hunt another restin' place. 'Sides that, he's been thar too long, anyhow!"—Atlanta Constitution.

The First Outlying Acquisition. Navassa island—which lies south of Hayti in the Caribbean sea, and can be sighted from the decks of vessels passing from New York to the isthmus—was the only outlying possession of the United States until we acquired Porto Rico and the Philippines. It is covered with phosphates, but was uninhabited until a Baltimore company discovered its riches and sent a gang of men to work the mines. It became a part of the United States under a law of congress, passed many years ago, which extended the sovereignty of our government over any uninhabited territory discovered occupied by our citizens.—Indianapolis News.

Those New Hampshire Wits. Upon the piazza of the Profile house, White mountains, this autumn, a party of visitors discussed the pronunciation of the word, giving the place and the house its name. Some were for "Profyel;" others for "Profeel." A native mountaineer happened to drive up, one of the party suggested that they leave it to him. The others, for fun, consented. "Wa-al," drawled the native, true to the Yankee trick of answering a question with a question, "would ye say 'twas a woodplyle or a woodpeel that yer had in yer back yard?"—N. Y. Sun.

Columbus and the Egg. Columbus, having promised to stand an egg on end, failed at the first trial, but he reversed the egg and it balanced perfectly. "Tell me, Chris," said King Ferdinand, "why did you turn the egg over?" "Because, your majesty, the chicken could not stand on its head." It is said that Columbus got the idea of discovering America from this incident. But, of course, theories are not always what they are cracked up to be.—Detroit Free Press.

One Good Trait. Katie—I don't like Mr. Rox. Katie's Mother—Why not? "He's got money, and though he has been coming to see me for a year he never gave me anything in his life." "I don't know about that. He gives you a chance to get to bed at a reasonable hour, which can't be said of some of the other young men, I know."—Detroit Free Press.

Judicial Ruling as to "Snapshots." Counsel for three men accused of larceny in a Canadian court asked the judge to protect his clients from a couple of amateur photographers who were trying to snapshot them during the hearing, but the court ruled that no person could be prevented from attempting to take a photograph.—N. Y. Sun.

He Objected. He—I don't like the idea of using so much secular music in our church. Did you notice the selection the organist played last Sunday? She—No. What was it? "I don't know the name of it, but it is something I have frequently heard at sacred concerts."—Harlem Life.

Shame Him. Cholly—He called me a liar. What would you do about it? Miss Pepprey—Well, if I were you I'd make it a point to always tell the truth when he's around.—Philadelphia Press.

A Queer Japanese Courtesy. At the close of formal dinners in Japan guests are presented with any portion of the meal they may fail to eat, which they are expected to take home.—Albany Argus.

EXPOSITION FIGURES.

SOME ASTONISHING FACTS ABOUT THE PAN-AMERICAN.

Niagara Falls Will Supply Power, and Over 300,000 Electric Lights Will Be Used in the Illumination of the Tower and Courts.

Forty million people live within a night's ride of Buffalo. It is expected that a large proportion of these will visit the Pan-American Exposition at some time during its progress. Many will visit it five, ten, or twenty or more times. Niagara Falls will prove a great magnet in drawing visitors to the Exposition. Altogether it is fair to expect that the attendance at this first Exposition of all the Americas will be the largest in the history of Expositions in either the New World or the Old.

Ten million dollars represents approximately the cost of the Exposition, exclusive of exhibits. The authorized capital stock of the Exposition is $2,500,000. The authorized bond issue is $2,500,000. The government appropriation is $500,000. The cost of the Midway is $3,000,000. The New York state appropriation is $300,000, and in connection with the New York building about $100,000 will be expended by the City of Buffalo and the Buffalo Historical Society. The appropriation from states and foreign countries together with the cost of buildings to be erected on the Exposition grounds by the City of Buffalo and by private citizens will

Two thousand incandescent lamps will be used in the illumination of one feature of the Midway alone—the Thompson Aero-Cycle. As many and perhaps more will be used in illuminating the Streets of Mexico. Other Midway structures will also be profusely illuminated and the lights thus used are all additional to the 300,000 required for the illumination about the courts of the Exposition.

Thirty-five thousand gallons of water per minute will be required for the fountain display of the Exposition, which will be the most elaborate of any ever undertaken for a similar purpose.

Fifty feet will be the height of some of the jets in the Court of Fountains. The jets will be electrically illuminated at night.

Seventy feet is the height of the cascade falling from the front of the Electric Tower into the basin below.

Five hundred and sixty-five by two hundred and twenty-five are the dimensions of the basin of the Court of Fountains, which equals 98,872 square feet.

Five thousand horse power of electricity will be delivered in Buffalo from tors of Pan-America, and will cost about half a million dollars, being the grandest collection of decorative Exposition sculpture ever assembled.

Two hundred thousand hardy perennials have been planted for the purpose of beautifying the grounds next summer, and the great floral display will include over 500 beds of popular flowers, with rare tropical plants and aquatic plants in the Courts, Mirror Lakes, Grand Canal and Lagoons.

Fifteen thousand dollars is the cost of the great organ for the Temple of Music being built by Emmons Howard.

Six thousand animals are to be accommodated in buildings for live stock displays.

Twelve thousand is the seating capacity in the Stadium, the great arena for athletic sports.

Twenty large buildings will house the exhibits from all the Americas, and besides these there will be many smaller ones in the Court of State and Foreign Buildings, on the Midway and in other parts of the grounds.

Six hundred feet is the length of the main United States Government building. Connected with the main building bring the total cost of the Exposition up to fully $10,000,000.

The area of the Exposition site is 350 acres. This includes 133 acres of park lands and lakes in Delaware Park, one of the most beautiful parks in the world. The plot is a mile and a quarter from north to south and half a mile from east to west.

Three hundred thousand incandescent lamps will be used in achieving the grand illumination about the Court of Fountains, Electric Tower, Esplanade and Plaza.

Four hundred miles of wire will be used in the installation of the lamps for this illumination.

Two hundred and fifty tons will be about the weight of this quantity of wire.

Ninety-four large-sized searchlights will be placed under the water of the basin of the Court of Fountains to cast colored lights on the fountains and cascades and heighten the beauty of the electric and hydraulic effects.

One million, three hundred and ninety thousand square feet is the approximate area of the courts to be illuminated. This is two and one-half times the area of the courts at the World's Fair, twice the area of those at the Paris Exposition, and three times those of the Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha.

the plant of the Niagara Falls Power Company at Niagara Falls, for use in illuminating the buildings and grounds of the Pan-American Exposition and turning the wheels for operating machinery. 5,000 horse power will also be generated on the grounds. The service arranged for contemplates the utilization of the water power of Niagara, the use of gasoline for motive power, of gas both under boilers, producing steam, and in gas engines, producing energy; thus giving the Pan-American the greatest variety of sources of power ever enjoyed by any Exposition.

Twenty-six million, five hundred and seventy thousand feet of lumber has thus far been used in the construction of the Exposition.

Seventeen million, seven hundred and sixty-five thousand square feet is the amount of surface covered with staff.

One hundred and fifty thousand cubic yards represents the approximate amount of excavation done.

Six million, two hundred and forty-two thousand is the weight of the steel and iron used, including bolts and washers.

One hundred and twenty-five original sculptured groups will be used in the adornment of the courts, fountains, buildings and grounds generally. This is the work of the most famous sculptors ing by colonnades are two other buildings each 150 feet square.

Five hundred by three hundred and fifty feet are the dimensions of the Machinery and Transportation building. The Manufactures and Liberal Arts building is of corresponding size.

Five hundred by one hundred and fifty feet are the measurements of the Electricity building, and the Agriculture building corresponds to it in size.

Three hundred and ninety feet is the distance from the base of the Electric Tower to the top of the figure surmounting it, representing the Goddess of Light.

Two hundred and thirty-six feet is the height of the Horticulture building, which is 220 feet square.

EDWARD HALE BRUSH.

An Unexampled Treat.

The Niagara Frontier will be the most interesting place in the world next summer, and the whole world should journey there. The unexampled treat awaiting visitors includes the most beautiful spectacle in the history of Expositions, at Buffalo; the grandest natural scenery and the greatest power development in the world, at Niagara. The Pan-American Exposition and the wonders of Niagara are less than twenty miles apart, and the fast trains cover the distance in about half an hour.

CONGRESSIONAL NOTES.

The house on the 1st passed an omnibus bill carrying 191 claims for stores and supplies taken by the union army during the rebellion. The claims were passed on by the court of claims and aggregated $344,480. The bill to amend the Chinese exclusion act with a view to preventing the fraudulent entry of Chinese into the United States was passed. Bills were also passed to authorize the Indiana, Illinois & Iowa Railroad Co. to construct a bridge across the St. Joseph river at St. Joseph, and to create Saginaw, a port of delivery.

The latest about the $60,000,000 river and harbor bill is that the senate will not strike out any of the items aggregating over $7,000,000 for improvements in Michigan waters, nor the items for improvements elsewhere, but will scale down a good many of them. Mark Hanna is one of the senators who says the appropriation ought to be reduced one-half, and he lives in the same town as the chairman of the house committee that compiled the $60,000,000 bill.

After an eventful legislative experience beginning with the present session of congress, and covering about two months, the bill for the reorganization of the U. S. army passed its last stage in congress on Jan. 31, and now goes to the President for his signature. The final step was taken in the senate where, by a vote of 33 to 24, the conference report on the bill, was agreed to. The house of representatives has already agreed to the report.

The army appropriation bill making provision for the army under the plan of reorganization recently enacted, was completed on the 4th by the house committee on military affairs and reported by Chairman Hull. It carries approximately $180,000,000 as against estimates of about $130,000,000 made by war department officials.

The President on the 29th sent a message to congress recommending the appropriation of $100,000 for the payment of the claim of Spain for Gbntu and Cagayan islands in the Philippine archipelago, in accordance with the terms of the treaty recently ratified by the senate.

John Marshall, of Virginia, was installed as chief justice of the U. S. 100 years ago—Feb. 4, 1801—and on the 4th inst. the centennial anniversary of that event was commemorated with impressive ceremonies in the hall of representatives at the capitol.

The house on the 4th passed the senate bill for a commission to adjudicate the Spanish war claims with an amendment to refer the claims to the court of claims. The vote stood 123 to 88.

The house committee on invalid pensions on the 1st defeated a motion to report the bill for a pension court of appeals, a measure favored by the G. A. R.

The finance committee of the senate has prepared a statement showing that the proposed internal revenue tax on bucket shops would bring $10,000,000 a year.

The President signed the bill for the reorganization of the army at 12:40 p. m. on the 3d. It is now a law.

The U. S. supreme court has adjourned until Feb. 25.

CHINA WAR NEWS.

Reports received at Peking from Singa Fu all agree that the famine in the provinces of Shansi and Shensi is one of the worst in the history of China. The population of Shansi is 12,000,000 and of Shensi 9,000,000. All information on the subject is necessarily from Chinese sources and is fragmentary, but the stories are all to the same effect, picturing a condition of affairs that is calculated to arouse the sympathy of the world for the stricken people. It is estimated that two-thirds of the people are without sufficient food or the means of obtaining it. The weather is bitterly cold, and this adds to the misery of starvation.

It is reported that Russia will demand an indemnity of 30,000,000 taels of China for restoring Manchuria, and Germany asks 5,000,000 taels for Baron von Kipper.

Blown to Atoms.

By an explosion of 760 quarts of nitro-glycerin at the magazine of the Gas Belt Torpedo Co., four miles northeast of Alexandria, Ind., on the 3d, Perry Fort, a carrier for the company, with a team of horses, the wagon and the magazine were blown to atoms, not a vestige of any having been found after the awful accident.

The Indiana senate on the 35th by a vote of 37 to 9 passed a bill making electrocution the mode of inflicting the death penalty in Indiana.

LAWS OF KAFFIRS.

A Widow May Marry Her Deceased Husband's Brother.

The duties of husband and wife are distinctly defined among the Kaffirs of South Africa. The husband does not expect his wife to build the kraal, or hut. That is his work. It takes from five hundred to a thousand young trees to make the beehive kind of dwelling which is in favor and which is excellently adapted for protection. When the husband has erected the hut it is the wife's place to cut grass, carry it home, and thatch the kraal once a year. She looks after all that is needed in the hut, cooks the food, gets the firewood, and makes the beer, which is not a small task, for the men drink it in immense quantities. It is made from millet and mealies, and is mild but intoxicating. Until quite recently everything was carried on the head. A Zulu woman will carry 200 pounds of mealies in this fashion. When a Kaffir was first seen carrying a load by the hand instead of on his head, the Dutch thought it a dangerous imitation of European fashion. Women have so far asserted themselves as to refuse to hoe the mealies for planting, but they will weed. A woman goes about with her baby tied on her back, while she rocks herself and croons to it. When a man dies his widow may, if she chooses, become the wife of his brother. She stays at the kraal, and all the children, including those of the new marriage, are held to belong to her eldest son, who takes his father's place as guardian, and has the privilege of using, supposedly for the common good, all the wages of the younger sons. It thus sometimes happens that a little boy is head over his mother and older sisters. If the widow does not choose to marry the brother, but takes another husband, she loses all control of her children, who stay in their father's kraal.—Youth's Companion.

PRESIDENT OF PRESIDENTS.

A Distinguished Lady Indeed, Is Mrs. Mary E. Poole, of Whiting, Ind.

Whiting, Ind., Feb. 4, 1901.—(Special.)—The Presidents of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic have an association composed exclusively of the Presidents of the different State Associations. This Presidents' Association chooses a President, and to this very high and distinguished position Mrs. Mary E. Poole of this place has been elected. Mrs. Poole is thoroughly deserving of this great honor. Her devotion to the interests of the Association is very marked, and her experience with the old soldiers of the G. A. R. is wide. Mrs. Poole is never slow to take advantage of anything that may benefit the veterans, and her zeal has resulted in much that is good to these grand old men. She writes of her experiences: "Honor to whom honor is due, and having seen the numerous cures effected through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I gladly endorse them as being particularly effective to cure that dreaded disease of so many of our old soldiers, Bright's Disease and Kidney Disorders of different kinds. Kidney Disease soon poisons the entire system, and as a result the vital organs are attacked, and I have found that no remedy so surely, completely and quickly finds the weak spot and heals it as Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"I have used them myself in slight attacks of biliousness and indigestion, and usually find that from three to four pills do the work."

Such evidence from a lady of so much distinction and experience should convince any sufferer from Kidney Trouble that Dodd's Kidney Pills is the remedy that never fails. 50c a box, six boxes for $2.50. Buy them from your local druggist if you can. If he can't supply you send to the Dods Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Thief's Blow May Be Fatal.

Mrs. Maud Lewis, 23 years old, was struck down by a footpad near her home in Kansas City. She is in a precarious condition, her skull being fractured, and she may die. Her assailant escaped.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

The railroads have been greatly abused as soulless corporations that were grinding the life blood out of the people. The great Galveston disaster has, however, revealed the fact that the managers of these corporations have hearts which are susceptible of being touched by the cries of distress. Their trains were placed at the disposal of all those engaged in relief work on the coast. Provisions and supplies were carried forward free of charge, committees from every section of the state were furnished transportation, and when the refugees from Galveston began to pour into Houston and it became a serious question what was to be done with them the railroads solved the problem by furnishing transportation without charge to all who wished to leave and to any point they wished to go. Grand Master Anderson informs us that but for this fact Houston would have been overrun with people who had to be cared for, and that suffering and distress would have been largely increased as well as the cost of meeting conditions which would have prevailed. Bro. Anderson desires us, through these columns, to thank the different roads for the great service rendered his committee at Houston. If it were possible we would be glad to see parallel columns, in one of which should appear the acts of these railroad corporations in a time of great calamity and distress, and in the other the amount contributed by the little two-by-four demagogues who are always trying to array the prejudices of the masses against any and every kind of enterprise.—From the Texas Odd Fellow.

LASSING DOGS.

Systematic Raids Upon Canines Instituted in the Territory.

The dog catcher of a town in the Indian Territory can give a city dog catcher cards and spades and then beat him as a capturer of canine animals. An expert cowboy hunts dogs as he does cattle. He ropes them the same way. Clad in a pair of buckskin trousers, and wearing a big sombrero, with rope in hand or on the saddle horn, and a six-shooter in his belt, he starts down the street on his broncho looking for dogs. As he spies one which has no legal right to roam at large he sticks the spurs to his pony, grabs his rope and begins operations. He usually ropes the dog around the neck, draws him to the pony's side and shoots him. He then stuffs the carcass into a sack attached to the saddle and gallops off after more "game."

If a stranger is watching the performance the dog catcher does some fancy roping. He will rope the dog around the front foot or hind foot, or around the body between the feet. He hardly ever misses his mark.

Dog catching in the Indian country is more ticklish business than it is in the cities in the states. The catcher not only has to dodge flatirons, mop sticks, and brooms thrown by irate women (for a wild-looking cowboy with a six-shooter has no terror to an Indian Territory woman), but he has Indians to deal with.

An Indian thinks almost as much of his dog as he does of his kids, and if the dog catcher by mistake kills it there is trouble. Dogs belonging to Indians are exempt from taxation. But the Indians must brand them. The dogs of non-citizens are the ones discriminated against. If their masters fail to pay tax on them then they must pay the penalty of death. In order to evade the tax occasionally a non-citizen forges a brand and marks his dog as if it belonged to an Indian. In order to prevent frauds of this character the dog catcher must be an expert on dog brands.

Done to Death.
It is a modern notion that fancy work is an invention of the evil one for keeping the foolish from applying their hearts to golf, yet the young ladies of long ago, who held to samplers and mourning pieces of an afternoon with a fervor better imagined than experienced, sometimes had their belief in its utility rudely disturbed. An anecdote in some reminiscences of Mrs. Anne Jean Lyman, a prominent New England woman and a contemporary of Mrs. Lydia Maria Child, records what may be considered a standing epitaph for fancy work. When Mrs. Lyman was Miss Robbins, and a very charming young lady, she went to visit some friends of his in Hingham. A young man, calling on the ladies one day, found them busy embroidering mourning pieces in which tall women in short waists and long skirts stood weeping by a monument. They begged for a motto for their pieces, and instantly got this bit of wit:

In useless labors all their hours are spent.
They murder Time, then work his monument.

"I have nothing but my heart to give you," said a spinster to a lawyer who had successfully concluded a case for her. "Well," said the lawyer, gruffly, "go to my clerk; he takes the fees."

Oklahoma and Statehood

The Territory Makes Exceptionally Good Claims for Admission

The Territory of Oklahoma seeks Statehood and makes a good claim to it. It contains 400,000 people, 90 per cent of whom are native Americans and 100,000 of whom are school children; they have 2,000 schoolhouses, no penitentiary, not a poorhouse, and only six per cent of illiteracy—less than any one of forty-five of the States. They own $75,000,000 of property. And 12,000,000 acres are settled, and homesteaders are taking a million acres a year; 1,000 miles of railroad brought last year 6,000 carloads of manufactures and carried away 40,000 carloads of produce. Ten years ago the population was about 60,000. Such progress has been made by no other area of equal size in the United States. If Indian Territory should within a few years be added to Oklahoma, the two would have a population of at least a million, who would cast 100,000 votes and pay taxes on $150,000,000 of property.

Mrs. Chatters—Why do you have Mrs. Gabb to sew for you? She is not a good dressmaker. Mrs. Wordsworth—I know that, but she knows all the gossip of the town.

LOVE IS BEST

By Florence Hodgkinson

CHAPTER IX.

It was a very happy evening that Beryl spent at Uplands. Mrs. Dynevor's heart went out to the pretty, graceful girl, who seemed so strangely alone in the world; Kitty had taken a fancy to her; and when Harold came in for tea the three were as much at home as though they had known each other for months.

"You must let me take you home," Harold said to the little governess, when she came downstairs about eight with her hat on.

"Oh, I could not trouble you, Mr. Dynevor, it is so far! And I am not at all afraid."

"Harold loves an evening tramp, and it is much too far for you to go alone," said Kitty. "Mind you come again soon. Mother wants you to, don't you mother?"

"Yes," put in Mrs. Dynevor. "I shall be very pleased to see Miss Lendon whenever she has time to come."

When they were walking down the broad, shady lane which led from Uplands to Easthill village Harold asked simply, "Do you know you have made a conquest of my mother, Miss Lendon? I never saw her so much taken with a stranger."

"She was very, very kind to me. Oh, Mr. Dynevor, when I saw her and Kitty together I could not help wishing I had a mother."

The voice was so sad it touched his heart.

"I wish you would confide your troubles to my mother, Miss Lendon," he said gently, "she would know how to comfort you. The advertisement offering the reward has not been repeated for some weeks now, and I had hoped you would feel happier."

To his surprise and alarm, he heard her sob. They were quite alone in a little frequented lane. He longed to comfort her, only he could think of no words.

"Miss Lendon," he said, very gently, "like you, I have known troubles—one presses on me now whose weight seems to crush me to the earth. Human friends can do very little to soothe an aching heart; but there is One above who knows all His children's griefs, and sorrows for them. He will comfort you better than any earthly friend."

"I know," she said, simply yet reverently. "Mr. Dynevor, I had better tell you the truth. I can trust you not to betray me to my father, and I cannot bear to come to Uplands and take kindness from you all when, if you knew my story, you would shrink from me in loathing."

An awful fear crossed Harold's heart. What could she mean? Only a little while ago, at the fête, she had assured him she was not fleeing from justice, and he had retorted no one could take her for a criminal. What did her present words mean?

"Whatever you tell me I will keep as a sacred trust," he answered. "But, indeed, Miss Lendon, you are mistaken; nothing you can say will make me shrink from you."

"But I am the child of the two who wronged you cruelly. I am your enemy's daughter—Beryl Lendon."

He started involuntarily. Really the movement was simply surprise, but she thought it was due to aversion.

"I never meant to deceive you or any one," she went on, her voice growing a little firmer as she proceeded. "I ran away from home because my father wrote that he had married again, and his new wife was to have full authority over me. Mr. Dynevor, that woman had lived in the house for nine months, openly as my maid, really as my tyrant. Last January, while my father was away, she—she struck me. I appealed to the housekeeper, who dismissed her. Do you think I could have stayed to see that woman in my mother's place?"

"No one could have wished it," he answered quickly—"no one who loved you."

"I took Mrs. Tanner's situation because it was the only one I could get and the time was all too short. I had only three weeks from getting my father's letter to the day he brought his wife home."

"When I came to Easthill I had never heard of Dynevor Manor. I had not the least idea my father possessed property here, or I should have been afraid to come."

"Mrs. Tanner told me the first night I came to her that the Wilmots, who were her chief supporters here, objected to my name. She said they urged it was a slight to their employer, Mr. Lendon, that a poor little governess should be called by his name. When I found that this Mr. Lendon lived in Elchester square, and his wife was Eustace, I knew it was my father, and I was only too thankful to agree to the proposal that I should change one letter of my name, and be known here as Miss Lendon."

"When later I heard my father's story from Mrs. Grey, and the cruel wrong he had wrought you and yours, I felt overwhelmed with shame. Though your sister had urged me to go and see her, I felt I dared not accept her invitation. I should never have come to the Uplands only she fetched me, and all through my visit I felt as though I were deceiving you all, that if you knew the truth your doors would be closed against me."

Harold took the girl's hand in his and held it close under cover of the darkness.

"Do you know what first made my mother take an interest in you? Your likeness to her sister-in-law, Nina Lendon. You must remember she and your mother were close friends for over three years. My father on his death bed told me he believed firmly that my Aunt Nina had never meant to wrong us. He thought either the will had been extorted from her by undue influence, or—"

"Or what?" asked Beryl eagerly. "Oh that she was too ill to understand its real purport. I suppose you do not remember her? No, you could not; she died before you were four years old."

"I do remember her," said Beryl, in a very low voice. "You see, she was the only creature who loved me, so I was not likely to forget. She was very ill, and very unhappy; but, Mr. Dynevor, I can't believe she did what people think. She was too gentle."

"It was not a happy marriage," said Harold Dynevor, in a low tone; "from the little we know we always gathered that. My father wondered sometimes if she lost heart after your sister's death."

"I don't know," Beryl felt bewildered. "You see, I only remember her after."

"Do you mean you were away when Lillian died?"

"I think I must have been," she said, in a puzzled tone. "I can remember a little cottage, and a Frenchwoman who took care of me. One day a letter came, and she dressed me up in my best, and took me a long railway journey, and then I saw my mother. She was in black, and she cried when she kissed me, and said she would never part with me again while she lived. My mother went home, and after that I had an English nurse."

"And you are Beryl Lendon?"

"Yes. Will you tell your mother and Kitty? I am sure they won't betray me."

"I am sure of that, too; but I do not mean to tell them. I do not see that what you have confided to me need go any further. If you are the child of our enemy, at least he has treated you no better than he has treated us. I am positive if my mother knew the truth she would only feel more kindly towards you. Come to us when you can; you will always be welcome."

They were at Woodlands, and, with a close pressure of the hand, he released her.

He found his mother alone when he got home again. She had been searching among old treasures, and had unearthed an album containing photos of bygone days. It was open at the picture of Mrs. Frank Dynevor as she was when she came home a bride.

"I wanted to show it to you, Harold," said his mother, "just to prove the resemblance is not all my fancy." He looked at it thoughtfully.

"It is a very strong likeness," he said gravely; "but I hope it won't prejudice you and Kitty against that poor little girl. I think if ever a human creature stood in sore need of friends it is Mrs. Tanner's governess."

CHAPTER X.

Five thousand pounds. The sum seemed to burn itself into Harold Dynevor's brain as the summer ripened. He did not actually know that Mr. Lendon meant to foreclose, but he could not doubt Mr. Proctor's warning. He felt that if five thousand pounds were not forthcoming before the 25th of December his mother must leave her lifelong home, and he himself go forth into the world a ruined man.

He had more than one long conference with the lawyer about raising the money. Mr. Proctor thought a private lender would be the only source whence he could obtain it. He said that at a forced sale the Uplands would fetch very little in excess of the actual sum needed; but he thought any one who knew the property might be inclined to offer six thousand for it, on the understanding it was to be redeemed. The one thousand could be paid back at once, the other five remain at interest.

"Only so very few people have capital to dispose of," he concluded, "and those few seem to fight clear of land. I am making inquiries among all likely investors. Don't you think General Craven would consider the speculation?"

"He can't. His daughter is to be married in the autumn, and he'll want all the ready money he can find."

The general, indeed, when sounded on the subject, took what seemed to Mr. Proctor a very hard view.

"You know, Proctor," the old soldier declared, "I've no liking for Eustace Lendon, and I'd not mind thwarting him; but I think for any one to enable the Dynevors to remain at Uplands would be to do them a cruel kindness. It is openly reported Lendon is coming into residence when we leave. It will be far and away better for Mrs. Dynevor and her children not to live, so to say, at his gates. I think it is a blessing in disguise that they will have to go."

"And I don't!" said the lawyer stoutly. "Think of the years the place has been in Mrs. Dynevor's family! Think how hard her son has worked to keep it up! If he leaves Uplands, Harold goes out into the world penniless."

"He'd be sure to get a good berth as land-agent to a nobleman."

"Such posts are not so easily picked up. I think you take a very ungrateful view of the matter, General. "Bother it all," said the old soldier irritably, "I suppose I had better tell you the truth! I like the Dynevors, they're the pleasantest neighbors I ever had; I think Harold's a son to be proud of; but, Proctor, I've got only one boy, and I haven't much money to leave him. Allick will have to make his way with very little except his pay. Can't you see I don't want him to marry Kitty Dynevor, a nice girl and a good one, but without a penny to her fortune?"

Beryl saw a good deal of the Dynevors in August. Woodlands broke up for the holidays, Mrs. Tanner and the twins went to spend a fortnight near their old home, and Kitty came over to Easthill-on-Sea, with her mother's orders to bring back Beryl for the time of their absence.

"You are to be sure to come unless you have a better engagement."

"I have no engagement, and I couldn't have a better one; only shall I not be in your way?"

"We want you, and we mean to have you!" retorted Kitty. "I told Harold about it, and he said it was a famous idea. I think you fascinated him that night when he saw you looking so forlorn at the railway station, for you are the first visitor we have had to stay in the house for years."

Mrs. Dynevor's welcome was almost motherly in its goodness, but it was Harold's greeting which went straight to Beryl's heart. She happened to be alone in the oak parlor when he came in, and as he took her hand he said gravely:

"Remember, no one here knows your secret—no one ever will know it from me; but if they learn it from another source they will be content, as I do, to remember you are Aunt Nina's child, and forget you are Mr. Lendon's daughter."

Beryl had been at Uplands just three days when Easthill was thrown into a commotion. Mr. Lendon, the great man of the neighborhood, had arrived and was putting up at his agent's house while he transacted some business connected with his property.

"Will he have the effrontery to call here?" Mrs. Dynevor asked her son.

"I should say not. If he does, send Kitty in to interview him. She is capable of freezing him if she tries."

"I wonder if he has brought his wife and daughter?" hazarded Mrs. Dynevor.

"No," retorted Kitty, who always knew everything. "His wife is not well, and his daughter is at school. Perhaps she prefers it to her stepmother's society, but she is the same age as I am, and I should certainly resent being kept at letters."

"Poor little thing!" said Mrs. Dynevor gently. "I wonder if she is like her mother? What is her name? Did we ever hear?"

"It was never mentioned in Aunt Nina's letters," returned Harold. "She always spoke of the children as 'Pet' and 'Baby'; not that she wrote often, poor thing!"

Beryl was in the room, and naturally heard these remarks. She almost forgot herself, and contradicted his last words, for she knew that Lillian had never been called "Pet." It was her own name in babyhood, and had not been given up till she went to the Burgesses, when, by her father's wish, she was always called Beryl.

No, Lillian could not have been "Pet." Try as she would, the girl could not recall any fond abbreviation of her sister's name. When she was brought home after Lillian's death no one ever spoke of the dead child except her mother, and she always said "your little sister." Mr. Lendon took no notice of Beryl at all. Her mother's maid had returned to England, as she had lately heard, to take service with the family at Uplands. Lillian's nurse had also left the Londons, but of her movements Beryl knew nothing.

NEW BREAD AT PARIS.

From Fresh Flour and Greatly Increases Nutrition.

Among all the exhibits of bread and bread-making at the Paris exhibition the one which interested me most was a system of milling and baking combined. It is well known that all food substances when ground to a fine powder have a tendency to become oxidized. As is the case with coffee, which is the best when freshly roasted and freshly ground, so it is with cereal flour, which is never so aromatic or so nutritious as at the moment when it is first made. The Schweitzer system, in regard to the milling operations, is a return to the old system of millstones, with the exception that corrugated steel grinders take the place of the millstones of the olden days, says the Paris Messenger. These grinders are so accurately adjusted as to admit of the making of the finest flour, while avoiding actual contact of the two grinding surfaces. The simplicity of the apparatus, the cheapness and the ease with which it can be installed commend this system particularly for domestic use and for the supply of villages and small communities. Nevertheless, it is capable of being operated on an extensive scale, as is demonstrated by the large establishment at La Villette, Paris, where more than 100,000 pounds of bread are made per day from flour not more than 24 hours old. Chemical analysis shows that the flour made according to the Schweitzer system has more than twice as much phosphate material as that made by the ordinary roller process. The importance of this fact in respect to nutrition should not be lost sight of, and we must admit that nutrition, not whiteness of color, is the principal object of bread-making.

thruashed, thanks to cool courage and the new breech-loaders. And Red Cloud, cursing his medicine men, drew off his baffled braves and the hills that night resounded to their vengeful war whoops and echoed back the wailing of the Indian women mourning over the slain. "All well enough so far, lads," cried Folsom, when he heard the news. "Machpelota is unmasked. It's war to the knife now, so for God's sake send all the troops you can muster to the aid of those already up there in the Big Horn. Next time he hits he'll have all the Northern Sioux at his back, you mark my words!"

But, who the devil is John Folsom? said the bureau again. Arrest Red Cloud. Bring his band in prisoners, were the orders to the agents, and the agents called for troops to go and do their bidding. It's one thing, as I've had occasion to say before, to stand off with breech-loaders a thousand Indians armed only with old percussion cap muskets, squirrel rifles, bows, clubs and lances; it's another thing for soldiers armed even with the best the market affords, to march into an Indian position and arrest an Indian chief. There were not soldiers enough north of the Platte to do it, and the war department knew it if the bureau didn't. Hence the mustering in force along the river, and the mounting in hot haste of perhaps ten more troops and companies, nowhere near enough for the work in hand, but all the nation had within a month's march that could possibly be spared from other work and work more important.

And there was wrath at Emory, where the colonel found himself ordered to send all his transportation to Frayne forthwith, and all his remaining troops except one of foot. "Damnation! I've only got two companies of foot," he screamed, in the shrill treble of piping senility. "And they meet to rob me of my cavalry, too! 'C' troop is ordered to be held in readiness for special service." The transportation, consisting of three wagons and two ambulances, started next day, however, and Dean, with eager expectancy, kept his men in camp, cooked rations ready, ammunition pouches filled, arms and equipments overhauled and in perfect order, horses examined and reshed, ready for the word that might come any minute and carry him—he knew not whither. Folsom and the girls had to drive back to dinner without him. Despite the permission sent by the colonel, he would not leave his troop and go in town. So back they came in the soft moonlight and spent a long, lovely summer evening with him, while the band played melodiously in the fort enclosure, and the stars twinkled over the peaks of the Rockies in the southern skies. Folsom spent the hours wiring to Omaha and conferring with such officers as he could reach. They thought the lesson given Red Cloud would end the business. He knew it would only begin it. Burleigh, saying that he must give personal attention to the selection of the teams and wagons, spent the early evening in his corral, but sent word to Folsom that he hoped to see him in the morning on business of great importance. He had other hopes, too, one of them being that now the order to send that big sum in currency to the new stockade would be revoked. He had lost no time in suggesting to the chief quartermaster of the department the extreme hazard. He quoted Folsom as saying that before we could send 100 men to Warrior Gap Red Cloud could call 5,000, and the chief quartermaster, being a man of method and a stranger to the frontier said, as said the bureau: "Who the devil is John Folsom? Do as you are told." But that answer only came the following day. Meantime there was respite and hope.

Long lived that beautiful evening in the memory of four young hearts. A sweet south wind had been gently playing all day and left the night warm and fragrant of the pines and cedars in the mountain parks. All Fort Emory seemed made up of women and children now, for such few soldiers as were left, barring the bandmen, were packing or helping pack and store about the barracks. From soon after eight until nearly ten the musicians occupied their sheltered wooden kiosk on the parade, and filled the air with sweet strains of waltz or song or stirring martial melody. For an hour, with Elinor Folsom on his arm, young Dean was strolling up and down the moonlit walk, marveling over the beauty of her dark, yet winsome face, and Loomis and Jessie, staunch friends already, sauntered after them. For a time the merry chat went on unbroken. They were talking of that never-to-be-forgotten visit to the Point—Pappoose's first—and of the hop to which the tall cadet captain took the timid school-girl, and of her hop card and the distinguished names it bore, as names ran in the old days of the battalion; of Roy, who danced so beautifully and rode so well—he was with the— cavalry now somewhere along the U. P., said Dean—and of Billings, the cadet adjutant; he was with a light battery in Louisiana. "Where this Capt. Newhall is stationed," interrupted Pappoose, with quick, upward look. "I wonder if he knows him, Mr. Dean."

"He doesn't like him, I'll venture to say," said Dean, "if Newhall doesn't suit you and Jessie, and I'm sure I shan't." And then they went on to talk of the lovely dance music they had at the Point that summer, and how bewitchingly Elinor used to play that pretty galop—"Puckwudjies"—the very thing to a moonlit night. One could almost see the Indian fairies dancing about their tiny fires. "It was that galop—my first at West Point—that I danced with Cadet Capt. Dean," said Pappoose, looking blithely up into his steadfast eyes. "You've no idea what a proud girl I was!" They were at the upper end of the parade at the moment. The kiosk was only 50 yards away, its band lights sparkling under the canopy, the moonlight glinting on the smooth surface of the dancing floor that an indulgent post commander had had placed there. Half a dozen young garrison girls, arm in arm and by twos, were strolling about its waxen face awaiting the next piece; and some of them had been importuning the leader, for at the moment, soft and rippling, sweet and thrilling, quick and bewitching, the exquisite opening strains of "Puckwudjies" floated out upon the night. "Oh, Jess! Listen!" cried Elinor, in ecstasy and surprise, as she turned back with quickly beating heart. "No, no, indeed!" replied her soldier escort, with a throb in his breast that echoed and overmastered that in her own. "No time to listen—come! It was your first galop at the Point—let it be our first in Wyoming." And in a moment more the tall, lithe, supple, slender forms were gliding about the dancing floor in perfect time to the lovely music, but now her dark eyes could not meet the fire in the blue. Following their lead, Loomis and Jessie joined the dance. Other couples from along the row hastened to the scene. In five minutes a lively hop was on at Emory, and when at last, breathing a little hurriedly and with heightened color, Elinor Folsom glanced up into his joyous and beaming face—"You had forgotten that galop, Mr. Dean," she archly said, but down went the dark eyes again at his fervent reply. "Yes, I admit it; but so long as I live I'll never forget this."

Small wonder was it that when Burleigh came driving out at tattoo for a brief conference with the colonel, his sallow face took on a darker shade, as he suddenly caught sight of that couple standing at the moment apart from the dancers, seeing neither them nor him, hearing for the moment no music but that which trembled in the tones of his deep voice, for Elinor was strangely silent. "Marshall Dean," whispered Jessie that night, as she hugged him before being lifted to her seat, "tell me true, wasn't Pappoose's picture in your heart pocket? Didn't that bullet crease it?" "Promise on your honor not to tell, Jess," he whispered. She nodded delightedly. "Yes, and what's more, it's there now!"

Early on the morrow came further news. Troops from Steele and Bridger were on the move, but no word came for the cavalry at Emory, and Marshall Dean, hitherto most eager for field service, learned with joy he felt ashamed to own that he had still another day to spend in the society of Jessie and her friend. But how much of that elation Jessie could have claimed as due to her every sister whose brother is in love can better tell than I. At eight they came driving out to hear the band at guard-mounting, though, to old Pecksniff's pathetic sorrow, he could mount only twelve men all told. That ceremony over, they watched with kindling eyes the sharp drill of Marshall's troop; that soldierly young commander, one may feel well assured, showing his men, his horses, and himself off to the best of his ability, as who would not have done under such scrutiny as that. Loomis was with them, but Elinor drove, for her father had urgent business, he said, and must remain at his office. Maj. Burleigh, he added, was to meet him, whereat the girls were silent.

"If you could have heard the major pleading with that cantankerous old fool at the fort in Marshall's behalf you would get over your wrath at Burleigh just as I did," said Folsom, to both, apparently, and still neither answered. Burleigh was evidently persona non grata in the eyes of both. "He tells me Capt. Newhall is still here, waiting for a train to be made up to run back to Cheyenne. I'm afraid I'll have to ask him to bring the captain to dinner to-day. Do you think Mr. Dean will care to come?" he asked. "I think he would rather not leave camp," said Jessie, slowly. "Orders may come any minute, he says."

"Yes, I suppose so," answered Folsom, vaguely relieved. Something told him that there was antagonism between the young fellow and Burleigh that would be apt to involve Newhall, too. "I'll ask them both, if you don't very much mind," he went on, whispering to Elinor. "And will you tell Mrs. Fletcher? How is she this morning?" "Just as usual, papa. She says she has rather violent headaches once in awhile, and she thinks it prudent to keep her room to-day. But I can attend to everything." Indeed, thought the daughter, she wished she had it all to do.

Recent experiments show that all classes of foods may be completely digested by a preparation called KODOL Dyspepsia Cure, which absolutely digests what you eat. As it is the only combination of all the natural digestants ever devised, the demand for it has become enormous. It has never failed to cure the very worst cases of indigestion and it always gives instant relief. Glazier & Stinson.
