METHODIST NOTES.

Don't fail to hear Rev. G. R. Turk of Toronto, Ont., in the Methodist church, Sunday, February 24th. He will/preach in the morning and in the evening he will deliver an address to the young people. Mr. Turk is one of the finest preachers in the Methodist church of Canada, filling the best pulpits in the largest cities. It will be a treat to hear him.

The dedicatory organ recital at the Methodist church, Monday night will be given in Chelses. The fact that Prof. Stanley is to play the pipe organ is enough to draw everybody: beside a fine singer from Detroit and and one from Ann Arbor, with some home talent still farther means a fine program. All over the country land is being reclaimed. In Louisiana engineers are busy with plans for draining swamps, which form practically three entire parishes. A system of canals will be dug which will be eighty-five miles long. The land to be cleared will have the richest alluvial soll and will be cultivated in cotton, rice and sugar.

TELLS HOW TO DROW YOUNG . IN SPIRIT.

SERVICE

Youth Like the Engle-The Oubquer the Effect of Ad-Tears-Simple Habits Land to neing Tears-Longevity.

(Copyright, 1991, by Louis Klops Washington, Feb. 17.-In this dis course Dr. Talmage shows how anyon can conquer the effect of years and grow younger in spirit; text, Psalms elli, 5, "So that thy youth is renewed | They all watch the baton of the leader like the eagle's."

There files out from my text the most majestic of all the feathered creationan eagle. Other birds have more beauty of plume and more sweetness of voice, but none of them has such power of beak, such clutch of claw, such expansion of wing, such height of soaring, such wideness of dominion. Its appetite rejects the carrion that invites the vulture and in most cases its food is fresh and clean. Leveling its neck for flight, in spiral curve it swings itself toward the noonday sun. It has been known to live 100 years. What concentration of all that is sublims in the golden eagle, the crested eagle, the imperial eagle, the martial eagle, the booted eagle, the Jean de Blanc eagle! But after a while in its life comes the molting process, and it looks ragged and worn and unattractive and feels like moping in its nest on the high trags. But weeks go by, and the old feathers are gone and new ornithological attire is put on, and its beak, which was overgrown, has the surplus of bone beaten off against the rocks, and it gets back its old capacity, for food, and again it mounts the heavens in unchallenged and boundless kingdoms of air and light. David, the author of the text, had watched these monarchs of the sky and knew their habits and one day, exulting in his own physical and spiritual rejuvenescence, he says to his own soul: "You are getting younger all the time. You make me think of an eagle which I saw yesterday, just after its molting season, swinging through the valley of Jehosaphat, and then circling around the head of Mount Olivet. Oh, my soul, 'thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.' '

Simple Habits and Longevity. Many might turn the years backward and get younger by changing their physical habits. The simpler life one leads the longer he lives. Thomas Parr of Shropshire, England, was a plain man and worked on a farm for a livelihood. At 120 years of age he was at his daily toil. He had lived under nine kings of England. When 152 years of age, he was heard of in London. The king desired to see him and ordered him to the palace, where he was so richly and royally treated that it destroyed his health, and he died at 152 years and 9 months of age. When Dr. Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation of the blood, made post mortem examination of Thomas Parr, he declared there were no signs of senile decay in the body. That man must have renewed his youth, like the eagle, again and again. All occupations and professions have afforded illustrations of rejuvenescence. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, lived 109 years, and among those eminent in the medical profession who became septuagenarians and octogenarians and nonagenarians were Darwin, Gall, Boerhasve, Jenner and Ruysch, observing themselves the laws of health that they taught their patients. In art and, literature and science among those who lived into the eighties were Plato and Franklin and Carlyle and Goethe and Buffon and Halle: Sophocles reached the nineties. . . . Biblical Span of Life. Some one writes me, "Is not threescore and ten the bound of human life, according to the Bible?" My reply is that Moses, not David, who wrote that psalm, was giving a statistic of his own day. Through better understanding of the laws of health and advancement of medical science the statistics of longevity have mightily changed since the time of Moses, and the day is coming when a nonagenarian will no longer be a wonder. Phlebotomy shortened the life of whole generations, and the lancet that bled for everything is now rarely taken from the doctor's pocket. Dentistry has given power of healthy mastication to the human race and thus added greatly to the prolongation of life. Electric lights have improved human sight, which used to be strained by the dim tallow candle. The dire diseases which under other names did their fatal work and were considered almost incurable, now in majority of cases are conquered. Vaccination, which has saved millions of lives and balked the greatest scourge of nations, and surgery, which has advanced more than any other science. have done more than can be told for the prolongation of human life. The X-ray has turned the human body, which was opaque, into a lighted castle. It is easier in this age to renew one's youth than in any other age. When Paul stopped the jailer from suicide by commanding: "Do thyself no harm," he showed himself interested in the physical as well as moral life of man. Among the blessings thought that, mounted on the horse which God promised was that in which he said: "With long life will I satisfy and whose heart is infinite b novernment is not going to be a fail ure. He cannot be defeated. Better t him in the management of his orld and of all worlds. All you and have to do is to accomplish the work that is put in our hands. This is all we have to be responsible for. In a well-managed orchestra the players upon stringed and wind instruments do not watch each other. The cornetist does not look to see how the violinist is drawing his bow over the strings, nor does the flute scrutinize the drum And we are all carrying our part, however insignificant it may be, in the great barmony of this world and of the universe which our Lord is leading. and we all have to watch his command and do our best and not bother ourselver about the success or failure of other performers. If you want to renew your youth, better stop managing the affairs of the universe.

Help for the Walts.

It will take all time and all eternity to fully appreciate the work of Van Meter on this side of the sea and of Barnardo on the other side in putting poor orphan children in good homes in America and England. Through that process walfs of the streets have passed up from poverty and wretchedness into bright homes and churches and pulpits and legislative halls and senates, and many have already been crowned in a better world, the work begun in asylums on earth completed in the palaces of heaven.

Whether by such adoption of children or in some other way, call around you the young: Become their associates, their confidants, their encouragement. While you do them good they will do you good. The old eagle while companioning in the nest with young eagles will feel new strength coming into its wings, new light into its eye, new ambition to cut a circle nearer the sun, and for the time will forget hurricanes that have ruffled its plumes and the storms of many years that have swept over its mountain eyrie. The closing years of life ought to be the best part of it, as an arrival in port ought to be happier than embarkation. It is better to have the cyclones behind you than before you. Some one will say: "David might renew his youth, but I have been through so much there is no such thing for me as revivification." You are wrong. You have not gone through as much as David went through. He had all the experiences of a shepherd boy, armor bearer, king's bodyguard, hunter of wild beasts, warrior and monarch. He was forty years on a rocking throne. He was the oriental hero in many a battle, made moral mistakes 法国际中国和中国 will be no earer the last rapture than ! were thrilled with the first.

In heaven you will have what a pleases you. Archbishop Leighte desire for heaven was a lo Christ and purity and love, and he has found there what he wanted. John Foster rejoiced at the thought of heaven because there he could study the secrets of the universe without restraint, and he has been regaling himcelf in that research. Southey thought of heaven as a place where he would meet with the learned and the great--Chaucer and Dante and Shakespeare. He no doubt has found that style of communion. The great and good Dr. Dick was fond of-mathematics, and he said he thought much of the time in heaven would be given to that studys and I have no doubt that since ascen-sion he has made advancement in that science. The "twelve manner of fruits" spoken of in Revelation means all kinds of enjoyment in heaven, for twelve manner of fruits includes all the chief fruits that are grown on trees. I suppose there will be as many kinds of enjoyment in heaven as there will be inhabitants.

You will have in heaven just what you want. Are you tired? Then heaven will be rest. Are you passionately fond of sweet sounds? Then it will be music. Are you stirred by pictures? There will be all the colors of the new heavens and on the jasper sea and the walls imbedded with what splendors! Are you fond of great architecture? There you will find the temple of God and the Lamb and the uplifted thrones. Are you longing to get back to your loved ones who have ascended? Then it will be reunion. Are you a homebody? Then it will be home. Here and there in this world you will find some one who now lives where he was born, and three or four generations have dwelt in the same house, but most people have had several homes-the home of childhood, the home they built or rented for their early manhood, the home of riper and more prosperous years. But all homes put together, precious as they are in remembrance or from present occupancy, cannot equal the heavenly home in the house of many mansions. Nosickness will ever come there, for it is pain." No parting at the front door, no last look at faces never to be seen again, but home with God, home with

The Canadians ascribe their immu nity from -crime to the promptness with which punishment is meted out to offenders. When a man is caught red-handed in the act of robbing another he is not released on straw bail by some justice of the peace from the slums, to go out and repeat the offense. Sharp and sure justice is meted out to criminals of all kinds, the result being that when the guardians of the public peace succeed in bringing a thug to the bar they are seldom called upon to hunt him a second time.

Furthermore, there are few court delays in Canada when a criminal is brought to book. They have no Dreyer cases over there. There are no methods whereby Canadian criminals can have the proceedings stayed from month to month and from year to year or after being convicted, appeal from one court to another until witnesses die of old age or opportunities for corruption can be found.

Nor does this swift method of treating with wrong-doers in Canada leave the innocent unable to properly defend themselves. They have all the opportunities and privileges that our own laws extend to them. The extent to shield the guilty is lacking-that is all. The above, taken from the editorial column of the Times-Herald, gives some idea of the immunity from crime. that exists in Canada, and this is one the many inducements held out for Americans to settle in the district known as Western Canada. The season of 1901 will see a few new sections of the country opened up for settlement. They are attractive in every promised "there shall be no more respect. PHILIPPINE NEWS.

The special committee appointed by. the Cuban constitutional convention to draw up a proposition defining the future relations between the republic of Cuba and the U. As the first step in the work of organization the commission determined to appoint au American as governor of the province, the selection falling upon Capt. Wallis O. Clark, of the 13th U. The Southern Cross (Buenos Ayres) states that the existence of a lake of natural asphalt in the province of Jujuy determined the Argentine minister of agriculture to have an analysis made of the material, which has turned out to be of excellent quality. The Jujuy asphalt in its natural state is said to be just as good as that used in the paving of Argentine streets.

A London paper sums up the nineteenth century in a nutshell: "We received the goosequill, we bequeath the typewriter." The steel pen is not mentioned. It is said that the sale of pens has steadily decreased of late, and that more than one manufacturer has been driven out of business. It "one that excels the quirks of blazoning pens," Cassio unmistakably foreshadowed the reign of the typewriter.

A cup of hot coffee is an unfailing barometer, if you allow a lump of sugar to drop to the bottom of the cup. and watch the air bubbles arise without disturbing the coffee. If the bubbles collect in the middle the weather will be fine; if they adhere to the cup, forming a ring, it will either rain or snow; and if the bubbles separate without assuming any fixed position, changeable weather may be expected.

It is reported at the navy department that the battleship Illinois, now nearing completion at the Newport News shipyard, will be in readiness for her trial trip about the middle of February. The trial would have been made at an earlier date, but there was some delay on account of the armor plate for the vessel. Considerable interest is attached to the trial of this ship, as it is intimated that she will exceed in speed the records made by the Kearsarge and the Kentucky.

. . . State of Eternal Youth.

My text suggests that heaven is an eternal youth. A cycle of years will not leave any mark upon the immortal nature. Eternity will not work upon the soul in heaven any change, unless it be more radiance and more wisdom and more rapture. A rolling on from glory to glory! In anticipation of that some of the happiest people on earth are aged Christians. The mighiest testimonies have been given by the veterans in the gospel army. While some of the aged have allowed themselves to become morose and cynical and impatient with youth and pessimistic about the world and have become possessed with the spirit of scold and fault finding and are fearful of being crowded out of their sphere many of the aged have been glad to step aside that others may have a chance and are hopeful about the world, expecting its redemption instead of its demolition, and they are inspiration and comfort and helpfulness to the household and to the neighborhood and to the church. IN EVENT OF WAR.

Exigencies That Might Arise If England and France Should Fight.

In the event of war between Great Britain and France the first and most important part of the struggle would be for the command of the sea, says the Nineteenth Century. Should Great Britain succeed in retaining the command of the sea France would thereby be reduced to a condition of impotence so far as offensive operations are concerned and would sooner or later be obliged to submit to the will of her rival, although it is true the war might tast for a long time. If, on the other nand, France should succeed in wresting from Great Britain the command of the sea and in keeping it Great Britain would be much more helpless and impotent that France in similar plight would be that the war would terminate quickly. In a word, France, even without the command of the sea or anything approaching to it, remains capable of prolonged resistance, firstly, because she is a self-supporting country; secondly, because the French national sentiment and strength are already conceptrated within her borders and, thirdly, because she stands among the best equipped of the military powers, while Great Britain. deprived of the command of the sea, would collapse with relative rapidity, firstly, because she is in no sense a self-supporting country; secondly, because her national sentiment and strength are scattered over the world and cannot be concentrated save by way of the sea, and, thirdly, because she is not a military power, according to the standard set up by Germany, France, Russia and Austria-Hungary.

Herole Work by a Tramp

John Buchts, who was close and approached within two bow shots to the scene at the time, also worked energetically, and was drawn into the God. That might do for Mohammed's all were saved. A subscription was taken up for the tramp, and a complete outfit of clothing was purchased for him.

Our Wares Make Inreads in Markets o England. English discussion of the American more pointed and frank, says S. C. Mo-Farland, consul at Nottingham, in Consular Reports. Hardly an issue of the leading English papers appears without reference to American competition in some line. Within the past two years the tone of such articles has become serious, and economic writers are kept busy attempting to find acceptable explanations for Americ a success. Leicester, in this consular district, is the seat of two great industries-the manufacture of boo.s and shoes and of hosiery (including underwear). A few days ago large quantities of boots and shoes were exported to the United States. Now, not only are there no exports, but enterprising American firms have actually opened retail stores there, while much of the machinery used is of American make, Hoslery exports a few years ago were very large. They are now comparatively small, and as shown in previous reports, are constantly declining in volume, and, to cap the climar, American goods are actually selling at retail in this market. As this is the very home of the British industry, it is not astonishing that such a fact should come as a shock to natural British pride, and that its importance, as disclosing the general trend of trade, should be minimized, and, as a rule, made light of. The leading trade organ -the Hosiery Trade Journal of Leicester-attempts in the following sugg ative article in its current number to bring the more serious phases of the matter to the attention of its readers: "The report from the British consul at Philadelphia strengthens the fact that America is making fast strides in the manufacture of hosiery of all kinds, and that in the near future American goods will be met in many markets where same have been up to the present unknown. As such advancement takes place, so will decrease the importation by that country of hosi ry goods, and those countries which have in the past supplied America with hosiery will have to find other ma. kets.

As she gazed on the portraits of dead-and-gone Dynevors the strangest feeling of having seen them all before came to her. and when she saw the picture of Lillian Dynevor, painted during her tather's absence in Australia as a surprise for him, she had the oldest fancy that once, long ago, she, too, had sat on a low stool dressed in white, with a basket of primroses strewn on her lap.

It must have been fancy, and yet-We have seen everything now except the old nurseries," said Mrs. Craven. "I never would use them because the last child who had played in them died."

"She fitted up new ones in the other wing, which weren't half so convenient or airy," said the General, with a smile. "So much for superstition." The old nurseries had a deserted air. They had not been used since Nina Lindon's second marriage, and the big cupboards were still full of childish toys. Kitty opened the door of one and took out a large wax doll. Beryl nearly seized on it with a cry of delight. It seemed to her she had known that flaxen-haired baby as long as she had known anything. "Poor little Lillian!" said Kitty

"To tell you the truth, her name is Lindon; but when Mrs. Tanner told me about her I pointed out it might not be pleasing to you that a namesake of yours should fill such an humble position, and the young person agreed to change the second letter of her name, and be Miss Lendon to the

The girl I saw in the distance today is my daughter.

"Of course," echoed Mrs. Wilmot suavely. "And if Mrs. Tanner had only known the truth she would have communicated you with before." Mr. Lindon saw his advantage:

"For reasons you will understand, 1 do not care to seek my daughter at Uplands. Perhaps, as her employer is a protegee of yours, you can write in her name requesting Miss Lindon to. return to Woodlands at once. I will meet her there, and no doubt everything can be amicably arranged. - Naturally I do not want my private concerns discussed all over Easthill, and you and your husband will find it to your advantage to assist me."

Mrs. Wilmot was only too willing; but one difficulty lay in her wayhow was she to word her letter? The imperious commands she would have laid on her sister's governess could hardly be addressed to Mr. Lindon's her hesitation.

"You need not enter into particulars," he explained. "Just write that Mrs. Tanner Lindon, mind-returning to Woodlands tomorrow at 3 o'clock." He slept soundly that night for it seemed to him that within twentyfour hours his rebellious would feel obliged by Miss Lendon-not daughter would be safely in his hands. Mr. Lindon sat out his full twenty minutes; but his attention wandered strangely, and General Craven felt certain when he rose to go he was planning some fresh wrong to the Dynevors, for his face was full of a malignant triumph.

CHAPTER XI

While the girls were at the Manor, and Harold was out on the farm, Mrs. Dynevor had a visitor. That was nothing remarkable, for the gentle mistress of the Uplands was popular both with rich and poor. The "county" visited her as frequently as if she had been a peeress, and her humbler neighbors liked to come and tell her their joys and sorrows, sure that if she could give little help in money her sympathy was never micsing. But this particular visitor was utterly unexpected, seeing it was eight years since Mrs. Dynevor had seen her, and nearly seven since she had heard of her.

"If you please, ma'am, Mrs. Ransom would like to see you. She says you may not remember her married name, but she was Miss Kitty's nurse long ago."

"It must be Bridget Gordon," exclaimed Mrs. Dynevor, in surprise. 'I heard she married very well; but what in the world can have brought her back to Easthill? Ask her in, please, Dorcas."

The years had evidently passed prosperously to Mrs. Ransom. She looked as though life had gone easily with her. She was a pleasant, kindfaced woman of 40, handsomely though quietly dressed in black. She had always been a little above her position, and, as Kitty said, Mrs. Lindon had treated her more as an humble companion than a maid. Kitty did not know that Bridget had been forced to leave her aunt, sorely against her own and her mistress' wish, and that she had always disliked Eustace Lindon.

"I am very glad to see you, Bridget." said Mrs. Dynevor. "Won't you take off your things and spend the afternoon with me? I should like you to see my Kitty; she is quite a woman 'grown."

"I should like to see her," said Mrs. Ransom: "but, ma'am, I've really come to tell you a painful story, and I'd rather get it over before Miss Kitty's return. But first may I ask just this: In all the years since my lady died, have you ever seen Mr. Lindon or his daughter?"

"Never once; but I understand that Mr. Lindon is now staying at Easthill for a few days."

"Ah!", Mrs. Ransom looked relieved. "It's strange, you may think, for ne to come after all these years; but I felt, though I might not do any good, it would be wrong not to tell you. OUR mirror will tell you the bitter truth.

Healthy women look younger than their age, but you look far too old for your years,

Time deals lightly with the woman in good health, but the wasting hand of sickness and discase spares neither your youthful looks, beauty, nor complexion.

The Creator has endowed every woman with beauty, and every woman in good health is beautiful and comely to look upon. A clear, fresh, wholesome look is the result of the possession of good health, and no woman can be beautiful and attractive without good health. The dall, dead, grawing pain, the sense of acryousacss, weakacss, oppression, and discouragement, the tired, listless, languid feeling, the shooting pains, the aching head, the pain in the back, all these are symptoms of a disordered system, and all these are beauty-killers. producers of duil leaden complexions, unnatural flushings, dark circles under the eyes, humors, cruptions, blackheads, justreless eyes, and other disfigurements which divest women of their natural gift of beauty.

Why be homely when you can be beautiful and attractive?

Get good health and with it those looks and attributes which attract, please. and fascinate. It is within your power to do so, for it is within every woman's power to be well and strong, and hence look her best, if she will use Dr. Greene's Nervura to give her strong, vigorous nerves, pure, rich blood, a clear complexion, and thus restore the energies and vitality of sound and perfect health.

Good health means youthful good looks to every woman. and it behooves women to restore and maintain their health by taking that greatest and best of all health restoratives, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and serve remedy. It will build up the health, cleanse and parify the complexion, restore brilliancy to the cyc, make rich, red blood and strong, steady, and vigorous acres. Dr. Greene's Nervura will make you look and feel young and restore your energies, vivacity, and enjoyment of life.

He must have a head that is quick and ready, wide awake and ever on the lookout to meet emergencies. A clear head must be free from sches and pains, because they weaken the nervous force and divert the attention. It must not know dissiness, dullness, melancholy, depression of spirits, nor nervousness.

Got Five $1,000 Bills.

Five $1,000 bills have been stolen mysteriously from a Kansas City bank. The name of the robbed bank and the manner of the theft are being kept quiet. It is said, however, that detectives have traced the bills to a former Kansas City woman, who is said to have tried to pass one of them at a Chicago department store. After the bill had been examined and found gennine, she is said to have substituted for it a counterfeit $1,000 bill in payment for a bill of goods and to have received $700 in change. The bills are believed to have fallen into the hands of some clever counterfeiter.

"You must not give me false hopes, Bridget," she said gravely. "You know at the time of Mrs. Lindon's death you, among others, never doubt-ed the legality of the will."

"I can't express myself well, ma'am," said Bridget Ransom; "but if I tell my story my own way perhaps you'll understand. When you and Mr. Dynevor engaged me as nurse to Miss Ritty you made one stipulation-that I was not to be talking continually of Mrs. Lindon. You said the subject was a very painful one, and you did not want to discuss it."

"We both felt it a mistake to dwell on it," agreed Mrs. Dynevor.

"And so I never told you what my poor lady suffered," returned Bridget. "Care for her? Eustace Lindon cared for no one but himself and the baby. He was so jealous of his wife's affec-tion for her thorn that as soon as his own child was born he sent little Miss Lillian away to the country. She was brought up in a French peasant's cottage, and the parting almost broke her mother's heart."

"But, Bridget," persisted Mrs. Dynevor, "why tell me all this now? It is too late to help either my poor sister-in-law or her child."

"Please hear 'me out." said Mrs. Ransom. "I might have written home. and told you and Miss Lillian's uncle, only Mrs. Lindon begged me not. The fact was her husband hated Miss Lillian, and she thought the poor child happier anywhere away from him." "Did he care for his own child?"

"Yes; but she was a sickly little thing, and with none of her mother's beauty. She had an English nurserather a flighty young woman, whom my mistress hated. When Mr. Lindon suddenly declared they couldn't afford to keep me and Julia, she begged and prayed for him to let me be the one to stay, and I humbled myself to ask him, too. I said I'd do all my own work and look after the child as well; but it was of no use. I went, Julia stayed."

Mrs. Dynevor could not see the thread of these recollections, but she listened patiently.

"A year or two after I left you, ma'am, I met Julia again. She wasn't in service then, but she seemed to have plenty of money, and she told me Mr. Lindon allowed her 50 pounds a year for the sake of all she had done for the child. "I thought it was the most generous thing I'd ever heard of him; but I didn't come all this way to tell you of this. I'm a widow now, and I've a nice little lodging house at Brighton. I took a partner lately, and she turns out to have been housekeeper to Mr. Lindon for ten years; and, Mrs. Dynevor, she says the woman he has married is the Julia who was fellow-servant with me in France. Mrs. Dynevor looked bewildered. "Now, with all his faults, he was a gentleman," went on Mrs. Ransom. "and Julia Maunders was a common, uneducated woman, who could never be companion to him. Mrs. Markham, my partner, told me she had actually been in his house as attendant to his daughter, that she gave way to drink. and, when not quite herself, actually struck Miss Lindon. Now, ma'am, a gentleman doesn't marry a vulgar, uneducated woman of forty, who, besides, is given to drink, without some reason. Mrs. Markham and I have talked the matter over and over again, and we believe there's something wrong about the will, and Julia know would be content to think of her only as her mother's child." "She is Nina's image," breathed Mrs. Dynevor; "but even then___" "I have no proof," said Harold, "any more than Mrs. Ransom; but I believe we both think the same, and to me it is a strong conviction. I believe that when he saw his own child's state was hopeless, Lindon conceived a desperate scheme. He would send away the only person likely to betray him, he would bribe the nurse into silence his wife was so ill a few months would end ner life, and she would never know his deception. As soon as Bridget left we know he removed his family to another part of France. Within a month we heard of Lillian's Mrs. Ransom; "but you forgot me, death; but I believe the child buried Mr. Lindon. Ah! overruling Provias Uncle Frank's daughter was really Beryl Lindon."

"You mean he changed the children?"

Harold nodded. "But it would be impossible! How could he pass off a child of seven for a baby of three?" "We don't know that he did. He placed the little girl in the care of a country doctor some time after her gorge your ill-gotten gains and leave mother's death; but there is no telling what age he gave her. Mother, don't you see this explains so much? Aunt Nina never guessed his hateful plot. She died believing it was her own child, Lillian Dynevor, who would grow up heiress of the Manor. She could have had very little to leave, that little she naturally bequeathed to life." her husband. The phrase 'all my real and personal property' was no doubt a coward. Mr. Proctor's plan had his choice. If Lillian had been alive he would have inherited only a little ready money, in spite of that highsounding phrase; with Lillian dead, he took everything."

"It would be the blackest sin I ever heard of!" breathed Mrs. Dynevor. Bridget Ransom nodde.' her head.

"But he did it, ma'am. Why you've only to ask his housekeeper, or the young lady herself, to hear he had no love or affection for the poor girl he called his daughter. He treated her with open indifference, if not neglect, Now the little child I left in France he simply worshipped!"

"Mother," said Harold, "here come tne girls. You won't let Beryl think she is less welcome because you know her secret?" Beryl and Kitty looked from one to

"I defy you to prove it!" Harold Dynevor interposed.

Mr. Lindon, you can make your choice: Sign a full confession of your frand, dis-England, when you win receive an annuity of 500 pounds a year, or defy us. You may hold your own for two or three months, until we find the doctor who attended your child; but you will then be prosecuted with the utmost rigor of the law, and the result will probably be penal servitude for

Like all bullies, Eustace Lindon was answered, and he saw that he was beaten. Better far accept his freedom and an annuity sufficient-to keep him than end his days in a convict prison. The trio left him, carrying away his signed confession, and with the understanding that a representative of Mr. Proctor would take possession of the house in Elchester square in the name of Lillian Dynevor, and that he gave up all the moneys of his stepdaughter which he had appropriated, within a month.

And when they told Lillian-how strange and unfamiliar the name sounded-of her good fortune she astonished them all by bursting into tears, and declaring she would rather remain Mrs. Tanner's governess than return to Dynevor Manor as its mistress. But that of course was impos-

At that moment Harold Dynesor came in. He would have gone away on seeing his mother was not alone; but she detained him, and in a few words gave him the heads of Mrs. Japanese Napkins Ransom's story.

"I can't see how the will could be a fraud," he answered, "and yet everything points to it. Linden dismissing the attendant who was true to his wife, and keeping the one who could be bribed, points to fraud; but, mother, I don't see what we are to do."

Neither did Mrs. Dynevor; but their visitor now proceeded to relate the best part of her story.

"Mrs. Markham told me a good deal of her young lady, Beryl Lindon, and I'm ready to swear she is not the child I left in Julia's care when I was sent as I say, I advise a game of bluff." away. There must be plenty of people left in the French village who remember little Beryl. She was so puny and backward for a long time the doctor feared she was an idiot. She had light hair, almost white and perfectly straight, and big, watery blue eyesthe sort of eyes you see oftenest in ts. At three years old she could ardly walk. No one but her father could see anything to admire in her. "According to Mrs. Markham, Beryl Lindon has very dark eyes, blue-grey, and almost black lashes, and curly brown hair. I can't think even fifteen years would make such a change." Mrs. Dynevor looked from her son o Mrs. Ransom.

"I am sure you both see something "Mother," said Harold hoarsely, forgive me! I have kept a secret from you. The girl you know as Beryl London is really Aunt Ning's daughfor. She came to Easthill to escape from her father and his second wife.

the other of the little group, bewli dered. It was Mrs. Dynevor who spoke, and to Beryl.

"My dear," she said gently, "Mrs. Ransom has come here chiefly to see you. She has heard a great deal of you from a Mrs. Markham, and so I have learned your, real name and the link between us."

"And can you forgive me for being my father's daughter?" "Your father, unless we all mistake, was my brother-in-law, Frank Dynevor. My dear, Mrs. Ransom lived with your mother for years. She is ready to swear that you are not and cannot be, Beryl Lindon; we think you are my niece, Lillian."

"She is her mother's image," said Mrs. Ransom; "and, though it is not a compliment to say so, she looks older than eighteen. Twenty-two at Christmas would be Miss Lillian's age."

The girl who had so long thought herself Beryl Lindon burst into tears. "Then it was not a dream that I had played in the deserted nursery at the Manor, that I had had a frock like the one in the picture, and 'Pet' was my own name after all!"

Mrs. Ra 1som accepted the hospitality of Uplands for the night, and a telegram to Marton brought Mr. Proctor to the farm before the family had finished breakfast-

"I should play a game of bluff," he counselled, "and tell Mr. Lindon you have discovered his fraud. Most probably he'll give in and confess everything; otherwise, you'll have to go first to Ponts-neufs, and see the doctor who attended the real Beryl Lindon; then on to St. Jacent, where she is reported to have died, and get a description of the child ourled in her name. If the two gentlemen are still practicing in the same townships the task would be easy enough; if they have moved on, and have to be traced, it might take a long time; therefore, Mrs. Tanner's supposed letter had come by that morning's post; but that also brought another from the gentle widow herself, saying she was persuaded to prolong her stay another week. Mrs. Dynevor would, she knew, be pleased to keep Miss Lindon, so she hoped the change of plan would be agreeable to every one.

"Depend upon it," said Harold, "the second letter came from Mrs. Wilmot. and was written at Mr. Lindon's request. He must have caught a glimpse of you yesterday at the Manor, and this is a ruse to get you into his hands."

"Must I go?" she asked anxiously. "No." said Mr. Proctor; "but Harold Dynevor, who is, I believe, your next-of-kin, will keep the appointment at Woodlands in your stead. I shall accompany him as his legal adviser, and Mrs. Ransom will come, too, to speak to her recollections of the real Beryl Lindon."

Mr. Lindon had waited a good ten inutes when the bell at Woodlands that crank next door. Mrs. Pearson

But Pappoose did not reply. She seemed listening intently, and then with swift, sudden movement darted across to the heavy Navajo blanket portiere that hung at the doorway of a little room back of the library. Her voice was far from cordial as she asked:

"Were you looking for anyone, Mrs. Fletcher? I thought you were in your room."

"For Mr. Folsom, please, when he is at leisure," was the answer, in unruffled tones. "I believe it easier to take active part in the preparations than to lie there thinking."

At one the girls were to lunch at the fort, as has been said, and it was time for them to dress. There were other matters on which Elinor much wished to talk with her father and, with more reluctance than she had yet experienced, she left him to hear what Mrs. Fletcher might have to say. The conference was brief enough, whatever its nature, for presently his voice was heard at the foot of the stairs. "I'm going over to the depot a few minutes, Daught. I wish to see Burleigh. Don't wait for me. Start whenever you are ready. Where do the

"Here, daddy, at half-past twelve." faced old fellow grew-redder as the summer sun beat down on his gray head, but he strode sturdily down the broad avenue that led to the heart of the bustling new town, turned to the right at the first cross street beyond his own big block, and ten minutes brisk tramp brought him to the gateway of Burleigh's stockaded inclosure Two or three employes lounging about the gate were gazing curiously within Silently they let him pass them by but a sound of angry voices rose upon the heated air. Just within the gats stood 'the orderly trumpeter holding two horses by the reins, one of then, Marshall Dean's, and a sudden ides occurred to Folsom as he glanced at teaching the colored children of that the open windows of the office build

"Go, boys, go!" implored Folsom. "I'll see you by and by. No-no-site still, Burleigh. Don't you speak. This must stop right here."

And so the old man's counsels pre-valled, and the two friends, with grave, pallid, but determined faces, came out into the sunshine, and with much deliberation and somewhat ostentatious calm proceeded to where the orderly waited with the horses. "You will see the ladies out to camp, Loomis?" asked Dean. "I must
