ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

CHELSEA HERALD

Cheises, Sunday Evening.

St. Mary's church was well filled Sunday

Rev. W. P. Considine next read the 44th chapter of Ecclesiasticus, which was & Wayne electric road at Plymouth and very applicable to the description of the with the Northwestern line at its spur life and deeds of St. Patrick given in his lecture which followed. . The reverend gentleman gave a brief bistory of St. Patrick from his birth in the 4th century of 85 years. He spoke of his capture by upon. Irish marauders, his captivity among them. his dreams and aspirations, after he had escaped from them, to return to the country and civilize and christianize them He next spoke of the remarkable success that attended St. Patrick's efforts, by reason of his great self-abnegation, his humility and his intense desire to save souls. The seed then sown by the great saint had taken deep root as is evidenced even in our own day-for there is no nation so faithful to the Catholic church and its teachings as the Irish.

In the course of a description of the wrongs that have been heaped on Ireland by the English nation since the island was conquered by them, Fr Considine bitterly reproached that nation for its treatment of the Boers and the war they have waged on that hapless republic.

Miss Dunn then sang "Kathleen Mavourneen," and the audience was dis missed, Miss Clark playing a selection of Irish airs as they filed out of the church.

DAMAGED BY FIRE.

The Chelsea Steam Laundry Had a Small Blaze Last Night.

What might have been a serious fire started in the drying room of S. A. Mapes laundry last evening. When the alarm was given the smoke was issuing from the upstairs windows in large waves. Willing hands were soon at work and all the laundry work and movable furniture were transferred to places of safety. The fire was quickly put out and the most of the damage resulted from water. The loss is as yet unknown.

> "Cars must be running from Jackson to Detroit by Sept. 1 without fail," was the word telegraphed by Mr. Boland last Thursday.

The winter weather has been favorable for pile driving, and the piles for the bridges between Jackson and Ann Arbor have been placed for the most part.

The pile driver has finished its work near Dexter and has gone west. It is now at work at the elevated crossing east of Michigan Center. The one possible delay is in the American Bridge Company following out its contract to furnish the steel work for the everhead bridge. The heavy timber trestle approaches to the bridge can be pushed, as that will be built directly by the company's interests. With the first advent of warm weather, an unprecedented activity in extending the road to Detroit, it is stated, will be manifest.

MANDAMUS REFUSED.

Attorney General Oren Will Not Compel Board of State Auditors to Pay a Claim,

Attorney General Oren has filed in the supreme court his brief in opposition to the application of Judge Edward Cahill for a mandamus to compel the board of state auditors to allow his claim for $250 for counseling Gov. Pingree in the preparation of a taxation measure during one of the numerous special sessions of the legislature. The board of auditors refused to allow the claim on the ground that it was no part of the duties of the executive to prepare bills for the legislature, and that he had no more authority to employ counsel for such a purpose at state expense than he had to write opinions for the supreme court.

The attorney general in his brief contends that the executive has no power to employ legal counsel independent of the attorney general except upon extraordinary circumstances, which do not exist in this

OLD BOOMER DIES.

Daniel Brown Was Instrumental in Locating the State University at Ann Arbor.

In 1837 the Michigan legislature passed an act authorizing the establishment of a university. Immediately F. W. Morgan, Charles Thayer, William R. Thompson, William S. Maynard and Daniel Brown formed a land company. Two hundred acres in what is now the heart of Ann Arbor were purchased and 40 acres were offered to the state for a site if the state would locate its institution there. It was accepted and the donors went in for a big real estate boom. They neither lost nor made a cent on the investment. The other day Daniel Brown, the last of the five. died at the age of 86. He was the first superintendent of the Michigan Central and was under the oaks at Jackson when the republican party was born.

He was pastor for years of SS. Peter and Paul's church on Adelaide street, Detroit. A "Carrie Nation" episide took place in Fulton village, Kalamazoo county. Charles Sherman had established a billiard, pool and card resort there which was being frequented by many young men. The W. C. T. U. and members of the churches planned a raid on it. A rescue committee was appointed, which, after a long parley, persuaded Sherman to sell his pool and billiard tables and cards to them. At two o'clock in the morning a crowd of 100, mostly women, took the entire outfit into the public square, smashed the tables with axes and made a huge bonfire of them.

Will Sue Biscuit Company.

There is a controversy between the state department and the National Biscuit company over the demand of the former that the company pay a franchise fee of $27,500 on its authorized capital of $55,000,000. The company has never incorporated in Michigan, but Secretary of State Warner insists that this fact does not exempt it from the payment of the fee, inasmuch as it does business in the state. The claim has been referred to Attorney General Oren, who will commence suit to recover, Charged with Forgery.

The directors of the suspended First national bank in Niles have filed a declaration against Charles A. Johnson, the missing cashier of the bank, alleging that forgeries amounting to $100,000 against leading citizens of this county have been committed by him. It was found that there was a great quantity of forged paper held by the institution. Investigation also discloses that of $350,000 deposits only $35,000 remains in the vaults.

POPULATION OF INDIA.

Reliable Census Returns Show That Famines and Disease Have Prevented Increase.

Calcutta, March 16.-Complete census returns give the population of India as 294,000,000, an increase in the last decade of 7,000,000. Deducting the population of the Baluchistun, Shaustaks, Chin Hills and Sikkim territory, enumerated for the first time, a net increase is shown of only 1.4 per cent., which is due to improved census methods. Thus, the population is for the first time stationary. Owing to the famines, mortality from disease and a great decline in the birth rate, the native states show excessive declines. These results were quite unexpected.

The relief was indescribable, she said, and the cost a matter of small importance. A yard of pique makes nine collars, and they wash like pocket handkerchiefs. They can be wholly covered or left half exposed, worn with string ties like starched collars. They keep the ribbons and velvet clean and are comfortable and pretty.

The neck ought to be allowed some freedom if it is only found in house gowns. Some women wear the most torturing of collars, even in the privacy of their rooms, but you will not find an actress in the lot. She knows too much about the value of good looks and the methods of securing and retaining them. Bernhardt is credited with the statement that the older a woman gets the more she should cover her forehead. Another actress who has retained her girlish looks through her thirty-fifth birthday arranges her hair about the ears to cover the telltale marks of age, which often grip there to stay. I cannot vouch for their appearance on that particular woman's face, but her dearest foe says that they are there, even though she hides them most cleverly.-Betty Bradeen in Boston Traveler.

The Queen's Presents.

So frequently does Queen Victoria bestow a handsome present, consisting of a piece of jewelry or something of a similar nature, upon a subject who has been brought before her notice that it is not surprising to learn that the bill for these articles frequently exceeds $50,000 per annum. What is more extraordinary, two gifts are seldom made alike, though they are invariably set with the royal monogram in precious stones.

The stock of presents kept in hand by the queen is necessarily very expensive, and the supply of scent bottles, scarfpins, brooches, etc., incrusted with diamonds and other precious stones would be sufficient to fill the windows of a first class jeweler's shop.

They are distributed as occasion demands, though not infrequently a present out of the common is purposely made for the recipient, as, for instance, the satinwood baton with the royal monogram set in diamonds and rubies that was presented some time ago to Mr. George Risley, the conductor of a glee society, and the silver bugle bestowed upon Bugier Dunne, and which, by the way, is said to have cost $500. In former days her majesty's bill was even higher than it is now, and to cope with the expense she instituted the Royal Victorian order, which is frequently conferred in lieu of a present. -London Tit-Bits.

Grand Work Accomplished by the Chicago Medical Mission.

In Its Charitable Endeavors Physical Health Is Considered Quite as Carefully as Moral and Spiritual Regeneration, [Special Chicago Letter.] CTAITH, without works, is dead." This must have been the compelling thought of Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich., which caused him so earnestly to desire to help the unfortunate in Chicago. So fully was the idea of this work formed in his mind that, when two brothers from the Kimberley mining district offered him $45,000 with a question as to how he would use it, his reply was: We will go down to Chicago and undertake a work for the submerged people of that great city." They have never had cause to regret the investment. The money was used for a sanitarium at 28 Thirty-third place, the earnings of which institution formed a nucleus of a sum with which the mission work was begun in a little basement under No. 40 Custom House place, near Van Buren street. After the old basement was cleaned and whitewashed, some little stalls were made, shower baths and laundry tubs installed and a small room partitioned off in one corner for dressing wounds; for these intensely practical people believed that, in order to efficiently minister to the needs of the soul, the wants of the body must often be first considered. Work was begun one Sunday. Soon 30 and 40 people per day received free treatment in a locality where no provision had heretofore been made for such as they. The frequenters of the neighborhood soon came to know the workers and many touching incidents are told of their appreciation of the most real Christian help and sympathy that had ever been extended to them.

The mission finds employment for as many paroled and discharged prisoners as possible, but the number of those who are willing to employ them is limited. At the dispensary are given not only free prescriptions, but baths, massage and electric treatments. One of the first to respond to the call for volunteers was the present secretary, who does not wish his name used, as he says none of the workers desire to be personally considered. They have given their lives and the work speaks for itself. It was soon seen that the clothes of those who were cleaned up at the mission were again unfit for contact with man (or beast either, time a small allowance is made them for that matter) after one night for their services. A mission was started at 436 State street, near Polk, where religious services are held every night, but after the men came out they had no decent place to sleep. So a building was secured at 1311 State street, where clean beds are supplied for ten cents. Each man is obliged to take a bath and have his clothes fumigated. When necessary, freshelothing is given. Food is supplied at a penny a dish, the cost of the raw material at wholesale. Mission nurses prepare the food. A penny's worth of mush is a large amount. A half loaf of bread costs a penny.

In order that no imposition be practiced, a rug-weaving factory has been added to the establishment, where an absolutely penniless man may work for his board and lodging. The mission has also a home-finding department, by means of which orphans and mothers with young children are placed in homes. At 2408 South Park avenue is the Children's Christian home, where little ones under eight years old, rescued from want by mission workers, receive care and training. A day school and kindergarten are maintained. There is a branch of this home at Berlin, Wis., under charge of a corps of workers from the Chicago home. Not only orphaned children are welcomed here, but those with mothers for whom work is found among those who are unable to receive the child also. FARMING IN WESTERN CANADA

The Great Natural Fertility of the Soll In Manitoba, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

What Has Been Done by Premier Greenway, Himself a Leading Farmer.

Hon. Thomas Greenway, Premier of the Province of Manitoba, one of the foremost farmers of Western Canada, writes an excellent article to the press, from which the following extracts are made:

The writer came to Manitoba from Ontario in the autumn of 1878, and has ever since been engaged in agricultural pursuits. From the day, nearly 22 years ago, when he selected his homestead, he has had unbounded faith in the country as place where farming can be success fully carried on, if pursued upon proper lines. There is a large number in this Province who should rather be called "wheat-growers" than farmers. On account of the facilities, natural advantages, and therefore cheapness with which wheat can be grown, no doubt many have done exceedingly well by raising wheat only; still, it is far from ideal farming. Not only will such a course, if persisted in, have the effect of causing the land to run out, as has been the experience of those who pursued the same plan in the wheat-producing prairie States to the south of us, but it is far from being the most profitable course to adopt.

This fact is already being demonstrated in Manitoba. Let the farms in this Vestern country be managed upon the lines which were successful in the Eastern Provinces, and much more can be done here in a given time than was ever done in the East. The probabilities of failure are practically nil. Upon the farm there should be found horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, according to the ability of the farmer-with respect to his means and the extent of his holding. The wanton waste which has hitherto been practiced by many farmers, that of burning vast quantities of excellent, fodder after threshing is done, should cease; it and converted into the old, sensible kind of fertilizer manure, and after wards be returned to the soil, so that what has been taken from it by the crop may be restored. Alural fertility of the soil in Manitoba and the success that has attended the growing of wheat for years upon the same land have a tendency to make such a course as the one mentioned tempting, yet, if continued, wheat growing upon the same land year after year is undoubtedly a mistake. The writer knows of no country that offers advantages so great to the agriculturist as does Manitoba. The vraious branches of farming can be carried on successfully, as twentytwo years of practical operations and observations of what others are doing have proven. To those desiring to make new homes for themselves, the low price of some of the best lands in the world (although rapidly advancing in price this year) offer still great opportunities. To all such the invitation is cordially given to "Come and See." There need be no poor people here. There is land for all who choose to come, land upon which happy homes can be established, and from which ample resources can be gathered against old age. All that a man needs to achieve competence in this domain is common-sense and industry. With these qualifications he is bound to succeed. For information regarding free homestead lands, apply to any agent of the government whose advertisement appears elsewhere in these col-

The delicate quality which a wellknown writer on the subject has aptly defined as finesse in embroidery is characteristic, when worked of this charming design. The inspiration was one of the exquisitely worked waistcoats which, during the latter half of the eighteenth century, were dear to the heart of the man of fashion, and equally satisfactory to the embroideress of the day as affording scope for her skill. ns, and which is equally inexhaustible as a source of instruction or of suggestion. Every variety of refined and delicate stitchery was called into requisition to suit the fashionable fancy, and the dandy of the period, as M. Ernest Lefebure tells us, and s examples preserved in museums and private collections testify, used even, when he felt he had exhausted European resource, to send his coats and waistcoats, ready cut, to be embroidered in China; so that not only does his luxurious wardrobe remain as an object lesson to the worker of to-day in the needlecraft of her own country, but sometimes introducesher to some of the finest methods and styles of oriental embroidery. The specimen on which the design is based is a delightful example of English embroidery of some century and a half ago, preserved at the Victoria and Albert museum, London. The ground is a creamy white satin, and the silks used the very finest floss; the whole piece is, indeed, a marvel of fineness, needle-painting of the most delicate type. Very fine threads of filo-floss might be used nowadays for working it, care being taken to select the shades together so as to be sure that they harmonize. The light trelliswork, for example, is in the soft plum-bloom color, best described by its ord-fashioned name of puce," the dull tone of which, even then fresh, makes it blend so restfully with other hues. The small flowers intersected by the trellis are in pale silvery blue, and the little sprays filling the spaces are crimson flowered, with green leaves and stems. The quaint posy at one corner introduces a delightfully varied combination of colors. The curious flower, with its cluster 'of small blossoms surrounding tall, upstanding stamens, is worked in blue, shading from the palest to a deep, dull indigo; the stamens are in light green tipped with maize and coral tints. The poppy shades from red to flesh pink; the small shower spray of flowers at the lower part of the bouquet is blue, while the pansy-shaped blossom above it shows delicate shades of pale maure. The foliage is in greens, finey shaded from light to dark, and there is a touch of crimson in the flower-head standing erect above the others,-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Marriage Without Consent.

"A girl's right is to be married with dignity from her father's house," writes Margaret E. Sangster in the Ladies' Home Journal. "There are instances, as in the case of Mrs. Browning, where parent is relentlessly prejudiced and yrannical, but they are very excepional. After a sufficient period of waiting, if the two are sure of each other and are of mature age—over 25 at least-if they cannot obtain their parents' consent they may be justified n marrying without it, hoping for time to bring about a reconciliation to the inevitable."

"How does it happen," asked the hip-

Why Mrs. Kennett Sought Refuge in the Pantry After Her Guests Had Said Good Night.

Mr. Kennett is a genial and wellmeaning man, but he is unobserving. This failing of his on occasion reduces his wife to the state of exasperation which most women understand unless they are married to trained detectives or the exceptional man who is too good to be true.

It is a standing joke at the Kennett house to remark on Mrs. Kennett's appetite. Her husband treasures the topic as a subject to enliven any informal dinners they give, and invents fresh stories on the spur of the m.ment if the conversation lags. "You wouldn't think now," he often says in mock wonder, "to look at such a fragile little person" (Mrs. Kennett is five feet four and weighs about 100 pounds) "that she eats twice as much as I do. Yet I'm always through a meal half again as quickly as she and she is perfectly brazen about making me wait till she has finished. I can't understand it!"

Guests always laugh ripplingly at this sally, and Mrs. Kennett smiles in a deprecatory way and holds her peace. There were a lot of friends in to informal Sunday night tea a short time ago, and in consequence a side table was devoted to the Kennetts' five olive branches and two visiting youngsters. Everybody waited on himself, and between whiles Mrs. Kennett attended to the side table.

Her portion of cold turkey had just been set before her when a wail arose from the junior table.

"I've drunk all my milk and I want some more," announced Tommy Ken-

"And I want another slice of bread and jam." added a six-year-old visitor. "Can't I have an olive?" piped the baby.

Mrs. Kennett arose to still the tumult. "Dear. dear!" sympathized guest, "your coffee will get cold." "Oh," said Mr. Kennett, genially,

'she is used to that sort of thing. Won't you have this wing?"

Mrs. Kennett retied two bibs, rescued the sugar bowl and then dropped into her chair smiling and breathless. She enjoyed two bites of turkey and then had to arise and umpire a fight between Mildred Kennett and Harry, whose idea of warfare was to plaster his enemy with jelly. When she got back the rest of the adults were finishing some salad and had proceeded to the cakes and sliced fruit. She relinquished her turkey with a sigh in order to catch up with the procession. and had succeeded in getting the French dressing distributed over her tomatoes when clamor again arose. 'Please, mamma, s'more bread!' shouted Harry.

"Me, too!" cried Mildred. "And I want a fork like Tommy's," wailed a visitor. "It's bigger'n mine!"

"My turkey's all gone," chimed in Commy. "And I'd like s'more milk," confided he chorus. Mrs. Kenneth patiently arose and time. When she had them settled, her husband and friends at the big table had finished.

"Oh, dear, yes," Mrs. Kennett said protestingly, when one of the guests 'guessed she hadn't had a thing to eat," "I've quite finished!"

She led the way into the parlor and entertained her guests brilliantly till ten o'clock, when they departed. Then she disappeared.

Mr. Kennett, instituting a search for his wife, found her in the pantry with a heaping plate of cold turkey, jelly and He laughed amusedly. "Well, of all things!" he remarked. "Are you hungry after that layout we had three hours ago? Look out, Betty, you'll have to reduce your weight in a year if you keep on!"

Mrs. Kennett held a large and solid drumstick in her hand. For an instant her fingers clenched as do those of one about to hurl an object, and her eyes flashed. Then she thought better of it and instead ate the drum-

THE DUTY OF MOTHERS.

What suffering frequently results from a mother's ignorance; or more frequently from a mother's neglect to properly instruct her daughter!

Tradition says "woman must suffer," and young women are so taught. There is a little truth and a great deal of exaggeration in this. If a young woman suffers severely she needs treatment, and her mother should see that she gets it.

Many mothers hesitate to take their daughters to a physician for examina-tion; but no mother need hesitate to write freely about her daughter or herself to Mrs. Pinkham and secure the most efficient advice without charge. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. August Pfalzgraf, of South Byron, Wis., mother of the young lady whose portrait we here publish, wrote Mrs. Pinkham in January, 1899, saying her daughter had suffered for two years with irregular menstruationhad headache all the time, and pain in her side, feet swell, and was generally miserable. Mrs. Pinkham promptly replied with advice, and under date of March, 1899, the mother writes again that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured her daughter of all pains and irregularity.

Nothing in the world equals Mrs. Pinkham's great medicine for regulating woman's peculiar monthly troubles.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 18 (Special).-This popular resort numbers among its patrons many of the world's most distinguished men and women, but none more so than Madam Isabelle Ellen Baveas, Life Governor of the Free Masons Grand Lodge of England.

Madam Baveas, like most of the other visitors, came here in search of health. She was not disappointed, but her cure was not found in the virtue of the baths, but in a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which she found on sale here, and which is being used and with wonderful success by a number of the visitors to Hot Springs. She says:-

"I travelled almost constantly for the past six years in the interests of my Society, and my health gradually became broken down, through the change of food, water, climate, etc. The doctors told me I had diabetes, and advised me to go to the Springs, as they could do nothing for me. While there my attention was called to Dodd's Kidney Pills by a fellow sufferer, who had been greatly benefited by

It is with gratitude that I state that they cured me completely, and I am now able to take up the duties of life once more. I am very thankful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me, and as a grateful woman shall never hesitate to recommend them to anyone suffering with Diabetes."
