REPUBLICANS VICTORIOUS

So Far as the State Ticket is Concerned.

ESTIMATED PLURALITY 45,000.

Indications are That Both Constitutional Amendments Have Been Lost-The Van Buren County Seat Fight Resulted in a Victory for Paw Paw.

Republicans Win in the State.

Reports from correspondents throughout the state, show a very light vote, as compared with the vote cast at the last presidential election, but indicate that the Republican candidate for justice of the supreme court, Robert M. The vote will not fall much below that of two years ago, when Justice Grant's Army recruits are scarce in England plurality was 51,348. The returns on the Bay county court amendment are meager, but indications are that both ing fight in the state was over the Van Buren county seat. According to returns from 18 out of 20 townships, Paw Paw wins a victory by 497 votes. More votes were cast in this county than at presidential election. ransplanting Races Improves Physique It is asserted by ethnologists that the transplantation of the European rate to newer countries results in the in provement of the physique. French Canadian, for example, is more hardy frame than the Frenchma in his own country, and the colonial born Englishman, whether in Canada South Africa or Australasia, is, on the average, slightly taller, though n heavier, than the natives of those is ands. But, probably, the most striking example of increased stature is to h found in the South African Dutchmen and especially in the Boers of the Transvaal. All travelers agree the not only are the Boers, physically, much finer race than either the French or the Dutch, from whom they are descended, but that they are probable the tallest race of white men in the world. Two reasons for this remark able increase in stature naturally surgest themselves. First, the almost per fect climate, which makes the open-air life of the South African uplands the healthiest in the world, and secondly the struggle for existence which the emigrants had to fight with the will derness and the natives,

INDIAN MSISIONARY'S STORY.

Years of Tollsome Ministry Among Cheetaw.

Little York, Ind., April 1.- (Special) -Twenty-five years ago the Rev. C H. Thompson left Indiana. For time he preached in Arkansas, after wards entering on the regular mission ary work among the Choctaw Indians

For five years he lived and labore among the full bloods of the western prairies, until on April 5th, 1885, have ing lost his wife, he left the circul on which he had preached so long, and commenced traveling missionar work among the Indians of the various tribes scattered in the west.

This irregular work involved a gra deal of travel over the prairies. T drinking of so much alkali water brought on kidney troubles which terminated in Diabetes.

Finally, while laboring among th Creek Indians at Wagoner, Indian Territory, this noble man was strick cialist was summoned, and after careful examination declared that then was not the slightest chance of his recovery. THE AGONY OF GETHSEMANE THE SUBJECT LAST SUNDAY.

"Te Are Bought with Price"-Pirst Book of Corinthians, Chapter VI, Verse 20 The Temptation of the Envir-Dirice Sympathy.

Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.) Washington, March 31.—in this discourse Dr. Talmage shows the Messisale sacrifices for the saving of all nations and speaks of Gethsemane as n appeared to him; text, I Corinthians ri. 20, "Ye are bought with a price."

Your friend takes you through his valuable house. You examine the arches, the frescoes, the grass plo.s. the fish ponds, the conservatories, the parks of deer, and you say within yourself or you say aloud, "What did all this cost?" You see a costly diagood flashing in an earring, or you hear a costly dress rustling across the drawing room, or you see a high mettled span of horses harnessed with si:er and gold, and you begin to make an estimate of the value. The man who owns a large estate cannot instantly tell you all it is worth. He says, "I will estimate so much for the house, so much for the grounds, so much for the stock, so much for the barn, so much for the aggregate.

Well, my friends, I hear so much is furniture and the grand surrounding that I want to know how much he is able to succor all those who a e been paid for it. I cannot complete in month nor a year the magnificent calculation, but before I get through today I hope to give you the figures. "Ye are bought with a price."

What Mary no food? "None," she says, only that which was brought in the sack on the journey." Let the Bethlehem woman who has come in here with kindly attentions put back the covering from the babe that we may look upon it. Look! Look! Uncover your head. Let us kneel. Let all voices be hushed. Son of Mary! Son of God! Child of a day! Monarch of eternity! In that eye the glance of a God. Omnipotence sheathed in that Babe's arm. That voice to be changed from the feeble plaint to the tone that shall wake the nead. Hosanna! Hosana! Glory to God that Jesus came. from throne to manger that we might ise from manger to throne, and that all the gates are open, and that the for of heaven that once swung this way to let Jesus out now swings the other way to let us in. Let all the belimen of heaven lay hold the 1000 and ring out the news, "Behold, I bing you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people, for today born in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord!"

Behold him in prayer, the globules of blood by sorrow pressed through the skin of his forehead! What an installment in part payment of the greatest price that was ever paid!

The Sham Tria'.

The fourth installment paid for our redemption was the Saviour's sham trial. I call it a sham trial-there has never been anything so indecent or take or gun or pistol. It was unfair in any criminal court as was that Jesus went to think and | witnessed at the trial of Christ. Why, they hustled him into the court room at 2 o'clock in the morning. They gave him no time for counsel. They gave witnesses. The ruffians who were wandering around through the midnight. of course they saw the arrest and went into the court room. But Jesus' friends were sober men, were respectable men. and at that hour, 2 o'clock in the morning, of course they were at home asleep. Consequently Christ entered the court room with the ruflians. Oh, look at him! No one to speak a word for him. I lift the lantern until I can look into his face, and as my heart beats in sympathy for this, the best friend the world ever had. himself now utterly friendless, an officer of the court room comes up and smites him, in the mouth, and I see the blood stealing from gum and lip. Oh, it was a farce of a trial, lasting only perhaps an hour, and then the judge rises for sentence! Stop! It is against the law to give sentence unless there has been an adjournment of the court between condemnation and sentence. but what cares the judge for the law? "The man has no friends. Let him dle," says the judge. And the ruffians outside the rail cry: "Aha, aha, that's what we want! Pass him out here to us! Away with him! Away with him!" The Divine Symp th'zer. Oh, I bless God that amid all the injustice that may have been inflicted upon us in this world we have a divine sympathizer. The world cannot lie about you nor abuse you as much as they did Christ, and Jesus stands to-day in every court room, in every house, in every store, and says: "Courage! By all my hours of maltreatment and abuse I will protect those who are trampled upon." And when Christ forgets that 2 o'clock morning scens and the stroke of the ruman on the mouth and the howling of the unwashed crowd, then he will forget you and me in the injustices of life that may be Drawing the Curtain. It was about noon when the curtain began to be drawn. It was not the coming on of a night that soothes and refreshes. It was the swinging of a great gloom all around the heavens. God hung it. As when there is a dead one in the house you bow the shutters or turn the lattice, so God in the afternoon shut the windows of the world. As it is appropriate to throw a black pall upon the coffin as it passes along, so it was appropriate that everything should be somber that day as the great hearse of the earth rolled on, bearing the corpse of the King. A man's last hours are ordinarily kept sacred. However you may have hated or caricatured a man, its hands on your lips, and you would have a loathing for the man who could stand by a deathbed making faces and scoffing. DEATH'S VISITS IN SLEEP.

Apoplexy Freque t'y Attacks Its Victims Wille They Slumber.

The frequent occurrence of apoplexy during sleep was illustrated in the case him no opportunity for subpoening of Colonel Albert D. Shaw. He had made a patriotic speech during the evening and had retired in apparently good health. In his instance there was a combination of causes to bring about the result-a banquet, mental excitement, probable indigesetion and a coincident lowering of vital tone. In some respects the circumstances were similar to those attending the demise of Henry George, who was likewise stricken after forced efforts on the platform. Why the accident in question should occur at a time when all the bodily functions are seemingly at rest is at first thought somewhat difficult to explain. When, however, the arteries of the brain become brittle by age the slightest change of blood pressure is often enough to precipitate a rupture of those vessels and cause the escape of a clot either upon the surface or into the substance of the brain. High mental tension, being always associated with congestion, is in itself an active predisposing cause of apoplexy. This condition is apt to continue during a more or less troubled sleep, and with an overtired nervous system there is less resistance to overstretching of the cerebral arteries than during the waking hours. Nature, instead of rebounding, simply succumbs. The fullness of the vessels increases until the final break occurs. Generally Earthquake in Turkey. An earthquake was felt in the palace at Constantine on Mar. 31, at the moment of the Bairan ceremony when the high officials were passing before the sultan's throne. A panic resulted, particularly among the diplomatists in the gallery many of whom immediately left the pa ace. The band ceased playing and the musicians rushed to the doers. Pieces of plaster fell from the ceiling and portions of the chandeliers were broken, adding to the general alarm. The sultan arose from his throne and took a few steps apparently intending to leave the chamber, but he preserved great calmness and presence of mind which had a good effeet. After a moment's heritation his majesty reseated himself upon the throne and ordered the ceremony to proceed. A reception followed, without further incident.

Damage by Flood Feared.

A dispatch from Milwaukee, dated the 25th, says that the heavy rains and thaw throughout Wisconsin in the past many places throughout the state, and business has been interrupted temporarily at least. Shebovgan, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Saukville and Milwaukee are having the worst experiences The flood in the Menominee river valley at the latter place is higher than for years past, and several of the factories are unable to operate. Piggsville, a Milwankee suburb, is under water again and the streets and yards of the town are inundated. The Milwaukee west side car shops are working, but a little more of a rise in the water will flood the shops. As it is, a lake of water surrounds the shops on all sides.

In the Great Saskatchewan Valley and the Fertile Plains of Assinibola.

To the Editor, Dear Sir: The past three or four years have demonstrated to a large number of Americans the value of the grain-growing and ranching lands of Western Canada. Tens of thousands have taken advantage of the offer made by the Canadian government as well as of the exceedingly low prices asked for lands by the railway, colonization and other companies. The experience of those who have been settled there for some little time much so that the Canadian government, who has control of the immigration into Western Canada, has decided to open up some new districts this year in the well known Saskatchewan Valley and also in the fertile plains of Assiniboia. These Districts are probably the most productive in the entire West and in close touch to largely settled communities as well as being situated on some of the most important lines of railway. They are within easy reach of markets, schools, churches and other social advantages. In some of these districts lands may be homesteaded as well as purchased outright at very low prices. Now as to what can be done on these lands. The evidence of the settlers in the neighborhood of the lands now about to be opened for settlement (some of them being located in one of the best Indian Reservations) goes to show that the very best results have followed even most indifferent methods. Cases are given where farmers having gone there with most limited means, barely enough to erect a small house and break up a little land, have in three or four years time become prosperous. all debts paid and money in the bank. The soil in the Districts mentloned, Assiniboia and Saskatchewan, is a rich black loam, fifteen inches to three feet deep. As a settler says, "It appears like the accumulation of decayed vegetation and ashes for centuries (the sub-soil is a stiff, putty ciay)." On this soil it is possible to raise from 40 to 50 bushels of wheat to the acre, oats 75 to 100 bushels, all of which bring good prices at the local market. For mixed farming these new districts are probably among the best in Western Canada. Stock fatten easily on the wild grasses. Hay is plentiful, and prices splendid. Another sattler writing to a friend in Iowa says: "The climate is all that could be desired. plenty of rainfall in summer, with no hot, dry winds. On the 28th of September I saw prairie flowers in Tuli bloom, sweet corn, potato and tomato vines that had not been touched a particle with frost, and the winters are three days has caused high water in milder than those in the State from which I came. After the holidays the winter sets in clear and cold, with plenty of snow for good sleighing, no nigh winds or blizzards are known. Horses live out all winter and pick .hcir own living, while cattle live all winter in open sheds and around the nay ricks. Wheat, oats and barley are he principal grain crops. Potatoes and all other roots and vegetables do well, the yield being enormous as ompared to those in the States. Wild cruits, such as strawberries, raspberries, cranberries, gooseberries and all varieties of currants yield in abondince. As a reader of your valuable paper for a number of years. I feel that I should inform you of the progress ind advancement being made in Canada within the past few years, and the nducements and advantages that will ollow settlement in Western Canada. l'hose who desire information can do is I did, and apply to any Agent o he Canadian Government, whose name I see appears in advertisements appearing elsewhere in the columns of your paper, and when writing ask particuarly about the Saskatchewan Valley or Assiniboia Districts. Yours truly, Old Reader."

The pastor of the Baptist church would call attention of the members to the annual meeting of the church and congregation to be held in the church, Saturlay afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Each member is asked to respond to his name by a day for Bath where they will make their verse of Scripture. As officers are to be future home. elected and plans talked over for the work of the coming church 'year, it is very essential that every member use their utmost endeavor to be present.

There will be very interesting Easter exercises at the Baptist church Sunday morning consisting of exercises by the school and a short address by the Pastor on some Easter theme. The choir will also have some special music for the morning and evening service, and the church will be appropriately decorated for the occasion. The subject for the pastor's sermon in the evening will be "A resting place for God." All are most cordially invited to attend these services.

Chelsea is to lose an old land mark. On Tuesday of this week F. P. Glazier purchased what is known as the Randall property, situated on the northwest corner of Main and South streets, of Mrs. Frey, paying the sum of $2,350. Mr. Glazier informed The Standard that within sixty days he would begin the construction thereon of what will be the handsomest building in Chelsea, the same to be a memorial to his father, the late Geo. P. Glazier. The building will be of stone, and the architects are now at work on the plans.

In the parlors of the Congregational church last evening assembled a fine company of Chelsea's young people. The members of the C. E. Society had invited their personal friends to their first annual banquet. The dining room was transformed into a beautiful banquet hall and amid the strains of music 116 Endeavorers and their guests gathered around the tables. A dainty five course banquet was served by the ladies and the toasts which followed were witty and bright. It was an occasion long to be remembered by the young people.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Relly of Ann Arbor, Wednesday, at high noon, when their daughter, Miss Alice F., was united in marriage to Mr. Nathaniel W. Laird. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Franklin A. Stlles, brother-in-law Ed. Whipple left Monday for Battle of the groom. The decorations were Creek where he has accepted a position palms and cut flowers. The wedding march was played by Miss Thirza Wallace of Chelsea. Immediately after the Senator Chas. A. Ward who is engaged | ceremony an elaborate dinner was served. The guests present were members of the immediate families and a few lady iriends of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Laird are worthy young people and have the best wishes of their many friends for a prosperous and happy life.

Brunetta Roth burst unceremoniously into her friend's room.

"Mary," she cried, "is it possible you have refused Christopher Patton?" Mary Vane, a tall, pretty girl, who was adjusting her fur collarette before the mirror, turned quickly, her soft cheeks flushing scarlet.

"Why, Brunetta," she exclaimed. "how can you expect me to answer such a question?"

Brunetta, who was small and stout, and attired in the height of the prevailing mode, sank down in a chair and laughed.

"I didn't expect you to answer it. There is no necessity you should do so. Mr. Patton told Tom last night that you had thrown him over 1 don't see how your conscience allowed you to act so. He is such a catch-young and good-looking. Best of all, he is enormously wealthy."

Mary smiled as she speared a crown of her demure little turban with a long pin. She was thinking of a man who was no longer young-near forty, perhaps-who was handsomer in her eyes than all other men, and who was by no

"I'really believe," went on Miss Roth, "that you have an absurd fancy for Charlie Everett-I do, indeed!"

Mary's smile became quizzical. "Really?" she said.

"Oh, I have no patience with you!" declared Brunetta, wrathfully, "You've known Charlie Everett three or four years. All this time he has been most devoted to you, but not one of your friends knows to this day whether you are engaged or not."

The smile faded from Mary's lips. "We are not," she answered, and the gay little cousin fancled her tone was sad.

"And yet you have been more graclous to him than to any of the o hers," rursued Miss Roth, relentlessly. "Mary, are you in love with him?"

"Isn't that," counter-questioned Mary, evasively, "what the lawyers would call a leading question? I don't wish to seem rude, or to hurry you, Brunetta, but I have an engagement to sign some papers this afternoon at the office of Deal & Burrit, Can't you come with me?'

"Yes. I must see Mme. Mireau about my Easter hat. One must arrange with her in time, as she is always rushed with orders. Are those papers connected with your uncle's will?"

"He left you everything! What a Aucky girl you are! I suppose now you feel you can afford to marry whom you

The conversation again turned on Charlie Everett as the girls rode down town together on the Metropo itan Ele-wated. "He is a mysterious fellow," Bru-netta remarked. "Mysterious!" Mary sent her a sudden look of inquiry. "What do you mean?

"Well, there really is reason why he should be considered a good deal of an enigma. While not wealthy like Christepher Patton, Tom tells me he has a good salary, and adds to this by writings. But you know he does not spend money as other men in our class do. He is not liberal in the matter of theaters or flowers. He lives quietly. He has no expensive habits. Where, then, does his money go?"

Mary Vane was silent. "There is one house in the suburbs where he is known to frequently visit" the other went on. Brunetta, as will be observed, was not above enjoying a gossip. "Two women live there. One is apparently a superior sort of a servant. The other is a pretty, delicate-looking little creature of about twenty-five or thereabouts. Occasionally Mr. Everett takes her driving through the parks. Has he ever mentioned her to you?"

Mary forced herself to answer:

"Nor to anyone else. But I have seen him out with her Who is she?" A feeling of unrest, an undefinable fear, thrilled the heart of Mary Vane. She recalled the night Charlie Everett had told her of his love. "I cannot now ask you to be my wife," he had said. "I will some day, God willing. The time may not be far will trust me and wait?"

had replied, and had questioned him not at all.

was not an engagement—that she was is Charlie Everett to you?" When that free—quite free. Only he was bound. was answered she would know how "Very well," she had agreed. "We are not engaged."

But the understanding that existed between them was sweet to both. That was a year ago.

And now she had to acknowledge to herself that she knew little more of his private life or of his personal affairs than she knew then. She was unusually silent as she and Brunetta descended the steps and walked together to the lawyer's office. Her errand there attended to, Mary Vane went with Brunetta to see about the latter's Easter hat. Then the two walked down State street just as the

And he laid a card and a bill on the counter. An instant later he had received his change and walked out.

The girls stared at each other. "That," gasped Brunetta, "was Charle Everett!"

'Yes, I know," murmured Mary, Before she could put out her hand to stop her meddlesome friend the

"Oh, she cried. "She is dead!" latter had stepped to the counter and read the address on the card which lay

"Just as I thought," she remarked a few minutes later, when they were out in the street together. "The address is 14 Forest Avenue, Idlewild. That is the suburb in which his mysyou lives."

"Shame to doubt him!" cried her heart through all the sleepless night that followed. But her rigid will silenced that assailing protest. So the morning of the beautiful day that followed found her at the gate of a cosey cottage set back amid a group of bare-branched maples. There were drifts of snow in the little garden, but the air was warm with the effulgent prescience of spring. So peaceful was the place, the hour, her courage almost matinee-goers were flocking from the failed her. All the blinds were down. The entrance she chose brought her to a side door. She rang the bell. A maid appeared.

'May I-" Mary Vane began, then faltered. For whom should she ask? "Yes," the girl replied, "Come in."

Marveling, Mary followed her. She led the way into a front room. The curtains were drawn. Tapers burned in the dimness. At first Mary fancied that-

There was silence, and nothing there But silence, and scents of eglanterre, And jasmine, and roses, and rosemary-"

Then she saw that there was something else. A coffin, and in it lying a white-robed form, with folded hands, and lilies lying on the pulseless breast, Mary shrank back.

"Oh," she cried. "She is dead." "Yes, Miss. I thought you wished to see her. A good many of the neighbors were in last evening. She had many friends hereabout for all her misfortunes. Ain't those lilies beautiful? Mr. Charlie sent them. Twentyeight for twenty-eight years."

Mary went nearer, looked down on the dead face, a young face which had once been lovely, but bore the unmistakable impress of sorrow and suffer-

"It's not many men," went on the servant, wiping her eyes, "who would do what Mr. Charlie did. A step crossed the hall. Looking pale and worn, Charlie Everett came into the room. His face lighted up at sight of his sweetheart.

"You-Mary!" he cried. "Hush!" she begged. She broke down, crying bitterly. "Don't look at me-don't speak to me until I have told you how it is that I am here." She brokenly whispered the truth. "You can never trust me again," she said in conclusion.

He took her in his arms. "Perhaps I should have spoken to you of her, but I hated to cast so dark a shadow over your young life, I could not keep up two households, and she was penniless. She was my charge before I learned to love you. CHAPTER VI.

When the good ship "Port Philip" came sailing home from Australia to England many an anxious parent or lover or friend awalted her arrival upon the harbor pier, eager to welcome those who had been so long absent, and who were now returning to leave their native land no more.

Most of these wanderers had left their home and friends in search of gold. Some had been successful, and were returning in the first flush of victorious pride, some had failed and were coming back like the prodigal son of old, willing to eat even the crumbs that might fall from the paternal table, so that the diet of the empty husks in a far land should be theirs no more. Some were strong and happy, some were ill and sad; but for all alike a welcome was waiting the moment they touched the land.

For all, did I say?

There was one on board for whose arrival no friend was watching, one who came unnoticed and unknown to the land of his birth, one for whom no home more genial than an inn would open wide its doors. Among the eager and excited throng who talked to themselves and each other of the friends they hoped to see, he stood a silent listener, with no story of the kind to offer in return. When they landed at last, his late companions were lost to his view among groups of relations and acquaintances, but not a hand was outstretched, not a voice was raised to welcome him. He stood a few moments watching the interchange of greetings, the prayers, the tears of grateful joy, then turned away with quivering lips and moistened eyes.

"Shall I never be missed, never be mourned over like that?" was his thought as he passed from the pier to the busy streets, and made the best of his way to a hotel, to which he had been recommended by the captain of his ship. "Three and twenty years old, and the world before me! That sounds well, but when I know that the world contains no love, no home, no happiness, that I may honestly claim-Ah, well, never mind! I'm not going to be a baby, and cry for the moon; so, adieu to sentiment of every kind, while I drop ancher in this bustling town. Here is the 'Eagle' right before me, and for the sum of one guinea I can purchase smiles without number from the worthy host."

So saying, he entered the "Eagle" and ordered his dinner. But sad thoughts still seemed to haunt him. and when the repast had been cleared away he sat brooding over the fire, biting rather than smoking his cigar, and pulling the ends of his moustache with a frown. At last some memory of the past touched him too keenly. He broke into a bitter laugh.

"The fool I was when I was young! he thought to himself. "How well I remember the wild dreams that kept me company when I began the race! What wonderful things I was to accomplish then! How soon I was to build my fortune! How I was going about doing good, comforting the sad, relieving the poor, raising up the oppressed. Howsoon I accomplished all those schemes! How much better the world must be to-day because I have lived in it!"

His face grew still more sad as he

"I laugh at these things now, and yet it makes me unhappy. That would have been a beautiful life if I could but have lived it. Iwould rather have the heart of those days that could plan the scheme than this I must now own that can only ridicule it! But the young romance has gone. It haunts me no longer. My nature is as barren and worldly as-as even she could desire."

There it was you see. That irrepressible "she" who is sure to be at the bottom of every perplexity and trouble a man can know.

He tugged at his moustache fiercely, and flung his cigar in the grate. "I can see the place now as if in a dream," he groaned. "Those hills and distant mountains; that calm sky, so 'darkly, deeply, beautifully blue,' the sheep upon the hill side, and the cattle in the pasture chewing the cud lazily, and lying still to feel the warmth! And that other day, a week later, when the sky was heavy with rain. A chill, raw wind blew from those hills, the roadway wet and sodden; so was the glen, through all its fallen leaves. Yet she stood there, bright and gay, and restless and happy. She let the wind blow through her curls, she lifted her face to catch the fallen rain. Great heaven! how beautiful she was! And I have lost her-I shall never see her again!" He groaned, and covered his face with his hands. Five minutes passed then he started from his seat. "This won't do," he ejaculated. Byron says:

"'Man, being reasonable, must get drunk.'

I agree with him; but one can't well get drunk before the orthodox hours of 10 or 11 p. m. Then no one minds it. It is now 6 o'clock-four hours before I can carry out the Byronic theory. I know what I'll do. I'll go to town and horrid ironmaster, I presume,"

CHAPTER VII.

"Tea is ready, if you please, Mrs. Magnum."

At that announcement, made in a very clear yet pleasant voice, Mrs. Magnum started out of her nap, which she had been enjoying in the depths of her velvet chair, rubbed her eyes, and looked up at a young lady who stood on the hearth-rug, a few paces from her.

"Eh? What did you say, Miss Marjorie?" she asked, sharply.

"Tea is ready," replied Miss Marjorie, taking her seat at the head of the table as she spoke. . "Humph," muttered Mrs. Magnum, eyeing her with a sour look of dissatisfaction. "Well," you may pour me out a cup. But where is Mr. Magnum and Julius, and dear Kate? It is really extraordinary, that when I am so punctual myself, everyone belonging to me should be perfectly unable to understand the value of time, or come to their meals at the proper hours. I am sure, when I was a girl, my mamma would have-"

What her mamma would have done in a similar state of things Miss Marjorie never knew, for at that moment the door opened, and a corpulent, redfaced, good-humored looking man entered, closely followed by a stupidlooking boy of 12. The young laiv subsided into a graceful attitude upon the sofa; the boy established himself at Miss Marjorle's elbow, and began an indiscriminate assault upon the cat ables; but Mr. Magnum dutifully supplied his wife with a cup of tea and plate of bread and butter before beginning his own meal, which he took at the small table which always stood beside her easy chair.

"Well, my dear," he said, cheerfully 'how has the world used you to-day?'

"As usual," was the whining reply. "The neuralgia any better?"

"No, my dear." "And the headache?"

"As bad as ever."

"Dear! dear!" said Mr. Magnum sympath zingly.

Mrs Magnum sighed and leaned her head upon her hand.

She was the invalid of the family. From early morn to dewy eve she sat in her velvet chair; and during nine months of the year, before a fire hot enough to roast an ox. The atmosphere of the parlor was so stifling as to make a stranger feel faint after breathing it for five minutes at a time; but Mr. Magnum and his son and daughter inhaled it contentedly enough. Miss Marjorie, indeed, was constantly troubled with giddiness and determination of blood to the head; but she was only a companion, and no one paid much attention to her ailments, unless they were of an obstinately intrusive kind. So, through the sharp winter the double windows of the parlor were closed and padded, and list was nailed around the doors, and sand bags laid at every crack and crevice, lest a breath of cold air should by any chance steal through; and the invalid, basking before the plled-up grate, dozed and ate, and drank, through the short days and long evenings, till the light and heat of summer forced her to live a little less like a salamander and a little more like an ordinary human being.

Mr. Magnum was a retired ironmonger, who had made money enough out of his pots and kettles to leave them forever in his fifty-fifth year. It had been his father's business before him. and he had started therein at the age of 21 with the snug sum of one thousand pounds as pocket money, to say nothing of a trade connection extending half over the Black County. Yet, in speaking of the earlier part of his life he was accustomed to allude to himself pathetically as a "poor orphan," and to hint mysteriously at terrible hardships undergone by himleaving you to infer that those hardships had been surmounted by him alone, without the slightest aid. The story had a somewhat ludicrous effect when you gazed at the face of the narrator, and heard the puffing sighs with which his obesity compelled him ever to interlard it. Certainly no one looked less like a "poor orphan" than

Tea was at length over. Mrs. Magnum nestled herself into the easiest corner of her easy chair. Julius went out; the fair Kitty began to crochet. and Mr. Magnum read the daily paper laboriously aloud, If any one listened to political speeches and stock lists it was not Miss Marjorie. She sat in a far corner of the room, estensibly engaged in correcting a French exercise of Miss Kitty's, but really thinking of a time and a person far, far

At last Mr. Magnum put down his paper and turned to his wife, with the air of one who has a secret of importance to reveal.

"My dear, who do you think I met at the works to-day?" "How should I know?" replied Mrs. Magnum, somewhat testily. "Some agitated, from her drawing, but no one

"Mr. Cowley," replied Mrs. Magnus, slowly. "Yes, I remember hearing you speak of him. What is he doing here?"

"You would never guess, my love. He has a house." "In this neighborhood?"

"Yes, within a mile of us." "But what house can there be to let so near? I know of none. Do you Kitty, darling?"

'No, mamma." "Yes you do, both of you," replied Mr. Magnum, triumphantly. "Only it is just the last house any one in their senses would think of taking. It is Hollow Ash Hall."

"What!" exclaimed Mrs. Magnum, from among her cushions. "It is true, my love. Cowley has taken it." "Is he mad?" "No-quite sane."

"How long is he to stay?" "I can't say, my dear. I only say him a moment." "Who is with him?" "His wife and two daughters."

"Then they must be mad!" "So I should say," replied Kitty day. ling from her sofa. "I never heard of such a thing, Mr.

Magnum." "Nor any one else, my love. All Banley is wild about it."

"Quite likely." "Cowley says it will do good."

"How?" "He thinks that people will not be afraid of the place after any one has lived in it."

"Stuff and monsense!" "So I say, my dear."

"How long have they been there?" "Nearly a week." "Have they seen anything?" "Well, to tell the truth, I asked him

"What did he say?" "Just what you said a moment ago."

"What?" "Stuff and nonsense!" "Ah, but did he mean it?" "I think so. He was quite short with me because I asked." "What did he want at the works?" inquired Mrs. Magnum, after a moment's pause. "A shovel and a pickaxe, and two or three other tools."

"Then he has seen or heard some-hing; and he is going to pull the hall to pieces in order to find it," replied the lady, with unusual energy. Mr. Magnum shook his head.

"I wonder if the place is haunted?" he observed, in a musing tone. "Good gracious! How can you doubt

"People often tell such ridiculous stories about all places like that. What if all the sights and sounds should by nothing but-rats!"

At this heresy Mrs. Magnum held up her hands in horror.

White Auts in Rhodesia.

An interesting description of the ravages of white ants, or termites, in Rhodesia is furnished by Rev. A. Leboeuf to the Zambesi Mission Record for January. The special interest for the contribution centers in the account of the damage done to property by white ants in Rhodesia, which seems to be even greater than in India. It is no uncommon thing, says the writer, for the colonist on returning from his day's labor to find the coat he left hanging on a nail of his cottage wall and the books on the table absolutely destroyed by these tiny ma. auders. Nor is this all. "On awakening next morning," writes Mr. Leboeuf, "you are astonished to see in the dim light a cone-shaped object rising from the brick floor a short distance from your bed, with two holes on the top like the crater of a minature volcano, Oncloser examination you discover that the holes have just the size and shape of the inside of your boot, which you incautiously left on the brick floor the night before. They have given form and proportion to an ant heap, and nothing is left of them except the nails, eyelets and, may be, part of the heels." And as the same dismal story -with variations-has to be told about every other article of apparel. and all perishable objects, it must be admitted that there are drawbacks to the lot of a settler in Rhodesia.-Na-

Eashions in Wearing Horns. If the question were asked, why da the rhinoceri grow their horns upon the nose, instead of on the head, like other animals? the answer would probably be that they require them for root digging and such like purposes as well as for war, and the nasal position readers them more generally useful than if they were fixed on the top of this skull. At present the rhinoceros is the only quadruped which has a horn of this kind, but a study of fossil mam. mals shows that he is the sole survivor of avast number of creature! whose natural weapons were built on the same general plan. In fact, in the days of the rhinoceros' early ferefath. ers horns of this kind were probably much more common than those such as we see on the heads of oxen, an telopes and sheep. In the course of ages the fashion in wearing horns has undergone a radical change, but the rhinoceros who is essentially a conservative beast, has stuck to the older, method.-Pearson's Magazine.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS' SUFFERING.

More Evidence of Interest to the Millions of Catarrh Sufferers in the United States.

HON. J. D. BOTKIN, CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE FROM KANSAS.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, Congressman Botkin, of Winfield, Kan., whose fame is a national one, says of Peruna:

My Dear Doctor:—"It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Peruna is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections."-J. D. Botkin, Congressman-at-Large.

ONGRESSMAN BOTKIN is one of Peruna will cure this. known men in the State of Kan-Whatever he may say on any subject will be accepted by the people as the truth. So famous a remedy as Peruna could not have well escaped the attention of so famous a man. He not only has heard of the remedy, but he has used it and was relieved of an affiction of twenty-five years' standing. Penna is the one internal remedy that cures chronic catarrh. It cures catarrh where : located. This is a fact that the people are rapidly finding out, but here are still a large multitude who ted to know it.

Mr. Frank Richter, of Winona, Man, says in a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company:

"As a remedy for catarrh I take pleasure in recommending Peruna for catarrh of the stomach. I know what it is to be afflicted with this awful disease and consider it my duty to say a word in behalf of the remedy which gave me such relief. Peruna cured me, and I know it will cure any one else who suffers from this disease. It gives me great pleasure to testify to the curative effects of this medicine. Peruna is a well tested and frequently used remedy, and for catarrh of the stomach it is unsurpassed.

"My catarrh was principally located in my head and stomach. I tried many eral doctors but they were unable to cure me. I read of Peruna in the papers and five bottles cured me."-Frank Richter.

TRANSVAAL WAR ITEMS.

The following was received from Lord Kitchener, dated at Pretoria, March 25: Babington's force, including Shekelton's column attacked Delarey 1,500 strong, southwest of Ventersdorp, and, having defeated him, followed him up rapidly with the result that the Boer rear guard was driven in and their convoy, including the guns, cap-tured at Vaalbank. Our troops dis-played great gallantry and dash. They captured two 15 pounder guns, one pompom, six maxims, 320 rounds of big ammunition, 15,000 rounds of small ammunition, 160 rifles, 53 wagons and 24 carts, beside taking 140 prisoners. Our losses were slight. Many Boers were killed or wounded.

A dispatch from Lord Kitchener to the war office, dated Pretoria, March 27, says: "Our casualties in Gen. Babington's action were two killed and seven wounded. The Boers left 22 dead and 30 wounded. As their pursuit was rapid many more Boer casualties are likely. The operations of March 23 drove the enemy from their positions at Kaffirs Kraal."

CUBA AND PHILIPPINE NEWS.

Interest in the capture and fate of Aguinaldo is well nigh overshadowed in Manila by sensational developments present and prospective, of frauds in the commissary department. How widely these extend has not yet been ascertained, but enough is already known to justify the belief that they are far-reaching. Capt. F. J. Barrows of the 30th volunteer infantry, quartermaster of the department of southern Luzon, together with seven commissary sergeants, several civilian clerks, a prominent government contractor, the assistant manager of the Hotel Oriente, the proprietors of three of the largest bakeries in Manila, a number of storekeepers and other persons have been arrested. The investigation has scarcely begun, but thousands of sacks of flour, a quantity of bacon and wagon loads of other goods. all bearing government marks, have been found in possession of unauthorized persons. It is alleged that the contractor in question, who has been doing a business approximating $100,-000 per month, has spent huge sums in entertaining officers.

The navy department on Mar. 31 received a cablegram from Admiral Remey, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic station, giving a brief account of a fire in the sail room of the gunboat Petrel and of the death of the commanding officer, Lieut.-Com. Jesse M. Roper as a result of an heroic effort to rescue the men below. The dispatch also shows that 22 other officers and men were prostrated, but all are recovering. Since the capture of Aguinaldo two large surrenders and many smaller ones have occurred. The two important surrenders was that of Gen. Geronimo, the insurgent leader in the province of Morong-Luzon, with 6 officers, 46 men and 50 rifles; Sumulao, and 80 shotguns. Brig.-Gen. Lloyd Wheaton will take Miles' place as major-general, he having been promoted to lieutenant-general; to be brigadier - general in the regular army, Col. J. H. Smith, 17th U. S. infantry, brigadier-general vol-

I Followed Mrs. Pinkham's

A woman is sick—some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She holds back something, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and this completely mystifies the doctor.

Is it a wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to cure the disease? Still we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician. This is the reason why hundreds of thousands of women are now in correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. To her they can give every symptom, so that when she is ready to advise them she is in possession of more facts from her correspondence with the patient than the physician can possibly obtain through a personal interview.

Following we publish a letter from a woman showing the result of a correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. All such letters are considered absolutely confidential by Mrs. Pinkham, and are never published in any way or manner without the consent in writing of the patient; but hundreds of women are so grateful for the health which Mrs. Pinkham and her medicine have been able to restore to them that they not only consent to publishing their letters, but write asking that this be done in order that other women who suffer may be benefited by their experience.

Mrs. Ella Rice, Chelsea, Wis., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINEMAM:-For two years I was troubled with falling and inflammation of the womb. I suffered very much with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and was not able to do anything. What I endured no one knows but those who have suffered as I did. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I doct red with the physicians of this town for three months and grew worse instead of better. My husband and friends wished me to write to you, but I had no faith in patent medicines. At last I became so bad that I concluded to ask your advice. I received an answer at once advising me to take your Vegetable Compound, and I did so. Before I had taken two bottles I felt better, and after I had taken five bottles there was no happier woman on earth, for I was well again. I know that your Vegetable Compound cured me, and I wish and advise every woman who suffers as I did to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
