TWO WOMEN KNIGHTED.

Earned the Honor by Gallantry During Siege of Legation in China.

In the list of honors proposed by the French foreign office and just signed by the president of the republic are the names of two ladies, Mme. Lieutier and Mme. von Rosthorn. The two new feminine knights of the Legion of Honor have both been decorated for gallant conduct in China. The former is the lady superintendent of the French hospital at them when you call at our store. Peitang, the latter the wife of the charge d'affaires of Austro-Hungary at Peking, who has been made an officer of the Legion of Honor. M. and Mme. von Rosthorn, after the delegation, sought refuge in the French residence, where both husband and Good gilt pattern designs from 8 to 30c wife helped in the defense of the besieged building with untiring energy. Lieut. Darcy describes a fierce struggle which took place on June 28 and in which M. and Mme. von Rosthorn displayed great bravery, the lady being badly wounded about the face and hands while assisting her husband in setting fire to a Chinese barricade by throwing handfuls of ignited straw saturated with petroleum on the structure. Mme. von Rosthorn is the second woman of foreign nationality upon whom the French government has bestowed the cross of the Legion of Honor, says the London Telegraph. The first was a Belgian, Marie Jeanne Shellinck, who fought in the wars of the first revolution, under Dumouriez, and of 17 pounds Granulated Sugar (best) $1 00 the empire under Napoleon, taking part in the battles of Jemmapes, Arcole, Austerlitz and Jena. In 1809, when she left the army, at 52 years of age with the rank of sublicutenant, she had served 17 years, fought in 12 campaigns and had been wounded eight times. On her retirement Napoleon gave her the cross of the Legion of Honor, which he himself pinned on to her soldier's coat telling the officers to salute her as he did so, because she was one of the "glories of the empire."

A GIANT INDUSTRY.

The Steel Industry as It Has Been Developed in America in Recent Years.

According to Prof. R. H. Thurston, who writes of "The Steel Industry of America," in Century, Sir Henry Bessemer's invention has added more to the world's wealth than any other save the steam engine. The following figures give an idea of the extent of the production of steel throughout the

"The world's product of Bessemer steel in 1892 would have made a col onnade of pillars 20 feet in diameter and 100 high, 1,672 in number, extending over three miles, 836 on each hand, or a single row over six miles long. Every working day in that year there was produced the equivalent of between five and six such columns, and a day's work resulted in the output of nearly as much as was the total annual product of the great city of Sheffield at the time of Bessemer's avention. The annual production of Bessemer steel was, in another comparison, shown to be the equivalent of a column 100 feet in diameter, the size of a moderately large gas holder, and 6,684 feet inches high-a mile and a third. This would be 161/2 times as high as the cross on the dome of St. Paul's in London, One-twelfth of its altitude would measure the production of a single month and would rise to above the height of the Washington monument. A single hour would yield a pillar of steel nine feet in diameter and about 140 feet high, the altitude of a tall church steeple. The work of a year would construct a steel wall five feet in thickness, 20 feet high and 100 miles long which would be enough to inclose an area of about 800 square miles, 31/4 miles in diameter, sufficient to inclose London and its suburbs in a circle radiating over 30 miles from St. Paul's or the bank. The foundation of the wall itself would occupy 60 acres.

"The United States enters the new century with just about this total production of steel."

Boston, like New York, suffers from an inordinate waste of water, and the waste is increasing in deplorable disproportion to the increase in the population. During 1900 water to the amount of 11514 gallons was used daily for each inhabitant, as compared with 111 gallons in 1899 and 103 in 1898. A reasonable allowance for each inhabitant is eighty gallons daily.

In a circus performing in Paris there is a troupe of dwarfs. Two of themthe leading lady, height two feet, and the strong man, height three feetwere the other evening discovered at the railway station on the point of leaving for Vienna They were taken charge of, and brought back to the circus just in time to allow them to appear in the ring for their ordinary turn. But the ringmaster, another member of the troupe-height 2 feet 6 inches was already the lover of the leading lady, and the news of the attempted elopement gave him such a shock that he had a fit, and now lies in a precarious condition.

A woman was recently arrested for begging in the streets of New York. She was well known to the police, and when her case was called some curious information about her was brought out. She always had a thin, fretful baby in her arms, and the baby constantly cried. That was her capital, and to keep it unimpaired and productive, she made a practice of pinching the child whenever it seemed inclined to settle into quiet. The ruse was so successful that the beggar had a comfortable bank account and a wellfurnished home. All of which bears out the wisdom of a little investigation before bestowing charity, even when the case appeals strongly to the sym-

The billion-dollar "steel combination" will have one interesting result, at least, in that it will serve to show whether we have yet developed a billion-dollar man. Americans who are equal to every demand of a milliondollar business are numerous, and the reader will recall masters of trade and finance who successfully manage enterprises representing many millions; but the billion-dollar man-if the steel magnates can find him-will be one of the most interesting figures of the $100,000 Fire at Detroit. The Detroit plant of the American Radiator Co., located in the northeastern part of Detroit, was visited by a disastrous fire on the night of the 5th. F. W. Hodges, manager of the plant, says it is difficult at this writing to give any satisfactory estimate of the loss, but he placed the damage at somewhere near $100,000, and he thought the loss was fully covered by insurance. The fire started in the machine shop and spread to the warerooms, pattern shop, carpenter shop and tool room, which were all in the same building. This building, with the machinery and stock it contained, was a total wreck, but the foundry. which was separated from it only by a narrow alley at the east end and the power house at the west end, were saved. The plant covers about seven acres of ground and the building that was destroyed extended east and west along the south line of the property. It was a one-story brick structure, Republicans Win in the State. Voters throughout the state were apathetic on the 1st and their indifference resulted in a light vote being polled. Jurtice Robert M. Montgomery is re-elected to the supreme court bench by a plurality of more than 67,-000. The Republican candidates for regents of the University of Michigan, Frank W. Fletcher, of Alpena, and Henry W. Carey, of Manistee, will not run far behind the head of the ticket. From meager reports received it is more than probable that the legislative salary and the Bay county court amendments to the constitution were defeated. For the state ticket Wayne county went overwhelmingly Republican. Montgomery, for supreme court centage of farms operated by tenant; justice, and Fletcher and Carey for reshowed a considerable increase by the gents of the university, carried every

COUNT TOLSTOI IS BANISHED. Escorted to the Frontier by Gendarmee

The Attempted Assassination of Privy Councillor the Cause-What the War in the Philippines Cost the U. S.

Tolstoi Has Been Banished. It was rumored several days ago. but generally disbelieved, that Count Leo Tolstol had been banished from Russia because of the attempted assassination of Privy Councillor . Pobledonostzeff, chief procurator of the Hoiy Synod, who was shot at early in the morning of March 22 while sitting in his study, the attempt being attributed to a desire for revenge growing out of the excommunication of Count Tolstoi. Owing to the indefiniteness of the rumor it was disregarded at St. Petersburg. A private letter from a trustworthy source in Vilna, capital of the government of that name, says Count Tolstoi was reported to have passed through Vilna, March 26, being escorted to the frontier by two gendarmes. The war department received information from Gen. McArthur on the 2nd tl at Aguinaldo has taken the oath of allegiance to the U. S. under the terms of amnesty offered by Gen. MacArthur by direction of the president. The dispatch conveying this information contained much more than was given to the public. The portion withheld related to the future disposition of Aguinaldo, and made suggestions as to what the late chief of the insurrection might accomplish. No official statement could be obtained as to what finally would be done with the prisoner. Gen. MacArthur has hopes that a great deal may be accomplished through Aguinaldo.

The U.S. attorney-general is about to commence suit against the state of Michigan for the amount of tolls collected by the state officials on the Sault canal for the period between the time when the canal was accepted by the general government and the time when control actually passed to the U. S. The amount claimed is about $90,000 and suit would have begun before but for the plea of Attorney-General Oren for time to make his reply to the demand. That reply has not been made, assessed in the district. A hearing and the suit is likely to be commenced as soon as the papers can be prepared.

Prime Minister Balfour.

Lord Salisbury's improvement is marked. Contradictions of the report of his failing health and impending retirement are emphasized, but those closest in touch with public affairs are not misled. The prime minister's intense eagerness to be relieved from official cares is known, and his retirement from public life is much nearer than is generally believed. on this glorious Easter morning, mid the music and the flowers, I inid the music and the flowers, I give you Christian salutation. This morning, Russian meeting Russian on the streets of St. Petersburg hails him with the salutation, "Christ is risen!" and is answered by his friend in saluation, "He is risen indeed!". In some arts of England and Ireland to this sery day there is the superstition that as Easter morning the sun dances in he heavens. And well may we forgive the fact that the natural world seems to sympathize with the spiritual.

Flowers! Flowers! Braid them into the bride's hair. Flowers! Flowers! Strew them over the graves of the dead, sweet prophecy of the resurrection, Flowers! Flowers! Twist them into a garland for my Lord Jesus on Easter morning, and "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost ; as it was in the beginseed that began to grow, and from crushed in the door of the world's sepulchre and the stark and the dead must come forth.

The Word's Great Conquerors. If I should come to you and ask you for the names of the great conquerors of the world you would say Alexander, Caesar, Philip. Napoleon I. Ah, you have forgotten to mention the name of a greater conqueror than all these -a cruel, a ghastly conqueror. He rode on a black horse across Waterloo and Chalons and Atlanta, the bloody hoofs crushing the hearts of nations. It is the conqueror Death. He carries a black flag and he takes no prisoners. a new morning on the bosom of ever-He digs a trench across the hemistheres and fills it with the carcasses mations. Fifty times would the wid have been depopulated had not kept making new generations. My times the world would have Fung lifeless through the air—no man on the mountain, no man on the sea. an abandoned ship plowing through immensity. Again and again has he done this work with all generations. He is a monarch as well as a conqueror; his palace a sepulcher; his fountains the falling tears of a world. Blessed be God! In the light of this Easter morning I see the prophecy that his scepter shall be broken, and his palace shall be demolished. The hour is coming when all who are in their graves shall come forth. Christ risen, we shall rise. Jesus, "the first fruits of them that slept."

Now, around this doctrine of the resurrection there are a great many mysteries. You come to me and say, If the bodies of the dead are to be raised, how is this and how is that? And you ask me a thousand questions I am incompetent to answer. But there are a great many things you believe that you are not able to explain. You would be a very foolish man to say. I don't believe anything I can't understand." Why, putting down one kind of flower seed, comes there up this flower of this color? Why, putung down another flower seed, comes there up a flower of this color? One flower white, another flower yellow, another flower crimson. Why the difference when the seeds look to be very much alike-are very much alike? Explain these things. Explain that wart on the finger. Explain the difference why the oak leaf is different from the leaf of the hickory. Tell me how the Lord Almighty can turn the charlot of his omnipotence on a rose leaf. You ask me questions about the resurrection I cannot answer. I will ask you a thousand questions about everyday life you Significance of a Great Sound. You have noticed, I suppose, in reading the story of the resurrection that almost every account of the Bible gives the idea that the characteristic of that I know it will be very penetrating. I do not the mausoleum where silence has to take any recreation or to rest or as it will for most other woes.—New akned a thousand years that voice must penetrate. In the coral cave of the deep that voice must penetrate.

Millions of spirits will come through the gates of sternity, and they will come to the tombs of the earth, and they will cry, "Give us back our hod-

A hun- it into the tomb if at thy bidding I dred thousand spirits coming to Greenwood, for there the bodies are buried, waiting for the reunion of body and Luca

All along the sea route from New York to Liverpool, at every few miles where a steamer went down, departed spirits coming back, hovering over the wave. There is where the City of Boston perished. Found at last. There is where the President perished. Steamer found at last. There is where the Central America went down. Spirits hovering, hundreds of spirits, hovering waiting for the reunion of body and soul. Out on the prairie a spirit alights. There is where a traveler died in the snow. Crash goes Westminster abbey, and the pocts and the orators come forth; wonderful mingling of good and bad. Crash go the pyramids of Egypt, and the monarchs come forth.

The Immortal Body.

"Dut," you say, "if this doctrine of the resurrection is true, as prefigured uch a superstition, which illustrates by this Easter morning, can you tell us something about the resurrected body?" I can. There are mysteries about that, but I shall tell you three or four things in regard to the resur- | him on the same bed his boy. Oh, my rected body that are beyond guessing friends, what a glorious thing it will to your resurrected body, it will be a the same plot in the graveyard, coming glorious body. The body we have now up in the same morning light—the is a mere skeleton of what it would father and son alive forever, all the have been if sin had not marred and loved ones alive forever, never more defaced it. Take the most exquisite statue that was ever made by an artist more to die. and chip it here and chip it there with a chisel and batter and bruise it here again from the dead our Lord Jesus, so clothed the grass of the field which and there and then stand it out in the to-day is and to-morrow is cast into storms of a hundred years, and the beauty would be gone. Well, the human body has been chipped and battered and bruised and damaged with the storms of thousands of years-the physical defects of other generations coming down from generation to generation, we inheriting the infelicities of past generations. But in the morning of the resurrection the body will among them, we after awhile to join be adorned and beautified according to the original model. And there is no ning, is now and ever shall be." The such difference between a gymnast and women came to the Saviour's tomb, an emaclated wretch in a lazaretto as and they dropped spices all around there will be a difference between our the tomb, and those spices were the bodies as they are now and our resurrected forms. There you will see the them came all the flowers of this East- perfect eye after the waters of death er morn. The two angels robed in have washed out the stains of tears white took hold of the stone at the and study. There you will see the per-Saviour's tomb, and they hurled it feet hand after the knots of toll have with such force down the hill that it been untied from the knuckles. There you will see the form erect and elastic after the burdens have gone off the shoulder-the very life of God in the body. In this world the most impressive thing, the most expressive thing, is the human face, but that face is veiled with the griefs of a thousand years. But in the resurrection morn that veil will be taken away from the face, and the noonday sun is dull and dim and stupid compared with the outflaming glories of the countenances of the saved. When those faces of the righteous, those resurrected faces, turn toward the gate, or look up toward the throne, it will be like the dawning of > lasting day. O glorious, resurrected But I remark, also, in regard to that body which you are to get in the resurrection, it will be an important body. These bodies are wasting away. Somebody has said that as soon as we begin to live we begin to die. Unless we keep putting the fuel into the furnace the furnace dies out. The blood vessels are cannis taking the breadstuffs to all parts of the system. We must be reconstructed hour by hour, day by day. Sickness and death are at all times trying to get their pry under the tenement or to push us off the embankment of the grave. But, blessed be God, in the resurrection we will get a body immortal. No malaria in the air, no cough, no neuralgic twinge, no rheumatic pang, no fluttering of the heart, no shortness of breath, no ambulance, no dispensary, no hospital, no invalid's chair, no spectacles to improve the dim vision, but health, immortal health! O ye who have aches and pains indescribable this morning, ye who are never well, ye who are lacerated with physical distress, let me tell you of the resurrected body, free from all disease. Immortal! Immortal!

CURIOUS IDEAS OF CHINESE.

Bellef That Men Should Not Rob Animals of Milk.

A curious system of philosophy regarding eating is evolved by some persons, but the queerest "anti-pronunciamento in some time is that published in the Loa Chow Herald regarding the use by man of animal's milk. The erudite Chinese who edit this journal of the twentieth century publish a proclamation which says: "Man should not rob animals of their own proper food; and, of all animals, the cow is the most valuable to man. The sellers of milk blacken their souls for gain; but those who drink milk do so in the foolish belief that it is good for them. Before taking any medicine, we should carefully investigate its properties, and who does so with milk? Milk is the natural food for babes and of young animals; but when adults drink it, do they not thereby endanger the life of the sackling calf, and arouse bitter resentment in the souls of the calf and its mother? Beasts have not the power of speech, and so cannot tell men that by drinking cow's milk they will become like quadrupeds. If men must have a strengthening draught, there are a thousand better things than milk, so why slect that? Besides, the term of life is foreordained and it cannot, be prolonged by drinking milk. Eyeryone who reads this warning is especially enjoined to abstain from milk in the future. Children whose parents will not allow them to drink milk will not be stunted in growth, but they will have their lives prolonged and be immune in epidemics. So it is proclaimed in the Hall of Good Counsel.'

Fun and Parties of Sing Sing. Of all griefs, probably those are the hardest to bear which, while real and serious to the people who suffer them, are of a kind to excite unsympathetic smiles in everybody else. So it is no wonder that the residents of Sing Sing are eager to change the picturesque name of their village. They know perfectly well that to the outside world Sing Sing means a big prison, and they have wearied of the jests to which the identification of the title and the institution exposes them. So they want to say that they live in Ossining instead of in Sing Sing, and the desire is natural enough. But, unfortunately, it is also funny and possibly it would be wiser to endure their present ill than to bring their sensitiveness to general attention by taking action for relief, And how long would it be, moreover, before the prison association fastened can win recognition for itself. There merged. is no other cure for its wees, but a

CHINA WAR NEWS.

Sr Robt. Hart's scheme to enable China to raise sufficient money to pay off the allies' indemnity claims, seems to be meeting with favor among the foreign ministers. This plan provides for the banking of the salt and like taxes over to the maritime customs administration and the levying of an annual house tax equal to one-half month's rent, which it is calculated will provide 20,000,000 taels yearly, sufficient to pay 5 per cent interest on 250,000,000 taels, and clear the whole of the principal in less than 40 years.

The correspondent of the Associated Press learns on the highest authority that Prince Tuan's fate has been finally decided. His death sentence will be commuted to banishment to Turkestan. The list of guilty Chinese provincial authorities includes only four to be beheaded and several degradations. The Chinese commissioners are surprised that the guilty officials should escape with such light punishments.

Although no official notification has reached the President of the departure of Prince Li Hung Chang from Pekin for Shanghai, the officials are inclined to believe that he has done so, and that Li Hung Chang is really leaving Pekin for good and because the emperor is displeased with his conduct of the negotiations. Li favored the signing of the Manchurian treaty which China has turned down.

The Chinese government has formally notified Russia that China, owing to the attitude of the powers, is not able to sign the Manchurian convention.

TRANSVAAL WAR ITEMS.

A rather unexpected result has foiowed Mr. Chamberlain's recent speech n support of the scheme for sending women out to Sou h Africa at the conclusion of the war. An enormous number of letters has been received from women eager to emigrate and reluctant to wait till hostilities are ended. One woman who wrote direct to Lord Salisbury said she was prepared to go out at once with her mother and sisters, but she indicated no paricular sphere of usefulness. Another wrote to the colonial office in behalf of herself and a few other "first-class ady burbers." Naturally the colonial office authorities are doing their utmost to discourage applications from women other than those who are selfdependent, and girls of the servant type are urgently advised not to go out at all. It is very doubtful whether there will be any openings for them, for the purpose of granting free pas- suffering as I was know how they may sages to the cape.

A WOMAN'S HEART.

Mrs. Samuel G. Dyer Tells a Harrowing Tale of Suffering.

M'Carron, Mich., April 8 .- (Special.) -Mrs. Samuel G. Dyer of this place has given the following interesting letter for publication:

"For years I suffered intense pain in the region of the heart. I doctored with the best physicians. Some of t. 3m would relieve me for a short time, but the pain always returned. My heart was so bad that I would have to sit up in bed for hours, to get relief. I would lie awake almost all night. 1 am 62 years of age, and no one can understand how much I suffered with this Heart Trouble.

"About a year ago I heard of bodd's Kidney Pills, and commenced to use them. From the first my condition improved. The pain in my heart gradually grew less, and my general health much better, and now I can say positively that I am entirely cured. I can sleep all night, and enjoy almost perfect health. I thank God for the cure that has come to me through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I have thought long over the matter of giving this letter for publication, and am doing so now without any solicitation whatever, and simply because I feel it to be my duty to express the profound gratitude I feel for my and the public funds cannot be used recovery, and to let others who may be find a cure. LONGEST BALLOON VOYAGE.

French Count Who Sailed in the Air from Paris to Kiew, a Distance of 1,304 Miles.

The science of aeronautics is attracting more attention at the present time than ever before in its history. Several new and ingenious air-ships have been tested before the public in the past few months, including the remarkable machine of Count Zeppelin, and there is reason for the belief that the world is to be favored at an early date with a successful solution of the problem of aerial navigation. An event significant of the large possibilities in that direction was the recent balloon voyage of Count Henry de la Yaul, the French aeronaut, from Paris, France, to Kiew, Russia, a distance of 1,304 miles. This is the longest balloon voyage ever made. The air-ship in which this remarkable flight was made is called the Centaure, and was built according to plans invented by the count himself. The count was accompanied on the journey by one friend only, Count Castiffon de Saint Victor. The sions and equipped with all needful apparatus for aerial observations. Not a single unpleasant incident marred the trip, which goes on record as the most notable voyage through the air ever accomplished.

A Lansing dispatch says that Commis sloner Osborn has granted a petition for a grade crossing for the Detroit, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor & Jackson electric road with a spur track of the Michigan Central at a gravel pit near Leonl, the crossing to be protected with interlockers and signals.

It is reported that rural free delivery has opened up a new field for the traveling swindlers. They inspect the mail boxes "by government authority" at so much per, which the farmers pay-if they don't catch on and deputize the family watch dog to conclude the interview.-Northville Record. .

Sixty Italian laborers have arrived in Grass Lake, and work has commenced on the Hawkes-Angus electric road, the first that has been done within the village limits. An additional force will added in a few days, and the work will be pushed rapidly to completion. These workmen have erected tents and are boarding themselves.

The contrat has been let by the Detroit & Chicago Traction Co., for the machinery for the six sub-stations between Ann Arbor and Battle Creek to be erected at Dexter, Chelsea, Grass Lake, Parma, Albion and Marshall, also for motors for all of the fifteen urban cars now being built. The deliveries are to be made all the way from the first of May to the first of

CHAPTER VIL-(Continued.) Rats, Mr. Magnum! Do you pretend to be wiser than the whole country side?"

"By no means, my love." Well, every one says the place is full of ghosts!" "Yes, my dear."

What every one says must be

Mr. Magnum did not dare to say

"And so the place is haunted," replied his better half, triumphantly. "Ugh! I would not live in that old house for the whole world," said Kitty, shrugging her shouders.

"Does Mr. Cowley like it?" asked Mrs. Magnum.

"No-I think not."

"Then why does she stay?" Mr. Magnum coughed and looked embarrassed.

"My dear, Mr. Cowley is a very peculiar man-very. I am afraid he generally does what he likes, without conculting-his wife."

"And she lets him?" exclaimed Mrs. Magnum, shutting her lips, viciously. "I am afraid she does."

"Well, if women will be fools, they must. But I only wish I was Mrs. Cowley! Do you feel tired, Miss Marjorie? You don't look quite well."

"I am rather tired," replied the governess, very quietly.

"Then pray don't sit up longer than you like.'

away her work, said good-night, and to see me kneel at your feet and ask dowed her with anything but loving, rise till you say you have entirely forlooks.

"Nasty, proud thing! I hate her!" said Kitty, in a low tone.

"And so do I!" replied her mother, with emphasis. "But she will be going next month, so we need not trouble ourselves about her."

CHAPTER VIII.

Miss Marjorie did not, however, go how did you know I was here?" to her own room. She took a cloak from its peg in the hall, threw it I would not come back till I could lay over her head, opened the front door a fortune at your feet, as some amends cared little for Mrs. Magnum, or anything she could say.

The night was dark and starless, the air chill and raw. But after that heated room it was a positive luxury to feel the fresh, damp wind coming from the hills . After those sharp, unnerving voices it was soothing to listen to the leafless trees breathing and whispering of the coming of the rain. Storm and cold and darkness-they you have both; and if you don't feel were all preferable to that snug parlor and its disagreeable inmates; and are a very ungrateful young woman. so Miss Marjorie paced up and down, up and down, and thought.

Thought of another time which had been far happier than this! A time when she was also a companion, but part of the story. I came home to Ennot Miss Magnum's companion! A time when there was one voice that aiways softened when it spoke her name; when there were eyes that brightened at her coming-lips that have you been?" welcomed her as only privileged lips might do! She thought of long, pleas- two years after I lost you; and then ant evenings, spent with books and one of the pupils, daughter of this work and music, around a cottage fire. Of quiet walks and talks by summer moonlight. Alas! where had those blissful moments fled? Why had the dearest, the sweetest of ties failed her? Why, from that wealth of love and tenderness had she been cast out into the cold world alone?

She had been foully slandered; she had been cruelly distrusted; she had been heartlessly deserted! Over and over again she said this to herself. Yet on that night, as she walked up and down the gravel path, the sense of injury and of wrong seemed to die away and in their place came a wild yearning for the olden time-but for on moment of the happiness of yore!

"Oh, that it were possible In this dull life of pain, To find the arm of my true love Around me once again!" she murmured, as she clasped her hands above her aching heart. Where was he? What was he doing now? Beautiful and bright, he had risen like a star above her lonely path; had won her heart, and worn it for a time; had bound her to him by the most sacred ties; then left her for years, perhaps forever! Where was he-where was he? And she stretched out her arms to the sullen night sky in her wain and passionate appeal to him who would come no more.

The sky grew darker. A drop of rain touched her cheek. She turned to go in, yet, with a strange, uneasy feeling, she lingered a moment beside the gate looking out upon the dark road that Ted into the village. Then her eyes wandered away beyond Banley, and out towards the hill where the haunted house stood. How strange the unseen and unacknowledged link that bound her to the people there! What would they say when she went to them and told her tale? Would they think her mad or would they take and heard half the sounds villagers recompassion upon her for the sorrow late he must be a lunatic by this time. she had undergone, and admit her to their family circle as a welcome and to pay my visit, I thought I would go honored guest? Was it likely? Had to-night, and see if there was any they ever heard her name? Yet how truth in these marvelous tales. And habits, from the stern banker down to his favorite daughter. Rose! "Cousin Rose! Cousin Rose!" She said it aloud twice, and then started and flushed guiltily, lest any one should have heard her.

Some one had heard! Not Mr. Magnum-not even Kitty, but a tall, handsome young man, who had been walking along the public road, with his hands in his pockets and his head bent down. He had passed the garden gate without even looking that way, but the low voice made him start and turn round. In an instant he had leaped the iron fence, and stood by Miss Marporie's side.

"Have I found you at last?" he exclaimed. "I have looked for you all over England, and in vair. Now, Mariorie-" But Miss Marjorie looked in his face, gave a low cry, and fainted. He caught her in his arms and kissed her passionately. "Marjorie, my love, my darling, look up and speak to me!" Slowly she revived. Slowly she came to the knowledge that life was no longer a blank-that he had returned, and that he loved her still.

"Oh," she sighed, "is this a dream?" "No dream, but truth, my darling." "Are you sure? I have dreamed so many times." "But you are awake now, Awake, to hear me say that I wronged youthat I was a jealous, suspicious fool to Miss Marjorie took the hint, put listen to a word against you; awake left the room. Two pairs of eyes fol- your pardon! Look, Marjorie! I won't given me!"

> "My love-my love!" answered Miss Marjorie, bending over him with a radiant smile. And then the long misery of the past was wiped away and forgotten.

"But where have you been?" she asked, when the first surprise was over. "Where have you been, and

> "As if I cared for that!" she said, kissing him.

"No. I know you are not mercenary; but still, money is one of the best net." things you can have, my child. Money and love-love and money; any one who can get those two things may think himself remarkably well off in this vale of tears, Miss Marjorie! And obliged to me for getting them, you I must say."

"Oh, I do, I do, but how in the world did you know I was here?" "I did not. This is the strangest gland lonely and sad enough. For three years in Australia I have been trying to find you out, through agents and advertisements, in vain. Where

"In a week-in a day!" was the impetuous reply. "Do you suppose I am going to have you slaving here now I your traps to-night and be ready to go with me when I call for you to-morrow, which will be as soon after breakfast as I can get over from Banley. Do you hear?"

"Yes, but I must give some notice." "Not a bit of it. Are they kind to

"That it is."

"Do you like them?" "Not at all."

"You don't mean to say that they have Ill-used you?" "Oh. no."

"But, in fact, you hate them?" "Exactly."

"Poor darling! And you have had a year of this drudgery?" "Never mind; it is all over now."

"But finish your story. Tell me how you happened to find me here." "Do you know that my uncle Cowley is here?" "Shut up with all his family in a house full of ghosts?"

"I have heard of it." "I went straight to his house in Mecklenburg square, only to find it empty. The housekeeper gave me the present address, and, on reaching Banley. "You will like her dearly. She is a good little thing, and will make a sister of you the moment I tell her your story. Will you go there with me tomorrow?"

"Will they welcome me?"

"Of course they will, you gooss! Oh, Marjorie! My own Marjorie! they will love you for my sake, even as I love you for your own, you wicked, fascinating, cruel little monster!"

"He! he! he! That's prime!" exclaimed a boyish voice in the shrubbery; and Marjorie started from her lover's arms.

"Julius, is that you?" she cried.

"I should rather think it was!" the promising youth replied, standing out upon the gravel path. "I've been watching you for ten minutes at the least, and haven't you been going on kissing and hugging! Oh, my! won't mother go into a tantrum when she hears of it! I shan't have to learn any more Latin lessons! You'll have to pack. Miss Marjorie, as sure as eggs is eggs! Heigho, jeminy, and a rig-

His exulting dance was speedily brought to an end. Mr. Cowley, who had kept silent so far from sheer astonishment, now grasped him firmly

"You young scoundrel!" he exclaimed, "how dare you speak in that man-

"And she is my wife! And if you dare to say a word about her-to look at her insolently-to insult her in the smallest way-I'll give you such a flogging that you will never want to utter a lady's name as long as you live! Do you hear, sir?" and he shook him in the air as a terrier shakes a

"Oh, my! let me go! I'll call my father!" said the frightened boy.

"Hold your tongue, you whelp! Where is the key to the garden gate?" "In the hall, sir."

"Go and get it-and don't let anyone see you! Be quick!"

Julius, thoroughly subdued, ran up the steps, and in a moment reappeared with the key.

"What are you going to do, Charles?" softly, and went out. Mrs. Magnum for all I have made you suffer; and I inquired Miss Marjorie, wonderingly, would have been shocked out of all her can do it now. Thanks to a spade and as he opened the gate and held out

"I am going to take you away with "Impossible."

"I don't know what that word

"Never mind, your cloak will protect you, and we have not far to go. Into that house you shall never step again, after the specimen of your treatment I have just seen."

He drew her out upon the footpath, and turned to the boy, who stood with open mouth at the gate.

"Lock it, and go in," he said.

"But what am I to say to mother?" "Tell her that Miss Marjorie has gone away with her husabnd," was the laughing reply. "Come, my love, draw your cloak well round you. I never ran away with a lady before; but, upon my word, this eloping with one's wife is a very pleasant business!"

And so, while Julius ran in with his wonderful news, and sent Mrs. Magnum into a fit of screaming hysterics. the strangely re-united pair walked on arm in arm right through the darkness towards the haunted house. (To be continued.)

NO TIME FOR CHARITY.

Russell Sage Says Fashionab'e

Women Are Too Busy. Mrs. Russell Sage, wife of the New York capitalist, says that fashionable women have no time to devote to charitable work, and, provided they give of their means to worthy objects, they should be excused from the active duam home again? You will pick up ties of distributing benefactions. She resents the assertion, however, that society women are lacking in sympathy for the distress of others and says that as a rule they are not extravagant. She asserts that there are not twenty familles in New York who spend more than $200,000 a year and not fifty familles in the United States whose yearly expenditure equals that amount. There are a few who may exceed that amount.

"Do you think, Mrs. Sage, that a New York society woman has much time for anything but her social duties?" was asked, "Is it your opinion that she can give part of her time to charity?"

"I think her social duties take up every minute of her time. She would be the last woman I would approach for assistance in active charitable work. I have lived in New York thirty-eight years and in that time I have never received assistance from the source you mention. I do not mean to say that they do not give generously to many worthy causes. They simply have not the time to do charitable work and keep up their social obliga-

She spoke most beautifully of Helen Gould and mentioned their joint interest in several charitable institutions. She also spoke of a prominent leader of society who is known to all New Yorkers who inherited an income of $200,000. Out of that she kept up her position as one of the first leaders of society and established a very worthy mission school.

A Saintly Sinner.

BY ELIZABETH M. GILMER. Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) When handsome Jack Orton anmanced his engagement to Marian larding to his sister, she being a disrest woman, only lifted an eyebrow, and asked him if he was quite sure his choice was a wise one. The girl sionged to a very different world from he gay, fashionable, pleasure-seekng one in which they were such consicuous figures. Still, Jack was old hough to know his own tastes and and when all as said, a man ries for himself and not his siss. So she forbore to say any of the ust things a man's people usually do then he marries out of his set, and serely laid a very tender hand upon is shoulder as she asked over again he was sure it was for the best. "She is an angel," he had cried enhusiastically, and his sister had made mock gesture of despair. "My poor boy," she exclaimed, "is he so bad as all that! Don't. Only tancy having to live in the house with in angel. You could never possibly do it in peace. You are not keyed up to the situation."

But Unon laughed with the fatuous elf complacency of the newly engaged. and went off to his demure little Puritan sweetheart.

In truth the girl's unlikeness to all the other women he knew had been the first thing that attracted him to her. He had met at a big crush at a fashionable house, where she had been present by virtue of being a far away cousin of the hostess, and in her simwild flower suddenly transplanted her visits. midst the overblown roses in a contion is ervatory. Then somebody had asked her to sing, and she had startled even that blase assemblage with a voice o pure, so sweet, and true, and with such a passion of expression in its tones that it had made the simple balled she sung seem like a cry from beart to heart. The woman raised her lorgnette ad gave him an amused stare. Jack Orton, and after all that story about him and the little comic opera prim.

Really men were too absurd After that evening the acquaintance ween the demure little music scher, and the fashionable man of he world, had flown smoothly enough, and soon ripened into love. To Maran, Jack with his gay ways, his eleancies, and extravagancies, was like a eing from a different sphere, and one whose moral standard she was not little doubtful, She had been brought o in a hard, and narrow school, and seemed to her almost pagan for one enjoy things frankly and openly, le to love life and laughter, the elights of a good dinner, and a glass of sparkling wine, and the smile of a oman's fair face, seemed to her nothng less than a sinful pandering to lusts of the Cash, as her stern old the first time in her life Marian underather called it.

It is, however, the province of earthangels to always judge their fellow red many a sermon to Jack on his bridiness and wickedness, which the is hearted, loving, generous fellow movived with outward meekness, and ward mirth. She restly looked very of flutes.

delicious with that little earnest from? on her cace, and it pleased him to think she was considering his soul in-stead of the diamonds he would give her. After all, though, one does not care to be always spoken to from the heights of superior spirituality, and there begun to be jarring notes. He discovered that Marian was provincial-ly prejudiced against things of which she knew nothing, and that in many ways she was intolerant and bigoted. Her own life had been so removed from all temptation she had no sympathy, as wiser people have, with those who have been sore pressed, and have failed.

Finally they quarreled about some question about a woman whom Jack defended, and the girl had given him back his ring, quoting self righteously something about being unequally yoked with an unbeliever.

It takes a saint to be unforgiving. Jack, who loved the girl with all his great soul, would have kissed, and made up, but Marion refused to see him the next day, and after making various fruitless efforts he buried him-

"Yes, a blooming angel!" self and his troubles in the depths of a winter hunting camp. After he left evil days fell on the little household. The old father became ill, and nurses and doctors ate up Marion's little bank account, and her cheek grew wan and thin trying to make one dollar do the work of three. It had always been her custom to go on Sunday afternoons to the hospital to sing to the patients, and it chanced, at this time, there was a little lad there in whom she took a great interest. He was a jockey who had been badly hurt in a hurdle race and who was slowly recovering from his inple white frock, among all the glitter, juries. To him, Marian with her pretform, and spangles, and flash of jewels, and ty face and glorious voice was the one bold display of white, bare shoulders bright spot in the dreary days of contact and arms, she had made him think of valescence, and he literally lived upon

One afternoon just as things were at their worst with her, when she had only ten dollars left and the numberless importunities of the home and sick room were calling for it she went to see him, and he greeted her with shining eyes. "Say miss," he said, "Ben, he's me side partner, he was here yesterday, an' he give me a dead g.raight tip, an' I'll put yer next. Anita's just got a walk over."

"Anita, who's she?" inquired Marian vaguely.

The boy gasped. "Youse uon't know title children. They say she had Anita? By gee, she's a race mare, an' tabulous offers from opera managers say, de talent ain't on to her. "Say, it's goin' to be a hundred to one shot. Gee, don't I wish I was out of dis," and he moved impatiently.

"Hundred to one shot," repeated Marian, "what's that?"

"Shucks," he cried, and then talking very slowly as if explaining things to a child: "Youse puts up one dollar, an' de boonies pays you one hundred ef youse win out."

"A bet," Marian exclaimed, "but doesn't somebody lose?"

"De bookies dis time, sure," replied the boy with conviction, "but deys dead lousy wid boodle, an' it's a charity to relieve 'em. Say, gimme a ten, an' let Ben put it up for you. Dis ain't no graft. It's a lead pipe cinch."

In the end Marian did. On the way home she told herself that it was because the money was to use for others. but in her soul she knew she had been tempted, and had fallen, just like every other sinner, but all her miserable self-righteousness was swept away, and she understood, and pitled, and loved, as she had never done before, all the great sinning, struggling, suffering brotherhood of mankind. As the boy had predicted Anita won, and the next time she went to the hospital he put in her hands a great roll of bills, but for answer she only gathered him in her arms.

"Oh, Tom, Tom," she cried, "I am nothing but a common, wicked gam-

Naw yer sin't," the boy returned digustedly, "yer ain't gut de nerve. Yer ain't nothing but a bloomin'

saint." That night a very humble letter went to Jack's club, and being forwarded brought that gentleman in a few days to Marian's coor. Somehow, in the new light that had come to her, she knew that a fellow sinner would understand and forgive, and that it is only the wrath of the righteous we have to fear, so without one word she fied to Jack's arms and sobbed out her story on his breast-her temptation, her sin, and her yielding. When she was done he looked at her with a very grave smile in his eyes. "Sweetheart," he said, "you were very earthly as an angel, but you are simply heavenly as a sinner," and for

DEERING AT PARIS IN 1900.

The Famous Chirago Harvester Com-pany Received More and Greater Honors than Were Ever Refore Accorded an American Exhibitor in the History of Expositions. America may well feel proud of the interest which her citizens took in the Paris Exposition and the elaborate exhibits which were prepared with consummate skill and displayed in a manner not excelled by any other country. Those of Harvesting Machinery in particular were most complete and interesting. The Deering Harvester Company, of Chicago, America's foremost manufacturer of this line of goods, was accorded the position of honor, having contributed more to the advancement of the art of harvesting than any other manufacturer, fiving or dead, and with a greater array of important inventions to its credit than any other company in the world

Visitors to the Exposition were prompt to accord the Deering exhibits supreme honors, and it only remained for official mandate to ratify the popular verdict, which was done in a manner as substantial as it was well-merithibits secured the highest award in its class

In addition to four high decorations, the Deering Harvester Company received twenty-five awards, or twen-ty-nine in all, as follows: Decoration of Officer of the Legion of Honor, Decoration of Chevaller of the Legion of Honor, Two Decorations of Officer of Merite Agricole, a Special Certificate of all descriptions. One farmer I vis-if Honor, The Grand Prize, Six Gold ited threshed of 175 acres: Medals, Six Silver Medals and Eleven Bronze Medals, including Deering Collaborator Medals.

The Decoration of the Legion of Honor was instituted by Napoleon Bonaparte when First Consul in 1802. and is only conferred in recognition of distinguished military or civil achievements. It is the highest distinction in the gift of the French Republic.

The Decoration of the Merite Agricole is an honor of but slightly less imhose who have contributed greatly to he advancement of agriculture.

An Official Certificate of Honor was accorded the Deering Retrospective Exhibit, which showed the improvements in harvesting machinery during he past century, and excited the highst praise of the French Government officials who had entrusted to the Deering Harvester Company the preptration of this most important exhibit. By special request this exhibit has been presented to the National Museum of Arts and Sciences at Paris. where it has become a permanent feature of that world-famed institution.

The Deering Twine Exhibit and Corn Harvester Exhibit, both of which received the highest awards, have by request of the French Government been presented to the National Agricultural College of France.

There was no field trial, either official or otherwise, in connection with the Paris Exposition, but the most important foreign contest the past season was held under the auspices of the Russian Expert Commission at the Governmental Farm of Tomsk, Siberia, August 14th to 18th. All the leading American and European machines participated and were subjected to the most difficult tests by the Government Agriculturist. The Expert Commission awarded the Deering Harvester Company the Grand Silver Medal of the Minister of Agriculture and Domain, which was the highest award.

The Deering Harvester Works are the largest of their kind in the world, covering eighty-five acres and employing 9,000 people. They are equipped with modern automatic machines, many of which perform the labor of from five to fifteen hands.

This Company is also the largest manufacturer of Binder Twine in the world, having been first to produce single-strand binder twine, such as is in general use today, making over a third of the product of the entire world. The output of its factory for single day would tie a band around the earth at the equator, with several thousand miles to spare. The annual production would fill a freight train twenty miles long. Made into a mat two feet wide, it would reach across the American continent from ocean to

This company exhibited at the Paris Exposition an Automobile Mower. which attracted much attention, and exhibitions were given with one of these machines in the vicinity of Paris throughout the season.

Missourian Pronounces on the Farming Possibilities of Western Canada. Just at present considerable interest is being aroused in the fact that a few ed. Each one of the seven Deering ex- new districts (of limited acreage) are being opened out by the Canadian government in Saskatchewan and Assiniboia (western Canada), and any information concerning this country is eagerly sought. Mr. W. R. Corser, of Higginsville, Lafayette Co., Mo., was a delegate there during last summer, and writing of his impressions he says:

> "I found surprising yields of grain "600 bushels of wheat from fifteen acres, 40 bushels to acre. "600 bushels of barley from ten acres, 60 bushels to acre.

"15,000 bushels of oats from 150 acres, 100 bushels to acre. "The samples were all No. 1.

"I also saw a considerable number of stock. Swine do well and there is no disease amongst them. They are a good source of income to the farmer. The cattle on the range beat anything I ever saw. Fat and ready for beef, portance, which is conferred upon fully matured and ripened on the nutritious grasses of the prairie. I am firmly convinced that' this country offers better facilities for a poor man than any I have ever seen."

Information concerning these lands can be had from any agent of the government whose advertisement appears elsewhere in this paper.

We Support the Most Doctors.

A writer in the Medical Record is authority for the statement that there is in the United States one physician for every 600 people. This is twice as Great Britain, four times as many as hand that we could elect a brindle pup in France, five times as many as in to any office we chose to nominate him Germany and six times as many as for.' in Italy. Because we have five times many does not prove that we have need sumptive cough. of five times as much medical treatment as the Germans, but it is fair enough to assume that there is enthree elections." couragement for the profession in this country or its ranks would not be so well filled. So the questions arise: Are we a sickly people? Are we, generally speaking, less strong and well, in the proportion of one to two, and four, and five, and six than the people of Great Britain, and France, and Germany, and Italy? Or is it, perhaps, that we are more watchful of our condition, either through nervousness that apprehends something wrong, or through wisdom that appreciates the delicacy of the human mechanism? Or, again, is it, as has been suggested, our poor cooking that keeps us in a disturbed condition requiring constant dosing?-New Bedford Standard.

Old-Time Food Laws in London. Medieval London had summary methods of dealing with dishonest purveyors of food and drink. The pillory was the usual fate of the baker who sold a loaf that was not of full weight, and sometimes we read that he was drawn on a hurdle through the streets on his way to the pillory, with a fraudulent loaf suspended round his neck. A taverner who adulterated his wine was condemned to drink his own liquor until he could drink no more, and the remainder was then poured upon the unhappy man's head .- London Express.

Steam and Modern Navies.

A whole fleet in the days of Nelson could be built and fitted out at little more than the cost of a single ironclad; the coal expended on a single cruise would pay for the refitting of his whole battle line, while the immense shells required to make any impression on the modern armor plate cost more than his whole armament. But the modern lineof-battle ship could neither be built, armed nor fought without the use of steam, and its evolution may be said to have commenced with the first application of the steam engine to navigation .- Chicago Chronicle.
