PAVING OUR STREETS.

A Meeting to Be Held Next Wednesday Evening to Consider the Matter.

The talk and rumors respecting the paving of the business portions of Main and Middle streets that have been floating around for the past two or three weeks, seem now to have become more definite and something tangible may result. The village council meeting to be held next Wednesday evening, June 5, will be in nature of an open meeting and will be held in the town hall. The question of paving the streets named will be brought up, figures as to the cost of the work will be submitted, and arguments for and against the improvement will be heard. It will be to the interest of all property owners who may be in any way affected by the question to be present.

Contractors are already on the lookout, and George H. Clarken and William J. Clancy, of Ann Arbor, who put down the brick pavement on Main street in that city, were in Chelsea Thursday. They had heard that Main street might possibly be paved and came to look the ground over. To the street committee of the common council they said they could not give any price on paving without having a survey of the street, but at a rough estimate it would not cost over $9 a foot. This would make the paving of the street cost the owner of a lot with 22 feet frontage $99. These figures were for a brick pavement with cement and sand foundation. The price looks high and would doubtless be cut down considerably if bids were ever asked for the work. They also offered, if paving was really seriously considered, to have a survey of the street made. If they were awarded a contract the cost of it would be nothing, if someone else got it they should receive 3 per cent of the contract price.

THE CHELSEA CORNET BAND.

With Its Recent Reorganization and New Instruments Is Now Well Equipped.

The Chelsea Cornet Band has lately been reorganized and strengthened, and through the generosity of F. P. Glazier has had some new instruments and a drum major's outfit added to its equipment. This will put the band in a position to render better music whenever its services are called into requisition. The band proposes to give a concert and ice cream social in the near future.

WILL GO IT ALONE.

Washtenaw and Monroe Judicial Circuit Divided by a Bill Passed Tuesday.

Washtenaw will be a judicial circuit in itself as soon as the bill which was passed by the house and senate Tuesday shall have been signed by the governor. Very few people knew that a movement was on foot to separate Washtenaw and Monroe counties and make of them separate judicial circuits, and about the first intimation had of such a movement was the news contained in the daily papers that ex-Senator Charles A. Ward, Wm. Judson, W. W. Wedemeyer, John F. Lawrence and others had gone to Lansing to get such a bill passed. To these were added Harry A. Conant and a delegation of Monroe men. Fifty-one members of the house voted for the bill and 33 against it.

It is conceded that Washtenaw county has enough business for a separate circuit, but there is not enough business in Monroe county to pay the salary of the stenographer, let alone a judge.

TWO IMPORTANT DEALS

Which Settle the Fate of the Detroit & Chicago Railway Into Detroit.

During the past week two important deals have been concluded by W. A. Boland, of the Detroit & Chicago Traction Co., which settles the question as to the route to be taken by the road from Ann Arbor to Detroit. Mr. Boland on Tuesday of last week purchased for $250,000 the Detroit, Plymouth & Northville electric road, which includes franchises and right of way from Plymouth to Detroit, and a line of road now in operation from Northville to Wayne, a distance of 16 miles. The franchises and right of way from Ann Arbor to Plymouth have already been secured and Engineer Fargo is busy at work laying out the line between these points.

Efforts had been made for an agreement on business between Ann Arbor and Detroit over the tracks of the Hawks-Angus road, but the Boland people were forced to extend their line between Ann Arbor and Detroit by practically parallel the Hawks-Angus line and they have now secured what is said by many to be a better route, which passes through a large number of prosperous villages and is, by actual measurement, one mile shorter than the road now in operation between Ann Arbor and Detroit. In addition feeders are secured from Northville and the country out towards Pontiac through connection at Northville with the Detroit & Northwestern road.

The other important deal is an agreement with Mr. Everett, of the Detroit Citizens' railway, whereby the cars of the Detroit & Chicago Traction Co. will run into Detroit over the tracks of the Citizens' railway, thus making it possible to land passengers at the city hall or any other downtown point, with the privilege of transfers to all parts of Detroit reached by the Citizens' road.

Much stress has been laid by the opposition to Mr. Boland on the assertion that he could not secure an entrance to Detroit, but the agreement just completed effectually sets at rest any possible doubt on that score.

Township of Sylvan Sued.

Dr. Henry W. Schmidt has commenced a suit against the township of Sylvan claiming $500 fees. He alleges that the Sylvan board of health requested him on April 11, 1900, to take charge of a scarlet fever case in the family of Lucius Guinan and that he continued to care for the case until May 25, 1900.

For the township's side of the question Supervisor Bacon claims that he only authorized Dr. Schmidt to make one visit to the child, and that in the absence of Dr. Bush, who is the health officer of the township, and attends to all such cases. For this visit he agreed to see that the doctor would be remunerated. Dr. Schmidt, however, attended to the case until the child was well, and then presented a bill for $300 to the township board, payment of which was refused.

Surprise and Presentation.

Daniel Maroney reached his 70th birthday Saturday, and in the evening was surprised by a company of over 50 knights and ladies of the Maccabees at his home on Railroad street. They went prepared to have a royal good time and they had it, greatly to the pleasure of Mr. Maroney and his family, who seemed as if they could not do enough to make their self-invited guests comfortable. Before the merry party broke up Mr. Maroney was presented with a handsome Morris chair, H. Lighthall making the presentation in a brief but happy speech. Mr. Maroney being 70 years old will in future be free from paying any further dues and assessments in the Maccabees and will receive $100 per year as long as he lives.

Arrested in Chelsea.

Emil Staebler was arrested here and taken to Ann Arbor Monday morning by Deputy Sheriff W. R. Lehman. He was taken before Judge Kinne in the circuit court, who declared him to be in contempt of court, he having failed to pay the alimony and costs decided in the divorce suit brought by his wife. The order was made Oct. 2, 1900. He had since then kept himself in seclusion. He is to be confined in the county jail for 90 days unless he pays sooner.

SENATORS STEP OUT.

Tillman and McLaurin Agree to Resign Their Seats.

Agree to Go Before the People for Vindication—Action Follows Heated Debate—Political Sensation in South Carolina.

Gaffney, S. C., May 27.—The acrimony which has manifested itself between the junior and senior senators of South Carolina culminated Saturday in a battle of fierce invective, and resulted in both senators forwarding resignations to the governor, to take effect in September. This leaves the field of both the short and long term open. Inasmuch as eight avowed candidates were in the field contesting with Mr. McLaurin for the short term, it is expected that before many days the total number will be increased to a score.

The trouble between Senators McLaurin and Tillman resulted in a joint debate Saturday afternoon. Mr. McLaurin had been invited by the business men of the town to address the people on the "new democracy" which he has been espousing. Senator Tillman served notice on the committee that he desired a joint debate, and that if they refused he intended to follow anyhow when Mr. McLaurin had concluded. Mr. McLaurin, with equal force, served notice on Mr. Tillman's friends that no gentleman would force himself where he was not wanted. Nevertheless Tillman was accommodated with a joint debate.

Use Warm Words.

Mr. McLaurin opened with an address of half an hour. The hall was well filled and excitement was intense throughout the city. At least a dozen counties were represented in the audience and for over an hour and a half listened to two United States senators of the same political party abusing each other almost to the point of justifying physical combat.

McLaurin declared that Tillman had forsaken the original party platform, that he opposed free speech and was attempting to array one class against another, when the country at large was striving earnestly to bring them into harmony. He caustically criticized Tillman for having aided in an effort to make Senator Teller, of Colorado, president. Teller he characterized as a man who had declared that the negro was as good as the white man, and who was chairman of the commission that "in 1876 tried to steal the electoral votes of South Carolina and Louisiana."

Mr. Tillman was warmly applauded. He dwelt upon his colleague's attitude upon the question of expansion and the subsidy bill, and stated that only a traitor and a hypocrite would occupy that position.

He charged that Mr. McLaurin had stolen whole chunks from a sermon delivered years ago by Rev. Dr. Van-Dyke. He further charged the cotton men with conspiring to aid Mr. McLaurin in his canvass.

Tillman Suggests Resignation.

Mr. McLaurin, in following, stated that he hated to insult anyone or be insulted. He had not intended to say anything offensive, but saw that he could not prevent it.

Mr. Tillman could make only one sort of a speech, such a one as he has made to-day. He denied that he had willfully appropriated any portion of the divine's sermon, his secretary having by mistake omitted certain quotation marks.

"Mr. Tillman," he declared, "has stolen things of much more intrinsic merit than a sermon."

He branded Mr. Tillman as a "bully and a blusterer," and said he had "sized him up" years ago. He had heard that the joint debate would be on a high plane, but inasmuch as Mr. Tillman had made a personal attack on him he thought it his duty to inform the people of South Carolina regarding the "sort of a man they had for senior senator."

"Tillman said," the speaker remarked, "that if I were elected he would consider it proof that the people wanted me. He did not say that he would resign if I were elected."

Mr. Tillman jumped to his feet and shouted: "I will resign if you do. We will both go before the people. Let them decide."

Mr. McLaurin agreed. Mr. Tillman followed in a highly abusive speech, and Mr. McLaurin concluded the debate.

The senators after the debate drew up an agreement of resignation. Mr. Tillman drafted the agreement, which requests that the governor make no appointment to the vacancies and that the democratic state committee be ordered to call a primary.

Crops Destroyed.

Charlotte, N. C., May 27.—A special from Raleigh to the Observer says: Gov. Aycock says all the low land crops on the state penitentiary farm known as Caledonia were destroyed in the recent floods. He says the flood damage in the state amounts to several million dollars.

AT REST.

Imposing Funeral of the Late Gov. John R. Tanner at Springfield, Ill.

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—In the beauty of a perfect May day, and with all the pomp and circumstance of a military funeral and rites of the church, all that was mortal of former Gov. Tanner was consigned to mother earth in beautiful Oak Ridge cemetery, in a spot well shaded with trees and almost within the shadow of the national Lincoln monument.

The remains were taken from the residence of Turney English, father of Mrs. Tanner, where they have remained since their removal from the Leland hotel, at 5:30 Sunday morning, under an escort of six sergeants of the Fifth infantry, engineers and signal corps, under command of Lieut. John Rafferty, company M, Fifth infantry, Canton, to the state house, where they lay in state until the time for being taken to the church. They lay on the first floor rotunda, guarded by a detail of the Fifth infantry. The rotunda was a mass of floral designs, flags and black and white draping. The public was admitted at 8:30 and from then until 1:30 p. m., when the doors of the statehouse were closed to the public, there was a steady stream of people passing through, the number being estimated at 30,000. The procession which was to escort the remains to the church and the cemetery formed at the Leland hotel, and at one o'clock marched down Capitol avenue to the statehouse, where the hearse and carriages containing the funeral party, active and honorary pallbearers and distinguished guests fell into line, and the march was taken up past the executive mansion, the portico of which was draped in flags, and black and white, to St. Paul's pro-cathedral.

Arrived at the pro-cathedral, which was filled with those who had been given tickets of admission, the troops presented arms and the colors were drooped, while the Fifth regiment band played a dirge, which, added to the booming of cannon and tolling of bells, made a very impressive effect. Bishop Seymour presided. He was assisted by Archdeacon Taylor, rector of St. Paul's. At the close of the service the band played a dirge, and the march to the cemetery was commenced. The procession was headed by Gov. Yates and his staff in full uniform, followed by the Fifth infantry, I. N. G., G. A. R., a body of 1,200 miners, and several civic organizations.

At the cemetery Hon. Isaac N. Phillips, of Bloomington, reporter of the supreme court, and a close personal friend of ex-Gov. Tanner, delivered an eulogy of the deceased as a political leader and friend. Archdeacon Taylor then read the committal service of the Episcopal church, and Bishop Seymour pronounced the benediction. The Fifth infantry fired a salute of three volleys of musketry, and the trumpeters blew "taps," concluding the ceremony.

STEAL A BIG SUM.

Burglars Blow Open a Bank Safe at Mineral Point, Wis.—Secure $30,000.

Mineral Point, Wis., May 27.—The First national bank of this city was broken into early Saturday morning by burglars, who got away with $30,000 or more, mostly in currency. The loss is fully covered by insurance in the Fidelity and Casualty company of New York. Entrance was effected through the shingled roof of the building, which is a one-story structure, thence from the attic to the vault by digging away the arched brick. From the inside the vault door was forced open and the safe blown open with nitroglycerin. The roof was reached by a rude ladder constructed on an oak sapling.

A reward of $1,000 has been offered by the bank for the apprehension of the robbers, and this will probably be added to by the insurance company. John H. Vivian is president of the bank and Philip Allen, Jr., is cashier. Ex-State Senator C. F. Spensley is a director.

OWED OVER $5,000,000.

Altschensky, a Noted Russian Financier, Throws Himself Under Wheels of a Train.

St. Petersburg, May 27.—President Altschensky, of the Karkoff chamber of commerce, committed suicide by allowing a railroad train to run over him, near St. Petersburg. He was a financier of great influence. His death was due to financial difficulties, and will embarrass many institutions. He owed the Volga-Karma bank 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 roubles, and was president of the Agricultural bank. The deceased owed about 10,000,000 roubles ($5,000,000), his creditors including the A. H. Meyer discount bank, the Moscow Credit company, and the Karkoff Commercial company. He controlled the Donetz-Yureff iron works, which concern is undercapitalized. The Imperial bank will protect those who have suffered from M. Altschensky's death.

The REMEMBERED GRAVE.

GUESS there won't be a great show of flowers on Sylvester's grave this year," said Sarah Cook. Her voice had a certain triumph in it, but it ended with a decorous sigh.

"I guess there won't, either," returned her sister, Mrs. Kemp. "I guess Phebe Ann is too sick to think much about it." Her voice sounded like Sarah's.

Lucy Kemp dropped her sewing for a minute, and turned her face toward the window. "It seems 'most too bad, don't it?" she said, meditatively. "When she's done so much every year, and thought so much about it." "I don't know as I think it's too bad," said Mrs. Kemp. "Of course I'm sorry Phebe Ann is sick, but when it comes to these flowers she's always covered Sylvester's grave with, Decoration day, I guess there was a great deal of it for show. It would have seemed different if he had been in the war, but I've thought a good many times, when I've seen Sylvester's grave with more flowers on it than any of the soldiers, that Phebe Ann had a little eye to what folks would say, for all she felt so bad."

"I don't care anything about the show," said Sarah Cook, "but I do think such an outlay on flowers to put on a grave is wicked, when there's folks—that's her own kith and kin in actual want. It's as much as 20 years since Sylvester Kemp died, and there ain't been a year that Phebe Ann ain't laid out dollars on flowers. I guess if we'd had the dollars right here, it would have been more to her credit."

"Well, I ain't never complained nor begged," rejoined Mrs. Kemp. "Nobody can say I have, whatever happens. There's the rent money due, and that new dressmaker has come to town, and the work's falling off, and I don't know what's goin' to become of us, but I ain't complained nor begged."

"There's the band!" cried Lucy. It was a very warm day for the season—almost as warm as midsummer. The windows were wide open. The two women and the girl leaned their heads out and listened. They could hear far-away music. Two little girls, with their hands full of flowers, ran past.

"They're just forming down at the town hall," said Lucy. "Annie Dole and Lottie are just going."

"They came over here for flowers this morning," said her mother, "and I told 'em I hadn't any to give. All I had was lilacs, besides that little early rose bush, and they'd got all the lilacs they wanted of their own, and there was only just three roses on that bush, and I could not bear to cut 'em. The procession ain't coming—the music don't sound a mite nearer. It won't be here for an hour yet."

The three seated themselves and fell to sewing again. The two older women swung out their long arms with stern persistency. Their faces were harsh and sad, and had a similarity of feature as well as expression. Lucy, the young girl, bent weakly over her work. The room was full of the faint band music and the perfume of lilacs. She wished in her heart that she could put on her best dress and go out with the other girls, but she said nothing. They sat in the kitchen. The floor was swept clean, and there was no fire in the polished cooking stove; it was early in the afternoon. Presently Lucy looked up. "Mother," said she, "cain't I stop sewing and run outdoors a minute?"

"Where do you want to go?" "Just outdoors a minute."

Lucy was 17, but she seemed like a child in her manner toward her mother.

"I don't care," said Mrs. Kemp. "I s'pose the child gets dreadful tired sewing the whole time," she said to her sister, after Lucy had gone out. "Sometimes I feel kind of worried about her."

"She won't get tired sewing much longer, nor we, neither, if we don't have more work come in," retorted her sister, grimly. "We ain't got a mite ahead. We've got to go on the town, for all I see." She said "town" with a scornful fear, as if it were an enemy to whom she must surrender. "I don't s'pose Phebe Ann's husband will lift his finger to help us, even if she should be taken away, and he left without a chick nor child in the world," said Mrs. Kemp.

Phebe Ann's husband was her own dead husband's brother, but she never spoke of him by his own name. "I wonder how much Phebe Ann's husband has got?" said Sarah Cook. "Well, I guess he's laid by a little something. They must have, with no family."

"Mebbe he will do something, if it ever happens that he ain't under anybody else's thumb." "It won't make any difference now. He's laid under the thumb so long that he's all flattened out of the shape he was made in. He used to bow kind of sideways behind Phebe Ann's back, when I met him, but he don't do that now. I met him face to face the other day, and he never looked at me. I don't know what poor Thomas would say if he was alive. I wonder what Lucy is picking lilacs for? Lucy!"

"What say?" Lucy's sweet, thin voice called back. Her smooth, fair head was half hidden in a great clump of lilac bushes by the gate. She was bending the branches over, and breaking off full purple clusters. "What you picking those lilacs for?"

"I just thought I'd pick a few." "What for? I ain't going to have any in the house! They're too sweet—they're sickish!"

"I ain't going to bring them into the house," said Lucy. She let a branch fly back, and went across the yard with a great bunch of lilacs in her hands.

"I wonder what she's up to?" said her mother. Lucy returned just before the procession passed. The cemetery was a little way beyond the house. Her mother and aunt, and a neighbor who had come in, stood at the windows listening eagerly to the approaching music. Lucy joined them. The procession filed slowly past, the Grand Army men, the village band, the ministers and local dignitaries, and the rear guard of children with flowers. An accompanying crowd thronged the sidewalks.

"I've just been saying to Sarah that Phebe Ann won't have Sylvester's grave decked out much this year," said Mrs. Kemp. Her voice her finger to her lip. There was just a glimpse of a pale, sharp profile among the pillows. Phebe Ann was asleep on her journey to the grave. Her husband went out, put up his horse, and sat down on the doorstep. He looked idly out over the fields. After awhile he heard the village band again. It sounded quite near. They were marching back from the cemetery. Suddenly the old man felt a hand on his shoulder. "She's waked up," the nurse whispered, "and she's terrible worked up about its being Decoration day. You'd better come in."

Phebe Ann's husband went softly behind the nurse to the bedroom. Phebe Ann looked up at him and beckoned imperatively. He went close and bent over her. "What is it, Phebe Ann?" said he.

"Is it—Decoration day?" she whispered, with difficulty, for she was growing very weak.

"Yes, 'tis, Phebe Ann," said her husband.

"Have you got—any flowers for—Sylvester's grave?"

"No, I ain't. I ain't thought of it, Phebe Ann, with your being so sick, and all."

"Go—get some!" she panted. Her motioning hand and her eager eyes spoke louder than her tongue.

"Yes, I will, I will, Phebe Ann! Don't you fret another mite about it."

The nurse followed him out of the room.

"I can't go to the greenhouse," he whispered, agitatedly. "It's five miles away."

"Land, get any kind of flowers!" said the nurse. "Get dandelions, and buttercups, if you can't find anything else."

The old man took his hat down with a bewildered air, and went slowly out of the yard. At the gate Lucy did not know what to say. She looked up at him, and her soft face seemed to take on distressed lines like his.

The old man turned abruptly and went away. "Phebe Ann is sinking," he said, indistinctly, as he went.

Lucy's mother and her aunt rushed to the door to meet her. "Is Phebe Ann dead?" Sarah Cook called out.

"No, she ain't dead." "What did he want to see you for?" asked Mrs. Kemp.

Lucy hesitated; a shamefaced look came over her face. "What did he want?" her mother asked, imperatively.

"He wanted to know who put some flowers on—Sylvester's grave."

"Did you?" "Yes'm."

"What did you put on?" "Some lilacs and—roses."

"You didn't pick those roses?" "Oh, mother, the lilacs didn't seem quite enough! Aunt Phebe Ann has always done so much!" Lucy said. She was almost crying.

Her mother and her aunt looked at each other. "I shouldn't have thought you'd have picked those roses without saying anything about it," said her mother, but her voice was embarrassed rather than harsh. She went back to the kitchen and proceeded with her work of making biscuits for supper. The sewing was all finished. Lucy set the table. After supper they went out in the cemetery, and strolled about looking at the flowers, in the soft, low light.

"Who brought all that mess of buttercups and grass, I wonder?" said Sarah Cook, as they stood over Sylvester's grave.

"I guess it must have been Phebe Ann's husband—it looks like a man," Mrs. Kemp replied. Lucy got down on her knees and straightened the buttercups into a bouquet.

"I wonder if she'll live the night out," said Sarah Cook, soberly.

"I've listened to hear the bell toll every morning this week," said Mrs. Kemp. "I don't believe she can live much longer. I'd go up there to-night, if I thought she wanted me to."

The next morning Mrs. Kemp, listening with her head thrust out of the window in the early sunlight, heard indeed the bell tolling for Phebe Ann. "She's gone," she told Sarah Cook and Lucy; and Lucy cried.

They all went to Phebe Ann's funeral and followed her to the grave. Mrs. Kemp's and Sarah Cook's eyes were red when they came home. "There were a great many good things about Phebe Ann, after all," Mrs. Kemp said.

"I always said there was," Sarah returned, defiantly.

The morning after the funeral John Kemp came to the door. Lucy answered his knock. He looked old and dejected, but he tried to smile. "I want to see you a minute," said he. "No, I can't come in—not this morning. I'm coming before long. I hope things will be different from what they have been. It was her wish. I went home that day and told Phebe Ann how you'd put the flowers there, and she beckoned to me to come and lean over her. Then she made out to tell me. She wanted you to have Sylvester's money that we put in the bank for him when he was born. It's been growing. We haven't spent any, excepting for flowers, and it's near $500. She wanted me to give it to you right away, and you're going to have it just as soon as I can get it out of the bank. Phebe Ann said you could have some more schooling, and not have to work so hard. And I guess you'll have more than that, too, some day, if you outlive me. Phebe Ann, she thought mebbe I could make some arrangements with your mother and aunt to come to our house and live, and take care of it. She said she didn't want any other women in there. She knew they were good housekeepers, and would keep things the way she did. You tell your mother I'm coming in to see her some time before long."

John Kemp went feebly down the walk, and Lucy returned to the kitchen. The door had been ajar, and her mother and Sarah Cook had heard every word. They were both crying. "Coming just now when we didn't know which way to turn!" sobbed Sarah Cook. "Poor Phebe Ann!"

"Well, there's one thing about it," said Mrs. Kemp, brokenly. "there sha'n't one Decoration day go by as long as I live, without Sylvester's grave being trimmed as handsome as if his mother was alive!"—Mary E. Wilkins, in Youth's Companion.

SINKS IN LAKE HURON.

Chicago, May 25.—In a storm that lashed the waters of the upper lakes the steamer Baltimore was sent to the bottom of Lake Huron, near Au Sable, Mich., Friday morning, and of her crew of 14 men only two escaped. Lashed to a heavy raft, the two men were adrift on the lake under heavy seas all day Friday, and one of them was crazy when rescued.

The following lost their lives with the wreck of the Baltimore:

Capt. M. E. Place, master of the steamer, Cleveland; Mrs. M. H. Place, wife of captain; stewardess; Michael Breatden, first mate; John Delders, second steward; Edward Owen, wheelman; C. W. Sears, wheelman; George W. Scott, watchman; Herbert Wiggins, watchman; F. Marcoux, chief engineer, Chicago; William Barker, fireman; F. Krueger, fireman; August Anderson, deck hand.

The Baltimore was a wooden steamer loaded with coal, from Lorain to Washburn, Wis. McGinnis and Murphy, the two men who were rescued, were picked up by the tug Columbia after being tossed and buffeted by the waves for 12 hours.

The full extent of death and disaster by the storm is not known yet. From Chicago to Ogdensburg, N. Y., the storm held sway and a score of vessels were sunk, wrecked, or suffered serious damage. The reports received from ports on the lakes told only of disasters in their immediate vicinity, and it is feared that other wrecks with fatalities occurred at isolated places along the shores.

Anxiety is felt for vessels in mid-lake, which could find no shelter from the gale's fury.

At all ports on the lakes many vessels put in for shelter. Many that had started out met the gale and turned back. The storm was declared by marine men one of the worst in 15 years.

THE CHINESE INDEMNITY.

Foreign Ministers Decline to Act on Suggestion of United States to Limit It to $200,000,000.

Washington, May 24.—Mr. Rockhill has confirmed the news from Peking to the effect that the foreign ministers have declined to accede to the suggestion of the United States that the total of the indemnity to be collected from China shall be limited to $200,000,000. It is expected that he will continue his efforts in the direction of keeping down the maximum of claims, even while abandoning, for the sake of harmony, the figure named, and it is believed the outcome will be a compromise upon a figure between $200,000,000 and the maximum of $337,000,000, claimed by the powers. In the effort to keep down the total Mr. Rockhill looks for support to the estimates submitted by Sir Ernest Satow, the British minister at Peking, and Sir Robert Hart, commissioner of imperial customs, whose report upon the ability of the Chinese to pay an indemnity of about $200,000,000 is now before the state department. Until this question of the grand total is settled, the matters of the rate of interest to be established upon the loan, and the method of guarantee are expected to remain open.

VOLCANO IN ERUPTION.

Flow of Lava Causes Death of Many Natives on Island of Java—Rain of Cinders Continues.

Batavia, Java, May 24.—The volcano of Keloet is in eruption. The lava is threatening the Blitar coffee plantations and has endangered Kediri. The district is in total darkness. It was reported later that there had been great loss of life, many natives having been overwhelmed by lava. The population of Blitar is fleeing. A heavy rain of cinders continued falling Thursday, covering six districts, aggregating one-third of the island, including Samarang, Kediri and Surakarta.

To Erect Big Elevator.

New York, May 25.—The New York Central railroad has contracted for the erection of the largest operating grain elevator in the world. It is to be built in Weehawken at the terminal of the West Shore road, and will replace the one—capacity, 1,200,000 bushels—which has stood there 17 years. The new elevator will have a capacity of 2,000,000 bushels, and will cost when finished almost $1,500,000. There are storage elevators in the west with 3,000,000 bushels capacity, but this new one at Weehawken will be without a rival among operating elevators.

To Bar Reporters.

Berlin, May 24.—Emperor William has issued stringent orders henceforth to exclude newspaper reporters from all public and semipublic functions where the emperor intends to speak. The emperor's entourage and the police have been given instructions to render impossible the stenographic reporting of his speeches or the taking of notes thereon. The emperor is said to be extremely wroth that the address to the Emperor Alexander regiment became public in spite of the great precautions taken to prevent it.

"DO YOU KNOW WHO PUT THOSE FLOWERS THERE?"

was pleasanter and more guarded than before.

"I heard Phebe Ann was pretty low," said the neighbor.

"Yes, I s'pose she is. I should have gone up there, but she ain't been inside this house for ten years, and I ain't going to push in where I ain't wanted. I hear she's got Mis' Baker with her, so she's taken care of. I couldn't help thinking this morning how much she'd always laid out on Sylvester's grave. Well, mebbe 'twas a comfort to her. I ain't never thought so much of anything of that kind, because my husband and all my folks are buried away from here, and I ain't had any chance to do anything about their graves. Ain't that Phebe Ann's husband now? That looks like his horse."

"Yes, 'tis," said Sarah Cook.

"I've a great mind to run to the door and inquire how she is!" cried the neighbor, excitedly.

"Why don't you?" said Mrs. Kemp. The neighbor ran to the door and called out. She was a stout woman with a shrill voice.

"How is—Phebe—Ann?" she clamored.

The horse was pulled up, and an old man's face peered around the buggy wing. "How is Phebe Ann this afternoon?" the woman said again.

Mrs. Kemp, Sarah Cook and Lucy were listening at her back.

"Sinking," replied the old man, in a hoarse voice. Then he drove on. The woman called something else after him, but he paid no attention. He had to pass the cemetery, which was now thronged with the living, in bright groups, standing among the flower-strewn graves of the dead. The music had ceased. A man's voice sounded out loudly in the hush. Phebe Ann's husband, John Kemp, leaned forward and shook the reins over his horse, then drove past rapidly. He kept his face turned away from the cemetery, and his forehead was scowling distressfully.

He had a half-mile to go before he reached home. He left the horse in the yard and went into the house on tiptoe, through the house to Phebe Ann's bedroom. As he peered in stealthily, the nurse, who was sitting beside the bed, looked up and put he paused and looked around. There were no flowers in the yard; there were several bushes, rose and phlox, but it was too early for them to blossom. Over at the left stretched a field, and that was waving with green and gold. Phebe Ann's husband went over into the field and began pulling the buttercups in great handfuls, and the grasses with them. He had all he could carry when he left the field, and went solemnly down the road.

Sylvester's grave was at the farther side of the cemetery. The old man, with his load of buttercups and grass, made his way to it. The soldiers' graves were decorated with flags and flowers, but the people had gone. The cemetery was very still. When John Kemp reached Sylvester's grave he started and stared. There was a great bunch of lilacs on the grave, and three charming, delicate pink roses in a vase.

"I wonder who put those flowers there!" he muttered. He laid the buttercups and grass down on the grave; then he stood still. It was over 20 years since the boy Sylvester had been laid there—a little soldier who had fought only his own pain.

"I wonder who put those flowers there!" John Kemp muttered again.

He went out of the cemetery, but instead of turning down the road toward his own home, walked hesitatingly the other way toward the house of his sister-in-law—Thomas's wife, as he always spoke of her.

Lucy's face was at one open window, her Aunt Sarah Cook's at the other.

"Lucy!" called the old man, standing at the gate.

Lucy came out to him tremblingly. Sarah Cook ran to tell her sister; she thought Phebe Ann must be dead.

"Do you know who put those flowers there?" asked the old man, in a husky voice.

"I did," said Lucy. Her face flushed. "I thought there wouldn't be anybody to see to it, now Aunt Phebe Ann is sick," she explained, timidly.

Her uncle looked wistfully at her, his eyes full of tears. "Sylvester was a dreadful sufferer," he said.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

A Strange Affair.

Mrs. Anna Williams, housekeeper for Benjamin Stockdale, in Coldwater, was found by a neighbor tied to a chair. She said a man had entered the house, seized, bound and gagged her, and then ransacked the house. Before leaving he removed the gag. The woman was alone and a tin box containing $2,000 was missing. Late in the day Stockdale found the money intact under hay in the barn. He refuses to have the woman arrested and she sticks to her first story.

Officials Will Not Act.

Hattie Harriman, the 14-year-old girl charged with assault on Morse Reynolds, was acquitted by a jury in Harbor Beach. The evidence against her was not strong enough to warrant conviction. It is improbable that any further action will be taken in the case of Blanche Reynolds, who is alleged to have died as the result of an assault by schoolmates, as the authorities do not consider the evidence sufficient to warrant it.

House.

Lansing, Mich., May 22.—In the house yesterday a bill for the taxation of railroads and other classes of corporate property on an ad valorem basis was passed. It provides for the taxation of the property of railroad, union depot, express, car loaning, stock car, refrigerator and fast freight companies on the basis of the actual value of the property, to be determined by the state tax commission, which is also given the power to determine the average rate of taxation in the state. For this purpose the membership of the commission is increased to five. This year, the assessment being based on the earnings of 1900, the railroads of the state will be required to pay $1,340,000 in taxes, and it is estimated this will be doubled under the ad valorem system.

Lansing, Mich., May 23.—After a debate lasting several hours the house yesterday agreed in committee of the whole to the Rich bill taxing all incomes—which provides a tax of one per cent. on all incomes over $1,000 per annum. A SOUTHERN TRAGEDY.

Member of a Dramatic Company Kills His Amanced and Commits Suicide.

Key West, Fla., May 27.—As the result of an unexplained tragedy at a cottage occupied by the D'Ormond-Fuller company, a dramatic organization, early Sunday morning, Miss Inez Leonard and Edgar Beauceleigh, two members of the company, are dead. After the performance Saturday night Miss Fuller, a member of the company, went upstairs to the room of Miss Atkinson, also of the company, and in passing Beauceleigh's room she saw him sitting up reading a magazine. She told him he had better go to bed, and is under the impression that he did so. A few minutes after Miss Leonard had been seen to go upstairs, which was about 2:30 o'clock, Mr. D'Ormond, of the company, heard the report of a rifle, and Miss Leonard screamed out: "Help, help, I am dying," and then another shot rang out. D'Ormond and Miss Fuller rushed upstairs and saw Miss Leonard in a stooping position in a corner of the room. By this time the other members of the company rushed into the room and found Miss Leonard in a dying condition. She was gasping for breath and died without regaining consciousness. She was shot through the left side, just below the heart, the bullet coming out of the right side.

Beauceleigh was lying dead on the opposite side of the room, his face a mass of blood. An examination showed he shot himself through the mouth. A 48-caliber Marlin rifle and two empty shells were found near Beauceleigh. Mr. D'Ormond says the cause of the tragedy is a mystery to every member of the company. Miss Leonard and Mr. Beauceleigh were engaged and expected to be married as soon as they went north. Beauceleigh was born in Chicago and was adopted by Miss Fuller when four years old. He was reared and educated under her care. Inez Leonard's home was in Philadelphia. Her mother and father are on the stage.

Lowell, Mass., May 27.—By a unanimous vote the stockholders of the Boston & Montana Mining & Smelting company have voted to dissolve the company and sell the properties. This action is the result of an offer of $5,000,000 for its mining properties.

WHY MRS. PINKHAM

Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensibilities, and peculiar organic disturbances.

Those things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

To treat a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a woman to her family physician. She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

Mrs. G. H. CHAPPELL.

Mrs. Chappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is absolutely free.

FEMININE FRILLS.

Floral toques are the rage. Made of black silk poppies they are decidedly Parisian.

Orange packing in California is done chiefly by women.

White chip hats are trimmed exclusively with plumes, a single black or pink rose and black velvet strings.

The most stylish things in wash waists are the coarse canvas, heavy as homespun. They have a coarse mesh and are fastened in the front with holes.

There is a stock of pique with the outer collar of canvas turned back from it in front, and there is a wide tie, with a stitched hem, which ties in a good-sized bow of the canvas.

The newest boas or ruffles are of spotted net, trimmed lace, of lace en cascade intermixed with chiffon, or marabout and chiffon, a combination which is charming in gray or white.

IN THE OLD WORLD.

There are at present 170 automobiles in use in the city of Brussels.

The civil list of the German emperor is contributed solely by Prussia.

Owing to the mildness of the climate of Portugal, heating stoves are rarely used in that country.

Russians use three ounces only of coffee a head in the year, English people 14 ounces, and Dutch 322 ounces.

A tax of ten per cent. on all theater tickets sold in France is used to maintain the indigent people of that country.

COOKING SCHOOL KNOWLEDGE.

Dip smelts or fish of any sort in lemon juice when you wish to keep the flesh white.

If you keep parsley wrapped up in a piece of wet cheesecloth, you can keep it for several weeks without its spoiling.

Never leave a lemon or any acid jelly in a tin mold over night, because it spoils the taste. Agate or earthenware molds are best.

When molding a cream mixture or gelatine mixture have a mold just the right size. It is not so apt to break when turned out as if the mold is too large.

If the gelatine in an earthen mold does not come out readily at first set in a dish of hot water for a minute or wet a dish towel and set the dish on it. Be careful that it doesn't stay too long.

In making a chicken salad, if the chicken runs short, as it often does, it may be eked out without anyone's being the wiser by adding a third as much roast of pork or veal cut in small bits.

In mending gloves, use fine cotton, as silk is far more apt to cut the kid. If the rent is in a seam, turn the glove inside out and sew them over and over. If the tear is in the glove, set a piece of kid under it and secure with a few stitches.

The Japanese have a plan of keeping meat fresh in hot weather without cooking it. It is placed in a china vessel and boiling water is then poured over it, which coagulates the albumen on the surface, thus protecting it against the effect of weather. Oil is next poured on the water to cover it, which excludes the air, and thus the meat is kept perfectly fresh.

VERDICT MEANT DEATH.

Aldrich, Mo., May 27.—Four of the best doctors in the vicinity have been in attendance on Mrs. Mollie Moore, of this place, who has been suffering with a very severe case of Nervousness and Kidney Disease. Each of them told her that she would die.

Hearing of Dodd's Kidney Pills, she began to use them, and instantly noticed a change for the better. Her improvement has been continuous since then. She says that the disease first manifested itself by the appearance of dark spots floating before her eyes. Her nerves were so bad that many times they would collapse completely, and she would fall down as if shot.

The fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills saved her after four doctors had given her up, has caused no end of talk in this neighborhood, and all are loud in their praises of this new remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills—which is curing so many hitherto incurable cases, in this state and elsewhere.

THE SASKATOON DISTRICT.

One of the New Western Canada Districts—The Great Advantages of Settlement Where the Soil is of Unexampled Fertility.

During the past year or two a large number of American settlers (those going from the United States to Canada), have made homes in the Saskatoon district in western Canada. They have found the climate all that could be desired, and their prospects are of the brightest. In writing of it a correspondent says:

The lands for sale are choice selections from a large area, and every farm is within easy distance of a railway station. Experience has shown that this district enjoys immunity from summer frost, from cyclones and blizzards. The South Saskatchewan, flowing through the tract, is one of the finest rivers in the country, being navigable and having an average width of stream of 1,000 feet.

The agents of the government of Canada, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your paper, and who will be glad to give full information, tell me that within the limits of the tract there are two distinct varieties of soil. One is a rich black loam; and the other is a somewhat lighter loam, containing a small admixture of sand. There appears to be no appreciable difference between the fertility of these two kinds of soil. Both are alluvial in their characteristics; both are marvelously productive, and both rest upon a sub-soil of clay. The advantage of this formation is that it retains the heat of the day during the night, and is favorable to the early maturity of crops. Every kind of crop will here attain the highest perfection of quality. The land is admirably adapted for stock raising and dairy farming, as well as growing grain. Some idea of the richness of the natural grasses of the prairie may be formed from the fact that more than 200 tons of hay were gathered within a short distance of Saskatoon and stored up for use during the winter. A growth so luxuriant demonstrates beyond all possible question the suitability of the land for pasturing cattle, and no doubt this important industry will be largely carried on.

Nature has been lavish in her gifts to this territory. Not only is the soil of unexampled fertility, but the climate is delightful and healthy. Such is the testimony of every settler, and this testimony is confirmed by enthusiastic opinions from every traveler, explorer, missionary or newspaper correspondent who has ever visited this far-famed Saskatchewan Valley. In former years vast herds of buffalo came here to winter from the elevated storm-swept regions south of the United States boundary line, proving thereby the adaptation of these rolling prairies to the purpose of raising stock. The land is dry, with sufficient, but not excessive, rainfall, capable of early cultivation in the spring, and free from summer frosts. The configuration of the country renders artificial drainage unnecessary, and prevents the accumulation of stagnant pools; mists and fogs are seldom seen. The days of summer are full of sunshine, under the genial influence of which crops rapidly ripen. Autumn is characterized by an almost unbroken succession of fine weather, during which the crops are safely garnered. In winter it is cold, but extremely exhilarating and pleasant, owing to the wonderful dryness and bracing qualities of the air. The winter is a source of profit as well as enjoyment to the people, being far healthier than a humid climate.

Water and fuel, these two prime necessities of life, are plentiful throughout the district.

Unexpected Death of John R. Tanner, Ex-Governor of Illinois, at Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., May 24.—Former Gov. John R. Tanner died here suddenly in his room at the Leland hotel, at 2:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon, of rheumatism of the heart. He had been confined to his room since his return from Chicago, last Saturday, with rheumatism on the left side, but the case was not considered in the least serious. Ex-Gov. Tanner had held various positions besides that of governor, the principal ones being member of the Illinois house, United States marshal of the Southern district of Illinois, state treasurer and assistant at the United States treasury.

He was for many years a member of the republican state central committee and chairman of the same, and was a candidate for United States senator this year against Senator Cullom. He leaves a widow and one son, Col. J. Mack Tanner, of Springfield, and one daughter, Mrs. John A. Barnes, of Chicago. He was 57 years old and a private in the Fifty-eighth and Sixty-first Illinois infantry regiments, and also a former member of the railroad and warehouse commission.

THE FLOOD IN TENNESSEE.

Fourteen Lives Known to Have Been Lost and Immense Damage to Property Done.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 24.—The Knoxville sequel to the terrific flood in upper East Tennessee and southwest Virginia is just being realized. Conservative estimates from upper East Tennessee place the dead actually found at 14. Speculation, however, exists as to the number that may be found dead after the water recedes.

The loss at Elizabethton due to the flood is conservatively estimated at about $250,000. The damage to the town of Watauga is estimated at about $150,000.

Later details from the flood-stricken section show great damage done in western North Carolina mountains. Huntsdale, a new town at the southern terminus of the Tennessee division of the Ohio River & Charleston railway, is practically wiped out. At Unaka, the large railway iron bridge which spanned Chucky river has been destroyed. The lumber and pulp mills of Gen. John T. Wilder and also 25,000 logs and a large quantity of lumber property of the Unaka Lumber company, have gone down with the tide.

SEVERAL LIVES LOST.

Disastrous Effects of the Recent Storm in Mountain Districts of North Carolina.

Charlotte, N. C., May 25.—Reports from remote counties in the mountain districts show great destruction by the storm. In Bakersville, 16 residences and the Baptist church were washed away. Quinter Moore and his son were drowned. Every house in Magnetic City, a village in Mitchell county, was destroyed. At Roan Mountain Station 20 residences were swept away. Six large stores on Big Rock creek were carried away and one man, John McKinney, drowned, while an unknown man was killed by a landslide.

To Revise Confession of Faith.

Philadelphia, May 25.—The Presbyterian general assembly, by a vote which showed conclusively that a revision of the confession of faith is desired by the church, on Friday defeated the amendment dismissing the whole subject offered Thursday by Rev. George D. Baker, of Philadelphia. The assembly decided by an overwhelming majority to continue consideration of the great question, after two days of debate, during which leading exponents of the Presbyterian doctrine throughout the country thoroughly analyzed the creed and gave their reasons for their positions regarding the subject.

Will Return to Philippines.
New York, May 25.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Instead of being assigned to duty in the United States upon the expiration of their present leaves of absence, Brig. Gen. Fred D. Grant and Maj. Gen. J. C. Bates will return to their stations in the Philippines.

Lights That Shine.
"Do you think the present generation will produce men as great as those who have gone before?" asked the worried man. "I don't know," answered Farmer Corn-tassel. "It 'pears to me you don't hear as much about young men studyin' by pine knots an' taller dips as you did them days. Cigarettes an' fireworks seem to be more in demand now."—Washington Star.

BACKACHE

SHOULD WARN WOMEN.

MISS LUCY ANNIE HEISER, OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Miss Lucy Annie Heiser, a graduated nurse of nine years' experience, trained and graduated from the Homeopathic Hospital of Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows:

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 8, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:
Gentlemen—"Although my school does not believe in patent medicines, I have found it to be a fact that Peruna is a grand and valuable medicine. I have known it to cure Mrs. Sampson, suffering with an inflamed womb, aggravated by malaria, after the doctors had failed to help her. Another of my former patients suffered with a complication of female diseases; she was so thin, nothing but skin and bones, but Peruna cured her and she is to-day in good health and good flesh. Facts prove that Peruna revives lost strength and restores to the sick that most wonderful blessing of life—health."

Lucy Annie Heiser.

If all the tired women and all the nervous women, and all the women that needed a tonic would read and heed the words of these fair ladies who have spoken right to the point, how many invalids would be prevented and how many wretched lives be made happy. Peruna restores health in a normal way. Peruna puts right all the mucous membranes of the body, and in this way restores the functions of every organ.

From Mrs. Amanda Shumaker, who has charge of the Grammar Department of the Public Schools, of Columbia City, Wash., also Past Grand of Independent Order of Good Templars, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

COLUMBIA CITY, WASH.

"I can speak only good words of the repeated benefits I have had from the use of Peruna."

"Too constant application to work last winter caused me to have severe head and backache and dragging pains. I could not stop my work, neither was I fit to go on. Reading of the beneficial results from the use of Peruna I purchased a bottle and within a few days after using it, began to feel better."

"I constantly improved and before the seventh bottle was completely used, all pains were gone, my strength was restored, and I now seem ten years' younger."

"If I get tired or feel bad, Peruna at once helps me, and I feel you deserve praise for placing such a conscientious medicine before a suffering public."

Mrs. Amanda Shumaker.
Mattie B. Curtis, Secretary Legion of Loyal Women, Hotel Salem, Boston, Mass., writes:

"I suffered for over a year with general weakness and debility, manifested especially in severe backache and headache."

"My physician prescribed different medicines, none of which seemed to help me any until a club associate advised me to try Peruna as it cured her of constitutional headache and stomach troubles. I at once ordered a bottle and before it was used, felt greatly improved."

"I have taken four bottles and for two months have been entirely free from these maladies. Several of my friends are using Peruna with beneficial results, especially in cases of troubles with the kidneys and other pelvic organs, together with weaknesses peculiar to women."

Peruna is a specific for the catarrhal derangements of women. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Congregational Church Membership
The report of the state of the churches as given at the meeting of the Congregational state association last week, shows a membership in the association of 81,969, a net loss of 214. The number of churches is 341, one greater than last year.
The Sunday school membership has decreased 1,343, and in the Christian Eadeavor ranks the decline has been 1,176.
Benevolences reach high mark this year, aggregating $107,351, though a large portion of this was Olivet college endowment legacies. These aggregated $25,000.
With the added financial income during the past decade the population of Michigan has increased 15.6 per cent and the membership of the Congregational church 38.5 per cent. Twenty-eight names have

RARE COMBINATION.
The Floral and Electrical Display at the Pan-American Exposition.
There is a saying that "Flowers are the poetry of earth, as stars are the poetry of heaven." If this be true, the beauty of the floral effects to be seen at the Pan-American Exposition will be pronounced as a rare combination of both, for never yet at an exposition have such magnificent effects been seen as will be visible in some of the fountain basins at the Pan-American.
These beautiful plants and flowers, kissed to a state of dewy dazzlement by the falling spray and the glow of concealed incandescent lamps, will delight the visitor.
At the exposition in Omaha some little success was obtained in thus lighting up the flowers and the foliage of plants in the water basins, and this has led Henry E. Rustin, chief of the mechanical and electrical bureau, to attempt to enlarge upon what he accomplished in Omaha. When thus lighted, the flowers and plants take upon themselves new colors, each one seemingly more beautiful than the color displayed under full sunlight. Then the little mystery of where the illumination comes from is delightful, and, knowing this, the skilled electrician is most careful to conceal his lamps where least likely to attract the eye. Perhaps an artificial leaf, an artificial flower, is used to hide the lamp, but its full brilliancy is allowed to beam upon the plant and flowers, making a picture that is lasting. It is when such effects are obtained that the full appreciation of enjoyment is expressed in the single word "beautiful." It was so at Omaha, and it will be more so at the Pan-American.
Automobiles at Exposition.
The automobile has been developed since the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. What marvels may be exhibited and in practical daily use at the Pan-American Exposition can only be dimly conjectured. The railway, vessel and vehicle exhibits at Buffalo this year will outrival in interest anything that has been possible in the past.
Mothers of good judgment and experience give their little ones Rocky Mountain Tea this month, keeps them well. 35c
