COMMENCEMENT.

Very Interesting Exercises at the Opera House Friday Evening.

Commencement exercises of the Class of '01 of the Chelsea High School were held at the opera house Friday evening and were witnessed by a large number of the friends of the class.

The stage presented a most beautiful appearance, being trimmed in white and red, the class colors, more than a thousand yards of bunting being used. The work was done under the supervision of Mrs. Geo. A. BeGole and reflects great credit upon her.

Miss Florence Hascall of Ann Arbor opened the progam with a plane solo, which was beautifully rendered. Rev. A. Stiles offered prayer, after which Master Leslie Brown of Ann Arbor, accompanied by Prof. R. Kempf of Ann Arbor, rendered a vocal solo in a very acceptable manner. Miss Katherine Lindenschmitt of Ann Arbor, accompanied by Miss Helene Steinbach, rendered a violin solo in a manner which elicited much applause. The address by Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, D. D., of Detroit, was a most pleasing one, his subject, "Living One's Life," giving the class and the audience the true meaning of living one's life. The address was delivered in Dr. Boynton's easy manner and was well received by the audience. This was followed by a vocal solo by Master Brown, and that by a piano solo by Miss Hascall. Supt. W. W. Gifford presented the diplomas to the class. Master Brown then gave another vocal Rev. A. Schoen.

The following are the names and courses taken by the members of the

ALUMNI BANQUET.

Passed Off Very Pleasantly Last Monday

Evening. The sixth annual banquet of the Alumni Association of the Chelsea High School was given in the Congregational church last Monday evening. The event was a grand success from all points of view, although some were prevented from attending, on account of the rain. The Christian Endeavor room was very prettily converted into a reception room being decorated with palms and ferns, am g which were hidden the seats. It a lit.le grove of palms opposite the entrance was the ever flowing punch bowl, which made lively the conversation of he earlier part of the evening.

The dining room below was beautiful ly decorated in yellow and white, the colors of the Association. From a quaint little alcove, partly hidden by palms and ferns, came the sweet music of the orchestra, which assisted in making all merry during the banqueting. The ladies of the Congregational church catered for the affair and deserve much praise and credit. After the feasting and the music of the orchestra had died away, toastmaster, Ralph H. Holmes called for a yell for the class of 1901. Frank Fenn was appointed yell master, and a rousing cheer of "Fresh!" greeted the new members. The toastmaster now introduced the first speaker, Karl E. Vogel, who responded to the toast, "The Naughty Ones." Mr. Vogel, as representative of the class instances remarkable in the history of this remarkable class-instances of good behavior and well learned lesson; he told of the vacancy they would leave which could never be adquately refilled in the high school, and of the assistance they would be to the Association as loyal Alumni.

K. Otto Steinbach, responded to the toast, "The historic old high school; may its memory ever be green," He recalled to the memories of those present who had had the pleasure of attending the old high school, the picturesqueness of the the meeting of the state board of equaold "high room" with its massive sliding doors, the seats which adorned the sides of the room, and the old box stove behind which students, not eligible to seats in the room, sought to conceal themselves during the chapel exercises. Dr. Steger expressed the opinion that the "bad boy" is the life of the school, for he is most frequently the brightest boy in his classes, and it is through his earnest efforts that the teachers are kept from passing the tedious hours in slumber.

The last toast of the evening, "The sequel of '1899,'" was responded to by Miss Edith Bacon, the historian of the solo, and the audience was dismissed by class of '99. She enumerated the many victories of the wonderful class, and, related the several instances in which it has complied with the class prophecy. She devoted one chapter to anecdotes of college life at Olivet.

James Snow Vs. Charles Jenks.

Times: The case of James Snow vs. Charles Jenks, commenced in the circuit court by Lehmann Bros. and Stivers, is one that will interest farmers, in showing them the many unusual suits that may be brought against them in the future, on what might be called "farm liability." Some day they will be in it with corporations and enjoy damage suits just the same. In this case the facts are said to be something tike this. Mr. Jenks went to the farm of Thomas Sears in Lima a year ago and purchased a colt that was not halter broke. He could not, therefore, tle the horse to the buggy. He engaged James Snow to lead the horse. This Snow tried, and having trouble, after going some distance, Mr. Jenks had him get into the buggy and building a power house for the Boland drive, while he (Jenks) tried to lead, the road, 24x90 feet in size. Washtenaw's Valuation Drops

The board of supervisors were in ses sion Monday to look over the matter of equalization of the county's taxes and 27 ont of the 29 officers showed up.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Whittaker, Miner, Bacon, McIntyre and Damon was appointed on equalization and on motion it was fixed on the basis of of 1901, related very humorously many the assessed valuation. This motion was carried unanimously.

Each supervisor reported his rolls and the total valuation of the county was found to be as follows:

Accidental Shooting. Manchester Enterprise: Our citizens were shocked Thursday forencon by the news brought here by Mr. Uphaus that Fred Steinegeweg, his neighbor, in Freedom has accidently shot himself about 8 o'clock that morning, and died a few of the bridge the Boland people have in moments thereafter.

It appears that Fred was preparing to come to town and was evidently Nellie Lowry, the prophetess of the class about to place a orate of eggs in of 1894; but but owing to her inability to the buggy, when seeing his shot gun, be present it was necessarily omitted, and which he had placed in the bottom of the first hole somewhere on Wilson's flats, although toastmaster Holmes called for although toastmaster Holmes called for some member of the class to verify the predictions of the prophetees as to his or her own future, no one seemed willing to respond.

The Everett-Moore syndicate of Detroit have given out to the Detroit papers that they have not purchased the D., Y., A. A. & J., are so closely associated with Everett and Moore that a formal transfer would not make much difference in the situation, so far as this line is concerned, and that when all of the rest of the suburban roads entering into Detroit have been secured the D., Y., A. A. & J will be found to be in the syndicate.

The last of the ties on the bridge of the Boland road which spans the Michigan Central tracks east of the village of Michigan Centre, have been laid. As fast as the ties were laid, trackmen spiked the rails in place. Saturday the track was all laid on the bridge, which is complete with the exception of the "overhead work"-wiring. This is in progress, as is also the building of footpaths on each side of the bridge with a tight board fence six feet in height. The bridge from fence to fence, will be 16 feet in width. It is a most substantial structure, and capable of withstanding all the weight that can be placed upon It. Sunday noon Hazen S. Pingree, Jr., sailed from Southampton for New York on the Red Star line steamer Zeeland, with the remains of the lamented ex-governor. That the funeral will be the largest ever given a public man in Michigan is evidenced by the preparations which continue to be made, and the indications are that the events attending will be the most notable of the kind that ever took place in the state. Everybody seems eager to serve in any capacity in the work of preparing for the funeral and for raising the fund for the proposed Pingree memorial, and it is likely that July 5 and 6, the days when the remains will lie in state and when the funeral will take place, will be regarded as general holidays. In many windows of stores and in private dwellings pictures of the late governor are beginning to appear, with mourning decoration,

Governor Bliss has issued this gen-

"It is recognized by the people of the commonwealth of Michigan that in the death of the late governor of the state, Hazen S. Pingree, Michigan lost a distinguished citizen, a fearless and tireless advocate of the rights of the people, a brave soldier of the civil war and commander-in-chief of the military forces of Michigan, and war governor during the Spanish-American war; therefore, to do honor to his memory, the military forces of the state will parade in compliance with the following orders

"The staff of the commander-inchief, the colonels of the Second and clause forbidding the sale of liquor. Third Infantries, the major commanding First Independent battalion and their adjutants will report to the adjutant-general in Detroit, at the Russell house, on the morning of July 6,

"Brig. Gen. Charles L. Boynton and staff will report at Detroit, Mich., on the morning of July 6, 1901, and Gen. Boynton will assume command of the military and naval forces of the state assigned to take part in the obsequies.

"Col. Charles W. Harrah, commanding First Infantry, M. N. G., and Commander Hendrie, commanding Michigan naval brigade, will assemble their companies at Detroit, Mich., on the morning of July 6, 1901, and report to Brig. Gen. Boynton. Transportation and subsistence while in Detroit will be furnished by the quartermastergeneral in lieu of all other pay and allowances.

"All companies of the Michigan National Guard, not assigned to duty by this order, will assemble and parade with proper insignla of mourning, at their home stations, July 6, 1901,

The Governor's Proclamation. To the People of the State of Michigan:

The Hon. Hazen S. Pingree, former governor of Michigan, is dead, having departed this life in London, England, Tuesday, June 18, 1901, at the hour of 11:35 p. m. His death removes from our midst the second war governor of the state, a man descended from patriotic ancestry, and who had himself served his country in its hour of need on the field of battle, and in southern prisons. His energy and ceaseless activity won for him a world-wide reputation. He was endowed with a determination and tenacity of purpose which characterized his entire career. whether as a soldier, a shoemaker at the bench, a successful business man, the mayor of the metropolis of the state, or as chief executive of this great commonwealth. Coupled with this was a rugged honesty of purpose, which won for him the confidence of the people.

Dying in a foreign land, away from his home, the sympathy of the entire people will be extended in generous measure to his family, in whose midst he was always a kind husband and an indulgent father.

As a mark of respect, it is hereby ordered that the flags on the capitol and other state buildings be displayed at half-mast until after the burial, that the capitol be appropriately draped, and that on the day of the funeral, all the state departments be closed. All officers of the state and all citizens who can do so, are requested to attend upon the obsequies.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed.

Done at the city of Lansing, this nineteenth day of June, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, and of the independence of the United States of Amertea, the one hundred and twenty-sixth. By the Governor: A. T. BLISS.

Another Town Springing Up.

Micnigan has a new town. Its name is Marlborough. It is located adjoining the plant of the Great Northern Cement company, 234 miles south and east of Baldwin, or two miles by rail. The company has platted a village which is estimated to be large enough for a population of 5,000 or 6,000 people. With their new industry, the manufacture of Portland cement, they figure that it would be better to be independent from any other town They have already platted 3,000 large town lots, with wide streets. They originally expected to incorporate with the town of Baldwin, but later developments made it seem preferable to incorporate the town under an individual name of its own. The railroad company has signified a willingness to open a depot in the village. The management of the company will not allow liquor to be sold in the village. Desperate Murder at Iron Mountain. Jack Goldsworthy murdered Mrs. Mary Daniels at the Chapin mine location, near Iron Mountain, on the 21st, with a double-bladed ax, striking her on the head twice. He attacked her young son, who attempted to interfere. Goldsworthy, who attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat, was arrested. The woman died at 2 o'clock. The reason for the man's animus was that the dead woman had garnisheed his wages for the payment of a board bill. The first husband of Mrs. Daniels was killed in the Chapin mine, and her second husband met death in a saloon row Goldsworthy is in jail and is well guarded by officers of the law.

Another Gasoline Explosion.

The careless use of gasoline is again responsible for a horrible accident in Detroit on the 20th. The victims were children, a girl aged 15 and a boy aged 6. The children were left alone in the house and the daughter thought she would like to experiment in cooking. She attempted to fill the gasoline tank while the fire was burning, and an explosion followed with the result that both she and her little brother were horribly burned, the latter dying of his injuries a few hours later. It is thought the girl will recover.

Encampment Date Changed. The state military board met at Lansing on the 20th, and out of regard to the wishes of Gov. Bliss changed the date of the state military encampment from August 3 to August 5. It had been the intention of the board to have the soldiers go into camp at Manistee on Saturday and break camp one week from the following Monday, but the governor was opposed to having two Sundays in camp, and it was therefore decided to have the camp begin on Monday. It will close August 14.

Graphic Discription of the Rush of Waters and the Ruin that Resulted- Later News

The stream along which the Virginia floods have been reported to be most disastrous, is the Elkhorn, This stream joins the Tug river, in which high water has prevailed, at the town of Welch. The Tug mining location, known as the village of Tug, is five miles below Welch, so that at that place the full effects of the flood in both streams must have been felt.

The flood district is in the southwestern corner of Virginia. It is the "Pocahontas coal field." The flood area is large, apparently embracing a district 40 miles long and 15 or 20 miles wide. The great loss evidently is to property. No such number of lives were lost as the frightened natives first reported. The original estimates of 200 fatalities must now be reduced by over half. It will be days before all the small back county settlements are heard from and the exact facts known.

The exact loss of life from the cloudburst and flood in the Elkhorn river valley will not be known for days. People in that region believe that 100 persons have perished. The property damage will be large, to mines and railroads, but there is yet no reliable estimate. The flood district lies in the extreme southwestern end of West Virginia. It is the "Pocahontas coal field." The center of the district is Bluefield, a county seat town of 1,775 population, in Mercer county, about ten miles from the Virginia line. The region lies between two mountain spurs and west of the East river mountains, Mining settlements are thick, and many of those mentioned in the dispatches are so small that they are not known on any map. The storm broke Saturday, flooding the mountain sides and the little streams tributary is small, barely large enough to flush the coke ovens. It rose rapidly and Sunday the flood was at its hight. It followed the valley, traveling northwest. Keystone was the first town of any size struck. It was, or had, 2,003 people. It is located on the main line of the Norfolk & Western railway, in McDowell county, about 25 miles from Bluefield. The fact that it was Saturday and pay day in the mines, bringing fundreds of miners into the towns, is Mich. A route was also ordered estab. believed to point to heavy casualties.

Pittsburg and vicinity were visited Saturday by one of the fiercest storms known since the United States weather bureau has been established. Within 48 minutes 1.08 inches of water fell and during that time the lightning and thunder was almost continuous. The wind accompanying the storm was not high except in a contracted path a few hundred feet wide, which it swept like a tornado from McKees Rocks, through Allegheny, a portion of the east end. Pittsburg, on to Wilmerding and Turtle Creek. Great damage was done and three deaths resulted in Pittsburg.

Suddenly Called.

Adelbert S. Hay., son of Secretary Hay, and formerly consul to Pretoria. fell from the window of a hotel in New Haven, Conn., Saturday night and was found dead at 2:30 a. m. by a passerby despondent and tried to drown herself There was considerable excitement about the hotel and a large body of students and graduates who were there for the commencement exercises soon gathered. A number of Hay's former classmates at Yale positively identified the young man. It is believed that Hay became ill and, on going to a window for air, was overcome by dizziness and fell to the ground.

an illness brought on by the hardships of travel in South Africa, and shattered health arising from the severe strain of his political life.

That he was a remarkable man his career in Detroit and as governor of Michigan gives the most brilliant proof. He was a descendant of fine old Puritan stock and first saw the light in the rugged little town of Denmark, Me., in 1840. At the age of 14 place and went to Saco, Me., where for six years he worked in a cotton mill. From there he went to Hopkinton, Mass., where he became a cutter in a the factory. In August, 1862, imbued rith the patriotic ardor which was a haracteristic of his ancestry, be enisted in Co. F. First Massachusetts Heavy Artillery, his term of service expiring he promptly re-enlisted, and with his regiment, took part in the econd battle of Bull Run, the battles of Fredericksburg Road, Harris Farm, old Harbor, Spottsylvania Court House, North Anne and South Anne. He was captured May 25, 100s, by a quad of Mosby's men and sent to Andersonville, where he was confined for several months. He was then ent to Salisbury prison, N. C., and to Millen, Ga., where he was exchanged n November, 1864, rejoining his regiment in front of Petersburg. He took part in the expedition to Weldon Railroad, and in the battles of Boynton Road, Petersburg, Sailor's Creek, Farmville and Appomattox Court House, and was mustered out after the close of the war in August, 1865. Came to Detroit.

After this service in the war Mr. Plagree came to Detroit, being then 25 years of age, and began work in the the factory of H. P. Baldwin & Co., nd in December, 1866, established the thoemaking firm of Pingree & Smith, with a capital of but $1,360, with charles II. Smith as his partner. Starting with eight employes during he first year, the firm, carried forward Mr. Pingree's native energy and ankee shrewdness, grew into an institution that employs 800 persons and has an annual output of $1,000,000. He became one of Detroit's foremost busitess men, and was known as an enterprising manufacturer. He was married in 1872 to Miss Frances A. Gilbert, of Mt. Clemens, and had three children, of whom Haten 8. Pingree, and Miss Hazel Pinfree survive. Miss Gertrude Pingree. his eldest daughter, died in 1894, and her demise was one of the saddest blows experienced by Mr. Pingree. Mr. Pingree was a 32d degree Ma-on, a Shriner and a member of De-trolt post, G. A. R. He attended the Woodward Avenue Baptist church. In 1887 there was a political landalide in municipal politics, the Democratic candidate carrying the city by a arge majority, and in the fall of 1889 a large number of Republicans met upon invitation of James F. Joy to consider the nomination for mayor and endeavor to make such a selection as would regain the city to the Republicans. No Republican desired to un. Col. Henry M. Duffield positively tefused to run. Mr. Pingree's name was suggested, but he protested. "No, no," he said, "I was never in he city hall except to pay my taxes. will double my subscription for the ampaign, but let me out."

But a committee was appointed, and hally a reluctant consent was gained nom Mr. Pingree to undertake the ampaign. That was the beginning of a popular political career on the part of the ex-governor that spread his fame broadcast over the world.

Russell A, Alger was be-Hon, Haster ded in London, England, about a change of 7,000 votes over the rated by the yellow journals of the at 11:35 p. m., the 18th of June, from returns on the previous Democratic candidate for mayor.

Mayor of Detroit.

When he took the office as mayor of the city he brought to bear in the office of chief executive the same levelheaded business methods that had brought him success in the commercial world. The city's streets were in a deplorable condition. Contractors had the city by the throat. He immediately began a campaign for better paved streets; urged a rapid transit he left the rocky farm of his birth- system of street railways; a municipal lighting plant; a separation of grade crossings, and higher taxation of-acreage property. He ignored the professional politician, and let loose an avalanche of ideas regarding municipal government. In the second month of his term he proposed testing electricity as the motive power for street railways. At the end of six months he was severely criticised by the Repub-lican party leaders at a Michigan club meeting for his appointments, and there was arrayed against him many. of the leaders of his own party. He even pursued his business methods regardless of political favor, to the extent of vetoing overtime pay for municipal employes. Before the close of his first year in office, he was antagonistic to the common council, and had started a score of ideas, some of which were abandoned as quickly as started, upon their proving impracticable. He was always ready to confess frankly any error, but mistakes never caused any cessation of his efforts to improve municipal conditions.

Street Car Strike.

During the first few months of his office-holding Pingree showed very lit. he was an honest, fearless and productle of the corporation-fighting traits tive politician all admit. He was well which later became his leading char- fitted for the strenuous political life he acteristic, but when the big street railway strike took place, his astute secretary, A. I. McLeod, saw an opportunity for making a political coup.

Mayor Pingree refused to ask the governor of the state for troops to quell disturbances, insisting that the police were sufficiently powerful to keep the peace. The mayor called upon both sides to settle the difficulty by arbitration, and this was done.

Was Easily Re-elected Mayor. In 1891, when the time arrived for another mayoralty election. Pingree's political prestige had not as yet reached the point which later made him so powerful, and there was some fear in the Republican camp that he would be defeated. However, the Democrats got into a factional fight, and John Miner and W. G. Thompson were both nominated, with the result that Pingree was re-elected, receiving more votes than both of his opponents.

In his second term Mayor Pingree took hold of many of his most successful plans for city improvement. He declared for a comprehensive park system, and though his scheme to turn much of the down-town district of the city into a playground was sat upon as being too expensive, his agitation brought about the establishment of a number of Detroit's present beautiful breathing places. The grooved rails for street cars with the same pavement between the tracks as was laid on the rest of the street; new sewers were built, and the old sand and plank foundations of pavements were replaced with those laid on concrete, and a city lighting plant was established during his second term. Cheaper gas was also obtained through his efforts. In order to introduce the grooved rails into Detroit, he took the common council to Buffalo in a special car at his own expense. At his request the council engaged two special cars and made a junket trip to Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other eastern cities to inspect lighting plants, but incidentally looked into all lines of municipal work in order to gain ideas. Aside from the knowledge to be obtained the trip was a strategic move to gain the good-will of the aldermen toward the city ownership plan. When the legislature met the next year there was a flerce fight at Lansing, the electrie lighting trust fighting the bill to enable the city to establish a plant. and there were charges of boodle in connection with the measure, which, however, went through, and was signed by Gov. Rich. Third Term

In 1893 Pingree was nominated for a third term by the Republicans, and the Democrats nominated Marshall H. Godfrey. The campaign was one of the hottest that ever took place in Detroit, the Pingree men charging that those in favor of a new street railway franchise furnished the funds for the 2,400 kilogrammes, according to the Godfrey campaign, and money was speed. spent freely on both sides. The Dem Burghers Gaining Recruits and ocrats were confident, but Pingree won by about 6,000 majority, the largest vote ever given a candidate for mayor up to that time. Pingree's third term was much taken up with fighting over SITUATION ALARMS ENGLAND. street rallway franchises. It was during this term that the potato patch plan evolved. The plan proved successful and was followed in many other large cities, and earned for the mayor the name of "Potato" Pingree.

Fourth Term. In 1895 Samuel Goldwater was pited against Pingree by the Democrats, but Goldwater's candidacy was regarded largely as a joke, and Pingree had over 10,000 majority.

Governor of Michigan.

The career of Mr. Pingree as governor has perhaps no equal in the history of any state. As governor, Mr. Pingree became conspicuous nationally by reason of the excellent equipment of the state troops he raised for the Spanish-American war, and the rapidity with which he sent troops to the front. In this he was most energetic. east as secretary of war, Gov. Pingree was the first to uphold him and criticise his detractors.

In the fall of 1898 Mr. Pingree was re-elected governor by a plurality of 60,000. In '99 he secured the passage of a street railway municipal ownership bill by the legislature, and later endeavored to have the city buy the street railways for $17,500,000, and though business sentiment was almost unanimously against the plan, he carried it once through the common council, and was only stopped untimately by a refusal on the part of Owner Wil son to extend the option on the prop-

As governor Mr. Pingree secured the passage of the law creating the state tax commission, which has equalized taxation throughout the state to a great degree. He also after his ad valorem taxation law was declared unconstitutional, secured an amendment to the constitution of the state whereby the present ad valorem bill was made valid. He likewise secured the repeal of all special railroad charters in the state.

The military board scandal is the only spot of his political career that has even a dark look and that comes from those whom he stood by through it all, those whom he considered his friends and less culpable than others.

The banquet given by him in the state capitol when carloads of viands and wine, and decorations were used, marked the end of his political career.

That he wrought well for the interests of the people of his home city and the state in many ways evidences on every hand attest. That he made some mistakes there can be no denial. That led by the inheritance of good blood and a strong physique, by the very climate of the state in which he was born, and by his own rugged personality. His worth as a man and a citi sen will not be fully developed till the results of his work bear fruit.

London, June 25.-Whatever may have been the extent of the gradual attrition of the Boer forces and resources, and the consequent improvement of the British position in South Africa during the last month, the general situation has been so little altered since the end of May that reports mailed by English correspondents which are printed today may probably be taken to represent the condition of affairs now as accurately as when they left Cape Town. The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Cape Town sends a statement that is calculated to dispirit the most optimistic Englishman if it can be regarded as well founded. The letter was written about three weeks ago. The correspondent of the Mail says: "The Boer invasion of Cape Colony is developing in a rather serious manner. The Boer bands are getting recruits, and what is more, they are getting horses. They picked up no fewer than 500 at the remount camp near Colesberg less than a week ago. The invaders are swarming all over the eastern and midland districts. They number anywhere from 7,000 to 10,000 and are having a merry time. They wreck trains, kill colonists, and play havoc generally."

Recording the capture and sacking of Jamestown by the invaders, the correspondent says the amazing feature of the incident is that Jamestown is comparatively close to Ahwal North, where there were 8,000 British troops and an abundance of guns and trans- Col. At 2:30 a passer-by noticed the body of a prostrate man lying on the sidewalk on the College street side of the hotel. The night clerk of the hotel was immediately summoned and recognized the young man as the one who registered as Adelbert S. Hay. There was considerable excitement about the hotel and a large body of students and graduates who are here for the commencement exercises soon gathered. A number of Hay's former classmates at Yale positively identified the young man. CUBA AND PHILIPPINE NEW!

According to Gen. Emilio Nunez, civil governor of the province of Havana, the Cubans are well-pleased with the existing state of affairs. He says that the acceptance of the Plattamendment has greatly improved the situation.

Civil government will be established in the Philippine islands on July 4. Judge Wm. H. Taft will be designated as civil governor. He will remain at the head of the Philippine commission which is to be continued. The order creating him civil governor will be issued by the President through the secretary of war.

The Philippine mail on the 17th brought to the war department at Washington the records in 11 cases wherein Filipinos were tried by military commissions on charges including murder, rape, kidnaping, assault and battery, burglary and violations of the rules of war. The leaders select their victim, capture and carry him away in the night to a secret rendezvous on a sandy beach where a grave has been prepared Here, in the presence of the assembled band, helpless men and women from time to time have been stabbed to death and tossed into the graves. Ten members of the band, including two of the chiefs, were tried before a military commission and eight of them sentenced to be hanged.

Our Trade With the Philippines.

An increase of 21 per cent in imports and 149 per, cent in Philippine commerce is shown in a comparative statement made public on the 17th by the division of insular affairs, war department, setting forth the trade returns for the first 10 months of 1930, as compared with the same period for the preceding year. The total value of merchandise imported into the Philippines from January to November of 1900 was $20,143,152, against $16,644.568 for the same period of 1899. The value of the exports from the Philippines during the 1900 period is set down at $19 372,830, against $12,-975,605 in 1899. The greater part of the imports came from Europe and Asiatic countries, although this trade with the U. S. showed an increase of $521,367, or 43 per cent Exports to the U.S., however, showed a falling off of $975,627.

Revenue Stamps Off.

July 1 the new international revenue law goes into effect. Many of the stamp taxes are repealed. After that date the public will not have to stick stamps on bank checks, drafts, bills of lading, telegrams, telephone messages and sundry other documenas. Altogether stamp taxes on 26 articles will be abolished, and it is estimated that the government revenue will be cut down about $45,000,000. Claims for the redemption of stamps must be prepared in the district where the claimant resides and forwarded by the collector of that district to the internal revenue bureau. A circular of the bureau states that "under the law and regulations all stamped instruments and all imprinted checks, drafts, etc., presented for the redemption of the stamps thereon must, when the stamps are redeemed, be retained with the claim; therefore, no such instrument can be returned to the owners thereof."

The steamship Hawaiian, from Honorulu, brought the largest cargo of declaration not to be a candidate for sugar ever sent out of the Hawaiian Islands, 8.6 to tons, valued at $750,000.

> The Detroit Bi Centenary. The amazing pace at which interest, in the coming Bi-Centenary Celebration at Detroit, grows passes ordinary belief. The grand possibilities of the proposed plans have only served to accentuate the great-success which the celebration is sure to obtain. All classes of people are interested and even the trades are vying with each other in preparing their floats. The ladies, also, have become more than ordinarily interested and propose to mark by elegant bronze and imperishable stone the deeds of those who came with Cadillac or those who have assisted in the development and progression of the city. It is proposed to mark every historic spot in the city. The patriotic women, who have much of this in charge, will replace at the foot of Belle Isle that stone cross which Frair Caron is said to have erected in 1615 about the time that Champlain first reached Georgian Bay. The Shelby will be marked. A massive stone of five flags over the fort and town, form good instances of the celebration. General Washington wanted a man It was in September, 1776, at the City of New York, a few days after the battle of Long Island. The swift and deep East River flowed between the two hostile armies, and General Washington had as yet no system established for getting information of the enemy's movements and intentions. He never needed such information so much as at that crisis. What would General Howe do next?

If he cross at Hell Gate, the American army, too small in numbers, and defeated the week before, might be caught en Manhattan island as in a trap, and the issue of the contest might be made to depend upon a single battle; for in such circumstances defeat would involve the capture of the whole army.

And yet General Washington was compelled to confess:

"We cannot learn, nor have we been •ble to possess, the least information

Therefore he wanted a man. He wanted an intelligent man, cool-headed, skillful, brave, to cross the East River to Long Island, enter the enemy's camp and get information as to his strength and intentions. He went to Colonel Knowlton, commandig a remarkably efficient regiment from Connecticut, and requested him to ascertain if this man so sorely needed could be found in his command. Colonel Knowlton called his officers together. stated the wishes of General Washington, and, without urging the enter-familiar records of his life at the time when the call to arms was first heard. In addition to his other gifts and graces, he was handsome, vigorous and athletic, all in an extraordinary degree. If he had lived in our day he might have pulled the stroke oar at New London or pitched for the college nine.

The officers were conversing in a group. No one had as yet spoken the decisive word. Colonel Knowlton appealed to a French sergeant, an old soldier of former wars, and asked him to volunteer.

"No. no." said he. "I am ready to fight the British at any place and time, but I do not feel willing to go among them to be hung up like a dog."

Captain Hale joined the group of officers. He said to Colonel Knowl-

"I will undertake it."

Some of his best friends remonstrated. One of them, afterwards the famous Gen. William Hull, then a captain in Washington's army, has recorded Hale's reply to his own attempt to dissuade him. "I think," said Hale, "I owe to my country the accomplishment of an object so important. I am fully sensible of the consequences of discovery and capture in such a situation. But for a year I have been attached to the army, and have not rendered any material service, while receiving a compensation for which I make no return. Having received his instructions, he traveled fifty miles along the Sound as far as Norwalk, in Connecticut. One who saw him there made a very wise remark upon him, to the effect that be was "too good looking" to go as a spy. He could not deceive. "Some scrubby fellow ought to have gone." At Norwalk he assumed the disguise of a Dutch schoolmaster, putting on a suit of plain brown clothes and a round, broad-brimmed hat. He had no difficulty in crossing the Sound, since he bore an order from General Washington which placed at his disposal all the vessels belonging to Congress. For several days everything appears to have gone well with him, and there is reason to believe that he passed through the entire British army without detection or even exciting suspi-

Finding the British had crossed to New York, he followed hem. He made his way back to Long Island, and nearly reached the point opposite, Norwalk where he hand originally landed. Rendered, perhaps, too bold by success, he went into a well-known and popular tavern, entered into conversation with the guests and made himself very agreeable. The tradition is that he made himself too agreeable. A man present, suspecting or knowing that he was not the character he had as sumed, quietly left the room, communicated his suspicions to the captain of a British ship anchored near, who dispatched a boat's crew to capture and bring on board the agreeable stranger. His true character was immediately revealed. Drawings of some of the British works, with notes in Latin, were found hidden in the soles of his shoes. Nor did he attempt to deceive his captors, and the English captain, lamentreflected upon the subject. He soon ing, as he said, that "so fine a fellow reached a conclusion. patriotic. This we know from the little city in ashes. From the time of his departure from General Washington's camp to that of his return to New York was about fourteen days. He was taken to General Howe's headquarters at the Beekman mansion, on the East river, near the corner of the present Fifty-first street and First avenue. It is a strange coincidence that the house to which he was brought to be tried as a spy was the very one from which Major Andre departed when he went to West Point, Tradition says that Captain Hale was examined in a greenhouse which then stood in the garden of the Beekman Terrible things are reported of the manner in which this noble prisoner, show than first one-half of a sock, not this admirable gentleman and hero, was treated by his jailer and executioner. There are savages in every large army, and it is possible that this provost-marshal was one of them. It is said that he refused him writing materials, and afterward, when Captain Hale had been furnished them by others, destroyed before his face his last letters to his mother and to the young lady to whom he was engaged to be married. As those letters were never received, this statement may be true. life to lose for my country."

The scene of his execution was probably an old graveyard in Chambers street, which was then called Barrack street. General Howe formally notified General Washington of his execution. In recent years, through the industry of investigators, the pathos and sublimity of these events have been in part revealed.

A few years ago a bronze statue of the young hero was unveiled in the New York City Hall Park. It is greatly to be regretted that our knowledge of this noble martyr is so slight; but we know enough to be sure that he

-Irene Rowland in The Nursery. Tillie's Enitting Lessons. When my Grandma was young litt'e girls were taught to do many useful hings. Little girls thought it no hardship to wash and dry the dishes, and pread up the beds after a stronger and had shaken the great feather nattresses; and all the doll clothes of hose days must have been well made, pecause the "little mothers" were given every day a lesson in sewing, crotheting or knitting, as soon as they were old enough to learn. Une day, me summer, Grandma's mother called her three little daughters to her and said, "I am going to teach you to knit, will give a reward for the first pair of socks-and how proud papa will be to wear them!" Then she gave Luinda, Alida and little Tillie each a great ball of yarn, and a set of shining enitting needles. She patiently spent a great deal of time in showing them low to "set up a sock" on three needles, and how to ho'd it, and how o use the fourth needle to really 'knit." The upper maid, Dinah, was to show them how to shape the heel and toe, and "narrow," and "bind off," as she herself was to be away for some weeks. So every day, very soon, each little girl took her ball and needles and went away to her own favorite nook, and for some time a very lively race went on for the prize. For at least a fortnight the little girls knitted induslously; then Alida began to weary, ven before one sock was completed, and Lucinda's sock grew very slowly, hough the knitting always showed even and smooth. But how little Tilie did work! Her small fingers fairly flew; her little white pet rabbits nibbled at the ball of yarn and wondered why Tillie did not have a word to say to them. Every day she took her stool out to the grape arbor and di.igently knitted away, though the shouts of the children paddling in the brook hear the voices of her two sisters: "I will finish first," she said, will win the prize! I know I can!" After a very long time to Tillie, and surprisingly short time to the sisers, Til ie announced-it was on the day after mamma's return home—that her socks were finished; and then Alida wished she had not been having such a good time and had more to very tidy looking. Lucinda had finished one sock and it was very prettily and evenly knitted; but she, too, was ashamed that little Tillie had outdone her. Tillie laid the pair of socks on mamma's lap with a triumphant little smile. The three little girls hovered near while mamma slipped one of the socks over her hand. But what do you think? There were about a hundred little holes where Tillie had dropped a stitch now and then! Alas! and the other sock was quite as bad. Mamma smiled as she said: "These socks will have to be darned before they can be worn.

The Giant Whistle,

with guns, no fish poles were present, but each lad carried a newly sharpened hatchet, that glittered in the sunlight. "Mine's sharp as a meat ax."

"Mine's as sharp as a butcher knife." "And mine's like a razor," said the third boy, as he cleft a two-inch elder with one clever stroke,

Close by the river side, near Spook Hole, they found the tree they had agreed upon. It was a foot through, smooth, clear of branches for at least ten feet from the base. Just the kind of a willow to fashion into whistles. The tree would suffice for many "tooters." It, however, sufficed for just one; an affair that went on record as the greatest thing in the way of willow whistles. The three sharp hatchets soon laid it low. The trurk was quickly severed close to the first branches. There it was, as clean as a piece of willow as any you ever saw Then the lads began to pound the bark with the faces of their hatchets. That was an operation that required great care, for they did not want to bruise the bark; they only wanted to loosen it from the sappy wood. There was much rolling and turning of the log before that was accomplished. After satisfying themselves that the bark was in shape to peel off, the boy with the razor-like hatchet was intrusted with the delicate task of splitting the bark in a straight line from end to end of the log.

"It's all right," he said, dropping his hatchet and pulling the bark back from the cut. In a few moments the bark was pulled from the trunk without a break or flaw, They shouldered the shell and went away, leaving the denuded willow glistening in its sap and nakedness by the side of the river. It was a little bit of a tug, going up the steep side of the hill, but as they had secured the shell they were not worried about a little extra exertion. When they reached the top of the hill they laid the willow shell carefully upon the grass and sat down to rest. They felt that half of the work was over-but it was not. It took two more days before a plug was fashioned for the whistle and a mouth-end put in place. Then a place where the wind was strongest had to be found, and next it took some little time to fasten the whistle with ropes to the trees so that no strong gale might tear it away. Then they waited a good wind-but none came, boys couldn't have raised enough wind to blow even the most tiny "toot." Two days and nights the giant whistle was up there on the hilltop before it began to speak. Upon the third night the wind came up the valley, bent the tree-tops and moaned. When the wind began to blow the good people of Point Creek began to arise from their beds. Such a sound had never been heard by even the oldest inhabitant. A shrick to split one's ears, followed by a heavy bass that almost made the windows tremble. Then all would be quiet for an instant, and when a gale came tearing along a roar as of a dozen trains of cars would boom forth. Some said the last day was at hand. Others said there would be a war, and not a few wondered what it a!l meant and were not able to solve it. But these youngsters, in separate beds laughed, stuffed sheets into their mouths and felt that they were having a gay lark. A good, stiff blast came; the giant thundered once more and it never even made a tiny "toot" again. The wind kept blowing during the night, but the big whistle was dumb. The boys wondered why-and they found out when they went next morning to the public square, where a ca wd of merchants, clerks, office boys and others stood gathered about the broken and twisted remains of the giant whistle that had been blown from its fastenings as it gave forth its last "toot."-H. S. Keller in Chicago Record-Herald.

Marie, an engineering work purely American This vignette is regarded as a delicate compliment to the United States. A Canadian paper, commenting on the circumstance, asks: "Who would travel by the Canadian canal after the Canedian government gave such a certificate as to the superiority of the American lock? It is true, our own canal is a grand work, one of the wonedra of engineering science, but the government fancies the one on the other side of the river more. As these $4 notes pass from hand to hand the wistful gase of those who part with them will rest on the American lock—the gateway through which the government would direct their travels. Since they came into office the Canadian ministers have tried to forget their old disparag. ing language about our canals, and have lately spoken very favorably of these. But money talks. A picture of our Sault canal or of some other great Canadian work or scene should occupy the place given up to the American canal. This foreign canal lock depicted on our $4 bill is a humiliation to us. That picture is a record of blundering or something worse that will never be forgotten. Specimens of these $4 bills will be preserved whereever there is a collection of monetary curiosities. The people of Sault Sta Marie are deeply offended at the government for its selection of the American canal as the object most worthy of depiction."

Ambrose McKny's Case.

Rockbridge, Mo., June 24th:-The neighborhood and particularly the members of Rockbridge Lodge, No. 435, A. F. & A. M., are feeling very much pleased over the recovery of Mr. Ambrose McKay, a prominent citizen and an honored member of the Masonic Fraternity.

Mr. McKay had been suffering for years with Diabetes and Rheumatism, which recently threatened to end his days. His limbs were so filled with pain that he could not sleep. He was very bad.

Just then, someone suggested a new remedy-Dodds Kidney Pills-which has been much advertised recently, as a cure for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Rheumatism and Kidner Trouble.

After Mr. McKay had used a few doses he commenced to improve. Ha pain all left him, and he is almost as well as ever. He says Dodd's Kidne Pills are worth much more than they cost. They are certainly getting a great reputation in Missouri, and many very startling cures are being reported.

CHAPTER III.

In the sage brush wigwam the summer waned to autumn with dreary etiliness. Grey already, the stretch of brush, relieved alone by the willow fringe of the wandering creek, was cheerless, dreary and oppressive to the girl. She sat alone, while the chilling wind was wantonly ripping the leaves from the branches, her head drooped low in hopeless despair.

A shadow, thrown by the setting sun, betrayed a presence. Dumbly she raised her eyes to look.

"Ugh," said a tall, grunting .Washoe buck.

She turned away her head again. "Mahala, do you wait for Mingo?" said the man. "Johnny Shag is bigger chief. Mingo shall never come." She looked in silence on the ashes of the wood burned the day before.

"Mahala," he added, "one, two moons Jonny Shag come to take you the trai! to my wigwam. Why not any talk? Too long, you sabbee? Mahala waits for Mingo. Better look out Mahaia; Jonny Shag is warrior. To-day you better talk."

"One moon, let me think," she wearily answered. "Let me wait one moon.'

"One moon, yet. Jonny Shag will wait. Many things come before the moon again." He glided away, and again her head sank wearily down. Mingo, the Washoe, stealthily returning to Chloride hill, kept cautious ears and eyes awide, to learn the resuit of the murder at the mine. Susie. he rightly conjectured, would have guessed the truth. He avoided the wikiup, but !smained in the town. Patience with many an Indian is a virtue.

The thoroughly astounded camp officials promptly gave pursuit, but all in vain. Friends and relations of the dead man assisting, the country was scoured, skillfully, cunningly. Canyons, valleys, the shoulders of the mountains, were traversed and searched, with his life and rode like a demon to tell of the two, lying grisly and stark, struck in the back by the bullets of Shag, their faces now twisted in the sun.

A stooping, stricken Washoe, the old Red Wolf, whose boys they were that had died in the sand, departed in silence, alone, on the path of war. The might be there, wounded, perhaps, fued was his. In the night he found the man he sought, found him asleep -left him asleep-his knife standing firm, erect, buried to the hilt in the breast of Shag the warrior.

The year grew old; its days, like the hours of waking of an old and passing man, were dim and short, its nights long sleeps, that made it none the stronger.

And yet there came a day that was like an echo of what had been before the year began to age. Susle, wan but wistful of face, went from the hopeless wigwam and hurried away up the moaning creek. She went to a copse of alder trees, entered and was lost to view.

An hour later she slowly emerged and in her arms she carried a child, a little boy with fairest hair and the bluest of eyes. She seated herself in the sunlight and shivered as she nestled the infant and cooed it softly with Indian words. She was faint and weary, but strangely happy. Her baby resembled its father, young as it was. Her heart went leaping to it-embraced it-owned it! Her pain, her suffering, everything was forgotten.

All the afternoon she sat by the stream nursing her baby, cudling it closely, warming it ever in her throbbing breast. As the twilight approachaly across her shoulders. Then ed, the air was the balm of the Indian

At midnight, bending forward to kiss the downy cheek, she was startled at its coldness. Hurriedly feeling the wee soft hands. the pulseless feet, the tiny body, she sounded the utmost depths of agony.

She rushed from the shelter, the cold liftle body in her arms. By the light of the stars, the "fires of the braves," she saw the touch of the grim visitor. Then on the air of night arose a painsong out of a heart rudely broken. She sank unconscious to the earth. Away off hillward a gaunt coyote howled an answer back, dismal, long,

(The End.)

Two Kinds of Independence.

We have all met the girl with the grocers. independent air, who is apt to show a rebellious spirit when things do not go her own way. Not infrequently she is well educated and comes from a refined home, says a writer in the Weekly Bouquet. But this fact does not ners and robs its possessor of that sweet amiability which is born from the virtue, obedience. Every law of God, and every law of nature, is dependent on another law for support. The girl who thinks she can get along without cultivating the graces of gentleness, courtesy and kindness to others, is making a sad mistake, and will be anything but a success. Who knows how to obey well will rule equally well. Whether in the business or social world, the girl, or woman who influences things for the best is the one whose bright disposition deems independence out of place where progress is desired.

Home-Made Gondollers. How many citizens of Buffalo who have watched the imported gondoliers on the exposition canals realize that we have developed a race of gondoliers of our own right here in Buffalo? The dirty old skiffs down in the harbor are not so pleasing to the eye as the smart Venetian gondolas at the fair. The grimy ferry boys who propel them don't look so foreign or so picturesque as their fellow-craftsmen from abroad. But when it comes to skill in handling a boat with a single stern oar, dodging around between steamers and tugs, through narrow passages and over the swe'ls made by the big ships, the Buffalo boys have no need to fear com-

It would be an interesting and popular exhibition if the Pan-American authorities some day would take three or four of the best of the ferry boys from Buffalo harbor up to the exposition grounds, put them on the canals in their old skiffs and match them in a contest of speed and skill against the imported gondollers. I'd bet my money on the Buffalo boys.—Buffalo Express.

Study of the Moon-

It has been observed that on account of the absence of an atmoshere on the moon, and the consequent lack of gradation in shadows, the eye of the observer is seriously misled in judging the actual relief of objects forming the lunar landscapes. Prof. Prinz of Brussels has recently developed a method of avoiding this difficulty, and of seeing the craters and other 'etails on the moon in their natural proportious. Taking advantage of the fact that as the moon travels around the earth the eccentricity of its orbit produces the effect of a slow libration, or balancing to and fro, which causes its face to be inclined now a little one way and now a little the other way, Prof. Prinz makes two photographs of the lunar object to be studied, at opposite points in the libration, and then combines them in a stereoscope, whereupon the object stands forth in full relief. This principle has hitherto been applied only to photographs of the moon as a whole and not to particular craters or regions.

LONG TUNNEL ON COAST. Bluffing the Burglars.

A South Side man residing in a big apartment house, says the Chicago Chronicle, has been robbed two or three times in the past few years and finally grew tired of of it and set about devising some means of warding off the robbers, which would not necessitate some one remaining in the flat every evening. which talks in loud resonant tones for a time and then throws out a few remarks in a deeper voice, accomponied by much laughter. The record is that of a conversation between two men and was made to order. The listener outside to the costly piece of workmanship. of the door of the flat would swear two large burly men were in the room, and, as the conversation is a long one relative to the ease with which one of the men threw two other men downstairs, a few nights before, it is calculated to make a burglar to pause and reflect. A big brass horn is attached to the machine, which increases the volume of the voices, and when the owner of the device wishes to take his wife to the theatre he sets the repeat switch, which will reproduce the conversation as long as the battery lasts, turns on the machine and goes blithely

The tunnel is being dug in the Chatsworth park cut-off and when completed will be a part of the new coast division between this city and Los Angeles. The cut-off is really between the towns of Montalvo and Chatsworth Park. The Santa Susana range occupies a vast field of space between these two points and it is beneath this range that the tunnel is to pass.

The total length of the underground passage will be 7,400 feet, or nearly a mile and a half. The tunnel next largest to this is at San Fernando, the latter being 6,790 feet away. The work was started last fall and a large force of laborers is now being employed both day and night with a view to completing the structure this year.

Much blasting and dredging is necessary and machinery is being used wherever practicable. Electric lights are used to facilitate the work, which is being carried on from each end by two gangs of men and a double supply of implements. The big drills are run by electricity and a powerful blower is used to pump air into the tunnel for the men to breathe. The passage will be 17 feet wide and 21 feet four inches high above the rails.

SOURCE OF WITCH HAZEL.

The Bark Is All Harvested in the New England States, Says This Account.

It was in a drug store where they were talking about the proposal to create a witch hazel trust, says the New York Times. The manager of the store took up a bottle of the distilled witch hazel and pointed at the picture | tles free. of a lot of naked South American Indians engaged in bringing to the distillery huge bundles of twigs. From this icture the natural inference was that this was the 'ay in which the shrub from which the witch hazel or hamamelis of commerce is extracted was brought to the distilleries in some wild and hardly habitable region. "That and hardly habitable region. "That picture," he remarked, "is one of the pretty little fictions of trade that have created a decided impression. It has, I have no doubt, brought to the coneern shrewd enough to adopt it many thousands of dollars in profit. But it was all a 'fake,' as we call such things nowadays. As a matter of fact, the great bulk of all the witch hazel distilled is made in factories along the line of the Shore Line division of the Serv York & New Hayen road. The savages that bring the bark to the factories bring it in farm wagons. The nearest they come to being untutored savages is when they are at their homes engaged either as country farmers or charcoal burners. There has always seemed to be a great mystery about this popular astringent that is used in about every home in the country. Few know or stop to think that it is distilled from the bark of one of the most common of our wild shrubs.

"My family depend on my earnings here," replied the old man.

"Then get a clean shave and return as another man to-morrow, was the reply. "I will hire you over again."

"Who is the new porter?" inquired the proprietor two days later. "I don't know his name," said the clerk, "but he seems to know his business."

"That's so," replied the owner of the hotel. "He's a good deal more spry than that old man we had."
