WRONGFULLY ACCUSED.

Crime He did not Commit.

Detroit Journal: The case of a man, who was convicted by a Michigan court of a murder which he never committed, and sentenced to prison for life, is recalled by the renewed efforts to obtain a pension for Henry B. Clevland, who lives in a little shanty in the woods near Midland, and who says he is a cousin of Grover Cleveland.

In the late summer 1863 Cleveland joined the 1st Michigan sharpshooters in company with other recruits at Chicago. Col. C. V. DeLand of Jackson was la command. Some weeks later a news paper from Detroit brought the account of the murder of a man named Depew in Chelsea. The body was found in the back yard of a house of doubtful reputation, and immediately large rewards were offered for the detection of the Circumstances as well as men conspired against Cleveland DeLand says that his record as a soldler was not without reproach, and that he was suspected of too close a friendship with a gang of bounty jumpers.

A few days later a deputy sheriff and a so-called detective drifted into camp with a warrant for Cleveland's arrest, under a charge of murdering Depew. Col. DeLand says that Cleveland had been had not yet been brought out, DeLand E. G. Updegrove, labor on street, saw no reason for refusing to surrender P. Haner, labor on street, alm, supposing, of course, that he would Wm, Faber, labor on street, be given a fair trial.

So ther took the man back to Ann Arbor, and locked min up. Some days later, Col. DeLand got a letter from Cleveland's lawyer. It was to the effect that the murder had been committed on Aug. 10.

That proved Cleveland's innocence to the satisfaction of the colonel, because there was no doubt that on that day Cleveland had been doing guard duty O. W. Shipman, 2 cars coal, with his regiment at Chicago. The regimental records showed it, and if they attested the fact.

Col. DeLand sent Sergt. Charles Dawson of Co. G, to Ann Arbor, to attend the Total of roll, $822,506. examination, but his testimony did not seem to weigh with the justice. Several rough looking men swore to his presence in the vicinity of Chelsea, and a woman swore positively that she had been in Cleveland's company, and had seen him commit the murder. Despite the sergeant's testimony he was held for trial.

At that time, it is said, a gang of bounty jumpers had their head quarters at Dexter, Received from water, Lyndon, Williamston and Fowlerville. Cleveland said years afterward that the man who caused his arrest, was the chief of the gang, who were accustomed to take men to a recruiding office, enlist them, get their bounties and depart. Then as soon as possible the men deserted, returned to the gang's retreat and lay low there until by some change of appearance they were in shape to enlist again, and take another bounty. The victim of the crime was wealthy farmer. It is not unlikely that he was murdered by one of the bounty jumpers, and Cleveland believes that in order to divert suspicion from themselves and at the same time gain the reward,

It was not until June of the following year, that Cleveland was brought up for trial, and by that time the regiment was in the thick of the campaign before Petersburg. A number of men who knew the facts were dead, or disabled.

they resolved to fasten the crime on him.

So Cleveland, absolutely innocent o the crime charged against him, was convicted and sent up for life. The news did not reach the regiment at the front until the following December, and the war had been long over before final action was taken in his case. Judge Jonathan L. Videto of Jackson presented to B. Schwikerath Gov. Henry H. Crapo a letter of introduction from Austin Blair, in which he briefly stated the particulars of the Cleveland case. A voluminous document from Col. DeLand contained full particulars as above given. Numerous affidavits from members of the regiment bore unmistak able evidence to Cleveland's presence in camp on the day of the murder, and of his being constantly in their sight. Even the judge who tried the case declared that he was not satisfied that Cleveland was the murder. On the 20th day of February, 1867, Cleveland was pardoned by Gov. Crapo and released from prison, fully acquitted

Since then he has tried many times to get a pension, but has never succeeded.

The Great Northwest's First White Child One of the most remarkable proofs of he amazing growth of that vast region of our country commonly called the Northwest, with its no

A Great Strike.

A definite order for a general strike of all union sheet steel workers was issued by President T. J. Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers, Saturday. There are over 20,000 men affected by this order and every mill operated by the American Sheet Steel Co., where union men are employed throughout the country, will close down indefinitely, or until such time as a settlement of the matters in dispute has been reached. The men explain their demand for the unionizing of all the mills of the combine by stating that last year the combine had taken advantage of its position in having the non-union mills by operating them first and leaving organized mills idle until pressure of business forced them to start them.

It is generally agreed that the real test of strength between the combine and the workers will not be made until after the warm weather. During July and August there will be no strike benefits paid the men out of work, as these two months are used by sheet mills like all other iron plants for repairs. After September 1, if the scale is not signed the Amalgamated Association will be called on for the support of the idle men.

STEAMER WRECKED.

The steamer Lusitania from Liverpool, June 18, for Montreal, having 500 passengers on board, was wrecked Tuesday night off Cape Ballard, on the coast of Newfoundland, about 60 miles south of St. Johns. The Lusitania was bound round Cape Race for Montreal, with a large cargo and a ship load of passengers. She mistook her course in a dense fog and went ashore. The passengers, who are mostly emigrants, were panic-stricken. They stampeded and fought for the boats, but were overcome by the officers and crew, who secured control after great trouble and a prolonged struggle with the rougher element among the passengers, who used knives. The women and children were first landed and the men followed. The crew stood by the ship. There is a report that one hoat was west and persons drowned. The women and children rescued were almost naked. Drenched with spray, they were pulled up the cliffs by the coast people. Some Only about twenty horses can be killed of the boats were demolished in the and disposed of daily at the present surf while attempting to land and slaughter house, and it is estimated their half-drowned occupants held on that a place with a killing capacity of the rocks, suffering with cold, until finest in the west,

When the account was opened the bank put up $250,000 in government bonds as security. The bank has on deposit $207,-000 of postal funds. It is said that the bank's heavy debt balance was the result of the news of the bank's embarrassment on Tuesday being telegraphed throughout the country. Interior institutions having moneys deposited with the Seventh drew on the bank, and these drafts, all coming in at the same time, were too much for the institution.

He Sat Under the Tree.

He left his old life behind him, as though it was a thousand miles away. He wore what the college boys had once dubbed "hand-me-downs" and a cheap suit of that clothing. His personal belongings were all in a small and cheap trunk. The room he occupied was like a dr. goods' box, walls, floor and door of unpainted pine. A strip or two of rag carpeting partially covered the floor. There was a cheap iron bed, a cheaper table and washstand covered with white oilcloth. He was expected to "wait on himself" which meant to fill his water pitcher from the cistern and make his own bed except on Saturday when the housekeeper from below took possession and cleaned things up.

From the window at which he wrote on a small table with wobbling legs the panorama of life unfolded to Cecil Van Vliet's wondering eyes, He saw the daily routine of life among the great struggling masses, he saw suffering, merriment, misery, death and the happiness of the youthful and careless. In the small yard below the German woman spaded and sowed seed and set out plants and vines. He often went down to help her and was rewarded by hot bread and coffee. He took long long walks and lunched or dined at wayside places. Sometimes he rode on hay wagons passing in and out and sometimes he walked miles under the starlit heavens, almost feeling his way 1 the dark and yet with a consciousness that never before had he been

In a month the old life had fallen from him. The charm of simplicity was with him day and night. This return to primordial things had awakened the truest life in him-and while he grew more robust and the color came into his face, he drank in real life as a thirsty man takes long draughts of water. In behind the slope but quite out of sight of the white cottage lay the being constantly, employed in the man, murd mounted by a bell which calls the fuctering colored as the children over the green sward and the trim form of the Little Teacher, She had smooth brown hair and blue eyes, cheeks red as roses and she wore print gown such as Cecil Van Vilet had never seen before. When she sang with the children it was in such a sweet and happy voice that it thrilled the heart like a wild bird's song. That was the resson he liked to stay where he could hear it-and he so often sat on the bench under the beech trees that the teacher, as well as the children, came to know him.

To them, as to his cottage housewife, he was a medical student, living cheap over the summer. Even that made the people somewhat in awe of him.

The Little Teacher lived in the brown farm house that had survived the tidal wave of progress. After a time Cecil walked home with her and sat with her under the low brown porch. The martins built in boxes nailed there for them. Roses that seemed to hold the perfume as well as all the wealth of color in the air and sunshine nodded from bushes that were rooted deep and strong. The old life was a dream, but Cecil lived in a dream.

All that he had written of a suppositious suburban life had long since been burned. What he wrote to replace it was alive and human-it was what he saw, what he felt, what was and is. The Little Teacher's simple existence, the joy, the sorrow of every day was painted with the zest and interest and charm of novelty.

There came a day when he closed the last chapter and, his heart beating with enthusiasm, tied up the package and sent it into the great city from which he had been over four months an alien. It was the end of summer. The orchards were fruit-laden, the red rose hips scarlet on the bushes. The wheat fields had been shorn and were becoming green again. The year's work was being completed also. It was harvest time.

It would be two weeks before he could expect to hear from Mr. Morris. How should he employ this time? The old ways, the sweet ways with rest and peace. Then the armor must be girded on for the work of the world.

But first, first, he must go to see the Little Teacher.

"I cannot take my eyes from you," declared Lawyer Morris, "you are another man in every way. And ine book. Shake hands-you have made me shed the first tears I ever shed over a novel."

Van Vliet's eyes shone. "You are sure?"

"Sure! Yes, I am! I don't raind telling you that I have let a publisher have a peep at it. It's a big thing, the evel of the year. Well, I'm glad, I'm glad! I've some news for you also. Gwengolen refused Deb King point plank. The Astranhams are on the way home. Now are you happy?"

"Well-that don't make me any happier-because-because O, hang it all, Morris, I want to introduce you to some one that's waiting for me! Don't go away."

He was back in five minutes, nervous and radiant. With him was the neatest of gray-clad small females, red-cheeked, blue-eyed and blushing like a shy child. "I'm very glad about the book," reiterated Cecil, "but it isn't the book or the girl this time. It is the girl first and then the book and both are successes, I'm sure you will say, Mr. Mor-ก็เร."

For Stains on Marble.

In the treatment of stains much depends on what has caused them. Marble is one of the most difficult substances to deal with when removing stains. Even the weakest acid will attack the marble, and should not be employed except in the hands of an expert, says the Ladies' Home Journal. The following treatment will remove many kinds of stain from marble: Dissolve half a pint sal soda in one pint of boiling water; stir into this half a pint of quicklime and enough whiting or fuller's earth to make a paste like thick cream. Spread this on the marble and let it remain two days or longer. Scrape off and wash clean. If all the spots are not removed this treatment may be repeated until the marble is quite clean.

Federal Official Who Granted Injunction Against Debs

YIELDS TO HEART DISEASE.

The Dre-ased Was Severely Criticised in 1894 for the Part He Took in Sentencing Eugene V. Debs for Violating the Federal Court's Injunction.

Indianapolis, Ind., July I.-Judge William Allen Woods of the United States circuit court died suddenly in his bed. Death came a few seconds past midnight, while his wife was away from his bedside for a few moments, in their apartments in the Delano, on East Michigan street. The judge had not been feeling well in the early part of last evening, but paying little heed to the sickness, passed the matter lightly and prepared to retire. About midnight, however, he spoke to his wife and declared that sharp pains had seized him in the left breast, in the chest, and in the shoulders. He protested against her calling the attending physician, Dr. Jameson, who had been called in Thursday, but again insisted that relief would soon come. Judge Woods asked his wife to remain in the room with him. A moment later he again spoke to his wife, asking for something in an adjoining room. Mrs. Woods rose to procure the article the judge had called for, and left the room, returning a second later. When she approached the bed where her husband lay he was dead. Still hoping that life might not be extinct, Mrs. Woods summoned Dr. Jameson. The physician arrived a few moments later, but upon seeing the judge declared that efforts to revive him would prove unavailing. Floyd Woods, the only son, was notified immediately, and he hastened to the Driano. Alice Woods, the daughter, is in Massachusetts, where she went "everal weeks ago to spend the summer. Attorney General W. S. Taylor and Judge Baker of the federal court also were notified and bastened to the Delano.

Oriticised in Debs Case.

Judge Woods was severely criticised in 1894 for the part he took in sentencing Eugene V. Debbs to prison for six months for contempt of the federal court in violating the injunction against rioting issued during the Pullman strike, Judges Woods and Grosscup heard the case. On June 30, 1894, Judge Woods, sitting at Indianapolis, issued a restraining order against the officials of the American Railway Union, in behalf of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago, and the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City railroads. The order was made answerable July 16. On that date Debs and President Howard and Secretary Keliher of the American Railway Union were arraigned for violating the order. The trial was continued until September. and it finally resulted in Debs being convicted and sent to Woodstock.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 29 .- The Atlantic express on the Pennsylvania railroad, known as trais No. 21, was ditched at the East End siding, two miles east of Greensburg, Pa., at an early hour this morning. Only three passengers were hurt and their injuries were not of a serious nature. They are:

LOUISE HULLTON, Brooklyn, N. Y. J. J. HARBISON, Louisville, Ky. H. B. LLOYD, Cincinnati, O.

All the other passengers escaped with a shaking up and the injured were able to continue on their way.

It is thought that the accident was the result of a deliberate attempt at train wrecking and a searching investigation will be made. The switch had been turned and the lock broken, but the engine, express and combination baggage cars got over safely. The last truck of the first sleeper jumped the track and the four sleepers following were thrown over against the embankment. The passengers were transferred to another train and brought to this city.

ELECTRIC ROAD NOTES.

The formal opening of the Boland line to Crass Lake occurred Saturday. A party of 150, comprising Jackson city officials, representatives fron Ann Arbor, Daniel F. Lewis, of New York, and Eugene Robertson, of Albion, rode on the "first car" over the line. Arriving at Grass Lake, speeches were made by Hon. A. J. Sawyer of Ann Arbor, Mayor Palmer, of Jackson, ex-Congressman O'Donnell and others. For the remainder of the day the party were guests of Mr. Boland at his country home, Grey Tower, two miles from Grass Lake, returning to Jackson in the evening.

Speaking of the Boland road, the Jackon Patriot says: The roadbed thus auspiciously opened for business is a revelation to those who connect cheap construction with electric rallroads. The statement will be news to many that it is actually more expensive than the road bed of most steam roads, costing between $15,000 and $20,000 a mile. The copper trolley wire from Grass Lake to Jackson alone cost $16,000. Everything which money could do has been done to produce a perfect equipment, and results were everywhere noted in the smooth running and fast time made on the initial run.

When you want a modern, up-to-date physic, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price, 25 cents. Free samples at all druggist.

It is probably true that almost every man has in him certain qualities which would draw some woman to him, but it is difficult to frame a statement in general terms of "What Women Like in Men." This is the task which a very well-known author, under the nom deplume of Rafford Pyke, has undertaken in the Cosmopolitan for July in a clever essay, which proves him to have made women the subject of thorough observation and comprehensive study. TRY AND BIN NOT" -EPH. IV: 26.

ing-Aid for the Unbeliever tion Over Fraud-Herey for Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.) ashington, June 30.-A delicate and difficult duty is by Dr. Talmage in this discourse urged upon all, and esper; text, Ephesians iv, 26, "Be ye angry and sin not."

Equipose of temper, kindness, pace, forbearance, are extelled by at of the radiant pens of inspiration, ut my text contains that which at first ight is startling. A certain kind of manded to indulge in it. The most of us have no need to cultivate high temper, and how often we say things and do things under affronted impu'se which we are sorry for wher, perhaps it is too late to make effective apology! Why, then, should the apostle Paul dip his pen in the ink horn and trace upon parchment, afterward to be printed upon paper for all ages, the injunction, "Be ye angry and sin not?"

My text commends a wholesome indignation. It discriminates between the offense and the offender, the sin and the sinner, the crime and the criminal.

To illustrate: Alcoholism has ruined more fortunes, blasted more homes, destroyed more souls, than any evil that I think of. It pours a river of poison and fire through the nations. Millions have died because of it, and millions are dying now, and others will die. Intemperance is an old sin. The great Cyrus, writing to the Lacedemonians of himself, boasted of many of his qualities. among others, that he could drink and bear more wine than his distinguished brother. Louis X and Alexander the Great, died drunk. The parliament of Edinburgh in 1661 is called in history "the drunken parliament." Hugh Miller, the first stone mason and afterward a world renowned geologist, writes of the drinking habits of his day, saying: "When the foundation was laid, they drank. When the walls were leveled for laying the joists, they drank. When the buildings were finished, they drank. When an apprentice joined, they drank." In the eighteenth century the giver of an entertainment boasted that none of the guests went away sober. Noah, the first ship captain, was wrecked-not in the ark, for that was safely landed-but he was wrecked with strong drink, Every man or woman rightly constructed will blush with indignation at the national and international and hemispheric and planetary curse. It is good to be aroused against it. You come out of that condition a better man or a better woman. Be ye angry at that abomination, and the more anger the more exaltation to character. But that aroused feeling becomes sinful when it extends to the victim of this great evil. D.unkenness you are to hate with a vivid hatred: but the drunkard you are to pity, to help to extricate, Prostrated by Alcoholism.

Just take into consideration .that there are men and women who once were as upright as yourself who have been prostrated by alcoholism. Perhaps it came of a physician's prescription for the relief of pain, a recurrence of the pain calling for a continuance of the remedy; perhaps the grandfather was an inebriate and the temptation to inebriety, leaping over a generation, has swooped on this unfortunate; perhaps it was under an attempt to drown trouble that the benumbing and narcotic liquid was sought after; perhaps it was a gradual chaining of the man with the beverage which was thought to be a servant, when one day it announced itself master. Be humble now, and admit that there is a strong probability that under the same circumstances you yourself might have been captured. The two appropriate emotions for you to allow are indignation at the intoxieant which enthralled and sympathy for the victim. Try to get the sufferer out of his present environment: recemmend any hygienic relief that you know of and, above all, implore the divine rescue for the struggle in which so many of the noblest and grandest have been worsted. Do not give yourself up to too many philippics about what the man ought to have been and ought to have done. While your cheek flushes with wrath at the foe that has brought ruin, let your eye be moistened with tears of pity for the sufferer. In that way you will have fulfilled the injunction of the text, "Be ye angry and sin not."

The Spirit of Gambling.

In Spain a don lost in 24 hours what equals $12,000,000. Twenty years ago it was estimated that the average gambling exchange of money throughout Christendom exceeded $123,100,000,000 a year. But statistics 20 years ago would be tame compared with the present statistics if we could find any one able enough at figures to tabulate them. It is all the same spirit of gambling, whether the instruments are eards or the clicking chips or the turnnever owned and fail because they eanker tells me that he thinks 50,000 the wardrobe be denied replenishment, find in obsequies at wh

Can you hear the story of the unprin-ipled manipulators of stocks and of the devices of the gambling saloon to entrap the verdant and unsuspicious without having your pulses tingle, and your heart thump, and your entire nature shocked with the villainy? If so, you are not much of a man or much of a woman, You ought to be angry, for there is no sin in such vehement dislike. You ought to be so angry that you could not repress your feelings in the presence of young men who are just forming their life theories. In every secially upon those given to quick possible way you ought to denounce such stupendous robbery. Let it be known that the only successful game in which a man plays for money is the one which a man loses all and > Indignation Over Fraud. There is another sin that we are oftentimes called to be angry with, and that is fraud. We all like honesty, and when it is sacrifiedd we are vehement in denunciation. We hope that the detectives will soon come upon the track of the absconding bank official, of the burglar who blew up the safe, of the clerk who skillfully changed the figures in the account book, of the falsifier who secured the loan on valueless property, of the agent who because of his percentage wrongfully admits a man to the benefit of a life insurance policy when his heart is ready to stop and who comes from an ancestry characteristically short lived.

One act of fraud told of in big headlines in the morning papers rightfully arouses the nation's wrath. It is the interest of every good man and good woman who reads of the crime to have it exposed and punished. Let it go unscathed, and you put a premium on fraud, you depress public morals, you induce those who are on the fence between right and wrong to get down on the wrong side, and you put the business of the world on a down grade. The constabulary and penitentiary must do their work. But while the merciless and the godless cry: "Good for him! I am glad he is within prison doors!' be it your work to find out if the man is worth saving and what were the causes of his moral overthrow. Perhaps he started in business life under a tricky firm, who gave him wrong notions of business integrity, perhaps there was a combination of circumstances almost unparalleled for temptation; perhaps there were alleviations; perhaps he was born wrong and never got over it; perhaps he did not realize what he was doing, and if you are a merciful man you will think of other perhaps which, though they may not excuse; will extenuate. Perhaps he has already repented and is washed in the blood of the Lamb and misdemeanor, but you are hopeful for the recovery of the recalcitrant. Blessed all prison reformers! Blessed are those governors and presidents who are glad when they have a chance to pardon! Blessed the forgiving father who welcomes home the prodigal. Have a lightning in your eye and a flush in your cheek and a frown on your brow for a dastardy that would blot out the sun and moon and stars of Christianity and leave all things in an arctic night, the cold equal to the darkness. You do well to be angry, but how about those who have been flung of scepticism, and that is more millions than you will ever know of until the judgment day reveals everything. Ah, here comes your opportunity for gentleness, kindness, and sympathy, probability is that if you had been plied with the same influence as this unbeliever there would not be a Bible in all your house from cellar to attic. Perall your house from collar to attic. Perhaps he was in some important transaction swindled by a member of the church whose taking of the sacrament was a sacrilege. A man thoroughly mad can say enough in two minutes to damage him for 20 years, It took only five minutes for the earthquake to destroy Caracas. One unfortunate sentence uttered in affront in a speech in the United States senate shut forever the door of the White House against one of the most brilliant men of the last century. You can never trust a horse that has once run away, and you do not feel like trusting a man who has just once lost his equilibrium, You need to drive your temper as a man drives a fractious span amid the explosions of a pears, dwarf, fifteen feet; plums, eight-Fourth of July morning or the pyrotechnics of the Fourth of July night, with curbed bit, taut rein, commanding voice—mastering yourself and mastering what you drive. If you are naturally high tempered, do not unnecessarily go among irritations and provocations. Do not build a blast furnace next to a gunpowder mill. Then, also, such demonstrations of ungovernability belittle one. Men take out their lead pencils and in estimating such a one take 50 per cent off. About the most hideous spectacle on earth is an angry man or woman burning not with anger commanded in my text, but with the sin represented. After such a display of gall, irrascibility, virulence, his influence with many is forever gone. The world is full of polit cians, doctors, lawyers, merchants, mechanics, ministers, housewives, who have by such explosions been blown to pieces.

I say to all young men hoping to achieve financial, moral or religious success-control your tempers. Do not let criticism or defeat rebuff you. Verdi. the great musician, applied to becom? a student in the Conservatory of Music at Milan and he was rejected by the director, who said that he could make nothing of the newcomer, as he showed no disposition for music. But the criticism did not exasperate or defeat him. The most of those who have largely succeeded in all departments were characterized by self control. In battle they would calmly look at the bemb thrown at their feet, wondering whether it would explode. In commercial life, when panics smote the city, these men were placid, while others were yelling themselves hoarse at the Stock Exchange. While others nearly swooned because a certain stock had gone 100 points down they calmly waited until it would get 100 points up. While the opposing attorney in the courtroom frothed at the mouth with rage because of something said on the other side, he of the equipoise put a glass of water to his lips in refreshment and proceeded with the remark, "As I was saying when the gentleman interrupted me." is as sure of heaven as you are. What Self control! What a glorious thing! We want it in the doctor feeling the ing my text. You were angry at the pulse of one desperately ill, we want it in the engineer when the headlight of another train comes round the curve on the same track. We want it in Christian men and women in times when so much in church and state seem going to demolition-self control! What are you going to be good for, O man or woman in a world like this, ever and anon your dander up, and so often in the sulks? We admit tuat you have many things to stir your blocd and fill you with wholesome indignation, but going to such extremes you offend my text, which says you must discriminate and not lose your selfcontrol, "Be ye angry and sin not."

Mercy for the Sinner.

Surpassing all other characters in the world's biography stands Jesus Christ, wrathful against sin, merciful to the sinner. Witness his behavior toward the robed ruffians who demanded capital punishment for an offending woman-denunciation for their sinful hypocrisy, pardon for her sweet penitence. He did not speak of Herod as "his majesty' or "his royal highness," but dared to compare him to a cunning fox, saying "Go ye ard tell that fox." But, alert to the cry of suffering, he finds ten lepers, and to how many of the ten awful invalids did he give convalescence and health? "And the Lord looked upon Peter, and Peter went out and wept bitterly." Oh, what a look it must have been to break down the swarthy fisherman apostle! It was such a hurt look such a beseeching look, such a loving look, such a forgiving look! Was there in any other being since time began such a combination of wrath against wrong and compassion for the wrong doer? "Lion of Judah's tribe!" Hear that! "Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world!" Hear that!

Former Lady of White House.

Miss Letifia Semple, daughter of President Tyler, and so a former mistress of the white house, is living in Washington and was present at the reception given to Mrs. Daniel Manning and the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was spoken of as "the little lady in black, with a quaker bonnet," for few knew her. She has for years been an inmate of the Louise home, established by Banker Corcoran in memory of his wife and daughter and endowed for the benefit of gentlewomen of southern birth who are in reduced circumstances.

Distance of Plant'ng.

Prof. L. R. Taft says: In setting trees the following distances will be found desirable under ordinary conditions. Apples, thirty-five to forty feet; pears, standard, twenty-five feet een to twenty feet; peaches, twenty feet; cherries, sweet, twenty-five feet; cherries, sour, twenty feet; grapes, ten by ten to ten by twelve feet for strong growing sorts and eight by ten to ten by ten for the weak growing varieties; blackberries eight by three feet to eight by five feet for large sorts, and seven by three feet for the small sorts; raspberries seven by three feet to eight by four feet for the tall growing varieties, and six by three to seven by three feet for the smaller sorts; currents and gooseberries, six by six feet if in squares, or seven to eight feet by five feet in the rows, and the English varieties of gooseberries as close as five by five feet; strawberries, three and one-half to four, by one and onehalf to two feet, for matted row planting, and for hill culture twenty inches to two feet or two and one-half feet if arranged in squares, or three to three and one-half feet between the rows, with the plants twelve to eighteen inches apart. While the longer distances may seem a waste of room, the trees and plants, when full grown, will occupy the entire space, if given good care, on strong soil, and not only will it greatly assist in cultivating, as it will make the use of the larger tools possible, but, especially in dry seasons, the fruit will be much larger and better colored.

Where fungous diseases are troublesome, the planting of trees at a good distance apart will permit the entrance of the sun's rays and the circulation of the air between the trees and lessen the injury from disease. While it may be admissible under some conditions we advise against the planting of fruits of various kinds upon the same ground. Some persons seem to think that the planting of peaches between apples, and then setting raspberries or blackherries between the peaches, and strawberries between the rows of raspberries will effect a saving of space, but although it may be followed to some extent in the fruit garden, the practice is not ordinarily advisable in commercial plantations, as, even while the trees are small, they do not require the same care and none of them will do as well as if planted by themselves. Within a short time the roots of the trees will occupy the ground and nothing should be allowed to interfere with their growth. Even though the intermediate trees and plants are set with an idea of removing them before the trees need the space, it seldom happens that this is done until after some injury has been caused. While we do not recommend it as a desirable practice, it will be less objectionable to plant early-bearing and short-lived varieties of apples between the rows, or at least in the rows with the trees, of slow-growing, late-bearing kinds like Northern Spy. Where the permanent trees are planted forty feet apart, it will generally be a dozen or fifteen years before there would be any very serious injury, if trees of Wagener, Jonathan and some of the other varieties were placed between them, so as to have the ground occupled by trees located twenty feet apart each way. In doing this, nowever, the supplying of the proper amount of plant food to make up for the increased drain upon the ground must not be negrected, and before the trees become so large that the branches interlace, the intermediate trees should be removed. If this is done, there will be comparatively little injurious effect upon the growth of the permanent trees, and the crops secured from the "fillers" up to the time of their removal should several times repay the entire cost of the orchard at that time.

Dipping Sheep.

The dipping of sheep is an annual duty for every sheep breeder to follow or should be so considered. Many shepherds from laziness or some other similarly senseless reason or none, neglect to dip their sheep with the result that they lose a good deal of growth that might otherwise be set down toprofit and also run the risk of getting skin disease among their sheep which will be found very hard to eradicate after it has once become well rooted. There was a time when the dipping of sheep was rather a formidable undertaking for the reason that people did not have the proper appliances and at the same time had to concoct wonderful brews of dope in which to imthat time the dipping tank with its runways and dripping platforms was unknown and dips used were largely home productions of a highly poisonous character. Numbers of sheep were poisoned annually, some from absorption of arsenic or corrosive sublimate. others from taking the arsenic into their stomache while grazing pastures where sheep had been turned out after dipping in arsenical dips. Nowadays the construction of proper dipping tanks is well understood and there are market which merely require the addition of water to make them ready for effective work either for the destruction of ticks or for the cure of scab. Of the dips referred to the most easily prepared for use are those made from tar and of these may be cited the lective has the draw back of detrimental to the W other hand there are many who claim with good reason that dips of the tarproduct variety are a positive advantage to the wool in that they keep it oft and full of vigor and when us after shearing stimulate a rapid and healthy growth. That noted authority upon sheep Richard Gibson of Canida advises that sheep should be dipped three times a year not because there will be three crops of ticks, but because increase of both wool and mutton will result. He adds:"A rich man may discard the use of dip; a poor man cannot afford to do so." This is a fair view of the matter and we are strongly of the opinion that any reader of this paper who has not made it a practice to dip his sheep at least once a year will find it a very profitable practice to follow in the future. The best time to dip sheep is just after shearing in that the dip then gets into closer contact with the skin and will therefore prove most effective both in destroying any ticks that may be present, curing skin trouble which may be in the incipient stage and in stimulating a fresh growth of healthy, long stapled wool. At this time too all of the young lambs should be dipped for the reason that the ticks The scalp I have taken, use it to will have largely migrated to their your moccasins."-Open Court. tender bodies causing untold misery and at the same time retarding growth and health. It has further been found that where sheep and lambs are properly dipped at the season of the year indicated that the dip will retain sufficient strength for some time to keep away both gad flies-whose larvae enter the nostrils causing the grubs which later torment the victims and even lead to fatal results in some instances, and the other common fly which deposits eggs about the anus or in any sores that may exist upon the body, later producing a crop of horrid maggots which prove a source of suffering and emaciation to the sheep and disgust to the owner. Viewed from every standpoint we can think of the dipping of sheep is sensible and hygienic.

Observations on Southern Hor leuiture The question of transportation of fruit is the great one at present. In northern Alabama and in some parts of southern Tennessee the strawberries were rotting on the vines this spring at a time when they were selling for 15 cents per box in Chicago. They had been picked to supply the local demand till the prices fell to a point where picking was no longer profitable. The price was low because the growers were virtually cut off from a market. Within a few hours from that time the writer was in Atlanta wher berries were selling from wagons at from 7 to 12 cents per box. The growers around Atlanta simply had access to a good market.

There are certain fruits better suited to the sandy lands than others and these only should be grown. We mention the peach and plum, the cherry and the grape, and the Kieffer pear. At Southern Pines only two varieties of grapes are being grown-the Delaware and the Niagara. These two varieties are best suited to the soil and conditions mentioned. Of the two, the Delaware probably stands at the head. This is due to the fact that it is less affected by grape diseases than the other, and als to the fact that it sells at a higher price in the market. The Delaware should be extensively g wn in the South, for it is hard to overstock the markets with this variety. The Niagara is profitable where the marketing conditions are favorable. Many of the other varieties of grapes require a stronger soil than the varieties we have mentioned.

It is said that lambing in southern Arizona will average 100 per cent this year as against sixty-five per cent last season, and this is the best percentage in two years. The winter was extra mild and sheep came out in fine condition. The ranges were never in better condition, and the grass is of excellent growth thus far this season.

"I have heard a great deal of him, my lady. He has been a terror to Damascus for a great many years.

"How many years, Albia? I was thinking that my father said he had not been long known in this section." "I may be mistaken," said A ba, trying to recollect herself. "I know that he is a terrible Scourge, and that men fear him; but I do not know how many years he has been so. It may not be so many as I thought."

"But who is he? Where did he come

"Ah, there is a mystery, my dear mistress. Nobody knows where he came from; but it is said that he is one whose family has suffered some great calamity at the hands of Horam. He is alone in the world, so far as relatives are concerned, and Horam hath done it; and so he comes to seek vengeance. He has a large body of bold men under him, and twice has he met and overcome the forces which the king had sent out to capture him. He does not rob as common robbers do. He never troubles the poor, or those of the middle class; but the rulers and princes of Damascus he causes to suf-

"Did you ever see him, Albia?" "Mercy! no. I would not see him for the world. He must be terrible to look upon. I have heard one of your father's officers say that he could strike a blow with his fist to fell an ox. and that before the lightning of his eye brave men shrank in terror. O. I should be afraid to see him."

"It seems to me that I shou'd like to see such a man," said Ulin, in a musing tone. "I have never seen such men. The man whose arm can strike down an ox, and whose eye flashes forth such power, could not harm a helpless maiden."

"Upon my life, you have a curious taste." Albia returned.

"Because," added Ulin, with a smile, "I never had my taste cultivated. Still, in all seriousness, it does seem there come the victors!" to me that I should love to lean upon a strong, bold man. If I were to love a man with my whole heart, I should like him to be so strong and so powerful and so brave, that his very presence would be protection to me. Is that very strange?"

"It is so strange," replied the slave. significantly, "that I fancy the king would feel new cause for jealousy if he should hear you say so."

"When I am the king's wife I shall be true to him, and I shall honor and respect him. I will love him if I can. But, Albia, there is no need of saying more. We will have our dinner, and then we will walk out into the gar-

Suddenly a messenger appears asking for assistance from the guard. With 50 stalwart guards he hurries toward the gates.

"What can it be?" cried the princess, in alarm.

But Albia cou'd not imagine. She could only beg of her mistress to take courage, and hope for no evil.

Ere long, however, another messenger came to the palace, who made his way to the room where the princess was sitting. He trembled with ex-

"Alas, my lady, an enemy is at our gates. The terrible Scourge of Damascus demands entrance into the valley." "What does he seek?"

"I dare not tell you?" "What seeks he?" cried the princess, authoritatively. "If there is danger, I would know what it is."

"There may not be danger for you, lady. We may beat the robber off. We will do so if we can."

"But the king told me that a handful of determined men could hold that pass against a thousand."

"But these are not ordinary men. This Julian is a very demon, and I verily believe that he hath more than human power. Still we will do the pride their most cherished possession. best that we can."

"You have not told me what he seeks. Answer me that question-answer it without further hesitation." "He seeks the maiden whom the king is to take for a wife." "Seeks me?" uttered the princess, with a start.

"Yes, my lady. Such is his avowal." "In mercy's name, good Aswad, protect me. Let not that dreadful robber gain access to the valley."

"Hurry, hurry!" cried Albia, "Away to your companions, and bid them strain every nerve. If they suffer the Scourge of Damascus to gain passage hither they know what the wrath of the king must be." "Powers of heaven!" cried Ulin with clasped hands and quivering frame "the demon must not find us."

"You are not so anxious to see him as you were" remarked Albia. "I thought your whim was a strange thinks But let us look in another dire tion. If he does not find us, we care not why he comes. Ha! See! Here comes Aswad again. He looks fright-

Aswad entered the chamber with trembling step and seemed afraid to speak; but the demand of the princess opened his lips.

"Lady, I fear that the robber will prevail against us. He is accompanied by fierce, furious men, who fight like llons,and his own sword is irresistible. His body is covered with scales of finest steel and the blows of our men fall harmless upon him."

"But the dreadful man has not yet broken through?" said Ulin eagerly. "No, lady. Our brave men fight as well as they can."

"Has the robber entered the pass?" "Not far."

Then you may hold him at bay yet. O, Aswad, if you would be blessed forevermore let not the Scourge gain the valley!'

"We will do our best, lady; but you must be prepared for the worst. If we are finally overcome you must hide

"Where? Where can we hide?"asked Albia.

"In the palace or somewhere in the gardens; or upon the mountains."

"There is no hiding place which a keen eye would not detect. I have looked in every direction. So, Aswad, save us by your stout arms."

"I fear the demons will prevail," said Ulin, in a tone of breathless sus-

"I dare not hope otherwise," returned Albia.

"If they do come, we must find some place in which to hide." "Alas, my dear mistress, there is no such place. If we go up among the rocks, we not only run the risk of being easily found, but we run the greater risk of starving." "I would rather starve than fall into the dread Julian's hands," said Ulin.

"It would be a terrible death to starve upon those bleak rocks!" returned Albia, with a shudder. "But I will share your fate, my mistress, let it be what it may." "And would not death by starvation be preferable to the fate which must meet us if that monster captures us? O, Albia, I cannot think of it!"

Before the slave could reply they saw Aswad again coming toward them; but he did not enter the palace. He struck off into a path that led to the westward, and fled with all his might, Directly afterwards a score of the guards came rushing from the pass, and when they had gained the open space, they threw down their swords and sank upon their knees.

"What means that?" cried Ulin. 'Are they killed?"

"No," answered Albia. "They are overcome, and have surrendered. See!

"Let us flee!" exclaimed the princess, starting to her feet. "O, we must find some place of refuge!"

Albia was more thoughtful. She saw very plainly that flight would be

"My dear mistress," she said, taking Ulin's hand. "We must hope for the best. If we leave the palace, we shall be overtaken at once; for the way to the mountains lies only through the park of fountains. If we flee to the garden in the rear, we shall be surely found, and it may be worse for us in the end. If this dreadful Julian has the least spark of humanity in his bosom, he will respect you more in your own chamber than he would if he found you hiding in the garden."

"Spirits of mercy defend us!" ejaculated the princess, clasping her hands upon her bosom, and sinking back in her seat. "O, Albia, A!bia, the presence of the king would now be a bles-

Dress in the Sonate.

It is not always safe to judge a man by his clothes, but dress goes a long way in certain localities. If any one doubts our democracy let him spend a day in the gallery of the United States Senate, the least dignified "Upper House" of legislation in the world. Befo' de wah" all members were clean shaven, wore black frocks and high stocks, beavers, peg-top trousers. and a solemn air of public importance privately expressed. They believed in their hearts that they were statesmen, and the world acknowledged them as such. Dignity was their chief quality, The old-timers, like Morgan, Teller. Cockrell, Berry, Proctor and Daniel, still wear their before-the-war clothes, dignity and pride, but the post-bellum regiment of politicians is uniformed in the sack suit or the cutaway .- New York Press.

The West Point of Mexico.

In Mexico experience has conclusively shown that officers and even soldiers cannot be improvised, and the very first care of General Dias has been to establish a good school for instructing scientific officers. The mixtary school of Chapultepec in its actual condition is the fruit of his efforts. Many foreign officers of different nationalities have visited that establishment and believe that it ranks among the first in the comprehensiveness and perfection of military instruction there imparted and in the severe but just discipline to which the cadets are subjected.-National Geographic Maga-

A Harmless Octopus. New York dispatches announce the mpending formation of a trust "to control the sait of the earth." It is to be an amalgamation of the National Salt company of this country, the Canadian Salt company, and the British Salt union, with a capital of $50,-000,000. "Outside of the savage countries and Russia," says one of its promoters, "it will supply the entire world with salt."

Such tales may serve to attract unthinking investors. They will doubtless be swallowed without salt by those who believe that "the trusts" are coming to own the earth. Yet in reality the salt trust must be a very harmless octopus, and even those most timid with regard to octopuses need feel no alarm. A brief consideration of some of the salt deposits of the United States alone will clearly show how utterly impossible it is for any corporation to control that article to the detriment of consumers. The known salt deposits of New York state alone cover 5,000 square miles and average forty feet in thickness. They are conservatively estimated to contain enough salt to supply the United States for from 700 to 1,000 years. There are also vast deposits in Ohio, Michigan, and both the Virginias. These are some distance under ground, that near Cleveland, for example, being 2,500 to 3,400 feet down.

But in Lincoln county, Nebraska, there is a bed of rock salt so easily mined that one man can dig and wheel out five tons a day. The deposits of Reno county, Kansas, are from 300 to 400 feet thick, giving about 2,000,000 barrels to each acre of surface. In Louisiana there are beds of salt over 300 feet thick, of unknown extent, and 99 per cent pure without refining. These are only a few and the best known of the salt deposits of this country. In addition there is always

If the proposed International Salt company succeeds in its aims that success will not be due to any actual or possible monopoly of the supply of salt. It can succeed only by keeping prices so low, so near the cost of production, that none will care to compete with it. There is no possibility of any trust octopus, no matter how large, grasping the world's salt. That is a necessity of life which cannot be monopolized.

The Federal Trust Inquiry. If a secret investigation of trusts by the federal government is actually in serve the useful purpose of revealing the inadequacies of the Sherman antitrust law.

Notwithstanding the popular clamor for federal restraint of the combines the Sherman act represents the only legislation of that character enacted by Congress To go further than this has been declared impossible without violating the spirit or letter of the Constitution, which guarantees unrestricted commerce between the states. Any inquiry started by the Attorney General must therefore be made with reference to alleged violations of the Sherman act. That this law is inadequate when it comes to authorizing interference with present industrial combines is plainly manifest to anyone who is at all familiar with the nature of these consolidations. This act prohibits agreements between individuals or corporations where the natural or direct effect of it is to regulate mistress, and tried to speak words of or restrain interstate commerce. Two of these were suits against joint traffic associations, while one was a suit against the Addyston Pipe and Steel Company, which had sought through an agreement to control the market for its commodity in thirty-six states.

> Boers as Fighters. Captain Reichmann, the military attache sent by the United States government to observe the operations on the Boer army, has made official report which carries more weight than the views of new paper correspondents. Captain Reichmann pra'ses the Boors as men, but criticises them for lack of discipline as soldiers. He says that the Americans in the Boer army are the aggressive element in it. He intimates, however, that defeat was inevitable in any case because of the overwholming numbers of the British,

> During a stay of seven months Capain Reichmann saw no drunkenness nd heard no profanity in the Boer amps-a record hardly to be dupliated in any American camp during war or peace. The burghers read their Bibles and hymn books after the day's fighting or marching, and their religious sentiment controlled them at all times. They were horrified at the s'aughter of the enemy almost as much as they were grieved by their awa losses. They never taked to treat Britich wounded or prisoners humanely. The military attache remarks that If there was any violation of the rules of war it was not confined to one side.

Aticura THE SET

Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood, and expel humour germs. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humours, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when the best physicians, and all other remedies fail.

Assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sana-tive, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated scap is to be compared with it for preserving purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet scap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in Own Soar at ONE PRICE, the best skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

A Twentieth Century Marriage.

of the Presbyterian church of George-There was a novel wedding, says the town and a well-known resident of the Binghamton Leader, in the town of Undistrict at the time and for several ion, last Wednesday, when Miss Estella Rockefellow, of Chicago, was married by means of graphophones to H. Allen Bush, of Westpoint, Ky., thereby overcoming a strict quarantine, and being wedded on the day fixed for the nuptial ceremony.

Miss Rockefellow and Mr. Bush had planned to be married at the home of the bride's sister in New York. Miss Rockefellow came east for that purpose She stopped for a brief visit with friends in Union, and was there stricken with diphtheria.

The house was quarantined, no one beng admitted, but bridegroom conceived the idea of a graphophone wedding. He procured a clergyman and two machines, In one of these the minister's questions and Mr. Bush's answers were recorded.

The cylinders were then transferred and the graphophones sent to the bride. Robert Purkis, in the care of friends When they were set in motion she answered the questions propounded through one machine into the mouthplece of the A Doneaster race meeting in 1884 new the last of W.
