Holmes Gets Deed on Record First.

Times: This week saw a hot race be ween John J. Tuomey of Detroit, and Harmon S. Holmes of Chelsea to get their respective deeds on record covering the same plece of property.

Mr, Tuomey married Mr. Holmes' sie er and the race between the brothers-in law was very exciting while it lasted.

The property in question is the land known as the Samuel H. Holmes farm it Scio and consists of 1271/2 acres. Accord ing to the deeds in question, Mrs. Tuomey deeded her right and title in this prop erty, to her husband and also to her

On the night of July 30, Mr. Tuomey came at a late hour and requested Deputy Seerey to file his deed. Mr. Seerey saw that the document was not properly acknowledged and was lacking one witness. He pointed out the defect to Mr Tuomey and the latter took it away with him to have it remedled.

Bright and early the next morning Mr Holmes' deed appeared in the office and it was properly recorded. The morning following Mr. Tuomey showed up with his deed and it was recorded, but as Mr. Holmes' document was recorded first the title must vest in him unless the courts decree otherwise.

There will undoubtedly litigation re sult as Mr. Tuomey seemed to be much perturbed over the turn of affairs.

THE FRENCH-IRISH.

Many of Them Have Been Titled and Prominent Personages in the History of France.

France, with its MacMahons, O'Neills, O'Connors and Nugents, possesses many Irish names. The Boulanger movement introduced to us Count Dillon, in whose gardens the Floquet duel was fought. Most of the Franco-Irish, though 200 years may have passed since their ancestors left our shores, have preserved a great affection for Ireland, and each St. Patrick's day sees a certain number of them united to celebrate the feast of Ireland's patron saint. I had the pleasure of being present at one of these "diners de St. Patrice," under the presidency of Vicomte O'Neill de Tyrone, a charming nobleman, who claims descent from Owen Roe O'Neill, says writer in Gentleman's Magazine.

Among Irish names in France I may mention Crebillon de Ballyhigue, Mac Guckin de Slane, Mahon de Monaghan, O'Quin d'Etchepare (formerly mayor of Pau), Harty de Pierrebourg, Harden-Hickey (who shows his Irish origin by editing the principal comic paper of matter for the mails or for delivery, or in Paris, the Triboulet). There are a who wilfully and maliclously assaults any few names with the prefix "O," and it is hard to know how they came by it. There is a Baron O'Tard de la Grange and a Comtesse O'Pole; and I have also seen in a list of students O'Diette and O'Lanyer. Patser and Hal.

The truckman had just dumped load of kindling wood at Mrs. Oldham's outside cellar door, when Norah appeared in the sitting room and said: "A boy at the door wants to see you, ma'am.'

Mrs. Oldham went out, and found Patsey Moore, who took off his cap. and said eagerly:

"May I have the job of putting in your kindling wood, Mrs. O'dham?"

"Certainly, Patsey; Norah will go down and open the door, and show you where to pile the wood. How is your mother?"

"She's better, ma'am; she sits up a good deal now."

Mrs. Odham knew that Patsey's mother had been ill for some time, and as she was a poor widow, that the family must be having hard times.

"Hullo! What are you stealing my job for?"

Patsey looked up and saw Hal Burnet, a boy who lived next door.

"Didn't know it was your job," said "Well, it is; I do all Mrs. Oldham's jobs, and it's mean in you to sneak in like this!"

"I asked for it, and Mrs. Oldham engaged me to do it: that's all I have to say," answered Patsey.

Hal went off muttering. You see, he fiked to earn a little for himself, which was all right, but his father was well off, and Mrs. Oldham was glad to give the work to a boy that really needed

Patsey went home feeling much relieved and his mother felt so, too. when he told her.

"Hal," said Mrs. Oldham, the next day, "why did you tell Patsey that the kindling wood had fallen down?"

"I didn't," answered Ha!, with a sheepish look; "I said it was on the cellar floor, and so it is piled there."

Camping Out.

As a rule only plain, substantial food should be taken into camp. If you have planned to go into the wild interior many miles away from any base of supplies, ample provisions should be taken along. These had better be purchased, however, at the last settlement where a store exists before turning into the woods. If camping under such conditions, it will be necessary in making up your requisition to know just how much to allow for a day's rations for each man and figure accordingly.

An ordinary vacation camping out is a much more simple matter to arrange, as camp is pitched us sally within touch of some farm, store or supply boat. A camp-kit consists of various necessary cooking utensils and a stove which fit closely into one another, the whole going snugly into a camp boiling pot, the I'd of which may be used as a wash hand basin, or into a basket which can be used for marketing purposes. All cooks know the value of a brisk fire. How to build one properly and keep it alight is the most important secret of the woodsman. At one end of this space place your firestand. The other end will make an excellent baking oven. The fire dying down will leave the stone lining red hot and a floor of hot ashes on which many delicious dishes may be cooked. When you have to have the heat for a long time place the utensil containing the food to be cooked in the hot ashes at the bottom, fill up the sides of the hole around the pan with other stones and thoroughly cover it with more hot stones and timber. After the trick has been learned in the co:ner it may be tried out in the room. ing him break through the paper as he jumps. This will require a good deal of patience, but it may be done. and is so odd that you ought to try it. Another easy trick is sitting up. Begin this in a corner, too. Place the dog in a sitting posture, with his back against the wall, and keep him in that position by tapping him gently under the chin; he wil soon understand what you want. Then try him out in the room. Take hold of his fore paws, and, having raised him to an upright pos :tion, force him gently down to a sitting position. Gradually release his paws and give him confidence by crying "Steady! Steady!" Reward him by a little bit of candy or some other sweet, and you will soon have him so that he will assume that position instantly on your saying "Up!"

After you have taught him to "sit up," you may easily make him stand erect on his hind legs. Reward him after every trial and you will have no trouble about it. Then you can make him walk on his hind legs. Begin th s part of the training by making him stand up, and then gradually coax him along by offering the sweet, holding it c'ose to his mouth, but making him keep his upright position by your commands. One important thing in teaching a dog is never to allow him to come to the end of a trick without orders from you; you must not let him stop when he pleases. At the same time you must be careful not to make him perform for too long a time; you must not weary him, and thus make him dread the performance. And another thing-you should never think of using the whip, or of punishing the dog in any way; kindness and patience will accomplish wonders.

What is that building out yonder glittering in the sun? Have you not heard? It is the house of the forest of Lebanon. King Solomon has just taken to it his bride, the princess of Egypt. You see the pillars of the portico and a great tower, adorned with 1,000 shields of gold hung on the outside of the tower-500 of the shields of gold manufactured at Solomon's order, 500 were captured by David, his father, in battle. Well, my friends, you know that all theologians agree in making Solomon a type of Christ and in making the queen of Sheba a type of every truth seeker, and I will take the responsibility of saying that all the spikenard and cassia and frankincense which the queen of Sheba brought to King So'omon are mightily suggestive of the sweet spices of our holy religion. Christianity is not a collection of sharp technicalities and angular facts and chronological tables and dry statistics. Our religion is compared to frankincense and to cassia, but never to nightshade. It is a bundle of myrrh. It is a dash of holy light. It is a sparkle of cool fountains. It is an opening of opaline gates. It is a collection of spices. Would God that we were as wise in taking spices to our Divine King as Queen Balkis was wise in taking the spices to the earthly Sol-

SERMON, evating about it. Men and women go key and cultivating melanchely, and their worship has in it more sighs than raptures. We do not doubt their plety. Oh, no! But they are sitting at a feast where the cook has forgotten to season the food. Everything is flat in their experience and in their conversation. Emancipated from sin and death and hell and on their way to a magnificent heaven, they act as though they were trudging on toward an everlasting Botany Bay. Religion does not seem to agree with them. It seems to catch in the windpipe and become a tight strangulation instead of an exhilaration. All the infidel books that have been written, from Voltaire down to Herbert Spencer, have not done so much damage to our Christianity as lugubrious Christians.

Put in More Spires I have to say also that we need to put more spice and enlivenment in our religious teaching, whether it be in the prayer meeting or in the Sunday school or in the church. We ministers need more fresh air and sunshine in our lungs and our heart and our head. Do you wonder that the world is so far from being converted when you find so little vivacity in the pulpit and in the pew? We want, like the Lord, to plant in our sermons and exhortations more lilles of the field. We want fewer rhetorical elaborations and fewer sesquipedallan words, and when we talk about shadows we do not want tosayadumbration, and when we mean queerness wo do not want to talk about idiosyncrasles, or if a stitch in the back we do not want to talk about lumbago; but, in the plain vernacular of the great masses, preach that gospel which proposes to make all men happy, honest, victorious and free. In other words, we want more cinnamon and less gristle. Let this be so in all the different departments of work to which the Lord calls us. Let us be plain. Let us be earnest. Let us be common sensical. When we talk to the people in a vernacular they can understand, they will be very glad to come and received the truth we present. Would to God that Queen Balkis would drive her spice laden dromedaries into all our sermons and prayer meeting exhortations!

More than that, we want more life and spice in our Christian work. The poor do not want so much to be groaned over as sung to. With the bread and medicines and garments you give them let there be an accompaniment of smiles and brisk encouragement. Do not stand and talk to them about the wretchedness of their abode, and the hunger of their looks, and the and while you send in help, like the queen of Sheba, also send in the spices. There are two ways of meeting the poor. One is to come into their as much as to say: "I don't see how you live here in this neighborhood. It actually makes me sick. There is that uandle. Take it, you poor, miserable wretch, and make the most of it." Another way is to go into the abode of the poor in a manner which seems to say: "The blessed Lord sent me. He was poor himself. It is not more for the good I am going to try to do you than it is for the good that you can do me." Coming in that spirit, the gift will be as aromatic as the spikenard on the feet of Christ, and all the hovels on that alley will be fragrant with the spice.

Singing as a Religious Duty. I promise a high spiritual blessing to any one who will sing in church and who will sing so heartly that the people all around cannot help but sing. Wake up, all the churches from Bangor to San Francisco and across Christendom! It is not a matter of preference. It is a matter of religious duty. Oh, for fifty times more the volume of sound than has ever yet rolled up from our churches! German chorals in German cathedrals surpass us, and yet Germany has received nothing at the hands of God compared with America. And ought the acclaim in Germany be louder than that of America? Soft, long drawn out music is appropriate for the drawingroom and appropriate for the concert, but St. John gives an idea of the sonorous and resonant congregational singing appropriate for churches when in listening to the temple service of heaven he says: "I hear a great voice as the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings. Halleluiah, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth!"

Join with me in a crusade, giving me not only your hearts, but the mighty uplifting of your voices, and I believe we can through Christ's grace sing 5,000 souls into the kingdom of at, a sermon they may talk down, but a 5,000-voiced utterance of praise to God is irresistible. Would that Queen Balkis would drive all her spice-laden dromedaries into our church music!

The Remedy for Sorrow. Why did you look so sad this morning when you came in? Alas, for the loneliness and the heartbreak and the load that is never lifted from your soul! Some of you go about feeling like Macaulay when he wrote, "If I had another month of such days as I thing is needful, and Mary hath chosen have been spending, I would be imthat good part which shall not be taken | patient to get down into my little, narrow crib in the ground, like a weary

A lady of a truly masculine spirit accompanied by a small poodle, is said to have failed sadly the other day in an attempted reformatory movement. She entered the smoking car of a suburban train and sternly refused when approached by the conductor, to go into another car, observing that ner presence would keep the other occupants from smoking. One thickskinned wretch, however, insensible to the claims of refinement and reform. began to enjoy his accustomed cigar, which was suddenly snatched from his lips with the remark in a high treble: "If there is anything I do hate it is tobacco smoking!" For a time the offender was motionless, then, gravely rising, amid the curiosity of the assembled smokers, he took that little varying from $1,500 to $15,000. I shall claim her for my bride." "In truth, sire, it is as you have said." replied the minister." He spoke not with the enthusiasm of appreciation, but as one who would not dispute his king. "I trust, sire, your hopes may find their fruition. I pray that Ilin may bear to thee a son, and thus make bright and promising the evening of your life."

"Good Aboul, I trust in thy words. Ha! what now? Whom have we here?"

Then send him to me at once. By my life, Abou!, he cannot have accomplished his mission so soon. I dare not hope so."

"Let us hope for the best," suggested the minister; and before further remark could be made Judah stood in the royal presence. "Ha, Judah-do I see thee back so

"Nay, sire," replied the Israelite, "I have come to bring the robber chieftain to Damascus." "Have you taken him?"

"This is he who hath commanded the wbber band," said Judah. "Aye-and I am he whom you have called the Scourge of Damascus," spoke the prisoner, standing proudly erect. and gazing full into the face of the king. "I am Julian, the enemy of Horam, and the avenger of wrongs done years ago." The monarch, as he gazed more intently upon those features, and as the tones of that voice fell upon his ear, seemed startled by the memory of some old dream. And Aboul Cassem was not entirely uninterested. The old minister gazed as fixedly and as earnestly upon the face of the young chieftain as did his royal master; and he, too, seemed puzzled and perplexed.

"Who are you?" asked Horam. "I am Julian, the Scourge." "But what else?"

You should know what else, most mighty king. I have tried to make myself felt by you."

CHAPTER VII. At Hassem's House.

Ulin had lost none of her wondrous beauty; but she had become pale, and the healthy flash of the eye was gone. Late in the evening she sat in her chamber, with her brow resting upon her hand, and ever and anon a deep sigh escaped her.

"Dear Albia, I know not how to commence. I am a child-a poor, foolish child-as you will say when I have told you all. You will say that I deserve to suffer, and that punishment should be, mine."

"Nay, my lady," responded the bondmaiden; "you must not commence in that way. Tell me first all the cause of your sorrow; and leave it for me to base my own judgment. Come-trust me, and let me give you all my sympathy."

A few moments the princess was silent, and then she said, with a low tremor in her voice:

"Dear Albia, when I said that I would marry with the king I did not think what I was doing. That strange dream, so wonderfully repeated, led my father to broach the subject, and I did not refuse. When he talked of my being queen, and of my giving birth to a king to a king of Damascus, I thought it might be my duty to offer myself. I did not then know Ho-am. But-now-I have learned new things. I dread the fate which I have courted. I fear and loathe the man whose wife I have promised to become. When I first promised to give myself to Horam I felt that I could perform the duty without the sacrifice of any real virtue or comfort of life. But, oh, how changed it has all become. Not only does my whole nature shrink from the sacrifice, but it seems as though a fate worse than death were involved in the ordeal. Last night I dreamed that Horam was my husband, and that he

His home is in a cave which the hand of nature has fashioned in the solid rock; and his life is given to deeds of charity and good will. I have seen him, and I know that he is good and kind."

"And how came you to know this old man?" asked the princess, with some surprise.

of the stomach who are wasting preciof the stomach who are wasting precious time, and enduring needless suffering. The remedies they try only temporarily palliate the distress, but never effect a cure. Remedies for dyspepsia have multiplied so rapidly that they are becoming as numerous as the leaves of the forest, and yet dyspepsia con-tinues to flourish in spite of there all. This is due to the fact that the cause of dyspensia is not recognized as catarra. If there is a remedy in the whole range of medicinal preparations that is in every particular adapted to dyspep-sia, that remedy is Peruna. This remedy is well nigh invincible in these Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O., says:

Through an error the wholesale repeal of the revenue stamp law falled to include executors' and administrators' bonds and now a 50 cent revenue stamp must be affixed to every band that is filed with the judge of probate. Shortly after the passage of the revenue law, bonds of this nature were allowed to pass unstamped, but on the first of July, when the repeal became effective on other legal documents the revenue became operative on executors' and administrators' bonds through a technical oversight. It is probable steps will be taken, at the first opportunity, to exempt the latter, but until such time the trustees will be obliged to conform to the law.

VINDICATING A BEGGING LAW.

Drunken Detroit Youth's Shocking Death Killed by an Angry Bull-Various Bits of News Gathered Here and There of Michigan People and Events.

Promising Young Man Killed. Henry L. L'Hommedien, son of Richard H. L'Hommedieu, of Detroit, general superintendent of the Michigan Central Railroad, was struck by a train near Ann Arbor Wednesday night, and instantly killed.

The young man was a member of the 1904 engineering class of the University of Michigan and was improving his time this summer with the practical side of civil engineering by working as a rodman for the Michigan Central in this department. Assistant Engineer H. H. Adams, in speaking of the accident, said:

"It was simply a case of Henry's mistake in supposing that the passenger train would come in on the other track. I was at least 500 feet away from him and when the train rushed by me and I saw Henry walking on the wrong track and with his back to the train I yelled at him to get off, but the noise of the train drowned my voice. His attention was not attracted, at least he never looked around and the engine struck him. The train made enough noise to alarm him if he had had any idea that he was on the wrong track. "Judging from the visible injuries. his head must have struck one of the rails, breaking his neck. Besides this, his right leg was fractured just below the knee and at a point immediately above the ankle it was broken so badly that the skin and muscles were all that retained the foot to the leg. The remains were taken to Detroit at once.

R. H. L'Hommedieu, together with his family, is at present in Denver. and was notified of the death of his Impaled Alive.

Drink is given as the cause of a most shocking tragedy in Detroit early Wednesday evening, when 15year-old Theodore Pirch impaled himself upon a broken fence picket. The jagged wood penetrated thirteen inches into the boy's intestines. He was a teamster for a planing mill and had been sent out with a load of sawdust. Having picked up some companions. they began stopping at saloons and drinking till finally, as a companion tells the story, "we all climbed into the wagon and I hit the horse with a fence picket that Pirch had in the The picket had been broken I hit the horse I threw the picket away and it landed in a ditch.

"Pirch fell out of the wagon when the horse started and rolled into the ditch. He was so drunk he could hardly get up. He picked up the picket, but, when he started to walk. he fell backwards and in some way the stick ran into him." Some one pulled the picket out of him, covered with blood. He died in an hour.

It Was Funny.

A rather amusing little comedy happened in Big Rapids a day or two ago when John Larson, who has worked on W. S. Tucker's farm several years. appeared and asked Mr. Tucker, who is a justice of the peace, how he could get married. John is a German and an old bachelor and he thought Tucker could give him some very valuable advice on the subject. John was duly instructed. When he appeared with his bride he had forgotten the witnesses. Larson was sent after some neighbors. During his absence the bride asked questions concerning the would be spouse. Not receiving proper encouragement, she declared the marriage was all off when Larson returned with the witnesses. John became provoked and now says he is as pleased as a German can well be. It transpires that Mr. Larson has a very neat bank account.

Vindicating the Law!

The case against Mrs. Mary Willlams, a young woman, who was sent to the county jail, in Grand Rapids, for begging, at the request of the charity organization, is attracting considerable attention and may become famous as having no precedent in the history of the state. Mrs. Williams is the mother of a little 6-months' old child. and while she swelters behind the bars with the mercury well up in the bulb. the child is being cared for by another prisoner, who has earned the position of "trusty" by former good conduct. in the hallways and corridors, Sheriff Chapman providing a carriage for the babe. Considerable leniency would have been extended to Mrs. Williams by the jail officials and the judge, but that the law be vindicated, as there is no alternative under the state laws for begging except a jail sentence.

Killed by a Mad Bull.

John B. Creasy, aged 60, a farmer living near Three Rivers, was taking the cattle to pasture when he was attacked by a bull. His wife heard the noise and rushed to his assistance. The animal had the man prostrate and was trying to gore him, but he was spared this fate, as the animal had been dehorned, Mrs. Creasy succeeded in getting her husband away from the animal, and with the help of her daughters carried him to a building near by where he died in a few moments without regaining consciousness. His ribs were all loose from his back, and he sustained other internal injuries.

The New York Conference on the Steel Workers Strike.

NO CONCESSIONS TO BE MADE.

Now a Strike of the Greatest Maguitude is Probable With Besults Affecting the Entire Nation Exciting Events Coming The Schler Inquire.

. Fight to m Finish.

The meeting of the steel workers' representatives with those of the steel trust on Saturday in New York was futile and this dispatch sent out tells the whole story: "It will be a fight to the finish. No quarter will be given. We are prepared to spend all the money and time necessary to wipe out the Amalgamated Association in all of our mills." The Amalgamated Association is this: "All negotiations with the United States Steel corporation are closed as far as our association is concerned. We came here hopeful that the conference would mark the close of the struggle. We return now to renew the struggle. Now the matter will be fought to a final issue unless we are sent for by the officials of the corporation."

The 400,000 employes of the United States Steel corporation may feel the strike. The American Federation of Labor may call out its thousands who handle the corporation's products; structural steel workers may refuse to handle steel from trust mills and miners to dig coal for them. Unless it s speedily broken by the United States Steel corporation, the strike and its results will be felt over the whole United

It said that the United States Steel corporation officials instead of resuming negotiations where they were suspended at the conference on July 11, 12 and 13, withdrew the propositions then made and insisted that the strikers return to work at last year's scale for the American Sheet Steel Co.. and the American Steel Hoop Co., and at the scale of July 1, 1901, for the Tin Plate Co. The strikers' proposition was that the scales be signed for none but those mills which are organized and where the men ceasing to work have signified their desire to be connected with the Amalgamated Association. This modification was made because the trust officials declared the Amalgamated officials wished to force men into the organization against their will and desire.

The Schley Inquiry.

Secretary Long is having some difficulty in selecting a rear admiral to take the place of Rear Admiral Kimberley, of the Schley court of inquiry. It is said that there is hardly another officer in the service who has not expressed his opinion of the controversy.

Many names have been suggested the most prominent that of Rear Admiral Luce. Luce, however, is disqualified. At a recent dinner he said in a speech that there should be but one vice admiral, and that one William T. Sampson. Indirectly he has expressed himself still more strongly so that his bias is considered to be beyond question. Secretary Long, in his desire to be perfectly fair, will, therefore, not appoint Luce. Capt. Parker, assistant counsel for Schley, has intimated that the defense will turn the court of inadopted by the salt manufactur- quiry into a trial of Sampson as well as of Schley. He says Sampson will be asked many questions intended to be embarrassing and to show that he is guilty of some of the very things of which he accuses his brother officer.

Bold Train Robbery.

The Baltimore & Ohio passenger train from the east, which was due to arrive in Chicago at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, was held up by five masked men at 8 o'clock, between Edgemore and Grand Calumet Heights, Ind , 31 miles out from Chicago. One of the mail cars, which contained no money, was dynamited and wrecked. The train was the New York and Washington vestibule limited. Most of the trainmen were shot at and had narrow escapes from the bullets. No person was injured either by the dynamiters or firearms. Although little or no loss was occasioned to the mail, the postoffice officials in Indiana and Illinois are hot on the trail of the robbers

The Man By the Roadside.

BY WILL S. GIDLEY. Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) A man suffering from half a dozen nunshot wounds lay dying by a Kentucky roadside-a man grizzled and gaunt, and upon whose lean face was the bronze of fifty summers and many a jagged seam and scar.

A rabbit poked its nose inquiringly through the bushes as he lay there. and then at a sudden movement from the dying man turned and scuttled swiftly away.

Then a big blue-bottle fly came buzsing around the helpless man, weltering in his own life-blood beside the rude mountain trail, and after five minutes of blundering and bumping against his battered features finally settled down on the raw edge of a wound, just below the matted hair on his forehead and began patiently drilling into the sensitive flesh.

The exquisite pain seemed to revive the mortally wounded sufferer and awaken his instinct of self-preservation. His right hand stirred by his side, and then crept slowly-slowly but surely-up toward his blood-stained forehead. Inch by inch it advanced—that marled, claw-like hand—until it was on a level with the demon fly probing into his wound; and then with a sudten movement he brought it down, rushing the life out of his tormentor. "Ha, ha! I got yeh, did I?" he uckled hoarsely. "Wush I could ach out an' mash ole Cy Grandy mder my hand same ez I did thet fly! c'd die happy then. Yaas, I'd be villin' to go to hell if I c'd send Cy har fust—the treacher us, cowardly

The wounded man rolled over and made an effort to rise to a sitting position, but the attempt was a failure.

"The sneakin' ole divil has got me fixed fer good an' all this time. I'll be a dead man inside of two hours," he went on, huskily. "Yaas, I'll be a dead man, an' ole Cy Grandy 'll be goin' round braggin' bout how he wiped me out. D-him! ef I had my horse an' was able to ride I'd foller him up an' settle matters with him

He raised his revolver to a level with his right eye and squinted steadily along its shining barrel. For fully a minute he held it thus, and then dropped it to his side with the remark: "Hand an' nerve ez steady ez ever fer the time bein', an' now all I ask of the Lord in His mercy an' goodness is to send Cy Grandy back here to git his deserts-an' send him quick, before the effecks of thet whisky works off an' my stren'th begins to give out. Slowly, painfully he raised himself the red life-blood gushing forth afresh from the gaping wound in his back, but he heeded it not. His whole mind was intent upon the movements of his enemy. His right hand firmly grasped the stock of the heavy revolver, with his ready forefinger grimly caressing the trigger; his lips were pressed tightly together; his eyes gleamed brighter, more balefully than ever, and his whole attitude was one of intense, nervous expectancy.

The waiting man heard the horseman spring to the ground with a swagger and an oath.

the mind dwells on the significance of these figures it is absolutely impossible to conceive anything able to resist such a force. Indeed, nothing did. A column of granite was cut in two. The stoutest iron works were twisted out of shape, and walls nine feet thick were knocked down like a pack of cards, but dovecotes in the yards of houses, mere boxes propped up on bamboo stakes which a child could have upset, were preserved Housed pigeons huddled in comfort and were saved where housed human beings were maimed, smashed, killed Going through the trees on the morrow of the disaster it was everywhere the same. Houses with their sides rent open showing still a lamp or inkstand upon a rickety table that had not fallen when all else had been destroyed. Churches literally leveled to the ground but for a side chapel over which a fragile stucco statue of some saint had escaped the general ruin. People having lost their all, except some usel:ss bauble which had persistently stuck to them throughout the awful day as a fetich of misfortune. But the most ridiculous feature of the storm was its attack upon clothing. Insurgents, Led by a Deserter, Flee Into the Interior-President of Manila and Dagupan Ratirond Said to Have Aided Insurgents.

Manila, Aug. 6.-The towns of Calapan, Naujan and Pola, on the northeast coast of the island of Mindoro, were occupied by a battalion of the Thirteenth Volunteer infantry and Macabebe scouts after a slight resistance. The insurgents, numbering 250, fled into the interior. Their commander, Howard, who is a deserter, is hiding in the mountains, and the Americans are in pursuit. Adjutant General Corbin, who has returned to Manila after an eleven days' tour of the islands, including a visit to the Sultan of Jolo, with whom he exchanged presents, says: "The trip has considerably broadened my views, as well as affording me great pleasure personally. What I have seen should be of considerable benefit to the government. In my opinion the changes now being made in the Philippines could not be carried out by abler hands than those of Governor Taft and General Chaffee. Both have had wide experience. Both are men of tact and ability. Their duties are entirely separate, and yet in many ways cooperative. One could not very well go forward without the other. I am gratified to observe the firm friendship established between them, and I am confident that, under their guidance, the Philippines will get out of trouble into peaceful waters." The adjutant general left Manila for Shanghai this afternoon. The civil commission has chartered a steamear for a trip among the northern islands in the interest of the establishment of civil government. The journey will be begun in about ten days. Congressman Shafroth of Colorado, who has been closely investigating the question of public lands in the Philippines, urges the commission to take steps to establish the homestead laws, allowing any persons doing work to the value of $100 on government land to occupy a certain amount of it, and, if possible, assisting in stocking it. He also urges a similar arrangement with reference to mining claims. The troubles between the Sultan of Jolo and other native chiefs, which has resulted in some fighting and considerable loss of life, are being closely watched by the military authorities, who are ready to interfere should occasion demand.

Sandusky's Absconding City Clerk Returns Home in Disguise.

Sandusky, O., Aug. 6.-A. W. Miller, Sandusky's absconding city clerk, was seen here disguised as a woman. He was recognized near his former residence by Henry Damming and an attempt was made to arrest him, but he effected his escape. His wife is in New York and when lights were seen about the residence neighbors became interested. Miller stole into the city at night from Mexico, where he has a son connected with the government in high official capacity. He went to a hotel kept by a close friend, whose wife loaned him a complete outfit of female wearing apparel, and thus disguised he went to his former residence and spent several hours about the place, which has been vacated for some time, having been turned over to his bondsmen. Milbanks to his personal credit and drew was employed to examine his books discovered scores of false entries and stood in with Miller to conceal them before making an official report. Miller was blackmailed out of several thousand dollars by the expert under promise that his crimes would be covered up, but the expert and Miller had a quarrel about the final settlement and both Miller and the expert fled to escape arrest. TO PREVENT BURIAL ALIVE.

Suggestion of a Life Insurance Man That May Be of Considerable

Several insurance men were talking ately about new wrinkles in the business. "I firmly believe," said one, reports the New York Mail and Express, "that insurance against being buried alive would pay. It is surprising how many people have a dread that suspended animation may be mistaken for death. I know a woman who has actually made her husband promise that if he survives her he will stick a hatpin through her heart before she is buried to make sure that no spark of life remains. In certain parts of Europe they have what are known as mortuary houses, where the dead are taken and subjected to vari- plunge head-first into it in search of ous tests to make sure that death is absolutely certain. If such a mortuary building is established multitudes of people would gladly pay, say, $100 to be insured in a company that would takes as these are not excusable. guarantee to make the necessary tests before burial or cremation."

"But suppose the alleged corpse should come to life under the treatment?" asked a listener.

"In that case," said the man who had previously spoken, "it ought to be worth something to the company."

THE SNOB IN SOCIETY.

American Said to Be a Different Crosture from His British

The accepted defaition of a "snob," we call a person a snob the idea is insociate only with persons who are considered very smart. In fact, to be "smart," a person must necessarily be somewhat snobbish, according to the American exclusiveness is even more necessary than in places where the lines are defined by rank, says the New York Tribune. The so-called Four Hundred is, as everyone knows, divided up into any number of sets and cliques, but, nevertheless, despite assertions to the contrary, there is always one set that is fashionable paramount. That is to say, invitations from its leaders are more prized than any others, and to be admitted within its limits is a coveted honor. And here we come back to our accepted definition of the word "snob." People who make an effort to get into this society, and by so doing overlook and neglect old friends, are termed snobbish, while the members themselves, who have no desire to enlarge their small coterie, or to hide their indifference to the world at large, come under the same classification. Thackeray's people, with their miserable little attempts to pass themselves off for other than they are (and we safely assert that there are more of that ilk in England than America), we could call cads-so that the use of either term by an American Another man who is implicated in the does not necessarly convey the same affair has fled. FLIRTING WITH FACTS.

Illustrative Instances of the Way the Daily Press Gets Things Twisted.

Some funny things concerning the paper trade appear in the daily papers now and then. For example, a New York paper stated recently that the ground wood pulp mill at Sault Ste. Marie has a daily capacity of 125,000 tons, and that a sulphite mill of a daily capacity of 75,000 tons is very near completion.

Another daily paper tells of watches, chains and all sorts of jewelry having been picked out of the beating engine of a mill at St. Joseph, Mich., and says that once every week, when the beater is cleaned, the employes of the mill

Laugh Heartily and Live Long. The discontented worries of a morose person may very likely shorten his days, and the general justice of nature's arrangement provides that O. O. Buck, Beirne, Ark., says: I was nature's arrangement provides that troubled with constipation until I bought his early departure should entail no long regrets, says a British medical journal. On the other hand, the man who can laugh keeps his health. To be perfectly healthy laughter comes often. Too commonly, though, as childhood is left behind, the habit fails, and a half smile is the best that visits the thought-lined mouth of a modern man or woman. People become more and more burdened with the accumulations of knowledge and with the weighing responsibilities of life, but they
