INSPECTED THE BOLAND ROAD

TRIP MADE FROM JACKSON TO CHELSEA.

Large Party Were the Guests of Wm. A. Boland at Grey Tower, His Country Home, Saturday.

The first passenger car of the Boland ine to enter Chelsea reached this place about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. There was a large crowd out to greet the passengers, who consisted of W. A. Boland, Worrell Wilson, and a party of twenty-six Detroit men, members of the Detroit Stock Exchange, and representatives of the Detroit papers, a number of Jackson business men, Editor Carlton of the Grass Lake News, Wm. Bacon, O. T. Hoover and T. W. Mingay of Chelsea.

About 11:30 the party boarded the private car at the depot in Jackson and were taken to Gray Tower, Mr. Boland's magnificent country home. Here they sat down to a sumptuous repast prepared by the ladies of the house.

After the repast the visitors gathered in the large billiard hall, where Hon. Jas. O'Donnell of Jackson called the gathering to order. He made a very witty and pleasing speech. He called upon Mr. that he has done there.

At the same time a disastrous fire occurred at the Lexington, Ky. fair grounds, where Mr. Boland's prize cattle are on exhibition. The animals were gotten out of their stalls in safety, but all the blankets, feed and other ne cessitles were destroyed by the flames.

The trouble with the trolley is that it is exposed to storms, to the effects of lightning and to sudden derangements or breakages, which instantly cuts off the power and leaves the cars along the whole line at a helpless standstill until the derangement is removed or the break repaired. With the trolley the speed is practically limited, as it is not safe to test the wires too severely, and the frequent stoppage of cars by shutting off the current causes overcharging in local ities that impair the efficiency of the ser vice. The rail method obviates all these difficulties, and insures perfect immunity from all accidents due to the trolley

They Bought the Lace.

A number of Chelsea ladles were taken in by the pittful story told by a woman who was tramping about the vilage Friday, carrying an infant. She told a hard luck story of the family coming from the old country, and that their money was all gone, but that the father had secured work in the stove factory. In the meantime she wished, to sell a little handmade lace that she had brought over with her, and while she did not like to part with it, she felt compelled to do so in order that the family might live until payday arrived. The lace looked very pretty, and the price that she placed on it was so low-for the handmade article-that she succeeded in selling a considerable quantity. It so happened that several of those who had made purchases met and compared notes, and they soon discovered that the stores were selling the same article for about one-third the sum they had paid. They skurrled around and caught the family as they were making a hurried exit from town, and their money was returned to them. Wayne County Taxes.

Robert Oakman, the tax expert, re to the supervisors that in the assessed valuation of roperty in Wayne county was $110,693,130, but in 1896, years later, it aggregated $241,245, 915, an increase of $130,552,785, Written statements, compiled from official records, were presented, showing during a period of 15 years, from 1881 to 1896, the assessed valuation of property in all counties of the state except Wayne was increased 26 per cent, while in Wayne county alone the assessed valuation of property was increased 118 per cent. Last year the state tax commission increased the assessed valuation of the state about $350,000,000, but there is a great falling off this year. Sixty-four counties out of 83 show an increase of only $2,-324.528, while Wayne county gives an increase of nearly $4,000,000,

Vegetables Are High.

The drought and hot weather of the past two months have almost ruined the early crops of fruits and vegetables, so that Detroit housewives are finding prices greatly advanced over those of a year ago. Tomatoes, for example, sold for $1 to $1.25 per bushel; now they are worth $2 to $2.25. Cabbages were a drug on the narket a year ago at $1.50 per hundred, but are scarce now at $5 and $7. Potatoes, worth 35 cents a bushel last season, are now listed at 95 cents to $1.10 per bushel, Apples are quoted at $4.50 to $5.25 per barrel, as against $2.50 a year ago. Everything else is proportionately high.

The Kent Co. Grand Jury.

The grand jury came together again after a prolonged recess. The foreman of the jury, Henry Spring, has a poor opinion of the work accomplished at the former sitting and advised an immediate adjournment. The only matter of general interest which remains to be investigated is the alleged use of money in buying delegates to the last Republican county convention, but the jury was loath to tackle this question, as they fear it would mean a six months' session, which they are anxious to avoid.

tichigan Naval Brigade.

The navy department has received the report on the annual drill of the Ohlo and Michigan Naval brigades. Lieut.-Commander Winder, who inspected the brigades in behalf of the navy department, states that, in his opinion, the Michigan naval militia, as it stands to-day, is capable of manning and officering a war vessel in time of emergency, The Ohio brigade did not have the advantage of drill on shipboard in previous years, but their work this year shows commendable pro-

Killed the Boy.

In a moment of anger at the pranks of a group of small boys, on Saturday, John M. Farrar, a Detroit carpenter, threw a blo 'c of wood to chase them away from the alley back of his house. The block struck William Herman Armstrong, 13 years old, a the face, and the boy died Sunday morning at Harper hospital. Farrar'is locked up. He is the first prisoner to occupy a cell in the new station, and the charge against him is manslaughter.

Frequent Burglaries.

Burglars entered six business places in Camden Sunday night. As near as can be estimated about $500 or $600 was taken in all. This is the sixth of these burglaries within the last 20 months, and the people are aroused. Several detectives have begun a still hunt for the perpetrators. It is thought by many that the culprits are residents of the village.

The horrible burns and bruises which Louis Wolf received in a bakery fire in Detroit Monday morning proved fatal, the unfortunate man dying at the hospital that afternoon. Fire department officials say that had he made a direct attempt to escape instead of trying to save some money he had stored away, he would not have been fatally injured.

Frank Bailey, the midget, has changed his mind about going to the poorhouse, and will tour the state for the purpose of raising funds to recover his old home. He says he has discovered that a mortgage of $1,000 on the home is void because his wife never signed it. There is a second strike order issued by President Shafmortgage for $400, and Bailey's idea is to raise enough money to clear it.

John Graham was arrested Saturday night, charged with forging orders on local merchants. He struck Battle Creek from Chicago in the morning and in the afternoon obtained a pair of shoes at Harbeck's on an order purporting to be from the foreman of the sewer gang. Concentration of Steel Plants Which will Extinguish Towns and Mercilessly Turn Workmen Adrift A Bad Blow at the Amalgamated Association.

The great steel strike is on. The eneral order of President Shaffer, of the Amaigamated Association, became effective and toossands of workers left their places to return at some indefinite time in the future, eitner victorious over the ironmasters or in humble defeat. The order to strike was generally obeyed wherever the workers were organized and curofied in the lodges of the Amalgamated Association. The action of the executive of the mine workers at Indianapoils in resoiving to support the strike cheered the Amaigamated men, and they are confident that the federation will aid them to the fullest extent. The closing hours of labor and the opening hours of the strike lacked spectacular action. Pittsburg. which is the strike center, was calm and undisturbed. There was no excitement or violence, and the pulse of the community was normal. This action, following the statement of President Gompers, in which he promises to aid the strikers, is regarded as significant, as it is the first movement toward uniting all the organizations connected with the federation in supporting the steel strikers.

In an address to 6,000 union men at New Castle Saturday, President Shaffer made this formal tender for arbitration: "Now in our willingness to settle the matter we are ready to arbitrate. Let the Amalgamated Association select one man and let the trust select one, the two to select a third. We will abide by the decision of the three." This announcement was made on behalf of the strikers that on Friday an offer to arbitrate was formally submitted to the United States Steel Corporation. According to this statement the offer was made to J. Pierpont Morgan, whose reply, rejecting it, was: "This is no time for arbitration."

The citizens of Dubois have offered $1,000,000 to have the McKeesport mill moved to that place.

The news comes from Pittsburg that under cover of the turmoil and confusion of the strike the steel trust aims to carry out a plan of merciless concentration, the success of which means not only the subjugation of labor, but the extinction of cities and towns. It is obviously cheaper to operate one big mill than two of half the capacity. So the mills which are the foundation of many of the minor towns in the iron district are to be dismantled and the machinery moved to centers like Chicago, Pittsburg and Cleveland. There is no secret about this now; the work has already begun, and more towns are marked for destruction. It is simply business with the trust. If the salaries of superintendents and bookkeepers can be saved, sentimental considerations for the welfare of towns, or for the ruin of storekeepers and property owners near the doomed mills cannot weigh with the giant corporation. An order has been issued to dismantle and remove the Dewees Wood works in McKeesport at once. This will be a severe blow to the town. The Dewees Wood works is one of the oldest and best known plants in Pennsylvania. It was founded nearly 40 years ago, and its shops and mills covered from 12 to 14 acres. It employed an average of 900 men, but in the busiest times the pay roll carried 1,200 names. The plant cost several million dollars. The company recently announced its intention of expending a large sum of money in improvements, but the order to dismantle terminates that plan. The sentiment of the citizens and officials of McKeesport has been against the steel corporation, and it is believed that the latter preferred

It was a welrd, wonderful sight, appearing for a moment and then dissolving under the flaring torches, while on each side for a mile along the road were revealed the glittering bayonets and helmets of the Eightleth regiment of the line, of which the dead dowager empress was colonel-in-chief. The deep, muffled roll of the drums added to the solemnity of the scene.

As the precincts of the old medieval town were reached, the scene seemed more mystical. Behind the emperor followed the royal family save the la-dles, none of whom was in the procession; the crown prince of Greece, the prince of Schaumberg-Lippe, the hereditary prince of Saxe Meningen, Count von Zeckendorf, who was the secretary of the dowager empress, and other notables. Recovered the Gold.

Jack Winters, who was arrested as suspect connected with the Setby Smelting works robbery of $280,000 in Valejo, Cal., has confessed and, so far, $141,500 worth of bullion has been recovered from the bay where it had been sunk. Winters claims he did the job all alone. He says he made 14 trips from the vault to the wharf from which he dropped the gold. In view of the fact that promises of clemency were made to Winters in consideration of his unearthing the gold, it is thought his punishment will be light.

BY EDGAR WELTON COOLEY. Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) A youth and a maiden stood under the maples. The youth was holding he maiden's hand, and his eyes and the mosnlight were looking down into her upturned face. Her chip hat dangled from its strings, and her hair, yellow as the moonbeams, clung about her neck in riotous ringlets. Her eyes were blue and wistful, but her lips were as silent as the night.

The youth's voice was low and trembled, as though a sob, which he had tried to swallow, was lodged in

In babyhood these two had played together; in childhood they had wandered, hand in hand, across the violetdotted fields and along the clover-carpeted lanes. Into each other's hearts they had grown, and to each the future without the other, seemed uninviting.

But the youth was about to depart for a far country, and they were standing together under the maples for the last time, perhaps for years perhaps for ever.

Jason was a sojourner on the bor der land between youth and manhood. He was ambitious, visionary, perhaps -and the quiet country town seemed to possess no encouraging possibilities. Stories of vast wealth wrested from the rocks of Alaska had proven fas-duating to him and he had determined seek for riches in the frozen Klon-

"I will return to you some day, my Princess Mildred," he said, "I will return to you with love in my heart and gold in my hand and will build for you a palace of marble in the midst of thousand acres."

At this Mildred smiled sadly and planced up at a star in the heavens. "That is the North Star, Jason," she mid. "Every night I shall look at it

"I Will Return to You, Mildred." With tearful heart as it hangs suspended, like love's undying taper, over the ice-bound northland, whence my love has gone. All other stars change, Jason, but the Polar Star is constant as constant as my heart."

She pinned a violet on his coat and he kissed her wistful eyes.

Then he said "Good-bye," and she stood quite still and watched his retreating figure as it passed down the road and out of her sight. Thus Jason tarted on his search for wealth; thus Mildred began her weary waiting.

The brown cottage faced the country road in the edge of the village. It stood in a little cluster of trees, and from the south only the gable and one the porch, and the blossoms pecked between the leaves and through the open foor at their likenesses within. A sathway, wandering amid the shadows and the perfume from the perch to the board fence, which stood paintless and gloomy, in front, stopped at the gate where Mildred stood of evenings in the dusk and the twilight.

Beyond the gate, the road stretched. to the right, over the far fields into the wearisome distance; to the left, into the heart of the village, past the four stores, the postoffice, the tavern, the meeting house, and on to the fields again, and the hills, and the woods and the sunset.

As the darkness deepened, the fields grew more and more indistract to the woman's vision, and the road seemed to end in a mist which grew ever nearer to her.

But through the mist a star shone brightly-the Polar Star. And Mildred watched it with wistful eyes and smiled sadly. "He will return," she said to herself; "he will return to me with love in his heart."

But after two years in the Klondike Jason found himself one morning in a crowd of desperate, disappointed men, who cursed their way aboard ship and returned to Seattle with tales of hardship, discouragement and failure in their search for the hidden wealth that would not reveal itself to their hungry eyes.

Poisoned by contagion from that baser element in whose company he had been thrown during those two years on the ragged edge of civilization, Jason drowned all recollections of his Princess Mildred and spent the next few months in idle dissipation in the cities on the coast.

Without ambition, hopeless and despondent, he lay, one night, amid the sear and yellow verdure on a vacant lot, gazing upward at the sky Among the million glittering lights that dotted the azure arch he saw but one-the Polar Star.

Suddenly, like long, dead memory, with wistful eyes and golden curls, standing under the maples, with the moonlight kissing her upturned face.

Fumbling in his pocket, he pulled out a dirty wallet from whence he took a faded violet. He pressed the blossom to his lips, then staggered to his feet and strode away through the night. When one has no money traveling is slow and uncertain. But in January Jason reached Colorado.

Footsore and weary, but with the bright vision of his Princess Mildred before him, he was limping across the foothills. The air was bitterly cold but dry, and not the faintest breeze was stirring. Before him the cold, gray mountains pressed their snowcapped peaks against the cloudless blue. The sunshine fell with uncommon brilliancy, and the atmosphere was so transparent that objects fifty miles away appeared scarcely as many rods. Of a sudden he felt a sharp pain on his face as though he had been stung by a bee. Again and again he experienced the painful sensation, although not an insect could be seen. Then he noticed that a mist was swiftly hiding the mountains from his sight. A breeze sprung up and the air became a dazzling mass of scintilating particles like diamond dust. Jason paused and gazed with frantic, startled eyes. He knew that the dreaded "White Death" was wrapping its chilling shroud around him. He had heard old miners tell of the "White Death" and he knew the glistening fragments in the air were particles of ice so solidly frozen that they reach one's lungs before they melt. He knew that deadly pneumonia invariably claims the luckless traveler who inhales the breath of the "White Death." But although frantically he gazed around him, there was no habitation visible, no building in which shelter could be sought. He wanted to cry out in his agony, but he dare not open his mouth for fear the ice would fill his lungs. He took a greasy bandana handkerchief from his pocket and tied it across his mouth. Then to his agonized eyes, there came from out the mist the figure of a girl. The features were chose of his Princess Mildred, and she seemed to teckon him. He followed her and she led him to a deep ravine.

Weak and exhausted, he flung himself over the edge and rolled down the bank. The ravine led upward to a chasm in the side of the mountain, from out of which a small stream flowed. Staggering onward, he finally pulled himself into the chasm and found shelter under a projecting ledge. Piling a quantity of loose bowlders across the entrance, he soon had a snug retreat into which the ica-laden nter. Then he lay with gold dust. Jason gazed in stupid wonder for several moments, then a mist dazed his eyes and a wild exhibaration possessed him. Clambering down the rocks he greedily scraped the gold dust into his bandkerchief, and then cautionaly withdrew. A week later he was at work with pick and shovel and pan, searching for the lode from which these particles had been washed. And one evening the light of the setting sun fell upon him, picking great nuggets out of a ledge his pick had penetrated, and laughing hysterically.

And that is how Jason located the famous Princess Mildren Mine.

THEY COURT CAUTIOUSLY. Lapland Girls Must Have Parental

Consent to Marriage. Getting married among the peoples of the northern nations is by no means the off-hand, hit-or-miss affair which it is with too many people in this blessed country of the free. In Norway before a woman can marry it is necessary, under a law recently passed, that she hold a certificate of housewife ability. She must pass an examination in cooking, knitting, spinning, etc., and get her certificate of proficiency in these branches before she can get her marriage certificate. Also both bride and bridegroom must show evidence that they have been vaccinated properly. In Lapland it is an offense punishable with death to marry a girl without her parents' consent. No elopements in that country! When a pair of lovers apparently have reached that stage of courtship which calls for the official cognizance of "pa" and there came to him the picture of a girl the girl is allowed in starting the advantage of one-third of the distance, so that it is impossible for the young man to overtake her unless she is willing. If the girl outruns her suitor the affair is ended and she thenceforward is "only a sister" to him. It is a offer of marriage. But if the girl is in the condition of mind of the immortal Barkis, she pretends to meet with some accident-stubs her toe or gets out of breath-and comes to a halt before the course is finished, to be caught by the Lapland swain and live happily

The preliminary correspondence shows that the proclamation is bases on suggestions of the government of Natal forwarded to Fecretary Chamberlain. July 24, and that the date, Sept. 15, was recommended by Milner.

Would Have Helped Us.

Great Britain would have prevented a naval demonstration by the powers against the United States during the Spanish-American war, according to Chaplain H. W. Jones, U. S. N., who says: "I was on leave when the Spanish-American war broke out, and, together with several other officers was immediately ordered back to duty. We had at two points 63 of our ships, waiting to be ordered out in case of any naval demonstration being made against the United States by the other powers. If any such demonstration had been made we would have headed them off."

FEW GREEKS IN GREECE.

t the Present Inhabitants of That Country Are of Slavenie

Greece died because the men who nade her glory had all passed away and left none of their kin, and therefore none of their kind. "Tis Greece, but living Greece no more," for the Greek of to-day, for the most part, never came from the loins of Leonidas or Militiades. He is the son of the stable boys and scullions and slaves of the day of her glory, those of whom imperial Greece could make no use of in her conquest of Asia.

"Most of the old Greek race," says Mr. W. H. Ireland, "has been swept away and the country is now inhabited by persons of Slavonic descent, Indeed, there is strong ground for the statement that there was more of the old heroic blood of Hellas in the Turkish army of Edhem Pasha than in the soldiers of King George, who fied before them three years ago." King George himself is only an alien placed on the Grecian throne to suit the convenience of the outside powers, which to the ancient Greeks were merely factions of barbarians, says David Starr Jordan, in the Popular Science Monthly. In the late war some poet, addressing the spirit of ancient Greece, appealed to

DEBT AND WEALTH.

Figures on the Former Are More Easily Obtainable Than on the Latter.

Increase in the national debts and the wealth of the world are keeping pace with each other, and each is increasing enormously, according to the recent figures given out by the bureau of statistics of the United States treasury. During the last 100 years the nations of the earth have increased their debts tenfold, and the wealth of the peoples of the nations has advanced to the same extent, says the New York Herald.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century the aggregated debts of the world were about $3,100,000,000, to which a cipher must be added to get the debts of to-day. These figures are more easily obtained than are those on wealth, for little is known of property statistics in most of the countries, and The Lyndon cheese factory is doing still less was known a hundred years Spain was estimated at $20;244,640,000, while Mulhall now places their wealth at about $195,900,000,000. With these increases in debts and wealth, population has increased 150 per cent., and gold and silver, which form the basis of the money with which payments are made, have increased 300 per cent.

The bureau of statistics charges these debts principally to wars, standing armies and works of public utility. Of the latter, canals, harbors, river improvements and railways are the principal. Of the railways, which cost $30,000,000,000, about one-third are owned by national governments.

Here is a mystic puzzle: Take the number of your living brothers, double the amount, add to it three, multiply the result by five, add to it the number of living sisters, multiply the result by 10, add the number of deaths of brothers and sisters, subtract 150 from the result. The right hand figure will be the number of deaths, the middle figure will be the number of living sisters, and the left figare will show the number of living friends.

A PICNIC BREAKFAST.

Odd Predicament Which Befell 1 Household Through a Servant's Misdeeds.

Convivial servants are anything but reasures, as one housekeeper found to her sorrow the other day, relates the Baltimore News. This housekeeper has a large family for which to care, and so the news brought her by a policeman at two o'clock one morning recently that her trusted colored henchman had been arrested for fighting and was now languishing in the station house was by no means

It didn't make so much difference about the man himself-he rightly deserved his fate-the housekeeper said, but it did make a difference that he had the keys of the buffet and of ker the latter part of the week. the refrigerator in his pocket, and aged as teacher of the third grade of that there would not be anything like bethelses schools. Miss Clara Hemens, knives and fork's enough to go around Slattery of Detroit were the guests of

At seven a. m. a member of the family went to the station house to see what could be done for the iniquitous Gertrude Dolan, at Dexter Saturday. Abraham, and in the meanwhile those of the household who were obliged to breakfast early took turns at using the two knives and three forks that were all of the table equipment not

It was a real picnic breakfast, cepted a position as stenographer and 'Please lend me your knife" being the remark oftenest heard, except certain expletives, but it wasn't voted a success until the repentant henchman appeared with his keys, purified by a day, and will officiate in St. Mary's erected thereon this year. It is a good-sized fine, and opened the doors church on that day.

RANGE OF BIG GUNS.

What Some of Uncle Sam's Immense New Cannons Are Capable of Doing.

It is evident that few besides ordnance experts know the effective range of one of the modern breechloading rifles, says the New York Tribune. Proof of this lies in the frepected that this 45 miles of the line quency that newspapers are asked to state in their columns the distance that a shot or shell may be fired, the thickness of metal it will pierce, etc. The new 16-inch breech-loading rifle recently finished at the Watervliet arsenal, and which is to remain with the ans $2.00 for choice stock; potatoes 75 army exhibit at the Pan-American ex-80 cents; apples 75 to 80 cents; eggs position, will no doubt excite the question among lay people as to whether such guns could do much damage to Manhattan if mounted on an enemy's ship off the harbor. A table of ranges and muzzle velocities of this gun, prepared by Lieut. Col. T. M. Ingalls, shows what it is capable of do-With 45 degrees elevation, and a projectile weighing 2,370 pounds, given a muzzle velocity of 2,000 feet per second, its effective range would be 14.9 miles; while, with a muzzle velocity of 2,600 foot seconds, its range would be 24 miles. The table also shows distances of travel with other velocities, and governed by weight of charge of powder, but sufficient has been stated to prove that with the maximum velocity a projectile could be sent nearly twice the distance from Sandy Hook to the Battery.

"Vingtieme," New Word in Paris. The Parisiennes have a new English word. They think it more piquant than either "flirt" or "higlif" or "five o'clock" or "sportsmen." This time it is "prig." A bonnet is prig, a bow of ribbon is prig; 'it is prig to go motor-calling dressed in white leather jackets which can be cleaned with pipe clay, etc. An American woman hearing the proud reiteration of this upside-down expression among her French friends, threw cold water on the enthusiasts by explaining what the new word meant. Of course, it was dropped at once and replaced by the successful contestants will be another one—vingtieme—which seems to comprehend and express all the to comprehend to comprehe orything.

HOW IT IS DONE.

The first object in life with the American people is to "get rich;" the second, how to regain good health. The first can be obtained by energy, honesty and sav-ing; the second, (good health) by using Green's August Flower. Should you be a despondent sufferer from any of the effects of dyspepsia, liver complaint, appendicitis, indigestion, etc., such as sick headache, palpitation of the heart, sour stomach, habitual costiveness, dizziness of the head, nervous prostration, low spirits, etc., you need not suffer another day. Two doses of the well know August Flower will relieve you at once. Go to Glazier & Stimson's and get a sample tottle free. Regular size 75 cents. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

ASTONISHED THE EDITOR.

Editor S. A. Brown of Bennettville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Thro' long suffering from dyspepsia," he writes 'my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once and after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For indigestion, loss of appetite, stomach and liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c at Glazier & Stimson's.

MELIGION THE GREAT REFRESHMENT OF OUR TIMES.

When All the Flocks Are "Gathered Tohor -- Why Some Are Kept Back-Frust in God's Providence - Christ's Sternal Fountains—To the Gospel Well.

Copyright, 1901; by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.) Washington, Aug. 11.-In this disourse Dr. Talmage represents religion a great refreshment and invites all the world to come and receive it; text, Genesis xxix, 8, "We cannot until all the flocks be gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

A scene in Mesopotamia, beautifully pastoral. A well of water of great value in that region. The fields around about it white with three flocks of sheep lying down waiting for the watering. I hear their bleating coming on the bright air and the laughter of young men and maidens indulging in rustic repartee. I look off, and I see other flocks of sheep coming. Meanwhile Jacob, a stranger, on the interesting errand of looking for a wife, comes to the well. A beautiful shepherdess comes to the same well. I see her approaching, followed by her father's flock of sheep. It was a memerable meeting. Jacob married that shepherdess. The Bible account of it is, "Jacob kissed Rachel and lifted up his voice and wept." It has always been a mystery to me what he found to cry about! But before that scene occurred Jacob accosts the shepherds and asks them why they postpone the alaking of the thirst of these sheep and why they did not immediately proceed to water them. The shepherds reply to the effect: "We are all good neighbors, and as a matter of courtesy we wait until all the sheep of the neighborhood come up. Besides that, this stone on the well's mouth is somewhat heavy, and several of us take hold of it and push it aside, and then the buckets and the troughs are filled and the sheep are satisfied. We cannot until all the flocks are gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

Coming to the Gospel Well.

If a herd of swine come to a well they angrily jostle each other for the precedence; if a drove of cattle come to a well, they hook each other back from the water, but when a flock of sheep come, though a hundred of them shall be disappointed, they only express it by sad bleating, they come together peaceably. We want a great well. I know there are those who do not like a coward; they think a crowd is vulgar. If they are oppressed for room in church, it makes them positively impatient and belligerent. We have had people permanently leave church because so many other people come to it. Not so did these oriental shepherds. They waited until all the flocks were guthered, and the more flocks that came the better they liked It. And so we ought to be anxious that all the people should come. Go out into the highways and the hedges and compel them to come in. Go to the rich and tell them they are indigent without the gospel of Jesus. Go to the poor and tell them the affluence there is in Christ. Go to the blind and tell them of the touch that gives eternal illumination. Go to the lame and tell them of the joy that will make the lame man leap like a hart. Gather all the sheep off all the mountains. None so torn of the dogs, none so sick, none so worried, none so dying, as to be omitted. Why not gather a great flock? All this city in a flock, all New York in a flock, all London in a flock, all the world in a flock.

This well of the gospel is deep enough to put out the burning thirst of the 1,600,000,000 of the race. Do not let the church by a spirit of exclusiveness keep the world out. Let down all the bars, swing open all the gates, scatter all the invitations. "Whosoever will, let him come." Come, white and black. Come, red men of the forest. Come, Laplander, out of the snow. Come, Patagonian, out of the south. Come in furs. Come panting under palm leaves. Come one. Come all. Come now. As at this well of Mesopotamia Jacob and Rachel were betrothed, so this morning at this well of salvation Christ, our Shepherd, will meet you coming up with your long flocks of cares and anxieties. and he will stretch out his hand in pledge of his affection while all heaven will cry out: "Behold, the bridegroom cometh! Go ye out to meet him." Why Some Are Kept Back.

Here is another man who is kept back from this water of life by the stone of an obdurate heart which lies over the mouth of the well. You have no more feeling upon this subject than if God had yet to do you the first kindness or you had to do God the first wrong. Seated on his lap all these years, his everlasting arms sheltering you, where is your gratitude? Where is your morning and evening prayer? Where are your consecrated lives? I say to you, as Daniel said to Belshazzar, "The God in whose hand thy breath is, and all thy way, thou hast not glorified." If you treated anybody ambadly as you have treated God, you would have made 500 apologies; yea, your whole life would have been an apology. Three times a day you have been seated at God's table. Spring, summer, autumn and winter he has appropriately appareled you.

d heart? Canst thou not feel one brob of gratitude toward the God that nade you, and the Christ who came to redeem you, and the Holy Ghost who has all these years been importuning you? If you could sit down five minutes under the tree of a Savlor's martyrdom and feel his lifeblood trickling on your forehead and cheek and hands, methinks you would get some appreciation of what you owe to a crucified Jesus.

Heart of Stone, relent, relent, Touched by Jesus' cross subdued; See his body, mangled, rent, Covered with a gore of blood. Sinful soul, what hast thou done?

Crucified the Eternal Son! Jacob, with a good deal of tug and push, took the stone from the well's mouth so that the flocks might be watered. And I would that this day my word, blessed of God, might remove the hindrances to your getting up to the gospel well. Yea, I take it for granted that the work is done, and now, like oriental shepherds, I preceed to water the sheep. Come, all ye thirsty! You have an undefined longing in your soul. You tried money making; that did not satisfy you. You tried office under government; that did not satisfy you. You are as much discontented with this life as the celebrated French author who felt that he could not any longer endure the misfortunes of the world and who said: "At 4 o'clock this afternoon I shall put an end to my own existence. Meanwhile I must toil on up to that time for the sustenance of my family."

Christ's Eternal Fountains.

And he wrote on his book until the clock struck 4, when he folded up his manuscript and, by his own hand, con-

There are men who are perfectly discontented. Unhappy in the past, unhappy today, to be unhappy forever unless you come to this gospel well. This satisfies the soul with a high, deep, all absorbing and eternal satisfaction. It comes, and it offers the most unfortunate man so much of this world as is best for him and throws all heaven into the bargain. The wealth of Croesus and of all the Rothschilds is only a poor, miserable shilling compared with the eternal fo:tunes that Christ offers you today. In the far east there was a king who used once a year to get on the scales, while on the other side the scales were placed gold and silver and gems-indeed, enough were placed there to balance the king. Then, at the close of the weighing, all those treasures were thrown among the populace. But Christ today steps on one side the scales, and on the other side are all the treasures of the universe, and he says, "All are yours; all height, all depth, all length, all breadth, all eternity-all are yours." We do not appreciate the promises of the gospe'.

When an aged clergyman was dying -a man very eminent in the church -a young theological student stood by his side, and the aged man looked up and said to him, "Can't you give me some comfort in my dying hour?" "No," said the young man: "I can't talk to you on this subject. You know all about it and lave known it so long." "Well," said the dying man, "just recite to me some promises." The young man thought a moment. and he came to this promise: "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin," and the old man clapped his hands and in his dying moment said. "That's just the promise I have been waiting for-'The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin." Uh, the warmth, the grandeur, the magnificence of the promise!

The Cry for Comfort. If I could gather all the griefs of all sorts from these crowded streets and could put them in one scroll, neither man nor angel could endure the recitation. Well, what do you want? Would you like to have your property back again? "No," you say as a Christian man; "I was becoming arrogant, and I think that is why the Lord took it away. I don't want to have my property back." Well, would you have your departed friends back again? "No," you say; "I couldn't take the responsibility of bringing them from a tearless realm to a realm of tears. I couldn't do it." Well, then, what do you want? A thousand voices in the audience cry out: "Comfort. Give us green and grows from forty to fifty comfort!" For that reason I have rolled away the stone from the well's crimson flowers at the end of small mouth. Come, all ye wounded of the flock, pursued of the wolves, come to the fountain where the Lord's sick and bereft ones have come. "Ah," says some one, "you are not old enough to understand my sorrows. You have not been in the world as long as I have, and you can't talk to me about my misfortunes in the time of old age.' Well, I may not have lived as long as you, but I have been a great deal among old people, and I know how they feel about their failing health and about their departed friends and about the loneliness that sometimes strikes through their souls.

After two persons have lived together for 40 or 50 years and one is taken away, what desolation! I shall not forget the cry of Dr. De Witt of New York when he stood by the open grave of his beloved wife and after the obsequies had ended he looked down into the open place and said: "Farewell, my honored, faithful and beloved wife. The bond that bound us is severed. Thou art in glory, and I am here on earth. We shall meet again. Farewell, farewell!" Always looking for something! Though he was a tenderhearted man I never saw him cry but once and that was at the burial of my mother. After 60 years' living together it was hard to part. And there are aged people to-day who are feeling just such a pang as that. I want to tell them there is perfect enchantment in the promises of this gospel, and I come to them and offer them my arm, or I take their arm and I bring them to this gospel well. Sit down, father or and done at once. Forests are of slow mother, sit down. See if there is anything at the well for you. Come, David, the psalmist, have you anything en- are few big trees that are not older couraging to offer them? "Yes," says than the men around them. Careful the psalmist; "they shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing, to show that the Lord is upright. He is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him." Come, Isaiah, have you anything to say out of your prophecies for these aged peo- inches at breast high from the ground, ple? "Yes," says Isaiah; "down to old To gain the next inch in diameter reage I am with thee, and to hoary hairs | quires 17 years. The next inch of will I carry thee." Well, if the Lord is going to carry you, you ought not to worry much about your ailing eyesight and failing limbs.

Trust in God's Providences. You get a little worried for fear that some time you will come to want, do you? Your children and grandchildren sometimes speak a little sharp to you because of your ailments. The Lord will not speak sharp. Do you think you will come to want? What do you think the Lord is? Are his granaries empty? Will he feed the raven and the rabbit and the lion in the desert and forget you? Why, naturalists tell us that the porpoise will not forsake its wounded and sick mate. And do you suppose the Lord of heaven and earth has not as much sympathy as the fish of the sea? But you say, "I am so near worn out, and I am of no use to God any more." I think the Lord knows whether you are of any more use or not. If you were of no more use, he would have taken you before this. Do you think God has forgotten you because he has taken care of you 70 or 80 years? He thinks more of you to-day than he ever did because you think more of him. May the God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and Paul the aged be your God forever! Theodore Hook took to something stronger. Edwin For est took to theatrical dissipation. And men have run all around the earth, hoping in the quick transit to get away from their misfortunes. It has been a dead failure. There is only one well that can slake the thirst of an afflicted spirit. and that is the deep and inexhaustible well of the gospel.

Gathering Cloves.

Cloves are now cultivated in many of the tropical regions of the earth. A clove-tree begins to bear at the age of ten years and continues until it reaches the age of seventy-five years. There are two crops a year, one in June and one in December. The tree is an everfeet high, with large oblong leaves, and branches in clusters of from ten to twenty. The tree belongs to the same botanical order as the guava. The cloves, which are the undeveloped buds, are at first white, then light green, and at the time of gathering bright red. Pieces of white cloth are spread under the trees at harvesting time, and the branches are beaten gently with bambo-sticks until the cloves drop. They are dried in the sun, being tossed about daily until they attain the rich dark color which proclaims them ready for shipment. In this country and in England they are used almost wholly as a condiment, but in France they are used largely in the manufacture of certain liquors; and to some degree they are employed in medicine for their tonic properties.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Up-to-Date Hinto About tivation of the foll and Tields Thereof-Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

The preservation of the forests has become a live question with the American public. Everyone that studies the question at all must be convinced that something should be done growth, and an area denuded cannot be reforested in a generation. There estimates on the growth of the spruce shows that the trees now having a diameter of 18 inches cannot be replaced by trees of the same size in less than 150 years. It takes a spruce seedling 22 years to attain a diameter of 3 growth is made in 14 years; so that in 53 years it has attained a diameter of only five inches. The diameter of a foot and a half will be reached when the tree is 154 years of age. We look upon a young forest of spruce without realizing its value. We see trees 5, 6, 7 or 8 inches in diameter without suspecting that they represent decades of growth. They are cut down ruthlessly and sometimes set on fire for pastime Yet the 8-inch trees are more than 80 years old, and more valuable because of age. A tree that is 17 inches in diameter makes another inch in 6 years. This fact indicates that the larger the tree the more rapidly does it increase in diameter. The time of waiting is while the tree is small.

These small but old trees will, in a few decades, be very valuable for lumber, if preserved. Yet how often are they sacrificed without thought. The big trees fit for lumber are cut down and trimmed. The branches are left on the ground where they fall and in few years become as dry as kindling wood. They are kindling wood spread out over hundreds of square miles of so-called young growth. The day is sure to come when the fire gets a start in this material and when the wind is in a mood to work mischief. Then the tiny fire becomes a demon of flame, rushing through the slender forests and devouring as it goes. Even green wood will burn when the heat around it is intense. We all know the stories of the recent great fires in the west "Though he cause grief, yet will be that have had their origin in the rubbish left by the companies that had exdelivereth him out of them all." a public menace. There is only one solution to the problem. The states must secure as much of the land now in forests as vine Physician. He will not hurt you. possible. In some cases this can be He has been healing wounds for many done without expense. In other apyears, and he will give you gentle and propriations should be made for the purchase of forest areas. New York has already taken the lead in the matter and is showing what can be done. By an act of the legislature the state has entered on a system of forest preservation. In the Adirondack region the forest preserve amounts to 1,290, 987 acres, and in the Catskill region to 79.941 acres. This large public reservation was set apart to "be forever reserved, maintained and cared for as a ground open for the free use of all the people for their health and pleas ure, and as forest lands, necessary to the preservation of the head waters of the chief rivers of the state, and a future timber supply; and shall remain part of the forest preserve." Additions to the preserve are made by the Forest Preserve Board. The superintendent of state forests has "charge of all work connected with the care an i custody of the forest preserve."

It is perhaps well for the other states that New York has taken so vigorous a lead; for they can profit by her mistakes. In their haste to further the movement for the preservation of the forests, the people of New York in the year 1894 adopted an amendment to their constitution as follows: "The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed." This is certainly overshooting the mark, and leading foresters are recognizing the fact. It is believed that the amendment will be modified at the first opportunity. It is manifestly absurd to permit the state to sell no lumber, as the annual removal of a portion of the trees is a benefit to the forest, and the revenue thus secured would be in time considerable. To demonstrate this the state of New York has made an arrangement with the United States Forestry Commission by which one township in the Adirondacks is set aside for experimental work in scientific forestry including the annual removal of some of the trees.

Remedies for Chinch Burs. The chinch bug disease, which the into available forms. has been sending out, is effectual only when the weather is warm and moist. When it is hot and dry, this disease will not take at all, and it is useless

AND GARDEN, to distribute it in the sales at the time. Furthermore, the disease make found in the fields unturally, at when proper climates the special introduction of diseases germs from the experiment station. There are two things which can be done to lessen the ravages of the bugs and to kill them, that are under our control and should be used when the weather is dry. In the first place, by plowing for a space of ten feet around the corn field, harrowing and dragging brush after the harrow, so as to make as much dust as possible, it will be found that when the young bugs begin to migrate from the wheat to the corn they will not as a rule be able to cross this ten feet of dust. When the insects develop wings, they may fly over the plowed space (this will happen about once in ten times) and if they alight upon the first few rows of corn the second method may be used for destroying them. Second, when the insects collect, as they frequently do, upon the first few rows of corn, the best way to kill them and prevent their spreading through the field is to spray immediately with kerosene emulsion. This will not injure the corn, and will kill the bugs readily. Kerosene emulsion is made as follows: Dissolve one-half pound of hard soap in one gallon of soft beiling water, add two gallons of kerosene or coal oil, and then by means of the force pump with the spray nozzle removed, churn this mixture for ten minutes by pumping it back into itself. Then add to this emulsion nineteen gallons of water, stir thoroughly and use as a spray. The important thing to be noted in the use of this kerosene emulsion is that it should be sprayed just as soon as possible and before the bugs have scattered through the corn; otherwise it will be impracticable to reach them by spraying. This spray kills only by contact, and hence one must actually touch the bugs with the spray in order to kill them .- J. M. Steadman, Entomologist of Experiment Station.

Harveiting Kofir Corn. J. G. Haney, in a communication to the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, Kaffir corn remains green until frost and the seed does not shatter; so, if grain is the only consideration, there is no great hurry to harvest; it can stand until after frost and the stalk is dry. But generally the fodder is a consideration, as well as the grain, and then the problem is to cut when the best results from both may be obtained. The longer the fodder stands the harder and less palatable it becomes, while if cut too early the best yield of grain is not secured. After the grain is hardened so that it is dificult to mash between the thumb and finger, and there is little moisture apparently in the seed, there will be very hard-dough stage." If cut earlier the fodder will be better feed, but there the rest. "Just like me!" cried Adels will be a considerable shrinkage in the grain.

One thing that has kept this crop from being more generally raised is the problem of harvesting. There are a number of methods and they all have their merits. If the fodder is desired for feed it is perhaps best to cut stalk and all and leave it in the shock until dry. The best machine for accomplishing this is the corn binder, which leaves it in bundles of convenient size for handling, and the fodder is held together. The common method, however, is to cut with a mower, and the crop should be left to cure presence, this 6th day of December, A. H. S. W. GLEASON. well before raking. It keeps in excellent condition when treated this way and can be hauled when needed. It is ready to harvest for hay in about 105 days after planting, and this should be before frost, as freezing while green is detrimental; besides, the hay will not cure as well in cool weather, and it is essential that it be as perfectly cured as possible.

The Young YouL It is advisable, in fact very important, that mares which are intended to be worked should be fed in the box w.th the foals for a short time before, so as to get the latter well accustomed to eating crushed oats, bran, etc., so that the separation will be less keenly felt bythem, and eating will occupy the time and minimize the risk of taking too much milk on an empty stomach. A drop of clean water should also be placed where it can be got at, but not spilt, and two foals will do better together than separately, if they are not shut in too small a place. If they spend the day in a warm box and the night in a field exposed to the weather. a nasty cold may be the result; therefore, if the night should be very unpropitious after a hot day, it is wise to keep both mare and foal in an open shed or yard with a bit of green food rather than run the risk of exposure. When the day of showing or selling arrives the foungster which has never had a check, and is therefore fit and full of bloom, wins over the head of the dull and seedy looking one, and the difference in value will pay for a little trouble.-London Live Stock Journal.

"Albia," she said, when she felt like meking, "I can bear no more. I would rather die than give myself to that man. If I should die, my father would lose me; but if I fice from Damascus. may at some time return to him. If you can prepare for leaving the city, I will accompany you this very night." The bondmaiden promised that she would do all in her power; and without waiting to waste time in use'ess words, she went forth to search for the help she needed.

Evening came, and Ulin had not arunk back from the decision she why her home had not power to win her back from her resolve. The death of her mother had taken away the brightest part of that home; and, furthermore, its character of home was soon to be changed if she remained. It could not be her home any more.

CHAPTER VIII. Hobaddan.

Thus sat the princess, presenting herself with every available reason that could favor her in her resolution, when Albia came in, with a quick step and a flushed cheek.
"My mistress," she said, when she ad assured herself that they were lone, "there is a man in the garden no wishes to speak with you." "A man!" cried Ulin,

"Julian did not send him," replied Albia; "and yet be comes in behalf of Julian. I think the noble young chiefhin is in danger, and this man hopes that you may be able to render some princess, with a slight start. "Yes, my lady," replied the man, standing respectfully before her, with ready at the door, and the robber had his cap in his hand.

"My name is Hobaddan, and I am Julian's lieutenant. I have been with him from the period of his earliest childhood. Since he was large enough to lift a lance, I have been his friend and companion. He was given into my care during his opening youth; and when he reached the estate of manhood I was content to serve him. I love him as a brother—aye, better than most brothers love. I love him tenderly and devotedly. And all his followers love him. A thousand stout men love and worship him."

What did all this mean? Why had Hobaddan come to tell her this? Ulin trembled, knowing not wherefore, and gazed anxiously into the speaker's "Lady," pursued the lieutenant, who had stopped a moment, as though he would assure himself that his language gave no offense, "my master is in danger. He is in the hands of his deadliest enemy. He is in this citycast into a dark, deep dungeon, and Horam means to kill him!"

Ulin turned pale as death, and clasped her hands upon her bosom Her look signified that she would ask how it happened.

"I will explain," continued Hobaddan, "how this misfortune befell my chieftain. Have you ever seen an Israelite named Judah?"

"I know him well," said Albia, "H is the king's slave."

"And two black men, named Osmir and Sellm?"

"I know them also," answered the

"They came to our camp," said Hobaddan, "and told so fair a story that they were admitted to fellowship, and the blacks were placed as servants near the person of our chieftain. But the result proved that they were sent out by Horam, and that their mission was to capture the Scourge of Damascus. And this work they have accomplished How they did it I cannot tell. I only know that we missed our leader, and that the three conspirators were missing with him. I came at once to this city, and have succeeded in discovering what I have told you. Julian is in prison, and of course the fate of death awaits him."

"But sir, said Ulin, struggling to speak calmly, "what can this mean to

"Noble lady, I know that the thought of seeking you was a wild one; and perhaps you will say it was monstrous; but I could think of no other course. I know that your father was prime minister; and that you were in a position to wield some influence. There is not an officer in Damascus to whom I would dare to apply. Is there not some way in which you can help me?"

"How, sir? Help you in what?"

"In setting my young master free." "Indeed, sir, you have taken a step most wild. How should I, the daughter of Aboul Cassem, dare to step in between justice and its victim?"

"Ah, lady," returned the lieutenant, 'some of us think that others higher than Julian owe more to justice than does he." "Still, sir," pursued Ulin, "it is most absurd to think that I could help you in this." Did Ulin appear like one offended? No. Did she treat the name of Julian as though she deemed him worthy of the fate which threatened him? No. She seemed rather to be struggling to put away some feeling of a very different character. The lieutenant evidently read her nature, for he proceeded earnestly:

"Do not misunderstand me, lady. Were the work simply to set Julian free, I should not have visited you. The work I would give into your hands is the salvation of Damascus. If our master is slain by the king, this city must suffer terribly. The vengeance of those who love the chieftain will be dreadful. If Julian falls beneath the sword of the king's executioner, his followers will draw more blood from the life of this people than Polypses drew when he ravaged the city of the northern plain. To save all this, noble princess, can you not help me? Is there not some way in which you can remove the bolt from the door of the chieftain's prison-house?"

Ulin was trembling more violently than before.

At this juncture the bondmalden arose from her seat and moved for-ward. Her dark eyes sparkled with peculiar fire, and her fair brow worked as though the bain were revolving mighty thoughts.

"Dear lady," she said, addressing her mistress, "there is but one way in which we can render the assurance which this man seeks."

"Speak, Albia," said Ulin, betraying suddenness of emotion which told very plainly how her desire ran.

"Not now, my mistress," returned the girl. "I must have time: If this past midnight, I can tell him more."

CHAPTER IX.

The Dark Hour.

"It seemed like a dream to Ulin She closed her eyes—and opened them -and arose-and walked across the chamber-simply to assure herself that she was awake. Was it possible that a member of the robber band had been to see her-had been within her chamber-had come, and had gone? A friend and companion of Julian's seeking her for aid in behalf of the chieftain? She was trying to make it appear real, when her bondmaiden returned.

The door was closed, and Albia remarked, as she took a seat:

"He will be in the garden two hours past midnight, my lady; and if we can help him, we must do our work as speedily as possible."

"Help," repeated Ulin, gazing into her attendant's face. "How can we help Julian?'

"The thing may be possible," replied Albia, in a thoughtful mood. "If you would serve him, I think a way can be opened to the accomplishment."

The princess reflected a few moments, and then said:

"If the man who was here spoke the truth, it may become my duty to help him: and certainly his story seemed plausible. I can very easily see how the powerful robber band. moved to desperation by the death of their beloved leader, might wreak most terrible vengeance upon this city; and surely, if we can be the neans of averting so dire a calamity. it is our duty so to do."

"I think it is," added Albia.

"But," continued Ulin, "if Julian is in the power of the king, he must be in one of the strongest dungeons; and a strict guard must be kept over him. How can we reach him?"

"I can think of but one way," returned the bondmaiden, laying down the plan with her finger as she proceeded. "Osmir and Selim had a hand in capturing the young chieftain; and it is not impossible that they may have a hand in guarding him. I judge so from the fact that the capture of the robber has not yet become generally known in the city, which would certainly have been the case if the king's officers had known it. Now we have some claim upon the gratitude of this Osmir, and I think he is, by nature, grateful enough to repay us. He is the man whom we found faint and dying upon the shore of the lake, and who must have died if we had not nursed him. You remember the cir-

Even Family Secrets!

The inquisitorial proceedings of income-tax collectors in Austria are a source of great annoyance to self-respecting citizens. They pry into every family secret, however delicate. But now they do even more than that. They attempt to check the income of a man by finding out what is sent him by rail. The inspector of taxes at Myslenice, in order to give the screw another turn, has applied to the railway managers for permission to send an official to Makow station for a certain time in order to examine all parcels sent there or thence, and find out to whom or from whom they have been sent. Of course the purpose of such a demand is clear. Proof is required that certain persons spend more, and therefore have a greater income than they have declared, thus ignoring the fact that a man may possibly live beyond his income. At the same time it must be confessed that there is a great difficulty in getting people to give truthful declarations.

More Laughter, Less Suicide.

The physiological benefits of laughter can not be overestimated. It shakes up the diaphragm, sets the pulses beating to a lively measure, stimulates the blood corpuscles, enlivens the brain, and sometimes produces dislocation of the jaw when indulged in too heartily by a man with a large mouth. Used with discretion laughter is as inspiring as a ses breeze, as refreshing as an August shower. Its moral effect is beyond computation. It has killed mose ridiculous superstitions by its rollicking roars of unbelief than any other agency, says the Literary Era. A million and a quarter of dollars has been recently appropriated for the establishment of a national bureau of standards for this government, and the work of designing a remarkable building for this new new feature of the government service will be commenced at once, says the Patent Record of Washington. This is a marvelous structure. It will be a place where the noises and to be printed therein. We shall apprecivibrations of the outside world will ate the favor and the Judge will be not be admitted under any pretense and an absolute unvarying temperature will prevail. It will be erected on a site to be selected some distance from the city, where there will be the least possibility of the disturbing influences from the outside world, and on a lot large enough to prevent the possibility of any other building within a distance of a quarter of a mile. There will be double walls, each on a separate foundation resting on the solid rock. The building, which will contain the power plant necessary for the operation of this novel department, will be located at least a thousand yards a way. All these precautions are taken in the battle wift the vulgar influences of the outside world. Many of the instruments will be placed so that it is impossible for any one to approach them within a distance of 20 or 30 feet, This is to prevent the temperature of a human body from affecting their delicate constitution. The windows will be fitted so that it will be readily possible to make the rooms absolutely dark, even on the brightest days. No particle of sunshine will penetrate the shutters.

WONDERFUL ICE CAVES.

One of Them Near Flagstaff, Arisons, Supplying Ice for Sum-

Several years ago a man who was wandering over the lava fields in the pine woods, nine miles from Flagstaff, discovered a narrow slit in the lava which appeared to lead into a lateral and much larger opening. The shit was wide enough for a man to squeeze his way into it. At the bottom, about wall; but the rest of the cavern seemed to be dry.

In the following March the cave was visited again and found to be as full of ice as it could hold. It is now a source of ice supply for the hot months of summer, says the New York Sun. The ice melts away as the summer advances, but early in the season there is a large amount, most of which is now utilized. The ice is split into large pieces, hauled to the surface with block and tackle and carried away by the cartload.

In this hollow under the ground the cold air settles in the winter months, producing temperatures below the freezing point. There are times during the winter when a good deal of water runs into the cave. This is frozen solid and as water continues to flow in it is added to the frozen mass until the cave is completely filled with ice.

SLANG FROM THE BENCH.

An Australian Jurist Is Betrayed Into the Use of a Prize Ring Expression.

Even jurists are not exempt from he prevailing custom of using slang in expressing their sentiments. Quite recently Sir John Madden, the chief justice and lieutenant governor of Victoria, New South Wales, angry at the absence of all the barristers in a libel ease that was down for hearing, characterized the proceeding as a "fake." This is a piece of pugilistic slang and is understood to mean a make-believe fight, both boxers having previously agreed as to the final issue. Next morning the three leading barristers concerned appeared in court, explained their absence and indignantly repudiated any idea of a "fake." The chief justice then apologized, expressing his regret that he had permitted himself to use such word, and adding that the bar would understand how such expressions sometimes slipped out without due regard to the surrounding circumstances. A bland assurance of his belief that the parties in the case were animated by the "fullest litigant animosity" raised a laugh and agreeably closed the incident.

Oldest Church in the Country. The oldest Protestant church in the United States is St. Luke's, at Smithfield, Va., writes William E. Curtis, in the Chicago Record-Herald. St. Luke's was erected in 1632, and was restored in 1894 as nearly as possible to its original condition and appearance. It s a beautiful old structure, of early English Gothic, with mullioned windows and a stately tower, and has been used for public worship almost con-tinuously for 21/2 centuries.
