LIGHT FOR THE FARMERS

Company Organized to Furnish Light, Heat and Power.

Detroit Tribune: The latest industrial enterprise in which Detroiters are interested is the City & Suburban Light, Heat & Power Co. The incorporators of the company are: James D. Hawkes, S. F. Angus, Theodore Buhl, Henry Stephens and Alexander McPherson, all of Detroit. The capital stock of the company is $1,000,000, divided into 10,000 shares of a par value of $100 each.

The head offices of the company will be located in Detroit, and its object, as set forth in the articles of incorporation, are: The making, procuring, manufacturing, generating, buying, selling, supplying, furnishing, distributing, conveying and transporting light, heat and power, produced by electricity or other agency or force, and the manufacturing, buying and selling or furnishing apparatus, appliances, paraphernalia and materials to be used in connection therewith; also the furnishing of telephonic and telegraphic communication, of dealing in the agencies or appliances necessary therefor and of doing all things connected therewith.

It is stated that the main works of the company will be located in Wayne county. The undertaking is a large one and the plans of the company unusual and unique.

"Of the capital stock of the company," said S. F. Angus, "only $500,000 will be issued now, the remainder to remain in the treasury until needed. We will furnish electric light and power to the towns of Dearborn, Wayne, Ypsilanti, Saline, Ann Arbor and Chelsea, Jackson and the towns between Jackson and Coldwater and Jackson and Lansing, including the latter. One unique feature of the plan is that the company will furnish electric light and power to any of the farmers living along the lines between the towns mentioned, and will do so at a cost that will enable a large majority of the farmers to avail themselves of the privilege and use electric lights instead of oil lamps. The company will also be in a position to furnish the farmers with small motors for grinding of their feed, pumping water and other like light tasks, and this at a cost which will make it worth their while to substitute it for the power they are now using or to install it where they have no power for this purpose. This plan has been talked of before, but never has been carried into execution."

This enterprise will be separate from the American Light & Power Co., in which the incorporators of the City & Suburban Light, Heat & Power Co., are also interested. The financing of the company is well under way, and it is understood that work on the project will begin very soon. It is also understood, though the statement to that effect has not been made, that the company will use some of the surplus power generated for the operation of the Detroit, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor & Jackson railroad as soon as the new power house at Ypsilanti is complete and in running order. It is also thought that the present power house at Dearborn will be utilized by the City & Suburban Light, Heat & Power Co.

The company was incorporated under the laws of West Virginia on September 7th, and those interested are confident that it will be a success from the start.

MAKING MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The Michigan Central is Doing a Large Amount of Work.

During the past summer the Michigan Central has made many improvements on its main line. These improvements consist, among other things, of straightening the tracks, doing away with several sharp curves, and reducing the grades in several places.

Between Michigan Centre and the electric road bridge work is in progress which, when completed, will make straight the track there, the curve being greatly lessened. Between the bridge and the village of Leoni two curves have been done away with entirely, the track for a distance of 4,300 feet having been straightened, making the line from Michigan Centre with but a very slight curve. The elevation of the rails has been reduced from five to one inch, and the grade between the two points reduced four feet. In the past heavy freight trains found it difficult to round the two curves, and only did it with the expenditure of great quantities of coal. Now the longest freight and passenger trains go over the tracks without extra consumption of coal.

At the town of Kinnear, about a mile from Dexter, there formerly was a series of curves, the track when first laid out following the banks of the Huron river. At Kinnear the track almost formed a loop, but by the purchase of a large strip of land and by making a new bed for the river, and changing its course, the curves have been done away with, though a long fill of 85 feet was made in the old bed of the river, the work at this point making the track absolutely straight.

At other places on the main line similar work is in progress, and it is given out that in future years it will continue until the Michigan Central main line is as straight and level as engineering skill can make it. It is claimed that the straightening of the tracks will be greatly beneficial, as it will not be necessary to shut down the speed of the fast passenger trains, distances will be shortened, and locomotives will be enabled to haul long trains without the expenditure of more than the ordinary amount of fuel.

VICTORY FOR HAWKS & ANGUS

Obtained a Franchise From Jackson's Council Monday Evening.

After a campaign which for rancor and intensity equalled a presidential election, Hawks & Angus were granted a franchise for an independent city street car system by the Jackson council Monday night and an audience which packed the council chamber to its utmost capacity cheered the aldermen. It was a sweeping and decisive victory for the Detroit street car men and the Detroit, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor & Jackson line will have the system of feeders in that city which it asked for. The Boland opposition was at no time dangerous. The Hawks & Angus people carried every point by a decisive vote, that on their franchise being 10 to 6. The amendments to the Boland franchise, which that company were willing to accept, provided Hawks & Angus were granted no franchise, were first read and referred to the committee on streets by a vote of 9 to 7. Then amendments to the Hawks Angus franchise were read. These included transfers under control of the council, trackage rights for future companies desiring to enter the city, a $25,000 bond to insure immediate building of the system, eight workmen's tickets morning and evening for a quarter and a requirement that in the event of consolidation both systems be operated under this franchise; also its life time was reduced to thirty years. A motion of the opposition to refer to committee was killed, 9 to 7, and the ordinance was then passed—10 to 6—as amended, after a very little oratory. A trust company bond was also approved.

There are plenty of indications, however, that Boland will continue the fight. He authorized the statement that he would extend his line on certain streets, some of which have been granted to Hawks & Angus, which he claims to have a right to do under his franchise. He will also probably put up a claim that a grant of the use of the streets requires a two-thirds vote, under the charter. Hawks & Angus' attorneys claim the latter proposition will not hold and seem to be more than satisfied with the situation. A petition to the council to pass the franchise signed by over 3,900 voters cut no small figure in the determination of the result.

John F. Wheelock.

John Francis Wheelock was born in Amherst, Mass., February 23, 1832, and departed this life September 9, 1901. He was married to Mrs. Laura Eaton, December 27, 1854, and moved to Michigan in 1855, settling in Dexter. To this union were born four children, three of whom survive him, Mrs. Mary Spencer of DeMotte, Ind., Mrs. Laura Guerin of Chelsea and Russell Wheelock of Lima. A daughter, Isabelle Irene Spencer, wife of W. F. Spencer, died in 1873, leaving an infant daughter, now Mrs. Michael Schanz, Jr., with whom he had lived since the death of his wife, in 1896. He enlisted in Company K, Fourth Michigan Infantry on the 20th day of June, 1861, and served until the close of the war. He was a man well known through the county and whose honesty and integrity was without question. The funeral was held at the Lima church, Rev. C. S. Jones officiating. Interment in the Lima cemetery.

Washtenaw the Highest.

Times: Washtenaw county has reason to be proud of her assessors, for they have been the most honest in all the state. It has been rather expensive to our people to have such honest officials, but it is a satisfaction to learn they have been doing their duty as the law demands.

The state tax commission has made a comparative table showing the per cent of assessed to the cash values in each county, and some startling things are shown by it. For instance Schoolcraft county has been paying only 59 per cent of its cash value; Baraga, 48 per cent; Delta 51 per cent and Kent 67 per cent. The others range from 60 to 85 per cent, but it remains for Washtenaw to be at the top with 92 per cent.

The other counties of this vicinity are as follows: Monroe county 77 per cent, Lenawee 72 per cent, Hillsdale 77 per cent, Jackson 70 per cent, Kalamazoo 64 per cent, Genesee 80 per cent, Calhoun 70 per cent, Livingston 82 per cent and St. Joseph 70 per cent.

We are glad these things promise to be righted by the tax commission, as it will help to lower our burdens in this county.

Washtenaw's assessed valuation by her supervisors is $33,939,760, and the commission only propose to raise it to $36,143,163, which will be only a small per cent of what some of the others are raised. Some in fact will be doubled, and they ought to be.

A Story of the East...

CHAPTER XV.—(Continued.)

"I hope you have rested well," said the chief, approaching the princess. "I have slept, sir," she replied, trembling as she looked into his dark eyes. "Then you are ready to resume your saddle. We will ride before the heat of the noonday sun is upon us." "You will not claim us for companions further, I trust?" "Only while our roads lay together. Surely you cannot object to that."

"But I wish to go to the bank of the Phaphar." "Just as I expected; so I shall not be disappointed. Your horses are ready. I will have them brought this way."

The guard had already been placed upon a horse, and Ulin saw them leading him to a saddle. What did this mean?

Hardly knowing what she did, Ulin suffered herself to be lifted into the saddle, and in a few moments more Albia was by her side.

"Why have you bound Shubal to his horse?" she asked.

"That he may ride safely. He is a dangerous fellow, and might tumble off if he were not secured. But don't let that worry you."

CHAPTER XVI.

The Strange Horseman. At this moment the guard came near to the place where his mistress sat, his horse having moved of his own accord, and as she turned towards him he spoke to her:

"My dear good lady, they lie to you when they tell you that they mean you no harm. I have heard them talk and I know their plans. We are all to be sold into slavery in the kingdom beyond the Syrian desert!"

"Mercy!" cried Ulin, turning pale as death and clasping her hands in agony. "O, my dream! my dream!"

"Easy, fair lady," said Al Abbas. "This black rascal knows not what he says. I allowed him to speak so that I might see how his mind ran."

"It is false," exclaimed Shubal. "I heard them say the plan. You, my mistress, are to be sold for a—"

The guard's speech was stopped by two of the robbers, who threw him back upon his horse, and stopped his mouth with their hands.

"Sir robber," cried Ulin, stretching her hands out towards him, "deceive me no more. I think my poor slave has told me the truth."

"A plot upon the slave, lady! His tongue shall come out by the roots if he speaks again without my leave. Stick to your saddle, and keep up your courage."

As the Arab spoke he leaped upon the back of his horse, and ere the princess could ask another question, the party was upon the move, the order of arrangements being the same as before.

"We are not going towards the Phaphar," said Ulin. "No," replied Albia. "We are going the other way."

"Then Shubal told us the truth." "Alas, dear mistress, I dare not say."

"But you think so?" "I cannot deny it."

"And you thought so before you heard Shubal speak?" "I feared something of the kind."

Al Abbas overheard the girls as they thus conversed, and he was presently by their side.

He answered, and if the most holy need could be met, it might be hoped for. At the end of some two or three hours the party came to a thick grove of palms; near which was a spring and here they stopped just long enough to water the horses. They had started on again, and were at some little distance from the grove, when one of the Arabs who rode in the rear, came forward and informed his leader that a horseman was following them. Al Abbas looked back and saw that the stranger was a black, and that he rode a swift and powerful horse.

"He wishes to overtake us," said the fellow who had come from the rear.

"Then he must ride for it," returned the chief. "I cannot stop. I wonder where he came from."

"When I first saw him, he seemed to have just emerged from the grove."

In a short time the strange horseman had come so near that the light of his eyes could be seen, and Al Abbas saw that he must soon overtake them; so he concluded to drop behind and find out what was wanted, evidently desiring that the men should not see what manner of prizes he had in charge, at least until his character was known. The robbers were directed to slacken their speed a little, but to keep on their course, and having given this order, the chief turned his horse's head and rode back; and ere long he was within speaking distance of the stranger, who proved to be a stout, well-made man, with a face as black as night.

"Hullo!" cried Al Abbas, reining in his horse. "Who are you?" "I am king of this plain," replied the African, at the same time reining in his own horse; "and I have come out to see who this trespasser upon my domain. Who are you?"

The Arab hesitated in his answer, as he supposed the black must be crazy.

"Who are you, and what sort of company do you lead?" cried the African.

"I lead my own company; and if you want anything, come and get it," answered the Arab.

"I want nothing but to know who you are; and the next time you come this way, be sure and stop again at the grove of the date-palms. I will have a banquet prepared for you."

Thus speaking, the stranger wheeled his horse in a broad circle, and started back towards the place whence he had come.

Al Abbas rode back to his party, and when they asked him what manner of man he had met, he replied that it was only a poor crazy fool, who imagined that he owned the broad plain upon which they were traveling.

"He is worth capturing," suggested one of the robbers.

"We could not capture him if we would," said the chief. "He rides a better horse than we own."

While the Arabs were gazing back after the retiring horseman Albia drew close to the side of her mistress and spoke, quickly and excitedly:

"Did you recognize him?" "Whom?"

"The crazy man who followed us." "No."

"It was Osmir!" "Osmir!"

"Hush! Not a word. As sure as I live it was Osmir; and be assured we have help at hand."

"But he has gone." "Aye, for he only came out to see who we were. Be sure he has recognized us."

Ulin felt her heart bound up with springing hope; and her next prayer was uttered with returning faith in heaven's protecting power.

CHAPTER XVII.

By the Banks of the Phaphar. Half an hour after Al Abbas had resumed his place at the head of his troop, the same robber who had before come from the rear, again rode to the front, this time bringing intelligence that a number of horsemen were pursuing them. The chief drew his horse aside and looked back, and saw four men coming. They were well mounted, and seemed to be in hot pursuit.

"There is something more than accident in this," said Al Abbas. "The fellow is with them who followed us before."

"Two of those men are white," remarked the robber who had ridden up from the rear. "What can they want of us?"

"Never mind," returned the chief. "If they want us, let them catch us. And if, beyond that, they want more, let them make their wants known."

Thus speaking, the Arab leader resumed his place, and urged his horses forward with increasing speed. Ever and anon he cast his eyes behind him, and it was ere long evident that the strangers were rapidly gaining upon him.

"We may as well stop now as at any time," said Al Abbas, addressing the man who rode by his side. "I will halt and ascertain what these fellows want. It is about time our horses had a breathing spell."

At a simple order from their chief, the Arabs wheeled their horses in a circle, bringing up in line, facing their pursuers, with their prisoners in the rear.

"Who are you that thus pursue and stop me?" demanded Al Abbas. "I am Julian, the Scourge of Damascus!" replied the foremost of the opposite party.

"At the sound of that name the Arab trembled, for he knew that no king's officer had been more persistent in driving petty robbers from the plains of Damascus than had Julian. But presently he recovered himself, seeming to think that, were the man's assertion true, the opposing force was not strong enough to be feared."

"If you be Julian," he cried, "you have come forth with a small retinue. But what seek you?"

"I have come to take from you those prisoners that you hold. Deliver them up to me, and I will trouble you no more."

"And suppose that I should refuse to do any such thing?"

"Then I should be forced to take them from you. As I address you, I recognize who you are. If I am not greatly mistaken, you are Al Abbas, the Arab—a villain who lives by robbing women and old men."

"Now, by the blood of Cush!" exclaimed Al Abbas, drawing his sword and urging his horse forward, "I'll make you feel another thing the Arab robber can do! What, ho, my men! Down with these rascals!"

In a moment the Arabs were ready for action, and hurried forward to strike with their leader.

As soon as Shubal found his guard gone, he called to Albia to come and set him free.

"Cut these cords," he cried, "and I may be of some help in this affair. Merciful heaven, is not this the work of a good spirit!"

The bondmaid was not long in setting him free from his saddle, and as soon as he was clear he sprang forward to where the ring of clashing steel had already broken upon the air.

With something like a smile of disdain upon his handsome features did Julian behold the approach of the Arabs, while Hobaddan, who sat close by his side, looked grim and stern. Osmir and Selim drew to the front as the token of battle was given, and their cool, determined bearing, plainly showed that they were foemen not to be despised. Al Abbas rode directly for the youthful chieftain, with his sword ready for the stroke; but he had mistaken his man, if he thought to touch any vulnerable point, Julian knocked his weapon up, and quickly drove him from his horse; and then, seeking to make quick work of it, and feeling no great sympathy for woman-stealers, he simply rode the Arab leader down, cleaving open his head as he fell.

Shubal was close at hand when Al Abbas dropped, and quickly as possible he possessed himself of the fallen man's sword, and was just in season to join in the conflict as three of the Arabs had attacked Julian. The young chieftain struck down one of them by a winding blow across the bare neck, but he might have had severe work with the other two had not help arrived; for the rascals were strong, and the death of their leader had given them new impulse to conquer. It was not the impulse of revenge. No, no. The death of Al Abbas left more gold for those who survived. But the unexpected arrival of the freed slave upon the scene gave a new turn to the tide. One of the Arabs he struck down from behind, and the other one alone proved no match for the stalwart chieftain.

In the meantime Hobaddan, with Osmir and Selim, had disposed of the others. Two they had slain, and two had taken to flight.

BROKE BLAINE'S BOOM.

Ex-Governor Newell's Medical Opinion. Turned Jersey Delegate.

Friends of the late William A. Newell, once Governor of New Jersey, have recalled an old story in which he figures as the rock upon which the Presidential hopes of James G. Blaine were wrecked in 1876. The ex-Governor, who was a physician as well as a politician, was a delegate to the Republican national convention in that year, and he was prominent among those members of the New Jersey delegation who favored Mr. Blaine's nomination. While the struggle for the various aspirants was in progress, the news came that Mr. Blaine had been stricken with what was variously described as apoplexy and sunstroke. This event was eagerly seized upon by the two or three Jersey delegates who favored Mr. Conkling, and these, hearing that Dr. Newell had expressed a fear that the effects of such a "stroke" as Mr. Blaine had suffered might seriously and permanently affect his mental faculties, saw an opportunity, as they thought, to help their candidate. They secured a conference of the delegation, and, when it had met, they called upon the ex-Governor to give his opinion, as a medical man, as to whether, in the circumstances, it would be prudent to nominate the Maine statesman. The answer, given with extreme reluctance and regret, and of course entirely sincere, was in the negative. Mr. Blaine's hold upon the New Jersey delegates was immediately broken, but their votes ultimately went, not to Mr. Conkling, but to Mr. Hayes. Those who like to ascribe great effects to small causes saw at the time, in the inaccurate, long-distance diagnosis of Dr. Newell the explanation of Mr. Blaine's failure to reach the Presidency, for they say that, though he was defeated in 1876, if he had been nominated in 1876 he would have been elected.—New York Times.

The man who is imprisoned for life no longer dreads being found out.

MEN ANGRY AT SHAFFER

Striking Steel Workers Are Not Pleased With Settlement.

SAY STRIKE IS ABOUT OVER.

Terms of Settlement Discussed and Real Conditions Now Outlined for the First Time—A Big Loss to the Amalgamated Association.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—Matters pertaining to the settlement of the steel strike are in an unsatisfactory state. While the telegraphic notice was sent out last night by Secretary Williams to all vice presidents declaring the strike at an end, it cannot be learned definitely that the official order has been issued by President Shaffer. Some of the local strikers declare they have had no such notice, and many of them say they will not return to work, order or no order, unless they are recognized as union men. President Shaffer arrived home at an early hour, but denied himself to all callers. A member of the advisory board said that the official order calling the strike off has gone out and that the men generally will be at work tomorrow or within a day or two later.

What are considered the real conditions of the settlement, though not officially announced, are that the settlement was made only for the three companies in dispute—the American Tinplate, the American Sheet Steel, and the American Steel Hoop—and those companies are allowed to retain as non-union all mills started in any kind of shape since the strike order went into effect, the mills that were completely tied up by the strike are to remain union under the Amalgamated scale. Nothing was said concerning the National Tube, the Federal, or National Steel company. The settlement means a big loss to the Amalgamated association, but leaves it still a strong organization.

Miss Eastwick Remanded.

London, Sept. 17.—Marie Josephine Eastwick of Philadelphia, charged with having forged a railroad certificate of the value of £100,000, was again remanded at the Guild Hall police court today. The evidence presented was not important. Miss Eastwick looked extremely ill and was evidently in pain. Although formally remanded until Sept. 23, the prisoner is not likely to reappear in court before Oct. 1, when the preliminary inquiry will be completed.

Say Clerks Kept Money.

Brazil, Ind., Sept. 17.—Suit was entered today against ex-County Clerk Ira Holland and his bondsmen for $1,795, the amount which it is claimed he failed to turn over to the county treasurer when he retired from office in 1896. Suit was also begun against Charles Mace, whose term as county clerk expired a year ago, and his bondsmen for $5,000, the amount it is alleged he failed to turn over to the treasurer.

Crazy Snake Is Released.

Guthrie, Ok., Sept. 17.—Crazy Snake, the Creek Indian who led the rebellion last spring against the government, has been released and is again inciting his people to rebellion. He claims to have come recently from Washington, where he ascertained tribal rights are restored to Indians. He is conducting sun dances and other such ceremonies in the interest of his cause and is keeping his tribe in a condition of unrest.

Actress Claims an Estate.

Marinette, Wis., Sept. 17.—Miss Adie Lafave of Janesville, a sourette with Fritz & Weber's A Breezy Time company, will lay claim to the estate left by John Lafave, a hermit who resided near Powers, Mich., and whose relatives can not be found. Miss Lafave claims that the hermit was her father and that he was separated from her mother years ago in Cleveland.

Forest Fire in Colorado.

Eldorado, Colo., Sept. 17.—A forest fire which started west of here about noon Sunday, has burned over a large territory and destroyed much valuable timber. The families of all the miners employed at Owigley & Co.'s camp were sent to the place and the men were set to fighting the flames to prevent their spreading to the company's mills.

Trains in Collision at Toledo.

CATARRH OF KIDNEYS

Quickly Develops Into Bright's Disease.

[PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH WHEREVER LOCATED.]

John Herziger, son of Alderman Herziger of Neenah, Wis., and Vice President of the Neenah Young Men's Club, writes in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, the following:

"After suffering for two years with kidney trouble I received relief and a cure from using your wonderful medicine, Peruna."

"For months I was unable to work on account of a severe pain in my back, and when I was able to do anything I was in pain and distressed most of the time."

"Hearing so much of the good results people had obtained through the use of Peruna I determined to give it a trial and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I am well now and it only took a few bottles of Peruna."

—John Herziger, 307 Commercial street, Neenah, Wis.

Two years suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, unable to work on account of the severe pain; could find no relief from medicine; gave Peruna a trial and was promptly cured—such was the experience of John Herziger of Wisconsin.

This experience has been repeated many times. Not only in Wisconsin but in every state in the Union. It was indeed a lucky day for this young man when his attention was called to Peruna. What would have been the result had he continued suffering on and fooling away precious time with other remedies, no man can tell. But it is almost certain that it would have ended in incurable Bright's disease of the kidneys, which sooner or later would have proved fatal.

Peruna is a sure cure for incipient Bright's disease of the kidneys. Taken in the early stages of this disease, it cures permanently. Bright's disease always begins with catarrh of the kidneys. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Congressman Bankhead's Statement. Congressman J. H. Bankhead of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his indorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and a catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Beadle Court Angelina No. 3422, I. O. O. F., 205 High St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I came here a few years ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. I thought that the climate would cure me but found that I was mistaken, but what the climate could not do Peruna could and did. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine and I was then a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney trouble through the use of Peruna and it has a host of friends in this city."—Samuel R. Sprecher.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

JAPAN'S TRIBUTE TO PERRY.

Memorial to the Man Who Opened Up the Japan Civilization.

The amity existing between Japan and the United States was recently emphasized at Kurihama, where a monument, erected to Commodore Perry, the American naval officer who first opened Japan to the civilization of the western world, was unveiled. The memorial marks the place where Commodore Perry landed, in 1853, preparatory to signing the treaty which has resulted in the phenomenal progress made by Japan since that time.

The monument is a simple though enduring one. The shaft is a solid block of stone weighing 19 tons and the whole monument, the face of which is suitably inscribed, is 33 feet high. At the dedicatory exercises the officialdom of Japan was generously represented. The United States vessels the New York, New Orleans and Yorktown, were represented. One of those taking part in the ceremonies was Rear Admiral Beardlee who served under Commodore Perry at the time of the landing.

Bird-Shot For Tiger.

No use to hunt tigers with bird-shot. It doesn't hurt the tiger any and it's awfully risky for you.

Consumption is a tiger among diseases. It is stealthy—but once started it rapidly eats up the flesh and destroys the life. No use to go hunting it with ordinary food and medicine. That's only bird-shot. It still advances. Good heavy charges of Scott's Emulsion will stop the advance. The disease feels that.

Scott's Emulsion makes the body strong to resist. It soothes and toughens the lungs and sustains the strength until the disease wears itself out.

AN ILLINOIS SNAKE.

Takes Up Quarters in a Newspaper Office and Expels the Mice.

Every well-regulated printing office has a watering can in which water is kept to wet the type. For want of a better place, the one in the Home Journal office is usually kept on a window sill on the north side of the room. One day during the recent drought two of our printers were sitting on their stools at this window sticking type, when they were nearly petrified by the sight of a snake protruding its head above the sill from the outside. The boys almost broke their necks in getting away. Reaching over into the pan, the snake took a good drink, and, before the startled printers could secure a club with which to dispatch the reptile, it had disappeared, says the Lacon (Ill.) Home Journal.

The next day at the same hour the snake came for another drink, and this was repeated the third and fourth days, but the last time it was attacked from the rear by a big black Thomas cat that makes its home at Lester's livery barn, next door. It was a lively fight for a few seconds, but the cat was too much for the snake, although it was fully four feet long, and the reptile made a shoot for the rear of the office. The cat was after it like a streak of lightning, but the snake found a hole in the brick wall and disappeared under the building.

That was two weeks ago. Before that time the printing office was overrun with mice, but since then there hasn't been a mouse about the place. Any of our readers who are troubled with mice are cordially invited to come and borrow our snake for a few days.

ONE MACHINE GUN.

Properly Worked Is Equal in Effect to Two Hundred Rifles Well Handled.

The destructive power of the machine gun as compared to the small arm even in large numbers has been the subject of interesting trials abroad, reports of which have reached the navy department here, says the Baltimore Sun.

That one machine gun properly and effectively worked is equal to 200 rifles in the hands of as many soldiers has been amply demonstrated. Each shot from the machine gun works greater injury also to the body struck than the small bullet of the army rifle, and its range is far greater.

In recent trials 50 marksmen were chosen to compete with the Hotchkiss eight-millimeter gun, which has lately been widely adopted in France and Germany. The ranges fired were from 400 to 800 yards. At 800 yards the 50 riflemen, each having five rounds independently, obtained 54 hits, or 22.6 per cent. of the number of rounds fired. Thirty-two men were then chosen from among the 50, and these had to fire each eight rounds in 30 seconds. Under these conditions 34, or 13.3 per cent. of the rounds expended, were recorded.

The machine gun was then brought into action, and in 28 seconds fired 211 bullets, making 143 hits. It was shown from the results that the machine gun was far ahead in hits made and rapidity of fire. No such practical tests of the relative merits of the machine gun and a number of small arms have been made before.

WINDOWS CLEANED AT NIGHT.

Expedient Adopted in a Building So Tall That Workmen Become Dizzy.

"We have introduced an innovation in our building, that is practiced nowhere else in town," said the agent of a New York skyscraper, reports the Sun. "We clean our windows at night."

"Our chief reason for the change was that from the very beginning our building has seemed to be a regular hoo-doo for window cleaners. Although no higher than a good many other buildings in town, the situation has the effect of making the cleaners lose their heads and no matter what precautions were adopted hardly a week passed that somebody did not fall and break his neck or his shoulder blade, or, at the very least, skin his crazy bone."

"After two or three score cleaners had been incapacitated for duty by tumbling out of our windows the whole fraternity began to fight shy of us. They all said that to look down at that particular section of the street made them so dizzy that they couldn't keep right side up even though tied to the sill, and at last, as a remedy, we suggested that the windows be washed at night when the distance to the sidewalk would be eliminated by the darkness."

"We found a man who seemed willing to risk his neck, and as he scrubbed all one night without suffering bodily injury, he agreed to serve us regularly thenceforward. So we have all the work done at night now."

Fire Plugs in Kansas Prairies.

The traveler over the Kansas prairies finds many towns that once had waterworks systems now containing only a dozen people. The fire plugs are sticking out in the buffalo grass and they are the playgrounds of prairie dogs and the roosting places of the prairie owls.

New York's Roof Dwellings.

On the roofs of some of the high buildings in New York little houses are erected in which dwell those connected with the care-taking of the structures. Families are reared there and all the business of life goes on as unconcerned as with those who dwell at a lower level.

GETTING A DONATION.

Fortunate Outcome of Parson Tom Uzzell's "Hold-Up" of Minnik Millionaire Stratton.

Winfield Scott Stratton, the mining multi-millionaire, surrounds himself by a barrier of lieutenants, the business of whose life it is to protect him from begging visitors. But Parson Tom Uzzell got by the breakthrough one day. Parson Tom is a famous character in Denver. He used to be one of the boys, and hit the high places for years in the camps. But he got converted and started an independent people's church down in the slums in Denver. He wears a slouch hat, has the physiognomy of a prize fighter, uses a terse and vigorous slang, even in the pulpit, when he takes a notion, and has the reputation of caring for nothing and nobody. One of Stratton's protectors politely asked Parson Tom his business with the great man, says the New York Times. "You just tell Mr. Stratton that Tom Uzzell wants to see him, and never mind my business," said the parson; brusquely. The man stared, but came back shortly with an invitation to enter. Once in, Tom held the millionaire up for money to build a new people's tabernacle, as his old one had grown too small to seat his congregation. Stratton listened in silence, then filled out a check for $15,000.

"Here," he said, "take this, but don't tell anyone about it. I'll give it to you, but I'm not going to let any of those infernal preachers have it."

Tom was so tickled by the unconscious irony of his own separation from the "infernal preachers" that he couldn't keep the joke on himself.

THEATRICAL BUSINESS.

Ingenuous Devices Resorted To by Dramatic Managers to Attract the Public.

The business of the claqué has been subdivided into many branches, all of which are controlled by one man or group of men, says Chambers' Journal. The applauders—even the lady in the box who faints, and the man who hisses at a good part in order to arouse the indignant enthusiasm of the audience—were all provided for so many tickets a performance, to be sold by agents to the public. So carefully were the plans of campaign thought out that the Whiteley of applause used to provide a man or woman, dressed in provincial style, to jump up and scream out: "There's the villain hiding behind that tree," or the like. We also hear of cowboys in the far west pulling out their revolvers and peppering the melodramatic villain.

On one occasion in a London theater the business instinct came out in the same way. A relative of the lessee was enacting the part of an indignant father whose son had got into the hands of the money lenders. In the interview with the money lender the father severely lectured him, and then demanded his son's bill. "There, sir," he said, "is my check for a thousand pounds." The money lender was just reaching out for the check when a voice came from the pit: "Don't you take it, old chap. I've got one of his now for six pound ten, and he's asked me to hold it for a fortnight."

AN ISLAND CATHEDRAL.

One in Bermuda That Has a Stone in It from Either Shore of the Surrounding Ocean.

Four kinds of stone, from as many countries, enter into the material used in the construction of the new Episcopal cathedral at Hamilton, Bermuda. Besides the local coral rock, of which it is largely built, these include Indiana limestone from this country, sandstone from Nova Scotia, a Scotch sandstone and Caen stone from France.

The coral rock of which the body of the church is constructed is the building material in common use in the islands, but in so large a structure a stouter material was required in some places where a strain was likely to come and other material was required as well for some interior and decoration uses, so it was for these several purposes that the building stone described was imported.

Thus this island cathedral contains within its walls not only native material but stone from lands on either shore of the ocean in the middle of which it stands.

Sent Love by Phonograph.

To illustrate Queen Alexandra's kindness of heart a story told is that of an elderly lady-in-waiting to her mother, the late queen of Denmark. In one of King Christian's weekly letters to his daughter he wrote that the old lady was dying and that her one last wish was to speak again to her "dear Princess Alex." At that time it was impossible for Alexandra to leave England, but she spoke a long, tender message of love and hope and remembrance into a phonograph and sent it by special courier to Copenhagen. It arrived only a short time before the old lady's death, but it made her last hours serenely happy.

Soon after The Standard, with its cheering report of the president's condition, was in the reader's hands last week, bulletins began to arrive stating that a change had come and that he was rapidly growing worse, and at 2:15 o'clock Saturday morning he passed peacefully away. When the announcement of his death was received here, the flags about town were placed at half mast, and signs of mourning began to appear on every band. The various churches were draped

DEPARTURE FROM BUFFALO.

Borrowful Scenes as the Body Leaves for National Capital.

The train which carried the president's body to Washington is in part the same that carried him and Mrs. McKinley and their party across the continent to San Francisco recently. The car Olympia was at the rear of the train with the casket containing the body of the president, resting on a bier in the middle of the car and raised so high it could be seen through the windows in the car.

Next in order, counting from the rear, were the cars Hungary and Naples, and then the dining car Waldorf, the last named, in addition to the Olympia, having been made a part of the presidential trans-continental train of a few months ago. The dining car Waldorf is in the middle of the train, the next two in front of it the Pacific and the Raleigh.

Pilot engine No. 408 precedes the funeral train by fifteen minutes to see that the track is clear. This is in charge of Trainmaster J. P. Holndell. Engine No. 134 is drawing the funeral train, under the general charge of George W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania. The train is in direct charge of Assistant Trainmaster E. M. Kinney.

Conductor Johnson, who was in charge of President McKinley's special train which brought him from Canton to Buffalo, is the Pullman conductor. The crew is made up of picked men in the service of the Pennsylvania and Pullman companies. Superintendent J. K. Bennett and Assistant A. J. Grant arranged the details of the Pullman service.

Mrs. McKinley Carried to Carriage.
At 7:32 o'clock the carriage for the president's widow drove up to the Milburn house. It was drawn up so close to the edge of the side veranda that it was scarcely possible to see Mrs. McKinley, who was fairly carried to the carriage by the strong arms of Dr. Rixey, who has been at her side constantly since the president's death. Mrs. McKinley's face was hidden behind the thick mourning veil, but she seemed composed.

Abner McKinley stepped in after her and then Dr. Rixey.

"Mrs. McKinley is bearing up wonderfully," said the doctor. "She slept last night."

The carriage rolled off along the smooth asphalt of Delaware avenue to the station. Two other carriages containing the family and friends who were to make the trip to Washington and then to Canton, followed.

There was no demonstration on the way down. Very few people knew that the carriage contained the president's widow.

Secretary Cortelyou had driven to the station ahead of Mrs. McKinley's carriage. The latter was within the police lines almost before the waiting thousands around the station knew it had come. Every hat went off as Mrs. McKinley was assisted from the carriage by Dr. Rixey. Women cried as they watched the train little women lifted upon the car platform. The casket had reached the station and been placed on the temporary catafalque a few moments before.

Services at Capital.

The services at Capital—Hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," prayer, Rev. Henry R. Naylor, D. D., presiding elder Methodist Episcopal church, Washington district; hymn, "Sometime We'll Understand;" address, Bishop Edward G. Andrews, D. D., Methodist Episcopal church; hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee;" benediction, Rev. W. H. Chapman, D. D., acting pastor Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church.

Upon the receipt of a telegram from Mr. Cortelyou, which presumably reflects the wishes of the President, the announcement is made that the executive departments at Washington would be closed Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. This order, however, does not apply to the subtreasuries and custom-houses in this country and in Porto Rico and Hawaii, which will be closed Thursday only. A sufficient number of customs officers to clear incoming and outgoing vessels, however, will remain on duty.

The six hundred employees of the Baltimore postoffice have appointed a committee to arrange for a bronze tablet to be dedicated to the memory of President McKinley, which memento will be placed at a point of vantage in the postoffice building. It is planned to have the design of the best workmanship, its estimated cost to be $1,000.

THOUSANDS MOURN AT BIER.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Buffalo Sunday became a city of mourners. The gay and flaming decorations of the Pan-American exposition gave way to the symbol of sorrow. The black drapery of the city's streets was so dense that it seemed to muffle the tolling bells of the churches. Bits of crape appeared on every sleeve. The sorrow was everywhere apparent. In the morning a simple service took place at the residence in Delaware avenue where the martyred president died. A hymn was sung and prayer offered over the dead body. That was all. Only the immediate family and the friends and political associates of the late president were present. The scene there was pathetic in the extreme. Then the body was borne out to the waiting cortege on the brawny shoulders of eight sailors and soldiers of the republic. The cortege passed through solid walls of living humanity, bareheaded and grief-stricken, to the city hall, where the body lay in state. There a remarkable demonstration occurred, which proved how close the president was to the hearts of the people. Arrangements had been made to allow the public to view the body from the time it arrived, at about 1:30 o'clock, until about 5 o'clock. But the people were wedged into the streets for blocks. Two lines were formed. They extended literally for miles.

90,000 Persons See Body.

When 5 o'clock came 40,000 persons had already passed, and the crowds waiting below in the streets seemed undiminished. It was decided to extend the time until midnight. Then for hours longer the streets were dense with people and a constant stream flowed up the steps of the broad entrance into the hall and passed the bier. When the doors were closed at midnight it was estimated that 90,000 persons had viewed the remains, but thousands of disappointed ones were still in the streets. The body lay in the city hall until this morning. It was taken to the station by a military escort at 8:30 o'clock. The funeral train, consisting of seven cars, started for Washington over the Pennsylvania railroad. Mrs. McKinley, the president, the cabinet and relatives and friends of the dead president accompanied the body. Mrs. McKinley bore up bravely yesterday during the service at the Milburn residence, and Dr. Rixey, her physician, thinks she will be able to support her trying part in the state funeral at Washington.

The services at the Milburn house were deeply impressive. Senator Hanna, who had loved his dead friend for years, entered the room, but did not approach the coffin. His face was set like an iron-willed man, who would not let down the barriers of his grief. The senator spoke to no one. His eyes were vacant. He passed through the throng and seated himself behind Governor Odell, sinking far down into his chair and resting his head upon his hand. During all the service that followed he did not stir. Just before 11 o'clock President Roosevelt entered coming into the room from the rear through the library. After passing into the hall he had made his way around through the sitting-room behind into the library. There was an instantaneous movement in the room as the President appeared. The procession was still passing from the south side around the head of the casket, and back between it and the members of the cabinet seated at its side. Every one rose and all eyes were turned toward the President. He moved forward again with the tide of the procession to his place at the head of the line of cabinet officers. He held himself erect, his left hand carrying his silk hat. Those who were coming toward him fell back on either side to let him pass. He paused once or twice to shake hands silently, but there was no smile to accompany his greetings. He, too, like the man deep down in his seat against the wall, who had forgotten to rise when the President of the United States entered, seemed to be restraining a great grief.

Roosevelt Represses Emotion.

When President Roosevelt reached the head of the line of cabinet officers he kept his face away from the coffin. The infantryman guarding the dead stood before him, rigid as a statue. Although the commander-in-chief approached until he could have touched him, the soldier did not salute. The President spoke to Secretary Root—or, perhaps, it would be more precise to say that the latter spoke to him. The President appeared to be stealing himself for a look into the face of him whose death had made him the first ruler of the world. The tension in the room was great. Every one seemed to be waiting. The minister of the gospel stood with the holy book in his hand ready to begin. Perhaps it might have been sixty seconds. It seemed longer. Then the President turned, and at the same time advanced one step. He bowed his head and looked down upon the man whose burden and responsibility he had taken up. Long he gazed, standing immovable save for a twitching of the muscles of the chin as he labored, with heavy breath, to repress his emotion. At last he stepped back. Colonel Bingham, the aid to the President, standing ten feet below the foot of the coffin, at the side of the local Cortelyou, glanced in the direction of the Rev. Charles Edward Locke, of the Delaware Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, who was to conduct the service.

"Lead, Kindly Light" Sung.

The pastor was at the door leading into the hall, a station whence his words could be heard at the head of the stairs. The signal was given, and there welled out from the hall the beautiful words of "Lead, Kindly Light," sung by a quartet. It was President McKinley's favorite hymn. Every one within sound of the music knew it and half of those in the room put their faces in their hands to hide their tears. Comptroller Dawes leaned against a bookcase and wept. President Roosevelt seemed to be swaying to and fro as if his footing were insecure.

When the singing ended, the clergyman read from the words of the fifteenth chapter of the First Corinthians. All had risen as he began, and remained standing throughout the remainder of the services. Again the voices rose with the words of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," the very words President McKinley had repeated at intervals of consciousness during the day of agony before he died. As the music died away the pastor spoke again.

"Let us pray," he said, and every head fell upon its breast.

CZOLGOSZ IS INDICTED.

Grand Jury Votes a True Bill Against Assassin.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Within two hours after it convened the grand jury voted a true bill against Leon Czolgosz, charging him with the murder of President McKinley. The document was not turned into court, but was submitted with other indictments which will be voted before the close of the hearing.

"This will be one of the shortest grand jury investigations in an important case ever recorded," said District Attorney Penney to the throng of newspaper men gathered in the rotunda of the county and city building at a point just in front of the door of the grand jury room. "There is no other reason for occupying more than five minutes in the work except that we want to have the matter attended to thoroughly, so as to prevent the defendant taking advantage of any possible oversight on our part."

The investigation was conducted by M. J. Penney and his assistants, Attorneys Haller, Tickner, Sickman and Hinkley. Mr. Haller has been constantly in touch with the local detectives and government secret service men, who have worked on the case from the start.

Declares Wound Was Fatal.

One physician, who asked that his name should not be used, said: "So far as the treatment of the case was concerned, both from a surgical and a medical standpoint, it was successful. The abdominal wound was fatal from the start. The physicians should feel relieved over the result of the autopsy, because it revealed the fact that the abdominal wound was necessarily fatal and that nothing that was done or could be done would more than delay the inevitable result. The government, the family and the profession were fairly represented among the physicians and surgeons making the autopsy."

Will Be Taken Up Friday.

Washington, Sept. 17.—A telegram has been received at the treasury department from Comptroller Dawes stating that he will not take up the matter of the reorganization of the failed Seventh National Bank of New York before his return from President McKinley's funeral at Canton next Friday.

Tried to Blow Up House.

New York, Sept. 17.—Leon Czolgosz was arrested six years ago at Durys, Pa., charged with an attempt to blow up the house of a Polish Catholic priest. Many sticks of dynamite with caps and wires were found in his trunk.

Bankers Put Off Meeting.

New York, Sept. 17.—The annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, called to meet at Milwaukee Sept. 24 to 26, has been postponed indefinitely because of the death of President McKinley.

Japan Mourns for McKinley.

Tokyo, Sept. 17.—There is general mourning here over the death of President McKinley. Many of the newspapers of Japan comment on his noble character.

MICHIGAN NEWS IN GENERAL

Mrs. Parish Murderer gets Life Sentence.

WHAT MICHIGAN IS WORTH.

The Governor Issues More Pardons—A Mysterious Death at Oxford—Events and Gossip From All Parts of the State Stewed Down for Ready Reading.

Michigan Valued at $1,700,000,000.

Lansing, Sept. 13.—The state tax commissioners have made up their figures for all the counties of the state. There still remain 10 counties for which the figures are uncompleted. These are Dickinson, Gogebic, Houghton, Ingham, Iron, Keweenaw, Marquette, Ontonagon, Roscommon and Wayne.

So far as completed the tax commission's figures show a total actual value of $1,107,591,929, and it is estimated that the completed figures will show the total actual value of the state to be a trifle less than $1,700,000,000. The equalized value of the state as fixed in 1896 is $1,105,109,000. The estimates for the uncompleted counties which are not those of the commission are as follows: Dickinson, $12,000,000; Gogebic, $12,000,000; Houghton, $175,000,000; Ingham, $33,000,000; Iron, $6,000,000; Keweenaw, $4,000,000; Marquette, $30,000,000; Ontonagon, $5,000,000; Roscommon, $500,000; Wayne, $300,000,000. This added to the total as far as completed by the tax commission would make a total valuation of $1,685,591,929.

Accident or Murder?

The body of William D. Hollister, the American express agent at Oxford, was found on the Michigan Central railroad tracks at 11 o'clock Wednesday night. The body had been cut in two by a passing train. There was a huge gash in one side of the unfortunate man's head, and this had led to talk of foul play.

Hollister was last seen alive about 8:35 o'clock. He had been very ill all day, and the symptoms became aggravated in the evening. He had a money package to deliver to the express messenger on the 8:30 train for Detroit.

Although he was suffering greatly he made the trip to the station and delivered the package, which contained $750. Whether he received any money or valuable packages from the messenger is not known. None were found on his person or near where he was found. Neither was his receipt book in evidence. The authorities are of the opinion that his death was an accident.

Will Serve Life Sentence.

Luticus A. Weeks has been found guilty of murder in the first degree for the killing of Mrs. Jennie Parish on the night of June 5 last at Flint. When asked if he had anything to say Weeks said that he thought the jury had been prejudiced against him because of the shooting of the president. Judge Wisner told the prisoner that the president's assassination had nothing to do with it, and that under the evidence the jury could have arrived at no other verdict. He then sentenced the prisoner to Jackson for life at hard labor.

The murder was a cold-blooded affair. Weeks was jealous of the woman and shot her because she received attentions from a rival. Weeks is a married man. He broke down when sentenced.

More Pardons Granted.

Acting upon the recommendation of the pardon board, Gov. Bliss has pardoned John Page, who was convicted in the Hillsdale Circuit Court for the crime of arson, and sentenced in November, 1899, to imprisonment in the Ionia reformatory for six years. Page is 61 years of age and childish, and has been a patient in the hospital ever since he was incarcerated. His daughters, who reside in Denver, Col., have arranged to care for him at their homes. The governor also pardoned Albert M. Tracey, convicted in the Jackson County Circuit Court of larceny, Sept. 17, 1900, to Ionia for 20 months.

PRESIDENT IS DEAD.

Struggle Ended at 2:15 Saturday Morning.

Relatives and Friends Waited for Death Several Hours--End Was Peaceful and Calm.

Relatives Chanted a Hymn Before Lapsing Into Unconsciousness--All the Skill Known to Science Failed to Revive Him.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY,

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, WHO WAS SHOT AT BUFFALO, N. Y., BY JON CZOLGOSZ, FRIDAY, SEPT. 6, AND DIED SATURDAY MORNING, SEPT. 14.

PRESIDENT'S LAST FAREWELL.

President McKinley died at 2:15 Saturday morning. His last conscious hours on earth was spent with the wife to whom he devoted a lifetime of love. He died unattended by a minister of the gospel but his last words were a humble submission to God in whom he believed. He was reconciled to the fate to which a cruel assassin's bullet had condemned him and died in the same spirit of calmness which has marked his long and honorable career. His last conscious words, reduced to writing by Dr. Mann, stood by his bedside when they were uttered, were as follows: "Good-bye. All good-bye. It is God's way. His will be done."

His relatives and members of his official family were at the Milburn house, except Secretary Wilson. His friends came to the door took a parting look at him and turned tearfully away. He was practically unconscious during this time, but powerful stimulants, including oxygen, were employed to restore him to consciousness for the final parting with his wife. He asked her and she sat at his side and held his hand. He consoled her and made her good-bye. She went through the heart-breaking scene with the same bravery and fortitude with which she has borne the grief of the tragedy that ended his life.

President McKinley began to sink shortly after 2 o'clock Friday morning, after a critical period of 12 hours, in which alarm and hope mingled in the minds of those who surrounded him. Trouble began on the preceding afternoon through the failure of digestive organs to perform their functions. The necessity for nourishment had been pressing for several days and the partial failure of artificial means had led to the adoption of natural means. The rectum, through which nourishment had been injected previously to Wednesday, became irritated and rejected the enemata. This forced the physicians to try to feed him through the mouth, probably before the stomach was prepared. The first administration of beef juice through the mouth, however, seemed to agree with the patient, and the physicians were highly gratified at the way the stomach seemed to receive the food. The breakfast of chicken broth, toast and coffee, given Thursday morning, was spoken of by all the physicians as strong evidence of the president's marked improvement. It was only when it became apparent late in the morning that this food had not agreed with the president that the first genuine anxiety appeared.

What to Do With Emma.
The department of justice has not decided upon any steps to secure possession of Emma Goldman for the purpose of taking action against her in the federal courts.

There is no reason for the federal authorities to desire possession of Miss Goldman now. They have plenty of time while she languishes in the hands of the state authorities to discuss their plans and to act later, if they see fit.

Peter S. McNally has abandoned his attempt to swim from Boston to New York in 30 days.

Admiral Ramsey Chosen.
Rear Admiral Ramsey has been chosen as Rear Admiral Howison's successor on the court of inquiry. All reports that have reached Washington were to the effect that Sampson's physical condition is such that his appearance here is utterly impossible.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., a Hero.
Foxhall Keene was rescued from drowning at Newport, R. I., by W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., after both had been capsized from a canoe in the surf on Bailey's beach last evening. A life-boat picked up both.

ing of the bowels would have the effect of allaying the wild pulsations of the heart. His pulse dropped to 120, and the prospect was slightly brighter. But owing to his extreme weakness and his fatigue no attempt was made to conceal the serious apprehension which was felt. The feeling of depression increased in volume and intensity. Shortly after 2 o'clock the physicians and nurse detected a weakening of the heart action. The pulse fluttered and weakened and the president sank toward collapse.

Salt Solution Employed.
The end appeared to be at hand. Restoratives were speedily applied and the physicians fought the battle with all the forces of science. Action was immediate and decisive. Digitalis and strychnine were administered and as a last resort saline solution was injected into the veins.

A general alarm went speeding to the consulting physicians and trained nurses as fast as messengers, the telegraph and telephone could carry it. The restoratives did not at once prove effective and it was realized that the president was in an extremely critical condition. The realization, with the shadow of death behind it, led to another call and that a summons to the cabinet, relatives, and close personal friends of the president.

An Affecting Farewell.
Before 6 o'clock it was clear to those at the president's bedside that he was dying and preparations were made for the last sad offices of farewell from those who were nearest and dearest to him. Oxygen had been administered steadily, but with little effect in keeping back the approach of death. The president came out of one period unconscious only to relapse into another.

But in this period when his mind was partially clear, occurred a series of events of profoundly touching character. Down stairs, with strained and tear-stained faces, members of the cabinet were grouped in anxious waiting. They knew the end was near, and that the time had come when they must see him for the last time on earth. This was about 6 o'clock. One by one they ascended the stairway--Secretary Root, Secretary Hitchcock and Atty.-Gen. Knox. Secretary Wilson also was there, but he held back, not wishing to see the president in his last agony. There was only a momentary stay of the cabinet officers at the threshold of the death chamber. Then they withdrew, the tears streaming down their faces and the words of intense grief choking their throats.

After they left the sick room the physicians rallied him to consciousness and the president asked almost immediately that his wife be brought to him. The doctors fell back into the shadows of the room as Mrs. McKinley came through the doorway. The strong face of the dying man lighted up with a faint smile as their hands were clasped. She sat beside him and held his hand and heard from him his last words of encouragement and comfort. Then she was led away, and not again during his living hours did she see him. Despite her physical weakness she bore bravely under the ordeal.

The president himself fully realized that his hour had come and his mind turned to his Maker. He whispered feebly:

"Nearer, my God, to Thee."

The words of the hymn were always dear to his heart. Then in faint accents he murmured:

"Good-bye, all; good-bye. It is God's way. His will be done, not ours."

With this sublime display of Christian fortitude the president soon after lapsed into unconsciousness.

His life was prolonged for hours by the administration of oxygen, and the president finally expressed a desire to be allowed to die. About 8:30 Friday night the administration of oxygen ceased and the pulse grew fainter and fainter. He was sinking gradually, like a child into the eternal slumber.

Midnight came, and still the tremendous vitality of the president was battling against dissolution. Another hour passed on, and still another. At 2 o'clock Dr. Rixey was the only physician in the death chamber. The others were in an adjoining room, while the relatives, cabinet officers and nearest friends were gathered in silent groups in the apartments below. As he watched and waited, Dr. Rixey observed a slight convulsive tremor. The president had entered the valley of the shadow of death. Word was at once taken to the immediate relatives who were not present to hasten for the last look upon the president in life. They came in groups, the women weeping and the men bowed and sobbing in their intense grief.

Grouped about the bedside at this final moment were the only brother of the president, Abner McKinley and his wife, Miss Helen McKinley and Mrs. Sarah Duncan, sisters of the president; Miss Mary Barber, niece; Miss Sarah Duncan, niece; Lieut. James F. McKinley, Wm. M. Duncan and John Barber, nephews; F. M. Osborne, a cousin; Secretary George B. Cortelyou, Hon. Charles C. Dawes, comptroller of the currency; Col. Webb C. Hayes and Col. Wm. C. Brown.

The minutes were now flying and it was 2:15 o'clock. Silent and motionless, the circle of loving friends stood about the bedside. Dr. Rixey leaned forward and placed his ear close to the breast of the expiring president. Then he straightened up and made an effort to speak.

"The president is dead," he said. "The president had passed away peacefully, without the convulsive struggle of death. It was as though he had fallen asleep."

GANGRENE CAUSED DEATH.

Official Announcement of Result of Autopsy.

The official announcement of the physicians as a result of their autopsy on the president's body that death resulted from gangrene of the wounds, led to much discussion of the causes leading up to this gangrenous condition.

The bullet which struck over the breast bone did not pass through the skin and did little harm. The other bullet passed through both walls of the stomach near its lower border. Both holes were found to be perfectly closed by the stitches, but the tissue around each hole had become gangrenous. After passing through the stomach the bullet passed into the back walls of the abdomen, hitting and tearing the upper end of the kidney. This portion of the bullet track was also gangrenous, the gangrene involving the pancreas. The bullet had not yet been found. There was no sign of peritonitis or disease of other organs. The heart walls were very thin. There was no evidence of any attempt at repair on the part of nature and death resulted from the gangrene which affected the stomach around the bullet wounds as well as the tissues around the further course of the bullet. Death was unavoidable by any surgical or medical treatment, and was the direct result of the bullet wound.

All the tissues through which the bullet passed were dead. This is very remarkable indeed. The area of the dead flesh in the stomach was perhaps as great as a silver dollar in circumference. Dr. Wadsworth, the marine hospital expert, was strongly inclined to the opinion that the bullet had been poisoned.

MRS. MCKINLEY,

THE BEGRIEVED WIDOW OF THE MURDERED PRESIDENT.

Eddie Bengaman, of Mendon, aged 16, who was injured in a runaway last Monday, is dead.

Joseph Manshine, bartender in a Stoughton saloon, three miles from Leadville, Colo., was killed by robbers.

The special features of the general trade outlook are the reports of a large seasonable distribution, heavy shipments and improved collections from western centers.

Jos. Waters, a farmer, residing with his widowed mother near Warren, has disappeared and friends fear for his safety. He was last seen September 4.

The body of Charles Williams was found along the Dayton and Union tracks near Greenville. He was probably killed by a midnight passenger train.

Workmen repairing an old barn near Plymouth found several old bills, amounting to about $200. The money was redeemed by a local bank.

Fully 100,000 peach trees will have to be destroyed in Athens county, as a result of an order of the Ohio agricultural department, the trees being afflicted with San Jose scale.

William Schell, aged 16, was run over and killed by a Columbus street car, after he was trying to escape a wake.

ROOSEVELT TAKES OATH.

Affecting Scene During Ceremony That Made Him President.

CABINET OFFICERS RETAINED.

President Roosevelt will Follow the Policy of McKinley Absolutely Unbroken--No Change in Cabinet and no Special Session of Congress.

Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-sixth president of the United States, succeeds to that exalted office under the constitution and laws of the country, and with the administration of the oath of office began the exercise of the functions of president.

In these statements are embraced the consummation of an awful tragedy and the historic event by which the entire administration of government is changed and a new administration comes into being.

The statute providing for the succession to the presidency requires that congress shall be convened in case a member of the cabinet becomes president, but the statutory requirement does not apply to the case of the vice-president being elevated to the presidency through the death of the president. It is believed that since the law does not call upon him to do so, the new president will not summon congress in special session, but will allow the affairs of the different departments to remain in their present hands until congress shall meet in constitutional session December 2d, less than three months hence. This precedent was set by President Arthur after the death of Garfield. President Arthur did convene the senate in special session, but circumstances are somewhat different in the present instance.

President Roosevelt reached Buffalo at 1:40 Saturday afternoon, accompanied by his private secretary, William Loeb, Jr. When he left the train an escort of the Fourth signal corps formed about him and conducted him to a automobile which his friend, Ansley Wilcox, had in waiting. The demonstration which greeted his appearance was in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion. Those who saw him did not raise a cheer, but attested their respect by lifting their hats. As soon as he entered the vehicle the chauffeur turned the lever and the automobile went skimming away to the residence of Mr. Wilcox on Delaware avenue. The president arrived at the Wilcox home at 1:45 o'clock.

Call of Condolence.

With hardly any conversation he retired at once to his room, where he bathed and dressed. At 12:30 o'clock he was ready to leave for the Milburn house, where he desired to make his official call of condolence. He was escorted by a detail from the fourth signal corps and mounted police.

The president was attired in a black frock coat and dark striped trousers. He alighted at the Milburn house at exactly 2:38 o'clock. He was accompanied to the house by his host, Mr. Ansley Wilcox and one of the secret service force.

It was 3:15 when President Roosevelt came back to the house of Mr. Ansley Wilcox, and until 3:25, when the cabinet arrived, preparations were being made for the taking of the oath of office.

Loosevelt Took the Oath of Office.

At precisely 3:32 o'clock Secretary Root ceased his conversation with the president and, stepping back, while an absolute hush fell upon every one in the room, said in an almost inaudible voice: "Mr. Vice-President, I," then his voice broke and for fully two minutes the tears came down his face and his lips quivered so that he could not continue his utterances. There were sympathetic tears from those about him and two great drops ran down either cheek of the successor of Mr. McKinley. Mr. Root's chin was on his breast. Suddenly throwing back his head as if with an effort, he continued in a broken voice:

"I have been requested on behalf of the cabinet of the late president, at least those who are present in Buffalo, all except two, to request that for reasons of weight affecting the affairs of government you will proceed to take the constitutional office of president of the United States."

Mr. Roosevelt's voice wavered at first as he replied:

"I shall take the oath at once in accordance with your request and in this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

An Impressive Scene.

The president stepped farther into the bay window, and Judge Hazel, taking up the constitutional oath of office which had been prepared on parchment, asked the president to raise his right hand and repeat it after him. There was a hush like death in the room and the judge read a few words at a time and the president, in a strong voice and without a tremor and with his raised hand as steady as if carved from marble, repeated it after him. "And thus I swear," he ended it. The hand dropped by the side, the chain for an instant rested on the breast and the silence remained unbroken for a couple of minutes as though the new president of the United States was offering silent prayer. Judge Hazel broke it, saying: "Mr. President, please attach your signature." And the president, turning to a small table near by wrote "Theodore Roosevelt" at the bottom of the document in a firm hand.

Immediate Session of Cabnet Called.

"I should like to see the members of the cabinet a few moments after the others retire," said the president, and this was the signal for the score of people who had been favored by witnessing the ceremony to retire. As they turned to go the president said: "I will shake hands with you people, gladly, and with something of his old smile returning he first shook hands with the members of the cabinet present, then Senator Depew, and finally with a few guests and newspaper men."

Bert Jenkins has his right leg near cut off by a corn-cutting machine.

President Roosevelt

Took the Oath of Office in Mr. Wilcox's Library at 3:32.

The place selected was the library of Mr. Wilcox's house, a rather small room, but picturesque, the heavy oak trimmings and the massive book cases giving it somewhat the appearance of a legal den. A pretty bay window with stained glass and heavy hangings formed a background, and against this the president took his position. Surrounding him were the Ave members of the cabinet, Secretaries Root, Hitchcock, Long, Wilson and Postmaster-General Smith. Near by were Senator Depew, Judge of the Court of Appeals Haight John Scathard, Mr. and Mrs. Ansley Wilcox, Miss Wilcox, Geo. P. Sawyer, Mrs. Mann, Park and Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Milburn, Secretary to the President Wm. Loeb, Jr.; Secretary to the Deceased President Cortelyou, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Carey, R. C. Schathard, J. D. Sawyer, Wm. Jeffers, official telegrapher of the United States senate, and Judge of the United States District Court John H. Hazel.

CZOLGOSZ'S FATE SEALED.

The Murderer of the President Will Soon be Electrouted.

The wretch Leon Czolgosz now stands accused of murder.

The crime was committed with malice aforethought, and as such was murder in the first degree, the punishment for which under the law of New York is death in the electric chair.

Had the death of the president occurred at any other time than in the early hours of morning, it would have boded ill to the evil genius of the episode. The angry spirit of the people at Buffalo had reached an intense pitch. Foreseeing the danger of possible riot, the police headquarters, where Czolgosz is confined, was roped off and the menacing thousands held at bay.

If the president's death had come before midnight it would have been difficult to avoid a conflict; but the crowds gradually broke up as the new day came on, and by 2:15 a. m., when the death announcement came, the downtown thoroughfares were deserted.

For the moment the anger of the outraged people is forgotten in their poignant grief, and this will doubtless consign Czolgosz to the swift and inevitable punishment provided by law.

NOTIFIED ALL NATIONS.

Secretary of State Hay has officially notified all the nations of the world that President McKinley is dead.

"Isn't It Pitiful," Says Mr. Bryan.

W. J. Bryan was deeply affected by the bulletins describing the last hours of the president. In a vol. e that broke, he indicated the bulletin wherein the dying president was said to be murmuring "Nearer, my God, to Thee" and said: "Isn't that pitiful--isn't it too pitiful?"

"God's will, not ours, be done," he read in another bulletin giving the president's last words to Mrs. McKinley, and again Mr. Bryan was deeply moved. He made no comment, but tears again sprang to his eyes.

Affecting Scene in Chicago.

The hymn "Nearer, my God, to Thee" was sung by the throng in front of one of the newspaper offices in Chicago when the announcement was made that President McKinley was dead.

When the singing of the hymn ceased there was a pause. Many were in tears. A college student then bared his head and prayed aloud. The great crowd listened and when the student had ceased someone started to sing "America," the crowd joining in. After the singing all quietly dispersed.

Disowned by Her Aged Mother.

Mrs. Goldman, mother of Emma Goldman, was interviewed at Rochester, N. Y., concerning her daughter's arrest. She said:

"Emma Goldman is a worthless creature. I disown her. I am nearly 90 years old, and I don't propose at this age to be disgraced longer by her crazy ideas."

"How long is it since your daughter has been at home?"

"This is not her home. I don't have anything to do with her. She can't stop under the same roof with me, not for a single night."

"But she was in Rochester a short time ago?"

"Yes, but she didn't stop at my house."

Says She Wouldn't Succeed.

Emma Goldman still denies that she had anything to do with the death of President McKinley. She also says:

"I don't believe in interfering in anything a man thinks he has a right to do. It is not my place to place a man in the hands of the police. If a man thinks he is called on to kill a man because he believes him a tyrant, you may be sure that I will not squeal on him to the police."

A "Red's" Opinion.

The New York anarchists are more inclined to blame yellow journalism for the attempt on the president's life than they are to blame the speeches or writings of Emma Goldman.

John Most bluntly blamed the New York Journal for the crime. Most is quoted as saying:

"You wish to make this man one of us. Why don't you read the Journal. Look at the caricatures on the last page, where your president is portrayed in a way that would make even a bootblack ashamed. Is it a wonder if this poor Czolgosz permits himself to be incited to make an attempt that may produce complications that we cannot even foresee? These pictures don't show the president as a little, foolish man. He is ridiculed, and such ridicule affects the ignorant mind."

Charles Clark, aged 17, whose parents reside in Delaware, was found dead at the farm of Thomas Fulton. Clark had opened his window during the night, climbed out on to the roof of the porch, and in some way fallen off.

President Shaffer has been instructed by the executive committee of the Amalgamated Association to negotiate for peace on the best terms obtainable, and it is probable that the strike will be settled on the terms offered by the United States Steel corporation last week.

County and Vicinity

The Students' Christian Association at Ann Arbor, has already secured employment for 50 needy students. Thirty more students have made application for aid.

The engine house for the new gas lighting plant is nearly completed, the tanks, pipes, etc., have arrived and work will soon be commenced putting in the plant.—Stockbridge Brief.

Owing to the death of Christian Mack, the late president of the Ann Arbor Savings bank, a reorganization was made necessary. Charles E. Hiscock is promoted from cashier to president.

After a brief but bitter contest the Ann Arbor common council Monday night confirmed by a vote of 10 to 4
the mayor's nomination of Hon. A. J.
Sawyer to be city attorney. Alderman Brown made his usual spectacular attack upon Mayor Copeland and his nominee.

An incident in the way of mole-catching which has no recorded precedent occurred on the premises of A.
A. Taft of Plymouth. Two ground moles which were burrowing up his lawn were caught simultaneously in one trap meeting at that point just in time. It is usually pretty sharp work to catch even one of the little pests.

If Plymouth succeeds in landing all the manufacturing enterprises she has in contemplation she will have three new factories. The Beech stove factory, controlled by Toledo capital, wants to locate in Plymouth if the village will put up for moving expenses, and the council has appointed a committee to investigate probabilities and possibilities. Then the Wagner tool works of Sidney, O., but lately resting on its laurels, wants also to come for a consideration of $5,000 or $6,000.
Besides these, the formation of a stock company to establish a pickling, preserving and canning factory is in prospect, a meeting having been called for September 21st to consider the matter.

HOW FLIES MULTIPLY.

Their Increase Limited Only by the Amount of Food Accessible to Them.

Fly time is here, and the English scientists, through their eminent Lancet, have been giving some timely thought to the infliction, and warning people against the pestilence. It is admitted that disease is carried by them, and the public is warned to destroy flies.

Flies multiply at a prodigious rate.
Given a temperature sufficiently high to hatch the eggs, their numbers are only limited by the amount of food available for them. Linnaeus is credited with the saying that three meat flies, by reason of their rapid multiplication, would consume a dead horse quicker than would a lion, and the fact that certain diptera having some outward resemblance to the honey bee lay their eggs in the dead carcasses of animals probably led Samson and Virgil to make erroneous statements with regard to the genesis of honey and the manufacture of bees.

In three weeks it seems probable that a female fly might have some 25, 000,000 descendants in the course of a hot summer. Other varieties of flies multiply still more rapidly.

As flies multiply upon and in organic refuse of every kind, it is obvious that the sooner such refuse is placed where it cannot serve for the feeding and hatching of flies the more likely is the plague of flies to be lessened.

Last week I went about,
Full of trouble and of doubt,
Now I'm smiling and dance with delight,
I had some Rocky Mountain Tea last night. Glazier & Stimson.

Henry Braydon, Harris, N. C., says: "I took medicine 20 years for asthma but one bottle of One Minute Cough Cure did me more good than any thing else during that time. Best cough cure. Glazier & Stimson."

Many physicians are now prescribing Kodol Dyspepsia Cure regularly having found that it is the best prescription they can write because it is the one preparation which contains the elements necessary to digest not only some kind of food but all kind and it therefore cures indigestion and dyspepsia no matter what its cause. Glazier & Stimson.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

Digests what you eat.

This preparation contains all of the digestants and digests all kinds of food. It gives instant relief and never fails to cure. It allows you to eat all the food you want. The most sensitive stomachs can take it. By its use many thousands of dyspeptics have been cured after everything else failed. It prevents formation of gas on the stomach, relieving all distress after eating.
Dieting unnecessary. Pleasant to take.

It can't help
but do you good Prepared only by E. O. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.
The 51. bottle contains 25¢ times the 10c. size.

IRRIGATION IN COLORADO.

As Further Extension Under Present Conditions Said to Be Impossible.

The Monthly Weather Review says that while agriculture by irrigation has reached a degree of development in Colorado unrivaled elsewhere in the arid region, there is no prospect of its further extension under present circumstances. In the early days of Colorado, when agriculture was small, the flow of water in the streams during the summer went mostly to waste; but with the increase of population agriculture made rapid progress, and to supply the demand large canals took the place of the small ditches that had been constructed here and there by a few farmers. Large areas were thus brought within reach of irrigation.
The amount of water that now reaches the streams during the summer season is undoubtedly smaller than it was a quarter of a century ago. While greater economy in its use has become necessary, scarcity is common and droughty conditions during the summer often cause great loss.

Deforestation and forest fires have removed large tracts of timber, nature's reservoirs in the mountains, so that the amount of moisture conserved till midsummer is rapidly growing less under the unobstructed action of the sun and winds. What is true of Colorado will soon be equally true of other mountain states in the arid region unless strenuous efforts are made to reforest the devastated areas and to protect the timber still standing.

HOW BOBS GOT AWAY.

British General Left Johannesburg
Without Letting Fact Be Known.

When Lord Roberts made up his mind to leave Johannesburg he had good reason for desiring to keep the fact of his departure a secret, says a London paper. On the eve of his departure the chief aid-de-camp greeted the acting inspector of police in the New club and anxiously called him aside. He said that the chief was leaving Johannesburg early the next morning, but that, as his departure was to be kept an entire secret, it was imperative that two cabs should be obtained and be ready to start at four a. m. to convey Lord Roberts to the station. As it is illegal at the present time for cabs to run at this hour, the difficulty will be manifest. However, the young subaltern was equal to the occasion. He went out into the street, hailed a cab, and told the man to drive to the police station. Arrived there he gave orders that the cabman should be detained under arrest and the horses and cab put up at the station. He then went out and "commandeered" another cab in a similar manner. At four o'clock next morn the cabmen were released and ordered to drive Lord Roberts from his house in Jepperton to the railway station. Thus Lord Roberts left Johannesburg in such secrecy that even two or three days afterward many officers were still ignorant of his departure.

SHE HAS A PRECIOUS DOLL.

Its Head Is Decorated with Hair Once Worn by the Owner's Father.

Naomi Oles, the little six-year-old daughter of Frederick Oles, of Lansdale, Pa., has in her possession a doll which is considered the most valuable possession in the county, and which has created considerable comment because of its headgear, to which there is an interesting story attached, says a local exchange.

Twenty-one years ago Mr. Oles, father of Naomi, was the proud possessor of a head of silken locks with a natural tendency to curl. As he grew older his mother thought it was not becoming that a boy of his age should wear such pendants, and it was with much persuasion that she finally induced him to have his hair cut. When the barber had shorn him of his locks the mother secured them and placed them away for safe keeping.

Recently she had a doll's wig made of the hair, and having had it placed upon a pretty doll, the grandmother presented it to Naomi. The little girl is extremely proud of her gift, and seems to thoroughly realize the value of this doll with natural hair so peculiarly secured. Little Naomi's present is the envy of all the little girls in the vicinity.

Sending Carpets to Turkey.

The old saying about sending coals to Newcastle is exemplified in the shipment of large quantities of European and American made carpets to Turkey. Great Britain supplies by far the greater part of these carpets, including the so-called Brussels carpets and small foot rugs. France furnishes the fancy carpets and rugs of the better grades. A French house has imitated the English goods, and as regards the better grades of velvets and Brussels the attempt has been entirely successful. In tapestry carpets, however, the colors were not so bright as those of English make.

Relics of Our Fair Disposed Of.

Queen Dowager Margherita of Italy has just completed the distribution of her personal effects and has finally returned from the court. Her 300 superb costumes have been apportioned among her friends. Immediately after King Humbert's funeral she sent to the museum at Florence the exquisite embroideries which made so fine an exhibit at the Chicago exposition, and all her jewelry has been given to relatives.
