THE PEAT INDUSTRY.

Two Chelsea Men Visit the Peat Factories of Canada and Are Satisfied There is Money in Peat.

Last week John A. Palmer and Hiram Lighthall in company with F. T. Barcroft and E. G. Palmer, of Detroit, paid a visit to the peat factories located at Beaverton and Kirkfield, Ontario, to get a little practical insight into the manufacture of the article about which there has been so much talk in Chelsea for the past few weeks, also to investigate its profitability as an investment. Both Mr. Palmer and Mr. Lighthall were thoroughly satisfied that there is money to be made in the compressed peat industry, but both gentlemen were equally satisfied that the manufactured article can be produced cheaper than it is being produced either at the Beaverton or Kirkfield factories.

Their first visit was to Beaverton. The peat factory, owned by A. Dobson, who is the big man of the little village, is located about 1 1/2 miles south of Beaverton. There is a bog field of 100 acres, of which Mr. Dobson owns 40 acres. The average depth of the peat is 2 1/2 feet, and the field is thoroughly drained. In getting out the peat, the surface of the bog is stripped and the peat is dug up by a digger machine which is driven by an electric motor and cuts up a strip the depth of the peat bed, gathers it up, breaks it and distributes it loosely 4 inches thick over a space 4 or 5 feet wide. It is left in the sun to dry for 4 or 5 days, in which time the moisture is reduced 40 per cent. It is then conveyed to the storage sheds or dump bin. From the dump bin it goes to the grinder and from the grinder to the dry kiln, where it remains 18 minutes. When taken from the dry kiln it contains just enough moisture to develop the tarry properties which make it adhere together when it is compressed. The compressing is done by a press which exerts a 30 tons pressure on two vertical plungers which make blocks of compressed peat 2 1/2 inches thick and 2 1/2 inches in diameter. The lumps when ejected from the machine are delivered direct into wagons. The factory building is of brick 80x100 feet in size. The cost of production is $1.25 per ton, and it sells for $3 per ton at the factory or $3.25 per ton at the storage sheds in Beaverton. The amount produced is 1 1/2 tons per hour. The amount of capital invested is $8,000. The factory runs 10 hours per day.

The other factory visited at Kirkfield, is located 22 miles from Beaverton, on the Trent Valley Canal. The peat bog is entirely covered with water, is of great extent, and from 15 to 65 feet deep. The company controls 60,000 acres of land, a grant from the government. The peat is dredged up and dumped into scows. The scows are emptied by a 3-ton clam which works on an overhead cable and deposits the wet peat on the far side of the heap where it is partially dried. On its return journey the clam brings a load of the partially dried peat and deposits it in a separator, where it is cleaned of roots and stems. From there it goes to the hydraulic presses which have a pressure of 3,000 pounds per square inch and squeeze 45 per cent of the moisture out. From there it goes to the dry kiln where the moisture is still further reduced to 10 per cent in 15 minutes. The grinder next receives the peat and from there it goes to the four presses which compress it into 6 ounce lumps. It is put into bags for convenience in shipping by wagon to the railroad depot 3 1/2 miles away. The factory has its own electric light plant and fire protection. The fuel used is gas, generated direct from peat and costing 3 to 4 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. The director of the plant said of it, "We would not exchange this bog for a gold mine." Gas at such small cost as this offers great possibilities. At this factory fine powdered peat is sold at $5 per ton. It is used for annealing purposes. Both the gas and powdered peat are by-products and entirely outside the manufacture of peat for fuel purposes. The present capacity of the plant is 8,500 tons a year. It will shortly be increased to 60,000 or 70,000 tons. The cost of manufacture is 75 cents a ton. It is sold on the cars at $3.50 a ton. The cost of the plant has been $100,000, 40 per cent of which is chargeable to original investigations in by-products.

From these facts it is easy to see that if peat can be manufactured under the conditions that exist at Beaverton and Kirkfield for such low prices and make money, it certainly can be manufactured at a greater profit under the favorable conditions that exist in Chelsea.

A "STARRY" CONSTELLATION

Dropped Down on Manchester Last Friday Evening for a Few Hours.

About 50 of the officers and members of Olive Chapter, No. 108, O. E. S., drove to Manchester last Friday afternoon to pay a visit to the chapter in that place and assist in conferring the degrees of the order upon two candidates. Immediately upon arrival they were escorted to the beautiful and spacious home of the Manchester chapter.

At 6 o'clock an elegant supper was served, to which the Chelsea Stars, with appetites whetted by their 12 mile drive, did ample justice. The Brooklyn chapter had also been invited to share in the work and festivities, and was well represented.

The Chelsea ladies did their part of the work with their customary ease and grace, and won well merited words of praise. The floral degree was worked by Brooklyn chapter and was beautifully and artistically rendered.

About 11 o'clock the Chelseaites started for home all voting they had been royally entertained by their Manchester sisters and brothers. Most of them arrived here at from 1 to 1:30 o'clock, but one load did not get here until nearly 8 o'clock, having gone several miles out of their way. What was the matter with that Manchester coffee, anyhow?

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Mrs. Michael Schanz, Jr., Carried Out of a Burning House Wrapped in Bed Clothes.

The dwelling house of Michael Schanz, jr., at Lima Center, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock. Mrs. Schanz was ill in bed, and had it not been for the prompt action of the men working on the power house she would have been burned with the house. They wrapped the bed clothes round her and so carried her over to Mr. Storms' house. Most of the furniture downstairs was saved, but that contained in the upper part of the house was destroyed. The fire originated from the oil cook stove being tipped over. The M. E. church, the schoolhouse and a barn were only saved by great exertion, each of them being on fire several times. The loss on the house is partially covered by insurance.

President McKinley's mortal remains now rest in the tomb in Westlawn cemetery at Canton. ASSASSIN ON TRIAL.

Czolgosz Enters Plea of Guilty But It Is Refused.

A Jury Quickly Secured—The Testimony of Medical Staff Is Taken—Trial Will Probably Be a Brief One.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Leon F. Czolgosz was placed on trial Monday for the murder of President McKinley on September 6. The trial was in the supreme court of Erie county, Judge Truman C. White presiding.

The trial began at ten o'clock, but long before that hour the streets in the vicinity of the city hall were the objective of many curious persons. They were willing to take chances on being admitted to the courtroom, even though they knew that there were but 150 seats available. The various entrances to the great building, with the exception of that on Franklin street, were closed and guarded. Policemen were everywhere, and rigid discipline was the order of the day.

Trial Will Be Brief.

The probable duration of the trial, it is believed, can be placed at two full days. When District Attorney Penny was asked by Justice White, at noon, as to the time he would take in the presentation of the case, he declared that he would conclude by Tuesday noon. Judge Titus, for the defense, was noncommittal, however, and merely replied: "That depends upon the turn things take."

It is not probable that any defense will be put in, owing to the character of the prisoner and his refusal to help his attorney in any way to procure evidence which they could use in his favor. The idea of an attempt to enter the question of his sanity is not thought of in view of the reports of the two alienists who have recently examined him, and there is ground for the belief that the trial will be concluded with a session of but one day more.

At 10:16 there was a bustle in the corridor and a squad of policemen brought in the prisoner. He was handcuffed to an officer on each side, while in front and behind him walked other uniformed policemen.

The prisoner was attired in a new suit of dark gray, a white shirt and a collar and a light blue bow tie. His face was cleanly shaven and his hair combed.

He sat down behind his counsel with two officers in plain clothing immediately in his rear.

District Attorney Penney proceeded at once with the reading of the indictment. He spoke to Czolgosz in a low voice, in fact so low that when the prisoner was asked to plead he seemed not to understand what had been said. Justice White asked him: "What have you to say?"

There was a moment's hesitation. Then the prisoner's lips moved as if to make reply, but before he could do so, his junior counsel, Mr. Lewis, arose to speak, not having seen the prisoner's motion.

Justice White, however, insisted that Czolgosz should speak, and the prisoner said:

"I didn't hear what he said."

Pleads "Guilty."

District Attorney Penney then read the indictment again in a louder voice and to the demand for a reply the prisoner, who was standing at the time, said, in a very low voice: "Guilty."

This plea was, however, not permitted to stand under the law, and a plea of "not guilty" was at once ordered by the court.

The examination and swearing-in of the jurors was then begun, the prisoner standing as each was sworn.

Eight persons had been accepted when the court adjourned for the noon recess.

The Jury.

When the court reassembled at two p. m. the jury was completed quickly. It is composed of the following gentlemen:

Frederick W. Lauer, plumber; Richard J. Garwood, a street railway foreman; Henry W. Wendt, a local manufacturer; Silas Carmer, a farmer living at Clarence; James S. Stygall, a plumber; William Loton, a farmer of Edon; Walter E. Everett, a blacksmith; Benjamin J. Ralph, a bank cashier; Samuel P. Waldo, Andrew J. Smith, Joachim H. Marteus, dealer in boots and shoes, and Robert J. Adams, contractor.

Assistant District Attorney Haller briefly presented the case of the prosecution to the jury and at 2:55 the first witness was called.

To Keep Anarchists Out.

New York, Sept. 24.—Immigration inspectors at the port of New York are exercising a greater degree of vigilance now than formerly as a result of the general demand for the exclusion of anarchists. While Commissioner Fitch admits that under existing laws he has no authority to exclude emigrants on the ground that they are anarchists, the inspectors are very careful in the visting of all papers where there is any reason to suppose that the newcomer is in any way seeking entrance contrary to the laws that govern the cases.

THE SCHLEY INQUIRY.

A Synopsis of the Proceedings on Saturday—Evidence Shows Blockade of Santiago Effective.

Washington, Sept. 23.—Although every development at the court of inquiry was not entirely favorable to Rear Admiral Schley, in the main, results of Saturday's session were satisfactory to him and his counsel. Important points brought out were: That the blockading ships never were a great distance from the harbor; that a picket line of the smaller vessels always was on guard at night; that the signals seen on shore were supposed by all to be between Spanish forces; that the ships were given orders to coal where they were; that fuel was absolutely necessary, and that the slow time made by the squadron on its way from Cienfuegos was a result of the rough weather.

Other features of the testimony were the claim that the large vessels could have made better time toward Santiago by leaving the smaller craft behind, to rejoin the squadron later, and that Schley's original plan for the attack on the Colon was not carried out, his vessels passing the harbor's mouth at too great a speed to permit of effective work.

One of the chief points of interest was the absolute and unqualified denial that Commodore Schley with the "flying squadron" was at any time during the blockading operations 25 miles away from the mouth of Santiago harbor. On the contrary, it was developed that the extreme distance during the day time was not greater than seven miles, and during the night not more than four miles.

Commander Schroeder, now governor of Guam, who was the chief executive officer of the Massachusetts during the war, testified that, in his judgment, the "flying squadron" did not make as much speed as it was possible to attain on the sail from Cienfuegos to Santiago, and he further testified that Commodore Schley had not used sufficient effort to destroy the Colon, as that vessel lay within plain sight of the ships of the "flying squadron" for more than two days.

It was asserted by Commander Schroeder that no result was secured from the bombardment of the Colon, but that if the vessels had approached nearer the shore line and steamed by the entrance of the harbor at a slower rate, it might have been possible to sink the Colon. Commander Schroeder said there was no obstacle to going in closer to shore, and at no time were the vessels of the American fleet in danger of the fire from the shore batteries or of the Colon.

With reference to the slow progress made by the flying squadron from Cienfuegos to Santiago, Commander Schroeder said there was nothing in the condition of the weather that prevented the larger ships from making better time. He said this could have been done by leaving behind the Vixen, the Eagle, and the collier Merrimack, all of which retarded progress. This would have necessitated abandoning the two smaller vessels and the collier, but Commander Schroeder contended that they would have overtaken the fleet the next day at Santiago.

PALMA FOR PRESIDENT.

Candidacy for Head of Cuban Government to Be Announced This Week and Election Seems Sure.

Havana, Sept. 23.—Next Saturday or sooner Tomas Estrada Palma will be proclaimed a candidate for the presidency of Cuba, with the indorsement of all political parties and with absolute assurance of election when the vote is taken. This was decided by the leaders of the several parties at a meeting called to read the platform, addressed to Gen. Rius Rivera by Palma, in reply to a request from these parties for an expression of sentiment on the various propositions propounded by the Cuban people. The greatest questions involved are those of a reciprocity treaty with the United States, a permanent treaty as prescribed by the Platt amendment; the manner of the paying of the Cuban army for services during the revolution, the systems of collecting revenue for governmental expenses and the ownership of the Isle of Pines. The leaders accepted Palma's platform by a vote of 23 to 2. Great enthusiasm prevailed among Palma's friends. It is believed that he will be elected by an overwhelming majority. The convention is awaiting the return of Gen. Wood to settle the matter of the electoral law.

The McKinley Estate.

Washington, Sept. 23.—It is authoritatively stated here that the late president left an estate valued at about $200,000. This is inclusive of $67,000 life insurance. The statement made by a New York financial paper that Mr. McKinley had $300,000 life insurance is wide of the mark. The amount was just $67,000, and all of this has been paid. During his 4½ years in the presidency Mr. McKinley saved about $25,000 a year out of his salary. Mrs. McKinley will be voted the usual pension of $5,000 a year by congress. A bill for this purpose will be introduced the first day of the coming session.

Theo. Roosevelt, 26th American President

His Life Has Been Full of Snap and Excitement

AUTHOR AS WELL AS STATESMAN

Mr. Roosevelt has been known to the public principally as a writer and a rough rider. It was therefore singularly appropriate in at least one respect that it was in the musty atmosphere of old books that he took the oath to "faithfully execute the office of president of the United States," and to the best of his ability to "preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States." On Saturday afternoon, September 14, 1901, in the library of the home of his friend, Ansley Wilcox, and in the city of Buffalo, N. Y., the simple ceremony was performed. The president is dead; the president lives; long live our president!

Theodore Roosevelt is the twenty-sixth president of the United States, and the fifth vice president to succeed to the executive chair. John Tyler was the first, succeeding William Henry Harrison. Millard Fillmore was the second; he succeeded Zachary Taylor. The assassination of Abraham Lincoln brought Andrew Johnson into the white house. James A. Garfield was succeeded by his vice president, Chester A. Arthur. Roosevelt has one advantage over all these four men in that he comes into his great office better known to the public than any of them. Almost from boyhood he has been more or less in the eyes of the public.

This statesman, legislator, author, student, huntsman, rough rider and desire to become a member of the legislature. He fought the machine and defeated it.

In 1884 he appeared before the nation. His health troubled him and he sought a new life at Chimney Butte, Dak., where he grazed cattle and led the life of a cowboy. He became known from Medora to Dickinson as the boldest and bravest cattleman in the region. He did what the cowmen did. He lived as they lived. He commanded the respect even of the desperadoes. His lungs expanded, his body developed and he gained a reserve of health that seems to have grown every year since.

Turns to Literature.

He lost money on his cattle venture, but he returned to New York a strong man physically, and he made the race for mayor of that city. He was defeated, but he laughed. He understood that the corrupt elements of the city would not tolerate him, but he waited. Meanwhile he wrote books—books on hunting, books on western life, books on eastern cities. His style in literature was vigorous and pleasing. His books sold well and the magazines made great demand for his writings. The public liked his breeziness, his evident sincerity, his courage, and partially appreciated him even before he became a national civil service commissioner in 1889.

Once at Washington, he commenced an enforcement of the law of the most vigorous kind. He made himself dis-men, daring men and good shots could be secured.

Forms Unique Regiment.

The regiment was the most unique of its kind ever organized, and was much scoffed at in the beginning. Before it had been two days in Cuba the wisdom of its organization was plainly seen. The men were fitted for any kind of campaigning. Their colonel and lieutenant colonel took what they took. The regiment practically forged itself, and was first in the field and first to be baptized with fire. At Las Guasimas, Kettle hill and San Juan it gave up its bravest and best and went on to victory.

Mr. Roosevelt was its colonel before the end of the war, and pronounced by

But a would-be upper class-based mainly on wealth, on which it is the exception and not the rule for a man to be of any real account in the national life, whether as a politician, a literary man, or otherwise, is of necessity radically defective and of little moment."

ROOSEVELT AS AN AUTHOR.

During a Busy Life He Has Found Time for Much Writing.

It is now nearly 20 years since Theodore Roosevelt took a place in the public eye as a man of affairs. Granting him the prophet's three score years and ten, only a little more than a third of his period of maturity has passed. And yet 14 volumes stand to his credit. And if we add the books in which his peals to the reader's sympathies. He has, too, a power of coining striking phrases and of putting things in a way that catches the attention. "The strenuous life" is a phrase with a meaning that could not be put again in so few words. In a recent speech he spoke of our war with Spain as "merely a bit of the police work of the world." Once before he spoke of it as "a bit of rough surgery."

These utterances reveal the man. He has written much. The titles of some of his best works are: "Life of Thomas Benton," "Life of Gouverneur Morris," "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail," "The Winning of the West," "History of New York City," "Essays on Practical Politics," "The Wilderness Hunter," "Hero Tales from American History," "Naval War of 1812."

The First Lady of the Land.

Mrs. Roosevelt is a handsome woman, well educated, and thoroughly familiar with the requirements of society. She is a warm admirer of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, especially as a wife and mother, and warmly approves the declarations of the former president's wife that children belong exclusively to the home and fireside, and should never know they are objects of public interest, especially during a political campaign. She is careful to screen her children in all ways possible from photographers, and likewise shuns publicity herself. She declares children, if promiscuously admired, become self-conscious, vain and conceited, and lose their traits of innocence and loveliness.

the foreign military attaches who observed his conduct in the field as one of the first military officers of the day. He was in Santiago at the surrender, brought his regiment back to the United States and disbanded it at Montauk point in the fall of 1898. It contributed among the volunteer troops more to the success of the American arms in Cuba than any other regiment formed.

Is Chosen Governor.

The colonel became governor of New York immediately after his return to this country. As governor he stood for radical taxation legislation and state control of the trusts. His term was marked by a pronounced fight on his part against the New York republican machine. He did not seek the vice presidential nomination last year, but had it forced upon him, and he accepted at the last moment. During the campaign he made a trip of over 21,000 miles, speaking for the ticket, and was received everywhere with popular acclaim. Since his inauguration he has presided over one extra session of the senate, and made several trips throughout the country, attending public functions.

As to the real Theodore Roosevelt, authentic things that he has said give ample revelation as to what manner of a character he will bring to the presidency. On "Americanism," in an interview in 1893, he said:

"I naturally disapprove of the half-conscious spread-eagle Americanism, which is ever exerting itself at the wrong moments. I dislike it, of course, when it is put forward as a plea to excuse moral shortcomings of a kind usually connected with public affairs. Nevertheless, in spite of this abuse, I am sure that no man can well play his part in our life, who is not honestly American in heart, belief and instinct.

Admirer of Parkman.

"If one wishes to find a typical American, one may consider Francis Parkman. He always appealed to my admiration, because he made his life work largely of the description of that frontier warfare between our backwoodsmen and their foes which has been of such incalculable importance in our land's history."

In one of his published works he says: "In speaking to my own countrymen there is one point upon which I wish to lay especial stress; that is, the necessity for a feeling of broad, radical and intense Americanism, if good work is to be done in any direction. Above all, the one essential for success in every political movement which is to do lasting good is that our citizens should act as Americans, not as Americans with a prefix and qualification—not as Irish-Americans, German-Americans, native Americans—but as Americans pure and simple.

Opinion on Caste.

"It is an outrage for a man to drag foreign politics into our contests and vote as an Irishman or German or other foreigner, as the case may be, and there is no worse citizen than the professional Irish dynamite or German anarchist, because of his attitude toward our social and political life, not to mention his efforts to embroil us with foreign powers. But it is no less an outrage to discriminate against one who has become an American in good faith, merely because of his creed or birthplace."

Of caste he has written: "As for the upper social world, the fashionable world, it is much as it was when portrayed in 'Potiphar Papers,' save that modern society has shifted the shrine at which it pays comical but sincere homage from Paris to London. Perhaps it is rather better, for it is less provincial and a trifle more American."

name appears as editor and contributor, like "The History of the Royal Navy," and the book of which he and Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge are joint authors, the total number of his books is 21.

This would be remarkable in an author whose sole occupation was writing. It appears still more so in a man to whom authorship is but an incident, when we recall that he has served three terms in the New York legislature; that he was for five years a member of the civil service commission, and for three arduous years president of the board of police commissioners in New York city; that he has been assistant secretary of the navy, commander of a regiment in the war with Spain, governor of New York and vice president of the United States. Furthermore, to appreciate fully the size of Mr. Roosevelt's product as an author we must bear in mind two warrior is a descendant through nine generations from early Dutch settlers of New York. Along this ancestral line there have been infusions of Scotch, Irish and French-Huguenot blood. The present Theodore Roosevelt is not the first of his family to hold public office. In successive generations its members have been called to official duties in city, state or nation. The father of the president at various times held public office in New York, and invariably refused money compensation for his services.

Of Delicate Health When a Lad.
Roosevelt was a pale and delicate boy, the very opposite in health of what he has since become. Plenty of outdoor air and physical exercise soon began to give him a good degree of bodily vigor, and in his college years he became skilled in boxing and wrestling.

In Harvard university he held good rank as a scholar, giving especial attention to natural history and general historical subjects. After his graduation from Harvard in 1880 he continued his studies at Dresden and then traveled in Europe and the east.

Roosevelt Enters Politics.
In 1881 Roosevelt, 23 years of age, began his active life in New York. And with him activity was activity. His father had instilled into his mind a contempt for the man who drifts through an inactive life of comfortable self-indulgence, achieving nothing.

He tried a plunge into New York politics. In his city district was a republican machine combination that showed no disposition to recognize his liked among the spoilsmen of both parties, but he held to the line of his duty. He took the law as he found it, lived true to his oath of office and made the measure respected in many quarters where it had been sneered at before.

Shakes Up the Police.

From Washington he passed to a police commissionership in New York city. His peculiar ability to work, and work on right lines, gave the corrupt police force such a shaking up as it had never had before. He was police commissioner in every sense of the word, unbribable, unapproachable, fair to the fair-minded, severe on the criminal. His books continued to sell in increasing number, and the public through the press, began to have a broader view of him.

When the Spanish-American war came he was assistant secretary of the navy by the authority of President McKinley. He had much to do with the organization of the navy for the conflict, and it has always been believed that his influence largely contributed to the sending of Admiral Dewey to Hong-Kong, and thence to Manila bay.

When war became a certainty Mr. Roosevelt resigned his position in the navy department, and with Gen. Leonard Wood organized the First volunteer cavalry, better known as the rough riders. Gen. Wood was colonel of this regiment and Mr. Roosevelt lieutenant colonel. The members of the regiment came from the first families in the east, from ranches in the west, came from wherever good horse-more things—the character of his work and the diversity of his subjects. Most of his books are not such as could be written off-hand. His "History of the Navy in the War of 1812" and his "Winning of the West" involved a great deal of searching among archives and old manuscripts in state and national government offices, in libraries and in private collections. His subjects include naval history, military history, frontier history, municipal history, sport, biography, biology, politics and book reviews.

Mr. Roosevelt's style is that of a plain man telling a straightforward story. After reading his books you are certain that he never paid any attention to his style, and the evidence is, not that the style is not good, but that there is absolutely no straining after effect. He is essentially a practical man, but he is well endowed with imagination, and this gives to his work an occasional poetic touch that ap-

ROOSEVELT'S CABINET.

McKinley's Councilors Will Stand by the New President.

It is almost certain that the cabinet of President McKinley will be the cabinet of President Roosevelt. He not only requested them to remain, but stated to them that they were his choice for the positions which they were occupying. All of the members, including Secretary Hay, complied unconditionally. In the event of Secretary Hay's retirement (sooner or later) it is altogether probable that Secretary of War Root will succeed to the state portfolio. This will make an opening for at least one new man to take charge of the war office. No other changes under present circumstances are even remotely likely.

Electric Railway Notes.

The Hawks-Angus company has ten carloads of rails and a large quantity of ties in Jackson ready to unload. The company is ready to proceed with the work of building their city line as soon as the franchise is approved.

The Ann Arbor Railroad Co. again had a switch engine patrolling its crossing on West Huron street, Ann Arbor, Saturday night, to prevent Hawks & Angus from making a crossing over their road, if any such attempt were made. The fears of the company were groundless.

Dexter Leader: The engineer of the Bland electric road has run lines down C street and up Fourth to determine the grade. Should the council not allow the grade to be sufficiently reduced on the hill on Ann Arbor street, the company will probably ask for a franchise around the other way.

Hawks & Angus have completed the work of securing options for a right of way for an extension of their electric line from Jackson to Vandercook's lake, four miles south of the city, and past Woodland cemetery. It is stated the work of grading will be commenced this fall if the city council passes the franchise in the city.

Mayor Palmer, of Jackson, has vetoed the Hawks-Angus franchise. His reason is that not two-thirds of the aldermen voted for it, the vote being 10 to 6. He declares in his veto that while he is in favor of the extension of street car lines within the city, it would be imprudent to make such a franchise a law, thereby inviting litigation and disagreeable complications. Neither the city nor company would benefit by it, he declares.

Articles of association were filed with Secretary of State Warner Friday by the Jackson & Ann Arbor and Detroit & Ann Arbor Railway companies. Each of the companies has an authorized capital of $100,000. The former proposes to build an electric line from Jackson to Ann Arbor, and the latter a line from Ann Arbor to Detroit. The incorporators are Worrall Wilson, of Grass Lake, and Glenn D. Smith, J. B. Foote and C. H. Frisbie, of Jackson.

ALL TAKING SIDES.

According to the Attorneys Everybody in Chelsea is interested in the Hadley Will Case—But That's a Mistake.

Ann Arbor Argus: The contest over the Stephen O. Hadley will is being drawn sharper and sharper. This is a contest in which five brothers are fighting for a share in the estate, the entire amount of which was left to their six sisters. Judge Watkins admitted the will to probate and the sons gave notice of an appeal. Then came the question of appointing commissioners on claims.

"We want a commission which is absolutely unprejudiced," said Attorney Wedemeyer for the contestants.

"We can agree upon three Chelsea men, I think," said Attorney Turnbull, who represents, together with A. J. Sawyer & Son, the daughters of the deceased.

"I don't think we can," said Mr. Wedemeyer. "Everybody in Chelsea has taken sides with one or the other and we want someone away from there."

"Your Honor," said Mr. Turnbull, "I don't think this estate ought to be put to the expense of getting commissioners from a distance. This contest is simply made to waste the estate."

Mr. Wedemeyer—"Mr. Turnbull is too old a man to make such a statement. It is unjust. We are not fighting to waste the estate, but for the rights of five parties who were left out of the will and it's going to be a fight to the end."

Mr. Turnbull—"Well, one of your clients has made the statement that he didn't expect to break the will, but that he would fix it so that there would not be anything left of the estate."

"How would Mr. _____ do for one of the commissioners?" asked Mr. Sawyer.

"Wouldn't do at all—he's one of the friends of your side," replied Mr. Wedemeyer.

"You suggest somebody in Chelsea and I think we will accept him," said Mr. Turnbull to Mr. Wedemeyer.

"I would suggest Mr. _____."

"No, he won't do. He's on your side," was the answer.

Finally, as it was seen that the parties could agree on no particular person, let alone three commissioners, Judge Watkins appointed the following: James Kelly, of Manchester, Henry O'Neil, of Sharon, Charles Lewis, of Manchester. The estate is valued at about $6,000.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer, of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

Wants a Divorce.

Mrs. Emma West, of Sylvan, has filed a bill in the circuit court asking for a divorce from Russell J. West. She sets forth in her application that they were married in 1867 and that ten children have been born to them, their ages being 32, 29, 27, 25, 24, 22, 20, 16, 15 and 12 years.

She charges extreme cruelty during the past ten years and says that he has connected her name with other men in a manner that is not altogether complimentary. She further states that her husband is the possessor of 70 acres of land and that he has failed to put in any crops or make any provision for the winter. She also says that he has threatened to sell off everything from the farm and that she is afraid that he will do so unless restrained by an injunction.

Judge Kinne has granted her an injunction to prevent this.

An English association regarding woman's happiness has offered a reward of £500 for a greater blessing to woman than Rocky Mountain Tea. Sensible move. Glazier & Stimson.

Mrs. W. H. Calkins' Funeral.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. W. H. Calkins were held at her home on McKinley street, Saturday afternoon, and were conducted by Rev. C. S. Jones. A number of her relatives from Manchester and other places, besides her old friends and neighbors were present. The interment was in Oak Grove cemetery. Mrs. Calkins maiden name was Annie Kingsley. She was born in Dexter in 1836. She united with the Methodist church when 14 years old and was always a worker in the church until her health failed. She was married to Mr. Calkins Oct. 18, 1871, since which time she had resided in this place.

Hawks & Angus have gone to the supreme court on the matter of the injunction which is in force on the block between Main and Ashley streets, Ann Arbor, with a petition for a mandamus to set aside the injunction. The supreme court has issued an order to show cause why the injunction should not be dissolved. The writ is made returnable next Tuesday when the case will be argued.

There were only 2,672 deaths returned to the secretary of state for the month of August, corresponding to a death rate of 13.1 per 1,000 population. This is an unusually low mortality for August, the number of deaths returned being nearly 300 less than the number returned for August, 1900. Owing to the absence of extreme heat during the greater portion of the month the deaths of infants under one year of age, 646, were not as numerous as usual, although they constituted over 25 per cent. of the total deaths. There were 210 deaths of children aged one to four years, inclusive, and 615 deaths of persons over 65 years of age.

THE FAMOUS LOOP.

Witness in the Schley Inquiry Tells of its Effect on the Battleship Texas.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The part played by the battleship Texas in the naval battle off Santiago July 3, 1898, in which the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera was sunk, was the basis of the greater part of Monday's proceedings in the Schley naval court of inquiry. Of the four witnesses examined during the day, three had been officers on board the Texas during the battle and two of them were new witnesses. These were Commander George C. Heiner, who was navigator on the Texas, and Commander Alex B. Bates, who was the chief engineer on that battleship. Commander Harber, executive officer and the chief surviving officer of the ship since the death of Capt. Philip, was recalled. The fourth witness was Commander Seaton Schroeder, executive officer on the Massachusetts and now governor of the island of Guam.

The testimony several times during the day was somewhat exciting, and it was especially so when Commander Heiner described the battle and the part the Texas had taken in it. He said that when the Brooklyn made its loop at the beginning of the battle it had passed across the Texas' bow at a distance not to exceed 100 or 150 yards, and that at the command of Capt. Philip the Texas had been brought to a dead stop. Engineer Bates testified that the starboard engines had been stopped and said he thought this also happened to the port engines. Commander Heiner expressed the opinion that three miles

RECIPROCITY WITH CUBA.

Treaty to be Negotiated with Island and Sent to Congress Early in December.

Washington, Sept. 24.—As a result of several conferences between President Roosevelt and Gen. Wood, governor general of Cuba, it has been determined to negotiate a reciprocity agreement between the United States and the island, the agreement to be sent to congress early in December. Cereals and machinery from the United States will enter Cuba at reduced rates and sugar and tobacco will be the principal Cuban products affected by the agreement.

Gen. Wood has been urging early action in order that the present crop of Cuba may be benefited, and he will return in November with the object of having the reciprocity agreement sent to congress as soon as it assembles in December. His determination to act quickly was reached after several conferences with President Roosevelt.

Havana, Sept. 24.—A letter has been received from Estrada Palma in reply to the minutes of the meeting of the notables held here on August 2, in which the notables split on the question whether candidates for the presidency should declare in favor of a revision of the Platt amendment.

The letter was read at another meeting Monday, and was adopted by a vote of 23 to 2, after due consideration, and it was decided to issue a manifesto recommending Senor Palma as a candidate. This means that he will have the support of the principal revolutionists.

In his letter Senor Palma divides

INSANE ASYLUM BURNED.

State Institution at Norfolk, Neb., Destroyed by Fire—Three of Inmates Are Missing.

Norfolk, Neb., Sept. 24.—The state insane asylum and adjacent buildings, eight in all, were destroyed by fire which started at five o'clock Monday morning. Six hundred patients were in the institution at the time, three of whom are missing and supposed to have been burned to death. The loss is almost total. The patients are now quartered in an open field and are guarded by local authorities until they can be sent to the Lincoln and Hastings asylums.

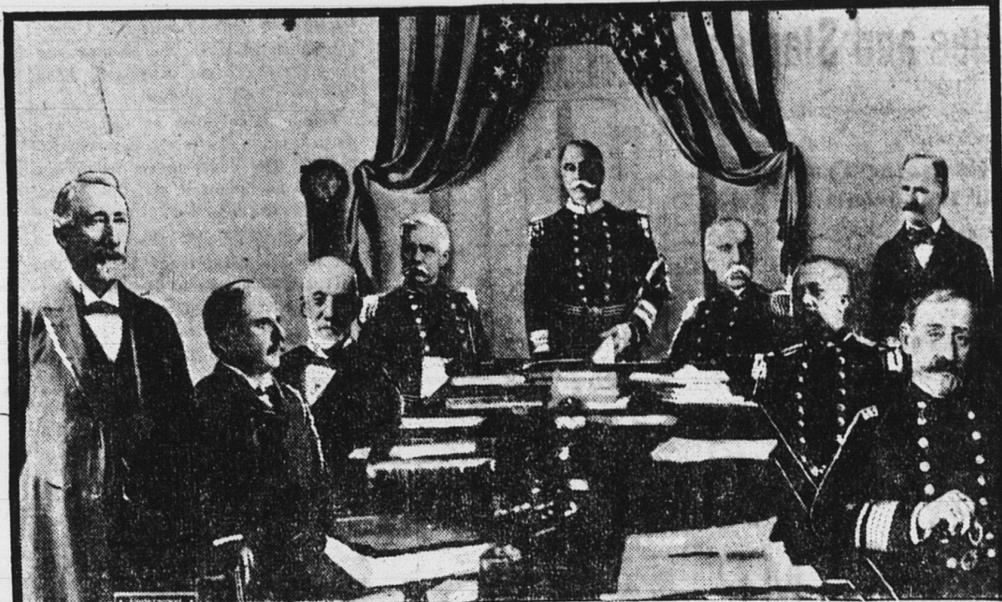

All the books and valuable papers and the asylum records were carried from the building and saved intact. A considerable amount of furniture was also carried from the building, but the attendants lost all their clothing. Nearly all the patients were taken from the burning structure in their night clothing and suffered more or less from the chill air. About 250 were taken to Lincoln and placed in the asylum at that place. The remainder of the patients will be housed in the buildings that are still in condition for use. The loss is now conservatively placed at $250,000.

SAMPSON RELIEVED.

had been lost by this maneuver and the fact that part of the machinery was deranged. He said he considered that the Texas was in greater danger when the Brooklyn crossed her bow than at any other time during the battle. The witness' description of the battle follows:

"The Texas had been heading about east when the enemy was seen coming out of Santiago. Lieut. Bristol, who was officer of the deck at the time, rang to go ahead full speed and put helm hard to starboard to make a turn.

"When I got on deck he informed me of what had happened and I sent him below and assumed charge of the deck. The captain told me that he had eased their helm until he could find out which way the ships were going, and he also rang half-speed. I suggested full speed. He said the battery was not ready. I told him it would be ready before the ship was in position to fire, and then he said: 'All right,' and rang full speed. When the second of the enemy's ships followed the first to the westward, he put the helm hard to starboard. I made several reports to him about the Brooklyn regarding her signals. He said: 'Never mind.' I also referred to the way I thought the Brooklyn was standing up to fight—very nicely. The captain said: 'Oh, crackle! Never mind the Brooklyn. You look out for this ship.' The Brooklyn then was about on her port beam. So I said: 'All right, captain. I will look at the Brooklyn no more,' and I turned my back, looking on the starboard beam at the ships getting out. After we sheered around and got to the westward I suggested to give her a little port helm to get closer in, and he did. Right after he gave her this helm he sang out through the sight hole to the men at the wheel and at the engine room indicator to slow, then stop, and I said: 'Captain, they will all get away from us.'

"He did not answer me, but immediately stepped back, and then I said: 'My Lord, captain, we are out of the fight.' He said: 'Look at the Brooklyn!' I turned around, and right ahead of us this big gray ship loomed out of the smoke. For a second I thought my heart was in my mouth. We were steaming with a heavy helm and she steered by us. When I saw her she was practically ahead of us. That is the first I saw. She sheered off and went to sea, I should say about 2,000 yards, and then on to westward. As soon as the Brooklyn cleared us we rang to go ahead, and started up forced draft again. After that we simply followed on as fast as we could on a line that was just inside the line where the Oregon was engaging the ships. Just before this turn of the Brooklyn the Iowa and the Oregon were both close to us on the starboard helm. We continued the chase until the Colon hauled down her flag, when the captain gave the order to stop forced draft."

his programme into four heads: First, a commercial treaty with the United States, which, he says, should be made as soon as possible, so as to favor Cuban products, especially sugar, but he adds that Cuba for some years will need the income from customs, and care must therefore be exercised in making a treaty with the United States.

The second part of his programme is devoted to finances. The government of the island, he says, must carefully examine into all the available assets and reliable resources of income and adjust its expenditure accordingly.

In the third portion he urges strict economy in finances and gradual wiping out of the debt.

In the fourth part of his programme Senor Palma recommends a treaty of relations with the United States. In making this the Cuban government should take care that the Platt amendment is interpreted in the sense most favorable to the interests of Cuba and to her sovereignty and independence. The Cuban government should try to obtain in the treaty a clear definition of the circumstances under which the United States would intervene in order that the Cubans may know exactly where they stand.

SHOCKING CRIME.

Enraged and Jealous Husband Stabs His Wife Fatally at Menominee, Mich.

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 24.—A shocking wife murder occurred at midnight in the northern part of the city. Joseph Detlaff, a Pole, aged about 40, murderously attacked his wife, who ran into the street, where she was fatally stabbed by her husband. Her abdomen was cut open and she had two bad cuts in the breast; back and her arms were slashed in a horrible manner. The man fled and was captured by the sheriff's posse in a swamp. He is now in jail, and threats of lynching are freely made. The woman is in the hospital dying. Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the trouble. The woman is the mother of seven children.

the bad condition of his health. Secretary Long has granted the request.

Rear Admiral Mortimer L. Johnson, commandant of the Port Royal naval station, will assume command of the Boston yard on October 1.

Admiral Sampson will retire by age limit February 9, 1902. He could retire before that, if he wished, under the 40 years' service clause, on his own request, or he could apply for retirement to take effect immediately, on account of poor health. However, as naval officers generally take pride in serving out their full term, it is probable that an extended leave of absence will keep Admiral Sampson on the active list until the ninth of February.

A SAD TRAGEDY.

Little Boy Falls with Trigger of a Gun—His Mother Is Killed as a Result.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24.—Mrs. J. J. Gies, of this city, was instantly killed late Monday by the accidental discharge of a shotgun, the charge blowing off the left side of her head. Mrs. Gies, with her little five-year-old son and three adults were returning to the city in a conveyance from a nutting trip in the country. A gun had been taken along for the purpose of shooting squirrels. During the ride home, the little boy, it is supposed, began playing with the trigger of the gun, and the gun went off suddenly, the shot striking the mother in the left side of her head. The coroner's verdict was accidental death.

Again Visits Her Dead.

Canton, O., Sept. 24.—For the third day in succession Mrs. McKinley took two drives Monday. The first one was to the cemetery, where she and Mrs. Barber and Dr. Rixey again entered the vault to look at the casket containing all that remains of the devoted husband. The afternoon ride was the longest yet taken and was along country roads in quest of the purest and freshest air. The day was a delightful one, warm and bright, and just such as was desired, for such outdoor treatment is considered beneficial.

Worth of Each County in Michigan as Equalized by the State Board of Equalization.

A SHREWD MOVE.

A Man at Menominee Secures Title to Valuable Land That Others Thought Was Theirs.

C. J. Huebel, a Menominee man, recently secured possession of 2,400 acres of land in Menominee county by a bit of shrewdness. The land had been transferred to several parties at different times, but Mr. Huebel looked up the records regarding it, and found that there was an incomplete sheriff's deed dated back some years ago. He followed this up and succeeded in completing the deed and had the transfer made to himself. The land is now in his name and his title to it is said to be well-nigh perfect. As a result all the transfers made after the sheriff's deed are null and void. Several Menominee real estate men thought they had a title to different parcels of the land, and there are also several valuable farms located on it. By virtue of the sheriff's deed Mr. Huebel is now the owner and he can dictate terms. It is said that his transaction can net him as high as $30,000 or $40,000.

DESTROYS PROPERTY.

A Farmer in Schoolcraft County Stands Off His Neighbors and Burns Barn and House.

A farmer named Lupton, living near Germfask, Schoolcraft county, armed with a shotgun, stood off his neighbors while all of his property was destroyed by fire. Then he fled to the woods, where he was captured.

Lupton, who has a wife and family, became angered at something and busied himself for an entire day in hauling everything he possessed into his large barn. The barn contained 100 tons of hay, and on top of this he piled farm implements, household furniture and vehicles. Then he locked in the cattle and horses and applied a match.

When the barn was burning beyond hope of rescue, Lupton, waving back his neighbors with the shotgun, set fire to his dwelling and it was soon consumed. He was concealed in a haystack at the edge of the timber when captured.

Copper in the Street.

The statement so often heard, that money can be picked up in the streets comes as near realization in the copper country town of Laurim as it is apt to anywhere. The trench for a big trunk sewer is now being dug, and in the work it is necessary to do much blasting. For several days past copper has been showing in the rock taken out, and it is doubtful whether there are half a dozen mines in the copper country which can show rock any richer in the red metal than do these specimens found in the trench.

Sudden Insanity.

A woman about 40 years old and giving her name as Emma Smith and her home as Chicago, sought employment at the London chop house in Escanaba, run by E. C. Hoffmaster. She was employed and was all right until the other night when she went insane and tried to kill her employers. She also threw dishes and bottles through the glass front of the place, and did over $100 damage before the officers arrived.

McKinley were held at the town hall last Thursday at 2:30 p. m. During the time the services were being held the church bells tolled at half minute intervals, and

A Night of Terror.
"A awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham, of Machinus, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1. Trial bottles

BLOOD DISEASE CURED.
If you ever contracted any Blood or Private Disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. Don't be satisfied with a Cure or No Pay. No Names Used without Written Consent.

Cured When all Else Failed
"Could I live my early life over, this testimonial would not be necessary, though I was no more sinful than thousands of other young men. Early indiscretions, later excesses, exposure to contagious diseases all helped to break down my system. When I commenced to realize my condition I was almost frantic. Doctor after doctor treated me but only gave me relief—not a cure. Hot Springs helped me, but did not cure me. The symptoms always returned. Mercury and Potash drove the poison into my system instead of driving it out. I bless the day you New Method Treatment was recommended to me. I investigated who you were first, and finding you had over 25 years' experience and responsible financially, I gave you my case under a guarantee.
You cured me permanently, and in six years there has not been a sore, pain, ulcer or any other symptom of the blood disease."

Electric Lights for Farmers.
James D. Hawks, S. F. Angus and others, of Detroit, have formed the "City and Suburban Light, Heat & Power Co." with a capital stock of $1,000,000. According to the promoters it will furnish electric light and power to the towns of Dearborn, Wayne, Ypsilanti, Saline, Ann Arbor and Chelsea, Jackson and the towns between Jackson and Coldwater and Jackson and Lansing, including the latter.
One unique feature of the plan is that the company will furnish electric light and power to any of the farmers living along the lines between the towns mentioned, and will do so at a cost that will enable a large majority of the farmers to avail themselves of the privilege and use electric lights instead of oil lamps. The company will also be in a position to furnish the farmers with small motors for grinding of their feed, pumping water and other light tasks, and this at a cost which will make it worth their while to substitute it for the power they are now using or to install it where they have no power for this purpose.
