EPWORTHIANS WILL MEET

The District Convention to be Held Here October 8th and 9th.

The annual district convention of the Epworth League will be held in the M. E. church, Chelsea, on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 8th and 9th. About 250 delegates and most of the pastors throughout the district are expected to be in attendance.

Special music will be furnished at all the sessions, and congregational singing will be a prominent feature. The League conventions are always very interesting meetings to attend. Addresses will be delivered each evening by prominent speakers.

A complete program will appear in the next issue of The Standard. A general invitation is extended to all Chelsea people to attend the convention. Come out and hear 400 enthusiastic Epworth Leaguers sing.

A CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCE

Russell J. West of Sylvan Again Appears in the Circuit Court.

Times: Russell J. West of Sylvan, seems to be playing a continual performance in the circuit court.

Recently he started a suit for damages against the township of Sylvan, but the case was dropped. Then Kate Hesel-schwerdt of Sylvan, sued him for damages for slander and that suit is yet undetermined. Now his wife, Emma West, has applied for a divorce.

She sets forth in her application for a severance of the marriage vows that they were wedded in 1867 and that ten children have been born to them, the ages being as follows:—32, 29, 27, 25, 24, 22, 20, 18, 15 and 12 years.

She charges extreme cruelty during the past ten years and says that he has connected her name with other men in a manner that is not altogether complimentary. She further states that her husband is the possessor of 70 acres of land and that he has failed to put in any crops or make any provision for the winter. She also says that he has threatened to sell off everything from the farm and that she is afraid that he will do so unless restrained by an injunction.

Judge Kline has granted her an injunction to prevent this.

DISCOVERED A VALUABLE RELIC

Frank Gibbins of Munnich Finds a "Lorraine" Cross.

Jackson Press: Frank Gibbins, who resides three miles from Munnich, has a relic, found by him on new ground, which he prizes highly. This is a "Lorraine" cross and is a relic of the tribal war between the Huron and Iroquois Indians in the seventeenth century. It is four and five-eighths inches in length by two inches wide, is made of solid silver and resembles in shape the old-fashioned archbishop's crozier. In other words it looks like a Roman cross, with the addition, however, of a second arm, which is placed immediately below the upper arm. The latter is a little shorter than the one beneath and the ends of each, as well as those of the upright center, are delicately carved and shaped.

The cross has been pronounced by Fr. Jones of the Jesuit college near Montreal, where a similar one was found, to be one of fifty given by the Countess of Lorraine to the chiefs of the Huron tribe of Indians in the early years of the seventeenth century, to induce them to become allies of the British troops in the American colonies, and had been supplied by the British officers with modern implements of war, which they used with terrible execution against their deadly and hereditary enemies, the Iroquois Indians.

With a view of securing the sympathy and co-operation of the Huron chiefs for and with the forces of the French king, then in Canada, the Countess of Lorraine presented fifty of the Lorraine crosses to the French officers for distribution among the chiefs. The form of these crosses was limited in its use to the Lorraine family by a special edict of one of the kings of France.

How the cross reached Jackson county is a question as yet unsolved.

DEXTER MOSQUITOES TRANSMIT MALARIA

It is Thought that Disease is Spread by the Pests.

Dexter Leader: Dr. Gates had two suspicious and somewhat peculiar cases last week, the patients residing in different localities in the village.

Upon subjecting the blood of the patients to analysis, he found it filled with malaria germs of the tertian form. He informed Dr. Dock of the University of Michigan and he sent a man from the college here to catch mosquitoes to experiment with, as he thought that this disease, as well as yellow fever is spread by mosquitoes.

The disease is similar to the old-fashioned fever and ague, no cases of which—excepting those from Spanish war—have been reported in this vicinity in about twenty years.

DON'T WANT A LAW SUIT

Hawks & Angus' Franchise Vetoed at Jackson Saturday.

Mayor Palmer of Jackson on Saturday vetoed the franchise granted to Hawks & Angus last week to maintain a street railway system, for the reason that the franchise received only ten of sixteen votes of the aldermen. The mayor believes a two-thirds vote is necessary under the charter, and his veto, he says, is intended to preserve the city from contention and litigation, which he believes would follow an attempt of Hawks & Angus to construct their lines under the franchise as passed.

Edmund Welch.

Edmund Welch was born in Vermont, June 12, 1818, and died at his home in Chelsea, September 18, 1901, aged 82 years, 8 months and 24 days, being the last of a family of six children of which he was the youngest. He was married in 1840 to Miss Ruth Jane Stockwell. To them were born three children, one son and two daughters, all of whom, with his aged wife, survive him. He came from New York state in 1838 and by hard work and perseverance cut away the wilderness and provided for his family.

Mr. Welch "remembered his Creator in the days of his youth" for he was but a small boy when he experienced religion, and he spent his long life in the service of his Master. Always when health permitted he was in his place in the sanctuary ready to speak or sing or pray. For about eight years he has been a member of the Baptist church in this place and many are the testimonies given as to his faithfulness, and he has been greatly missed from his accustomed place since disease laid its hand upon him.

About four years ago he began to fail in health, and for the last two years he has been confined to his chair, wasting away and patiently waiting for the summons from the Heavenly Father, "Child come home." Waiting as he said in one of his last testimonies in the church "as travelers wait to catch the sound of the whistle of the train that is to take them home."

Wants to Turn on the Jukes.

Capt. Christian Rath of Jackson who supervised the execution of Mrs. Surratt, Paine, Herrold and Atzerott conspirators in the assassination of President Lincoln, is a candidate for the position of executioner of Czolgosz, assassin of President McKinley. He is willing to pull the switch that will send the assassin to eternity, and all he will ask is transportation to the place of execution. To the Detroit Journal he said: "If the governor of New York or the sheriff of Erie county will pay my transportation to Auburn or Sing Sing, whichever place the assassin is to be electrocuted, I will with a great deal pull the switch that will send the electrically galloping through the assassin's worthless carcass. I will write to the sheriff at Buffalo and ask him to grant me this favor."

Election of Officers.

At the annual meeting of Olive Chapter, O. E. S., Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected:

W. M.—Mrs. H. S. Holmes.
W. P.—R. B. Waltrous.
A. M.—Mrs. R. B. Waltrous.
Secretary—Mrs. C. W. Maroney.
Treasurer—Mrs. G. H. Mitchell.
Conductress—Mrs. S. G. Bush.
Associate Conductress—Mrs. W. Campbell.

The Universal Meridian.

The meridian of Greenwich, England, is everywhere accepted as the starting line from which to reckon longitude and time all over the earth, and all our maps and astronomical calculations are made accordingly. Suggestions have been made from time to time, however, that a better starting line might be found. Some of the Italian scientists, for example, have seriously objected to Greenwich, on account of the clouds and bad weather that frequently interfere with astronomical observations there. They recommend that a civilized world adopt Jerusalem as the standard meridian, because the skies are clearer there, and the possibility of making Palestine neutral territory would eliminate political objections. —Detroit Free Press.

Graciousness of Royalty.

Benjamin Constant has been giving his impressions of Queen Alexandra as a sitter. "Your queen," he told an interviewer, "can never grow old; she has perennial youth and perpetual beauty. Ah, what a sovereign! And then, with a quaint laugh, he added: "Sometimes, when I visited Buckingham palace, she kept me waiting for a quarter of an hour, and I was glad of it, for her apology was so charming and her manner so delightful that I could never have had the heart even to look cross." —Chicago Record-Herald.

Lacks of Languages.

The French cannot "kick" a man. The best they can do is to give him "a hit with the foot." A Portuguese cannot "wink" at a girl. He must lengthen it out into "closing and opening of the eyes." Most of the Indian languages are stated to have no word to express the idea of "stealing," and one of the early missionaries who translated the Bible into the Algonquin speech, finding they had no word to express "love," was forced to invent one. —N. Y. Times.

In the Far South.

Aunt Dinah—Major, if yo' eud gim me an old pair breeches yo'll make foah heahs glad.
Maj. Julep—Four, aunty?
"Yeas, sah. De ol' man will weah dem fur awhile en gib dem to Jim. Den Jim will gib dem to Pete, en after Pete weahs dem fur awhile he'll put dem on de mule to keep de flies off his hind legs." —Chicago Daily News.

The whole of an Italian regiment, which had been maneuvering between Naples and Mondragone, having been attacked by malaria, the minister of war has issued orders that all troops in that district are in future to wear veils and gloves to protect them from mosquitoes.

The educational campaign against spitting begins to show encouraging results. A man who recently offended in a New York ferry boat suddenly realized that twenty pairs of eyes were regarding him as if he were a pick-pocket. Greatly embarrassed, he flushed and slunk away to the men's cabin. Concentrated public disapproval seldom fails of its just effect.

An iron chest, containing $4,000 in Spanish coins, was found recently while excavating in the Henepin canal, twenty miles south of Sterling, Ill. The box was found ten feet from the surface of the earth. There was a large number of coins bearing the date of 1668 and others of probably an earlier date, but the figures could not be deciphered. Some of the coins were stamped with a crown and others a head. There was nothing to indicate whom the honor was bestowed upon.

Mr. Berkout, formerly forester in the Dutch East Indies, recently gave some facts not generally known concerning India rubber and gutta-percha, which are often confused. The quality of elasticity distinguishes India rubber from gutta-percha. The latter is derived from one plant only, while India rubber is produced from more than sixty plants. Three-fourths of the gutta-percha of commerce comes from Sumatra and Borneo. Of the total annual production of India rubber nearly two-thirds comes from Central Africa and one-twentieth from Asia. The total production of gutta-percha is about one-twentieth as great as that of India rubber.

"Very few people really understand the care of an aquarium," says a Philadelphia who deals in fish. "The trouble with most people who go in for aquatic pets is that they kill them with kindness. A constant changing of the water is fatal. The supposition that fish need fresh water is all wrong; so is constant feeding with bread crumbs and things like that. The fish gain their sustenance from the water in which they live. Every aquarium requires plants, as they exude carbonic acid, which the fish require. If you have the proper amount of plants regulated according to the size of the aquarium and the number of fish it contains, you will have a self-sustaining aquarium, and there will be no necessity for you to change the water."

Science reverses the legal maxim "de minimus" and has an eye for the smallest things. Among such may be reckoned the paper submitted to the Royal Society on "the small vertical movements of a stone laid on the surface of the ground," by Horace Darwin. The investigations showed that a stone weighing about twenty pounds and about a foot and a half in diameter, which was placed on the surface of the ground a quarter of a century ago, gradually sank and is sinking. The stone sinks about the one-fifth hundredth of a yard in a year. The movement was not altogether regular, varying somewhat with the varying dampness of the soil. The effect of frost was to raise the stone; it fell rapidly during a thaw—a whole year's distance on one occasion in less than five hours.

Down at Sparrows' Point, south of Baltimore, completed all but a few finishing touches, lies the great steel floating dry dock built by the Maryland Steel company for the United States government, and which is to be towed to Algiers, La., as soon as the West India hurricane season has passed. That will be about Oct. 1 and several powerful ocean-going tugs will convey the huge dock to its destination. It is certain that this immense piece of marine mechanism for lifting great vessels out of water in order to clean or repair them is without a superior in its line, and it is doubtful whether it has an equal. It can raise a 15,000-ton battleship and have the floor of the dock two feet above the water, which is demanded by the government for its work; but with the floor even with the water-line it can lift an 18,000-ton ship.

Rome enjoys the distinction of possessing the first woman lawyer of Italy since the days of Portia. She is Ignorina Teresa Labriola. She has passed her examination with honors and is now a full-fledged lawyer, but has not inscribed herself among the advocates, as she does not desire to champion the "new woman," but to devote herself to the philosophy of law. After taking her degree, she addressed a commission of the University of Rome for three hours. She now lectures at the university together with her father and brother.

MICHIGAN NEWS IN GENERAL

Loss of the Hudson and Crew Has Been Confirmed.

ACCIDENT AT THE FLINT FAIR.

Reunion of the Seventh Michigan Infantry at Detroit—Michigan Pensions—Events and Gossip From All Parts of the State Stewed Down for Ready Reading.

Shot by a Highwayman.
Mrs. Chas. Davis was held up and shot by a highwayman two miles east of Albion Saturday evening. She was seriously wounded, but may recover. The highwayman escaped. The Davises had been visiting friends in Albion together with Mrs. Charles Hancock, her daughter, and husband, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Hancock started on their return leaving their husbands to return later. Two miles from the city, in a lonely spot, a masked man suddenly jumped from the bushes at the side of the road and seized the horse by the bit. He commanded the women to deliver their valuables, threatening to shoot if they didn't comply. "You wouldn't shoot a woman, would you?" said Mrs. Davis, at the same time leaning forward to snatch the whip from its socket. The robber saw the movement and fired, the ball striking Mrs. Davis in the neck, and striking downwards into the body. The robber fled and Mrs. Hancock returned to the city with her wounded mother. In her excitement driving back Mrs. Hancock drove into a Michigan Central freight train which was crossing Superior street. The buggy was overturned and both women were thrown out. Mrs. Davis did not suffer further injury from this accident, and Mrs. Hancock was only slightly injured.

The Flint Fair Accident.
An accident that will result in the death of two of the victims, and which caused the serious injury of several others, occurred on the Flint fair grounds late Thursday afternoon. One of the gypsies of a Ferris wheel, operated by a man named Grell, got loose, the stake to which it was fastened pulling out, and the structure fell. The cars were filled at the time. Joseph Pear, of Chicago, aged 30, while trying to save his sister and niece, was caught and had his jaw broken. His skull was also fractured and he will die. Fred Borden, of Iowa, who was taking tickets, was struck and received injuries that will cause his death. Miss Bessie Weeks, aged 18, had her cheek bone crushed in; John, aged 9, and Anabel, aged 8, children of Rev. C. A. Lippincott, were badly injured, but will recover. Miss Bertha Rock had her shoulder cut, was badly bruised and was picked up in an unconscious condition. Fern Smith, aged 12, was rendered unconscious, but was not badly injured. Miss Alice Knight, daughter of M. A. Knight, had an arm broken. M. W. Horton, who was selling tickets, was bruised on the wrist and leg.

The Engineer's Fault.
Extra passenger train No. 16, south-bound, and freight No. 35, north-bound, on the G. R. & I. railroad, met head on at Bonds Mills, six miles north of Cadillac, Sunday night. The engineer of the freight was so badly injured he died in two hours. Six trainmen and passengers were more or less seriously injured. The accident was the result of Engineer Zimmerman's failure to obey orders. He had instructions to pass the passenger train at Missaukee Junction, two miles south of where the wreck occurred. Zimmerman's driving words were: "It is my fault; I forgot." Both engines and the baggage car were smashed, and several freight cars and coaches were piled up.

Only 200 Survived.
The annual reunion of the Seventeenth Michigan Infantry, known as the Stonewall Regiment of the Wolverine state, was held in Detroit on the 17th inst. Of the original 1,000 members of the regiment, which was one of the most hardy fighting in the war, but 200 came out alive. Among these were 17 of the parent company E., which started from Ypsilanti, and all 17 were present to-day. Lieut. Col. Constant Luce, of Monroe; Capt. Sanford, of Lansing; President George H. Hopkins; treasurer, G. W. Harmon, and Col. F. W. Swift were among the prominent members present.

Loss of the Hudson and Crew.
All doubt about the fate of the steamer Hudson and her crew of 25 men was removed when the J. C. Ford landed the remains of Sherman G. Brooks, wheelsman on the lost ship, in Sault Ste. Marie Saturday. The body was picked up 25 miles from the place where the Hudson is supposed to have foundered Monday. The body has a life preserver with the words "S. S. Hudson" on it. It was inside the pilot house of the lost ship, which was floating bottom up. The ship's compass was also recovered.

Andy Bovington, who lost one arm in the defense of his country during the war of the rebellion, is just now the hero of Iron River. Barney Morgan stated in the presence of the veteran that he was glad President McKinley had been shot, and the result proved that the old soldier still knows how to fight in a good cause. Morgan was severely beaten and kicked out of doors by the one-armed veteran.

The soldiers' and sailors' reunion of the Northeastern association, which was to have been held at Flint the first five days in October, was declared off to-day by President M. C. Barney. The reason assigned is that the old soldiers would not attend owing to the recent national bereavement.

Contract holders in the United States Savings Association, the head office of which is located in the Hodges building, in Detroit, have been notified that the redemption fund has been exhausted and that the company will issue stock in some Colorado mine in exchange for paid-up contracts.

James H. Scott, colored, of Cassopolis, who it is alleged stole household property belonging to his grandfather and made his escape, has been captured in St. Joseph by Deputy Sheriff Senant.

While reaching over for a bucket of water in his old-fashioned well Monday morning, Lawrence Hummel, 58, of Adrian, slipped and fell headlong 60 feet to the bottom. He was instantly killed.

The fifty-second annual Michigan state fair opened at Pontiac Monday. The show promises to surpass all previous ones, both in point of attendance and in the excellence and variety of the exhibits.

Mason L. Brown, a Detroit civil engineer, has begun suit for $300 against the Owosso & Corunna Electric Co., for services in surveying a line of the proposed extension to Durand, which has never been built.

While playing with a gun Tuesday night at their home, four miles north-east of St. Louis, Roy Neigh, aged 12, accidentally shot his sister, Zona, aged 10. The charge took effect in the head and killed her instantly.

Reports to Secretary of State Warner show that there were 2,672 deaths in Michigan during August, corresponding to a death rate of 13.1 per cent per 1,000 population. This is an unusually low mortality for August.

A special election will be held in Charlotte, Mich., to vote on the proposition to bond the city for $50,000 and if it carries $30,000 will be spent for a sewage system and $20,000 for the improvement of the water works system.

Fred Schmitt, father of the secretary of the Sebewaing Sugar Co., and one of Sebewaing's most prominent and influential farmers, was seriously injured by being kicked by a vicious horse in his own barn Friday evening.

The town of Lawton seems to be filled with tramps, the number varying from 25 to 100. They seem indisposed to leave the place and are quarrelsome and impudent. The authorities are considering means to get rid of them.

Some one placed a stick of dynamite on the window sill of Joe Stackie's saloon at Calumet and the explosion nearly ruined the building and the one adjoining. W. Hicks, who had been garbled by Stackie, is under arrest.

The secretary of war has notified the city council of Benton Harbor and the Big Four and Pere Marquette railroads that unless the three swing bridges across Paw Paw river are in and completed within six months, a penalty will be required.

Benjamin Everett, a cooper, of Gladstone, was convicted of stealing miscellaneous merchandise from 800 line freight cars. The police believe he was the leader of a gang that systematically robbed the company. He was given 90 days in jail.

Michael Sullivan, the oldest resident of Grand Rapids, died Monday, aged 94 years. He came to this state when 19 years old, and spent most of his life in charge of construction gangs on railroads until his retirement 20 years ago. He leaves a large family.

Three burglars forced an entrance to the residence of C. E. Shepard, Owosso. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Propper were there unknown to the burglars, who thought the place unoccupied. The thieves were badly scared, and one of them jumped through a window to escape.

John Simmons, the highway robber who was sentenced at Flint to four years in Ionia, tried to set the jail on fire, but the flames were extinguished. Simmons and Louis Haley were locked in their cells, but managed to pick the locks, and were found roaming about in the corridors.

Owosso is to lose its pugacious mayor, S. D. Emery, who says he is going back to Boston to live. He likes eastern ways the best, but must stay here three years more, as he is under contract with a poultry firm. His fights for reform have given the city a state reputation.

Gay, Bias has appointed Dr. Herbert F. Palmer, of Detroit, a member of the state live stock commission to succeed Frank C. Wells, of Macomb county, who resigned to take the office of state veterinarian. The governor also appointed Frank Proctor, a G. A. R. man, county agent of Hillsdale county.

An Okemos woman, noted for her keenness and thrift, went to Buffalo and took her meals at a health food restaurant. A genial gentleman induced her to sign a statement as to what dishes she liked best and two of them turned up as promissory notes, one for $50 and one for $150.

Thomas Charey, of Shiawassee, was carrying some carbide in his coat pocket. It came in contact with a damp handkerchief and took fire. The old man knew nothing of his danger until informed by a small boy. Before the flames could be extinguished Charey's clothing was burned off. He is in a critical condition.

THE ASSASSIN ON TRIAL.

Pleads Guilty to the Charge of Murder.

ATTORNEYS CHANGE HIS PLEA.

The Greatest Precautions Taken by Police in the Czolgosz Trial—His Sanity Established Already—Prospects of a Speedy Verdict by the Jury.

Czalgosz on Trial.
The trial of Leon F. Czolgosz began in Buffalo, N. Y., Monday under every precaution to prevent the shooting of the criminal or overcrowding the court room. Past the outer cordon of blue coats, who surrounded the city hall, there was an inside guard and an interior guard, the detail apparently being formed on the lines of the cabled description of the precautions taken to guard the czar. But, at any rate, these elaborate dead lines kept the city hall clear of all irrelevant persons who did not have actual business calling them there. The prisoner was brought through the tunnel from the jail and entered the court room at 10:15, handcuffed to two guards. A great crowd had gathered outside, hoping to gain admission, but only persons who had passes from the chief of police were permitted to enter the court room.

When the court was called to order Justice White asked of the district attorney: "Have you any business for the court?"

"Yes," said Mr. Penney. "I wish to move the indictment of Leon F. Czolgosz, charged with murdering William McKinley."

"Let him plead," said the judge.

Mr. Penney then said: "Leon F. Czolgosz, you are indicted and it is charged that you did, on the sixth day of September, 1901, unlawfully shoot and kill William McKinley. How do you plead?"

"I did not hear you," said Czolgosz.

Mr. Penney repeated the statement of the indictment.

"How do you plead?" asked the district attorney.

"Guilty," replied Czolgosz in a firm tone.

Justice White said: "The court cannot accept that plea and a plea of not guilty will be entered."

He stated that his connection with the case, and that of his associates was peculiar, and consisted mainly in making sure that all the forms of law and justice were observed in the prosecution.

Justice White complimented counsel for defense, and said the assassin could have no better counsel, and that whatever the outcome, it would reflect only credit on them.

The mental condition of the assassin will absolutely be the only defense to be offered.

As a result of the examination of two alienists, Dr. Carlos T. McDonald and Dr. Allan McLean Hamilton, of New York city, the question of insanity is eliminated from the subjects on which the defense can rely for support.

There seems to be little difficulty in the selection of jurors and the trial will begin promptly on the selection of the panel.

Was It a Plot?

The Cleveland police have run on the startling possibility that a plot to assassinate McKinley was laid a year or more ago in peaceful Orange township, where the Czolgosz family lived.

The fact that Czolgosz had money impelled the detectives to try to learn whence he got it. His brother Waldo Czolgosz, confesses to having sent it to Leon under the name of Frank Snyder, at West Seneca, N. Y.

In his search for clues, Detective Schumacher learned from the neighboring farmers that the Czolgosz boys, Leon and Waldo, have been readers of socialist papers for several years.

It is said that Leon's father, sister and brothers are going to Buffalo shortly, and the police believe when they confront Leon that he will break down and reveal all that is now a mystery in regard to the shooting of the president.

Disease in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health, by representative physicians in active general practice, in different parts of the state, indicate that diarrhea, rheumatism, neuralgia, bronchitis and dysentery, in the order named, caused the most sickness in Michigan, during the past week. Cerebro spinal meningitis was reported present at two places; whooping cough at 8, measles at 8, smallpox at 21, diphtheria at 32, scarlet fever at 41, typhoid fever at 114 and consumption at 167.

News in Brief.

The officials of the White Star line emphatically deny that J. Pierpont Morgan has bought the line.

Gen. Frederick Funston, now in Manila, has undergone an operation for appendicitis and is doing nicely.

Admiral Sampson has bought a house in Washington, and it is said, will soon make his permanent home there.

Lew Burhans, of Lawton, was convicted under the new law making it a felony to steal chickens. He was assessed a fine of $15 or 30 days in jail.

While addressing the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor at the Disciple church at Lima, O., Wm. Abbott, an elder in the church, dropped dead.

Immigration inspectors at the port of New York are exercising a greater degree of vigilance now than formerly as a result of the general demand for the exclusion of anarchists.

The governor has been appealed to for troops to hold in check the turbulent coal mine strikers as the result of an armed attack by a squad of strikers at Madisonville, Ky., Monday.

New York police have again arrested Johann Most, anarchist, whom they caught at a meeting in Corona, L. I. There was a crowd of 500 gathered around him. An attempt was made to rescue Most, but the police got away with their prisoner.

The Road Tied Up.

A strike for higher wages of 40 switchmen employed at the Kentucky & Indiana bridge, across the Ohio river at Louisville, has caused a tie-up of freight trains, which affects all railroads, more or less seriously. About 1,300 cars are held tracked at New Albany, Youngstown and Louisville, and not a wheel has turned since Friday afternoon. Engines with steam up and their engineers and firemen ready to move are to be seen by the dozens at Youngstown and at the terminals at the bridge.

The roads directly affected by the strike are the Baltimore & Ohio, Southern, the Monon and Ohio. Southern. Others affected indirectly are the Louisville & Nashville, the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis, the Illinois Central and some of the freights of the Big Four and the Chesapeake & Ohio railroads.

Captured 150 British.

The Boers captured three companies of mounted infantry under Gough, who were reconnoitering south of Utrecht. After a severe fight the British forces lost their guns which had first been disabled. British casualties were two officers and 14 men killed; five officers and 25 men wounded and five officers and 150 men captured. Gough, who escaped during the night, reports that there were 1,000 Boers in the attacking party which was led by Botha.

French reports that Smuts rushed the cordon at Elandsriverpoort. The British losses were three officers killed and one injured, and 20 men killed and 30 wounded. Boers who were dressed in khaki, lost heavily.

No Guerrilla Warfare.

Joseph J. Emery, formerly the Detroit agent of the Associated Press, who has been conducting the Associated Press service in the Philippines for the last year, returned home for a visit. Mr. Emery has been all around the islands with the Taft commission, and declares that with the exception of parts of the islands of Mindanao and Samar, there is no guerrilla warfare or trouble of any kind, and that in the island of Luzon it is safe to travel anywhere without an armed escort. There are some 45,000 troops on the islands, or 20,000 less than in 1900, and it is expected this force will gradually be reduced one-half.

Messages of Condolence.

There is no cessation in the flow of dispatches from every corner of the earth expressing sympathy with the American people and admiration for Mr. McKinley. Among the numerous messages received to-day was a long expression of deep sorrow from the crown prince of Siam, who is now in London.

A special edition of the Gazette, London, was entirely confined to King Edward's orders directing the court to go into mourning for a week for the late President McKinley.

Favors the Canteen.

The army canteen was the subject of a lengthy discussion at a session of the American Public Health association at Buffalo, and upon its conclusion the following resolution was adopted with but one dissenting vote:

"Resolved, That this body deprecates any action in curtailing the operation of army canteens or post exchanges as formerly existing in the United States and in the interest of general and military sanitation and temperance recommends their re-establishment."

To Kill Roosevelt.

Frank Idings, 22 years old, blacksmith, was arraigned before Judge Kennedy at the Central Police Court, Cleveland, upon the charge of suspicion. In a saloon on St. Clair street, Idings is alleged to have said: "I belong to a society that will give $50,000 to any man who will kill President Roosevelt."

Idings, at his hearing, did not deny that he had made the statement.

Gen. Funston Has Appendicitis.

Gen. Funston is in the hospital at Manila suffering from appendicitis. He will probably be operated upon.

Agustino has written to Civil Governor Taft and Military Governor Chaffee saying that he regrets the great loss suffered by the people of the United States in the death of President McKinley.

Plot York's Death.

A sensational story was published in Hamilton, Ont., to the effect that four men were overheard in a bar-room discussing the killing of the Duke of York, and that the listeners are convinced that there is a plot on foot to assassinate the duke when he visits Hamilton. The police take no stock in the story.

Six Were Killed.

A switch not properly set brought a passenger express and a heavy freight train together with the resultant deaths of six passengers on the express train, and injury to 25 others, on the main line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at Avon, Mass.

McKinley's Life Insurance.

The Ohio insurance commissioner corrects a New York statement on the subject and says President McKinley carried $150,000 life insurance.

It is reported from Canton that more than 10,000 people visited the tomb of McKinley Sunday. Mrs. McKinley again went out for a drive, and according to Dr. Rixey is doing very well indeed.

Secretary Long says that McKinley's death "has put out the last embers of sectional bitterness."

Next Saturday or sooner Senator Tomlinson Estrada Palma will be proclaimed a candidate for the presidency of Cuba, with the endorsement of all political parties and with absolute assurance of election when the vote is taken.

All the McKinley doctors, with the exception of McBurney, have signed a formal statement to the effect that the tales of dissection among those eminent medical men are pure fabrications. Their harmony of opinion, they say, "was unusual."

HE SLEEPS IN PEACE

Imposing Funeral Ceremonies Precede Interment of McKinley at Canton.

Out under the whispering oak trees of Westlawn cemetery, in a vine-covered vault, almost buried in a sloping hillside, all that is earthly of William McKinley now rests. About the flower-strewn slopes a picket line of soldiers stands silent in the shadows.

Whole Day Given to Grief.

All day Thursday muffled drums beat their requiems, brasses wailed out the strains of marches of the dead, great men of the nation followed a funeral car in grief and tears. Through ranks of bareheaded men and women and children, fringed by a wall of soldiers, marching military and civilians passed with the mourners of the distinguished dead.

First Among Those Who Followed the Tomb.

First among those who followed the tomb was the man who is now at the head of the government. Mrs. McKinley was unable to attend the funeral. While the last rites were being said she remained in a room of the family home, dazed, not realizing that death had come to her husband, almost paralyzed mentally. During the morning, at her urgent request, she sat alone for a time beside the coffin as it lay in the south parlor of the house. No one seeks to lift the veil that is drawn over this scene about the bier of the last earthly sleep. The casket was not opened. But she was near the one who ever had cared for and protected her; near the dead for whom grief has burned into the soul of a country the lessons of manliness and beneficence taught by his life.

Final Ceremonies Impressive.

The last ceremonies for the late president were marked with a dignity that struck dumbness to the tens of thousands who watched the funeral column make the journey from the home to the cemetery. From the south parlor of the frame house which had so long been the family home the casket was borne to the First Methodist church at Canton, with statesmen, diplomats, great men of nation, representatives of the world, gathered with the surrounding members of the family. Ministers of five religious deof the vault the flower carpet had disappeared, its blooms, however, to be guarded for years as mementos of this day of sorrow.

Just without the entrance to this mausoleum stood the new president of the United States. The coffin rested on supports only a hand's reach from him. Then the members of the cabinet formed an open line with him, and members of the family—all save the lone woman who was in the home under the close watch of Dr. Rixey—gathered near. "Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust," came the benediction from the lips of the venerable Bishop Joyce.

The roar of the cannon echoed from the hilltop just above. It came as a mighty "amen." Again the white-haired minister spoke. Again came the crashing roar of the salute, its reverberations beating on and over the hills about the city.

"Taps" Sounded by Bugler.

"Taps," the saddest call the bugle language of the army knows, came from eight bugles. The last notes were held until the breath of the wind seemed to rob them of life. Away down the broad street, two miles away, the marching columns were still coming. The music of the bands, muted, it seemed, by some giant hand came floating to the group about the vault—"Nearer, My God, to Thee, Nearer to Thee." Once again came the crash from the guns above.

Door Is Closed Upon Martyr.

Then the casket was carried within the vault. Five infantrymen marched behind it. A moment passed and the outer doors were closed. The last ceremony was over; the third martyred president of the United States had been committed to God and eternity.

Slowly the marching column treaded about the crescent road to the left of the temporary tomb. Then darkness threw its veil over all, the silent guards took their stations, the cemetery gates were closed.

Never Mourning More Sincere.

That is the bare outline of one of the most imposing and impressive funerals ever seen in the United States. To fill in all its details would take for the erection of a monument. The plans and details are as yet embryonic, but will assume definite proportions in a week or two.

Scenes at the Church.

It was 1:50 o'clock when the procession reached the stately stone edifice where the funeral services were to be held. At the church entrance were drawn up deep files of soldiers, with bayonets advanced, keeping a clear area for the advancing casket and the long train of mourners. The hearse halted while President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet alighted. Again they grouped themselves at either side of the entrance, and with uncovered heads awaited the passing of the casket. Then the flower-covered coffin was brought from the hearse and as it passed within the black-draped entrance the president and his cabinet followed within the edifice.

Members of Congress Enter.

At the rear of each of the four aisles stood a soldier at attention, cap in hand, musket held straight in front. The members of the senate entered. At the head walked Senator Allison of Iowa. Then came Penrose and Cockrell, Scott, Burrows of Michigan, Tillman and Mason of Illinois. Next the members of the house filed in. They numbered almost 150. Speaker Henderson at the head. Louder came the mourn of the band, and outside the troops had formed a phalanx of sabers and bayonets. Then, under the black shrouded door, came the casket.

Under Arch of Sabers.

The black coffin had passed under an arch of drawn sabers as it was carried up the steps. Lieutenant General Miles and the men of the army and Rear Admiral Farquhar and the men of the navy held their positions. Covered with a great American flag, bearing only sprays of immortelles and roses tendered by the Legation of honor, the casket was slowly brought to the front, supported on the shoulders of the blue jackets and the soldiers. At the foot of the mountain of flowers marking the altar and the choir loft lay the bier shrouded, too, in the national colors and in black.

On this the casket was placed under the quivering folds of the stately banner, with the lights shedding their effulgence from above, the fragrance of the flowers hovering about and the music of Beethoven's grand funeral march pulsing from the organ, the bodybearers gently lowered the flag-draped and flower-adorned coffin to its support.

All Rise as Coffin Passes.

Then the generals took their places in the first seat to the right of the central aisle. The rear admirals crossed and took the first pew to the left. Every one within the church had risen as the casket was brought in. They remained standing. A moment later and President Roosevelt entered through the same doorway of black. His lips quivered slightly as he was escorted to the pew directly behind General Miles. Behind him came Secretaries Hitchcock and Wilson and Postmaster General Smith, who fled into the next pew, and with them

Every Eye Dim With Tears.

About the tomb itself the outburst of grief was still more striking. As the casket was borne into the vault there was not a member of the cabinet who was not visibly affected, while several were in tears, with their handkerchiefs to their eyes. Secretary Root, although controlling himself to some degree of outward calm, was deeply moved, while President Roosevelt repeatedly pressed his handkerchief to his eyes.

Great Picture of Desolation.

Among the bystanders many scarcely made an effort to conceal their emotion. It was a scene under the cheerless gray skies and in the bleak wind, as cold as a November day, that even the radiant glory of all the great mass of flowers could not relieve the picture of all of sorrow and desolation that death leaves in its wake. As the one on whom this terrible blow falls hardest was not there this agony was spared her.

Will Sleep in Bed of Granite.

Here in this vine-covered vault the remains of President McKinley will lie until they are buried in granite. There remain now only the plans for a monument to his memory. Already these are under way. Thursday morning after the Speaker Henderson of the house of representatives, accompanied by Congressman S. E. Payne of New York, and Congressman Daisell of Pennsylvania, were driven to Westlawn cemetery and viewed the location of the McKinley plot.

Congress to Build a Monument.

The newer part of the cemetery was also visited, and although the statement is not definitely made, it is suggested that the coming session of congress will probably appropriate funds

So It Happened That When the Men

of the army and of the navy carried the black casket within the shadow

Those who had accompanied the funeral train then were seated. Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks came first, followed by Controller Charles Gates Dawes. Senator Hanna followed. He looked worn and leaned on his cane. Mrs. Hanna accompanied him. Then the black-gloved ushers seated the other members of the party.

The formation of the funeral procession was as follows:

First Division.

Gen. Eli Torrance, national commander G. A. R., commanding, and staff. Grand Army band. E. F. Taggart, department commander G. A. R., of Ohio, and staff. Buckley Post, No. 12, Canton, O. Bell Post, No. 12, Warren, O. C. G. Chamberlain Post, No. 12, East Palestine, O. Given Post, No. 12, Wooster, O. Hart Post, No. 12, Massillon, O. Other Grand Army posts.

Second Division.

Maj. Charles Dick, commanding. Eighth Regiment Military Band. Detachment Ohio National Guard. Troop A of Ohio National Guard, guard of honor. Officiating clergymen. Funeral car and bearers. Honorary bearers. Special guard of honor, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Admiral George Dewey, Gen. John R. Brooke, Gen. Elwell S. Otis, Gen. George L. Gillespie, Loyal Legion. Family, President, and Cabinet.

DANGER BY THE LOOP

Captain Heilner Tells Court Concerning the Maneuver.

HIDDEN IN BATTLE SMOKE.

Says Ship Passed Within 150 Yards of Texas—Questions About Coal Supply—Schroeder Recalled to the Stand—To Put Sampson in a "Hole."

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—The members of the Schley naval court of inquiry found the accommodations in the tool shop at the navy yard somewhat improved when it met there at the usual hour of 11 o'clock. The long bare room which hitherto had been open from floor to roof had been, in appearance at least, completely transformed by the addition of a ceiling of plain white cloth. This also had the effect of improving the acoustics of the hall, so that the courts and others had less difficulty than formerly in hearing the witnesses.

Schroeder Is Recalled.

Commander Schroeder was recalled and asked if he desired to make any correction in the official record of his testimony of Saturday. "There is one omission from Admiral Schley's remarks on the Massachusetts on the day of the bombardment of the Colon which I overheard, which I should like to supply," he replied. "It is this: He said when he came aboard that Admiral Sampson would be there on the following day. He made that statement in connection with his remark that he was going in to sink the Colon."

Commander Schroeder was then asked concerning the coal supply of the Massachusetts, and when he replied that he had no information on that point he was asked to read the log to secure this information.

Counsel for Admiral Schley objected, but Assistant Judge Advocate Hanna insisted, saying that Admiral Schley's counsel were merely creating delay by their objections. "I propose to develop the facts in this case, and technical objections will not avail to prevent," he said.

The purpose of this inquiry was to develop what Messrs Lemly and Hanna considered an error in Admiral Higginson's testimony. He said that the Massachusetts could not have remained on blockade for more than twelve days, and then the vessel would be without coal and powerless to proceed to coal.

Heilner on the Stand.

Lieutenant-Commander L. C. Heilner, who was navigator of the Texas during the Spanish war, was next called. He said he had heard no guns fired when the squadron approached Cienfuegos. To his knowledge no effort was made to ascertain whether the Spanish fleet was in the harbor at that point or to destroy Spanish works there. Nor had there been any effort to communicate with Cubans on shore, until Capt. McCalla arrived on the Marblehead.

He told how the fleet had proceeded from Cienfuegos to within twenty miles of Santiago. "We had," he said, "good weather; a fresh wind and a sea that was moderate to rough." None of the fighting ships had delayed the fleet, he said, but some of the smaller vessels had. The fleet was signaled that the rendezvous would be twenty-five miles due south of Santiago.

Captain Heilner, navigator of the Texas told the story and made the estimate that the Brooklyn swept by within from 100 to 150 yards of the Texas. The point was made that the latter ship was in great danger because of this loop, made by the Brooklyn, while hidden in the battle smoke.

To Put Sampson in a "Hole."

So far Rear Admiral Sampson's name has not figured often in the investigation. Speculation as to whether he will appear as a witness continues without definite knowledge as to his intention. His detachment from duty at the Boston navy yard takes effect Oct. 1, and his friends here say his appearance in court depends altogether on the state of his health. As soon as all the testimony offered by the navy department is in the Schley forces will have their inning, and it is expected they will ring the changes of the fact that Sampson was away when the Spanish fleet steamed out of Santiago harbor to meet annihilation at the hands of the squadron directed by Admiral Schley.

It is the plan of campaign first to clear the applicant of all blame then to secure for him the credit of winning the great sea fight and, indirectly at least, to deposit Sampson in what is commonly known as the "hole." This is considered by them justifiable in view of their firm belief that Schley has suffered a monumental wrong at the hands of Sampson and his allies.

Wrecks Waterworks Plant.

Willmar, Minn., Sept. 24.—One of the boilers in the city waterworks and electric light plant exploded, wrecking the plant. A large section of the boiler was thrown over a block of residences, landing in the street. Night Engineer Nels Bredeson was thrown into the engine pit, escaping with slight wounds on his arm. The damage is estimated at $30,000; insurance, $10,000.

Ran Burning Ship Ashore.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 24.—Abe wooden steamer Fedora, without cargo, bound from Duluth to Ashland to load iron ore, caught fire when off Bass Island and became a total loss. Her crew of seventeen men escaped, although they lost all of their clothing and effects.

Bird-Shot For Tiger.

No use to hunt tigers with bird-shot. It doesn't hurt the tiger any and it's awfully risky or you.

Consumption is a tiger mong diseases. It is stealthy—but once started it rapidly attacks up the flesh and destroys life. No use to go hunting with ordinary food and medicine. That's only bird-shot. Still advances. Good heavy charges of Scott's Emulsion will stop the advance. The disease feels that.

Scott's Emulsion makes the body strong to resist. It clothes and toughens the lungs and sustains the strength until the disease wears itself out.

MAKING OLD POTATOES NEW.

Kettles of Boiling Lye Used in the Process to Harden Them and Curl Their Skins.

"Late in the season, after the crops are out of the way, the gardener plants a crop of late and good-looking potatoes. The time has been chosen from experience, and is opportune for a yield of small potatoes before the frosts of winter come down upon the gardener's truck patch, says Popular Science.

These potatoes are dug and buried in heaps in the open field and left until spring opens and the new potato season arrives. At the proper time the heaps are opened and the potatoes sorted according to size.

In the meantime a large kettle is set in the field adjacent to the potato heaps, and made ready by filling with water and adding sufficient lye to effectually curl the skin of the potato when dipped into the boiling solution.

A crane and metal basket are rigged so that a dipping can be done expeditiously, and the way that new potatoes are turned out is astonishing.

The effect of dipping any potato, no matter how old, into this boiling lye solution is to crack and curl the skin, and at the same time it hardens or makes the potato much more firm, so that its resemblance to a new potato is so near that it will be hard to pick out the impostor, from appearance alone, from a basket of the genuine article.

After dipping the potatoes are rinsed in another vat and spread out to dry in the sun, and cure until perfect new potatoes, and the work is complete.

NATURE'S RESERVOIRS.

Big Trees of California Serve as Such to the Surrounding Country.

"Why," it will be asked, "are the big tree groves always found on well-watered spots?" Simply because big trees give rise to streams, says John Muir, in Atlantic. It is a mistake to suppose that the water is the cause of the groves being there. On the contrary, the groves are the cause of the water being there. The roots of this immense tree fill the ground, forming a sponge which hoards the bounty of the clouds and sends it forth in clear perennial streams instead of allowing it to rush headlong in short-lived, destructive floods. Evaporation is also checked and the air kept still in the shady sequoia depths, while thirsty robber winds are shut out. . . . The value of these forests in storing and dispensing the bounty of the mountain clouds is infinitely greater than lumber or sheep. To the dwellers of the plain, dependent on irrigation, the big tree is a tree of life, a never-failing spring, sending living water to the lowlands all through the hot rainless summer. For every grove cut down a stream is dried up. Therefore all California is crying: "Save the trees of the fountains!" nor, judging by the signs of the times, is it likely that the cry will cease until the salvation of all that is left of Sequoia Gigantea is sure.

CATS IN POST OFFICES.

Rat Catchers That Are Paid by the Government for Their Services.

Several years ago a letter containing a large sum of money disappeared from the New York post office, writes Hugh Netherton, in Ladies' Home Journal, in telling of "Cats That Draw Salaries." A month after the disappearance a desk in one of the rooms was moved, and on the floor was found a nest of young rats resting on a bed of macerated greenbacks—all that was left of the missing letter. Uncle Sam at last decided to employ a cat to protect the New York post office from rats and mice. The first appointee in the United States rat and mouse catching service was a large gray tabby. She secured the place through the recommendation of her owner, who certified that she was not only a good mouser, but also a friend of the administration—qualities which she at once exemplified by her work.

With New York as an example, other post offices asked for cats, and to-day nearly every large office in the United States has its official mouser or rat-killer, who receives from nine to twelve dollars a year. This income is expended under the supervision of the postmasters for the purchase of food. Milk is the chief item, for the cats are supposed to provide themselves with meat.

One Way of Owning a Diamond.

A young man who works in a Chestnut street store bought a diamond ring some time ago, reports the Philadelphia Times. He was to pay for it on the installment plan, $15 a month. He made the first payment and the diamond was delivered to him. At the end of the first month the collector came around again. The young man was broke. Finally he went to a pawnbroker, borrowed $15 on the ring and paid the collector. In three weeks he got the ring out by paying $16.50. Then, in another week, the collector came around again. Once more the ring was pawned. Then it became a struggle for the young man to get the ring out in time to pawn it again, but he did. It has now been four months since the diamond was purchased. The young man is paying double interest and the pawnbroker is custodian of the ring.

Drainage in Belgium.

During the last century Belgium added an average of 3,000 acres a year to her area simply by careful drainage.

PRIMITIVE COOKING.

Crude Utensils Used by the Ancients in the Preparation of Their Food.

Prof. S. Trojanovic, of Belgrade, has for several months been making an investigation with the object of ascertaining the exact manner in which food was cooked in Europe in primitive times, and he has now arrived at the conclusion that the general practice was to place the food in a pot and to warm it by means of red hot stones, reports a London paper.

Such a pot was usually made of the bark of a tree, and two or three sticks ran across it for the purpose of holding the stones in proper position. When a meal was to be prepared the pot was partially filled with meat and water, and then in the vacant places were put the red-hot stones. The food was quickly warmed in this way, and it was eaten before it grew cold.

In various parts of Serbia primitive pots of this kind are still used. In other parts of Europe, notably in Macedonia, pots formed of the bark of trees are also used, but the food in them, instead of being warmed by means of hot stones, is thoroughly cooked by a fire which is lighted over them.

Prof. Trojanovic has made a collection of these pots, and he regards them as of peculiar interest and value, since he is confident that in old days about every nation in Europe cooked its food in utensils of this kind, though he thinks it quite probable that a different method of heating the food prevailed in each country.

THE BEE AS A BAROMETER.

In All Well Regulated Colonies the Queen Has a Staff of Weather Prophets.

Such should be the title of these lines, for whoever observes these interesting insects finds it easy enough to foretell exactly the kind of weather to be expected. At least that is the opinion of many raisers of bees.

Generally the bee stays at home when rain is in the air. When the sky is simply dark and cloudy these busy workers do not leave their dwelling all at once. A few go out at first, as though the queen had sent out messengers to study the state of the atmosphere. The greater number remain on observation until the clouds begin to dissipate, and it is only then that the battalions entire rush out in search of their nectar. A bee never goes out in a fog, because it is well aware that dampness and cold are two fearsome, redoubtable enemies. We do not mean, however, that the bee is a meteorologist in the absolute sense of the word. Its cleverness consists in never being taken unawares, for it possesses untiring vigilance. Often one may observe the sudden entrance of bees into the hive when a dense cloud hides the sun, and even though the rain is not in evidence.

STOOD DEATH OFF.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Texas once fooled a grave-digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malarial, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

A Certain Cure for Dysentery and Diarrhoea.

"Some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip," says F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford county, Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by all druggists.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

Mrs. Williams was presented with a nice berry set, and Mrs. Chadwick a gold Lady Maccabee pin.—Stockbridge Sun.

Judge Kline filed his opinion Wednesday afternoon in the injunction case of the city of Ann Arbor against Hawks & Angus. He finds for the defendants and discharges the order to show cause. His conclusion is that, as Boland's attorneys say they do not oppose Hawks & Angus getting a franchise into the city, and as the city attorney does not claim that in the Hawks & Angus franchise the city's interests are not guarded, he sees no reason why the defendants shall not be permitted to put in their Huron street line west of Ashley street, as authorized by their franchise.

The state law in reference to weeds is not enforced in this city, and the condition of many streets, alleys and vacant lots is disgraceful. These conditions are not only disgraceful but an outrage on those property owners who take care of their property. The damage done by the large crop of burdock, etc., cannot be estimated. The law is plain and there will be little difficulty in enforcing the law if they, the officers, wish to do so. The seeds that will now be spread over the city will produce a big crop next year.—Times. Ann Arbor is not the only place where this state of affairs exist.

PLAYMATES

Old Ocean, let me spend with you
These autumn days so bright and blue.
For though your beard is white, I see
You're not too old to romp with me.
You play at tag, and try to reach
My feet that fly along the beach;
Then we are soldiers, and you take
The little sand forts that I make.
When in your waves I venture out
Oh, how you tumble me about!
For you are old, but merry, too,
And so I love to play with you.

After Forty Years.

BY D. H. TALMAGE.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

There died not long ago in a certain home for soldiers a certain man who shall here be nameless. He died in his bed at night, with none watching beside him. He left no word. He did not struggle. So nearly did the death calm resting upon him resemble the slumber of life that one of his comrades, a jest upon his lips, shook him by the shoulder in the morning. And then the word went forth that another worn and weary one had passed through the Valley of the Shadow without suffering, and silently the prayer went up, "O Lord, will that as he was taken so also may it be with us."

They buried him with military honors, and then wrote to his mother announcing briefly the facts. They gave no details. And presently a letter written by the faltering hand of age was received.

"Tell me, please," it said, "how my boy died, and let me know what belongings he had."

The answer was necessarily short, there was so little to tell. He had been buried in his only suit of clothes. There was a sum of money, amounting to thirty-six dollars, in a tin box beneath his bunk. In his valise were two shirts, a suit of underwear, two pairs of socks and one brown cotton glove, nothing more.

The official making the inventory contemplated the glove somewhat curiously when he came to it, and scratched his head with the blunt end of his pencil.

"One glove," he said, half aloud. "Evidently a woman's. Wonder how it happened?"

He continued to wonder for several days. Then the matter was explained to him.

A woman, leading by the hand a child, appeared in the commandant's office, seeking information regarding the departed soldier. She was not a relative. Neither was she a friend—at least she had not been a friend. She had known him in his youth. She had seen him march away to the war. She had not seen him since.

The official questioned her guardedly, and learned largely by inference, from her replies that the soldier had been her lover, but that his idea of loyalty had not been her idea of loyalty. They had lived in the borderland between the North and the South. Her father and her brother and another son also was dead, and her son's wife and she were not in sympathy. The child she held by the hand was her grandchild, her one comfort. She had come to see the soldier who had been faithful to the flag of victory. She had known where he was throughout all the years. She had saved a little money—enough, if eked out by a small pension, to carry two people of sixty to the end of their lives. Would the official be so kind as to call the soldier at once?

The official cleared his throat vigorously and scowled. He always scowled when he had a painful duty to perform. And this woman, with the love of forty years ago intact in her bosom, was so pitiful a spectacle under the circumstances that his courage was hardly equal to telling the truth. But he was not a man to shirk a duty.

"My dear madam," he said, "I regret to inform you that your friend is dead."

She seemed not to understand at first; but gradually the import of the statement was borne in upon her, and she moaned hopelessly, trembling as the leaf of autumn trembles in the north wind. The official said nothing more. He was waiting for her to speak.

"Did—did he leave anything—anything marked for 'Sarah'?" she asked at last.

"Not anything," replied the official. And then, as gently as he might, he recounted the circumstances attending the soldier's death.

"He went alone," whispered the woman—"alone—O God! But you say he left a glove?" Was it a brown glove, such as women used to wear?

The official nodded. "I have the mate to the glove," she announced calmly, the look of weariness and despair coming again to her face. "It is bloodstained and falling apart, but I have preserved it because something here"—placing her hand upon her breast—"told me that the other would be found some time, and I would know the truth. And I know the truth now."

She raised her eyes, and for an instant her lips moved silently.

"My husband brought it with him when he returned, wounded, from Shiloh. A Union soldier whose name he would never tell me had stood between him and death there, fighting hard against his own people that—the rebel's wife might—not be deprived of her husband. The gloves were mine. He reached out from the ranks and pulled them out of my hand the day he went away to join Grant's army, and I struck him in the face when he did it. One of them he used to stanch the flow of blood from my husband's wound, and then stuffed it into the pocket of my husband's coat, where I found it. The other he kept—forty—years."

"Anything marked for Sarah?"

She quite broke down at this juncture, and the official essayed to comfort her.

"His mother still lives," he said, and named the place. "If you wish, you may take his things to her."

She readily accepted the commission; but of the meeting between the two women only themselves know.

Where Romance Is Recalled.

The Windsor library is one of the most perfect retreats in all England for a rainy day, says a London newspaper. It has a superb outlook across to Stoke and away to Harrow-on-the-Hill, and as the privileged ladies and gentlemen of the court loiter in its cozy chairs, leathered in brilliant scarlet, and rest their books upon its polished ebon tables inlaid with ivory, the spirit of the past—of Anne and the duchess, of Elizabeth and her tiring maids, of Charles II. and Lely's beauties—seem to pervade the fireplace and oreil, alcove and mullion. Little wonder that such a corner became a favorite retreat of Sunday afternoons.

Introduced Christmas Trees.

Empress Frederick, according to the London Daily Chronicle, was the cause of the introduction of Christmas trees into England. Her father, Prince Albert, insisted on having a German Christmas tree with its lights and decorations for his baby daughter in 1840, and the fashion spread quickly.

Perhaps This Writer Knows.

The Lapps, a people of northern Europe, never wash. They abhor water, and from infancy to age their clothing is never changed except when it is worn out. They wear the same garments, made of reindeer skin with the hair next to the flesh, day and night, winter and summer.

Vitality of Typhoid Germs.

Typhoid germs retain their vitality for many weeks; in garden earth, twenty-one days; in filter sand, eighty-two days; in dust of the street, thirty days; on linen, sixty to seventy days; on wood, thirty-two days; in ice, a year or more.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"THE SPIRIT OF AMITY" LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

"The Barbarous People Showed Us No Little Kindness"—Acts xxviii: 2. Kindness in Action the Greatest of Virtues.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

Washington, Sept. 22.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage commends the spirit of amity and good feeling and mentions illustrious examples of that spirit; text, Acts xxviii, 2, "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness."

Here we are on the island of Malta, another name for Melita. This island, which has always been an important commercial center, belonging at different times to Phoenicia, to Greece, to Rome, to Arabia, to Spain, to France, now belongs to England. The area of the island is about 160 square miles. It is in the Mediterranean sea and of such clarity of atmosphere that Mount Aetna, 130 miles away, can be distinctly seen. The island is gloriously memorable because the Knights of Malta for a long while ruled there, but more famous because of the apostolic shipwreck. The bestormed vessel on which Paul sailed, had "laid to" on the starboard tack, and the wind was blowing east-northeast, and the vessel drifting probably a mile and a half an hour, she struck at what is now called St. Paul's bay. Practical sailors have taken up the Bible account and decided beyond controversy the place of the shipwreck. But the island, which has so rough a coast, is for the most part a garden. Richest fruits and a profusion of honey characterized it in Paul's time as well as now. The finest oranges, figs and olives grow there.

When Paul and his comrades crawled up on the beach, saturated and hungry from long abstinence from food and chilled to the bone, the islanders, though called barbarians because they could not speak Greek, opened their doors to the shipwrecked ones. Everything had gone to the bottom of the deep, and the barefooted, bareheaded apostle and ship's crew were in a condition to appreciate hospitality. About twenty-five such men a few years ago I found in the life station near East Hampton, Long Island. They had got ashore in the night from the sea, and not a hat or shoe had they left. They found out, as Paul and his fellow voyagers found out, that the sea is the roughest of all robbers. My text finds the ship's crew ashore on Malta and around a hot fire drying themselves and with the best provision the islanders can offer them. And they go into government quarters for three days to recuperate. Publius, the ruler, inviting them, although he had severe sickness in the house at that time, his father down with a dangerous illness. Yea, for three months they staid on the island watching for a ship and putting the hospitalities of the islanders to a severe test. But it endured the test satisfactorily and it is recorded for all the ages of time and eternity to read and hear in regard to the inhabitants of Malta, "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness."

A Magnificent Word.

Kindness! What a great word that is! It would take a reed as long as that which the apocalyptic angel used to measure heaven to tell the length, the breadth, the height of that magnificent word. It is a favorite Bible word, and it is early launched in the book of Genesis, caught up in the book of Joshua, embraced in the book of Ruth, sworn by in the book of Samuel, crowned in the book of Psalms and enthroned in many places in the New Testament. Kindness! A word no more gentle than mighty. I expect it will wrestle me down before I get through with it. It is strong enough to throw an archangel. But it will be well for us to stand around it and warm ourselves by its glow as Paul and his fellow voyagers stood around the fire on the island of Malta, where the Maltese made themselves immortal in my text by the way they treated their victims of the sea. "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness."

Kindness! All definitions of this multipotent word break down half way. You say it is clemency, benignity, generosity; it is made up of good wishes; it is an expression of beneficence; it is a contribution to the happiness of others. Some one else says, "Why, I can give you a definition of kindness; it is sunshine of the soul; it is affection perennial; it is a climacteric grace; it is the combination of all graces; it is compassion; it is the perfection of gentleness and womanliness." Are you all through? You have made a dead failure in your definition. It cannot be defined, but we all know what it is, for we have all felt its power. Some of you may have felt it as Paul felt it, on some coast of rock as the ship went to pieces, but more of us have again and again in some awful stress of life had either from earth or heaven hands stretched out which "showed us no little kindness."

The Grace of Forgiveness.

But are you waiting and hoping for some one to be bankrupt or exposed or discomfited or in some way overthrown then kindness has not taken possession of your nature. You are wrecked on a Malta where there are no oranges. You are entertaining a guest so unlike kindness that kindness will not come and dwell upon the same roof. The most exhausting and unhealthy and ruinous spirit on earth is a revengeful spirit or recalcitrant spirit, as I know by experience, for I have tried it for five or ten minutes at a time. When some mean thing has been done me or said about me, I have felt: "I will pay him in his own coin. I will show him up. The villain! The traitor! The liar! The ingrate! The villain!" But five or ten minutes of the feeling has been so unnerving and exhausting I have abandoned it, and I cannot understand how people can go about torturing themselves five or ten or twenty years, trying to get even with somebody. The only way you will ever triumph over your enemies is by forgiving them and wishing them all good and spirit; text, Acts xxviii, 2, "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness." As malevolence is the most uneasy and profitless and dangerous feeling, kindness is the most healthful and delightful. And this is not an abstraction. As I have tried a little of the retaliatory feeling, so I have tried a little of the forgiving. I do not want to leave this world until I have taken vengeance upon every man that ever did me a wrong by doing him a kindness. In most of such cases I have already succeeded, but there are a few malignants whom I am yet pursuing, and I shall not be content until I have in some wise helped them or benefited them or blessed them.

Rare Flower from Royal Garden.

The king of Prussia had presented to him by the empress of Russia the root of a rare flower, and it was put in the royal gardens on an island, and the head gardener, Herr Fintelman, was told to watch it. And one day it put forth its glory. Three days of every week the people were admitted to these gardens, and a young man, probably not realizing what a wrong thing he was doing, plucked this flower and put it in his buttonhole, and the gardener arrested him as he was crossing at the ferry and asked the king to throw open no more his gardens to the public. The king replied: "Shall I deny to the thousands of good people of my country the privilege of seeing this garden because one visitor has done wrong? No; let them come and see the beautiful grounds." And when the gardener wished to give the king the name of the offender who had taken the royal flower he said, "No, my memory is very tenacious, and I do not want to have in my mind the name of the offender lest it should hinder me granting him a favor some other time." Now, I want you to know that kindness is a royal flower, and blessed be God, the king of mercy and grace, that by a divine gift, and not by purloining, we may pluck this royal flower and not wear it on the outside of our nature, but wear it on our soul and wear it forever, its radiance and aroma not more wonderful for time than wonderful for eternity.

Hopeful and Cordial Words.

Oh, say the cordial things! Say the useful thing. Say the hospitable thing. Say the helpful thing. Say the Christ-like thing. Say the kind thing. I admit that it is easier for some temperaments than for others. Some are born pessimists, and some are born optimists, and that demonstrates itself all through everything. It is a cloudy morning. You meet a pessimist and you say, "What weather today?" He answers, "It's going to storm," and umbrella under arm and waterproof coat show that he is honest in that utterance. On the same block, a minute after, you meet an optimist, and you say, "What do you think of the commercial prospects?" and he says, "Glorious. Crops not so good as usual, but foreign demand will make big prices. We are going to have such an autumn and winter of prosperity as we have never seen." On your way back to your store you meet a pessimist merchant. "What do you think of the commercial prospects?" you ask, and he answers, "Well, I don't know. Wheat and corn crop blasted in Kansas and Missouri, and the grain gamblers will get their fist in, and the hay crop is short in some places, and in the southern part of Wisconsin they had a hailstorm and our business is as dull as it ever was." You will find the same difference in judgment of character. A man of good reputation is assailed and charged with some evil deed. At the first story the pessimist will believe in guilt. "The papers said so, and that's enough. Down with him!" The optimist will say: "I don't believe a word of it. I don't think that a man that has been as useful and seemingly honest for twenty years, could have got off track like that. There are two sides to this story, and I will wait to hear the other side before I condemn him." My hearer, if you are by nature a pessimist, make a special effort by the grace of God to extirpate the dolorous and the hypercritical from your disposition. Believe nothing against anybody until the wrong is established by at least two witnesses of integrity. And, if guilt is proved, find out the extenuating circumstances, if there are any. Kindness! Let us, morning, noon and night, pray for it until we get it.

Kindness of Action.

Furthermore, there is kindness of action. That is what Joseph showed to his outrageous brothers. That is what David showed to Mephibosheth for his father Jonathan's sake. That is what Onesiphorus showed to Paul in the Roman penitentiary. That is what William Cowper recognized when he said he would not trust a man who would with his foot needlessly crush a worm. That is what our assassinated President Lincoln demonstrated when his private secretary found him in the capitol grounds trying to get a bird back to the nest from which it had fallen, and which quality the illustrious man exhibited years before when, having with some lawyers in the carriage on the way to court passed on the road a swine fast in the mire, after awhile cried to his horse, "Ho!" and said to the gentlemen, "I must go back and help that hog out of the mire." And he did go back and put on solid ground that most uninteresting quadruped. That was the spirit that was manifested by my departed friend, Hon. Alexander H. Stephens of Georgia—and lover of men never exchanged earth for heaven—when at Washington. A senator's wife, who told us of the circumstances, said to him, "Mr. Stephens, come and see my dead canary bird." And he answered, "No; I could not look at the poor thing without crying." That is the spirit which last night ten thousand mothers showed to their sick children coming to give the drink at the tenth call as cheerfully and as tenderly as at the first call.

Suppose all this assemblage and all to whom these words shall come by printer's type should resolve to make kindness an overarching, undergirding and all-pervading principle of their life and then carry out the resolution. Why in six months the whole earth would feel it. People would say, "What is the matter? It seems to me that the world is getting to be a better place to live in. Why, life after all is worth living. Why, there is Shylock, my neighbor, has withdrawn his lawsuit of foreclosure against that man, and because he has had so much sickness in his family he is going to have the house for one year rent free. There is an old lawyer in that young lawyer's office, and do you know what he has gone in there for? Why, he is helping to fix up a case which is too big for the young man to handle, and the white-haired attorney is hunting up previous decisions and making out a brief for the boy. Do you know that a strange thing has taken place in the pulpit, and all the old ministers are helping the young ministers, and all the old doctors are helping the young doctors, and the farmers are assisting each other in gathering the harvest, and for that farmer who is sick the neighbors have made a 'bee,' as they call it, and they have all turned in to help him get his crops into the garner? And they tell me that the older and more skillful reporters who have permanent positions on papers are helping the young fellows who are just beginning to try and do not know exactly how to do it. And after a few erasures and interpolations on the reporter's pad they say, 'Now, here is a readable account of the tragedy; hand it in, and I am sure the managing editor will take it.'"

New Dispensation of Geniality.

My hearers, you know and I know we are far from that state of things. But why not inaugurate a new dispensation of geniality. If we cannot have a millennium on a large scale, let us have it on a small scale and under our own vestments. Kindness! If this world is ever brought to God, that is the thing that will do it. You cannot fret the world up, although you may fret the world down. You cannot scold it into excellence or reformation or godliness.

The east wind and the west wind were one day talking with each other, and the east wind said to the west wind: "Don't you wish you had my power? Why, when I start they hail me by storm signals all along the coast. I can twist off a ship's mast as easily as a cow's hoof cracks an alder. With one sweep of my wing I have strewn the coast from Newfoundland to Key West with parted ship timber. I can lift and have lifted the Atlantic ocean. I am the terror of all individualism, and to fight me back forests must be cut down for fires, and the mines of continents are called on to feed the furnaces. Under my breath the nations crouch into sepulchers. Don't you wish you had my power?" said the east wind. The west wind made no answer, but started on its mission, coming somewhere out of the rosy bowers of the sky, and all the rivers and lakes and seas smiled at its coming. The gardens bloomed, and the orchards ripened, and the wheatfields turned their silver into gold, and health clapped its hands, and joy shouted from the hilltops, and the nations lifted their foreheads into the light, and the earth had a doxology for the sky, and the sky an anthem for the earth, and the warmth and sparkle and the gladness, and the foliage, and the flowers, and the fruits, and the beauty, and the life were the only answer the west wind made to the insolence of the east wind's interrogation.

And while we take this matchless kindness from God may it be found that we have uttered our last bitter word, written our last cutting paragraph, done our last retaliatory action, felt our last revengeful heart throb. And it would not be a bad epitaph for any of us if, by the grace of God, from this time forth we lived such beneficent lives that the tombstone's chisel could appropriately cut upon the plain slab that marks our grave a suggestion from the text, "He showed us no little kindness." But not until the last child of God has got ashore from the earthly storms that drove him on the rocks like Mediterranean Euroclydon, not until all the thrones of heaven are mounted, and all the conquerors crowned, and all the harps and trumpets or blown or sounded and the ransomed of all climes and ages are in full chorus under the jubilant swing of angelic baton, and we shall for thousands of years have seen the river from under the throne rolling into the "sea of glass mingled with fire," and this world we now inhabit shall be so far in the past that only a stretch of celestial memory can recall that it ever existed at all, not until then will we understand what Nehemiah calls "the great kindness," and David calls "the marvelous kindness," and Isaiah calls "the everlasting kindness" of God.

PICTURE WRITING.

PUZZLES LEFT BY THE OBLIVION RED MEN.

On Grave-Hill Memorials the Figures Are Placed Upside Down to Denote Death and Return to Earth—Work of Primitive Artists.

The study of the sign language of the red man is a fascinating one. Perhaps the simplest form of their picture writing is that on the grave-hill memorials of their chiefs. These are boards or posts, set up and inscribed with certain symbols. The depicting of figures upside down denotes death and return to earth, and figures thus inscribed are often seen in Indian epitaphs. In other cases the idea of death is indicated by a cross with two spaces filled in, making a figure somewhat of the hourglass shape. On a post set up about 100 years ago a unique inscription is to be read. A reindeer at the top is the totem mark of the deceased and his family, and is depicted upside down for the reason explained. To the left of this figure are seven transverse marks, meaning that the dead chief had led seven war parties. Three vertical marks below mean three wounds received in battle. A moose's head tells of a desperate struggle with an infuriated animal of that sort, and a hatchet and pipe indicate great influence in peace and war. Another post, simply inscribed with the figure of a bear with three horizontal lines below it, shows that the departed hunter was of the Bear clan or family, and that he had attended three war parties. An interesting example of Indian picture writing was found some time ago in the Comanche country in Texas. The inscription, which dates back to the time when Spain was still engaged in American conquest, is upon the shoulder blade of a buffalo. A mounted Indian is depicted killing with a spear a Spaniard armed with a gun, the tragedy being enacted in the presence of the disputed buffalo itself, who, in a piteous or semi-skinned condition, is contemplating the contest from a lower part of the picture. An elegant scroll line by the side of the evidently doomed Spaniard expresses the circuitous route by which the Indian followed his enemy. The length of body and shortness of legs of the horse would seem to denote that it belonged to a dachshund variety of equines, while, to the uninitiated observer the buffalo somewhat resembles a cockroach. Several examples of what appear to be the artistic efforts of a very juvenile scholar in the absence of his teacher's observation have been interpreted by an expert. One picture contains two figures remotely in the likeness of humanity. One holds, or is supposed to hold—for the members of that body capable of that operation are represented by two straight lines—something not accurately defined. The purpose of the remaining actor in the scene represented is rather clearer. He is depicted in the act of "letting off" an antique firelock aimed direct at the other. By the side of the individual with the firelock are a bundle and a tree. The whole is a trespass notice, and a very strong hint to the passerby of what he may expect from the property owner should he attempt to filch any of the latter's goods.

The composition may be divided, for the purpose of description, into two chief rows of figures and objects, while at the lower corners are depicted a bird and a turtle. The figures all resemble those juvenile efforts to represent the human form before the artistic aspirant has attained a knowledge of anatomy or perspective. A figure at the end of the second row represents the subaltern officer in charge of the guard of United States troops. This military personage is distinguished by a curly line intended to represent his sword. Next to him is the secretary of the expedition, as shown by the thing in his hand, which is said to be a book. Next is the geologist, and the weapon with which he appears to be attacking the secretary's head is his geological hammer. Two assistants and the interpreter are also graphically depicted. Just above is a row of infantry soldiers, their guns being represented in a separate row. By the side of each of the principal rows is something intended to represent a fire, to show that the soldiers had a separate fire and mess. The bird and turtle denote the results of the preceding day's chase, cooked (as indicated by another fire) and eaten. The guides, who are Indians and represented in the second row, have their robes designated by the absence of hats, which are to be seen on all the other figures denoting that they are white men. It is to be noted that the Indian artist has drawn the figures of himself and his companion at least twice as large as any of the "paefaces."

Cotton Trade Over the Border.

Last year Mexico, Central America and South America bought cotton goods from the United States valued at $3,606,000. In the same year Great Britain sold to these countries similar goods to the value $38,000,000.

Use of the Mokougy.

The Buddhist priests of both China and Japan have a musical instrument called mokougy, or wooden fish, a kind of drum. It is used by the priests when reciting their prayers, one tap being given to every syllable.

The Stockbridge Sun had the mis-going to press last week, and as a consequence was one day late.

The result of the school census at Ypsilanti shows that there are 1,824 children of school age in the district, which is an increase of 138 over last year.

Christian Eberbach, founder of the well-known firm of Eberbach & Sons, druggists, and mayor of the city of Ann Arbor in 1888; is dead, aged 84 years. He has been a resident of that city for 50 years.

Frederick Dill of Milan, has sued the Wabash Railroad Co. for $20,000 damages for injuries incurred in the company's service in the coal sheds at Milan. The plaintiff charges that the sheds were not properly built, causing him to fall 25 feet and disabling him for life.

An interesting wedding occurred at Ypsilanti, Thursday night, when John
Read, 71 years of age, and Miss Amella
Read, 71 years old, were united in marriage by Rev. Wm. Gardam. The pair are distant relatives, and the bride has acted as the groom's housekeeper for many years.

The story is going the rounds that a certain Ypsilanti young man recently made a remark to one of the gentler sex that she did not like, and that she thereupon procured a horsewhip and proceeded to administer to the gentleman such a thrashing as it had never before been his lot to experience.

H. C. Prettyman, of the "Campus club," the biggest of all the University of Michigan eating houses, has refused to go into the "hash-house trust."
This decision will probably lead to the collapse of the whole scheme, for with Prettyman on the outside ready to serve all comers there would be little show for the other boarding houses.

One of our wealthy and prominent citizens bought a pair of shoes at Batter's auction for 25 cents and offered his wife $5 if she would wear them to an afternoon party and tell the ladies she was wearing a pair of 25-cent shoes.
The good woman was after that five,
and though one was a four and the other four and a half, she took his bluff and also the five—Manchester Enterprise.

Wm. Kennedy, a former resident of Northfield township, was killed in a street car accident at Chicago last week.
Twenty years ago Kennedy and his wife separated. Mrs. Kennedy soon afterward moved to South Lyon. The couple had held no communication
since their separation, and Kennedy evidently thought his wife was still living near Ann Arbor. His last words were to notify his wife of his death.

John Mapes found the largest puff ball that the oldest inhabitant ever saw, and brought it to town Tuesday and placed it on exhibition in one of Jay Bachus' windows. This mammoth fungus weighs 23 pounds and is five feet in circumference equilaterally, and four feet six inches the other way around it. It is of whitish color, and very much resembles a large pie pumpkin. The name given by Webster for this kind of fungus is lycoperdon giganteum.—Stockbridge Sun.

Last Thursday morning a bad railroad wreck of two freight trains was narrowly averted by the opening of the switch just west of the depot at Howell on the Pere Marquette railroad, by a level headed brakeman, sending the east bound train down on the side track on the south side of the main track, upon which stood the west bound freight. The trainmen, except the engineer on east bound train leaped for life but he held to the throttle until he stopped his train. It was one of the lucky scratches in railroading, where the prompt action of a steady nerve with a quick hand at the switch, that saved two trains from destruction.
—Livingston Herald.

Some of the scientific journals and gas experts have said that acetylene lighting for streets could and would never succeed because the gas could not be forced through the necessary long run of pipe to cover villages or cities. It is possibly true of the common wet form of acetylene, but with the new high pressure process which has been tested here sufficiently to prove that it can be done, is reason enough to satisfy the statements. Mr.
Shute had faith in its working and there is now laid in our streets upwards of eleven thousand feet of pipe and the lights are very clear and pleasant, no flicker or waver, neither are they disturbed by the wind.—Saline Observer.
