BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Meet in Annual Session—Not Much Business of Importance So Far.

The October session of the board of supervisors opened Monday. Jay G. Pray, of Northfield, was elected chairman pro tem. Chairman Beach announced his committees, the supervisors from Sylvan, Lyndon, Sharon and Dexter having places on the following: Wm. Bacon, Sylvan, chairman criminal claims No. 2, public buildings; Geo. Runciman, Lyndon, equalization, rejected taxes; Wm. F. Hall, Sharon, per diem and mileage; Michael McGuire, Dexter, chairman criminal claims No. 1. This concluded Monday's session.

Tuesday the special order of business was adopted and other minor business transacted. In the afternoon the board attended the laying of the corner stone of the new science hall.

At yesterday's session Marvin Davenport was re-elected janitor of the court house, and Dorsey Hoppe, of Chelsea, school examiner. Today the supervisors will pay their annual visit to the county house and partake of the generous fare provided at all times for the county's poor.

U. of M.'s New Science Hall.

The corner stone of the new science hall of the U. of M., at Ann Arbor, was laid Tuesday with fitting ceremonies. In addition to the medical department there were present the board of regents, numerous famous medical men of the United States and Canada, together with a large portion of the students in other departments of the university.

Dr. Leartus Connor, of Detroit, laid the corner stone and delivered a historical paper concerning the medical department. Addresses were also made by Dr. John A. McCorkle, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Dr. George Adams, of McGill College, Montreal, President Angell, Regent Kiefer and others. In his address Dr. Adams said: "Ann Arbor is foremost in research work of American schools, and it is equal to the schools of England and Germany. The work of the faculty members, Cushney, Dock, Huber, Novy, Nanerode, Vaughan and Warthin has made Michigan famous, and it will not be long before the medical centers of the world cross the Atlantic and locate in your midst."

The building will be one of the finest structures of the kind in America, and will have the most modern and perfect laboratory appliances in the world.

Epworth League District Officers.

The officers of the Ann Arbor District Epworth League elected at the convention held here last week are as follows:

President—S. Milo Dole, Adrian.

1st Vice President—C. E. Wakefield, Morenci.

2d Vice President—Mr. Coulson, Munith.

3d Vice President—Rev. H. A. Field, Milan.

4th Vice President—Jessie Longley, Monroe.

Treasurer—Mrs. W. H. Maddox, Tecumseh.

Recording Secretary—Saxe C. Stimson, Chelsea.

Junior League Superintendent—Alice Morgan, Stockbridge.

The convention next year will be held at Blissfield.

A Queer Hiding Place.

Among the articles stolen from W. P. Schenk's house by James Henderson and Harvey Johnson July 10 last was a gold watch, and the officers searched everywhere for it without success. Before the men were sentenced Henderson informed Chief of Police Boyle, of Jackson, that the watch could be found between the iron wall of the cell and the brick wall of the building in the police station at Jackson. Friday morning the chief found the missing watch where the prisoner had indicated. It appears that when Henderson was arrested he had the watch sewed to his clothing in the middle of his back and when the officers searched him it was overlooked.

Electric Railway Notes.

The village of Northville assessed the electric roads at the rate of $5,000 a mile.

S. F. Angus predicts that cars will be running between Detroit and Jackson over the D., Y., A. A. & J. road by Nov. 15.

The Dexter common council has extended W. A. Boldt's electric railway franchise in that village for six months. It would have expired Oct. 12.

C. J. Snyder, who has the job of grading the Boland electric line from Ann Arbor to Dexter is under contract to have it finished in 60 days from the time he began.

The total amount of the bonded indebtedness of the D., Y., A. A. & J. electric railway is $2,600,000. Of this amount $900,000 is set aside to pay up former bond issues.

Everett & Moore will not get the D., Y., A. A. & J. electric line into their syndicate. The price at which the road is held is too stiff for them, and it would have to be paid in good hard cash.

The Ypsilanti city council has given the D., Y., A. A. & J. Co. 30 days in which to move its freight depot off one of its main streets, claiming that the street is unduly blocked up thereby.

Jacob Haas on Friday commenced a $5,000 damage suit against the D., Y., A. A. & J. railway. He claims that the unloading of freight on Ann street, Ann Arbor, has so obstructed the walk that it has worked an injury to his business.

The Jackson & Albion Electric Railroad Co., organized with a capital of $350,000, to build an electric road from Jackson to Albion, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state Friday. The company is one of the Boland enterprises.

The D., Y., A. A. & J. railway is losing no time in getting its rails down on Huron street between Main and Ashley streets in Ann Arbor. The main switch is in place and preparations are being hurried for the "Y" which will run into the freight depot. The walls for the passenger station are going up about as fast as the masons can get bricks on top of each other.

A deadlock has developed in the common council over the granting of a franchise for the Boland electric railway through Albion. The mayor vetoed a franchise that was agreed upon a week since, and when the matter came up again Monday night, the veto was sustained, although the vote was a tie, and was broken by the mayor's own casting vote. As an ordinance for a franchise requires a two-thirds vote, the aldermen were unable to agree upon anything and the whole matter went over for another week.

Stockbridge Sun: The electric road proposition which has lain dormant all summer, is not dead yet by any means. In fact, from a conversation with Mr. Dancer it would appear like a very robust infant. The local pushers of the scheme have been having considerable correspondence with outsiders of late, and there is little doubt the matter will be revived this winter and perhaps consummated satisfactorily to the people of Stockbridge and its suburban population. Mr. Frank Glazier will probably take hold and carry out his father's plans as soon as he can get shaped for it.

Washtenaw Times: The negotiations for the purchase of the Boland electric railroad interests by Messrs. Hawks and Angus are off. About two weeks ago an offer was received by the Detroiters from the bondholders of the Boland roads, or from some of the bondholders in which they expressed their willingness to transfer their interests. Since then the negotiations have been carried on in a desultory way. Saturday evening Mr. Angus said that Mr. Hawks and himself had decided to have nothing further to do with the Boland interests. "It is all off, so far as we are concerned," he said. "We have everything we want in Jackson and if we had purchased the Boland roads there is only a line or two we could have used. We would have had to tear up the rest of them."

Air-Tight Farm Tank Heaters.

It will pay every farmer to get one of the Maud S. Tank Heaters, to keep the water in their stock tanks warm in winter, and save the tanks from the strain received by hard freezing. Corn cobs, wood or soft coal can be used for fuel, and when the heater is closed up tight the fire will hold for hours. Call and see them at Geo. H. Foster & Co.'s, Chelsea.

FOOTBALL GAMES ARE ON

The Sport Is the Main Subject of Conversation Among College Students.

MICHIGAN WILL HAVE A GOOD TEAM.

President Adams, of the University of Wisconsin, is an Alumnus of the University of Michigan—Women's Club Meeting—Inter-Collegiate Debating Schedule.

[Special Correspondence.] University of Michigan, Oct. 14.—This is the time of year when the main subject of conversation among college students is football. The games are on and who can beat who, and by how large scores, and paramount questions. From the facts at hand at the present time it appears that Michigan is going to have a good team. Just how good, subsequent events will prove; and if it is defeated it will not be because of the lack of ability on the part of the Michigan team, but because some other university has a better team.

Games Played.
The two games already played, one with Albion and the other with the Case scientific school, of Cleveland, were both Michigan victories by a large number of points. Albion went down by a score of 50 to 0 and Case by a score of 57 to 0.

The big games of the season and the ones which Michigan is very anxious to win are with the eleven representing Northwestern university, Carleton Indian school, Chicago university and Iowa university.

Practice Daily.

The football practice which is being carried on daily with all the men who are desirous of winning a place on the Michigan eleven is receiving a great deal of attention from the student body. Large numbers of men and women go to the athletic field each afternoon to cheer on the players. Two teams are made up from the candidates for the 'varsity' eleven and these are sent against each other. One team is composed of the very best men, and for convenience is known as the 'varsity'; the other team comprises the next best lot of players and is called the reserve team or the scrubs. Of course the 'varsity' wins in all these contests, but they have to work to do it and it is just these efforts that gives them the strength and experience with which to contest with the teams from the other universities.

Large Contributions.

Nearly $2,000 has been voluntarily contributed by the people of Ann Arbor, the university professors and the students. The subscriptions are in amounts from two to one hundred dollars, the latter amount being given by each of five different fraternities.

A Michigan Man.

President Adams, of the University of Wisconsin, who has resigned, is an alumnus of the U. of M. He was graduated from the literary department as a bachelor of arts in 1865, and the following year took his master's degree. Since then the Universities of Michigan, Chicago and Harvard have conferred upon him the degree of doctor of laws. He was made instructor of history at Michigan the year following his graduation as a master of arts and continued as an instructor in this branch and Latin until 1865, when he was made assistant professor. In 1867 he was given the chair of history in the institution, and filled it until 1885, when he resigned to accept the presidency of Cornell university. He served but a short time there when he was called to Madison, Wis.

Women's Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in this city October 29, 30 and 31. As many of the wives of the professors and many of the college girls belong to the different clubs that are members of the federation the meeting will be of importance in college circles. About 300 delegates from outside the city are expected.

Debating Schedule.

The schedule for the intercollegiate debates has been arranged. Three big debates will be held. The first will be with the representatives of Northwestern university, the second in Chicago with the winner of the debate between the Universities of Chicago and Minnesota. The third debate will be in Philadelphia with students selected from the University of Pennsylvania.

Wild Man in the Woods.

Two Crystal Falls hunters reported meeting a wild man in the woods near the headwaters of the Derr river, about 14 miles from Crystal Falls. They got within 30 feet of him when he started at them and bounded off into the woods. He carried a piece of a gun barrel and tent pole and from utterances of "public, public," it is thought he is from Republic.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Evidence of Crime.

Further investigation made in the case of the Royal Oak woman who was found buried in the woods a few days ago results in the conclusion that the woman is Mrs. Christopher Huss, who disappeared from Royal Oak in September, 1900. Mrs. Huss had lived in Royal Oak for a few weeks, when she suddenly disappeared. It is said that Mrs. Huss and Henry Wiseman, now serving a five years' term in Jackson prison for stealing a cow, were seen going into the woods where the body was found on the day the woman disappeared.

Executive Clemency.

A parole has been issued by direction of Gov. Bliss to Catherine Tucker, who was sent from Grand Rapids, in August, 1900, to the Detroit house of correction for 30 months for larceny from a store in the daytime. The governor has also paroled Jay M. Lawrence, sentenced from Lewanee county in November, 1899, to Ionia for 3½ years for false pretenses. The sentence of Charles J. Thompson, who was paroled early in September, was commuted so that he will be at liberty to go out of the state.

Miners Killed.

A fall of rock in No. 2 shaft of the Quincy mine in Hancock killed three men—Alfred Gale, 44 years old, married, wife and five children; Alfred C. Gale, his son, 18; Fred Farana, 23, single and a trapper. The men were buried under tons of rock. Their bodies were recovered after three hours' work. This is the worst accident in the history of the mine. The fall of rock was caused by an air blast and the fatalities occurred 4,500 feet underground.

In Want.

Gov. Bliss has been advised by the police matron of Toledo, O., that the widow of Stevens T. Mason, first governor of the state of Michigan, is being cared for in the infirmary hospital in that city. Mrs. Mason, who is 80 years old, is said to be infirm physically and mentally and in destitute circumstances. She was the second wife of Gov. Mason. Gov. Bliss will take steps to provide her with a home in this state.

Under Arrest.

William K. Lacey, late president of the First national bank, Niles, was arraigned in the United States court in Grand Rapids under a jury indictment for aiding and abetting the making of false returns and falsifying bank books. Lacey refused to plead when arraigned and a plea of not guilty was entered for him. Bail was placed at $10,000.

Law Is Valid.

The supreme court has sustained the constitutionality of the Detroit term-extension law passed by the last legislature. The election, which otherwise would have taken place next month, is thus postponed for one year, and the present city officers whose successors would have been chosen in November will hold their places for a year longer.

Given the Limit.

Charles A. Johnson, who as cashier of the First national bank of Niles, embezzled more than $100,000, was given the limit of the law—ten years in the penitentiary. When his case was called in Grand Rapids he entered a plea of guilty and the United States district judge passed sentence. Johnson took his sentence calmly.

Children Cremated.

The dwelling of G. Peters at Santiago, Arenac county, was burned at night and three of his children perished in the flames. They were burned to a crisp. In trying to save them Peters was so badly burned that he will die. Mrs. Peters was also seriously burned.

Fatal Accident.

A heavy framework of girders supporting the roof of one of the buildings at the Michigan Chemical company's new plant, in process of erection in Bay City, fell, and Frank C. Bence was killed and Frank Campau, David Mitchell and John Reed were injured.

Record Broken.

Six thousand people at the Grosse Pointe track in Detroit saw Alexander Winton, of Cleveland, drive his heavy racing automobile a mile in 1:12 2-5, lowering the world's track record for an automobile for this distance 13-5 seconds.

News Briefly Stated.

The business men will hold an autumn festival in Allegan October 30 and 31.

The state board of health has decided to hold an examination for the embalmers of the upper peninsula November 8.

The Union City saloons are now required to close at nine p. m. by recent action of the council.

The public schools in Algonac have been closed until October 28 on account of an epidemic of measles.

The apple crop in Delta county is a complete failure, frosts early in June having killed most of the blossoms.

A Demand for Imported Hats

To Meet This Some Beautiful Parisian Models Are Shown.

FALL, that is the late fall, and winter hats are just now the topic of conversation between women who pride themselves upon being well dressed. It is one of the whims of the fashionable that they wear Parisian models in hats. They are content to display their patriotism by wearing home-designed gowns, made oftentimes of home-manufactured materials when it is possible to secure the better qualities, and it is becoming easier to do this with each year, but in hats they cling to Paris with a fondness that is at times disgusting to our own milliners, who believe their taste to be equal to that of the designers of feminine headgear across the water.

But the woman with the means to pay the price asked can get what she wants, whether it is of home production or not, and so it is that among the really fashionable hats displayed in the New York stores at the present time the majority are Parisian models from such famous designers as Suzanne Blum, M. Paucanne, M. Torre, Marchand, M. Heitz Boyer, Lin Faulkner, M. Carlier, L. Colomb and many others. In fact, every prominent milliner of Paris is represented in the hat display now being made in New York, and the wholesalers assure me that this demand for Parisian models extends throughout the country.

A prominent Chicago house that is represented by buyers in New York

A dainty hat of an almost opposite type is of gray velvet and silk, in folds, the velvet forming the crown and the brim. The underbrim is draped in nickel velvet. A gray and white gull is a feature of the decorations.

A hat shown by this house, and designed by M. Paucanne, of Paris, is sure to prove a favorite for those who like a large hat. It is designed in shades of brown. The top is formed of a draped plaque, the under part of deep brown velvet. It is trimmed with pheasants' breasts shading to green, and these are held in place near the front with round steel ornaments. Narrow brown velvet ribbon is on the crown in loops, and on the brim near the side.

Another sensible model has a top formed of a camel's hair plaque in gray, the under brim draped with very dark gray velvet. The draperies are held in place by a three-cornered buckle of gun metal. An ostrich plume in two-toned gray, held by the same style buckle, starting from the back, completes the trimming.

One of the Amazon shapes, for which is promised a high degree of popularity, is in dark green velvet. A long buckle effect of velvet edged with spangles extends across the top of the hat from side to side. The under brim is faced with chenille and spangles. The hat is set on a bandeau of crushed velvet in green. The brim is cut down on each side, and black and white wings completes the trimming.

Another of the large hats shown is a flat affair in pale violet velvet, gracefully draped over brim and crown, the folds held at the side of the crown by a long steel buckle. There is a side flare faced with changeable ribbon in violet and gold. There is a plume of a magpie's breast and owl feathers in shades of ecru.

Broad-brimmed hats will be worn to some extent. That is, they are has an elaborate display of beautiful models that are being sold in Chicago, and one needs to congratulate the women of that and surrounding cities upon the opportunity that is thus offered them to secure the latest and choicest designs.

A number of descriptions and some pictures will give a better idea of the variety of prevailing styles in hats than I can give in any other way, and I will offer some of those shown by the representatives of the Chicago house of which I spoke. There is one charming one in golden brown, of crinkled taffeta and panne velvet, in bands about two inches wide, braided together. It has a side band of black velvet, and a fan-shaped drapery of plush ribbon in brown and green also on the side. A round gold buckle holds the wing and pheasant tails that droop over the crown.

Another of these hats is in beige taffeta silk with narrow folds of velvet in the same shade, giving the curved effect of folds on the top. Green nicobar breasts form a band around the brim of the hat. Turquoise velvet is draped over the brim and forms a big bow under the side, held by a gold and steel buckle.

One that is particularly charming and suitable for many faces is a large hat in brown—a favored color. The high crown effect is of chiffon overlaid with chenille in brown and greenish shades. The brim is draped in brown velvet. Green and white velvet flowers droop under the brim in the back. A large green nicobar ornaments the top.

deemed in good form by those who like them, and are especially suited to the needs of the athletic girl. One of these is of yellow felt. It has small rosettes of soft-weave ribbon in changeable colors—yellow, orange and red—set around the crown. The hat is set on a black velvet bandeau, with a twist of orange silk around the front and a curving plume in twisted palm effect to match the hat and ribbon.

One of the extreme novelties is a pale fawn-brown velvet, shirred on the crown and beneath the brim, the shirring forming a ruffle, which is the brim. Two guinea quills are set across the crown, held by a rhinestone ornament. The bandeau is of blue and tan ribbon crushed together, and clusters of blue, tan and white ribbon bows under the side flare.

The cities are greedy for the business that may come to them from the passengers brought within their limits by the inter-urban electric lines. The merchants in these cities are pleased with the cheap and rapid transportation of their freight by the electric lines. But, a great deal of kicking is indulged in by some people on the ground that the companies block up the streets while unloading this freight. In Ypsilanti the common council has given the electric railway company 30 days in which to find a place other than Washington street to unload their freight, and yet the company's waiting room and freight depot made that part of the street what it is in a business way. In Ann Arbor a livery stable man has sued the company for $5,000, claiming his business has been damaged to that extent by the unloading of freight near his stable. This is a queer world and there are queer people in it. If the electric roads were to quit doing business there would be no greater howlers than these same parties, but they want all the benefits from the roads to come their way and to suffer none of the inconveniences.

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

SCHLEY UNDER FIRE.

Progress of the Now Famous Naval Inquiry.

A Synopsis of the Evidence Brought Out by Government Witnesses—Sampson's Attorney Not Allowed to Participate.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Rear Admiral Sampson has again been declared not an "interested" party by the Schley court of inquiry. A communication from William H. Stayton, chief counsel for the admiral, was so answered by the official inquirers Thursday. Mr. Stayton's letter contained the formal request that permission be granted him to appear before the court and defend Admiral Sampson from attacks of other counsel which might be deemed improper.

MAY LAST A MONTH.

Inquiry Not Likely to Be Completed Till Middle of November.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Capt. Lemly had supposed that he would be able to conclude the presentation of the government's side of the Schley case by the close of this week, but he now finds that he will still have several witnesses on his list when the court adjourns to-day. In all probability he will consume the greater part of the first half of next week. Mr. Rayner estimates that the court will not be able to conclude its work before the middle of November.

Lieut. Adelbert Althouse, formerly watch and division officer on the battleship Massachusetts, was called.

Lieut. Althouse said that on the day of the bombardment of the Cristobal Colon he had been in charge of the eight-inch turret of the Massachusetts. He said that the ship had not been in excess three minutes in passing the entrance to the harbor on the first passage and that only two shots were then fired. The instructions were to make the range 7,000 yards, but the shots fell short and the range was increased on the return trip to 8,500 and then to 10,000 yards. Asked what was developed as to the strength of the land batteries by this reconnaissance he said that to his mind it was shown they were very weak. In reply to a question as to whether he had made any notes concerning the engagement he replied: "No; we went in under instructions to sink the Colon." His orders had been to direct his fire at that vessel.

Dewey's Nephew on Stand.

Lieut. P. G. Dewey, nephew of Admiral Dewey, who was a watch officer on the Massachusetts, was the next witness. He placed the distance of the blockading line under Commodore Schley from the mouth of Santiago harbor at from five to eight miles, the distance being about the same day and night. There was, he said, no particular formation of the vessels.

In reply to a question by the court as to whether he was ordered to direct his fire on the Colon or on the batteries on May 31 Lieut. Dewey said that his orders were to direct his fire at the Colon directly, but he could not say whether Commodore Schley or Capt. Higginson had given the order.

Lieut. Francis Boughter, who was a watch and division officer on board the Marblehead during Commodore Schley's blockade of Santiago, was then called. He said that during that time the Marblehead and the Vixen were on picket duty between the shore line and the line of the blockade, the Marblehead being stationed three miles from the shore and the Vixen, six miles from the shore and to the westward, six miles from the shore. He would not attempt to say how far outside the squadron was, but he could not see the ships after nightfall.

The court asked: "Was the Marblehead in such position at night while on picket duty off Santiago that the enemy's vessels would have been seen had they attempted to leave the harbor?"

The witness replied: "That would depend on a great many circumstances, the state of the weather, the course they took, and their success in keeping their ships dark and quiet."

Admiral Dewey—The Marblehead was on picket duty. Could she have seen the enemy coming?

"If the enemy kept too close to shore and we were three miles off during most of the time, we could not have seen them; if the enemy had stood south from the entrance which would have placed them about four miles off we could not have seen them, provided they kept reasonably dark and quiet."

When the afternoon session of the court began Mr. Rayner continued his cross-examination of Lieut. Boughter. The lieutenant said that his opinion of the distance his ship was out from the Morro or from land at Santiago was based on an estimate and not on measurements.

Capt. Chadwick on Stand.

Capt. F. E. Chadwick, who commanded the New York, and was Admiral Sampson's chief of staff, was called as a witness. He testified concerning the code of signals arranged by Capt. McCalla with the Cuban insurgents at Cienfuegos, of which he said Capt. McCalla had informed him upon his arrival at Key West on May 19, 1898. He said he could not recall to whom he had communicated the code; that he had not informed Commodore Schley because Capt. McCalla was to return immediately to Cienfuegos where Admiral Schley was stationed.

Capt. Chadwick recalled a conversation he had heard between Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley at Key West in which Commodore Schley had told the admiral that he was glad to be under his command and assured him that he would be entirely loyal to him.

Capt. Chadwick also said he had heard Commodore Schley tell Admiral Sampson after the latter's arrival at Santiago that it was impossible to blockade the Spaniards at Santiago if they desired to come out.

Capt. Chadwick said that he had objected to the telegram of congratulation which Admiral Sampson had sent to Commodore Schley on May 28, considering it uncalled for by the circumstances.

At four p. m., with Capt. Chadwick still on the stand, the Schley court adjourned.

FAVORABLE TO SCHLEY.

Evidence Tending to Show Important Information Withheld from Him.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Just before the Schley court of inquiry adjourned Saturday Judge Advocate Lemly made remarks about the conduct of Mr. Rayner, Admiral Schley's chief counsel, which the latter resented. Mr. Rayner had attempted to introduce a statement prepared in regard to the speed of the vessels of the flying squadron and Capt. Lemly objected, saying that some of the statements of Mr. Rayner were inaccurate. To this Mr. Rayner responded: "If counsel makes that statement outside of court it is false."

Before the court adjourned an explanation was made on both sides which Admiral Dewey said was satisfactory.

When Capt. Chadwick took the stand Mr. Rayner formally addressed the court, requesting permission to ask the witness two questions, which he outlined. He called attention to his question put to Capt. Chadwick Friday concerning a telegram of congratulation which Admiral Sampson had sent to Commodore Schley on May 28. He had asked the witness if he remembered that message, and the witness had replied that he did remember it very well, and adding: "Because I protested against his congratulations." Mr. Rayner said that this last expression was purely voluntary on Capt. Chadwick's part and was not necessary in response to the inquiry. The questions which he stated to the court were as follows:

"First.—When did you first learn of the existence of dispatch Number 8?"

"Second.—Did you then, in protesting against the sending of this congratulatory dispatch, refer to his blockade of Cienfuegos in dispatch Number 8?"

Admiral Dewey stated the court had no objection to the questions and Capt. Lemly said he would not object, provided he could cross-examine on the points raised. But before the point was decided Mr. Rayner asked his first question, as previously given to the court. After reading the dispatch in question the witness said:

"I was informed of its purport at the time it was sent to the Marblehead."

"Did you see it when it was sent to the Marblehead?"

"I did not read it."

"When did you first read it?"

"I did not read the original dispatch until the answer was received from Commodore Schley, brought by the Hawk."

"Was not that on May 26, when your ship was at a point between Havana and Cape Francis, in the vicinity of Cape Pedras?"

"Yes."

"Did you have the blockade of Cienfuegos in mind when you protested against the sending of the congratulatory dispatch?"

"May I ask if you mean I had that only in mind?"

"I do not mean that. I mean whether you had it in mind at all."

"I can say I had it partially."

Stanton on the Stand.

Capt. Chadwick was then excused and Lieutenant Commander Sidney A. Stanton was called. Before the witness took his seat Judge Advocate Lemly asked and received permission to put in as evidence Admiral Sampson's official report made at Guantanamo Bay, August 3, 1898.

Lieutenant Commander Stanton related the particulars of his securing information of the presence of Cervera's fleet at Santiago, at Key West on the 20th, while the fleet under Admiral Sampson was there.

He then stated that on the next morning, May 21, the fleet proceeded to the blockade of Havana, Admiral Sampson being satisfied that the information concerning the presence of the fleet at Santiago was correct. The admiral accordingly had called up the Hawk and forwarded his dispatches to Commodore Schley.

Capt. Lemly: "Tell the court fully from what source the information was received concerning the arrival of Cervera's fleet in Santiago. I would like you to identify the dispatch put into cipher at that time, to which you refer."

"The dispatch I referred to as having been drawn up by Capt. Chadwick in my presence is the dispatch known as the memorandum that accompanied dispatch Number 8."

"Can you give me any subsequent dispatches or memoranda that passed between Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley in reference to the Spanish squadron being at Santiago?"

"I do not think I can refer you to any. After Admiral Sampson heard that the fleet of Commodore Schley had not left Cienfuegos, in other words, after he got a reply from the commander of the flying squadron, he sent the Wasp, I think about May 26, to Cienfuegos with an additional dispatch, but she, of course, did not arrive there until Commodore Schley had left for Santiago, and I do not remember what those dispatches were."

Sampson's Dispatch.

After further effort on Mr. Rayner's part to elicit information as to correspondence between the two commanders and objection on the part of Mr. Hanna to bringing in dispatches which had no immediate bearing upon Commodore Schley's conduct, Mr. Rayner said there was no communication between them between May 21 and May 27. He then quoted the dispatch of May 27 as the first positive knowledge conveyed to Commodore Schley of the presence of the fleet at Santiago. This dispatch was as follows:

"United States Flagship New York, St. Nicholas Channel, May 27, 1898.—Sir: Every report, and particularly daily confidential reports received at Key West from Havana, state Spanish squadron has been in Santiago de Cuba from the 19th to the 25th instant inclusive, the 25th being the date of the last report received. You will please proceed with all possible dispatch to Santiago to blockade that port. If on arrival there you receive positive information of the Spanish ships having left, you will follow them in pursuit. Very respectfully, W. T. Sampson."

When It Reached Schley.

Mr. Hanna: "What is the first positive order?"

Mr. Rayner: "May 27."

Mr. Hanna: "Did he receive it on the 27th?"

Mr. Rayner: "He never received it on the 27th (after being prompted by Admiral Schley). He got it on June 10."

Mr. Hanna: "How is it possible then he can be affected by an order after all that lapse of time?"

Mr. Rayner: "That is just what we want to prove, that he had no orders except those contained in dispatches Numbers 7 and 8."

At one o'clock the court adjourned until Monday.

No More American Cardinals.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 14.—The Sun prints the following: "The Sun has been for some time in possession of information gained from one in close touch with the Vatican that no new cardinals will be created at the coming consistory; but if any names are presented no prelate in the United States will be honored. This information is in harmony with what has said to be the intention of Pope Leo that no other American cardinal will be created as long as Cardinal Gibbons lives."

CROP REPORT.

Estimated Wheat Yield Is 10,000,000 Bushels—Average for Potatoes Is a Fair One.

A chapter on wheat is given in the October crop report issued by the secretary of state. The report says:

The total number of acres of wheat on the ground last April, as reported by the supervisors, was 1,173,784. Of this whole amount 908,329 acres were in the southern counties, 265,579 in the central counties, and 61,876 in the northern counties. According to the reports received from the crop correspondents, 83 per cent. of the number of acres of wheat on the ground was harvested. It is estimated that the total yield for 1901 is 10,000,000 bushels.

The estimated yield of potatoes is, in the southern counties, 61; in the central counties, 73; in the northern counties, 113, and in the state, 70.

The estimated yield of beans per acre in bushels is, in the southern counties, 11; in the central counties, 14; in the northern counties, 16, and in the state, 12.

The total acreage of buckwheat is 16,929. The average yield per acre in bushels is 14 in the southern counties, 15 in the central counties, 18 in the northern counties, and 15 in the state.

The Eastern Star.

At a session in Grand Rapids of the grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star reports showed that the total membership in Michigan is 24,000; deaths during the year were 210; receipts, $7,000; contributions to Masonic home were $950. The following officers were elected:

Worthy grand matron, Mrs. Hattie C. Derthick, Ionia; worthy grand patron, William E. Brown, Lapeer; associate grand matron, Mrs. Mary R. Tubbs, Chesaning; associate grand patron, L. C. Goodrich, Ann Arbor; grand secretary, Mrs. A. A. Matteson, Middleville; grand treasurer, Mrs. S. K. Winans, Lansing.

Fear an Epidemic.

It is likely that the upper peninsula will experience another epidemic of smallpox this winter. During the warm months the disease was held in control, but it is now again breaking out and fears are entertained it will spread to even greater extent than last year. The number of cases reported is steadily increasing as the lumbering operations get under way, the camps being a prolific source for the spread of the disease. Wholesale vaccination is being urged at some places.

Farmers in Luck.

Farmers of Kalkaska county are on "easy" street this fall. In addition to a corn crop which will yield 100 bushels to the acre, they expect that $250,000 will be distributed throughout the county in the purchase of potatoes, of which there is an abundant crop.

An Interesting Family of Old Ladies

HOSE who imagine that there is no place in a modern great, busy city for the old-fashioned quilting bees of our grandmothers' time would be very much surprised should they visit the home of a certain big happy family in Chicago. The members of this family are some 75 in number and probably more than a third of them are over 80 years of age. Their fingers are still supple enough so that the quilting bee is their main delight; and it is also a source of century hence it will be quite impossible to duplicate them.

This little lady has a secret which is between ourselves and, it is to be hoped, will not be divulged until the proper moment. However, one may hint, I suppose, that "something" is being made for "somebody" who is soon to leave the home never to return and go "way out to California."

Perchance, way up on the third floor, a round, beaming little body who contrives to get about, with the aid of crutches, will meet you in the hall and invite you to her room, which is a front corner one, with two large east windows in it. Here, instead of the regulation white iron bed and hair mattress, you see an old-fashioned, peaked, wooden bed with a mountain of feathers to lie on. As for the regulation bed, she couldn't be comfortable on "them hard things," and the matron has humored her to the extent of securing for her a generously full feather tick.

But the great scandal of this home is not yet told. You will hardly believe, dear reader, that any of these old ladies would be "up to pranks" but I must confess that such is the case. We who have young blood and freedom are fond of the illusion, are we not, that old people enjoy life better when they are held under strict surveillance? That no notion could be further from the truth than this, the following incident will show.

I have noticed a roguish look in the eyes of the heroine of this incident, although she will never again see three-score years. (I trust if this story should ever reach the eye of the matron of the old ladies' home, she will not think too much of it, for my old lady with the roguish look told me the story herself and I should sorely regret to have her disciplined through any "tattling" of mine.)

It was at a time when Rip Van Winkle was one of the chief attractions on some profit, for the old ladies are often able to sell the quilts to visitors. On five days out of almost any week a quilting bee is in progress in one of the three parlors of this home.

Sometimes, when I am out for a walk, I drop in at the Old People's Home, as it is called, and there I am always sure of a cordial welcome. So is everyone, no matter whether one's mission be that of helping to renew from one's own storehouse the old ladies' stock of silk patches, books, newspapers or magazines; of making purchases from among the array of crazy quilts, hand-knitted mittens and other products of the never idle needles plied by trembling old hands; or one's purpose be simply that of brightening a lonely hour for the little old ladies and for one's self by reading, singing or engaging in light, rambling conversation.

Of course "they're women," and sometimes a forgetful member will mislay her comb; many are the speculations as to its whereabouts; a search is made—under the bed, the dresser, through all the boxes—and finally the verdict: "I guess it's stole."

The dear old ladies! Each of the three-score has a bright, cheerful room, furnished and cared for by herself and mutely expressing her individual taste and ideas of home. The rooms are uniform in size and on the door of each is its number and the name of its occupant. At the rap of the visitor there is always the cheerful response: "Come in."

One little white-haired, lace-capped lady with glowing brown eyes lifts herself from her bed—from which she seldom arises for any length of time—extends her hand in welcome and bids you be seated with a cordiality which warms your heart and suggests those days in childhood when people lived in sight of fields of waving grain and were always glad to see you.

When you have finished your visit you promise, perhaps, to return some time and read to her, and then you step across the hall and rap, wondering who will open for you. Another little lady, rather stooped, with a little gray fringed shoulder shawl crossed upon her bosom, says of course she'd like to talk to you and insists upon your taking the easy chair.

Apropos of patchwork (which is incidentally mentioned), out from their hiding place under the bed come two long boxes which, when opened, disclose two many-hued, beautifully made crazy quilts. The one made in octagons is very superior in workmanship and design and might well be termed the "Prize Quilt." The other goes by the name of "Star Quilt." A the boards. My roguish old lady had not seen the play since the days when life for her was far more lively, I suspect, than at present.

MUTTERING: "MY I WANT IT GRAND"

The more she thought it over the more she wanted to go. She knew that it was against the rules to go out of an evening, and sinful even to think of such a thing as stealing away without leave. But the impulse grew upon her continually as she sat swaying back and forth in her chair by the window. More than once she counted the pieces of money that had come to her at odd times and which represented the labor of months with her needles. The amount was large enough to buy one of the cheaper seats. As she realized this she became more and more excited. She could think of no one whom she could take into her confidence, for fear that the chance might slip away from her forever—she did want to see Rip Van Winkle once more! Finally she concluded to confide in Martha, the girl in the kitchen—and Martha—Martha fell in with the project! From that time forth only scheming and planning and whispered consultations and significant looks! My little old lady got into the habit of taking her knitting into the kitchen so that she could plan with Martha.

At last a night was agreed upon. At the appointed moment my conspirator crept softly down to the kitchen. True to her promise, there was Martha arrayed in all her "evening out" finery. The two slipped cautiously out the back door and no one was the wiser! My little lady sat entranced, watching Joe Jefferson in that role which no one can play so well as he, the veteran actor of it. Then, when the play was over, she allowed Martha to lead her silently back to her home. She felt guilty—but supremely satisfied. At the kitchen door she carefully took off her shoes and, with these in hand, stole softly away to bed, muttering to herself: "My, wan't it grand!—but I hope the matron don't go an' find me out."

ORDERED THE LOOP.

Capt. Cook Declares He Was Responsible for the Movement.

Witness, Who Was in Command of the Brooklyn, Says Schley's Bearing Was That of a Brave Officer.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Just before the Schley court of inquiry took a recess for lunch Monday Mr. Hanna asked Capt. Cook, who was on the stand: "What was the conduct and bearing of Commodore Schley under fire on such occasion as you had the opportunity of observing?"

"I always regarded him as an enthusiastically brave and patriotic officer; never in any other way," replied the witness.

Capt. Cook on the Stand.
The early proceedings of the court of inquiry Monday were occupied by the previous witnesses correcting their testimony, after which Capt. Cook was called. He was questioned by Mr. Hanna, and responded in clear and distinct tones. He said he had been at Key West on May 19. His testimony in brief is as follows:

"What information did you have at that time concerning the whereabouts of Cervera's fleet?" asked Mr. Hanna.

"My impressions now are simply from rumor, that they had left the Canary Islands and a part of them had been sighted at Martinique and from consular information, or perhaps information sent by the Harvard, that they had gone to Curacao. That is all from impression."

Giving the reason for the departure of the flying squadron for Cienfuegos, Capt. Cook said the squadron had been sent to that port "to intercept and meet the Spanish squadron, it having been determined, as we believed at that time, by them to make Cienfuegos their objective point." He had understood that the Spanish fleet carried munitions of war for Havana, and it was believed that they would go to Cienfuegos, because of its accessibility to Havana.

Capt. Cook detailed a conversation between Commodore Schley and Capt. Chester while the squadron was en route to Cienfuegos. He said there had been talk between them about coaling on the southern coast of Cuba. In conversation something was said about Cape Cruz, but it did not seem a favorable place for coaling ships from coilers.

Capt. Cook recalled the meeting of the Marblehead with the flying squadron en route to Cienfuegos, but could recall only very indistinctly the fact that the Scorpion had delivered to the Brooklyn the information from the Eagle at that time. "I did not receive any information," he said, "and did not consider the incident important."

The Battle of July 3.
General interest was manifested throughout the courtroom when Mr. Hanna began his inquiries about the battle of July 3. He asked:

"Were you on deck when the fleet came out of Santiago harbor on July 3? When were they first sighted?"

The reply was in the negative. Capt. Cook said he had at that time been in the cabin. The next question was:

"How did you first learn the fleet was coming out?"

The reply to this brought Capt. Cook's story of that engagement, as follows:

"I heard the executive officer call out: 'Clear ship for action!' and as I had given directions to have the ship ready for inspection I knew at once something was happening. I went on deck immediately."

"Had you had any intimation the night before that the fleet were coming out?"

"No. I turned in the night before about midnight, feeling rather the other way, all hope of their coming out having been given up."

"When you came on deck, where were the Spanish vessels? What were they doing?"

"When I first arrived on the fore-castle there were two in sight. The third one was just outside the entrance and the fourth appeared immediately afterward."

"What did they do when they came out, which way did they head?"

"We were to the westward. The entrance to us was about northeast by north. The fleet came out south and turned as they left the entrance to four points southwest, so that they turned in our direction."

Here Capt. Cook described the famous loop of the Brooklyn and declared that he considered it eminently successful. Admiral Dewey interrupted and asked how near the Brooklyn passed to the Texas.

No Danger of Collision.
"I never thought of a collision. It never entered my head. I never for a moment had one idea or vicissitude in that respect. We passed, I judge, about 400 yards. I handled the ship under all circumstances and got so I could judge pretty correctly, and my impression was that we were about a collision I never thought of. She turned perfectly clear of the Texas, came around, and then we had the Viscaya on our starboard bow and about abeam was the Oquendo and then the Colon. At the time, I thought it was the Teresa, but I soon discovered this vessel was dropping out and heading for the beach. That was about the hottest time of the action. It was a critical time. There was not any time for indiscretion, and I do not think there was any. I have always felt in my mind, in studying the positions, that the chances would have been for a disaster had we shifted helm at such a time. However, we got around and we had those three vessels."

Didn't 'Damn the Texas.'
Continuing his statement after the noon recess, Capt. Cook said he thought that if the engines of the Texas had been backed he would have observed the movement. "Although," he said, "the Texas was quite a distance from us." He recalled a brief conversation between Lieut. Hodgson and himself concerning the Texas while the Brooklyn was making its famous loop. He said that on that occasion Hodgson had called his attention to the Texas and that he had replied, saying he saw the vessel, which Hodgson had afterward told him had entirely reassured him. He had never himself used the expression: "Damn the Texas," to Hodgson. "On the contrary," he said, "I had every reason to bless her." He said he had not at the time known of the change in the Brooklyn's log in which the entry had at first been to the effect that the helm was put to starboard and then changed to "helm a-lee." He remembered the addenda to the log and had concluded that it should be written, but he had given instructions that there should be no change in the original log.

At 2:35 p. m. Capt. Cook was excused, counsel for Admiral Schley announcing that they had no questions to ask the witness at this time.

The November Delineator.

A seasonable atmosphere rises from the various useful and valuable features of the November Delineator. The styles shown are those for early winter; the dressmaking article tells about the making of coats;
the fancy needlework article bears upon Thanksgiving and Christmas gifts; the crocheting articles are those of a winter character; the gardening article deals with the pruning and protection of rose trees throughout winter. Every woman who wishes to get splendid value for her expenditure should buy the Delineator for itself. It in turn will help her economize in household matters at every point.
