The Burglars Who Operated in Chelses One Night Last July.

James Henderson and Harry Johnson, the colored men who were arrested for burglaries committed at this place last July, changed their plea to guilty last week and were each sentenced to five years at Jackson.

W. P. Schenk they secured a valuable gold watch, which could not be found when the men were captured. After conviction they told where it was. While they were being searched, Henderson had it hanging by a chain down his back, and the searchers missed it. After being placed in a cell he removed the malaria. The paper was discussed by watch and dropped it down between the Drs. D. M. Joslin was born April 29, 1816, in the township of Sullivan, Oneida county, N. Y., and died October 8, 1901, at Unadilla, Michigan. When about 15 years old he moved with his father and family to the township of Lutchfield, Herkemer county, N. Y. In 1833 they moved to Michigan, settling at Ann Arbor and In the spring of the same year mayed on the farm where Mr. Joslin lived until the day of his death. On April 12, 1845, he united with the Presbyterian church of Unadilla, and on September 24, 1868, during the pastorate of Rev. Wm. Nutting, he was ordained ruling elder and acting deacon, also trustee of the same church, and has held the offices until the present time. He was superintendent of the Sunday-school for many years and always took a deep interest in the church in all its departments. On March 14, 1848, he was married to Cordella E. Montague. This union was blessed with four children, three of whom are dead, two having died in infancy. Eugene M., the elder son, died four years ago, The only surviving child is Edward C., who now lives near Howell. The deceased bore testimony, even to the last moment of his life, of his faith in God and assurance of Heaven. He had struggled long for the Master, and was only waiting to be called home,

CHAPTER XXII. The Executioners.

At an early hour the following morning he sent for Omar, who soon answered the call.

"I have one word to say-one re quest to make," said Horam, after the morning's greetings had passed. wish you once more to tell me the story of Helena's innocence, and thenceforth to remain silent upon the subject. I may have dreamed some of the things that now startle my thoughts; for I am not clear at what point you left me last night."

Thus called upon, the king of Aleppo related all that he had told on the previous evening, and then made some further explanation of incidents which he had not before revealed. It was a plain, simple statement, bearing the stamp of truth upon every word.

"O!" groaned Horam, clasping his thin hands together, "what would l give to call Helena back to life! But it cannot be. She is gone-and she was innocent!"

He started up from his seat, and walked several times across the floor; and when he next approached his royal guest, he had grown calmer, and his lip had ceased its quivering. "Omar, I have no blame for you. Henceforth let the book be sealed."

He had taken one or two more turns up and down the apartment, when a messenger entered with intelligence that Benoni had arrived, and desired audience.

"Send him in at once. Good brother, you will remain with me." This last was spoken to Omar, who had turned to leave.

In a little while Benoni made his appearance, and Horam was sure he could see the flush of victory upon his brow.

"Now, my captain, what word do you bring?"

"Good word, sire. We have captured those whom you desired to see, and have also brought an old man and old woman who resided in the cave."

"Have you brought the Lady Ulinand the robber chieftain-and Osmir and Selim?"

"Yes, sire."

"And these others are the old her-

"I did, stre."

"Well-what did you observe?" "O, mercy, aire-spare my child!" "That is not the answer to my question, Aboul. I asked you what you discovered."

"I discovered," returned the minister, in tones of deepest dread, "that her love had been turned from you." "Aye-and upon whom?"

"Upon Julian, sire."

"That is it, Aboul," cried the king, again starting up. "That is the thing that enters most deeply into my soul. And now I will tell you what the girl's punishment shall be. She shall witness the death of her robber lover; she shall see his head severed from his body-and then she shall be shut up. to lead a solitary life, through the rest of her days! None of her own sex shall attend upon her; but black guards shall be her sole companions. What say you to that?"

The executioners were not long in obeying the order. A large mat was brought in and spread upon the floor, and three stout baskets of palm-leaf were placed upon it. The mat and the baskets were darkly stained, and even Omar, used as he was to such scenes. shuddered when he beheld the preparations. When all was ready, Horam turned to his captain and ordered that all the prisoners should be brought in. At length they came. Julian and Osmir and Selim came first. Then followed Ben Hadad and Ezabel, with Shubal and Ortok. And lastly came Ulin and Albia.

The robber chieftain was led up to the block. His arms were folded upon his broad bosom, with the heavy chains hanging almost to his feet, and his head was borne erect. There was a deep pain-mark in his face, but it was not of fear for himself.

"Outlaw!" spoke Horam, through his shut teeth, and with his thin hands clenched, "the hour has come in which you are to close your career of rapine and robbery; and these people who have been friends to you, and who have given you protection in your crime, are to see your head fall. Perhaps you would ask for mercy."

"No!" said the chieftain. "I ask no mercy at the hand of Horam of Damascus. Let the work be finished as quickly as possible, and thus shall one new relation; but finally a dark cloud | TALMAGE'S arose to obscure the heaven of my lady's joy. Her husband became jealous of her-became so jealous that his soul was fraught with deadly yengeance. He fancied that his wife's guilt had been proved, and he resolved to put her away from him forever. Her protestations availed nothing. He would not listen to her-he would not even allow her to approach him; but he gave her into the hands of his executioners, and bade them drown her in the waters of the Pharphar. I discovered what was to be done, and slipped away from the home of the cruel husband, and sought my son, who had then become a stout youth. Hobaddan and I hid ourselves near the gates of the city, and when the executioners came out, we followed them. They had with them a large sack, and I knew that my mistress was in it. We saw them sink that sack in the river-they sank it where the water was dark and deep-sank it in the middle of the night-and then went away. As soon as they were gone we hurried to the shore, and my son plunged into the stream, and succeeded in bringing the sack to the land. We opened it, and my sweet mistress was taken forth, cold and senseless; but she was not dead. Her heart still had motion, and after much labor we succeeded in bringing her back to consciousness. The next need was to find a safe shelter for her. We dared not take her back to the city. I thought of the hermit, Ben Hadad. I had heard that he was a benevolent man. and I resolved to seek him. We found his cave; and when he had heard my story, he promised to give us shelter, and to protect the unfortunate lady. "My mistress so far recovered as to be able to sit up; but she could not get well. Her system had received too great a shock, and her poor heart was broken. In two weeks from the time when she entered the cave she gave birth to a son, and shortly afterwards she died. She died as pure and true as heaven itself, and her child was the offspring of an honor which no temptation could have tarnished. She died; but the child lived and thrived-lived. and grew strong, and noble, and bold. We told him how his mother had been wronged; ut we did not tell him all. We did not tell him who his father was; only we told him that he owed his orphanage to the king of Damascus. When he grew up he resolved that the king should suffer for the deed he had done, and subsequent events have proved that his resolution was not vain.

"This, sire, is the son of the woman who was my mistress. Julian, the Scourge of Damascus is the child I have reared. Would you know more?" Horam sat in his great chair, with his hands clutched tightly upon the golden arms, and his whole frame quivering.

NIGHT SCENES IN GREATER CITIES, SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

Warms the Unwary Visitors from the Country - From Isaiah XXI: 11, "Watchman, What of the Night"-The Hour of Great Temptation.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.] Washington, Oct. 13 .- In this dis course Dr. Taimage describes some of the scenes to be witnessed late at night in the great cities, and warns the unwary of many perils; text, Isaiah; xxi, 11, "Watchman, what of the night?" When night came down on Babylon, Nineveh and Jerusalem they needed careful watching; otherwise the incendiary's torch might have been thrust into the very heart of the metropolitan splendor, or enemies, marching from the hills, might have forced the gates. All night long, on top of the wall and in front of the gates, might be heard the measured step of the watchman on his solitary beat. Silence hung in the air, save as some passerby raised the question, "Watchman, what of the night?" It is to me a deeply suggestive and solemn thing to see a man standing guard by night. At thrilled through me as at the gate of an arsenal in Charleston the question once smote me, "Who comes there?" followed by the sharp command, "Advance and give the countersign." Every moral teacher stands on picket or patrols the wall as watchman. His work is to sound the alarm, and whether it be in the first watch, in the second watch, in the third watch or in the fourth watch to be vigilant until the daybreak flings its across the trellis of the sky.

The ancients divided their night into four parts-the first watch, from 6 to 9; the second, from 9 to 12; the third, from 12 to 3, and the fourth, from 3 to 6. I speak now of the city o'clock.

The Early Watch.

I never weary of looking upon the life of the city in the first watch. That is the hour when the stores are closing. The laboring men, having quitted the scaffolding and the shop, are on their way home. It rejoices me to give them my seat in the city car. They have stood and hammered away all day. Their feet are weary. They are exhausted with the tug of work. They are mostly cheerful. With appetites sharpened on the swift turner's wheel and the carpenter's whetstone they ter and with brain weary of the long chair stands against the door. Shove in full jet hang over 10,000 evening repasts-the parents at either end of the table, the children between. Thank God, "who setteth the solitary in families." A few hours later and all the places of amusement, good and bad, are in full tide. Lovers of art, catalogue in hand, stroll through the galleries and discuss the pictures. The ballroom is respiendent with the rich apparel of those who, on either side of the white, glistening boards, await the signal from the orchestra. Concert halls are lifted into enchantment with the warble of one songstress or swept out on a sea of tumultuous feeling by the blast of brazen instruments. Drawing rooms are filled with all gracefulness of apparel, with all sweetness of sound, with all splendor of manner; mirrors are catching up and multiplying the scene, until it seems as if in infinite corridors there were garlanded troops advancing and retreating. The outdoor air rings with laughter and with the moving to and fro of thousands on the great promenades. The dashing span, adrip with the foam of the long country ride, rushes past as you halt at the curbstone. Mirth, revelry, beauty, fashion, magnificence, mingle in the great metropolitan picture until the thinking man goes home to think more seriously, and the praying man to pray more earnestly. A beautiful and overwhelming thing is the city in the first and second watches of the night.

of the coverlid must be resisted, an the ice muit be k pt on the hot temples and the perpetual prayer must go up from hearts soon to be broken. Oh, the third watch of the night! What a stupendous thought-a whole city at res!! Weary arm preparing for tomotrow's tell. Hot brain being cooled off. R'gid muscles relaxed. Excited nerves soothed. The white hair of the octogenarian in thin drifts across the pillow, fresh fall of fiskes on snow already fallen. Childhood, with its dimpled hands thrown out on the plilow, and with every breath taking in a new store of fun , and frolic. Third watch of the night! God's slumberless eye will look. Let one great wave of refreshing slumber roll over the heart of the great town, submerging care and anxiety and worriment and pain. Let the city sleep. Those Who Sleep Not.

But, my friends, be not deceived. There will be tonight thousands who will not sleep at all. Go up that dark alley, and be cautious where you tread lest you fall over the prostrate form of a drunkard lying on his own doorstep. Look about you, lest you feel the garroter's hug. Look through the broken window pane and see what you can see. You say, "Nothing." Then listen. What is it? "God help us!" No footlights, but tragedy ghastlier and mightier than Ristori or Edwin Booth ever enacted. No light, no fire, no bread, no hope. Shivering in the cold, they have had no food for twenty-four hours. You say. "Why don't they beg?" They do, but they get nothing. You say, "Why don't they deliver themselves over to the almshouse?" Ah, you would not ask that if you ever heard the bitter cry of a man or child when told he must go to the alms-"morning glories" of blooming cloud house! "Oh," you say, "they are vicious poor, and therefore they do not deserve our sympathy." Are they vicicus? So much more need they your pity. The Christian poor, God helps them. Through their night there twinkles the round, merry star of in the third watch, or from 12 to 3 hope and through the broken window they see the crystals of heaven, but the vicious poor, they are more to be pitied. Their last light has gone out. You excuse yourself from helping them by saying that the mare so had they brought this trouble on themselves. A great deal of what is called Christian work goes for nothing for the simple reason that it was not practical as after the battle of Antietam a man got out of an ambulance with a bag of tracts, and he went distributing the tracts, and George Stuart, one of the best Christian men in this country, said to him: "What are you distribut. ing tracts for now? There are three thousand men bleeding to death. Bind up their wounds and then distribute the tracts." We want more commo sense in Christian work, taking the bread of this life in one hand and the bread of the next life in the other hand. No such inapt wor': as that done by the Christian man who during our civil war went to a hospital with tracts and, coming to the bed of a man whose legs had been amputated, gave him a tract on the sin of dancing! I rejoice before God that never are sympathetic words uttered, never a prayer offered, never a Christian almagiving indulged in, but it is blessed. There is a place in Switzerland, I am told where the utterance of one word will bring back a score of echoes, and I have to tell you that a sympathetic word, a kind word, a generous word, s helpful word, uttered in the dark places of the town will bring back ten thousand echoes from heaven. An there in this assemblage those who know by experience the tragedies in the third watch of the night? I am not here to thrust you back with one hard word. Take the bandage from your bruised, soul and put on it the soothing salve of Christ's gospel and of God's compassion. I tell you there is yan, more delight in heaven over one man that gets reformed by the grace of God than over ninety and nine that never got off the track.

more be added to the list of thy bloody mit, Ben Hadad, and the woman who lives with him?"

"Yes, sire."

"By the crown I wear!" cried the monarch, leaping up and clapping his hands, "this is enough to make me forget the wrongs I have suffered. Let the robber chieftain and the two treacherous guards be brought before me. But-hold. There was one other spoken of by the Arab-the lieutenant -Hobaddan his name was."

"He was not in the cave, sire; nor was he about the place."

"Very well. Let the chieftain be brought in."

The captain .retired, and presently returned, followed by Julian and the two guards. They were heavily ironed, and six stout soldiers walked behind them. The youthful chieftain had schooled himself for the ordeal, and no sign of fear was manifest. Osmir and Selim stood like two deaf mutes, seeming to care nothing for the fate that surely a aited them.

"That is all," said Horam, after he had looked at the prisoners. "Take them out, and guard them well. Place twenty of your most trusty men over them, and remember that those twenty heads shall answer for the safety of the charge."

"Shall I conduct them to a dungeon, sire?"

"No,-there is no need of it. They will not live to behold the setting of this day's sun!"

Ben Hadad did not tremble when he stood before the king; nor did Ezabel seem much frightened.

"Old man," said Horam, "I understand that you have harbored and protected the notorious Scourge, Julian." "He hath found sheiter with me, as have all who ever sought it," replied the hermit.

"And you also harbored the lady Ulin. You knew who she was, and that she had fied from her home." "Yes."

"And perhaps you knew why she fled?"

She told me her story, sire."

"It is enough," cried the king, impatiently. "I wish to hear no more. You both stand condemned, and the degree of your punishment shall be made known to you soon enough.

Omar was upon the point of making some remark, when Benoni entered.

"Now, Benoni," said Horam, with more nervousness in his manner than he had before exhibited, "I have a serious question to ask you; and I desire that you should answer me promptly and truly. You have noticed the conduct of the princess Ulin?"

"Yes, sire, she is in love with Julian the robber."

Benoni again went out; but he did not have to go far, as he met Aboul coming towards the royal apartment. The king greeted him as he entered, and asked him if he had seen his daughter. /

'Yes, sire," replied the minister. " have just left her."

"Have you talked with her?"

deeds. I could wish to live that I might take more vengeance on thee." "And is there not one thing for which you would live?" asked the king. bending a searching, burning glance upon him.

Julian started and struggled; but made no reply. And in a moment more Horam turned to his chief executioner. "Bel Dara, go now to your work. Let this man's head fall first. Your arm is strong, and your hand is sure. Bend him upon his knees, and watch for my signal."

There was a low, wild cry breaking upon the air; and as Julian turned his head, he saw Ulin, white and faint, in the arms of her attendant.

Before the grim executioners could bend the robber chieftain to his knees there was an interruption in the proceedings. The voice of Ben Hadad, stern and authoritative, sounded above all else:

"King of Damascus, ere you stain your hands with that man's blood, 1 must reveal to you a secret which it is fitting you should know."

"Old man," he said, "you speak a secret. Do you think to trifle with me?"

"I have to cause a simple story to be unfolded to your majesty," replied Ben Hadad; "and if you will grant this woman speech, she will give you light."

The king looked hard into the face of Ezabel, and for the first time he seemed to be struck by something familiar in her features. A moment he sat as if irresolute, and then he said, starting up as though his mind were fixed:

"Let the woman approach."

Ezabel came near to the throne, Ben Hadad walking close behind her.

"Woman, what is it that you have to tell? Speak, and let not the words lag upon your lips."

"I speak by the request of Ben Hadad," replied Ezabel; "and the story which I shall tell you is known only to the old hermit and myself. Even Julian himself knows not the secret I have to impart, and were he now upon the verge of death, no persuasion should draw it from me. It may be that the disclosure will consign me to your executioner; int I care not. I shall waste no words. I was born in this city, and was married at an early age. One son was born to me, and then my husband died. Shortly after this bereavement I was called to nurse a sick child-a girl, some three years old-who was suffering from an accident. The child recove ed under my care, and as I had formed a strong attachment for her, and as she had also conceived the same for me, I was retained to attend upon her. Her parents were of the wealthlest of Damas. cus, and while they made it very pleasant for me to remain with their daughter, they also provided a good place for my son, Hobaddan. My charge grew up to be a beautiful maid-

and kind and generous; and I knew | do you?" "No," "Then why isn't this

"O," he gasped, "the secret is nigh to the surface! What shall I ask?" The king of Aleppo moved to Horam's side, and whispered in his ear.

"Aye," exclaimed the quaking mon. arch, when he had listened to the words of his brother, "it shall be so What ho! Benoni-clear this chamber of all save this old man and woman. and this-this-Julian! Lead them out quickly, and remain with them to watch them."

In a few moments the two kings were alone with the three prisoners who had been designated. "Now-now-speak!"

"King of Damascus," said the aged hermit, taking a step forward, "allow me to tell you the rest. The suns of almost a hundred years have rolled over my head, and not yet have I willingly deceived a fellow creature to his injury. What this woman has told you is true. The lady who was brought to my cave three-and-twenty years ago-who gave birth to a child there-and who died in Ezabel's arms. was Helena, Queen of Damascus! And the son which she bore was the son of the king-I swear it; and in support thereof, I pledge my soul's salvation!"

Evidence of Desire to Sell.

Wu Ting-farg, who was a guest at a recent wedding in Washington, was approached after the ceremony by the best man and jocu arly asked to go over to the young cauple and pronounce a Chinese parental blessing. The obliging Wu immediately complied. Placing his hands on the blushing bride and shaking groom, he said: "May every new year bless you with a man child offspring until they shall number twenty-five in all. May these twenty-fiveman-children offspring present you with twenty-five times twenty-five grandchildren and may these grandchildren -----

It is said that the little bride grew hysterical about this time, says the New York Times, and the best man made another request of Wu-this time to desist.

Not the Girl for film.

The father was quite anxious for his son to marry, and on every occasion he was picking out what he thought was a suitable girl. One night at a dinner the old gentleman sat next to a very attractive young woman, and on his way home he was loud in his praises. "My boy," he said, "she's the very girl for you." "Not much," replied the boy, with peculiar emphasis. "But I say she is," insisted papa. "And I say not," insisted the son. The father became testy on the suben, and became my mistress; and I ject. Third Watch of the Night.

But the clock strikes 12 and the third watch has begun. The thunder of the city has rolled out of the air. The slightest sounds cut the night with such distinctness as to attract your attention. The Criminal's Hour.

Do you know that it is in this third watch of the night that criminals do their worst work? It is the criminal's watch. Stories of Chelsea's Dead.

In Chelsea, in an old rectory that stands in the shadow of a mulberry tree planted by Queen Elizabeth, there lives a fine old minister, the Rev. Dr. Blount, who was the personal friend of the great men who have made Chalsea famous. He knew Carlyle well, and told a visitor recently that he and the great but irascible sage went to see Westminster one day. Carlyle was impressed with the building, but the service aroused him to sniffs and snorts of contempt, and he summed his feelings by saying: "As for being buried in it, I should demand a gental jail delivery first before I'd ky. bones there." Dr. Blount rememb Rossetti well and tells this rather wicked anecdote of him. "Poor Rossettl!" he says.; "When his wife died he cast a volume of unpublished poem into her grave, and it was buried with her. But later the argument of his friends as to the loss which the work suffered thereby induced him to have the poems dug up again."-New York W.L. Press.

Killed by Football. Robert I. McKee, the Alma College student who re-opened an old internal injury in the football game between Alma and the D. A. C. team last Saturuny afternoon, died yesterday afternoon at Alma. An operation was performed on him in Brainard hospital and it was found that his intestines were injured. There seems to have been no secret made of the fact that he had an old hernia that bothered him at times, and why the Alma coaches allowed him to play is not explained. Mr. McKee was very popular in Alma and his death has saddened the whole college. He was 27 years old and made his home with sisters in Detroit. He was a senior and would have graduated next June. Refugees from Persia report that that country is on the eve of revolution. None of the shah's promised reforms have been put in operation, but instead taxes are increasing and wholesale imprisonments and confiscations by the government are common. The shah, according to reports, is ill and completely in the hands of intriguing favorites, who have sent all the available funds to foreign banks, and are preparing for fight when the storm bursts.

THUMB SIGNALS.

That Member Tells When One Is Like ly to Be Affected by Paralysis or Insanity.

Specialists in nerve diseases by an examination of the thumb can tell if the patient is affected or likely to be affected by paralysis, as the thumb signals this trouble long before it is in any other part of the body. If the danger symptoms are evidenced there an operation is performed on what is known as the "thumb center" of the brain, and the disorder is often removed. The success of the operation can be told, too, by the changed condition of the thumb.

No matter how carefully the individual may attempt to conceal incipient insanity, the thumb will reveal it infallibly. It is the one sure test. If the patient in his daily work permits the thumb to stand at a right angle to the other fingers, or to fall listless into the palm, taking no part in his writing, his handling of things, his multiform duties, but standing isolated and sulky, it is an unanswerable confession of mental disease.

Millions Invested in Beet Sugar Plants.

HIGHIGAN'S SUGAR BEETS

The State Will Soon Lead in the Manufac ture With Nineteen Plants-Sixty five Thousand Acres of Beets and Eightyfour Thousand Tons of Coal Required

VERY INTERESTING FIGURES.

The beet sugar industry has and is growing to vast proportions in Michigan as shown by the State Labor Commissioner's report given out Friday. There are three factories at Bay City. one at Caro, one at Rochester, one at Alma, one at Kalamazoo, one at Benton Harbor, one at Holland and one at Marine City. The plants which will be in operation for the first time this season are located at Lansing, Saginaw and Salzburg. The plants that will go into operation next season are at Harbor Beach, Sebewaing, Mt. Clemens, Carrollton, Lapeer and Croswell, Companles have also been organized to build four new plants, two of which will be in Wayne county, one at Caseville and the other at Mt. Clemens.

The thirteen plants which will operate in Michigan the present season have a capitalized stock of $4,400,000, an average of $338,462 each. The cost of construction and equipping these factories will aggregate $5,525.000, an average of $425,000 each. The six plants which will be completed for next season's work will have an aggregate capital stock of $2,150,000, an average of $358,333 each. The cost of their construction is estimated at an average of $550,000 each, an aggregate of $3,300,000. It is a conservative estimate that over $9,000,000 will have been invested in sugar plants in Michigan the coming senson.

The thirteen factories which will be operated during the coming season will have an average daily capacity of 6,650 tons of beets. The six factories which will start next year will have a capacity of 3,600 tons daily, which will bring the aggregate enpacity of Michigan factories to 10.850 tons of beets daily. It is estimated that the thirteen factories to be operated this season will average ninety days each and together will require 598,500 tons of beets. The sugar obtained from Michigan beets last season averaged above 14 per cent. and on this basis the output of sugar for the season will be 167,580,000 pounds, or 83,790 tons. Experienced manufacturers estimate that there will be over 200,000,000 pounds of sugar made in the state this year.

Attention is called to the fact that a large portion of the machinery used in the factories is now of American manufacture, and that the industry opens up other avenues for the employment of American capital and labor, A large amount of limestone is used in the purifying process, the average be-

Surprising progress towards the goal of self-support by the Apache prisoners of war is recorded in a report by Capt. Sayre, in charge of those prisoners. He shows that they now have on hand 2.784 head of cattle of their own raising, that they have built many miles of new fences and repaired as much more of the old and that no clothing was issued to them during the year. On the other hand, these Indians are suffering severely from tuberculosis, contracted by them while in captivity in Florida and there were thirteen more deaths than births among them. Four Lives Lost. Except that the father will not survive his terrible burns, the details of Tucsday night's fire, at Santiago, in which three children of Joseph Peters were cremated, were correctly given. The Peters family consisted of Joseph Peters, Anna, his wife: Christopher, aged 12; Mabel, aged 7, and Gertrude, aged 4. They retired as usual Tues-day night, all occupying a room upstairs, and some time afterward Mrs Peters was aroused by the crackling of flames. She rushed down stairs to find the kitchen nearly consumed, and shouted for help, then attempted to re turn to awaken her husband and children, but the stairway was a mass of flames, and she could not reach her loved ones, although badly burned in the effort. In despair she called to her husband, who awakened and spent some time in an effort to find and save the little ones. In this he failed, and finally, crazed with pain from his burns, he sprang headlong through the rear window, his face an unrecognizable blister, his arms and chest literally cooked, and one leg burned so badly that it was drawn up to his body. In his agony he begged the bystanders to

A total of 65,000 acres of beets will be used this year, and farmers will receive an average of $5 per ton for the product of their farms. The operating force in the factories this season will aggregate about 2,400 persons, who are paid high wages. The amount of labor employed in weeding, thining and pulling the beets is very large, The future outlook for the industry is considered very bright. Farmers and beet growers are realizing handsomely on their crops.

She Lost Her Life.

The body of Mrs. L. A. Seeley, the aeronant known as Lillian Lefay, was found in the Illinois river, four miles west of La Salle, Ill., and will be sent to Reed City, Mich., for burial, Seven days ago Mrs. Seeley ascended from one of the principal streets in LaSalle. The ascension was made at dusk in a brisk wind. The balloon rose rapidly and pursued a southward course toward the river. The parachute leap was made and the spectators considered that the aeronaut would land safely beyond the river. Several men, including her husband, were detailed to meet the aeronaut and return with her and the parachute. At midnight an alarm to the effect that the aeronaut was lost was spread, in response to which 500 men and boys turned out. and a general hunt was instituted. For three days and nights the river valley and the hills south of it were searched in vain. Believing his wife had landed in safety. Seeley gave it as his opinion that she was abducted. This was generally believed until the finding of the body.

This is Tough.

Two resident hunters reported meeting a wild man in the woods near the headwaters of the Deer river, about fourteen miles from Crystal Falls, They got within thirty feet of the place where he was eating the carcass of a dead skunk. A posse left to search for him.

"I remember that she wore one gold ring. It had no stone in it, but had a lot of little square marks on it," she said. "She used to wear that ring all the time, but whenever she was going to wash dishes she would remove it." When the ring was shown Mrs. Tremper she exclaimed: "That is just like it. It had little square marks on it just like that. I feel that I could swear on the witness stand that that ring is the same ring Mrs. Huss wore." Mrs. Tremper also said: "She used to wear on the ribbon around her neck a safety pin with several little red beads on it. I remember them very distinctly because it seemed such a funny way to make a clasp pin just to take a safety pin and put the beads on it." Exactly such a pin was found on the body.

Lacey, of Niles, Arrested.

W. K. Lacey, the aged president of the defunct First National bank of Niles, was arrested Saturday at his palatiai home on a warrant issued under indictment issued by the federal grand jury. Mr. Lacey was taken to Grand Rapids and arraigned before Judge Wanty. He had no attorney present, and absolutely refused to talk of his case. The indictment contained two counts, one defrauding and abetting in the making of false entries in the First National bank stock, and the other for falsifying reports to the comptroller of the currency. Mr. Lacey is 61 years of age.

They Are Indicted.

Indictments have been returned by the federal grand jury, in Grand Rapids, against City Attorney Lant K. Salsbury and Stilson V. MacLeod, former paying teller of the Old National bank and manager of the local clear. ing house. MacLeod was indicted on several counts charging violation of the United States banking law, and in connection with the issuing of a worthless certificate of deposit, and Salsbury is charged with being an accomplice. Bail in the cases of Salsbury and Mac-Leod was fixed at $7.500 each.

(Old Favorite Series.) y Nabo's lonely mountain, in this side Jordan's wave, in a vale in the land of Monb There lies a lonely grave; There lies a lonely grave; But no man built that sepulcher, And no man saw it e'er; For the angels of God Upturned the sod And laid the dead man there. That was the grandest funeral That ever passed on earth; Yet no man heard the trampling. Or saw the train go forth; Noiselessiy as the daylight Comes when the night is done. And the crimson streak On ocean's cheek Grows into the great sun. Noisclessly as the springtime Her crown of verdure weaves, Unfold their thousand leaves; And all the trees on all the hills So, without sound of music, Or voice of them that wept, Silently down From the mountain's crown The great procession swept. Perchance the bald old eagle On gray Bethpeor's height, Out of his rocky eyry Looked on the wondrous sight; Perchance the lion stalking Still shuns that hallowed spot; For beast and bird Have seen and heard That which may honeyth net That which man knoweth not. But when the warrior dieth, His comrades of the war. With arms reversed and muffled drums, Follow the funeral car: They show the banners taken, They tell his battles won, And after him lead His masterless steed, While peals the minute-gun. Amid the noblest of the land Men lay the sage to rest, And give the bard an honored place, With costly marbles drest, In the great minister transept Where lights like glories fall, And the sweet choir sings, And the organ rings Along the emblazoned hall. This was the bravest warrior That ever buckled sword; This the most gifted poet That ever breathed a word; And never earth's philosopher Traced with his golden pen On the deathless page Truths half so sage As he wrote down for men. And had he not high honor?

it into her body, seized her in his arms, rushed to the bottom of the steps and laid her on the floor, kneeling beside her. It all seemed the work of an instant, and ere I could realize anything was over.

"Mechanically L closed the slide of my apparatus, uttered a loud cry and ran forward. The thrust had been deadly sure, and the girl had ceased to breathe. The horror of it came over me so strongly that I had a faint feeling and could hardly articulate, but my cry had attracted attention, and in a few moments the hall was full of people, talking and gesticulating violently, telling some story. He was much excited, but seemed calm beside the others as his soft, voluble Italian flowed on.

"My knowledge of the language was very slight, but the scowling faces soon turned upon me made me realize that the wretch was laying the guilt of the murder at my door. I was young and inexperienced, a stranger in the place, and I even remembered that the official from whom I had gotten my permit was temporarily absent -my sensations were far from pleasant, as the officers of the law arrived on the scene and took us both into. custody. To add to my misfortune I was bound to admit that the stiletto used exactly resembled the one I had so recently purchased, as a curiosity, which was now missing from the pocket of the overcoat where I had put it.

"The other man when questioned made a plausible story, saying that we both were admirers of the unfortunate girl, but pledging faith to me, for the purpose of extorting money fromthe rich foreigner, her affections were really his. A connection of the custodian of the palace, she succeeded in obtaining entrance and made an appointment to meet him, he having formerly been an employe. That I had obtained knowledge of the proposed interview, purchased a stiletto (the shopman was produced, who swore to having sold the dagger) and followed. Further, that on some false pretext I also had obtained admission, and, coming behind them as they were passing through the hall, had fatally injured my victim. Corroborated in one or two points by other witnesses, the story seemed credible, the case looked ill for me, and repeated assurances that I had never seen either of the parties before were not understood or credited. The purchase of the stiletto I could not deny, and that seemed the clearest circumstantial evidence.

"A night spent in confinement did not seem to raise my spirits, everything looked very black to me, and I was almost in despair, when, suddenly, a ray of light broke in on my darkfavor.

The Stairway. gan.

BY LEIGH NORTH. (Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) "That picture holds a tragedy," said my friend Benson, thoughtfully, and his eyes had the retrospective look which tells that other scenes than the present are before them. "Literally I mean," he added.

I looked increduously at the faded photograph in my hand. It was a grand old stairway in some Venetian or Genoese palace whose fine curving lines and the sweep of its magnificent balustrade were a delight to the eye. Two crouching lions in marble ktpt watch at the foot.

I tried to brush away a little mist or dust in the center.

"You can't do it," he said, "I owe my life, or rather, my liberty to that."

"What's the story?" I asked. Evidently it was rather a painful memory, for he answered with some reluctance.

"That picture holds a tragedy." "There was a murder committed there while I was taking the photosraph."

"Impossible!" I exclaimed. "It is difficult to credit, I grant you but true nevertheless."

He drew up his tall figure and a sort of pallor came over his face. "I can never forget it!"

"Let it go, old fellow!" I cried, seeing the effect upon him, but I confess my curiosity was strong and excited. girl ran lightly down the stair, close-

"It was many years ago, on my first trip to Italy, and I had, with some difficulty, obtained permission to look at the inside of one of the old Genoese palaces, seldom visited, and to take a photograph of the stairway, which you see is an exceedingly beautiful one. I had a special fancy for architectural 'bits' then.

"On my way to the palace, passing through the tortuous thoroughfares with their quaint little box-shops. I stopped here and there, as all new comers will, to gaze in the windows at the varied show.

"It chanced that the street was that called 'the Goldsmiths,' and each tradesman vied with the other in his display of trinkets in gold and silver filigree.

"In the corner of one lay an object which caught my eye. It was a stiletto, evidently not a new one, in a case of the finest workmanship. With no very definite intention of buying, I entered, pointed it out, and, in my broken vocabulary, demanded the price. The figures were so enormous that I shook my head and turned to leave. The Italian, seeing that I was in earnest, immediately lowered his terms, and, finally, seizing me by the coat persuaded me into making the purchase, which I thrust into my pocket and hurried on to my destination.

"The quick walk seemed to heat my blood to the bolling point, and after 1 had showed my permit to the custodian and selected the point from which I could get the best view, I threw my light outer coat on an old carved seat and hastened out again. Get something I must to assuage the tormenting thirst which had suddenly seized upon me. Of the bad effects of water in these regions. I felt some fear, but anything was better than my present discomfort.

"Returning, after a brief absence, I readjusted my camera and the corner in which I had to stand being rather dark, a long exposure of the plate was necessary to secure the photograph. I believed the house to be empty, save for the custodian and one servant, and united their efforts in my behalf, and I had an cerie, creepy feeling as I I was soon released, very thankful to stood at my work as if ghosts were be free once more.
