HELD ITS ANNUAL MEETING.

Western Washtenaw Farmers' Club Elected Officers and Had an Oyster Dinner.

The annual meeting of the Western Union Farmers' Club held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Spaulding, of Sylvan, Thursday last, was attended by 58 people, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, of Grosse Ile. For several years the club has held its annual meeting with the Spauldings and the hearty treatment accorded the club by them this year is a sufficient reason for this display of partiality. A bountiful oyster dinner with the other eatables was served at noon, and from the way everybody attacked the bivalves one would think the cold, bracing atmosphere was an excellent tonic for the appetite, or else that each had been saving up his or her appetite for the occasion.

Dinner over a brief season of social chat and visiting followed. During this time and at the conclusion of the meeting H. D. Smith, of Detroit, exhibited the workings of the Deming cream separator and churn. The superior claims urged for it being simplicity of parts, ease of working, and the execution it will do.

The meeting was called to order by Vice President Frank Storms. Prayer was offered by R. V. F. A. Stiles, after which the minutes of the last meeting read. Following this came the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows:

- President—M. A. Lowry.
- Vice President—Wm E. Stocking.
- Secretary—Mrs. John Waltrous.
- Treasurer—Ralph W. Boyden.
- Chaplain—Rev. C. S. Jones.
- Chorister—Mrs. W. E. Depew.
- Organist—Mrs. Herman Fletcher.
- Legislative Committee—Geo. W. Boynton.

The secretary was also elected to be the club's reporter to the Michigan Farmer and other papers.

The report of the outgoing treasurer, Herman Fletcher, showed as follows: Balance on hand at last annual meeting, $9.50; receipts during the year, $8.65; expenditures during the year, $18.77; balance on hand at date, $4.38.

An order was ordered drawn on the treasurer for the amount of the expenses of the club's delegates to the meeting of the state association of farmers' clubs at Lansing.

President M. A. Lowry, who was the representative to that meeting gave a lengthy and interesting report of what most impressed him at the meeting. Wm. E. Stocking gave the legislative committee's report of the doings in congress since the last meeting.

This concluded the business and the club adjourned to meet January 16, 1902, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Storms, of Lima.

Knights of Columbus.

Between 70 and 80 men were initiated into the Catholic order of the Knights of Columbus at the Elks hall in Ann Arbor Sunday afternoon. About 300 knights from Detroit, Jackson, Ypsilanti, Battle Creek, Toledo and Kalamazoo were present. Among the initiates were J. J. Raftrey, Jacob Hummel, Chauncey Hummel, Wm. F. Kress, Wm. Wheeler and Henry Mullen, of Chelsea. In the evening at 8 o'clock a fine banquet was served in the Armory by the wives and near relatives of the Knights of Columbus in Ann Arbor. M. J. Cavanaugh was the toastmaster of the evening and speeches were made by Revs. E. D. Kelly, of Ann Arbor, and Frank Kennedy, of Ypsilanti, Hon. M. B. McCarthy, of Toledo, Arthur O'Connor, Frank Cook and Geo. F. Monaghan, of Detroit, and Frank Keenan. Among those initiated was Cornelius Krupp, of Galveston, Texas, a nephew of the great German big gun maker of that name.

A Million Voices

Could hardly express the thanks of Homer Hall, of West Point, Ia. Listen why: A severe cold had settled on his lungs causing a most obstinate cough. Several physicians said he had consumption, but could not help him. When all thought he was doomed he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and writes—"It completely cured me and saved my life. I now weigh 227 pounds." It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds and lung troubles. Price 30 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's.

Cruelty to Animals.

The following is a copy of the state law concerning cruelty to animals:

Section 1. The people of the state of Michigan enact, that whoever overdrives overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, cruelly beats, mutilates, or cruelly kills or causes or procures to be so overdriven, overloaded, driven when overworked, tortured or tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, cruelly beaten, mutilated or cruelly killed, any animal, and whoever having the charge or custody of any animal, either as owner or otherwise, inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the same, or willfully fails to provide the same with proper food, drink, shelter, or protection from the weather, shall, for every such offense, be punished by imprisonment in jail not exceeding three months or by a fine not exceeding $100, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

The above is published at the request of Marshal Jay M. Woods, who says that from henceforth the provisions of this law will be strictly enforced so far as he is concerned.

UNIVERSITY OBSERVATORY

It Has Turned Out Many Men Who Rank Very High in the Planetary Science.

THERE ARE TWO CLASSES OF STUDENTS.

One Makes Astronomy a Specialty and the Other Takes Enough to Teach It in Connection with Mathematics and Chemistry—Brief History of the Institution.

[Special Correspondence.]

University of Michigan.—The department of astronomy at the University of Michigan, now under the supervision of Prof. Asaph Hall, Jr., has been slowly and surely progressing, though at the present time a new observatory is sorely needed. There are two classes of students who take work at the observatory, those who are making astronomy a specialty and those who are taking enough to teach elementary astronomy in connection with mathematics, physics or chemistry. Prof. Hall says that while there is little or no demand for a specialist in this line, there is an ever increasing demand for men who are capable of teaching one or more of the sciences with astronomy. This demand, the professor says, is a direct result of the many academic institutions which are constantly springing up in all sections of the country. This latter course is often called popular or general astronomy, and is open to students who do not care for the technical training, but wish to get the ground work of astronomy thoroughly, and an efficient knowledge of the use of the instruments.

Men Who Rank High.

Since the establishment of the university observatory, in the year 1854, it has turned out many men who rank high in the planetary science. Three of these stand out in such prominence that it is necessary to mention them in order to make a complete article. Prof. C. L. Doolittle, director of the observatory at the University of Pennsylvania; R. S. Woodward, professor of applied mathematics and astronomy at Columbia university, New York, and Cleveland Abbe, professor of meteorology in the United States weather bureau at Washington.

Built in 1854.

The observatory was built in the year 1854, through the efforts of President Tappan, who succeeded in raising the money at Detroit. It is for this reason that the observatory is spoken of as the Detroit observatory at the University of Michigan. Mr. Henry N. Walker, of Detroit, at that time furnished the funds for the purchase of the meridian circle. The observatory was located where it still remains on one of the hills near the university, perhaps a mile from the campus.

The building is of the usual old-fashioned type, and on the central part is the dome for the equatorial, the meridian circle being in the east wing, and the library in the west. The walls are constructed of heavy masonry. In 1853 Dr. Tappan visited and consulted Eucke, then the director of the Berlin observatory, concerning the observatory at Ann Arbor, and through his advice a meridian circle was ordered of Pistor & Martins, and a clock of Tiede. At this time Francis Brunnow was first assistant to Eucke in the Berlin observatory, and it was probably through Dr. Tappan's acquaintance with Eucke that Brunnow was induced to come to Michigan in 1854 as her first professor of astronomy and director of her new observatory. It was then that a Fitz equatorial was purchased, which is in use at the present day, but Prof. Hall says its object glass is only a fair one, defining well but reflecting considerable light from the interior surfaces. On the whole, Prof. Hall thinks that the equatorial is of little use as it is at present. The meridian circle furnished by Pistor & Martins is of a very high type, as most of their instruments are. Prof. Hall says: "The telescope is not symmetrical in length with respect to the cube, which is some disadvantage, causing considerable excess of flexure at the longer end. As with a number of Pistor & Martins' meridian circles, the microscopes are on the ends of the arms, which are clamped to metal rings and let into stone piers to which are attached Y's which support the pivots. Although these arms seem to be steady, this method of construction has been generally abandoned, as there is danger that the arms may move."

Investigations Begun.

When Dr. Brunnow came to the observatory, investigations were at once begun. Observations of new asteroids and comets were undertaken, and a number of the asteroids which had lately been discovered were assigned to the Michigan observatory to be systematically followed. Observations of the Bradley stars were begun. During the period of 1853-1862, Brunnow published the Astronomical Notices, a journal designed especially to encourage the regular publication of the observations made at Ann Arbor. In 1859 tables of Victoria prepared by him were printed by the regents of the university. Although Brunnow never learned English well, his instruction to advance students who came under his supervision was of the highest order. He had been the favorite pupil of Eucke, pursuing his astronomy with him just after the great advance made by Gauss and Bessel. To him Prof. James B. Watson was indebted for his thorough instruction in astronomy, and in due time this student took charge of the observatory when Brunnow went to Albany in 1859.

Charts of Stars.

After his election Prof. Watson began a series of charts of stars lying near the ecliptic, probably with the idea of looking for asteroids. This laborious task occupied most of his time for ten years. His first asteroid, Eury-nome, was discovered in 1863. His last was found in China in 1877. In all, he discovered 22 of these bodies, and all but one were discovered with the Fitz equatorial of the University of Michigan. All this work was preparatory to Dr. Watson's famous "Theoretical Astronomy, treating of the theory and orbits of the asteroids and comets, and of special perturbations. For five years, beginning with 1869, Prof. Watson helped Prof. Benjamin Pierce in his work on the improvement of the lunar tables. These were never published. Prof. Watson took part in the eclipse expeditions to Iowa in 1869 and to Sicily in 1870, and had charge of the "Transit of Venus party" to China in 1874. In the expedition to Sicily he was the only one of the party who met with success. Instead of remaining with the rest of the party at the foot of Mount Aetna, where the clouds gathered every day at the time of the eclipse, he separated himself from them and secured his results through an unclouded atmosphere in another locality. His party to China was very successful, obtaining observations of all the contacts as well as securing a large number of photographs.

Prof. Watson's courses were popular with the students, and through his wide influence, he secured many positions for them in the government surveys, thereby enabling many men to pursue studies which they would have otherwise had to drop. In 1879 he went to Madison, where he died shortly.

Meteorology.

In the fall of this year Mark W. Harrington succeeded Watson as professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan. Under his direction the student's observatory planned by Watson was completed. Prof. Harrington's researches were mainly in the direction of meteorology. In 1884, he founded the American Journal of Meteorology, the first seven numbers of which he edited. He also made extensive investigations with regard to the climatic conditions of the United States, but especially of Michigan.

Prof. John M. Schaeberle, instructor in astronomy at this time, made many observations with the meridian circle of stars for the coast survey.

Mr. William W. Campbell, who succeeded Mr. Schaeberle as instructor, made many comet observations and computed ephemerides.

Prof. Hall at the Head.

When Prof. Harrington went to Washington in 1891 as chief of the weather bureau, William J. Hussey was appointed as his successor. Then came Prof. Hall, who is still at the head of astronomy in the University of Michigan, and is director of the observatory. He has undertaken with the meridian circle the determination of a long list of latitude stars, making the places differential with respect to the Berliner Jahrbuch stars.

A heliometer is greatly needed and probably one will be purchased in a short while. However, there is only one in use in this country, and that is at the Yale observatory. While there is no publication at present from the observatory, a great deal of its research work is published in the various astronomical journals.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

Paper Read at Conference of Charities Shows the Great Work Michigan is Doing.

At the conference of charities and corrections in Ionia Gov. Bliss' paper on "Michigan and Her Public Institutions" was read by Mrs. Bliss. He said:

As showing in part the great work Michigan is doing for its public institutions, I have been at some pains to collect statistics showing the number of inmates in state institutions according to the latest reports, which figures are as follows:

Eastern Michigan asylum	1,099
Michigan asylum	1,408
Northern Michigan asylum	1,094
U. P. hospital	401
State asylum	277
Home for feeble-minded and epileptic	419
School for the deaf	95
School for the blind	151
State public school for boys	675
Industrial home for girls	387
State prison	211
U. P. branch prison	400
State reformatory	886
Soldiers' home (including 67 women)	1,345
Prison population	1,345

In conclusion the governor emphasizes his conviction that there should be absolute classification of prisoners as among the prisons of the state, confining first offenders in the reformatory at Ionia, the so-called hardened class in the branch prison at Marquette, and intermediates in the state prison at Jackson.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Loses His Suit.

Frank Phiscator, the Klondike "gold king," must pay $7,500 to Joseph Coveney in accordance with a verdict returned in St. Joseph in the suit of the latter growing out of his alleged false imprisonment in the Yukon region. Coveney charged Phiscator with alienating the affections of Mrs. Coveney. He secured $9,500 from Phiscator, and then followed the latter to the Klondike, where he demanded $12,000 more. Coveney was put in jail and forfeited $7,500 in gold dust to secure his release. His suit was to recover this sum.

The Oldest Man.

Louis Rock, aged 107 years, the oldest man in Michigan, died at Ludington. He was born December 15, 1794, on a whaling vessel bound from Havre to Newfoundland. Rock was the first white man to enter the Yosemite valley. This was in the spring of 1844, when he was in charge of a hunting party, all of whom save himself were killed by Indians. Later he made his way back to Canada, and then removed to Ludington, where he had worked in the lumber camps up to a few years ago.

Executive Clemency.

Five convicts who were serving their first terms in prison here were paroled. They are: Thomas L. O'Keefe, sent from Gogebic, December, 1900, Marquette for 1 1/2 years for robbery; Mike Savant, sent from Gogebic county in February, 1896, to Marquette for ten years for manslaughter; George Green, sent from Oakland county, May, 1898, to the Ionia reformatory for seven years for perjury; Charles S. Ray, sent from Lenawee county, November, 1899, to the Ionia reformatory for four years for false pretenses; Willis O. Humphrie, sent from Arenac county, June, 1897, to six years at Jackson for criminal assault.

Wants $70,000.

Attorney General Knox has made another demand on Michigan for the payment of the $70,000 in tolls which the state had collected and had in its treasury when the St. Mary's Falls canal was turned over to the general government by the state. Previous attempts have been made to collect this sum from the state but the auditors general of the state have uniformly refused to disgorge, as Auditor Powers does now.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health from 85 observers in various portions of the state indicate that pneumonia and scarlet fever increased and whooping cough and inflammation of the bowels decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported at 194 places, measles at 20, typhoid fever at 68, whooping cough at 19, diphtheria at 43, scarlet fever at 106 and smallpox at 72 places.

Have 25,854 Members.

The biennial meeting of the Ancient Order of Gleaners, a farmers' fraternal insurance organization, which originated at Caro seven years ago, was held in Lansing and 300 delegates and visitors were present. Grant H. Slocum, founder and supreme secretary, reported, showing 548 local organizations and a membership of 25,854. In death claims, $191,445 has been paid.

To Protect Trade.

At a meeting in Grand Rapids representative Michigan hardware lumbermen practically completed plans for the incorporation of a $250,000 company to protect their interests in buying and selling. The company, it is planned, will handle the products of all the mills on the Michigan side of the great lakes.

News Briefly Stated.

The total iron ore shipment from Escanaba this season was 4,257,201 tons.

Mrs. S. M. Fowler died in Kalamazoo, aged 89. She leaves a husband of 84 and a daughter of 60. She had been an active worker in the Church of Christ since a girl.

The report of the state salt inspector shows the inspection in November to have been 533,317 barrels, of which Wayne county contributed 56,986 barrels and Saginaw 44,256 barrels.

The sawmill belonging to M. B. Harris at Harris has been burned. Loss, $10,000; no insurance. It will not be rebuilt.

Joseph Bohnsack died suddenly in Oklahoma. The remains reached Lapeer for burial. Deceased was a well known supervisor of the county and a veteran of the rebellion.

Through grief over the death of his wife, which occurred in Paw Paw in November last, Jacob J. Graver committed suicide in Chicago.

The cadets of the Michigan Military academy at Orchard Lake have voluntarily and unanimously adopted resolutions abolishing hazing and fagging in all forms. Every cadet in the school signed the resolutions.

A reorganization of the Rolling Mill company has been effected in Muskegon, by which the capital stock has been increased from $300,000 to $1,000,000.

STATE LANDS.

Commissioner's Report Shows That They Amounted to 419,048 Acres at Close of Fiscal Year.

Land Commissioner Wildey's annual report sent to the state printer shows that at the close of the fiscal year, June 30 last, the state held 419,048 acres of public land classified as follows: Primary school land, 71,322.94 acres; university land, 40 acres; agricultural college land, 61,984.86 acres; salt spring lands, 280 acres; asylum land, 1,002.98 acres; swamp land, 78,149.25 acres; tax homestead land, 206,358.45.

The number of acres of land on hand one year ago was 537,045.77. There was forfeited to the state during the year 518 acres of part paid lands; 1,872.88 acres of swamp homestead land was forfeited; 14,022.21 acres of tax homestead lands were deeded to the state by the auditor general; 16,189.72 acres of tax homestead lands reverted to the state and patents for 1,645.14 acres of land were received from the general government.

The land department sold 92,950.64 acres of land during the year, licensed 1,764 acres of swamp lands, registered 34,268.42 acres as homesteads and deeded 21,807.17 acres to homesteaders.

The state sold 628 acres of agricultural college land for a total of $4,082.15; 84,944 acres of primary school land for $126,142.96, 4,367 acres of swamp lands for $7,753.38 and 120 acres of asylum lands for $580. The total sales aggregated $138,562.40. The total receipts of the state land office for the year were $195,255.47, as follows:

Primary school lands, principal	$143,324.09
Interest and penalty	3,533.29
University lands	3,533.29
Agricultural college lands	18,555.80
Salt spring land	280.39
Swamp land	9,156.28
Asylum land	1,176.64
Normal school land	1,169.57
Dues and assets	61.08
State building land	149.74
Taxes on part-paid lands	944.19
Homestead fees	46.00
Trespass collections	11,743.97
Fees, plans, etc.	1,116.90
Tax homestead fees	3,416.33

The sales of swamp lands show a falling off as compared with the previous year of 10,214 acres, and cash receipts of $1,767. The sales of agricultural college lands also show a considerable decrease compared with the previous year, which is explained by the fact that the choicest lands that were open to entry had been previously disposed of. Since the close of the year covered by the report a large number of acres of primary school and agricultural college lands have been restored to the market and the sales have been heavy. This year will probably show a very large decrease in the number of acres of land held by the state.

FARMERS' CLUBS.

State Association Holds Its Annual Meeting in Lansing with a Large Delegation Present.

The State Association of Farmers' Clubs held its annual meeting in Lansing, with over 300 delegates present. President Ives, in his annual address, said:

"While I am not disposed to be pessimistic in my views, I am persuaded that in matters of economy and better government, things are not coming our way at any great rate of speed. Civilization has come to be the ark of the covenant with us Americans. We must keep taking on without regard to expense. Are there not some phases of civilization that are too exacting—that make men baldheaded and round-shouldered before their time?"

"That the farmers of this state have uniformly paid their full share of taxes, none will care to deny. I am prone to think, however, that we are wont to look in the wrong direction for relief from burdensome and unjust taxation. My observation has led me to conclude that prudence and economy in the management of township and county business, would bring to us greater reduction and more satisfactory results than will ever be realized by legislation. We may be legislated poor, we will never be legislated rich."

Attorney General Oren in an address on "Independent State Taxation," said:

"The first step toward improvement lies in the separation of state and local taxation, and the assignment to the former of independent state taxes and to the local municipalities of the property tax."

"Independent state taxes are the fairest and least burdensome. Collection would be cheaper," he said, "and the burden would fall upon the people in the form of indirect taxation."

The following officers were elected: President—A. B. Cook, Shlawassee. Vice President—Mrs. Helen Landon, Jackson.

Secretary—Miss Julia Ball, Livingston. Treasurer—Mrs. Mary Marshall, Oakland.

Directors—C. L. Baker, Lenawee; W. H. Horton, Livingston.

Resolutions were adopted as follows: Against the sale of intoxicating liquors; in favor of excluding all gambling devices from agricultural fairs; opposition to the calling of a special session of the legislature; in favor of having the farmers represented on the state tax commission; favoring more rigid laws for the improvement of highways; affirming previous resolutions in favor of the county salaries bill; opposition to an appropriation by congress for the irrigation of western lands; demanding the election of United States senators by the people; favoring the construction of a government cable; opposition to the granting of ship subsidies by congress; expressing sorrow for the assassination of President McKinley; demanding the passage of laws for the suppression of anarchy; and in favor of the retention of the present tariff on sugar.

THE STATE GRANGE.

Holds Its Annual Meeting in Lansing and Listens to Reports from Various Committees.

At the annual meeting in Lansing of the state grange the report of the executive committee, which is the platform of the grange, was made. The results in the way of legislation achieved by the grange were described at length by the committee, the establishment of the department of agriculture at Washington being considered one of its most notable achievements. Its accomplishments along the line of cooperation, the establishment of farmers' institutes, etc., were described. Substantial political reforms were said to have resulted from the labors of the grange, and the promise of good results yet to be accomplished was made. "The grange will champion no class legislation, no class political party," it was said, "but will boldly sustain the rights of every citizen to the untrammelled use of the ballot, so as to secure not only an honest, but a wise and economical administration of public affairs. Men and parties are nothing to intelligent, progressive farmers unless they are representatives of good government." Considering the taxation question the committee said: "Complaints are heard from the farmers all over this state of unequal taxation. No system yet devised seems to fairly distribute this onerous burden. We are of the opinion, however, that a lax enforcement of the law is where the trouble exists. Farmers must use the power which organization gives to enforce such legislation and execution of the laws we have so as to prevent the dishonest from shirking. Many of our officials seem to forget that our low prices for farm products mean diminishing ability to meet the tax burden. They should be taught a needed lesson. Every unnecessary expense should be cut off and no new scheme should be encouraged."

The legislative committee reviewed its work before the last legislature and said:

The passage of the anti-oleo bill was secured with much less opposition than had been anticipated, and the belief that the law would be sustained by the supreme court was expressed. Attention was called to the fact that at the last session, for the first time in this state, the legislature adopted a joint resolution in favor of the election of United States senators by direct vote. The success of the committee in securing an increased appropriation for farmers' institutes, and a permanent appropriation for the agricultural college, was referred to.

The executive committee made a report in which the ship subsidy scheme was strongly opposed. The committee also opposed the expenditure of public money for irrigation of arid lands. The grange insurance companies have proved a success, and after four years' trial have been able to carry insurance on farm buildings for one dollar per thousand valuation per year.

The state lecturer, Mrs. Frank Sanders, delivered her annual report to the grange. There are 500 subordinate granges in the state to-day, she said, and they stand as proof of active and vigilant work in the field.

The financial condition of the grange was reported by the treasurer. It showed receipts of $11,589.75 and disbursements of $8,169.71. The organization has a cash balance of $12,197.39, and notes and mortgages for $3,700 more.

The report of the secretary showed a gain of 5,661 new members during the year. There are now 457 granges in the state, with an aggregate membership of about 26,000.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

In favor of the Torrens system of registering land titles; approve the present optional law for the improvement of highways; indorse the school law which makes rural high schools optional with the townships; approve the position of the National grange in opposition to ocean ship subsidies; demand the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people; request the enactment of national law for the control of trusts; indorse the policies of President Roosevelt regarding trusts as outlined in his message; demanding the enactment of laws to curtail the liquor traffic and to prevent treating; express satisfaction with the results of free rural delivery; demand the passage of laws to punish anarchists; favor the present homestead laws of the state; suggest the passage of laws to prevent forest fires; favor a canal connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans; ask for the retention of the tariff on sugar; to appoint a standing committee on temperance; contributions to the McKinley memorial fund to be left to the executive committee; request the enactment of a law requiring a copy of the last school census to be kept in each school district; ask for a law to make it illegal for a publisher to forward a publication after the term for which it was subscribed for has expired, and favor the abolition of the county fee system.

New Kind of Granary.

The Carpenter-Cook company, wholesale grocers in Menominee, will shortly have something novel in the way of grain elevators. The company has bought a couple of sawmill "burners," tall, cylindrical affairs of iron, in which sawdust and other mill refuse is consumed, and will move them to its property, up the river, where, with a "burner" previously purchased, the three will provide an excellent place for the storage of grain.

Cremated While Drunk.

News has reached Newberry that a woodsman has been burned to death at the Danaher camps, about ten miles from here. The man, in a drunken stupor, was left by some of his companions in an empty camp building. During the night he evidently set fire to the structure and was too drunk to escape. Only a few charred bones were found the next morning. The identity of the man is not known here.

Mrs. Harriet Eliza Hauer, wife of Perry Hauer, died at her home on North street, Thursday night, after an illness of two years' duration, from cancer, aged 58 years. The funeral services were held at the house Saturday afternoon, Rev. F. A. Stiles officiating. Interment was in Oak Grove cemetery.

The incorporation of the World's Union of Christian Endeavor under the laws of Massachusetts is announced. Under the incorporation, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., was chosen president; J. Willis Beer, secretary, and William Shaw, treasurer. The united society reported a total of 61,920 societies, with a total membership of 3,820,000.

Some Michigan Central ticket offices are making use of a new machine for dating tickets. The device consists of a guide for the ticket, which carries it between two typed rollers, which not only date the ticket in embossed letters, but mill the edges. The method of changing the date line is simple, and the whole machine is a great improvement on the old style of using inky ribbons.

Ann Arbor Argus: Michael Brenner the agricultural implement dealer: "Farmers are selling their oats and feeding rye and bran and poor wheat. Oats are bringing 48 cents a bushel and rye 55 cents. Rye and bran make elegant feed. Two quarts of rye and one quart of bran is nice feed for horses. With the closeness of prices of oats and rye, and rye going so much farther than oats, it is the cheapest feed."

The statements of the two Chelsea banks made to the banking commissioner Dec. 10 show as follows: Chelsea Savings Bank—Commercial deposits and certificates of deposit, $121,024.54, savings deposits and certificates of deposit, $171,381.50; Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank—Commercial deposits and certificates of deposit, $36,120.84, savings deposits and certificates of deposit, $233,080.39; a total of $611,557.27. A goodly showing of wealth for this town.

The boy choir of the Congregational church made its first public appearance at the Christmas services Sunday evening. Clad in their cottas and cassocks they presented a neat and uniform appearance. Their singing was extremely good and when they acquire more confidence in themselves they will be able to do even better. This was shown by the marked improvement in rendering the last verse of the selection sung, Gounod's "Nazareth." Their singing at the children's entertainment Tuesday evening was better still. The members of the choir are Lee Chandler, Rollin Schenk and Elmer Winans sopranos, Howard Holmes, Kent Walworth, Edmund Robinson and George Bacon altos.

C. M. Stephens has a fine assortment of the Ann Arbor Gasoline Lamps for sale at A. E. Winans'. He has also the agency for the F. P. lighting system for Washtenaw county, the brightest and cheapest light in the market.

Foils a Deadly Attack.

"My wife was so ill that good physicians were unable to help her," writes M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., "but was completely cured by Dr. King's New Life Pills." They work wonders in stomach and liver troubles. Cure constipation, sick headache. 25 cents at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

Lima.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Easton spent Sunday in Dexter.

Mrs. W. W. Wedemeyer, of Ann Arbor, spent Friday here.

Oria Wood, of Chicago, came home Sunday to spend his vacation.

Edward Easton and Edward Dancer are quite sick with the mumps.

There was a large crowd at the Christmas entertainment Sunday evening.

Clarence Dixon and children, of Ann Arbor, spent Sunday with Mrs. A. Beach.

The Lima and Scio farmers' club will meet at Jay Smith's the third Wednesday in January.

Mrs. W. F. Hatch had a slight stroke of apoplexy Tuesday evening. She is somewhat better at present writing and will recover from it unless something more serious results. She was alone in the house when taken, Mr. Hatch being away west on a visit to their adopted daughter, Mrs. J. E. Reilly, and the domestic had gone home for a Christmas vacation.

The building committee of the board of supervisors, who are Supervisors Oesterlin, of Ann Arbor, Wood, of Saline, and Bacon, of Chelsea, met at the court house Monday. They let the contract for the tiling in the register of deed's office to Koch Bros., of Ann Arbor. The committee adjourned to the first Monday in January, when they will let the contract for the steel casings for the doors.

F. P. Glazier dispensed Christmas gifts with a liberal hand on Tuesday, when he presented every man in his employ, the editors of the local papers and several of his friends a fine fat turkey. One hundred and fifty turkeys in all were given away. Each turkey was neatly packed in a basket which also contained one of the handsome calendars of the Glazier Stove Company. For the Herald man's share of this generous gift, Mr. Glazier has our thanks.

FAREWELL

O! TWELVE" comes throbbing on the midnight air. A requiem—yes, the dying year is dead: Its records written, be they foul or fair, Its mysteries solved and all its riddles read. The New Year came with swift yet stealthy tread; No footfall reached the anxious, listening ear. As through the portals he so swiftly sped; But now his firm, majestic tread we hear. And so the years go, ever speeding by. And changes come, more strange than lapse of years. The past is gone: Why comes the deep-drawn sigh? Why is the eye bedimmed with unshed tears? It once was ours; we drank, aye, drained the cup. Quaffing with eager lips its happiness, Nor even dreamed so soon we must give up Those joys that came our daily life to bless. Shall all the ties be severed that have bound Friend unto friend, and very soul to soul? Shall some Lethaean waters there be found That over torn and wounded hearts shall roll. In deep forgetfulness assuaging pain, Healing all wounds, and leaving not a scar? Or shall the ties, the wounds, the scars remain? Shall pain be there our future bliss to mar? "The Oracles are dumb;" with bated breath We silent stand, awaiting some reply; It comes not, nor can come until kind death Shall touch our hearts and bid the clouds roll by. Enough—for when life's fateful strife is o'er, When earthly joys and pains are laid aside, When we look back from yonder distant shore And understand, we shall be satisfied. —Charles H. Allen, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

BACHELOR'S NEW YEAR.

IVEN a semi-blizzard and a somewhat pretentious sod house on a western prairie—pretentious because it contained two rooms instead of one, and each room had two windows of glass—and you have the setting of a rather interesting New Year celebration. Nor was the inside view of this sod house at all disappointing to expectations fired by the sight of those real windows of glass, for there was furniture more than the actual needs of the occupant demanded. To be sure, it was nearly all of home manufacture, but it was evidently the work of one who might have earned a living as a cabinet maker, and some of it was upholstered.

The owner of this house, Jack Walworth by name, sat poring over a cook-book. He was a merry-eyed young fellow of 25, tall, athletic, and in every way good to look at. Although many miles from any human being, so far as he knew, his hands were clean and his hair carefully brushed—two characteristics not very pronounced in the make-up of individuals in that part of the world, for they were nearly all men, and they needed the spur of a woman's approval to give them a proper regard for their personal appearance.

"These are mighty good recipes," murmured Jack, as he slowly turned the leaves of his book, "but they do require such an ocean of stuff! Why don't they write some especially for bachelors on prairie farms—lonely old bachelors who have a hankering for a holiday dinner like mother used to make?"

This was said half whimsically and half sadly, for to-morrow a new year was to begin, and Jack was homesick. There had been a time when he was quite sure that the opening day of this new year would see the beginning of a new life for him—a life in which Nellie Rogers would be the central figure. Jack turned to the fly leaf of his cook-book and re-read the words he had written there. "My first New Year resolution," he proclaimed, in a tone that ought to have frightened away the most persistent attack of the blues, "and I'm bound to live up to it. 'I, Jack Walworth, being of sound mind, etc., have resolved that my life shall not be spoiled by—Pshaw!" He threw the book on the table almost viciously. There was no fun in acting without an audience, and he must try in some other way to convince himself that he was not so very unhappy after all.

"I moped all day on both Thanksgiving and Christmas," he said, resolutely drawing the cook-book toward him again, "and I'm going to begin the New Year in a manly fashion! I'll stick to my resolution." Early that morning Jack had decided to cook a grand New Year dinner for himself, and the fine wild goose, shot for that purpose, now hung in the outer room all ready for the oven. But roast goose and baked potatoes, while good in their way, did not seem sufficiently festive to the fastidious Jack, whose New England mother had made a reputation for herself on her holiday dinners. His soul longed for something in the way of "goodies," and that is why he happened to be poring over a cook-book at an hour when he was usually sound asleep in his comfortable bed. "Mince pie is what I want," he said, "but my cupboard is against it. I've got the meat and vinegar and sugar, but there are no spices, and I'd have to use dried apple, and I'm not sure I know how the crust is made. I wonder if I could use cranberries and dried blackberries instead of raisins and currants? I have half a mind to try it, anyhow."

Suiting the action to the word, Jack donned his oil cloth apron, and was soon at work. There was plenty of meat and dried apples which he had cooked that day, and he was quite sure that he remembered to what degree of minuteness he used to chop such things for his mother. "If Nellie were here now," he thought, regretfully, "she would have had everything ready for our first holiday dinner together, and New Year is such a suitable day upon which to begin married life."

With this thought, the cheerful tune Jack was whistling came to an abrupt close, and an expression of sadness crept into his face; then the chopping bowl was pushed aside, and he buried his face in his hands. "It is useless," he groaned, "I can never get over it; I cannot be brave. Oh, Nellie, Nellie, I cannot live my life without you, and—I won't!"

Jack had decided to be a farmer without consulting the girl he loved, principally because he had never told her he loved her, and so had no claim upon her. He had believed that a man had no right to propose marriage to a girl until he had a home to offer her, and so he had gone alone into the prairie wilderness and taken up his battle against poverty single-handed. He had been unusually successful, and in three years he had secured the little home in which we find him, and he owed no man a penny. Then he had gone back to the old home, to find Nellie Rogers and ask her to be his wife. He had thought of her so long as mistress of that little sod house on the prairie that he could not believe her answer would be disappointing, and when it came it almost crushed him.

"I do care for you, Jack, but not enough to live on a farm, and in such a wilderness. I want to live in the city. If you loved me, why did you not ask me where I want to live? Should a woman not have a choice in the matter? If you still love me, Jack, why not sell the farm now?"

"It is my home, Nellie. I have worked three years to get it. I could not sell it now for what it is worth to me, and I have nothing else. Do you understand, dear? It is all the home I have to offer you."

It seemed to Jack that such an explanation ought to satisfy any girl, and when Nellie persistently refused to live on a farm, he could only conclude that she did not love him well enough to be his wife. He bade her a formal farewell and went back to his farm, angrily telling himself that the girl was not worth a second thought, and that any self-respecting man could make himself happy without her. That was in November, and Jack had kept himself very busy ever since, in order to forget what he called his folly, and this was the first time he had broken down. But he had built so many air castles about this first day of the new year—the first holiday which he and Nellie would spend in their new home—that it was rather difficult to celebrate the day alone, and as cheerfully as if nothing had happened to disturb his plans.

"If there were any hope that it might be different next year," he moaned; but Nellie's answer had been final. Next year, and all the years to come must be spent without her if he remained on the farm. "And it may be years before I can sell, and even then I must begin at the beginning and make another home. A girl would have to love a man very dearly to wait so long, and she said, "for I had made up my mind to spend New Year with you. This is my Uncle Ben, and he is a minister, and when he saw I was determined to come, of course, he decided to come, too!" "What else could I do?" murmured the old man, deprecatorily; "Nellie is so headstrong, and so—so very unconventional!" "And as soon as I can stand, Jack," continued Nellie, paying no attention to the interruption, "he will marry us—that is, if you have no other sweetheart." "I told her," interrupted Uncle Ben, "that it looked exactly as if she were throwing herself at you." "And I told him," answered Nellie, with a happy little laugh, "that that was exactly what I meant to do. I said you had once thrown yourself at me, and that this was the only way I could get even."

What Jack said in reply would look very silly on paper, but Nellie liked it, and Uncle Ben pretended not to hear. The good old man was relieved, however, when the lovemaking was interrupted by a shout from outside, accompanied by a vigorous demand for assistance, that sent Jack hurrying out once again into the whirling snow.

A neighbor had found a runaway team that he wished to leave in Jack's barn, for it was too much trouble to lead it through the storm. "It is our team," exclaimed Uncle Ben. "We got out to walk, for Nellie feared her feet were freezing, and the team got away from us. We tried to find it, but the storm increased so furiously we couldn't see."

The neighbor and his companion were easily induced to come in and remain until daylight, which was now close at hand. They were needed as witnesses to the marriage ceremony, and even had the weather made driving a pleasure they could not have resisted so interesting an experience.

Four men and one woman sat down to the wedding breakfast, which consisted of baked beans, corn bread and coffee, and it is safe to say that never a wedding breakfast was eaten by a jollier company. "And thus," said Jack, melodramatically, "eth a happy bachelor's New Year celebration."

Uncle Ben went back to his work in the city that day, for the hired team must be returned to its owners, and his poor people could not be neglected. But there were tears in his eyes as he thought of the little world of happiness he was leaving behind him—tears shed in self-pity—for Uncle Ben had never had a home. He smiled, however, when he recalled Jack's account of his search for recipes suited to a bachelor's holiday dinner, and Nellie's reassuring reply that there was sufficient material in the house for a plum pudding and a mince pie, too.

"I am happy enough," Jack had replied, "to dine like a king on cornmeal pancakes; perhaps Nellie's swell dinner would be more than this feeble heart of mine could bear."

"Don't take it to your heart, then," was Nellie's saucy response; "I want that place myself." "Verily," said Uncle Ben, as he urged the horses into a trot, "verily, a dinner of herbs where love is—bless my soul, nags! can't you understand that I have a New Year sermon to preach to-day?"—Sidney Sieyes, in Minneapolis Housekeeper.

LONG'S DECISION GIVEN.

Secretary of Navy Approves Findings of Court of Inquiry—A Rebuke for Admiral Dewey.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Secretary Long has disposed finally of the Schley case so far as the navy department is concerned, by acting upon the findings and conclusions of the court of inquiry. He approved the findings of fact and the opinion of the full court; he approved the majority opinion where there is a difference in the court; he holds that the court could not have entered into a consideration of the question of command at the battle of Santiago, and finally he accepts the recommendation that no further proceedings shall be had.

The secretary also has declined the application of Admiral Sampson's counsel to enter upon an inquiry into the question of command and has notified Admiral Schley's counsel of that fact as a reason for declining to hear them on that point.

SECRETARY OF NAVY LONG.

Secretary Long's approval of the majority report was as follows:

"The department has read the testimony in this case, the arguments of counsel at the trial; the court's findings of fact, opinion and recommendation; the individual memorandum of the presiding member; the statement of exceptions to the said findings and opinion by the applicant; the reply to said statement by the judge advocate of the court and his assistant, and the brief this day submitted by counsel for Rear Admiral Sampson traversing the presiding member's view as to who was in command at the battle of Santiago.

"And after careful consideration the findings of fact and the opinion of the full court are approved.

"As to the points on which the presiding member differs from the majority of the court, the opinion of the majority is approved.

"As to the further expression of his views by the same member with regard to the questions of command on the morning of July 3, 1898, and of the title to credit for the ensuing victory, the conduct of the court in making no finding and rendering no opinion on those questions is approved—being it evidence on these questions, during the inquiry, having been excluded by the court.

"The department approves the recommendation of the court that no further proceedings be had in the premises.

"The department records its appreciation of the arduous labors of the whole court. (Signed) "JOHN D. LONG, "Secretary of the Navy."

Washington, Dec. 23.—The following order was made public Saturday afternoon by Secretary of War Root:

"Navy Department, Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Rear Admiral A. S. Barker, Commandant Navy Yard, New York.—Sir: I am directed by the president to ask Edgar S. Maclay, special laborer, general storekeeper's office, navy yard, New York, to send in his resignation. Very respectfully, (Signed) "JOHN D. LONG, "Secretary."

Secretary Root was designated to make public the request for Mr. Maclay's resignation after a conference with the president.

FIGHTING IN PHILIPPINES.

Several Slight Engagements in Which Insurgents Are Defeated by Americans.

Manila, Dec. 23.—Capt. John S. Park, Jr., with 30 men of the Twenty-first infantry, encountered 60 insurgents last week at Alaminos, in Laguna province. Four of the enemy were killed, several guns were captured and their barracks was destroyed.

Gen. Bell, who is in command of the American forces in Batangas province, Luzon, has praised Lieut. James D. Tilford who, while scouting with troop D, of the First cavalry, routed an insurgent force in that province. Lieut. Tilford located a rebel stronghold on top of a hill near the town of Batangas. He surrounded the enemy under cover of night and attacked them at daylight. Their surprise was complete. Nineteen insurgents were killed while attempting to escape. Lieut. Tilford captured 16 rifles and 500 rounds of ammunition.

Lieut. John D. Hartman, of the First cavalry, during an expedition which lasted several days, encountered the enemy six separate times without losing one of his men. He destroyed several barracks.

Great Increase Shown. Chicago, Dec. 23.—In the 11 months ended on November 30, 1901, the earnings of 100 roads increased $68,000,000, compared with an increase of $45,600,000 in 1890, $52,000,000 in 1899, and $39,500,000 in 1898. Twenty roads out of the number have increased over $1,000,000 each in 11 months.

THE BEET-SUGAR INDUSTRY.

Messrs. Oxnard and Cutting's Views on the Subject.

The following editorial appeared in the New York Evening Post of December 12 last, and as every household, in fact, every man, woman and child is interested in sugar, it being one of the most important articles of daily food, our readers will thank us for reproducing this highly interesting editorial:

The Evening Post bids the heartiest welcome to every American industry that can stand on its own bottom and make its way without leaning on the poor rates. Among these self-supporting industries, we are glad to know, is the production of beet-sugar. At all events, it was such two years ago. We publish elsewhere a letter written in 1899, and signed by Mr. Oxnard and Mr. Cutting, the chiefs of this industry on the eastern side of the Rocky mountains, showing that this was the happy condition of the trade at that time. If parties masquerading as beet-sugar producers are besieging the president and congress at this moment, and pretending that they will be ruined if Cuban sugar is admitted for six months at half the present rates of duty, their false pretenses ought to be exposed.

The letter of Messrs. Oxnard and Cutting was probably written for the purpose of inducing the farmers of the Mississippi valley to go more largely into the cultivation of beets for the sugar factories. This was a laudable motive for telling the truth and showing the large profits which awaited both the beet-grower and the manufacturer if the industry were perseveringly and intelligently prosecuted. To this end it was pointed out that farmers could clear $65 per acre by cultivating beets, and might even make $100. But in order to assure the cultivator that he would not be exposed to reverses by possible changes in the tariff, they proceeded to show that the industry stood in no need of protection.

The beet-sugar industry, these gentlemen say, "stands on as firm a basis as any business in the country." They point out the fact—a very important one—that their product comes out as a finished article, refined and granulated. It is not, like cane-sugar grown in the West India islands, a black and offensive paste, which must be carried in wagons to the seaboard and thence by ships to the United States, where, after another handling, it is put through a costly refinery, and then shipped by rail to the consumer, who may possibly be in Nebraska, alongside a beet-sugar factory which turns out the refined and granulated article at one fell swoop. Indeed, the advantages of the producer of beet-sugar for supplying the domestic consumption are very great. We have no doubt that Messrs. Oxnard and Cutting are within bounds when they say that "sugar can be produced here cheaper than it can be in Europe." The reasons for this are that—

"The sugar industry is, after all, merely an agricultural one. We can undersell Europe in all other crops, and sugar is no exception."

It follows as naturally as the making of flour from wheat. If we can produce wheat cheaper than Europe, then naturally we can produce flour cheaper, as we do.

But the writers of the letter do not depend upon a priori reasoning to prove that they can make sugar at a profit without tariff protection. They point to the fact that under the McKinley tariff of 1890, when sugar was free of duty, the price of the article was 4 cents per pound. Yet a net profit of $3 per ton was made by the beet-sugar factories under those conditions, not counting any bounty on the home production of sugar. They boast that they made this profit while working under absolute free trade; and they have a right to be proud of this result of their skill and industry. Many beet-sugar factories had been started in bygone years, back in the sixties and seventies of the nineteenth century, and had failed, because the projectors did not understand the business. Since then great progress has been made, both here and abroad, in the cultivation and manipulation of the beet. What was impossible thirty years ago is now entirely feasible. The industry is already on a solid and enduring basis. There are factories in the United States, these gentlemen tell us in their letter, capable of using 350,000 tons of beets per annum at a profit of $3 per ton, and this would make a profit of $1,050,000 as an income to be earned under absolute free trade.

It must be plain to readers of this letter, signed by the captains of the beet-sugar industry, that the people in Washington who are declaiming against the temporary measure which the president of the United States urges for the relief of the Cuban people are either grossly ignorant of the subject, or are practising gross deception. The tenable ground for them is to say: "Other people are having protection that they do not need, and therefore we ought to have more than we need." This would be consistent with the letters of Messrs. Oxnard and Cutting, but nothing else is so.

MILES IS REPROVED.

Taken to Task for Expressing Opinion on Schley Verdict.

He Receives a Severe Personal Reprimand from President Roosevelt and is Criticized in Letter from Secretary Root.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Sensational incidents stirred civil and official circles of the capital Saturday.

Secretary Root sent a formal letter to Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles censuring him for publicly indorsing Admiral Dewey's verdict in the Schley case.

President Roosevelt reprimanded Gen. Miles when the latter visited the white house.

Gen. Miles was reprimanded because he gave public expression in a newspaper interview of his conviction that Admiral Dewey's verdict in the Schley inquiry was just and accorded more nearly with the facts disclosed at the inquiry than the verdict of Admirals Ramsay and Benham. The soldier's first reprimand came from the president during a visit which Gen. Miles paid to the white house Saturday morning. The second came in the form of a letter signed by Secretary Root.

Reprimanded by President.

The president had seen both letters when Gen. Miles arrived at the white house. At the moment the general came in he was talking with several representatives about an unimportant political matter. Dismissing them hastily, he commanded that the lieutenant general of the army be admitted to the executive office. Gen. Miles instantly appeared at the door. The president hastened to meet Gen. Miles. "General," he cried, in a voice that was distinctly heard by the 20 or more representatives and senators in the outside lobby, "I was pained to read in the newspaper an interview attributed to you in which you criticized severely and unnecessarily a coordinate branch of the government. You have no business interfering in the affair, which, as you knew, was still pending before the navy department. You did wrong in expressing any opinion that was likely to stir up strife between the two branches of the military service. You know how necessary it is to preserve harmony and friendship between those services and how easy it is to disturb that harmony."

Gen. Miles, having presented his two letters and having made his oral statement, took his rebuke like a soldier and said nothing. He wilted as a matter of course, because the president was terribly in earnest and spoke from deep conviction of the proprieties of the case.

Root Uses Strong Language.

In reply to Gen. Miles' letter acknowledging the published interview, and his explanation of his motives, Secretary Root sent the following letter to the general:

"Sir: By direction of the president I communicate to you his conclusion upon your course in the interview to which your attention was called by my letter of the 19th inst.

"Your explanation of the public statement made by you is not satisfactory. You are in error if you suppose that you have the same right as any other citizen to express publicly an opinion regarding official questions pending in the course of military discipline. The established and invariable rules of official propriety necessary to the effective discipline of the service impose limitations upon the public expressions of military officers with which your long experience should have made you familiar.

"Your duty is to express your opinion on official matters when called upon by your official superiors or in due course of your official reports and recommendations, and not otherwise. The first article of the regulations governing the army of the United States provides:

"Deliberations and discussions among military men conveying praise or censure or any mark of approbation toward others in the military service are prohibited."

"This provision has been part of the army regulations for at least half a century, and the highest obligation to observe it rests upon the officers whose high rank should make them examples to their subordinates. Any other rule of action in the military service would be subversive of discipline, and it will not be tolerated in any officer of whatever rank.

"The present facts are that for several years there had been an unfortunate and bitter controversy in the navy department—a controversy deplored even by the participants, as tending to bring the service into disesteem at home and abroad, and to destroy those relations of mutual confidence and friendship between naval officers which the interests of effective service require.

"In this controversy the army had not been involved and no bar had been raised to that good feeling and friendly relations between all the officers of the navy and army which is essential to the successful and harmonious cooperation of the two services in preparation and in action.

"A court of inquiry had been held on the matters in controversy and a report had been made, in which one member of the court had dissented in some particulars from the many, and the report was pending before the revising authority. At this point you, the lieutenant general of the army, saw fit to make a public expression of your opinion as between the majority and the minority of the court, accompanied by a criticism of the most severe character, which could not fail to be applied by the generality of the readers to the naval officers against whose view your opinion was expressed. It is of no consequence on whose side your opinion was, or what it was. You had no business in the controversy, and no right, holding the office which you did, to express your opinion. Your conduct was in violation of the regulations above cited and of the rules of official propriety, and you are justly liable to censure which I now express. Very respectfully,

ELIHU ROOT
"Secretary of War."

BEAUTY HINTS.

A few drops of benzoïn dropped into water until it looks milky makes a pleasant wash for the face and is very good for the skin.

A cold-water compress is an excellent remedy for sore throat. Wring out the bandage fairly dry, wrap around the throat, and cover with a dry piece of flannel.

Bathing often induces sleep. Either a hot or a cold plunge is frequently efficacious. Care must be taken not to prolong the bath too much and a sponge bath or foot bath will answer the purpose in houses where there is no bathroom. After a brisk rubbing with towels retire to bed immediately and sleep will probably follow.

If a child—or, indeed, anyone else—receives a blow over the eye which is likely to cause a "black eye," there is no superior remedy and no more likely preventive than well buttering the parts two or three inches around the eye with fresh butter, renewing it every few minutes for the space of an hour or two. This remedy is equally good for any bruise not broken.

A BLACKSMITH'S STORY.

Goodland, Kan., Dec. 23.—N. E. Albertson, a local blacksmith, had almost decided to give up his shop altogether on account of Rheumatism which had crippled him so that at times he could not use his hammer.

His shoulders and arms were so sore that he couldn't sleep at night. He had suffered for years, but was getting gradually worse till at last he had about made up his mind to give up. But just then he heard of some wonderful cures of Rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills and thought he would try for a cure once more.

They cured him completely and he has not a trace of Rheumatism left. The shop will not be given up and Mr. Albertson may be seen there any day hard at work as if nothing ever ailed him.

The Hello Habit.

A nervous-looking girl consulted a doctor, who asked her what she was suffering from. Her answer was as follows:

"I am a telephone girl, doctor, and the work is a terrible strain on my nerves. The monotony of having a receiver constantly at my ears, and saying 'Hello' tells upon my nerves. When off duty I am always having 'Hello' ringing in my ears, and I am constantly saying it. When I go to bed I wake from my sleep saying 'Hello!' and when I kneel down to say my prayers I instinctively say 'Hello!' before I commence them."—Sporting Times.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

DRS. KENNEDY & KERGAN

Specialists in the Treatment of Nervous, Blood, Private and Sexual Diseases of Men and Women. 25 Years in Detroit.

No Names used without Written Consent. Cures Guaranteed.

Thousands of young and middle-aged men are annually swept to a premature grave through early abuse or later excesses. Clin-Anderson was one of the victims, but was rescued in time. He says: "I learned an evil habit. A change soon came over me.
I could feel it; my friends noticed it. I became nervous, despondent, gloomy, had no ambition, easily tired, evil forebodings, poor circulation, pimples on face, back weak, dreams and drains at night, tired and weak mornings, burning sensation. To make matters worse, I became reckless and contracted a blood disease.
I tried many doctors and medical firms—all failed till Drs. Kenedy & Kergan took my case. In one week I felt better, and in a few weeks was entirely cured. They are the only reliable and honest Specialists in the country."
