VOTING MACHINE FOR SYLVAN.

The Township Board is Debating on the Question of Purchasing One.

D. H. C. Bowen, of Tecumseh, the representative of the Abbott Voting Machine Co., was in Chelsea Thursday of last week, interviewing the members of the township board relative to purchasing one of the voting machines for use in this municipality. He offers to put in the machine and let it be tried at the two elections to be held this spring, and if the machine proves to be satisfactory and do what the company claims for it the township may purchase it for $500, payable in two installments. He also stated that should the company make any further improvements in their machines the same would be put on the machine to be purchased free of cost.

Voting machines are the coming means of recording the vote of the electors, they have been adopted in many cities and towns and have proven themselves uniformly successful and decidedly economical. They save the money paid each year for a small army of clerks, canvassers, commissioners and inspectors, the cost of the tickets, and give the result of the election in about an hour after the voting is over, thus saving the long, wearisome wait that always occurs at every election. By all means let the board close up the deal and let us have a voting machine.

McKinley Memorial Program.

The Bay View Reading Circle had a particularly excellent program at the meeting held with Miss Jessie Everett at her home on East Summit street, Monday evening and the occasion was one that will long be remembered by the ladies of the circle and their invited guests, several of whom were gentlemen. It was a McKinley memorial program, and the circle at its meeting last week voted $5 of its funds towards the memorial fund.

The program opened with the singing of one of the late president's favorite hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light," by the circle and guests. This was followed by a paper on "The early life of McKinley," by Mrs. J. H. Hollis. It was an extremely pleasing paper being partly of a reminiscence nature, Mrs. Hollis being a connection of the family and well acquainted with the president in his younger days. A quartette, Mesdames A. J. Congdon and E. Keenan and Misses Jessie Everett and Lillian Gerard, next sang "Some Time We'll Understand" in a very feeling manner. Mrs. Wm. Bacon read a good paper on "McKinley as a Congressman," and Mrs. A. J. Congdon sang the touching piece "Beautiful Isle," which was sung at McKinley's funeral. Next came a paper on "McKinley as President," by Miss Nellie Hall. "Nearer, My God to Thee," arranged for a quartette, was sung by Mesdames F. A. Stiles, Keenan, and Misses Everett and Gerard. The last poem read by McKinley and which he quoted in his speech the day he was assassinated, was read by Mrs. A. A. Van-Tyne. The eulogy on McKinley was given by Mrs. M. G. Hill. Mrs. F. A. Stiles sang "Good-bye to all, good-bye," and Mrs. H. S. Holmes read a collection of three short poems, after which the quartette sang "The Christian's Good-night," which brought to a close a fine program and an enjoyable evening.

Death of Mrs. Jane Prudden.

Mrs. Jane Prudden died at the home of her son William Denman, on Jackson street, Sunday, Jan. 26, aged 80 years, 2 months and 23 days. The funeral services were held at the Baptist church yesterday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. F. A. Stiles. The remains were interred in Oak Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Prudden was born in New Jersey Nov. 8, 1821. She came to Sylvan with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Depew, in 1833, being the oldest of nine children, three of whom are still alive. In 1844 she was married to William Denman, by whom she had three children. In 1859 her husband started for California with her brother. He took sick and died and was buried at sea. In 1854 she married Edmund Prudden who died in 1871. Two children were the result of this union. Mrs. Prudden united with the Baptist church early in the 30's, the church worship being then held in a log school house in Lima, at what is now called Jerusalem. With the exception of a few years residence in another state she had always been a member of this church. She was the last of the old band of members who first belonged to the church.

TWO SURPRISES.

One for a Wedding Anniversary and the Other for a Birthday.

Thursday, Jan. 23, was the 15th anniversary of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hummel, and mindful of that fact, in the evening a party of 25 of their friends gave them a very pleasant surprise party at their home on North Main street. The evening was spent in playing progressive pedro until about 12 o'clock, when the ladies served oysters, cake and coffee, which had been provided by them. After supper all repaired to the parlor for a little social chat, when Mrs. Frank Carlinger in a few well chosen words presented Mr. and Mrs. Hummel with a set of silver spoons, after which all returned to their homes feeling happier for the pleasant evening spent. It was an occasion that will long be remembered with kindly feelings by Mr. and Mrs. Hummel.

The L. C. B. A. tendered Mrs. C. Sprinkle a surprise party last Saturday evening on her birthday. The committee in charge consisted of Mesdames Raftery and Foster, and Miss Kate Miller. Elegant refreshments were provided and the progressive pedro was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Sprinkle received a handsome salad dish as a present. Vocal and instrumental music was rendered, and the happy company broke up at a late hour wishing their friends many happy returns of the day.

Trolley Ride and Supper.

The members of the St. Mary's Literary Club took a trolley ride to the home of Miss Rose Conway in Sylvan, on Monday evening, which they greatly enjoyed. Arrived there, after the usual lessons a spelling contest for a prize given by the president, Mrs. J. E. McKune, was arranged, and the prize was won by Miss Margaret Miller. During the evening the ladies were entertained with vocal and instrumental music by the Conway family and others. They were then invited to a surprise in the dining room, where the table was laid with numerous delicacies. After partaking of the repast a motion that the club meet with Miss Conway every time was made and unanimously carried. The party returned home by the 11:10 p. m. motor, fully agreed that Miss Conway was a most capable hostess.

Telephone service is crippled outside and mails are from four to six hours late. Inter-urban service on the Houghton County street railway is suspended. The whole Keweenaw peninsula is storm swept, and reports from outlying points, such as Eagle River, state that conditions along the lake shore are appalling.

It reports a minimum of 20 at Sioux City and estimates the average for the state at about two degrees colder. Owing to the sudden change in temperature there is considerable suffering.

Kansas City, Jan. 28.—Sunday night and Monday morning was the coldest experienced in this part of the southwest this winter, with the following temperatures reported: Clinton, Mo., 17 degrees below zero; Lawrence, Kan., 16 below; Abilene, Kan., 15 below; Kansas City, 7 below. ### THE COLOMBIAN WAR.

Several Engagements Are Reported in Which Liberal Forces Were Successful.

New York, Jan. 28.—Gen. Modesto Garces, special delegate in charge of foreign affairs of the liberal party of Colombia, said Monday that he had received cable advices from Curacao, the headquarters of his party, saying that the army under Gen. Soto met and defeated the conservative forces, led by Gen. Franjaver, and a Jesuit priest, Padre Espana, after a bloody engagement lasting all day, near La Cruz, 35 miles south of Bogota, Gen. Soto captured a large quantity of arms and ammunition and several cannon.

Among the killed was Padre Espana. Another engagement was at Usme, about 30 miles east of Bogota, in which the liberals were also successful. Gen. Garces' advices also state that another liberal army, under Gen. Bolinas, combined with forces from Cauca and Tolima, has just entered from the south the department of Antioquia, formerly a stronghold of the conservatives, and captured the important city of Salamina, and that it is now in the possession of the liberals. The city of Remedios, on the Magdalena river, about 22 miles south of Barranquilla, has also been captured by another branch of the liberal forces.

Young Man at Eagle Mills, O., Kills Brother of Young Woman He Was Escorting.

Chillicothe, O., Jan. 28.—Joseph Cox shot and killed Howard Ratcliff at church Sunday evening at Eagle Mills, 15 miles east of here. Cox had been paying attention to Ratcliff's sister and Ratcliff strongly objected. He fell in the aisle and expired amid the shrieks of terrified women. Both men are of respectable families and both are school teachers. Ratcliff married a sister of his murderer. Cox was arrested and taken to McArthur Monday.

Kruger Not Likely to Come.

The Hague, Jan. 28.—The rumors that Mr. Kruger, having received invitations from Chicago, New York and Philadelphia to visit those cities, would probably start upon an American tour next April arose from the efforts of some pro-Boers who are anxious to further, energetically, their propaganda in the United States. It is probable that some Boer delegates will start for America in the spring, but unless there occurs a material improvement in the health of Mr. Kruger, it will be physically impossible for him to be a member of this party.

Boers Surprised.

Prétoria, Jan. 28.—Gen. Bruce Hamilton, by a clever night march, surprised a laager between Ermelo and Bethel, in the Transvaal colony, and charged the Boers, who fled in all directions and were pursued many miles. ### TRAIN HELD UP.

Band of Robbers Commit a Bold Theft in South Carolina—Amount Stolen Not Known.

Branchville, S. C., Jan. 28.—A carefully planned and audacious express robbery took place about seven o'clock Monday evening on the Southern railroad, when the passenger train from Charleston reached nearly the exact site of the successful robbery of two years ago, five miles from Branchville. Seven or eight men were riding on the platform between the engine and baggage car concealed by the darkness. None was masked. At the 55 mile board two men crawled over the tender and covered the engineer, John Reynolds, with Winchester. They fired two shots, one ball passing through Reynolds' cap. Fireman Cobb escaped by jumping off. Conductor Black, who ran out, was covered and ordered back.

By order of these men, a brakeman uncoupled the express, mail and baggage cars, which were taken to Fifty-eight station, leaving the rest of the cars on the main line. Here several shots were fired into the express car and one man climbed up, covered Express Messenger Hall with a Winchester and compelled him to open the door. Three men entered the car and stripped the local safe. After threatening Hall with instant death if he did not open the through safe, and finding he knew nothing of the combination, the safe was rolled out on the platform. Then the engineer was ordered to return with the three cars to the train, and he obeyed, bringing the train without further incident to Branchville.

Nothing was seen of the men or the safe on passing Fifty-eighth. There was only a small amount of booty in the local safe, and no one here knows the contents of the through safe. No mail or baggage was touched and no passengers were molested. The robbers took their pistols from the only employees who were armed, and resistance was out of the question. No measures have been made so far to follow the robbers. It is hoped that bloodhounds will be on hand this morning.

The leader is supposed to be Barton Warren. Warren was arrested, charged with having, single-handed, robbed the Southern express car just below Branchville in the fall of 1899. The case resulted in a mistrial. Bail was furnished. A few days before the next session of the court, five months ago, he killed Thomas Watson, his former friend, but one of the principal witnesses against him. Warren has been at large since, and some say that he has been seen in Branchville at night several times since, though $800 reward had been offered for his capture.

STAGE GOES THROUGH ICE.

Driver and Horses Lost and Three Passengers Rescued with Great Difficulty.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 28.—In a fierce blizzard that raged Sunday night one of the stages that runs across the river between here and the Canadian Soo went through the ice. John Lebl, the driver, was swept under the ice with the horses and sleigh and drowned, while the three passengers were rescued with great difficulty.

When about half way across the river Driver Lebl lost the regular track owing to the blinding snow. Three of the six passengers became frightened and left the sleigh, running behind it. Suddenly the sleigh disappeared and from a great hole in the ice came cries for help from the other three passengers. The horses, sleigh and driver went under the ice almost instantly and were carried away by the current. The passengers on the ice threw their fur overcoats to their companions struggling in the water and with much difficulty succeeded in getting them out on the solid ice. The chilled and half-drowned men were then taken to the hospital.

AWARDED DAMAGES.

Ex-Brakeman Is Given Sum of $15,000 by a Jury for Loss of a Leg.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—The jury in the United States circuit court awarded Willey Nash, of Jonesboro, Ark., $15,000 damages in his suit against the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroad for the loss of one leg, which was so badly injured that amputation was necessary. Nash at the time of the accident was a resident of Springfield, and on June 24, 1899, was rear brakeman on a freight train. A car was thrown from the track near Jerseyville, Nash being thrown to the ground. He alleged the accident was caused by a defect in the car.

Where Old Tars Study Problems in Lake Navigation

NE of the oddest schools in Chicago is one whose pupils are largely drawn from the ranks of young chaps who have almost reached the age of three-score and ten. The chief maxim of this school is: "Never too old to learn." The grizzled and weather-beaten old boys who attend this school are quite as full of their pranks as they were when they learned their lessons back in the district schools; but they are in it this time for business, and no mistake!

No. They are not studying "reading, writing and arithmetic," but they are learning what to do the next time they are caught some dark night in a fog on the lake—for they are mostly captains and mates of lake vessels, and the school which they attend is the Chicago nautical school.

Lieut. William J. Wilson, who is at the head of the United States hydrographic office in Chicago, is the genial instructor of this school, and he graduates 30 or 40 lake captains and mates every winter. It is unique and interesting to see with what zest these men who have weathered innumerable lake gales enter upon their studies. Every afternoon and evening Lieut. Wilson's school presents a scene as animated as any "fo'castle" in existence. Knotty problems of navigation are discussed and argued about with great vehemence, and Principal Wilson is invariably called upon to settle the disputed point. The stories which are here exchanged bristle with seafaring terms, and an observer might "soak in" enough nautical knowledge to enable him to run at least an imaginary vessel around the lakes without mishap—something which he will surely do at night after a turn at the school, if he is given to dreaming.

"The fact is," said Lieut. Wilson, "these fellows who are running the boats on the big lakes are the very best pilots in the world, and have more practical knowledge of the various courses and of the weather signs than I ever hope to have—but I can usually teach them something when it comes to the actual science of navigation. You see, nautical science has progressed in the last few years like almost everything else, and these grizzled veterans who have stood the storms of years are anxious to keep up on these things."

"To be sure, they have been running their vessels all these years on an excellent system, so far as guess-work and human calculation can go, and their method works excellently in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred; but the trouble is they haven't a system that is infallible—that will work one hundred times out of every hundred. In times past there wasn't one lake captain in fifty who knew how to allow for the deflection of the compass needle caused by the magnetism in the ship itself. So long as these men ran wooden boats they got along well enough, but now that steel has become a factor of so much importance in the construction of their vessels their system is not nearly so reliable as it used to be. Of course they have the advantage of practical experience—which is more important than mere theoretical knowledge—but the time is likely to come when they will need something more reliable than their own senses. They have as good eyesight as they ever had, and it doesn't take very much common sense to tell them to put the wheel over when they see that their vessel is running to shore—but suppose they are caught in a dense fog? In the latter case they would keep on following the regular course without a thought that their needle might be deflected half a point by the iron or steel in the ship or in the cargo. As a result the vessel is really, half a point from the true course, with an imminent likelihood of running upon the rocks. If a man has experience he may be a good pilot in local waters, but if he also has a good understanding of nautical science, he is a better one; and, more than this, he is an able navigator in any water in which he may find himself. I have graduates who are running vessels in all of the various waters of the world, both inland and on the oceans. Here," he concluded, "is one of the best captains on the lakes; ask him what he thinks about it."

Thus appealed to, Capt. H. related an incident which gives an idea of the old method which has been in vogue on the lakes as well as of the value of the new.

"A friend of mine," said he, "was making into the Chicago harbor one night and he was accompanied by another man who has sailed these lakes for years. One of them had taken the pains to brush up his knowledge with our friend Wilson here and the other had stuck to the old way."

"The one that had been to school wanted to show his friend a new turn or two, and so he made his reckoning and set the wheel and said to the other:

"I'll bet you ten dollars that when we see the Chicago revolving light it'll be dead ahead."

"Course the other man thought he was a bloomin' idiot to make such a statement when everybody knew that a man has to feel his way along from light to light and never was dead sure where he'd see the next light, so he bet the ten dollars quick. Well, when they first saw the light

CIVILIZING THE INDIANS.

Orders for the Males to Have Their Hair Cut—Painting Faces and Holding Dances Prohibited.

The commissioner of Indian affairs has issued an order which in effect compels all male Indians in the United States to have their hair cut frequently, or at least not to wear it long, and as the Carlisle football team is not expected the order probably applies to them, too. Commissioner Jones hopes by the order to assist the wards of the government in their advancement toward civilization, says the Washington report.

The order is addressed to the various Indian agents throughout the country, and directs them to induce the male Indians under their charge to cut their hair, using force only when necessary. He says that it will require considerable tact and perseverance to carry out the order, and suggests the withholding of supplies from recalcitrant Indians until they comply, and the discharge of those who are employed by the government unless they appear with shorn locks. No long-haired Indians are to be employed.

If any Indian "becomes obstreperous about the matter," a short confinement in the guardhouse after clipping their hair, he thinks, will effect a cure.

SOUTH AFRICAN DIAMONDS.

The Mines of That Country Yield Over Forty Million Dollars Annually.

At a meeting of the shareholders of the De Beers Mining company the chairman stated that the De Beers and Kimberley mines had been in full swing for 32 years, and were now producing diamonds to the value of $28,000,000 annually. The company's three mines at Dutoitspan, Bultfontein, and Premier had four and a half times the area of the other two, and had been little worked thus far. If the De Beers and Kimberley mines were worked out the company would still be able to maintain its output for 144 years. The company was now getting a better price for diamonds, and as soon as normal conditions returned the profits would considerably increase. He added that the stock of rough diamonds in London was never lower than now.

Mr. Cecil Rhodes wrote, says a Kimberley correspondent of the Toronto Mail and Empire, agreeing to a proposal to capitalize his life governorship interest in order to avoid friction between himself and the shareholders, but he said it was a heavy sacrifice, which he would have wished to avoid.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S NEW YACHT.

This noted Washington beauty has announced that she will go to India to study Buddhism, a religious cult in which she has been interested for some time. She says that she will not devote her life after she masters the eastern theories to preaching the creed, and declares that she has no intention, unlike Mme. Blavatsky or Mrs. Besant, of establishing a new theological cult. She goes to her strange destination much as did the great and good Siddurtha Gautama who gave up all to search for the truth. Mrs. Lane is a daughter of United States Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky.

The order also prohibits Indians of both sexes from painting their faces and forms, holding of dances and so-called Indian feasts, and directs the agents to encourage the Indians in adopting citizens' clothing instead of the Indian costume and blanket. The agents are also directed to report to the commissioner before June 30 what progress they have made in the suppression of the evils.

Pneumatic postal tubes make slow progress in this country. In London there are 81 pneumatic tubes for the dispatch of postal packets, and their aggregate length is 34 miles.

Manufacturers of War Supplies.
There are over 3,000 firms in the world manufacturing munitions and supplies of war; of these 900 are in America.

It was stated that the shareholders' annual profits amounted to $210,000.

Population of United States.
The population of the entire United States, according to a report of the census bureau, was 84,233,089 in the year 1900. In the United States proper there were, as before announced, 75,994,575; in the Philippines, 8,961,339, according to the estimate of the statistician of the Philippine commission; in Porto Rico, 953,244; Hawaii, 154,000; Alaska, 68,592; Guam, 9,000; American Samoa, 6,100; persons in the military and naval service of the United States outside of the territory of the United States proper, 91,219.

Cost of Our Army.
The expenses attached to the United States army are something over a million dollars a week.

MRS. WILLIAM ASTOR.

All genuine Japanese parasols consist of a reed frame, over which is fastened a cover generally fashioned of gauze paper. In preparing the frame some primitive machinery is used, but the work is mostly done by hand. It is the cover, however, which is the really important part of the parasol. Many skilled workmen are constantly employed in embellishing the covers with designs, which seem fantastic to us, but which are truly artistic in the eyes of the Japanese. In the accompanying picture, which is taken from the New York Herald, the artist is shown doing such work.

OUR DUTY TO CUBA.

The peace of Cuba is necessary to the peace of the United States; the health of Cuba is necessary to the health of the United States; the independence of Cuba is necessary to the safety of the United States. The same considerations which led to the war with Spain now require that a commercial arrangement be made under which Cuba can live.—Secretary Root's Report.

I most earnestly ask your attention to the wisdom, indeed, to the vital need, of providing for a substantial reduction in the tariff duties on Cuban imports into the United States. Cuba has in her Constitution affirmed what we desired, that she should stand, in international matters, in closer and more friendly relations with us than with any other power; and we are bound by every consideration of honor and expediency to pass commercial measures in the interest of her material well-being.—President Roosevelt's Message.

Adversity may have its uses, but it's the abuse thereof that makes a man sore.

FROM SASKATCHEWAN, WESTERN CANADA.

In a letter written from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, one of the districts of Western Canada, by Henry Laughlin to Dr. C. T. Field, of Chase, Michigan, and which appeared in the Reed City (Michigan) "Clarion," appeared the following:

"If any one should ask you how I like it up here, tell them I am perfectly well satisfied; for me it is just the place. I have as good a piece of land as ever laid out doors. Wouldn't exchange it for the whole of Lake county, or at least the township of Chase."

"Of course I have not been here very long, but as much of the country as I have seen, it cannot be beat anywhere. We had as good crops here last fall as I ever saw, and everything gets ripe in good shape. We had as good ripe potatoes as I ever ate in my life. There is no better place for stock on the continent than here. Horses and cattle will do as good running out all winter here, as they do where they are fed all winter there. Have built me a residence and now all I want is a wife to keep house for me. I have some breaking already done on my place, but next summer I intend to have more done and then I will be ready for business."

"We have had a very fine winter so far. It has not been much below zero, if any, except about a week in the middle of November. It has been quite cold the past day or two. We are in log shanties, and they are just muddled up on the outside, and nothing has frozen on the inside as yet. There is no wind or rain, just nice steady weather all the time."

Only 17 of the 47 cases heard were contested.

"Prove a Halibut Samivel."

Readers of Pickwick Papers are familiar with the simple plan which the elder Mr. Weller suggested to Sam as a way to help Mr. Pickwick out of the breach of promise suit brought against him by the engaging Mrs. Bardell. According to the New York Sun, the alibi is again to become conspicuous, this time in a case of contemporary human interest and involving more serious questions than those which were raised, in fiction, to be decided by Sergeant Buzfuzz. The Sun says: "The graphophone will appear in an entirely new and unique role if, as is now intended, it is produced in court to establish an alibi for an accused murderer in Chicago. Louis G. Thoms, the purser of a steamboat, is charged with the murder of a young woman. Thoms says that on the night that the murder is alleged to have been committed, he was at the house of a friend, where he dictated a story to a graphophone, and investigation shows that one of the cylinders of the machine in question bears the record of his story. Apparently, therefore, all that is necessary to complete the alibi is to fix conclusively the time when the record was made."

PORTO RICO IS RICH.

Its Resources, However, Need Pains-taking Development.

Young Americans Should Think Twice Before Emigrating to the Island - Obstacles in the Way to Success.

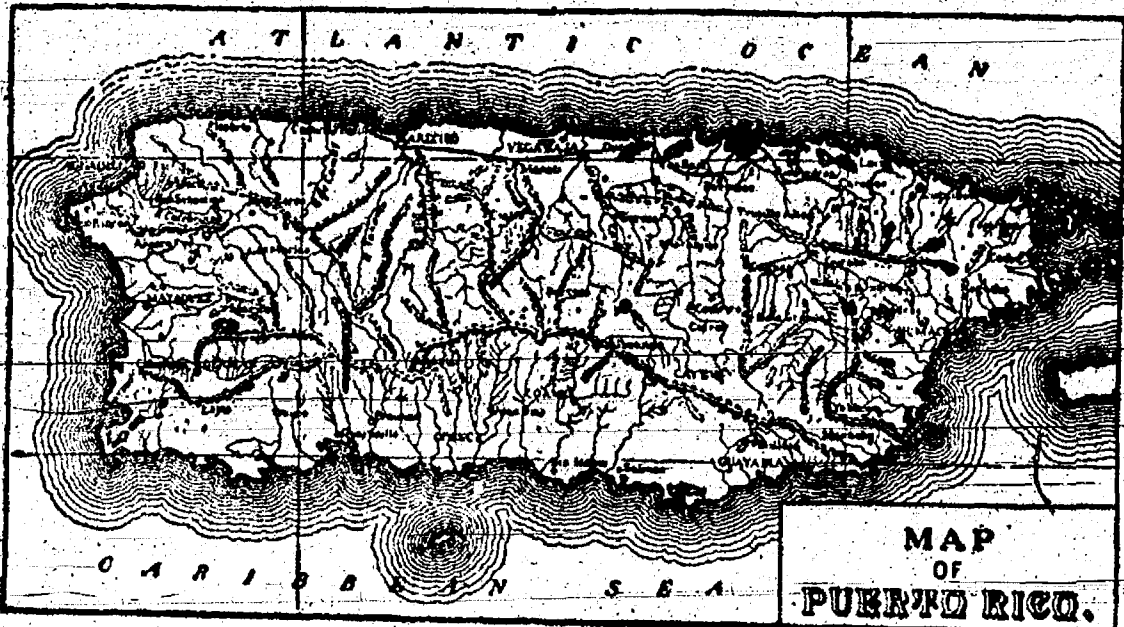

[Special Washington Letter.] CONCERNING the island of Porto Rico thousands of letters of inquiry are coming to senators and representatives, and occasionally the newspaper men in the national capital hear from distant friends making inquiry as to the advantages of that portion of our imperial republic.

Young men ask questions about the agricultural possibilities or the mercantile conditions. Young women ask about the educational environments of the cities and villages; for the majority of the feminine querists are seeking to be school-teachers. By the way, if they only knew the unhappy lot of the school-teachers who have gone from this country to Manila, they might hesitate before leaving home, sweet home for any of the islands which are, and for many years will be, infected with the virus of Spanish corruption in every department, official and civil. School-teachers, however, are but a small minority of those who make inquiry for the purpose of putting their brain, brawn and capital into the development of the resources of Porto Rico. It has been suggested to the writer that one printed letter in a good newspaper would give these inquiring people more information than they can get from the hasty correspondence of statesmen who have not time to study and investigate. Moreover, a

There are two mountain ranges on the island, the Cayey and the Loquillo, and they are almost parallel to each other. The Cayey range is unbroken from end to end of the island, at a distance of from 8 to 15 miles of the south coast; but the Loquillo range is broken by many valleys through which streams rising on the other range make their way to the ocean. The Loquillo is nearer to the north coast than the Cayey is to the south coast. On either side of these ranges, next to the north and south coasts, are beautiful plains sloping to the shore. These plains are about five miles wide on the southern coast, and average three miles in width on the north coast. They are very fertile, and with proper cultivation would last as wealth producers for all time. The plains are of rich alluvium soil. Along the eastern portion of the island the lack of rainfall is lamentable, and scientific irrigation will be necessary to bring them to a condition of permanent value.

One of the most wonderful things in Porto Rico is the depth of the soil on the face of the steep mountains, and the fact that the natives cultivate this soil to the very peaks of the highest ranges, causes astonishment to our people who visit the island.

The rainfalls at certain seasons are terrific, torrential and driven by hurricanes. It is marvelous that these cliffs and peaks are not washed bare to the solid stone. But the soil sticks to its allotted place; and there are no landslides such as might be expected and anticipated. It is supposed that because there are no frosts to aid the rains in dislodging the decaying rocks, and because of the porosity of the bed rock, the rain is absorbed almost as rapidly as it falls, even when it comes most violently. It is officially stated by scientists who have recently investigated this section that the soil is so rich that but little tillage is re-senator says that all of our people are interested in what we captured from Spain, and what we shall do with it all. The island of Porto Rico is one-fourth less in area than the state of Connecticut, but supports a population about one-third greater than that of the nutmeg state. The agricultural wealth of the island was particularly demonstrated when it supported its dense population, and also paid heavy tributes in taxation to Spain, and in remittances to absent landlords, many of whom never set foot on the soil of the dependency, which was naturally so independent. Moreover, this was done when there were no modern methods, implements nor appliances, no good roads, few railroads and unimproved harbors.

The treasury department and the department of agriculture are now beginning to take official interest in the harbors of Porto Rico, and none too soon. The condition of the harbors could not be worse, except by seismic disturbances. They are absolutely without improvements, and the cost of shipping the products of the fertile soil amounts to an export tax upon the people. Large portions of the products of Porto Rico are brought to the coasts on pack animals, or on the heads of men and women; and when brought there, the products must be lightered out to vessels in the harbors, because there is no place where a very large ship can come to dock. Official cognizance is being taken of this and similar benighted conditions which prevailed previous to that naval engagement in which the victorious commander exclaimed: "There is glory enough for us all."

While the agricultural wealth of this island is marvelous it is restricted. The people export their products, while they import their food. Wheat, corn, rice, nearly half of their imports are cereal and other agricultural products. Casual visitors from this country, particularly from our prairie states, view the steep mountains and declivities and wonder how any portion of the island can be capable of cultivation.

The plains along the coast, if subjected to modern scientific drainage and fertilization can become inexhaustible food producers. At present they produce excellent tobacco, corn, bananas and pineapples. The seashores are lined with coconut trees. In the interior coffee, oranges, limes and lemons flourish. The oranges are said to be the finest in the world.

The coffee crop is cultivated, but not scientifically. It begins to ripen along the coast in August and September and is all ready for market by the close of October. In the mountains the coffee crop begins to ripen in November, and gathering continues until the middle of February. This crop occupies particular attention thus during seven months of every year.

quired; and that is the reason that the mountain coffee districts are so productive. The mountain coffee is cut with machetes, or short swords. In this manner the soil is cleared of the wild growth of coffee, but the roots are left alive, and they help to hold the ground in place, while they also furnish forth the basis of the ensuing crops.

African slavery once existed on the sugar plantations, and on this account the laborers on the northern and southern coasts are colored. But in the interior the laborers are white natives. The average day's wages is 25 cents in American money, and the laborers board themselves. They do not require much clothing; only sufficient to cover their nakedness. They are patient, good natured and gratified with the change which has come over their government.

When the American army landed at Guanica in July, 1898, the commanding general sent word to our national capital that he did not want any more meat sent to his army from this country. This was because he found such splendid cattle ready at hand. They are of large size, of uniform light red color, and they fatten easily. The cows are almost as large as the oxen, but they do not yield milk in proportion to their size. The heat there is so great and so constant that milk can only be kept by immediately boiling it. The people know nothing of cream or butter.

There are no public lands in Porto Rico, and whoever is inclined to go there for the purpose of making a home must go prepared to buy the land from the holders, many of whom reside in Europe, the majority of them in Spain. Of course there are some small estates, but substantially none of them for sale. The price of land, however, is comparatively low, when its fertility and inexhaustibility are considered.

But before any encouragement should be given to our people to go there with a view of making fortunes, it must be understood that the government must have time to improve some of the harbors; if not all of them. Transportation and irrigation are needful. Large tracts of land in the interior of the island might be purchased now by men of means, to be held until the suggested improvements are made; as they undoubtedly will be made some time. When there are railroads or tramways from the interior to the coast, three or four times the amount of coffee now produced can be raised there. The same may be said of all of the staples of the island.

DEADLY EXPLOSION.

Rapid Transit Tunnel in New York Scene of a Disaster.

Six Men Are Killed and One Hundred Injured - Murray Hill Hotel and Other Buildings Damaged.

New York, Jan. 28.—The reserve supply of high explosives stored at the Park avenue shaft of the Rapid Transit tunnel, now in course of construction, blew up shortly after noon Monday. The giant blast killed six persons, injured a hundred others and seriously damaged all the property reached by the flying debris and the vibration of the shock. The irregular square formed by the Murray Hill hotel on the west, the Manhattan eye and ear hospital and the Grand Union hotel on the east, and the Grand Central railroad station on the north, was the scene of the explosion. The buildings named sustained the greatest damage, but the area affected extended for several blocks in the four directions from the center.

The Victims. Following is a list of the dead: Cyrus Adams, cigar man at the Murray Hill hotel. James Carr, 32 years, a waiter employed at the Murray Hill hotel. Lawrence Hine, aged 29, of Ansonia, Conn. J. Roderick Robinson, of Nelson, B. C., a guest at the Murray Hill hotel. Ralph Thompson, assistant engineer (all outside reports seem to agree as to his death, but his body is not reported by the police or by the hospitals). Thomas Tubbs, master mechanic for Contractor Ira A. Shaler.

Killed in the Hotel. J. Roderick Robinson, of Nelson, B. C., was killed by debris hurled with the force of artillery into his room at the Murray Hill hotel. He was general manager in Canada for the British Columbia Gold Fields company, limited, and a prominent citizen in the community where he lived. He was a Scotchman, and leaves a widow and four children. He was said to have been quite wealthy.

The Explosion. The sunken approach to the street railway tunnel used by the Madison avenue line cuts through Park avenue, and the shaft for the Rapid Transit subway was run down beside it at the intersection of East Forty-first street. The street railway approach was housed over with a superstructure used for the operating plant of the Rapid Transit contractors. Temporary buildings for storage purposes were thrown up against the superstructure at the mouth of the shaft, and there the explosion occurred. It tore a great gorge in the street, demolished the temporary buildings and part of the superstructure, and sent a mass of earth, splintered timber and twisted iron high in the air. Much of it went battering against the front of the Murray Hill hotel, and although the walls and main structure of that building stood the shock, nearly every room in the front of the house was wrecked. The hotel has been abandoned as unsafe.

Other Buildings Damaged. The Manhattan eye and ear hospital on the east side of the avenue, fared nearly as bad, and had to be abandoned by the management. The Grand Union hotel lost all of its windows and glass partitions, and practically every front window in the Grand Central station was shattered.

Several Causes Given. The cause of the explosion and the quantity of explosives that blew up are not definitely known. Several causes have been advanced. One was that a fire started near the powder room and that Master Mechanic William Tubbs lost his life in a desperate attempt to quench it before it reached the deadly fuel. Another was that it started from a spark produced by a stray current of electricity. A third placed the blame upon a blast in the tunnel. Still another gave a gas explosion from electrical contact in the trolley conduit of the street railway subway. It will probably take an official investigation to reveal the true explanation.

Ira A. Shaler, engineer in charge of the work at Park avenue; John Bracken, a foreman; and Martin McGrath, an assistant foreman, were placed under arrest and charged with homicide. William Barclay Parsons, chief engineer of the rapid transit commission, said that Shaler was one of the most competent and careful engineers he ever knew.

Loss May Be Over $1,000,000. The damage may exceed $1,000,000. The first estimate on the Murray Hill hotel placed the loss at $100,000, but later the hotel was abandoned as unsafe. If the building is condemned the loss on it alone will approach $1,000,000. The damage to the Grand Union was estimated at $400,000, and that to the Manhattan hospital, at $25,000. The loss at the Grand Central station was entirely in glass, as was that of the 100 or more other buildings affected by the explosion. No estimate was made of the losses sustained by the Rapid Transit contractors.

A Matter of Discipline

By DAVID H. TALMADGE

(Copyright by Author Syndicate.)

THE place was the fair ground of a certain town in a certain state of the middle west. The time is immaterial. The occasion was the regular annual encampment of the 11th regiment of the certain state's national guard. Encampments of citizen soldiery are odd things conceived by a wise government on the general theory that men who sleep in tents one week during each year will be better prepared, in case they are called upon for actual service in the field, to endure the exposure and other incidentals thereto, also that the officers—more particularly the regimental officers—will learn the requirements of successful discipline, which is an important matter among other important matters. I deny nothing, nor do I affirm. But I am free to state that a regimental encampment is one of the most entertaining of functions. Citizen soldiery, being nothing more than an organized purpose to protect the commonwealth from its foes, naturally lacks its most salient feature when there are no foes in a condition of warfare. It is quite unable to shake off in one week the civil atmosphere by which it is surrounded during 51 weeks. Consequently it is amusing, as everything is when it is out of its element.

Private O'Malley, who, it must be confessed, looked well in uniform, addressed the colonel as "Bill" at those times when they chatted to meet, and the colonel, who was a good-natured chap from whom O'Malley rented his blacksmith shop at home, was utterly unable to restrain a smile, which, of course, precluded all possibility of reprimand.

"What's a man to do?" The colonel appealed to the major. They were in the colonel's quarters with a bottle between them, and they had encountered O'Malley in coming down the company street. "Here's O'Malley, as good a soldier as ever drew breath."

"Of double rations," growled the major.

"Meets me in the company street and calls me Bill. It's contrary to regulations. I'm the colonel of his regiment, and he's under oath to address his superior officers as befits their rank; but, by thunder, sir, I don't see how I'm to punish him. Suppose I go to him and tell him kindly that he's making a mistake. What will happen? I know well enough; he'll flash up like a can of powder, and I'll be forced to the necessity of finding another renter for that building of mine, which isn't an easy thing to do; whereas, if I say nothing, the chances are that he'll buy the property within a year at my own figure."

"What does your oath require, of you?" asked the major, softly.

The colonel frowned: "I'm perfectly well aware what I should do," he said, with sudden stiffness, for his temper was easy on the trigger; "but what I must do is a horse of another color." "Yes, yes," the major drained his glass and arose to depart. "If I were you, Silsby," he said, turning at the door, "I'd enforce my authority at whatever cost, or"—his lip curled rather unpleasantly—"I'd resign."

Whereupon he was gone, and the colonel was striding back and forth across the tent floor spitting anathemas, for he and the major had been rivals for the colonelcy, and were now in rivalry for the love of a girl. He recovered himself presently, and sat down, laughing.

"Bomley's sore as a corn," he thought, "because I'm more popular among the men than he is, and because—well, I'm sorry we happened to be together when we met O'Malley. It will afford him an opportunity to make a bit of capital against me—poor disciplinarian, hasn't the proper respect of the men, and all that sort of thing. It may be true, but I don't believe it. Discipline doesn't consist altogether in the exaction of titles. O'Malley hasn't the slightest notion of being insubordinate. If he had he wouldn't call me Bill, and he'd refuse to salute. I'll do nothing about it."

And he did nothing about it for two days, during which he avoided O'Malley and preserved relations of distinct frigidity towards the major.

On the third day there was a sham battle.

The regiment was divided into two parties, one commanded by the colonel, the other by the major. The colonel's party intrenched itself on a hill perhaps a mile from the camp, and defied the party of the major to take the position. Whereat the party of the major, in which was included the local company, stretched a portion of itself into a long line and ambled leisurely to attack, popping off its rifles now and then, and retreating at each volley from the hilltop, into the thick woods at the base.

In the meantime the other portion of the party, including the local company, the captain of which was an intimate friend of the major and no friend at all of the colonel, was engaged in executing a movement which was expected ed to crown the major's brow with laurel. They were scurrying over a route, characterized by many trees and a deep railway cutting, to the rear of the position occupied by the colonel's party.

The movement was nearly successful. To Private O'Malley, who was not in either party, owing to illness, was due its failure.

The hospital tent changed to be with in comfortable earshot where the major and his aides made their plans. O'Malley waited until the surgeon had gone forth to witness the battle, and then he lifted the canvas and crept out. He had no difficulty in eluding the pickets, nor in passing the line of the attacking party.

"Sure," said he, "O've important information for the colonel," and they permitted him to pass.

Up the hill he went, a solitary figure, undaunted by the rifle fire. On the skirmish line he was halted, but only for an instant. He caught one gallant riderman under the chin, and with a carefully directed kick sent another rolling into the open. Invalid though he was, he bade fair to take the position by sheer force of his brawny arms.

Fortunately, the colonel saw him before the entire force of skirmishers had gone to the assistance of their wounded comrades.

"Here, here!" he called, riding forward. "What's all this?"

"It's only me, Bill," answered O'Malley. "O've important information for ye. 'Is a dirty trick—"

The colonel's nerves being on edge, he was exasperated. He motioned the others away.

"Don't call me Bill," he thundered; "call me sir. I'm the colonel of the regiment, my man."

"Oh," said O'Malley, softly, after a staring interval, "is that it? Well, the information O've brought is not for ye, then. 'Tis sorry I am, too, for in a little while yer enemy, the major, 'll be gettin' the upper hand av ye, and the fame av him as a strategist and a tactician 'll be tricklin' through the regiment as beer trickles down a dry throat, and that's irresistible. The men 'll never forget how he outwitted ye. 'Twill be talked about at home, and a certain young lady O'm thinkin' av'll hear av it, and 'tis much affected she'll be, for the ladies, mind ye, loike men that win the battles they fight. Ah, yis, 'tis sorry O'm, upon me loife."

The colonel glanced hurriedly down the hill and to the right and to the left, but not once to the rear. He leaned forward, and something, perhaps the action, caused the blood to surge into his face.

"O'Malley," he whispered, "I don't care a cuss what you call me; only tell me what you know."

And O'Malley told him.

It was said afterward that the man had been slightly touched by the sun, which accounted for his peculiar conduct that day, and the statement, so far as I know, was never disputed. When the major, already flushed with triumph, was not a quarter of a mile from the colonel's position, he was met by volley after volley of blank cartridge shots and whole skyfuls of jeering yells. He was crushingly defeated.

"The oldest," snorted Private O'Malley, "av shot pompous little duck thinkin' he could outwit Bill!"

All of which goes to prove in a measure what queer things encampments of citizen soldiery are, and how perfectly they accomplish the ends for which they are intended.

SORELY TEMPTED.

Provocation That Was Too Much for a Fighting Dog to Tamely Put Up With.

The author of "A Visit to Java" tells a good dog story which has also to do with ducks. The moral of the story is that neither the one nor the other should be subjected to temptation beyond reason.

A planter in Java kept a number of canine pets. Among these Bob, an English bulldog, was his favorite. The dog was as good-natured as he was in appearance, seldom misbehaving, even when severely tempted. One occasion, however, he did give way to anger; but it must be admitted that he had provocation.

His master had some black ducks which he had reared with much care to ornament the little lake in the garden. One afternoon when Bob was taking his nap in the neighborhood of the kitchen, with his small white teeth protruding from his black lips, after the manner of bulldogs, and gleaming in the light, an unfortunate duck came by. Seeing the white particles, the duck mistook them for grains of rice, and tried to pick them up.

The stroke of her bill on Bob's nose woke him and aroused his indignation. A short scuffle and a plaintive quack, and the duck's career was ended.

But that was not all. So seriously did Bob consider this insult to his dignity that, in spite of repeated whippings, he persisted until he had killed every one of the ducks.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Brock's Age is 114 Years.

MR. ISAAC BROCK, BORN IN BUNCOMBE CO., N. C., MARCH 1, 1788.

His age is 114 years, vouched for by authentic record. He says: "I attribute my extreme old age to the use of Pe-ru-na."

Born before United States was formed.
Saw 22 Presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at age of 110 years.
Relieves Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal diseases.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 114 years. For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas. A short time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture. In his hand he held a stick out from the grave of General Andrew Jackson, which has been carried by him ever since. Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 114 years ago. Surely a few words from this remarkable old gentleman, who has had 114 years of experience to draw from, would be interesting as well as profitable. A lengthy biographical sketch is given of this remarkable old man in the Waco Times-Herald, December 4, 1898. A still more pretentious biography of this, the oldest living man, illustrated with a double column portrait, was given the readers of the Dallas Morning News, dated December 11, 1898, and also the Chicago Times-Herald of same date. This centenarian is an ardent friend of Peru-na, having used it many years.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says: "After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so."

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 114 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but of course subject to the little ailments which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds and diarrhoeas.

"I had always supposed these ailments to be different diseases. For the last ten or fifteen years I have been reading Dr. Hartman's writings. I have learned much from his books, one thing in particular: that these ailments are the same and that they are properly called catarrh.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these afflictions. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"I believe it to be valuable to old people, although I have no doubt it is just as good for the young. I should be glad if my sincere testimony should become the means of others using this remedy, because I believe it to be the greatest remedy of this age for catarrhal diseases.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Pe-ru-na was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Pe-ru-na for la grippe and found it to be just the thing.

"It has saved me several times from a siege of the grip. I feel perfectly safe from this terrible malady so long as I have Peru-na at hand. I hope that Dr. Hartman may live to be as old as I am, to continue the good work of teaching people the value of his great remedy, Peru-na.

Very truly yours,

Isaac Brock.

IS DIABETES CURABLE?

Halo, Ind., Jan. 27th.—In answer, Mrs. L. C. Bowers of this place has this to say:

"I had Kidney Trouble, which, neglected, finally ran into Diabetes; my teeth all got loose and part of them came out; I passed from one-and-a-half to two gallons of water in twenty-four hours, and such a burning sensation attended it that I could hardly bear it. I lost forty pounds in flesh and was very much discouraged.

"Two doctors treated me and I took every Kidney Medicine I could hear of, but got no relief whatever from anything till I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Seven boxes of this remedy drove away every symptom I have mentioned.
