WALL PAPER OPENING.

We wish to announce that our spring stocks of Wall Paper have nearly all been received and that we are at home to all who are interested in Wall Paper. We have bought for this seasons trade the extensive line of one of the largest eastern factories, and in addition, the choice selections from some of the best jobbers. This places us in a position to offer the finest line of wall hangings we have ever shown.

Keen competition among the factories has made prices the lowest we have ever known them. You will find papering less expensive and more satisfactory than you have ever known it.

WAS KILLED BY ELECTRICITY

Herbert Harrison Killed While Fixing a Trolley Pole.

When the 9 o'clock car on the Hawks & Angus line reached this station Tuesday evening the motorman, Herbert Harrison, and Conductor Pullen climbed on top of the car in order to adjust the trolley pole, which had come loose. In some manner Harrison came in contact with a live wire, and was instantly killed, while Pullen was terribly shocked and burned. The men were removed from the car and carried into the depot, where every thing possible was done for them. Pullen soon revived and was taken to the home of J. P. Foster. The physicians worked over Harrison for several hours, but were unable to, resuscitate him. Harrison was a married man residing at Ann Arbor, and leaves a widow and four children. Pullen is a single man, and is made of the material of which heroes are made. It is stated that he urged the physicians to let him die, but to save the life of his fellow workman. The dead motorman was about 35 years of age, and had worked for the company for several years and was well liked by all of his fellow employees. His remains were taken to Ann Arbor at a late hour Tuesday night. Pullen was taken to his home at Ypsilanti Wednesday morning.

Charter Election.

The charter election passed off very quietly Monday, there being but one ticket in the field. The usual large vote was not polled, only 278 voters casting their ballots, as against 464 a year ago. The following were the officers chosen: President—Frank P. Glazier. Clerk—W. H. Heselschwerdt. Trustees—W. J. Knapp, A. W. Wilkinson and O. C. Burkhardt. Treasurer—F. W. Roedel. Assessor—S. P. Foster.

Michigan's Divorce Record a Stunner. The divorce record of Michigan for the year 1901 is something of a stunner, although it is a little better than that of the previous year. Reports to the secretary of state from every county except Eaton shows that 2,396 divorces were granted during the past year, and that only 45 were refused, 250 applications being withdrawn. At the beginning of the year there were 3,857 applications on file, and during the year 3,796 new bills were filed, the number of record at the close of the year being 4,034. In the year 1900 there were 29 less divorces granted than there were last year.

An Unknown Convict's Death in Prison.

FOX-YALCONA COUNTY SHERIFF

A Lowell Woman Poisoned by a Headache Powder Sent Her Through the Mail—A Neighbor Narrowly Escapes a Similar Fate—Other Matters.

Lowell's Mystery. Sheriff Chapman, of Kent county, believes fully that Mrs. Ada Klumpf, of Lowell, was murdered by a poison sent her through the mail. Some days ago Mrs. Klumpf received what purported to be a headache powder, prepared by a firm at Savannah, N. Y. On Sunday, March 2, her husband went to the barn to hitch up a team, intending to take his wife for a drive. Mrs. Klumpf complained of a headache and told her husband that she would try one of the headache powders that she had received. When he returned to the house he found her in convulsions, and in spite of medical aid hastily summoned, she died within twelve hours. Her stomach was analyzed in Grand Rapids and found to contain enough strychnine to kill several persons. A similar powder was received by Mrs. William Miller, a near neighbor of the Klumpfs, and this has since been analyzed and found to be half strychnine.

It is now learned that the envelope containing the headache powder bore a one-cent stamp and was mailed in Lowell and not in Savannah, N. Y., the direction being apparently in a woman's hand. The powder was within a small envelope, and there was but one powder in the package. This smaller envelope was marked "Sample Package."

It is the theory of Sheriff Chapman that someone took the powder sent to the New York concern and having put a large dose of strychnine in it, sent it to Mrs. Klumpf.

They Get Two Years. It was a matter of much surprise when Lant K. Salisbury and Silson V. MacLeod, who were indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of violating the United States banking law, appeared in the United States court in Grand Rapids Tuesday and pleaded guilty to the charge. MacLeod had nothing to say in explanation, but Salisbury made a detailed statement to the court of the acts of himself and MacLeod in relation to the bank and to the water contract. All the afternoon Salisbury and his wife were escorted with Judge Wanta, who apparently went carefully into all the details of the case. A strong effort was made to get him to let both respondents off with a fine, and his friends thought it would be successful. Both respondents were in court Wednesday morning before it was called to order with their attorneys and both wives also present. When the court was ready for business Judge Wanta gave each respondent a sentence of two years in state prison, which is the limit.

Got His Man. Sheriff Potts, of Alcona county, is a happy man, as he outwitted Ohio officials and landed his prisoner in Michigan. On Thursday last he went to Columbus, Ohio, to get extradition papers for G. S. Jackson, of Haskins, O., who is wanted in Alcona county on a charge of purchasing a carload of cattle last August and giving a check for something over $650 on the East Side Banking Co. of Toledo, where he only had on deposit something like $15. The check of course was worthless. Sheriff Potts secured his papers and served them on Friday on the prisoner at Bowling Green, O., and started back this afternoon. Jackson's attorney tried to settle the matter, but failing to do so secured writ of habeas corpus and waited at the depot in Toledo to serve them. The Michigan official was on his job and left the train before the depot was reached, took a cab and drove over to the electric railway line, where he took a car and came.

An Unknown Convict. Thomas Kelly, if that is his true name, of which there is some doubt, died at the Jackson prison Saturday of consumption. He said his home was somewhere in Canada, but refused to divulge the place or the names of his parents. Father Scherkeberg, of St. John's church, will care for the body. Kelly was received at the prison November 19 last from Calhoun county for five years for assault with intent to rob. He was charged with endeavoring to rob two women driving in the highway near Albion. It is believed he refused to reveal his identity out of consideration for the good name of his family.

Robbers Got $200. While William Haggins, a bookkeeper at Otte's branch laundry in Grand Rapids, was using a telephone Saturday night two men stepped in and showed revolvers under his nose.

The robbers forced Haggins into the vault and commanded him to open the inner safe. He said he did not have the key. They told him he felt, but grabbing two cash boxes containing about $200, they fled out of the back door. Haggins gave the alarm, but by the time workmen in the basement appeared, they were beyond pursuit.

British Loss in Dead and Wounded is Heavy—Furston's View of the Situation in the Philippines—Secretary Long Resigns—Other Happenings Briefly Told.

A report sent out from the Hudson Bay post at Fort Churchill, about two and a half years ago, that Andre, the Swedish aeronaut and his associates had been killed by Eskimos, is confirmed by advices received at the head office of the company here.

Alston Churchill, factor at Churchill, which is the company's most northerly post on the west coast of Hudson's bay, has written that after about two years' search, the men sent out by him have returned with a report similar to the one first published.

Traces of the daring balloonist and his associates were followed for hundreds of miles, but it was impossible to locate the tribe who caused the death.

The story of the searchers is that Arctic Eskimos saw "olmiak" (one of their largest boats) floating in the air. When it settled to the ground three white men strangely dressed came out with guns, which they indiscreetly fired. Andre and his assistants were killed with musket bows, and everything of value taken.

The searchers found knives, tobacco and cartridges supposed to have belonged to Andre, in possession of one of the most northern tribes, but could get no further information. News that Andre undoubtedly met his death at the hands of the Eskimos has been forwarded to the Swedish government.

Furston's Plain Words. Brig-Gen. Frederick Furston was the guest of honor at a dinner given in New York Saturday night by the Lotus club. More than 300 members of the club were present. Gen. Furston discussed the situation in the Philippines.

He said in part: "All of those men who have fallen since December, 1900, have been victims of a lot of misinformation and misguided people here in the United States. It is perfectly proper for us to have all sorts of opinions as to what we should do with the Philippine islands, but for heaven's sake, let us keep them to ourselves until every square inch of that territory recognizes the sovereignty of the United States."

Gen. Furston then gave many examples to show that the Filipino leaders were not true patriots. He mentioned the slaying of Antonio Luna, who was ordered slain by Aguinaldo, Gen. Furston said that Aguinaldo had told him in regard to Luna's death: "I had him killed simply because he would have been dictator instead of myself."

"Would you imagine George Washington doing anything like that?" asked Gen. Furston.

Hard Blow Struck. Lord Kitchener, under date of Saturday, March 8, cabled:

"I greatly regret to have to send you bad news of Methuen. He was moving with 900 mounted men under Maj. Paris, and 300 infantry, four guns and a pom-pom from Wynburg to Lichtenburg, and was to meet Grenfell, with 1,300 mounted men at Rovriviersfontein to-day. Friday morning early he was attacked by De Laere's force, between Two-Bosch and Palmteeknik. The Boers charged on three sides.

"Five hundred and fifty men have come in at Marlburg and Kraalpan. They were pursued by the Boers four miles from the scene of action. They report that Methuen and Paris, with the guns, baggage, etc., were captured by the Boers. Methuen, who had last been seen, was a prisoner.

"I think this sudden revival of activity on the part of De Laere is to draw off the troops pressing De Wet."

Still Unsettled. Mrs. Mary Collard died at her home in Westhaven, and her husband and three sons went to a local clothing house to buy supplies for the funeral. During the purchasing a dispute arose as to who should pay for them, and John Collard knocked his father down. The other two sons got into the game and there was a four-cornered fight, during which show cases were wrecked and clothing spilled over the store. The proprietor and his clerks finally ejected the scrapper, but the question of who should pay the funeral expenses has not been settled.

Secretary Long Resigns. The third change in the cabinet of President Roosevelt took place Monday when Secretary Long submitted his resignation to take effect May 1 or sooner, in a graceful letter, it being accepted in one equally felicitous by the president. The change was made complete by the selection of Representative Wm. Henry Moody, of the Sixth congressional district of Massachusetts, as Mr. Long's successor in the navy department.

Chas. Andrews, a negro, of Newark, N. J., killed his wife, set fire to her room, then cut his throat and died Tuesday evening.

At Matane, Que., Sunday morning, the home of Arthur Bonchard was burned, his wife and nine children perishing in the flames.

Last week the house committee on territories partially opened the door of statehood to the only four remaining territories—Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico and Indian territory, but a big fight is likely, and it is said that Oklahoma will be the only one to gain admission at the present time.

Some of the depositors of the Central Michigan Savings bank, which went into the hands of a receiver nearly 10 years ago, are dissatisfied with the manner in which the assets have been handled and are clamoring for a grand jury to look into the matter. Three receivers have had charge of the assets at various times.

CONDENSED NEWS.

The Maryland state senate has passed the bill to authorize the admission of women as practicing lawyers in the state court.

The czar has sent 150,000 roubles for the relief of the victims of the recent earthquake at Shamaka, Transcaucasia.

The Maryland house defeated, by a vote of 69 to 7, the bill authorizing an appropriation of $100,000 for a state exhibit at the St. Louis exposition, thus making it almost certain that Maryland will have no exhibit at all.

Nuggets of gold weighing from a quarter of an ounce to one ounce were found in the crops of chickens and ducks in Chicago. The fowls were shipped from Pined, Wis., a little town on the Wisconsin Central railway.

Reports of increasing cruelty among American troops in dealing with Filipinos are discounted by Gen. E. S. Otis, who declares that an American soldier is not capable of the brutality which has been accredited to him.

Another scene in the drama of the closing of the State bank, of Elkhart, Ind., was enacted Wednesday afternoon, when Frank W. Cottle, cashier, whose alleged shortage of $32,000 caused the closing of the bank, blew out his brains.

The Cunard liner Etruria, which met with an accident on Feb. 26, arrived at the Azores Islands Sunday evening. All on board are well. During the nine hour on Feb. 26 the ship's propeller broke off outside the tube and carried away the rudder.

The United States minister at Constantinople has sent a second note to the portec declaring that the capture and ransom of a woman and the release of Miss Stone took place in Turkish territory and intimating that Turkey would be held responsible.

The Shanghai correspondent of the London Standard says that Chinese merchants coming from Port Arthur declare they have been ordered to remove their families from Port Arthur because preparations were being made there for a war with Japan.

Miss Stone, the missionary, is expected home in May. She will lecture under the auspices of the International Chautauqua Society. The portec has replied to Minister Leischman's note repudiating responsibility for her capture and denying all liability.

George Musgrove, said to be leader of a band of southwestern desperadoes, and a brother of the noted "Black Jack," who was hanged at Clayton, N. M., a year ago, has been captured near Alamogordo, N. M. Musgrove is wanted in New Mexico for murder, post-office and train robbery.

The creditors of the late Archbishop Purcell of Cincinnati will ask for the discharge of the receivers and will appeal to Rome for special collections throughout the United States to wipe out the indebtedness, of which there is a balance of about $6,000,000, including the accumulated interest of many years.

Chained to his wife and guarded by five detectives and a sheriff, Charles Savage, a negro who is charged with being implicated in an $11,000 diamond robbery in Portland, Ore., last November, is on the way from Montreal, Can., to that city. Savage and his wife were arrested after a chase across the continent.

E. Ducretet, a French electrical engineer, who is now in New York, claims to have invented a system of wireless telephony, by which messages can be transmitted through sea from shore to shore or between ships. The voice is transmitted without the least difficulty and the most delicate articulations reach the ear.

The United States transport Meade, which sailed for Manila on Saturday last, returned to San Francisco late Monday night flying the yellow flag, and anchored at the quarantine station. The Meade's return was due to discovery of a case of smallpox and an account of a case of scarlet fever among the recruits on board.

Maj. Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy, who confessed that he forged the Dreyfus bordereau, has, according to the Herald, been seen in New York city. He is said to have spent two hours in a Broadway restaurant in animated conversation with a young man and woman. Esterhazy was shabbily dressed and his features were extremely thin.

Senator Lodge has introduced an amendment to the Philippine bill which provides that whenever it is certified to the president that existing insurrection in the Philippines shall have ceased, and peace is established, a general election shall be called for the choice of delegates to a popular assembly to be known as the Philippine assembly.

Elisa Hurrell, of Owosso, aged 40, and Ruby Beach, whom Hurrell sold when 18 years old, came to Rev. Paul Desjardins, of the Cornua Avenue Methodist church, and were married. The pastor has been informed that the girl is but 16 years old. He is investigating with a view to having the groom arrested for perjury, in case the statement was true.

Insurgent leaders in the Philippines are resorting to all kinds of deception to retain control. A circular just issued by one insurgent commander says: "The United States is in the midst of a bloody civil war. The coal miners in Pennsylvania have risen against the government and at Chicago a great battle was fought in which 1,600 regular soldiers were killed. An army of anti-imperialists is besieging Washington. Roosevelt will be deposed and Dr. Bryan proclaimed president by the Democrats on the 4th of March next."

Gen. Smith, in command of the American forces in Samar and Leyte, P. I., declares that he has satisfied himself that the war against the American forces in Samar is being kept alive by the support of ostensibly "peaceful" natives, particularly the wealthier classes, and says the policy to be pursued in his brigade from this time on will be to wage war in the sharpest and most decisive manner possible.

Fire has broken out in the cedar brakes of Texas and great tracts of valuable timber are being consumed. Everything is as dry as tinder, and there are still to be no way of checking the fire until it burns itself out.

An American Nabob.

A Remarkable Story of Love, Gold and Adventure.

He hurried over to the table, upon which he laid a couple of bank notes, and tearing a sheet of paper from his waste mousetrap, wrote upon it these words:

"Accept this from a friend. Hope for brighter things in the future—trust in God."

A movement on the part of Mazetto warned him it was time to be gone—he only lingered long enough to pin the money and the note to the table and then walked hastily down the stairs.

Once outside the marquis walked toward the Strand with a swinging stride—he seemed to have thrown off some of the cynical moodiness that had marked his intercourse with all since striking London.

Finally he drew up at a shop almost in the shadow of St. Clement's church, in a neighborhood famous for its literary and artistic atmosphere.

Over the door was the sign of Duval, sacred to many who had handled brush or crayon in the world's metropolis.

M. Duval saw a prospective purchaser, and of course, was all smiles. Miniatures—certainly, he always kept them in stock and had the means of reproducing any photograph at short notice.

He watched the customer separate half a dozen of the little paintings on ivory from the rest, and marveled at the ease with which he had thus picked out all the works of one brush.

"These are the only decent ones you have. Tell me how much for the lot," he said, quietly.

Mr. Duval named a price far in excess of their intrinsic value, judging that he must have been blind to their merits, and was immediately cursing himself under his breath for not having added on a third more, for the marquis carelessly threw the amount down.

"This artist pleases me, sir. I would like to have a dozen family portraits done by the same brush. For each of these I shall pay five pounds to the artist and your commission of one pound. Is that a bargain, M. Duval?"

The dealer snatched at it eagerly. Consider it settled, then. Now, I am an expert at this work. It is evident to me the artist is a lady.

"Monseigneur is quite correct," bowing low and rubbing his hands together with pleasure.

"Very good. There is no need of paper between us—a numquam factum is quite sufficient. But, my dear Monseigneur Duval, remember, they must be by the same brush."

"By to-morrow, monseigneur. I shall hand you in a package of family pictures which I wish to add to my collection of miniatures. I shall also leave the money here, knowing you to be an honest man, to be paid to the artist, as fast as she completes each ivory."

"Mon Dieu! It is one great pleasure. Would that there were more customers like you, m'sieur. It would then be a happiness to be in trade," said the flattered and delighted dealer in pictures.

The marquis took his leave, filled with a sensation of having started the ball rolling, nor was it until he had gone that M. Duval thought to recall the fact that he had failed to ask his princely customer's name.

BOOK THREE.

The Modern Monte Cristo.

Two weeks more sufficed to make the Marquis of Montezuma famous in London. Every day new accounts of astonishing features connected with his life appeared in the papers.

Naturally the Marquis was the most sought after man in all London. Bushels of invitations poured in upon him over which his secretaries were busy all day, their labor being usually a polite note, declining the honor on account of pressing engagements.

The Marquis accepted a few invitations, and these generally took him to the clubs, though the season was so late few notables could be met with there.

Captain Livermore had forced the Hon. Prentice Langford to keep his word—he had early made the acquaintance of the American Midas, and they reached the friendly stage of intercourse that is marked by a game between gentlemen, but somehow, for the first time in his life, the genial captain found luck run harshly, and, instead of handling some of the wonderful wealth of the nabob, he was stripped of all the ready cash he had at hand.

but you see I lived through it, and my hour has come. Shall we enjoy any further social play, captain? I assure you, it is a rare pleasure for me to engage in this little pastime with a gentleman of your skill and attainments."

"I hope to see you again if I am able to scrape any part of my resources together. If not, Marquis, you can be satisfied that I am down to bed rock. I never yield while I have a single weapon left in my hand," he said, grimly.

"I can well believe that, captain," and, returning Livermore's stiff bow, he watched the soldier saunter among the other club members, chatting with this one and laughing at some sally as though nothing had occurred to disturb his equanimity.

The Marquis frowned. He knew this man was absolutely ruined, and yet his victory had been robbed of half its sweetness because he had failed to quench that indomitable soldier spirit that refused to knuckle under at misfortune's call.

That afternoon he attended a garden party at Lady Catherwood's palatial home. Here he was, as usual, the lion of the occasion, and his hostess was kept busy introducing him. Finally they approached a single figure, standing under a royal palm that had been brought from the famous Catherwood conservatory for the occasion—the figure of a young woman.

Her back was toward those who advanced, but he could catch the queenly poise of her proud head. If her face did not disappoint the anticipation aroused by this first glance, she must be a fit subject for an artist's dream.

"My dear, I have succeeded in rescuing the Marquis, and bring him a captive in my train to pay his respects to my guest and kinswoman," said Lady Catherwood, blandly.

The queenly figure turned, and in so doing came under the soft light of a nearby lantern.

Thus the Marquis found himself face to face with a spectre of the past—again in memory he could see this gloriously beautiful creature gracefully gliding about in the dance, while mandolins and guitars struck weird chords that served as time to her flying feet; again he could see the gay sash tied in a knot that ornamented one plump shoulder, while a shining knife fastened by a scarlet ribbon, decorated the other, the cold, cruel blade nestling against her hovering bosom as she thus invited her hot-blooded admirers to meet in mortal combat, for the guest of Lady Catherwood was no other than Senorita Juanita, the belle of Gautarica.

CHAPTER XVI.

From Over the Sea.

The Marquis of Montezuma bowed low. His face was as calm and unruffled as the summer sky; not even for an instant did he betray the slightest emotion, and yet the surprise must have inwardly staggered him.

The presence of Dona Juanita here, in England—did it portend disaster to his long-cherished plans?

As for the haughty daughter of the dons, she was affable enough, and smiled while extending a dainty hand which he was compelled to accept.

Lady Catherwood had scurried away to look after some necessary details connected with her duties as hostess, for one cannot entertain and enjoy themselves at the same time.

A silence fell upon the two. The senorita was looking at her companion under half-closed lids, and he awaited what he knew was coming—awaited it with that calmness natural to security.

"Senor Jack, between you and me, there is no need of this coldness, this secrecy. Surely you could not believe me so blind that I did not recognize you at the first glance," said the girl, suddenly laying a hand on his arm.

"I realized that and I have been simply waiting until you might see fit to speak. You see I admit all you say—I am free to confess it," was the cool reply he made.

"Ah, Senor Jack, you are a sphinx—I can make nothing of you. Let me commence upon another tack. You have declared yourself incapable of affection, yet I have known you to lean upon one man with such confidence that I am sure he occupied a place in your heart."

The Marquis showed signs of emotion at last—his wonderful reserve had been pierced.

"Yes," he replied, sadly.

"To this day General Barrajo has not been seen in Gautarica," she continued.

"Poor Pedro—faithful friend," he muttered.

"You alone know his fate, Senor Jack."

"Yes, but all the world shall soon know it, for I have had his foats of arms blazoned upon a stone just about to be set over. It will be set up in San Jose Cemetery, where his body has lain these two years."

"Is it possible—his death then is a mystery—it was connected with your own adventures?"

"True, Senorita. Together we sought a treasure, shoulder to shoulder we met those who would have robbed us of our prize. We conquered, but Barrajo fell, bleeding in every vein. Our written compact gave the survivor all. His dying wish was that his body should be removed to consecrated ground. There he has lain under a stone marked only 'Don Pedro, who gave his life in battle for a friend.' It shall be so no longer—all Gautarica shall ring with the valor of his last deed, and crowd to his grave to do the brave old hero honor."

The Marquis, for once had been thrown off his guard by the revival of these never-to-be-forgotten scenes, and as memory again brought the heroism of Barrajo before him his face lighted up with an enthusiasm it had not been allowed to disclose, lo, these many days.

And Dona Juanita, seeing the transitory change, surveyed him with kindling eyes.

"Ah! Senor Jack, such satisfaction is sweet to the heart of those who have loved and been thrown aside. I sympathize with you, and nothing would give me greater pleasure than to be allowed a share in your plans—to make your interests my own. Perhaps a woman's wit might help you to secure a quick and terrible revenge."

"You mean well, Dona Juanita; I thank you for the interest shown in my welfare, but whatever my plans may be, they must concern me alone. I could not permit any one to join me in their prosecution, least of all you, whom I have known and respected in other days. So I beg that you will forget what you said, and let us hold intercourse as friends who have met after long separation."

One look she gave him; it was like the glowering stare of a tigress about to leap; then her mood suddenly changed, and she laughed in a mellow way that had no trace of anger in it—in times past this peculiarity had been very manifest in her disposition—the sudden change of front such as marks the consummate actress and the dangerous woman.

"Just as you say, Marquis, but I have a rarely obstinate nature, and, having set my mind on any object it is hard to balk me. Here comes my delightful hostess and kinswoman. At some later date I trust to see you again, when we may chat over scenes in the misty past."

He nodded assent.

The Marquis was glad when my lady dragged him away to another part of the garden to meet others of her fair guests; but he understood what hidden meaning lay beneath the words which the black-eyed Spanish beauty floated after him, and which would arise many times to haunt him:

"An revolv, Marquis; I always keep my word!"

The opportunity had come at length. A few hasty words from his hostess and the Marquis found himself face to face with the woman whose false-ness to her vows had sent him, a smooth-faced young man, an exile from England five years before.

He had prepared for the meeting, and not by the quiver of an eyelid did he betray himself.

Fedora was as lovely and charming as ever, more matronly, perhaps, but showing no sign of the passage of time.

Several times the Marquis knew his companion was looking at him intently, thinking herself unobserved.

Perhaps some faint memory was struggling for existence in her mind, some floating straw at which she clutched in vain.

Sooner or later doubtless she would awaken to the discovery of his identity, but when that time came the Marquis believed he would have so aroused the old passion that must, during these years, have lain dormant in her heart, that she would even give up a ruined husband, a wretched home, and flee with him.

Hunting with Trained Wolves.

Bert Decker, a young sportsman of Tuacola, Ill., has succeeded in taming two wolves, and they are very valuable as hunters. He captured them when young, raised them as "kittens," and now, though as large as shepherd dogs, they are quite tame and playful. Decker says the wolves can outrun dogs on the hunt, and are very longwinded. Their favorite way of catching a rabbit is to run alongside of him, put their nose underneath Mr. Cottontail, and throw him ten or twelve feet in the air, catching him in their mouth as he falls. The wolves always return to their master when called. Decker's success has caused other sportsmen to undertake the training of wolves to supplant dogs in hunting, and it is probable that wolves will find a place in future kennels.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Counterfeiters.

There is nothing which Uncle Sam protects with greater care than his currency. Because Uncle Sam's money is good there are always people ready to counterfeit it, and for these people Uncle Sam has a special body of secret service detectives always on the watch. The most dangerous counterfeiters are those which most closely imitate the original, and to arrest the makers of dangerous counterfeiters the United States spares no efforts and no expense. It seems a pity that the United States government could not extend its surveillance of counterfeiters to those who counterfeit whole-some foods, reliable medicines and other articles necessary to the health of the public.

Germany has 800 more physicians than it had in 1900. The present number is about 28,175.

Long nails, very wide at the top and bluish in appearance, denote bad circulation. Long-nailed men and women are less critical and more impressionable than those with short nails.

FORCE IN A YEAR'S WINKS.

How the Life of the Ordinary Man Is Divided Up.

A man with a mania for figuring and not enough to do to keep him out of mischief, has been making calculations regarding the manner in which the life of the ordinary man, who both works and plays, is divided up.

When such a man has reached the age of 60 he will have spent his time as follows, according to the statistician: Twenty years in sleep; three years and nine months in eating; seventeen years six months in working; seven years and six months in the pursuit of pleasure; six years and three months in walking and other exercise; two years and six months in making his toilet; and six months in doing absolutely nothing. The item for toilet he subdivides into seven months shaving, eleven months washing and one year dressing.

Persons mathematically inclined can find flaws in these figures—if there are any—most people will be content to take them on faith. This remarkable dissector of human life by the mathematical process has also discovered, he says, that the average man speaks 11,800,000 words a year and shakes hands 1,200 times, thereby using up energy enough in fifty years to lift 2,500 tons.

The amount of force a man uses up in winking is truly appalling. Our statistician calculates that the average man in a single year opens and shuts his eyes no less than 95,000,000 times, and in doing this uses force enough together to raise an electric car filled with passengers. Consequently in 60 years he develops enough force to wink sixty trolley cars off the track. This is the moderate, average, sober, respectable man mind you, not the frivolous person who winks at all the pretty girls he sees. The "wink-power" developed by a flirtatious man probably is enough to run the new subway system.—New York Press.

LAPSE OF MEMORY.

Momentary Forgetfulness That Broke Upon an Orator.

Some Westerners were telling stories of political campaigns in the lobby of the Hoffman House.

"I heard a good one on Senator William H. Stewart of my state," said a Nevada man. "You know, Mr. Stewart doesn't spend much of his time at home—he only goes out there once in every six years, when it comes time to have himself elected back to the senate."

"In the course of his last campaign he presided over a mass meeting in Virginia City, and as chairman he had to introduce each speaker in turn. With complimentary praises he presented to the audience the first three, and then he arose to introduce the fourth.

"Gentlemen," said the senator, "I have the distinguished honor of presenting to you my boyhood's friend, a man I have always known as a staunch follower of our national principles and as a speaker of conspicuous ability. Rarely has it been my pleasure to sit on the same platform with him in recent years, but I know of old the ringing notes of his voice and the sterling sense of his words. I introduce to you the Honorable—the Honorable—the Honorable—"

"The senator paused. His memory had forsaken him, and it was not a situation in which quick wit was an effective asset. Finally, after a painful pause, he turned to the chairman of the campaign committee and whispered:

"What did you say the feller's name was, Bill?"

Foraker's Long Memory.

"What is the temperature at Fargo, North Dakota?"

The question was asked of the weather clerk in the marble room of the senate yesterday by a stoutly built, smooth-faced man. At the sound of the voice Senator Foraker, who was also standing in front of the weather map, turned around.

"I know you," he said, addressing the stout man. "Your name is Edwards."

"Yes," was the reply; "but I am sorry to say that I do not remember you."

"I am not surprised," remarked Senator Foraker, smiling. "We have not seen each other for thirty-eight years. Don't you remember down in Marietta, Ga., in 1864, when you were in the army of the Tennessee, you used to argue with a young soldier in the army of the Cumberland? I am the soldier. My name is Foraker."

"Joe Foraker, by heaven!" exclaimed the man. "Of course I remember. But, say, haven't you grown gray and ain't you bald?"

Senator Foraker admitted the indictment, and then the two men, who had not seen each other in thirty-eight years, went off and talked over old times.—Washington Post.

A London Publisher's Confession.

One gets confessions now and again which are distinctly interesting, though it may not be possible to turn them to any practical use. Here is an example: Yesterday a publisher was talking of twenty years ago. "Then," he said, "I could publish any novel that came along, if it were not hopelessly bad, and be sure of a profit; which I could generally estimate pretty accurately before the MS. went to the press. The only possibility of error lay in the fact that the book might by chance achieve an unexpected success, and so bring an unexpected profit." He went on to explain that conditions are changed, and of course they are, or he would not have talked with such frankness—admitting all that was vehemently contradicted only a few years ago, when Sir Walter Besant spoke of the ethics of publishing.—London Morning Post.

ANOTHER GRAND REPORT.

From His Majesty's Dockyard, Portsmouth, England.

Where Upwards of 16,000 Men Are Constantly Employed.

Some time ago the Portsmouth Times and Naval Gazette published a most thrilling and remarkable experience of the wife of Mr. Frederick Payne, himself connected with the Portsmouth dockyard for many years. The report produced a great sensation, not only in Portsmouth, but throughout the country, being considered of sufficient importance for reproduction and editorial comment by the leading metropolitan and provincial press of England, as showing the marvelous power which St. Jacobs Oil possesses as a cure for Rheumatism, its application having effected a perfect cure in the case of Mrs. Payne, after having been a helpless cripple and given up by several physicians.

We have now further evidence of its intrinsic value as a Pain Conqueror. Our readers will do well to follow the intelligent and highly interesting details as given in Mrs. Rabbets own words:

"To the Proprietors St. Jacobs Oil—Gentlemen: My husband, who is a shipwright in His Majesty's dockyard, met with an accident to his ankle and leg, spraining both so badly that his leg turned black from his knee to his toes. The doctor said it would be months before he could put his foot to the ground, and it was doubtful whether he would ever get proper use of his leg again.

"A few days after the accident I had a book left at the door telling about St. Jacobs Oil, so I procured a bottle from our chemist, Mr. Arthur Creswell, 379 Commercial Road. I began to use St. Jacobs Oil, and you may guess my surprise when in about another week from that date my husband could not only stand, but could even walk about. In three weeks from the time I first used the Oil my husband was back at work, and everybody talking about his wonderful recovery. This is not all. Seeing what St. Jacobs Oil could do gave me faith in your Vogelger's Curative Compound, also favorably mentioned in the book left at my house. I determined to try the compound on my little girl, who was suffering from a dreadful skin disease, the treatment of which has cost me large sums of money in going from one doctor to another with her, all to no purpose.

"She has taken two bottles of Vogelger's Curative Compound, and one would now hardly take her for the same child. Her skin has such a nice healthy color after the sallow look she has always had.

"I shall never cease to be thankful for the immense benefit we have derived from these two great remedies of yours. I think it a duty to recommend these medicines now I have proved their value.

(Signed.) "Elizabeth S. Rabbets, '98 Grafton Street, Mile End, 'Landport, Portsmouth, England."

A liberal free sample of Vogelger's Compound will be sent by addressing St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore.

The above honest, straightforward statement of Mrs. Rabbets evidence is stronger and far more convincing than pages of paid advertisements, which, though in themselves attractive, yet lack that convincing proof which Mrs. Rabbets' description of her own experience supplies. St. Jacobs Oil has a larger sale throughout the world than that of all other remedies for outward application combined, and this can only be accounted for from the fact of its superiority over all others.

SCOTLAND'S LAW FORBIDS GOLF.

Some Facts That Devotees of the Game May Not Know.

Scotland, as everybody knows, is the land where golf originated and the land where it most flourishes. But if the law was strictly enforced north of the Tweed it would go hard with the players of the royal game in "Bonnie Scotland." Golf players there may not know it, but they are liable to a sentence of death for their indulgence in their favorite sport. Technically this is literally a fact. In ancient times, when Scotland always had work for her soldiers to do, all young men were required to perfect themselves in archery. They preferred to play golf, and so serious a rival did the game become that it was for a time suppressed and made a capital offense. That curious law never has been repealed, and may still be found on the statute book. There seems to be no record, however, of the law ever having been enforced. This legislation in regard to golf reminds one of Kipling's charge that football and cricket are occupying the attention of the youth of England to the exclusion of the more serious business of fighting—his attack on "The flannelled foot at the wicket and the muddled oat at the goal."

For Her Sister's Sake.

Stendal, Ind., Mar. 10th.—Mrs. Sarah A. Shrode of this place says: "I suffered much as many other women do with Kidney and Bladder Troubles. I tried many medicines but got no relief until I used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Nine boxes of this remedy cured me completely and I feel it my duty to my fellow women to make this statement.

"I can heartily recommend them to any woman suffering with Kidney and Bladder Affections."

The words of Mrs. Shrode will be good news to many of her suffering sisters. Dodd's Kidney Pills have proven themselves to be sick women's best friend for they are as effective in all cases of Female Weakness as in Bladder and Kidney Disease.

The miser's walk is represented as stooping, noiseless, with short, nervous, anxious step.

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already. Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion. Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it. Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't live well and strong, without some sort of activity. The genuine has this picture on it, take no other. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you. SCOTT & BOWNE Chemists, 409 Pearl Street, New York. 50c. and $1.00; all druggists.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marker of Chelsea spent Monday of last week with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Heselchwerdt.

Ryan expects to be present.

THE VICIOF NAGGING

Clouds the happiness of the home, but a nagging woman often needs help. She may be so nervous and run down in health that trifles annoy her. If she is melancholy, excitable, troubled with loss of appetite, headache, sleeplessness, constipation or fainting and dizzy spells, she needs Electric Bitters the most wonderful remedy for ailing women. Thousands of sufferers from female troubles, nervous troubles, backache and weak kidneys have used it, and become healthy and happy. Try it. Only 50c. Glazier & Stimson guarantee satisfaction.

LOCKJAW FROM COBWEBS.

Cobwebs put on a cut gave a woman lockjaw. Millions know that the best thing to put on a cut is Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the infallible healer of wounds, ulcers, sores, skin eruptions, burns, scalds and piles. It cures or no pay. Only 25c at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The greatest danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventative of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

Stops the Cough and works off the Cold.

Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 25 cents.

My experience with Merriman's All Night Workers, the formula of which is familiar to me, is such as to warrant an unqualified endorsement. Dr. W. B. Marcusson, 571 Madison street, Chicago. For sale by all druggists. Price 25c.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box, 25c.

BRAIN FOOD NONSENSE.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. C. Green's reliable remedies at Glazier & Stimson's. Get Green's Special Almanac.

PRACTICALLY STARVING.

"After using a few bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure my wife received perfect and permanent relief from a severe and chronic case of stomach trouble," says J. R. Holly, real estate, insurance and loan agent, of Macomb, Ill. "Before using Kodol Dyspepsia Cure she could not eat an ordinary meal without intense suffering. She is now entirely cured. Several physicians and many remedies had failed to give relief." You don't have to diet. Eat any good food you want, but don't overload the stomach. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will always digest it for you. Glazier & Stimson.

FOR THE COMPLEXION.

The complexion always suffers from biliousness or constipation. Unless the bowels are kept open the impurities from the body appear in the form of unsightly eruptions. De Witt's Little Early Risers keep the liver and bowels in healthy condition and remove the cause of such troubles. C. E. Hooper, Albany, Ga., says: "I took De Witt's Little Early Risers for biliousness. They were just what I needed. I am feeling better now than in years." Never gripe or diarrhea. Safe thorough and gentle. The very best pills. Glazier & Stimson's.

Headache often results from a disordered condition of the stomach and constipation of the bowels. A dose or two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will correct these disorders and cure the headache. Sold by all druggists.

COULD NOT BREATHE.

Coughs, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis, other throat and lung troubles are quickly cured by One Minute Cough Cure. One Minute Cough Cure is not a mere expectorant, which gives only temporary relief. It softens and liquefies the mucous, draws out the inflammation and removes the cause of disease. Absolutely safe. Acts at once. "One Minute Cough will do all that is claimed for it," says Justice of the Peace, J. Q. Hood, Crosby, Miss. "My wife could not get her breath and was relieved by the first dose. It has been a benefit to all my family." Glazier & Stimson.

Another large car was taken across the Ann Arbor railroad on west Huron street, Ann Arbor, Saturday afternoon by Supt. Merrill of the D., Y., A., & J. Ry. There are now four cars on the track west of the railroad, one of them being disabled. Supt. Merrill has the crossing business down so fine that it only takes him a few minutes to pass over a large car.

Ernest Forsythe, the young Pittsfield farmer who suddenly developed a propensity to horse stealing, was brought before the Circuit Court Monday afternoon and pleaded guilty to three charges. A petition signed by 35 of the best residents of his township and asking for the leniency of the court was presented to Judge Kinne who evidently considered the petition very seriously as he made the sentence the very lightest possible under the statute. He sentenced Forsythe to three years in Ionia on one charge and suspended sentence on the other two.

The common council at Lansing has set an example which ought to be followed in every city and village in the state by passing an ordinance prohibiting the distribution of free samples of medicine or drugs on doorsteps. Many of the samples thus distributed are gathered and eaten by children who mistake them for candy, and often the results are serious.

The March number of this best of all boys' magazines, The American Boy lies before us. It has its usual number of interesting stories the principal ones being: "A School Lookout," by D. B. Robinson; "Cuthbert's Rattler," by Edgar D. Price; "A Night in the North," by Frank Baird; "A Grandmotherly Lark," by Minna Stanwood; "Toby," a story for little boys, by Roberts Silray. The second installment of "Trooper Stork," by Will Levington Comfort, appears in this number. The true story of "Casablanca," by Louise Jamison; a story of the "Deep Sea," by Collision Fleming. The Sprague Publishing Co., Detroit.

At the opening of the March term of the circuit court last week, Judge Kinne gave the attorneys a severe lecture about lax method in obtaining decrees for divorce. "It has frequently been the case," said Judge Kinne, "that attorneys, in order to shield some one, will allege cruelty in the bill of complaint, and then when the proofs are submitted the act of cruelty lies in an act of adultery. Now while adultery is morally cruel, it is not legal cruelty, and if you wish to obtain a divorce with adultery as the offense, it must be set up in the bill of complaint. In other words, decrees of divorce will be denied unless the proofs correspond to the statutory requirements."

A very curious bi-literal cipher which has been discovered by Mrs. Gallup running through the first edition of Bacon's works, has excited wide interest in the literary world. This cipher of the use of two wrong-front letters at intervals, combinations of these two letters in groups of five constituting an alphabet. These repetitions of a wrong-front letter cannot have been matters of chance. Whether placed there by Lord Bacon or by the printer, remains in doubt. If by the printer, they relate a wonderful romance—the story of Queen Elizabeth's marriage to the Earl of Leicester when both were confined in the Tower prior to the Queen's accession; the birth of two sons, of whom Lord Bacon was the elder, the Earl of Essex the other. Lord Bacon considered himself the heir to the throne of England. The bi-literal cipher further tells that Queen Elizabeth condemned her own son the Earl of Essex, to death. The Cosmopolitan for March contains an article by Prof. Garrett P. Serviss fully reviewing this remarkable romance—if it is concluded to have been inserted by the printer—or tragedy if inserted by Lord Bacon.

Resolutions.

Whereas, in the death of our sister, Mrs. V. McLaren, we sincerely mourn and feel our loss is her gain. Therefore, be it

Resolved, that we, the members of Lafayette Grange keep a warm spot in our heart for the sister who has gone before; and we cannot but realize that God knows best; that we extend to her bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy; and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records, and also be printed in the Chelsea Standard

"UNDER THE BOUGHS OF THE HOLLY TREE."

BY CLINTON HOLLAND.

"Whither away, O Neil Mac Donald, Whither away to meet his ye?"

Bitter the frost upon the mooride, Bitter the frost, but what reck he,

OFF the northern coast of Maine lies Badge Island. On it is a little Government light until a short time ago kept by Frank Gray, a widower, with one child, a little girl of eight.

It was a white-haired, bent man who two years ago was still keeping Badge Island light. His was the loneliest vigil on the whole Atlantic coast, young. She called the big birds her chickens. She went on occasion to a quiet cove and tossed into the water bits of fish, and then watched the terns and their manliness and go to the work of the slaughter. There were some white men in Maine who attempted the killing of the gulls, but who stopped when they heard of the determination of Frank Gray to save the birds, and above all when they learned the story of Catharine's "chickens."

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

DISCOURSE THIS WEEK ON RECOLLECTION AND FORGETFULNESS.

Text Hebrews VIII. 12: "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."—Good Advice for Christians of All Denominations.

(Copyright, 1902, Louis Klopsch, N. Y.) Washington, March 9.—From the letter to the Hebrews Dr. Talmage takes a text and illustrates how all offenders may be emancipated: text, Hebrews VIII. 12, "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

The national flower of the Egyptians is the heliotrope, of the Assyrians is the water lily, of the Hindoos is the marigold, of the Chinese is the chrysanthemum. We have no national flower, but there is hardly any flower more suggestive to many of us than the forget-me-not.

With the art of recollection, which I cannot too highly eulogize, is one quite as important, and yet I never heard it applauded. I mean the art of forgetting. There is a splendid faculty in that direction that we all need to cultivate. We might through that process be ten times happier and more useful than we now are.

"Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more." To remember no more is to forget, and you cannot make anything else out of it. God's power of forgetting is so great that I, two men appeal to him and the one man, after a life all right, gets the sins of his heart pardoned and the other man, after a life of abomination, gets pardoned. God remembers no more against one than against the other.

This sublime attribute of forgetfulness on the part of God you and I need, in our finite way, to imitate. You will do well to cast out of your recollection all wrongs done you. During the course of one's life he is sure to be misrepresented, to be lied about, to be injured. There are those who keep these things fresh by frequent rehearsal. Keep nothing in your possession that is disagreeable. Tear up the falsehoods and the slanders and the hypercriticisms.

Imitate the Lord in my text and forget, actually forget, sublimely forget. There is no happiness for you in any other plan or procedure. You see all around you in the church and out of the church dispositions acerb, malign, cynical, pessimistic. Do you know how these men and women got that disposition? It was by the embalmment of things pantherine and viperous. Their soul is a cage of vultures. Everything in them is sour or embittered. The milk of human kindness has been curdled. They do not believe in anybody or anything.

Where there is one sweet pipkin in their orchard there are fifty crab-apples. They have never been able to forget. They do not want to forget. They never will forget. Their wretchedness is supreme, for no one can be happy if he carries perpetually in mind the mean things that have been done him. On the other hand, you can find here and there a man or woman (for there are not many of them) whose disposition is genial and sunny. Why? Have they always been treated well? Oh, no. Hard things have been said against them. They have been charged with officiousness, and their generousities have been set down to a desire for display, and they have many a time been the subject of little tattling, and they have had enough small assaults like gnats and enough great attacks like lions to have made them perpetually miserable if they would have consented to be miserable. But they have had enough divine philosophy to cast off the annoyances, and they have kept themselves in the sunlight of God's favor and have realized that these oppositions and hindrances are a part of a mighty discipline by which they are to be prepared for usefulness and heaven.

Another practical thought: When our faults are repented of let them go out of mind. If God forgets them we have a right to forget them. Having once repented of our infidelities and misdemeanors, there is no need of our repenting of them again. While it is right that Christians repent of new sins and of recent sins, what is the use of bottering yourself and insulting God by asking him to forgive sins that long ago were forgiven? God has forgotten them. Why do you not forget them? No; you drag the load on with you, and 365 times a year, if you pray every day, you ask God to recall occurrences which he has not only forgiven, but forgotten.

Quit this folly. I do not ask you less to realize the turpitude of sin, but I ask you to have a higher faith in the promise of God and the full deliverance of his mercy. He does not give a receipt for part payment or so much received on account, but receipt in full. God having for Christ's sake decreed "your sins and your iniquities will I remember no more." As far as possible let the disagreeables of life drop. We have enough things in the present, and there will be enough in the future, to disturb us without running a special train into the great Gouby to fetch us an special freight things left behind. Let the train of your thoughts throw off the worse than needless freight of a corrupt and destroyed past and load up with gratitude and faith and hope and determination. We do not please God by the cultivation of the miserable. He would rather see us happy than to see us depressed. You would rather see your children laugh than to see them cry, and your Heavenly Father has no fondness for hysterics.

Not only forget your pardoned transgressions, but allow others to forget them. The chief stock on hand of some people is to recount in prayer meetings and pulpits what big ecouidrets they once were. They not only will not forget their forgiven deficits, but they seem to be determined that the church and the world shall not forget them. If you want to declare that you have been the chief of sinners and extol the grace that could save such a wretch as you were, do so, but do not go into particulars. If you have any scars got in honorable warfare, show them, but if you have scars got in ignoble warfare do not display them. I know you will quote the Bible reterence to the horrible pit from which you were digged. Yes, be thankful for that rescue, but do not make displays of the mud of that horrible pit or splash it over other people. Sometimes I have felt in Christian meetings discomfited and unfit for Christian service because I had done none of those things which seemed to be, in the estimation of many, necessary for Christian usefulness, for I never swore a word or ever got drunk or went to compromising places or was guilty of assault and battery or ever uttered a slanderous word or ever did any one a hurt, although I knew my heart was sinful enough, and I said to myself, "There is no use of my trying to do any good, for I never went through those depraved experiences." But afterward I saw consolation in the thought that no one gained any ordination by the laying on of the hands of dissoluteness and infamy.

And though an ordinary moral life, ending in a Christian life, may not be as dramatic a story to tell about, let us be grateful to God rather than worry about it if we have never plunged into outward abominations. It may be appropriate in a meeting of reformed drunkards or reformed debauchees to quote for those not reformed how desperate and nasty you once were, but do not drive a scavenger's cart into assemblies of people the most of whom have always been decent and respectable. But I have been sometimes in great evangelical meetings where people went into particulars about the sins that they once committed, so much so that I felt like putting my hand on my pocketbook or calling for the police lest these reformed men might fall from grace and go to their old business of theft or drunkenness or cut-throatery. If your sins have been forgiven and your life purified, forget the waywardness of the past and allow others to forget it.

But what I most want in the light of this text to impress is that we have a sin-forgetting God. Suppose that on the last day—called the last day because the sun will never again rise upon our earth, the earth itself being flung into fiery demollition—supposing that on that last day a group of infernal spirits should somehow get near enough the gate of heaven and challenge our entrance and say: "How canst thou, the just Lord, let those souls into the realm of supernal gladness? Why, they said a great many things they never ought to have said, and they did a great many things they ought never to have done. Sinners are they—sinners all."

And suppose God should deign to answer. He might say: "Yes, but did not my only Son die for their ransom? Did he not pay the price? Not one drop of blood was retained in his arteries; not one nerve of his that was not wrung in the torture. He took in his own body and soul all the suffering that those sinners deserve. They pleaded that sacrifice; they took the full pardon that I promised to all who, through my Son, earnestly applied for it, and it passed out of my mind that they were offenders. I forgot all about it. Yes, I forgot all about it. 'Their sins and their iniquities do I remember no more.' A sin-forgetting God! That is clear beyond and far above a sin-pardoning God. How often we hear it said, 'I can forgive, but I can not forget.' That is equal to saying, 'I verbally admit it is all right, but I will keep the old grudge good.' There is something in the demeanor that seems to say: 'I would not do you harm. Indeed I wish you well, but that unfortunate affair can never pass out of my mind.' There may no hard words pass between them, but until death breaks in the same coolness remains. But God lets our pardoned offenses go into oblivion. He never throws them up to us again. He feels as kindly toward us as though we had been spotless and positively angelic all along.

Many years ago a family consisting of the husband and wife and little girl of two years lived far out in a cabin on a western prairie. The husband took a few cattle to market. Before he started his little child asked him to buy for her a doll, and he promised. He could after the sale of the cattle purchase household necessities and certainly would not forget the doll he had promised. In the village to which he went he sold the cattle and obtained the groceries for his household and the doll for his little darling. He started home along the dismal road at nightfall. As he went along on horseback a thunderstorm broke, and in the most lonely part of the road and in the heaviest part of the storm he heard a child's cry. Robbers had been known to do some bad work along that road, and it was known that this herdman had money with him, the price of the cattle sold. The herdman first thought it was a stratagem to have him halt and be despoiled of his treasures, but the child's cry became more keen and reading, and so he dismounted and felt around in the darkness and all in vain until he thought of a hollow that he remembered near the road where the child might be, and for that he started, and, sure enough, found a little one fagged out and drenched of the storm and almost dead. He wrapped it up as well as he could and mounted his horse and resumed his journey home. Coming in sight of his cabin, he saw it all lighted up and supposed his wife had kindled all these lights so as to guide her husband through the darkness. But no. The house was full of excitement, and the neighbors were gathered and stood around the wife of the house, who was insensible as from some great calamity. On inquiry the returned husband found that the little child of that cabin was gone. She had wandered out to meet her father and get the present he had promised and the child was lost. Then the father unrolled from the blanket the child he had found in the fields, and lo, it was his own child and the lost one of the prairie home and the cabin quaked with the shout over the lost one found! How suggestive of the fact that once we were lost in the open fields or among the mountain crags, God's wandering children, and he found us, dying in the tempest, and wrapped us in the mantle of his love and fetched us home, gladness and congratulation bidding us welcome. The fact is that the world does not know God or they would all flock to him.

There are certain names so magnetic that their pronunciation thrills all who hear them. Such is the name of the Italian soldier and liberator, Garibaldi. Marching with his troops, he met a shepherd who was in great distress because he had lost a lamb. Garibaldi said to his troops, "Let us help this poor shepherd find his lamb." And so, with lanterns and torches, they explored the mountains, but did not find the lamb, and after an unsuccessful search late at night they went to their encampment. The next morning Garibaldi was found asleep far on into the day, and they awakened him for some purpose and found that he had not given up the search when the soldiers did, but had kept on still further into the night and had found it, and he pulled down the blankets from his couch, and there lay the lamb, which Garibaldi ordered immediately taken to its owner. So the commander of all the hosts of heaven turned aside from his glorious and victorious march through the centuries of heaven and said, "I will go and recover that lost world and that race of whom Adam was the progenitor and let all who will accompany me." And through the night they came, but I do not see that the angelic escort came any farther than the clouds, but their most illustrious leader came all the way down, and by the time his errand is done our little world, our wandering and lost world, our world fleecy with the light, will be found in the bosom of the Great Shepherd, and then all heaven will take up the cantata and sing, "The lost sheep found!"

So I set open the wide gate of my text, inviting you all to come into the mercy and pardon of God—yes, still further, into the ruins of the place where once was kept the knowledge of your iniquities. The place has been torn down and the records destroyed, and you will find the ruins more dilapidated and broken and prostrate than the ruins of Melrose or Kealthworth, for from these last ruins you can pick up some fragment of a sculptured stone or you can see the curve of some broken arch, but after your repentance and your forgiveness you cannot find in all the memory of God a fragment of your pardoned sins so large as a needle's point. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

Six different kinds of sounds were heard on that night which was interjected into the daylight of Christ's assassination. The neighing of the war-horses—for some of the soldiers were in the saddle—was one sound, the bang of the hammers was a second sound, the jeer of malignants was a third sound, the weeping of friends and followers was a fourth sound, the splash of blood on the rocks was a fifth sound, and the groan of the expiring Lord was a sixth sound. And they all commingled into one sadness. Over a place in Russia where wolves were pursuing a herd of travelers and to save them a servant sprang from the sled into the mouths of the wild beasts and was devoured and thereby the other lives were saved are inscribed the words, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend." Many a surgeon in our own time has in tracheotomy with his own lips drawn from the windpipe of a diphtheritic patient that which cured the patient and slew the surgeon, and all have honored the self-sacrifice. But all other scenes of sacrifice pale before this most illustrious martyr of all time and all eternity. After that agonizing spectacle in behalf of our fallen race nothing about the sin forgetting God is too stupendous for my faith, and I accept the promise, and will you not all accept it? "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

A seat on the New York stock exchange is worth $75000 which makes it rather an expensive place for the owner to go back and sit down. After a woman gets married and has children, she is lucky if she gets time to read any other than the doctor book.

Cannon's Defense Answered.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, who fell heir to the title of "Watch Dog of the Treasury" after the demise of the venerable Holman of Indiana, was in the midst of a heated discussion on the Nicaragua canal bill when suddenly, after making a positive assertion, he shouted at the top of his voice: "If I am wrong, who will correct me?" "Ah, I would not undertake such an arduous task," replied the versatile Mr. Hepburn, as he arose in his place and sank back again before Mr. Cannon could return the fire. The house roared.

Female Birds "on Strike." Birds are famous for "women's rights" strikes—that is, the females sometimes flock together, abandoning or driving away the males, and refuse to do any "housework" whatever. They desert their nests and will not finish building. They leave their eggs to grow cold and unmatchable, and nothing will induce them to return. The male birds grow extremely concerned at such times, but they have no remedy, for throughout the beast and bird creation the male will never attack a female, though the opposite often happens. Warblers and starlings especially are given to these "female workers' strikes."

The Grass Lake passengers went to Liverpool on the Harmonides.—Jackson Press.

Oscar Stevens of Canton Centre shot a wolf, and did not know what kind of an animal it was until a few days ago. Stevens' sister saw the wolf from a window and called to shoot it. The animal was a gray timber wolf, between four and five feet in length, and its gaunt form suggested that it must have been on a skinnish for food. Where the beast came from is a mystery which cannot be solved by Stevens' neighbors, who have called in large numbers to look at the pet. He will apply to the county officials for the $15 bounty paid on these animals.—Belleville Enterprise.

The Aspinwall Mfg Co., of this city, are in receipt of another large order covering their line of potato implements, for shipment to South Africa. The extensive export trade built up by this company within the past few years is evidence of the sterling merit of their machines, and no small factor in spreading abroad the fame of Jackson as a manufacturing point. The Aspinwall people, through their special European representative, now at Rotterdam, Holland, expect to make an extensive exhibit of their line during the National Agricultural Exposition, in June, at Mannheim.—Jackson Citizen.
