My Trip to Montrose.

After leaving Denver I could see from the car window, the snow covered plianc of Pike's Peak. Soon a remarkable rock rising from the summit of a conical hill, and presenting the appearance of an ancient tower attracted my attention this was Castle Rock. Beyond this the country becomes more broken, the ascent being now begun at what is known as the "divide," a range of hills extending into the plains and rising to an elevation of 7,500 feet. On the summit of the divide is Palmer Lake a lovely little sheet of water. Beyond Palmer Lake on both sides of the track may be seen a wonderful formation of brilliant red sandstone, one of the most striking of these was named Pheob's Arch, through which there is a perfect natural archway. The distance of the divide to Colorado Springs is through an interesting country, mountains to the west, and plains extending to the east. As Colorado Springs are approached, the great gateway to the Garden of the Gods can be seen to the right and Pike's Peak rising to an altitude of 14,147 feet. The run from Colorado Springs to Pueblo is down the valley of a pretty little stream, on whose banks are situated large ranches on, whose large crops are grown through the medium of irrigation. About one-half hour more and we were in the Royal Gorge; after the entrance to the canon had been made, surprise and almost terror came. The train rolled around a long curve, close under a wall of black granite, beside which the locomotive shrank to a mere dot as it swung on some pivot in the heart of the mountain; soon the daylight comes and now I saw the glories of the mountain towering into the clouds. Now we are at Salida a pretty little mountain town, and from there the scenery still continued beautiful, when we were going over Marshal Pass it seemed as though we were in and above the home of the clouds, the Pass is a scientific wonder a grade of 211 feet to the mile being attained the entire distance. The streams from the summit flow eastward into the Atlantic and westward into the Pacific. I was impressed with the feeling that I was on the pinnacle of the world. We are now approaching the Black Canon of the Gunnison. The deep blue waters of the Gunnison grow narrower and deeper, the cliffs higher and more precipitous, then suddenly the sunlight is cut off by summits. In this canon we passed Curcanti Needle and lovely Chipta Falls. In about an hour the train had reached Montrose. This was a delightful trip and one I am sure that I cannot easily forget. Lydia Killmer.

Dog Tax Law.

It has been reported that the Supervisor of Sylvan returned the tax to the Sheriff of Washtenaw county on 134 dogs and that the Sheriff would not take any action in the matter because the dogs were not described; both of the above statements are not true; it is the duty of the Treasurer of Sylvan township to return such unpaid taxes to the sheriff only in cases where the Treasurer is unable to collect same. For the information of those who have not paid their tax on dogs, the law defining the duties of the assessing officer and collector is given below: Act No. 48, public acts of 1901.—To provide for a tax upon dogs and to create a fund for the payment of certain damages for sheep killed or wounded by them in certain cases. The People of the State of Michigan enact: Section 1—That in all townships and cities of this State, except in cities having and enforcing an ordinance imposing a tax or license fee on every dog owned or harbored in said city, there shall be annually levied and collected the following tax upon dogs: Upon every male dog over three months old owned or kept by one person or family, one dollar; upon every female dog over three months old owned or kept by one person or family, three dollars: Provided, That the tax upon a female dog whose ovaries have been removed shall be one dollar, and shall be so levied by the supervisor in every case when the person owning such dog shall file with such supervisor a certificate under oath of a veterinary surgeon that the ovaries of such dog had been removed. Section 2—The assessor of every township or ward, at the time of making his annual assessment, shall inquire and ascertain the number of dogs liable to be taxed, and shall enter in lists to be made by him the name of every person in his respective township or ward owning or keeping any dog subject to the above tax, the number kept by such person, and the amount of tax to be paid by him. Section 3—The assessor of every township and ward shall, on or before the Tuesday next following the third Monday in May in each year, make out a duplicate of the lists made by him as provided in the preceding section and file the same with the township or city clerk of his respective township or city; said taxes, as provided for in the preceding section of this act, shall be assessed to and collected from such persons as shall be liable for the same, in the same manner as other township and city taxes are assessed and collected, and with like power to distrain and sell any property of the owner liable to be taxed. Section 4—The collector to whom such tax rolls shall be delivered shall proceed and collect the same of money therein and collect in the same manner and with like authority in all respects as in the like authority imposed by the board of supervisors of the county, and shall, after deducting the commission allowed by this act, retain the remainder in the township or city treasury and subject to the orders of the township and city boards, as provided in sections five and six of this act. The collector shall give to each person paying the tax on any dog, a receipt for the amount paid, which receipt shall bear date on which payment is made, shall describe the dog on which the tax was paid, and shall be numbered with a serial number and the year. He shall also give to such person a metal label that may be securely affixed to the dog collar. Such label shall bear the serial number and year, as does the receipts, such receipts and labels to be paid for from the dog tax fund of said township or city: Provided, That in each and every case where the collector is unable to collect the tax in the manner above specified prior to the first day of February in each year it shall be his duty to provide the sheriff of such county with a list of each and every dog upon which such tax has not been paid and it shall be the duty of the sheriff of such county to levy upon each and every dog upon which such tax has not been paid whenever said dog or dogs may be found, and it shall further be his duty to take possession of said dog or dogs and kill or cause the same to be killed. The absence of before mentioned label, or inability of owner to show a proper receipt, shall be sufficient evidence that the tax on any dog has not been paid. For this purpose the sheriff shall receive from the township or city in which said dog or dogs are assessed, a fee of one dollar for each and every dog so killed and buried, the same to be paid from the dog fund of said township or city upon the order of said township or city board.

PRACTICALLY STARVING.
"After using a few bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure my wife received perfect and permanent relief from a severe and chronic case of stomach trouble," says J. R. Holly, real estate, insurance and loan agent, of Macomb, Ill. "Before using Kodol Dyspepsia Cure she could not eat an ordinary meal without intense suffering. She is now entirely cured. Several physicians and many remedies had failed to give relief." You don't have to diet. Eat any good food you want, but don't overload the stomach. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will always digest it for you. Glazier & Stimson.

Charges His Wife With a Grave Crime.

The disappearance of their son has greatly affected his parents, Mrs. Morse being prostrated at her home in Portland, while Mr. Morse has been on the go in search of him day and night for the past 10 days. The only clue thus far obtained as to his probable whereabouts reached the warden in Lansing Wednesday in the form of a letter from a woman in Three Rivers, who wrote that a young man closely resembling the description of young Morse had applied at her home for something to eat last week Friday.

The School Closed. Miss Pearl Orutt, a teacher in the North Muskegon school, appeared in school Thursday badly broken out with smallpox. The school was hastily closed and placed under quarantine. Miss Orutt claimed it was only chickenpox, she had, but Health Officer Denslow insisted it was smallpox and ordered her to go to her home in the city. When she reached home, she realized that she and the family, consisting of three other children and the mother, would be quarantined as soon as the city health officer should return, so they all prepared for a hasty flight. When the physician arrived with an officer the house was vacant. Plain clothes men are now diligently searching for the Orutts, but have not succeeded in locating them. Dr. Denslow then visited the family physician, Dr. LeGrand Wheeler, and a stormy interview ensued in which the city health officer threatened the other with arrest because he persisted in claiming Miss Orutt had nothing but the chickenpox.

Eaton Not Poisoned. The physician attending William Eaton, who claims to have been poisoned by his wife, who has left with another man, says the man probably cannot live, but is positive in the statement that Eaton's condition is due to apoplexy, followed by partial paralysis. J. J. McDonald, of Grand Rapids, deputy great commander of the Knights of the Macabees, has been looking up the interests of his lodge at Grand Rapids, to which Eaton belongs, and he agrees with the physicians in the statement that there are no traces of poisoning.

Shot at Burglars. On returning home Saturday afternoon Mrs. George Cull, of Royal Oak, and her 20-year-old daughter Ethel, found a large lot of groceries, bedding and clothing piled up ready to be taken away. On opening a closet door two burly negroes were discovered. Ethel grabbed a .28-caliber revolver and commenced shooting at them, firing two shots which went wide of the mark, the negroes escaping unharmed. They had gained an entrance through a side window. The plucky young lady fainted away after her exciting episode.

Killed By Shock. Frank Munger, Jr., was instantly killed in Portland Tuesday night by an electric shock. He was returning home from town and passed an arc lamp which was not burning. He took hold of the wire cable by which the lamp is raised and lowered for the purpose of jerking it and jarring the cables together, when he received the full current. The supposition is that the cable had swung against the main wire and the dampness helped to burn off the insulation. Munger was 22 years old and unmarried.

Ple Engines, Power Jobs. Since the Michigan Central put on its new mammoth engines at Bay City trainmen have been on the anxious seat. The new engines haul twice as many cars as the old, resulting in many of the conductors being reduced to brakemen and a large number of brakemen have been laid off. Several more of these labor-saving engines are soon to arrive and the M. C. employees are wondering how many will have to look for other jobs.

Her father has been caring for her, and she will go home to Greensfield, Ind., early next week. Where is Young Morse?

Grant M. Morse, state game warden, arrived in Kalamazoo Wednesday in search of his son, who disappeared from the Agricultural college some time ago. Morse left Lansing in the morning for Three Rivers, but stopped off at Kalamazoo, thinking he might find a clue to the boy, who is an only son. In his worry incident to the search Mr. Morse says that he neglected to eat any breakfast and later on took a couple of drinks to stimulate him. The liquor went to his head, and, as he says, "quickly confused him."

The policeman who made the arrest didn't know the identity of his distinguished prisoner, but when he was recognized a few hours later by friends he was released.

The disappearance of their son has greatly affected his parents, Mrs. Morse being prostrated at her home in Portland, while Mr. Morse has been on the go in search of him day and night for the past 10 days. The only clue thus far obtained as to his probable whereabouts reached the warden in Lansing Wednesday in the form of a letter from a woman in Three Rivers, who wrote that a young man closely resembling the description of young Morse had applied at her home for something to eat last week Friday.

The School Closed. Miss Pearl Orutt, a teacher in the North Muskegon school, appeared in school Thursday badly broken out with smallpox. The school was hastily closed and placed under quarantine. Miss Orutt claimed it was only chickenpox, she had, but Health Officer Denslow insisted it was smallpox and ordered her to go to her home in the city. When she reached home, she realized that she and the family, consisting of three other children and the mother, would be quarantined as soon as the city health officer should return, so they all prepared for a hasty flight. When the physician arrived with an officer the house was vacant. Plain clothes men are now diligently searching for the Orutts, but have not succeeded in locating them. Dr. Denslow then visited the family physician, Dr. LeGrand Wheeler, and a stormy interview ensued in which the city health officer threatened the other with arrest because he persisted in claiming Miss Orutt had nothing but the chickenpox.

Eaton Not Poisoned. The physician attending William Eaton, who claims to have been poisoned by his wife, who has left with another man, says the man probably cannot live, but is positive in the statement that Eaton's condition is due to apoplexy, followed by partial paralysis. J. J. McDonald, of Grand Rapids, deputy great commander of the Knights of the Macabees, has been looking up the interests of his lodge at Grand Rapids, to which Eaton belongs, and he agrees with the physicians in the statement that there are no traces of poisoning.

On returning home Saturday afternoon Mrs. George Cull, of Royal Oak, and her 20-year-old daughter Ethel, found a large lot of groceries, bedding and clothing piled up ready to be taken away. On opening a closet door two burly negroes were discovered. Ethel grabbed a .28-caliber revolver and commenced shooting at them, firing two shots which went wide of the mark, the negroes escaping unharmed. They had gained an entrance through a side window. The plucky young lady fainted away after her exciting episode.

Killed By Shock. Frank Munger, Jr., was instantly killed in Portland Tuesday night by an electric shock. He was returning home from town and passed an arc lamp which was not burning. He took hold of the wire cable by which the lamp is raised and lowered for the purpose of jerking it and jarring the cables together, when he received the full current. The supposition is that the cable had swung against the main wire and the dampness helped to burn off the insulation. Munger was 22 years old and unmarried.

Ple Engines, Power Jobs. Since the Michigan Central put on its new mammoth engines at Bay City trainmen have been on the anxious seat. The new engines haul twice as many cars as the old, resulting in many of the conductors being reduced to brakemen and a large number of brakemen have been laid off. Several more of these labor-saving engines are soon to arrive and the M. C. employees are wondering how many will have to look for other jobs.

What Tariff Reduction on Sugar Means.

WOLSELEY GOES TO AFRICA.

Ex-Governor John P. Altgeld Died at Joliet, Ill.—General Methuen Taken a Prisoner by the Boers—Secretary Long Resigns—Various Happenings.

The Sugar Industry. Congressman Corliss says: "All the pictures of distressed Cuba" and the benefit she will derive from the proposed tariff reduction on sugar," he said, "are not a reality, and are found only in the circulars of the United States Export association, composed of a shyster, a jobber, and a printing press and having a capital of about $500.

"Cuba is not distressed industrially. Cuban industries are doing well. Wages in the manufacture of sugar are as good in Cuba as they are in Michigan. More than that, Cuba has been freed of $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 taxes which she formerly had to pay to Spain. She has a greater production now than ever and at double wages.

"If a 20 per cent reduction were made on Cuban raw sugar every cent would go to the benefit of the sugar trust.

"We show that $6,000,000 has been invested in the manufacture of beet sugar in Michigan in four years and that an equal amount is ready to go into the business and that 80,000 farmers are interested in the raising of beets. We claim that a cut of 20 per cent in the duty would paralyze the development of this industry, even though the factories already established might be able to continue in the business. Last year Michigan produced 5,000,000 pounds of sugar, and this year she will undoubtedly produce as much as she consumes.

Miles Can't Go. Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles of the army, made a specific request to the war department to be sent to the Philippines, and in connection therewith submitted a plan by which, in his opinion, the war could be brought to an end and without further loss of life to either side. He proposed to employ methods similar to those used by him so successfully in his Indian campaign. Secretary Root, after due consideration, denied Gen. Miles' request, and disapproved the plan submitted. The papers, so endorsed by the secretary, were sent to the White house and the president subsequently concurred in the secretary's action. The final indorsement, disposing of the matter, is said to bear date March 5, 1902.

In effect President Roosevelt and Secretary Root held that the war in the Philippines is already at an end, or virtually so, and that the adoption of Gen. Miles' plan, involving a change of policy in dealing with the inhabitants of the archipelago, would be unfair to those officials, military and civil, whose work has brought about almost complete pacification.

The King of Spain. Bellamy Storer, United States minister to Spain, says that reports that the young king was physically and mentally unable to assume the reins of government are untrue. He has been admirably brought up by a most devoted mother, and Mr. Storer sees no reason why he should not reign with honor to himself and to his country. He has grown very fast and is now a fine looking lad. He takes a keen interest in military affairs, and shows to great advantage when he appears mounted at a review of the troops.

Speaking of the king's accession, Mr. Storer said: "There will be no formal coronation, as the king of Spain is supposed to be born crowned. He will merely take the oath to preserve the constitution, and there will be the customary ceremonies."

Wrecked the Plant. The big plant of the Toledo Metal Wheel Co., employing nearly 800 men, which stands along the Lake Shore railway, collapsed just as a westbound passenger train passed the building. It fell across the track and barely missed the rear coach. Had the collapse occurred two seconds earlier, every occupant of the coach would have been killed.

Had it occurred during the week, it is believed hundreds of lives would have been lost. It is supposed that the continual passing of trains had such effect as to cause the walls to weaken until they collapsed.

Wolseley Gone to Africa. Field-Marshal Lord Wolseley has gone to Cape Town. Although the officials deny that his trip is anything but a private visit, gossip connects it with the military situation. It is pointed out that Lord Wolseley's knowledge of South Africa, gained as a fighter and administrator, might be highly useful to Lord Kitchener, either at the base (Cape Town), or at Pretoria. Lord Wolseley himself says that his trip is entirely private. Col. Frank Rhodes and Arthur Rhodes, brothers of Cecil Rhodes, and Lady Methuen, were passengers on the steamer which took Lord Wolseley to Cape Town.

The bankers' commission at Pekin has accepted the February installment, amounting to 1,200,000 taels, of the Chinese indemnity, greatly to the satisfaction of the ministers of the power.

Altgeld's Sudden Death.

Ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld of Illinois died in Joliet Wednesday morning. He had been unconscious since midnight. Mr. Altgeld was the principal speaker at a pro-Boer mass meeting Tuesday night in the Joliet theater.

Just at the close of his speech, sudden dizziness seized him and he was assisted from the stage. The meeting proceeded, the audience realizing what had happened. Mr. Altgeld was taken to the door of the theater, where several vomiting spells seized him.

This continued for nearly an hour and was so pronounced he could be removed to the hotel.

Physicians were hastily summoned and Mr. Altgeld was carried to the hotel across the street. He retained consciousness and urged the newspapermen to keep the affair quiet, for fear of alarming his wife. Shortly before midnight he became unconscious. He remained in this condition until death.

An American Nabob.

A Remarkable Story of Love, Gold and Adventure.

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE

And then—she always stopped at this point, as though what further she might say depended on circumstances, only that it was his full desire that she should feel the bitterness of death and desertion that had wrung his heart and turned it to stone. Fedora was under some species of she even knew not herself what it meant.

This remarkable man interested her. She seemed to arouse some half-slumbering memory that came as might a dream—a memory that must have been pleasant, for it had an interesting effect.

The strangeness of the sensation surprised her curiosity; she could not understand why she was drawn so irresistibly toward this black-bearded American who had set the gossips of London agog, whose name was an everyday tip, and of whom she had even heard the captain proudly mention more than once at the table as "my friend the Marquis." Nor did she make any strong effort at resistance, but as one is caught by a swift current and drawn on so rapidly that the waves grow confused.

What more natural than that she should ask him to call, either during his usual hour for receiving, or later in the day, when she might be at home to enjoy a cigar with him as they commended notes on adventurous travels in the jungles and forests of Africa and America.

The Marquis promised to take advantage of the first opportunity; then she came up and their tete-a-tete was broken.

CHAPTER XVII
Spinning the Web.

Some weeks had passed. All along the line the Marquis found himself in a condition to report progress.

Mazette had removed to cozy lodgings in a respectable neighborhood, and encouraged by the appreciation of this unknown but wealthy patron, she had set to work most diligently upon the task given her.

With nourishing food, and hope filling her heart, the future appeared bright, and she soon began to appear like the cheery Mazette of old.

More work followed—M. Duval commended her praises aloud, and there were those who already thought it fitting to follow in the footsteps of the latest lion, so that Mazette's future seemed assured.

Then one day there was a knock at the door of her studio, for success had enabled her to have a workroom such as she had longed to possess, lo, these many years.

Upon opening the door the little miniature painter saw a tall, heavily-bearded gentleman, whose air was somewhat foreign.

She straightway began to tremble, under the conviction that this must be her illustrious patron to whom she owed so much; for, be it known, M. Duval had been artfully prevailed upon to give as elaborate a description of the noble Marquis as lay in his power.

When her visitor spoke his voice was deep and reassuring; and there seemed to be some rare quality about it that almost startled little Mazette, guessing ill-defined and hazy memories of the past which she could not grasp into any concrete form, try as she might.

When the Marquis offered his hand at leaving she was a little confused by the warmth of his clasp and the aggressiveness with which he promised to drop in again and see how the work progressed.

When the Marquis left the modest little studio he was surprised at the glow of generous feeling that came over him.

"God bless the brave little woman—she does a man good to even bask in her presence. Here, at least, is no deception such as stalks abroad in society's circles—she 'had' only good words for her fellow creatures. At least let me be grateful for the privilege of being able to secure her future. This holy desire for her good may in a measure offset the still fierce passion for revenge. At least it gives me joy, an experience I had never hoped to feel again."

His other plans were maturing. Evidently the Marquis was in no hurry—neither is the satiated cat when she has caught a mouse that she cannot devour.

Livermore's losses at the gaming tables were not all—indeed, it seemed as though circumstances had taken a sudden delight in combining to smite this son of fortune at a time when he could not find a means of resistance.

The several companies controlling the South African mines in which Livermore had investments, and which had been paying good dividends, were bought up by some new combination, backed by unlimited capital, and there was a grave suspicion that the small shareholders were about to be driven out in a way perfectly legitimate and yet shockingly cruel.

And there were others, too.

Really, the doughty captain was passing through an experience that promised to make an old man of him if long continued.

Twice the Marquis had called upon Fedora, and on each occasion exerted himself to fascinate as he had never before done in all his life.

Affairs were in this state, and the Marquis could see the possible tragic outcome of his systematic assault all along the line, unless his nerve failed, or something occurred to break the stern resolution by which he had bound himself.

A few more visits, he believed, would complete the fascination of Fedora—harassed by accumulating debts and made boorish by his troubles, it might be readily assumed that the captain would be anything but an amiable companion these days, and the couple, never having had a genuine love for each other, would drift further apart.

This would be his opportunity—the glitter of his unlimited wealth, together with the strange hold he had upon Fedora, by reason of her old-time love, though she herself might not know the real cause—these two combined should tempt her to leave the falling fortunes of the captain and seek happiness with the man who controlled her will.

It was a fiendish revenge, and many times the marquis cursed himself for entertaining it; yet the memory of his dreadful sufferings drove him back again with renewed zeal to pick up the threads of fate where he had dropped them and go on with feverish eagerness.

It was only when he thought of Mazette that he winced and grew confused—not for worlds would he ever have her know what wicked thoughts struggled with his better nature, and unsmilingly gained the mastery.

One day the marquis, still pursuing the one object of his presence in London at this unfashionable season of the year, dropped in at the establishment of Captain Livermore, resolved to play his cards to advantage, since a crisis was near.

His quick eye noted signs of confusion, and he knew disaster had at last fallen upon the captain, who must seek a cheaper home—yes, evidently a move was contemplated—his sturdy blows were beginning to tell, and he should feel a glow of satisfaction in the region of his heart.

The occasion would be propitious for his master stroke—surely he should be able to win her consent—what had she to consider but a ruined home and a husband whom she had wedded while loving another?

He offered her unlimited wealth, beyond the dream of the human mind, love, and all the attractions the world can bestow.

Yes, she would yield—he knew how weak her nature was—had she not shaken it when throwing him over for fortune's smiles?—she had no anchor such as the safeguard of a husband's love would throw around her—he felt assured of this as he did of anything in his whole life.

When the marquis entered the house it was with the confident air of one who has abundant faith to believe in the positive success awaiting him—not over-confidence such as loses battles, but the quiet assurance that springs from a thorough knowledge of the powers he controls.

It chanced, however, that there was one thing he had not counted on, a matter that might seem of small consequence, and yet which must burst upon him with appalling force.

As he sat and waited sounds of a commotion were heard, such as caused the marquis to start, turn deadly pale and tremble as he had never done when bodily danger menaced him—then through the open door came dashing two little tots, one a golden-haired angel of three, the other a sturdy, black-eyed English lad of four—across the floor they scampered, straight to where the American nabob sat gripping the sides of his chair, and with the assurance some children possess, forthwith climbed directly upon his knees and took possession.

At that moment the fort was nearer being carried by assault than since the day its steel buttressed walls had been first barricaded against the forces of sentiment and the holler passions that come from above; for up to this hour this stern man, bent upon righting his wrongs of the past, had never once suspected that Fedora was a mother, and the knowledge came upon him like a thunderbolt from a clear sky.

It would be almost impossible to adequately measure the surprise and consternation that overwhelmed the marquis as he sat there and felt the chubby arms of Fedora's little darlings about his neck.

It was wonderful what an influence this new and astounding element had upon him—he was quite disarmed—those chubby hands upon his face, the little cooing voice, as trusting eyes looked up into his own, exclaiming: "Dodo love oo"—a man must have colder blood in his veins than the marquis to endure this and at the same moment plan destruction to the little maiden's parents.

In that short time he saw a great light, such as had never dawned on him before.

True, it might die out again, overwhelmed by the darkness of passion's sway; but the influence of his association with those innocents would have a decided bearing upon his future.

Thus Fedora found them when she came in, and greatly she marveled at the sudden fancy her little darlings had taken for the mysterious marquis.

Of course, their nurse was summoned and they were banished from the scene; but the retreat was conducted with much reluctance, especially on the part of Miss Dorothy, who seemed to have conceived a great fancy for the marquis.

Thus, the visit that he had intended should be so dramatic, and lead to a crisis, was of an altogether different nature. And he came away without, by act or word, having advanced the desperate scheme which had so filled his mind on crossing that home portal.

It was not remorse—the time had not come for that; but while the kisses of that innocent little prattler were yet warm upon his cheek he could not strike the terrible blow that would possibly blight her mother's future happiness.

Not being in the humor to enjoy social intercourse with his fellows, he avoided those who would have sought his company, and spent the evening strolling along Oxford street and High Holborn, watching the crowds, smoking innumerable cigars and wrestling with his thoughts.

As the hour grew later he found himself quite a distance from his hotel, beyond St. Paul's, and even on the border of the Whitechapel district of unenviable fame as one of the most notorious slum districts of the modern Babylon.

It was a weary distance to his hotel, and the marquis naturally looked around for a cab.

Lock seemed to favor him, for the voice of an eager Jehu hailed from behind.

The four-wheeler was one of the night-hawk variety, much the worse for wear, but to a shipwrecked sailor any port in a storm is good enough; so the marquis, with a laugh, bundled himself inside and sang out his orders.

He might not have been so easy in his mind had he known that a couple of fellows swung themselves, one up with the driver on his seat, and the other behind the growler.

A MATUTINAL COMEDY.

Intoxicated Young Men the Actors and a Street Car the Stage.

There seems to be no end of funny incidents on surface cars. One happened the other day on a Third avenue electric car that approximates pretty close to taking the palm.

It was near the dawn of a new day, when early birds are generally supposed to be in quest for vagrant and inconsiderate worms. It was raining great guns. Two young men in an advanced condition of inebriety got on a car, the rules of the railroad company in such cases providing to the contrary notwithstanding.

They got on at different streets, so of course their drunkenness was not the result of protracted mutual conviviality. Again, one was in full evening dress and wore a hat of modern make and style. The other was dressed like a tramp—a seeming "Weary Willie," just come into town from his rural travels, and wearing a slouch hat in the last stage of dilapidation.

Pretty soon both men were sound asleep, with heads bent forward and resting on their knees. Shortly the dude's hat fell off his head and then the tramp's followed suit. A sympathetic passenger picked them up and put the alk hat on the tramp's head and vice versa. He then gave the tramp a shake and told him he had reached his street. The bell was rung and he was helped to the rear platform and off the car and there left to enjoy the hygienic benefits of a cold shower bath.

Two or three blocks further on the dude with the tramp's hat on his head was submitted to the same Pluvian process of sobering up. The sequel is left to the reader's imagination, says the New York Times. Of course, the conductor was an important factor in this rare matutinal comedy.

Hunting for the Colonel.

An army surgeon recently returned from service in the Philippines tells a new story, which is one of the best that has come from our new possessions. He says a soldier was serving in a regiment whose colonel was very much averse to leaving the comforts of a city and who had pull enough to get himself assigned to special duty in Manila, which had caused his absence from his regiment for several months. In the meantime a portion of that particular command got into a mix-up with some stray insurgents, and incidentally the soldier referred to had an eye shot out. He put in some time in the hospital, and when convalescent was turned loose for a walk. As he strolled down the street he met a friend, who, seeing the bandage which hid the cavity, asked him, "What happened to your eye?" The soldier's other eye twinkled, and with true "doughty" wit he replied: "I wore that eye out up-country looking for that blooming colonel of mine on the firing line."

Novel Eskimo Wrestling.

Next to gambling the Eskimo men like to wrestle. The usual way of doing this is a test of strength rather than skill. The wrestlers sit down on the floor, or in any convenient place, side by side, and face in opposite directions, say with right elbows touching. Then they lock arms and each strives to straighten out the other's arms.

PRIVATE PENSION RECORD BROKEN

House Passes 229 Bills for the Relief of War Veterans.

TO SELECT COALING STATIONS

Rear Admiral Bradford Ordered to Make Tour of West Indies with That Object in View—Committee to Investigate Election Laws in the South.

Washington, March 17.—The day in the house was devoted to private pension bills, 229 being passed, clearing the calendar. This is the largest number of pension bills ever passed by the house at one session.

Earlier in the day a resolution was adopted calling upon the war department for information concerning the government transport service between San Francisco and the Philippines.

Later in the day Mr. Minor (Wis.), rising to a question of personal privilege, denounced a published statement regarding the speaker and himself as false. The story said that he (Minor) had changed his position on the shipping bill and on the Cuban tariff question because of the speaker's intention to advocate a local revenue cutter measure in which the Wisconsin member is interested. Speaker Henderson is interested. Speaker Henderson is interested. Speaker Henderson is interested.

Differences of opinion on the Republican side appeared during the debate in the senate on the ship subsidy bill. Mr. Allison indicated that he was not quite satisfied with the measure as it stands now and gave notice of amendments limiting the time of its operation—no contracts to be made after July 1, 1910, and none to extend beyond July 1, 1920—and limiting also to $5,000,000 annually up to 1907 and to $3,000,000 thereafter the amount of money to be paid from the treasury on small contracts on account of it.

He was followed by Mr. Spooner, who also took exceptions to some provisions of the measure. He was not at all certain that the bill would accomplish the great results which its advocates claimed for it, and urged that before its enactment into law definite information upon that point ought to be furnished to congress. He did not care, he said, to vote for a measure making an appropriation that not only would not accomplish definite results, but which might be simply a largess to ship owners. He gave notice of an amendment providing that the bill might be repealed by congress without, however, impairing any contract made under its provisions. The amendment would be a notice, he said, that the subsidy would not be a safe foundation upon which to build largely.

Earlier in the day Mr. Teller made a speech in opposition to the measure, and was followed by Mr. Elkins with a brief address in support of it, although the West Virginia senator admitted he would much prefer the adoption of the policy of discriminating duties.

Mr. Bacon gave notice of an amendment providing that no contract under the bill shall be binding upon the government until it shall have been submitted to and approved by congress.

Senator Mallory submitted an amendment depriving all vessels from the benefits of the act whose owners have been within the last year parties to "any agreement or understanding of any kind with any person or corporation, the purpose of which agreement has been to control ocean freight rates or to control or to prevent competition in the transportation of the products of the United States to foreign countries or the transportation of the products of foreign countries to the United States."

The senate agreed, at the suggestion of Mr. Berry, to take up the bill immediately after the routine business Monday and that speeches be limited to fifteen minutes, except that Mr. Frye was accorded thirty minutes.

A bill appropriating $150,000 to establish a marine hospital at Savannah, Ga., was passed; also a bill providing for the construction of a bridge across the Missouri river at Omaha, Neb. Adjournment followed a brief executive session.

Cubans to Be in Control.

Washington, March 17.—Gen. Wood will not be able to come to Washington for a conference with the president and secretary Root before the end of next week. This conference will be of the utmost importance to Cuba, as it is intended to discuss fully the plans for turning over the control of the island to the native government. The whole question of when and how this is to be done will be determined before Gen. Wood's return to Cuba.

There is nothing at this time to indicate that a delay beyond the first of May will be necessary and a recent communication from Gen. Wood shows he fully expects the transfer to take place then. He does not believe, however, that the United States should make a complete withdrawal on that day and is of the opinion that a representative of the United States should remain in Cuba until the island government is in working order.

West Indies Coaling Stations.

Washington, March 17.—Rear Admiral B. Bradford, chief of the naval bureau of equipment, has been ordered on a special commission to select coaling stations in the West Indies. His tour will be made in the United States dispatch boat Dolphin.

Rear Admiral Bradford will visit a number of places in Cuba and will also go to Culebra Island, San Juan, Porto Rico and St. Thomas, the principal port in the Danish islands, which are to be ceded by Denmark to the United States.

Senate Votes on Subsidy Bill.

Washington, D. C., March 17.—In accordance with the agreement reached a week ago the senate began voting on the ship subsidy bill and amendments this afternoon at 3 o'clock. With the subsidy bill disposed of the bill introduced by Senator Hoar for the protection of the President of the United States from assassination will assume first place on the calendar, having been made the unfinished business. Either the oleomargarine bill or the Chinese exclusion bill will be made the unfinished business to succeed the Presidential protection measure, though the Nicaragua canal bill also is pressing for attention.

The house during the present week will pass the river and harbor bill, will decide the contested election case of Moss versus Rhea from the Third Kentucky District, and will consider the bill for the retirement of officers of the revenue cutter service.

No Headway on Cuban Tariff.

Washington, March 17.—The house Republican peace conference discussed Cuba without developing new solutions of the problem or bringing out new ideas. The advantages of the bounty system were advanced by the representatives of the opposition, who also discussed the proposed reduction of the internal revenue tax upon alcohol made from sugar beets. Unofficial data were submitted to sustain the contention of the beet interests that the sugar trust controls most of the sugar in warehouses in Cuba and for that reason it was insisted precautions should be taken to prevent a county or tariff concession applying to it. The prediction is confidently made by the opponents of Cuban reciprocity that the Republican members of the house will meet in conference Tuesday night without the peace committee having reached an agreement.

Prize Money Appeal Case.

Washington, March 17.—The transcript of the record in the case of the United States against Admiral Sampson and others, which has been appealed from the decision of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, has been filed in the United States supreme court. The case involves the question as to whether prize money should be awarded to Admiral Sampson and the officers and men of the North Atlantic squadron on account of the vessels and supplies captured off Santiago July 3, 1898.

Southern Suffrage.

Washington, March 17.—Speaker Henderson and his lieutenants of the house have decided to report the Crum-packer resolution for the appointment by the speaker of a committee of thirteen to investigate the election laws of the southern states and to determine whether the right of suffrage is abridged contrary to the provisions of the Constitution.

Promotion for Crowninshield.

Washington, March 17.—President Roosevelt has sent to the senate the nomination of Capt. Arent Schuyler Crowninshield to be rear admiral. In addition, he sent in the name of Lieut. Commander Robert M. G. Brown, now on the retired list. It is desired to give him the rank of a commander on the retired list.

Washington Notes.

Washington, March 17.—After a week of hearings before the congressional committee upon pure food bills the Illinois delegation completed its work and departed for home.

The letter of resignation of First Assistant Postmaster General Johnson, whose determination to resign was announced some time ago, has been made public. Ill health and other personal reasons are given as the cause.

President Roosevelt neglects no opportunity to impress upon federal office holders in Illinois that they must remain neutral in the senatorial fight and take no active part in the campaign.

Rear Admiral John A. Howell, president of the naval retiring board, and next to Admiral Dewey the ranking officer of the navy, reached the age of 62 Saturday and in accordance with law was placed in the retired list.

The United States supreme court will shortly hear arguments on the right of the treasurer of Cook county to collect taxes from religious associations on property not used for religious or educational purposes.

Nothing has yet been arranged with regard to the future duties of General Funston, but it is probable that he will not be sent back to the Philippines unless he wishes to go there.

The United States steamer Sylph, having on board Secretaries Hay and Root, arrived at the navy yard late Saturday afternoon.

News from Kidnappers.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 17.—Repeated threats to abduct his three children unless a ransom of $25,000 was left in a certain spot, and a warning that murder would follow the placing of detectives on the case, have caused Alexander R. Peacock, former vice president and general sales agent of the Carnegie company, to remove his family temporarily from his Lexington avenue home to the Holland House, New York.

Ambassador White to Resign.

Berlin, March 17.—With expressions of regret the newspapers here print a dispatch from Washington to the effect that Andrew D. White, the American ambassador to Germany, will resign the next November.

Repairing Neatly Done

Never thought of such a sign for a medicine did you? Well, it's a good sign for Scott's Emulsion. The body has to be repaired like other things and Scott's Emulsion is the medicine that does it.

These poor bodies wear out from worry, from over-work, from disease. They get thin and weak. Some of the new ones are not well made—and all of the old ones are racked from long usage.

Scott's Emulsion fixes all kinds. It does the work both inside and out. It makes soft bones hard, thin blood red, weak lungs strong, hollow places full. Only the best materials are used in the patching and the patches don't show through the new glow of health.

No one has to wait his turn. You can do it yourself—you and the bottle.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle. Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York. 50c. and $1. all druggists.

Schley; Santiago

BY GEORGE EDWARD GRAHAM.

The Intrepid Associated Press war correspondent, who was aboard the U. S. S. Brooklyn during the entire five months of the campaign. Illustrated with photographs taken by the Author during the fight.

The Most Sensational Book of the Day.

The true story of the famous cruise of the Flying Squadron under Commodore Winfield Scott Schley, including the blockade and destruction of the Spanish fleet, TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME.

Contains an autograph endorsement and personal account of the battle by Rear-Admiral Schley.

"The facts of the story of the movements and operations of the Flying Squadron as the author tells them in this book are correct."
—W. S. SCHLEY.

An interesting narrative of facts. Explains the so-called "Retrograde Movement," the "Loop," the "Coaling Problem," and settles conclusively every adverse ruling of the Court of Inquiry.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, when Governor of New York, said:—"Mr. Graham's story is the best account I have heard or read of the naval fighting during the war. It needed just as much courage to go about taking photographs as it did to work the guns."

THE NEW YORK HERALD says:—"Mr. Graham, in the telling of facts, leaves the reader free to make the deduction that several naval officers need a Court of Inquiry to re-establish their reputations, if they can be re-established."

No subject has ever before the public that has interested everybody as the manner in which Admiral Schley has been treated, and the American people demand the full recognition of the Hero of Santiago. This book tells everything just as it occurred and as the eyewitnesses saw it. Book is selling like wildfire. Liberal commissions. Outfit and books now ready. Send seven 2-cent stamps for canvassing outfit. ACT QUICK. Now is the time to MAKE MONEY. Price $1.50, $1.75, $2.25, $2.75, according to style of binding desired.

Mrs. Rosa Richardson.

Mr. Ross Richardson, nee Wildner, was born July 2, 1838 in Wurtemberg, Germany, and died March 6, 1903, at her home near Dexter. She lost both parents before she was 9 years old. From this early age she was forced to earn her way through life. At the age of 25 she joined in wedlock, Jacob Richardson of Stuttgart, Germany, and they set up their home in that city where they remained until the year 1868 when they emigrated to America and settled upon a farm near Dexter where they remained until her death. To them were born seven children four of whom preceded her in death. She leaves a sorrowing husband, two daughters and a son. She was an affectionate and devoted wife, a loving and sacrificing mother, and unselfish and diligent in her display of regard for her neighbors and friends. She entertained a firm belief in the doctrines of scripture and the discipleship of Christ as the highest purpose of life, and her career stands a forceful testimony of her fidelity to her Master's teachings. She was a member of the church of her choice, the Evangelical Association, which by her death loses a devoted member and worker. Her death was unexpected and sudden, the cause being anemia of the brain. Her loss is keenly felt by all whom she came in touch.

A Terrible Experience.
The eastern mail has brought the report of Maj. Waller on the expedition conducted by him across the island of Samar. Maj. Waller's reports are formal and do not go into details. In telling of the trials and privations of the party in trying to reach Basey, the report says that the men were so weak that they could not carry a rifle. Nine of the party had either gone crazy or had fallen by the trail, half dead from starvation and exposure.
To further complicate matters, the native heavers, about 30 in number, became sulky, practically refusing assistance to the white men. They would build shacks as a protection from the continual downpour for themselves only, and knowing the edible roots and plants, were more successful in obtaining food. Under the altered condition, it required considerable diplomacy on the part of Lieut. Williams to handle them at all. Just before reaching the river, two heavers tried to kill Williams, stabbing him about the chest with a bolo. He tried to shoot, but had not sufficient strength to pull the trigger. Then they tried to kill him with his own pistol, but did not know how to work the weapon. Williams was rescued by a few of his men who tottered up, armed with sticks, and the natives took to the bush.

Crowley is Persistent.
Fr. Jeremiah J. Crowley, of Chicago, recently excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church, and since restored, attempted to reach the presence of Archbishop Feehan Wednesday in the archiepiscopal residence and was refused an audience. He then announced his intention of remaining a resident of the house until he had been given a parish.

After he had remained for ten hours in the reception room of the great house he was ejected by the city police, who were summoned by the priests. He returned later to his room in the Sherman house, declaring that he was prepared to continue his struggle for his alleged rights until "justice had been granted him."
Fr. Crowley declares that Cardinal Martini instructed him to see Archbishop Feehan and through him "to restore peace to the church in Chicago."

Boston Strike Over.
Through the united efforts of representatives of the great mercantile bodies of Boston, seconded by the chief executives of city and state in conference with the recognized leaders of organized labor, the great strike of freight haulers and kindred trades represented in the allied freight transportation council was broken Thursday night. Fully 20,000 men who have been idle for four days went to work Friday morning.

John D. Rockefeller has offered to give $25,000 to the endowment fund of Wm. Jewell college, provided $75,000 additional is raised by Jan. 1, 1903. College officials say the $100,000 will be obtained.
