BIG LOT

Just Placed on Sale

Every customer that looks over the new silk ginghams at 25, 35 and 50c, silk organdies 40 to 50c, is more than pleased. We are sellng out some of the very choice patterns too, and we find them very scarce and hard to buy again. Many patterns and materials now on sale will not be seen this season again.

EMBROIDERY REMNANTS.

We found an importer that had a lot of embroidery remnants, edges and insertions, that he was willing to sell at about 1-2 price. We have them on sale at about the same discount (while they last). No two pieces alike and we can't cut the lengths.

Prices, 5, 71-2 and 20c yard.

Trolley Putted Out on Wrong Side. The inquest on the death of Herbert J. Harrison, the motorman killed at this place March 11th, was continued at Ann Arbor Tuesday. Chief of Construction Reilly of the Westinghouse system was on the stand for a two-hour cross-examination. He said the poles 85 feet high were of the usual height op which the high tension feed wires were carried, acknowledged that the trolleys when changed were jusually changed at substations, and that perfect safety could then be secured by erecting 50 foot poles there. The trolley could have been pulled out on the left side with safety but when pulled out on the right side was in danger of coming too near the leavily charged wire.

The inquest was then adjourned until riday.

Marguerite Sylva in Mise Bob White. If a rollicking, merry comedy interspersed with thirty odd deliciously jingling melodies, interpreted by beautiful Marguerita Sylva and a host of capable artists, with a large and efficient chorus together with a superb scenic equipment and a countless variety of beautiful dresa largely augmented orchestra of thorough musicians, makes a successful operatic performance, then Nixon & Zimmer man have accomplished the fact with Willard Spencer's new comedy opera "Miss Bob White," which will be seen in Jackson at the Athenaeum on Tuesday April 12th. Mr. Spenser's work is presented in a manner hitherto unsurpased in this county, not only as to levish mountings and costuming, but in cast as well-An organization which includes as its star Marguerita Sylva, and in her support such names as Mathilde Preville, Alice Cambell, Frank Deshon, Wm. E Phitip, Thomas Whiffen and Nicholas Burnham is not barren of artistic ability by a very long odds. The story of the opera deals with the adventures of two young millionires who have made and lost a freal election bet, and as consequence are compelled to masquerade as tramps for two months and to incidentally suffer all the hardships usually attributed to a genuine "knight of the road." They take refuge at the farm of an old Quaker who compels them to work for their sustenance. The fiancee of one of the two unfortunates, hearing of their predicament, herself seeks employment as a milkmaid at the same farm, and in disguss faces from her future husband a truthful debut the veriest skeleton of the story, but from it can be judged the wholesomeness of the atmosphere surrounding the entire performance. The production here will be identical with that as presented at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, five performances. The sale of seats customer, begins Saturday, April 12 at Athenseum Jackson, and from present indications Marguerita Sylva and "Miss Bob White" will entertain the great majority of local amusement lovers.

The Minstrels.

The minstrel performance given by the Chelsea Cornet Band, under the management of Geo. W. Barnes was a success both in an artistic and financial way. The first-part setting was a revelation in original work, and the singing and instrumental specialties were up-to-date. Mr. Barnes as an impersonator and comedian is all right and his numerous turns were vell received by the large audience present. The tenor solo by Mr. Burg, the violincelto solo by Mr. Steinbach and the athletic exhibition by Mr. Raftrey were specialty numbers which were highly enjoyed by the audience and were well deserving the ap-For thetance, last year it paid 1,382 benefit plause they received. ENOE IN HEAVEN FOR THE PACE OF HALF AN HOUR"

Space in all the s of Time Given to Silence ance of Those Fragments of Our -A Glimpee of the Kingdom.

ashington, April 6.—In the followcourse, prepared by Dr. Talmage fore his illness, a vivid glimpse of endors and glories of heavenly Me is presented; text, Revelation vill., There was silence in heaven about space of half an hour."

The busiest place in the universe is ren. It is the center from which good influences start; it is the goal which all good results arrive. The ble represents it as active with whicels and wings and orchestras and specesions mounted or charloted. But by text describes a space when the sheels ceased to roll and the trumpets to sound and the voices to chant. The riders on the white horses reined in their chargers. The doxologies were hashed and processions halted. The nd of arrest was upon all the splendors. "Stop, heaven!" cried an omnipofent voice, and it stopped. For thirty minutes everything celestial stood still. There was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour."

From all we can learn it is the only time heaven ever stopped. It does not stop as other cities for the night, for there is no night there. It does not stop for a plague, for the inhabitant never says, "I am sick." It does not stop for bankruptcies, for its inhabitanks never fail. It does not stop for impassable streets, for there are no fallen snows or sweeping freshets. What, then, stopped it for thirty minutes? Grotius and Professor Stuart think it was at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem. Mr. Lord thinks it was in the year 311, between the close of the Diocletian persecution and the beginning of the wars by which Constantine gained the throne. I do not know when it was, and I do not care when it was, but of the fact that such an interregnum of sound took place I en certain. "There was silence to the infidel, between the saint and the bour." demon, between triumph and catastrogeologists are right-and I believe they are there has not been a moment of silence since this world began its travels, and the crashing and the splitting and the uproar and the hubbub are ever in progress. But when among the supernals a voice cried, "Hush!" and for half an hour heaven was still. affence was honored. The full power of silence many of us have yet to We are told that when Christ was arraigned "he answered not a word." That silence was louder than any thunder that ever shook the world. Oftentimes when we are assailed and misrepresented the mightiest thing to say is to say nothing and the mightiest thing to do is to do nothing. Silence! Do right and leave the results with God. Among the grandest lessons the sworld has ever learned are the lessons of patience taught by those who endured uncomplainingly personal or domestic or political injustice. Stronger than any bitter or sarcastic or revengeful answer is the patient silence.

Learn also from my text that heaven mist be an eventful and active place from the fact that it could afford only thirty minutes of recess. There have been events on earth and in heaven that seemed to demand a whole day or whole week or whole year for celestial consideration. If Grotius was right and this silence occurred at the time I the destruction of Jerusalem, that scene was so awful and so prolonged that the inhabitants of heaven could not have done justice to it in many weeks. Six hundred priests were destroyed on Mount Zion because, the temple being gone, there was nothing for them to do. Six thousand people in one cloister were consumed. There were 1,100,000 dead according to Josephus. Grotius thinks that this was the cause of silence in heaven for half an hour. If Mr. Lord was right, and this silence was during the Diocletian persecutions, by which 844,000 Christrans suffered death from sword and fire and banishment and exposure, why did not heaven listen throughout at least one of these awful years? No! Thirty minutes! The fact is that the celestial program is so crowded with spectacle that it can afford only one recess in all eternity, and that for a short space.

In my text heaven spared thirty minutes, but it will never again spare one minute. In worship in earthly churches where there are many to take part we have to counsel brevity, but how will heaven get on rapidly enough to let one hundred and forty-four thousand get through each with his own story and then one hundred and forty-four million and then one hundred and forty-four billion and then one hundred and forty-four trillion? Not only are all the triumphs of the past to be commemorated, but all the triumphs to come. Not only what we now know of God. but what we will know of him after everlasting study of the deific. If my text had said there was silence in beaven for thirty days, I would not have been startled at the announcement, but it indicates thirty minites. Why, there will be so many friends to hunt up, so many of the greatly good and useful that we will int to see, so many of the inscrutife things of earth we will need explained, so many exciting earthly exlences we will want to talk over. and all the other spirits and all the it must be also a nerrous shock t will want the same, that there those who have all their lives been women who got no crown on earth we will want to see them when they get their crown in heaven. I tell you heaven will have no more half hours Besides that, heaven is full of children. They are in the vast majority. No child on earth who amounts to anything can be kept quiet half an hour, and how are you going to keep five hundred million of them quiet half an hour? You know heaven is much more of a place than it was when that recess of thirty minutes occurred. Its population has quadrupled, sextupled, centupled, Heaven has more on hand, more of rapture, more of knowledge, more of Intercommunication, more of worship. The most thrilling place we have ever been in is stupid compared with that, and, if we now have no time to spare, we will then have no eternity to spare. Silence in heaven only half an hour!

My subject also impresses me with the immortality of a half hour. That half hour mentioned in my text is more widely known than any other period in the calendar of heaven. The only part of eternity that was ever measured by earthly timepiece was measured by the minute hand of my text. Oh, the half hours! They decide everything. I am not asking what you will do with the years or months or days of your life, but what of the half hours? Tell me the history of your half hours and I will tell you the story of your whole life on earth and the story of your whole life in eternity. The right or wrong things you can think in thirty minutes, the right or wrong things you can say in thirty minutes, the right or wrong things you can do in thirty minutes are glorious or baleful, inspiring or desper-Look out for the fragments of time.

They are pieces of eternity. The half hour a day for good books or bad books, the half hour a day for prayer or indolence, the half hour a day for helping others or blasting others, the half hour before you go to business and the half hour after you return from business-that makes the difference between the scholar and the ignoramus, between the Christian and phe, between heaven and hell. The most tremendous things of your life and mine were certain half hours. The half hour when in the parsonage of a country minister I resolved to become a Christian then and there, the half hour when I decided to become a preacher of the gospel, the half hour when I first realized that my son was dead, the half hour when I stood on the top of my house in Oxford street and saw our church burn the half hour in which I entered Jerusalem, the half hour in which I stopped on Mount Calvary, the half hour in which I stood on Mars hill and about ten or fifteen other half hours are the chief times of my life. You may forget the name of the exact years or most of the important events of your existence, but those half hours, like the half hour of my text will be immortal. I do not query what you will do with the twentieth century, I do not query what you will do with this year, but what will you do with the next half hour? Upon that hinges your destiny, and during that some of you will receive the gospel and make complete surrender, and during that others of you will make final and fatal rejection of the full and free and urgent and impassioned offer of life eternal. Oh, that the next half hour might be the most glorious thirty minutes of your earthly existence!

Far back in history a great geographer stood with a sailor looking at a globe that represented our planet, and he pointed to a place on the globe where he thought there was an undiscovered continent. The undiscovered continent was America. The geographer who pointed where he thought there was a new world was Martin Behaim and the sailor to whom he showed it was Columbus. This last was not satisfied until he had picked that gem out of the sea and set it in the crown of the world's geography. O ye who have been sailing up and down the rough seas of sorrow and sin, let me point out to you another continent-yea, another world—that you may yourself find, a rapturous world, and that is the world a half hour of which we now study! Oh, set sail for it! Here is the ship and here are the compasses. In other words, make this half hour the grandest half hour of your life and become a Christian. Pray for a regenerated spirit. I say to you, my hearers, only God by his convicting and converting grace can make a Christian, but he is ready this very half hour to accomplish it. Again, my text suggests a way of studying heaven so tna: we can better understand it. The word "eternity" that we can handle so much is an immeasurable world. Knowing that we could not understand that word, the Bible uses it only once. We say "forever and ever." But how long is "for-ever and ever?" I am glad that my text puts under our eye heaven for thirty minutes. As when you see a great picture, you put a sheet of paper into a scroll and look through it or join your foreinger to your thumb and look through the circle between, and the picture becomes more intense. so this masterpiece of heaven by St. John is more impressive when we take only thirty minutes of it at a time. Now, we have something that we can come nearer to grasping, and it is a quiet heaven. When we discourse about the multitude of heaven, want a quiet heaven. For the thirty-five years I have been much of the time in crowds and under scrutiny and amid excitements, and I have sometimes thought for a few weeks after I reach heaven I would like to go down in some quiet part of the realm, with a few friends, and for a little while try comparative solitude.

You will find the inhabitants all at home. Enter the King's palace and take only a glimpse, for we have only thirty minutes for all heaven. "Is that Jesus?" "Yes." Just under the hair along his forehead is the mark of a mark of a wound made by a spike, and ties. immense structure? That is the big- trees too young to bear. gest house in heaven; that is "the! house of many mansions." Do you see that wall? Shade your eyes against its burning splendor, for that is the wall of heaven, jasper at the bottom and amethyst at the top. See this river rolling through the heart of the great metropolis? That is the river bama or the Rhine or the Shannon for clarity and sheen." That is the chief river of heaven-so bright, so wide, so deep. But you ask, "Where are the asylums for the old?" I answer. "The inhabitants are all young." Where are the hospitals for the are the infirmaries for the blind and deaf?" "They all see and hear." Where are the almshouses for the poor?" "They are all multimillionaires." "Where are the inebriate asylums?" "Why, there are no saloons." "Where are the graveyards?" "Why, C they never die." Pass down those I boulevards of gold and amber and sapphire and see those interminable streets built by the Architect of the universe into homes, over the threshold of which sorrow never steps and out of whose windows faces, once pale with earthly sickness, now look rubicund with immortal health. "Oh, let me go in and see them!" you say. No, you cannot go in. There are those who would never consent to let you come out again. You say, "Let me stay here in this place where they never sin, where they never suffer, where they never part." No, no! Our time is short, our thirty minutes are almost gone. Come on! We must get back to earth before this half hour of heavenly silence breaks up, for in your mortal state you cannot endure the pomp and splendor and resonance when this half hour of silence is ended. The day will come when you can see heaven in full blast, but not now. Come on! There is something in the celestial appearance which makes me think that the half hour of silence will soon be over. Remember we are mortal yet and cannot endure the full roll of heavenly harmonies and cannot endure even the silent heaven for more than half an hour. Hark! The clock in the tower of heaven begins to strike, and the half hour is ended. Descend! Come back! Come down till your work is done. Shoulder a little longer your burdens. Fight a little longer your battles. Weep a little longer your griefs. And then take heaven not is its dullest haif hour, but in its mightiest pomp, and, instead of taking it for thirty minutes, take it world without

But how will you spend the first half hour of your heavenly citizenship after you have gone in to stay? After your prostration before the throne in worship of him who made it possible for you to get there at all I think the rest of your first half hour in heaven will be passed in receiving your reward if It is of little value in the humid states, you have been faithful. In other words, Ben Davis outnumbers all the varieties previously named in the recent orchard plantings of nearly every state. In Maine and Vermont the drift toward Ben Davis is cspecially pronounced; while even in Massachusetts, it is rapidly gaining on Baldwin.

These figures are made up from reports secured from several hundred of the leading apple growers in the states named. While it would be too much to claim that they prove any particular proposition, they certainly indicate some important changes in the apple growing business of New England.

Plums will not grow on solid rock, but they will succeed on any kind of soil. Professor Bailey has remarked that, next to the apple, the European plum, Prunus domestica, has probably the most generalized adaptability to all sorts of soils of any known tree. Then when we take into account the Japanese plums and all the various American species with their wide diversities of adaptation, we have a selection of plants to cover the whole range of soils.

The Domestica and Damson plums are generally said to grow best on rather heavy clay loam; at least they do not do their best on light, sandy soils. A heavy clay loam need not be wet and cold; and if it is well drained and comparatively warm, it forms an ideal soil for the European races of plums. The Japanese prefer Vegetable Compound and Sanrather lighter soils.

Corea's in Bentucky.

Andrew A. Sonle, of Kentucky, says: There is a degree of difference in the hardihood of the various winter cereals which is not generally recognized. Rye and wheat are more generally and successfully cultivated than any of the other cereals because of this fact. Winter oats and barley are more delicate in nature and that probably accounts for the indifferent success met with in their culture on the farm. While these crops may succeed when sown quite late in the season, it is very important that they be seeded early-from the first to the middle of September. It is true that they often succeed sown as late as the middle of October, but the chances of failure are greatly enhanced by late seeding, and the loss of the seed and the erop together is too great a risk to incur. If winter rye is desired for a fall and of England some years ago. The winter pasture, it is necessary that it manager of a local colliery invited be sown from the middle of August to the middle of September. It can often be sown in the corn field after the last cultivation and as it makes a quick and vigorous growth, furnishes an excellent pasture from October until Christmas, or through the entire winter if the season is mild.

Root Crops for Stocks.

Bulletin 132, University of California: Several of the vegetables are vaiuable in supplying succulence for the ration. Among the root class the one in most common use is the mangel wurtzel beet, because very large quantities can be grown per acre and pecause it is palatable to all kinds of live stock. Carrots are also used in some sections, and they have the advantage of containing a slightly larger amount of dry matter than mangels. Of all the roots, moreover, none are more relished by horses than carrots. Sugar beets are not found profitable to grow for feeding stock, because they yield so small a tonnage in comparison to mangels, and the greater cost of growing and gathering can only be undertaken on the ground of their greater value for sugar. Potatoes contain about twice as much dry matter as mangels and three times as much carbonaceous material. They are, therefore, of greater food value, but, like sugar beets, have too high a commercial value as human food to make them profitable for stock.

Agricultural Notes.

Broom corn is a "cash crop," and, lke other cash crops, has its favorable and unfavorable features. Its cultivation on a very large scale is seldom successful, but if properly handled on a small scale, say from fifteen to twentyfive acres for the average farmer, and especially on new land where the variety of sure crops is limited, it will prove to be as paying as almost any crop that can be raised. Oklahoma has early seasons and can market the brush early in the season, when the highest price is usually paid, and for that and other reasons should easily become a great source of the nation's supply of broom corn.

After a long time drains sometimes get out of place through subsidence of the ground. If not attended to the injury slowly increases, and at length an extremely damp state of ground is produced. The only remedy in such a case is to dig up the old drains and start anew.

Water, in passing through the soil to the drains, dissolves out small amounts of mineral salts and plant food, which it carries away. The greater the absorptive power of the soil, the less will be the amount thus lost.

A rican Geose. Gray African geese are, by many raisers, considered the most profitable of all geese to keep. They grow the heaviest in the shortest space of time, and are ready for market in ten weeks, weighing at that age between eight and ten pounds. They are very much like the Pekin duck in this respect, and, as compared with other geese, give the most satisfactory returns for the labor and time spent in growing them, -Bulletin 64, U. S. Spent $85,000 to "Get Even." The extremes to which some people will go for revenge have seldom been better demonstrated than in the case of two rival shipowners in the north tenders for the conveyance of large quantitles of coal to America, and when the contract was given to one shipowner the other immediately set to work to wreak vengeance.

He first approached the owners of the colliery and offered to carry the coal across the Atlantic for a shilling a ton less than cost price, and as this effected considerable saving to the colliery, the proprietors countermanded the former contract and closed with the second oner. The shipowner was content to suffer a loss for five years in order to spite his rival, and at the end of that time he expitulated, for his revenge had cost him $85,000.

Woman Confessor's Confession There is a charming woman whose house in the swell northwest section is as spacious as the days of Queen Bess, and whose heart is as big as her house. To her come all the young women, married, unmarried and not married, with their tales of woe, of mad escapade, heartstress, strife and naughtiness.

"Yes," she says, laughingly, "I am mother confessor to half the town. But it is like letting some one sit down in front of you and eat big, luscious hothouse grapes while you look on." And she added with a look of sweet reminiscence:

"I was always so fond of grapes."

said to Be Lavishly Sprinkled proclass Matal, the Surface Descripted and the Ore Rustry Sandled with Ordinary Rockers.

Helena, Mont., April 7.-Three rich gold strikes in as many different mines in three days is the record of Madison county for the last week. The Fourth of July mine, near Pony, which was recently purchased by the Largey estate, is the scene of the first strike. An unusually rich streak of gold ore in the tunnel was found, and while its extent is not yet known, the outlook is considered most promising. The ore assays $170 a ton in gold. Gilbert & Parker, owners of the Olympia mine, near Pony, have struck high grade ore, an average sample assay showing $150 gold. 30 per cent lead and seventy ounces silver. The vein is from twelve to in silver to the ton. Boise, Idaho, April 7.-What is regarded as absolutely reliable information concerning the Thunder Mountain gold fields was brought out to-day by Charles Crawford, a practical miner and former newspaper man. He tells a most remarkable story of a rush unprecedented over wild mountain trails amid dangers that nothing but gold could lure men to, of suffering from want of provisions and from cold. of wealth quickly made, of claim jumping and of threats to invoke the power of Judge Lynch to stop thievery.

"It is a most remarkable section," radius of about thirty-five miles nature has sprinkled gold lavishly. Much of the surface is decomposed and the ore easily handled. The practice is to work it with hydraulics when the large operations can be conducted, but the poor man merely runs it through his rocker and his returns are ample. "I investigated the stories of big money made out of this decomposed quartz, and I discovered that they had not been exaggerated. The Caswell brothers took out $20,000 in fourteen weeks, using a sluice box. Some of the dirt went over $150 a pound. In other instances men have taken out from $30 to $350 in two hours by use of the most primitive methods.

"While there are instances of quick wealth made that way, the ore operators in the field have for the most part made their wealth by selling their claims to companies. In the neighborhood of $2,000,000 has been invested there already by Chicago, Philadelphia and New York companies. They have bonded or paid cash for almost every group of claims that makes anything of a showing, and there are very few that don't. The companies will employ thousands of men."

Crawford names a dozen men who were poor a few weeks ago who are now well off as the result of sales of thing. Thunder Mountain claims. These men braved untold hardships to reach the camp, which is situated in the wildest section imaginable.

"The trails are filled with men rushing to the gold fleids," continued Crawford. "I witnessed many pitiable sights. Lack of provisions had weakened many of those who had been tolling on snowshoes and behind dog sleds over the rough mountains, but an amount of urging could turn them back. In a few instances I encountered men who had lived for days on rice, all their other provisions having either been eaten er stolen by desperate characters who have joined the rush."

"GLORY" OF A TITLE.

Americans Love the Distinction as Much as Any Foreigner.

It is interesting to note how the title that any member of an American family may acquire sheds its luster over the whole family. They all bask in its radiance—assuming that a title sheds radiance and in spite of the fact that it only too often does not. A title's a title for a' that, seems to be the paraphrase among some of Uncle Sam's citizens, says the New York Sun. The fact that a Philadelphia girl who married the other day had beauty, money and position seemed to be of small moment. Her parents, even, were scarcely mentioned in the newspaper reports of the wedding. All other considerations were eclipsed by the other fact that her sister had married a titled foreigner, and not a very big title at that. In every published account the bride was described not as "daughte: of Mr. and Mrs. ---," but as the "sister of the Countess ---." The fact that the marriage of this same countess' sister turned out most unhappily. and that, finding it impossible to live with her husband, she was some years ago obliged to get a legal separation, counts for nothing. The title's the

"I feel it my duty to make public the facts of my recent illness and recovery. I was very sick and sore, and had to walk with the aid of two canes, It was a very painful attack, but I don't know what it was. Some said it was Lumbago and others that it was Sciatica or Rheumatism.

"I was told to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and began a treatment. After I had used one box I could walk with one cane, and after two boxes were used I could walk without any help. I kept on and three boxes cured me completely.

"I am now well and happy without a pain or an ache and I can very truly say that Dodd's Kidney Pills are worthy of my greatest praise."

Exchange of Wit.

One day Dr. Parr, whose wit has lived a century after him, meeting Lord Erskine, with whom he was 'riendly, said: "Erskine, I mean to write your epitaph when you die." 'Doctor," answered the great lawyer, it is almost a temptation to commit suicide." This recalls another story Gibbon, the historian, had a rival in a French physician for the favor of a titled lady, and the doctor was one day annoyed by Gibbon's monopolizing the lady's company. "When my Lady Elizabeth Foster is made ill by your twaddle," said the doctor in a oud tone, "I will cure her." "And when my Lady Elizabeth Foster is dead from your prescriptions," said the historian, "I will immortalize her."

Constipated Old Age Isn't it too bad that so many people, when they get old, get cranky and kety and mean, and don't feel right toward themselves or anybody else; yet it need not be so. "Six month's age I took Casearets for constipation contracted during the War of the Rebellion. The result is wonderful and sale-vise all old soldiers to try them."

—Jas Putman, late Capt Brd Ill. Haney. "Cascarots make me feel so light-hearted and lively that shough I have seen three score and three, a few more scores I yet may see." —James B. Millar, Villa Park Cal.

"For many years I have been troubled with constipation. I used one 25c and two 50c boxes of Casearets and they have effected a permanent cure. Since my discharge from the army in 1985. I have never before found a lasting remedy."—H J. McGweru, 243 Chapline Street. Wheeling W. Va

"I was feeling bad, loaing feeh, had dheadache, cold feet, and couldn't sleep will took Cascarets, and in four weeks gained pounds. Am feeling fine now,"—A. B.; Stoveteran Mexican and Civil Wars. Epworth. "I have been using Cascarets for some time for constitution, and their greatest benefit has been to cure me of asthma. I am in my sish year and had been suffering with asthma-"I was troubled with something that baffled the skill of physicians for ill years, I used fre-boxes of Cascarets and am in better health than ever before.

All old people's muscles get weak and flabby, and it's the same with the muscular walls of their intestines as with the muscles of their arms. Wh the bowels grow weak, the old folks get constipated, bilious, sick, he less, irritable, and that's the chief cause of their death. Old for should take Cascarets Candy Cathartic bowel tonic, keep their liver lively, their bowels regular and strong, and live to be a hundred.

one dead and five injured is the cassalty record of a Grand Trunk wreck Which occurred at Milletts. No. 6. east-hound passenger train had the right of way and the engine and seven cars passed through a switch safely, but the last couch and Pullman sleeper were thrown off the track and against engine No. 1147, which was attached to a west-hound extra freight. The freight engine and both cars went into a heap. A wrecker was called from Battle Creek.

Through official sources it is learned that Abraham Burnstine, of Detroit. who occupied a seat in the coach, was the only one killed. It is the opinion of those in authority that the switch had been tampered with. Conductor Chartes E. Spencer and Engineer Clark, of Battle Creek, were in charge of the passenger. Conductor James R. One of the trucks on the rear coach caught the points of the switch so as to run the last two cars onto the sidetrack, where they struck the freight engine. The engineer and fireman were examining the freight engine when the passenger was going through. They saw the two cars jump the track and escaped injury by Jumping out of reach. The passenger train was going at a high rate of speed when the accident happened.

Shocking Tragedy.

One of the most shocking tragedies ever recorded in Mecosta county took place Wednesday morning near Borland settlement, a flag station on the G. R. & I., a few miles north of Morley. Eugene Richards, a well-to-dofarmer, shot and instantly killed his wife, as she lay ill in bed, and then killed himself. He is thought to have been temporarily insane. Mrs. Richards had been sick for some time, and the necessary care for her and anxiety concerning her condition, probably unbalanced his mind, The tragedy was discovered by Edward Andrews, who was employed by Richardson, on the adjoining farm. A girl employed to care for the sick wante on her way to Richwork, saying that she was afraid to go to the house. Andrews went to investigate, and on entering the bedroom found Mrs. Richards lying in bed with an ugly hole in her breast. and Richards himself kneeling at the bedside. A touch showed that he was dead, also shot in the breast,

The deed was committed with a single-barreled shotgun, and the murderer was forced to reload before he could kill himself.

A Railway Train Lost in the Snow in Nort'n Dakota.

ATLANTIC CITY FIRE SWEPT.

Riot and Attempted Saleide Nebraska Amendment to the Sugar Bill.

Passengers arriving in St. Paul Wednesday on a Great Northern train, due Friday of last week, tell of being snow bound for five days and five mights on the prairies of North Dakota, in the midst of the worst blizzard the northwest has seen in muny years with only food enough for two frugal meals a day, and with such a small amount of fuel that the ladies had to wrap then selves in blankets and the men to wear their overcoats day and night to keep from freezing. The train was completely lost to the world. Late Thursday afternoon it picked its precarious way out of Williston, in the hope of being able to reach Minet. some 14 miles to the east, before night. Aimost midway, at a little stopping place called Ray where there is only siding, a water tank and a coal shed. the train was statled. The engineer thought he could run the engine back to Williston and get aid, and taking the conductor with him, started on the trip. The lone engine was stuck in a drift in a cut a short distance out of the town and had to be abandoned, This left the train of eight coaches and about 250 passengers alone on the siding and with all communication cut off. Then began the long siege, during which the cold had to be borne and bunger stifled. There was much suffering.

Monday evening, Prof. Colgreye, of the University of Washington, who had been despondent and morose, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. There was a physician on the train, but he had no facilities for performing the necessary operation. In their desperation the passengers broke open everything in the train's chests, and in the conductor's box found a telegraph instrument.

A young man, an electrician, faced the lilizzard and tapped one of the wires and attached the instrument He notified the operators at both Minot and Williston of what had occurred. From each place a snow plow was started in front of an engine bearing a surgeon. The one from Minot. after a hard night's work, reached the siding early the following morning, and the injured man was removed on the first train to St. Paul, where he cared for at the city hospital The almost famished passengers who had suffered from the cold and exposure were given food and warm berths in the first train pushed through the drifts. The rotary snow plow made one trip through the drift between Ray and Minot, but the snow piled in so rapidly that it was necessary for the rotary to pass through again and then precede the passenger train through the cut.

Twelve Hotels Burned. The most disastrous conflagration that has ever visited Atlantic City. N. ., raged along the beach front for a distance of more than three blocks, destroying twelve hotels and adjoining buildings. A strong southwest wind was blowing and the local firemen were unable to cope with the flames. Assistance was asked from Philadelphia and Camden and each city send three engines. The loss will aggregate more than $750,000. No lives were lost. The fire originated in Brady's bath house, adjoining the Boardwalk between New York and Illinois aveones, and burned rapidly. The hotels destroyed are: The Windsor, the Berkeley, the Stratford, the Stickney. the Lurny, the Tarlton, the Everard and the New Holland. Practically all of the property destroyed was attached to the board walk, a frame structure 40 feet wide skirting the edge of the ocean and consisted mainly of flimsy wooden stores and bath houses. Fortunately the win! carried the flames away from the section of the city in which the most valuable hotels and cottages are located. Among the other buildings destroyed are the Marine half on Young's ocean pier, and the pier itself; Fralinger's Academy of Music. and half a dozen stores located on the board walk between New York and Kentucky avenues, and half a dozen cottages on Westminster avenue. The board walk for the distance of three blocks also burned.

Nor did he look in vain. The marquis had shaken off all the doubts and fears that assailed him, and, aroused to a realisation of the desperate situation that faced them, was again the peerless comrade who had stood by Barrajo when they fought for the Golden Fleece. "Captain," he said, sternly, "depend on me to remedy this thing. If it took my life, I would freely give it to bring your wife back to your arms, for love has redeemed me."

It was a splendid thing for the captair who found himself so overwheimed by the distressing condition of affairs, that he had a comrade wide awake to the importance of speedy ac-

Deep down in his heart the marquis cursed his folly for ever having been friendly in the least with one possessed of such a tigerish, tropical temperament, and grouned to think of evil befalling Fedora through such a

Shorn of all outside consideration then, the captain's story was of the hackneyed type — unsuspicious people may be deceived by the most ancient of specious tales, so that there is little need of originality, even in these modern days, in the matter of decoying a woman from under her own roof.

The paper which Livermore had picked up in the hall explained much, for strange to say, it contained writing that in some respects resembled his own-at least under the supposed conditions he might have been the author of the message:

"Was injured in a collision with another cab. Send this good Samaritan sister to bring you to me. Come immediately. God alone knows how serious it may be. Maurice."

When the marquis read it he muttered under his breath.

Perhaps the "good Samaritan sister" was Juanita herself in deep disguise, and with the most sinister of motives in her heart.

"Come, we must go to your house without delay. The start must be made from there. On the way we can collect ourselves and make some preparation for the work."

This was his way of starting in, and as they left the hotel the marquis beckoned to a gentlemanly looking young fellow who, while appearing to be somewhat of a swell, was in reality a detective serving as his bodyguard.

A four-wheeler was next in order, and thus they reached the captain's house.

The marquis asked a few questions and then allowed the man from Scotland Yard to take charge of the case.

He drove at once to the railway station and made inquiries at he booking office.

Luckily the captain had a photograph of his wife along with him, snatched from the mantel at home by suggestion of his one-time deadly enemy, but now devoted friend.

The clerk recollected the party well. It consisted of tw ladies, who appeared sick or suffe ing in some way. a couple of attendants, honest-looking fellows, and the woman who seemed to have charge of them all-he had supposed her to be a housekeeper or com-

Thus they knew those they sought had gone on to Dover. It was a great triumph for the detective, and their faith in him arose accordingly.

Etill the situation was lugubrious enough, since there was no train until wasted. The captain grew red in the face with congested anger and threatened to have an apoplectic fit, but the marguis. upon learning that only a question of pounds, shillings and pence kept them from reaching Dover, put his hand into his pocket and made immediate arrangements for a motor and one firstclass carriage.

In ten minutes they were leaving the station, and long ere the city limits had been reached found themselves whirling along at a furious speed.

It was agreed by all that Fedora while in the cab must have been drugged in some way, to prevent her calling for help-doubtless her cruel captor had made all preparations for this and had no difficulty in stupefying her miserable and tragic little paper, mind while she still retained the use

The booking agent had noticed the vacant expression on her face and delicately hinted that at the time he had a vague suspicion the two ladies might be affected in their minds and were Listen, and in the shortest being taken to some private sanitarium near the coast.

> A strange, cold shiver went through the marquis as a dreadful thought flashed home.

He remembered how he had met Juanita on the stairs; how she had questioned him about the demure miniature painter; how she had bitterly exelaimed that the little girl of his former acquaintance had now grown up into a charming little woman. Good red at that the husband, who heavens! CHAPTER XXII. "O'er Land and Sea." Again the man from Scotland Yard was put in charge, and beat his ener-was near.

admirably.

In all his life Jack Overton never suffered such wretched pangs of remorse and despair as came upon him while they looked out upon the dark waters where the stars were reflected upon myriads of little wavelets, and considered what a trackless waste the sea might be.

The detective at last secured positive

Those they sought had gone to sea in a small steamer that had evidently been awaiting their arrival. There was only one thing to dofollow.

Given a feverish anxiety to be affoat, and unlimited capital, in a seaport one need not search very long for the craft. The detective soon had them aboard a little craft that was used in the coasting trade, a stanch and speedy boat, such as would answer their purpose

Out of the harbor and away. About daybreak of the second day the wind blew great guns, and they found themselves in a storm. The storm was at its height about noon, and as they had been blown far out of their course, no one might say when the port of Santander would be reached, although the captain made some sort of a prophecy the under certain conditions they would bring up there by the second night.

At sundown the storm still raged and the gallant little steamer struggled desperately to hold her own.

During the night, between the cat naps he secured, the marquis was impressed with the belief that the vessel did not pitch and toss so violently and upon making an observation found that the clouds had parted, leaving a clear sky overhead.

Upon reaching deck he found everything lovely.

The sea had subsided almost entirely and a fresh morning breeze was commencing to stir its surface into myriads of laughing wavelets.

About noon the captain called their attention by means of the glass to far distant land to the south, which he declared to be the northern coast of Spain, showing that they were now traversing the romantic Bay of Biscay, known to the natives as the Gulf of Gascogne.

Thus there was now a fair chance, the captain promised, that before midnight they would be at anchor in the harbor of Santander.

How like lead dragged the hours as they steamed directly toward the bea-

But all things must end, and finally they entered the harbor, where other vessels may at anchor, and the captain soon had their mudhook fastened in Spanish soil.

It was perhaps ten minutes later when the marquis appeared at Livermore's eloow-as the latter stood at the rail surveying the lights of the town. and said in a hoarse whisper:

"Make no outcry, my friend; control yourself and listen. Our captain is ready to take his oath that the steamer dimly seen on our quarter yonder is the boat that left Dover, and which we have chased over the sea!"

The words of the marquis electrified Livermore. All his lassitude seemed to suddenly vanish.

DOG WAS TOO SWIFT FOR TRAIN.

Proof of Intelligence Possessed by On Canine Friends.

Passengers on yesterday's Great Northern train from Helena witnessed a novel sight after Basin had been passed. A nassenger boarded the train at that camp and his dog seemed to be much concerned about his master's departure. After the train pulled out of the station the dog took up the scent, put his ears back, let the muscles of his legs out full length, and after the cars he went. He rounded curves with the rapidity of a roulette ball, and when he struck a straight stretch of roadway he lengthened his strides and poked his nose into the wind and fairly whizzed, keeping about seventy-five or one hundred yards behind the cars. The train moved up the heavy grade at a slower rate of speed, so that there was not so very much for the dog to do but get down and hustle. But after Bernie had been passed the engineer pulled the throttle open and the train bowled along across Elk Park at a pretty lively clip. Then doggie was lost sight of for awhile: At Woodville a short stop was made, and before the train pulled out the dog was there, panting, but comparatively fresh, considering his long run. No more was seen of the dog until the train pulled into the depot at Buffe. There the dog lay upon the platform waiting for the train and his master, who was a passenger. He had been resting there for five minutes. Instead of following the train on its long, circuitous route from Woodville to Butte, fourteen miles, he took the old stage road and made the run of Desperate Alabama Negro each. Uses Rifle with Telling Effect.

BODY RIDDLED WITH BULLETS

House Burned Over His Head and His to the End.

Tuscumbia, Ala., April 7 .- Will Reynolds, a desperate negro, heavily armed, ran amuck in a settlement known as Knardtown, near this city. In his efforts to resist arrest he killed three men, mortally wounded three more and shot four others, inflicting troit, more or less serious injuries. Reynolds was armed with a Winchester rifle and until he himself was shot was riddled with bullets and the limp corpse thrown into a fire.

The dead: Hugh Jones, Will Reynolds, Bob Wallace.

Fatally wounded: Sheriff Charles Gassaway, Will Gassaway, P. A. Prout, Seriously wounded: - Payne, Jim Finney, Robert Patterson, Jesse Davís.

About 12 o'clock Sheriff Gassoway went to the home of Will Reynolds with a warrant for obtaining goods under false pretenses. Reynolds said he would be ready to go in a moment. He returned with a Winchester rifle and at the first fire the sheriff fell. Then the sheriff opened fire from the ground with his pistol and citizens rallied to him. Reynolds barricaded the lower floor of the house and took refuge on the second floor at a partly opened window. I. was here that he proved his markmanship. Hardly a bullet from his rifle went astray. William Gassaway was rhot at a distance of 300 yards, where he stepped from behind a tree long enough to fire at the negro. Prout and Paynes were pierced by the same bullet Dynamite was used, but that failed to oust the negro from his point of vantage. Citizens gathered, and whenever one came within range in the open he fell.

Finally, as night was approaching, a call was made upon the governor for troops and he sent the Wheeler Rifles from Florence. They poured volley after volley without effect into the house. Then it was decided to burn the adjacent houses in the hope of setting fire to the one in which Reynolds held sway. Two went up in flames. Unseen, Reynolds, to escape this danger, fled to an outhouse, from which he killed his last two men. Finally the militiamen fired Reynolds' home with kerosene

As the flames in the outhouse showed his body fifty bullets tore through his flesh, his body falling lifeless. A hundred more shots werethen fired into the body in an instant and then the body was burned, together with his former home.

M. J. Griffin, electrical engineer at the D. Y. A. A & J. power house at Ypsilanti was severely burned about the face and on the right hand Saturday afternoon by the flashing over of one of the large dynamos. He was blinded by the heat and light, but retained the presence of mind to tuin off the current at once, thus preventing heavy damages to the dynamo. It was though at first that he would lose his sight, but the report now is more encouraging.

The Ladies' Library Association of Howell took up the matter of a free public library with Andrew Carnegie, and received a reply from his secretary that he would donate $15,000 for a building if the citizens of the township would raise $1,500 a yea" for the purpose of keeping the same up. The people yoted Monday at the general election to raise a onemill tax for that purpose, and it was carried by a large majority.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE

For Coughs and Colds in Children. "I have not the slightest hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all who are suffering from coughs or colds," says Chas, M. Cramer, esq., well known watch maker, of Colombo, Ceylon. "It has been some two years since the city dispensary first called my attention to this valuable medicine and I have repeatedly used it and it has always been beneficial. It has cured me quicky of all chest colds. It is especially effective for children and seldom takes more than one bottle to cure them of hoarseness. I have persuaded many to try this valuable medicine, and they are all as well pleased as myself over the result. For sale by all druggists.
