Harrison Inquest Concluded.

Herbert J. Harrison came to his death from a shock of electricity while assistlng in discharge of his duty as a motorman for the Detroit, Yoslianti, Ann trolley pole on the top of an electric car, saving it, as his partner did. of said company at Chelsea, Mich., about 8:42 p. m., on the 11th day of March

The only witness examined Friday afternoon was Mrs. Henry Schumacher. She testified to seeing Harrison and another man, on the top of the car on the night on which Harrison met his death. The witness saw streaks of lightning, she said, coming from the wires above where the men were standing. Then she heard a loud report and finally heard Harrison groan. This concluded her testimony.

The railroad was represented by Attorney Morgan, Prof. J. C. Knowlton and A. J. Sawyer being present in the interests of the widow of the deceased.

The jury was composed of Messrs. G H. Cosgrove, John R. Miner, James Donovan, Jas. R. Bach, George B. Stone, G. R. Haviland.

The testimony in the case covers over 10,000 words.

Osborn Sat Down on Them.

Times: Railroad Commissioner Osborn has taken official action that will result in the speedy separation of the electric line grades from the Ann Arbor railroad It will be remembered that Hawks & Angus asked permission of the railroad commission to cross the Ann Arbor road at grade at Huron street. He granted them a temporary right but fixed July as the limit when they could use grade crossing.

A. A. & J. Ry. Co, must in some way provide for a crossing on Huron street that will not be at the same grade as the Ann Arbor railroad.

Recently the Hawks-Angus company filed an application with Mr. Osborn asking for an extension of this time. Yesterday, the railroad commissioner, acting independently, denied this application and July 1 is still fixed as the time limit.

Manager Ashley has already accepted the grade separation ordinance and has asked the city to hustle the electric road companies to put up their share of the expense. The action of the railroad commissioner yesterday will have the effect of hurrying Hawks & Augus to deposit their portion of the cost.

Of course it is not to be expected that materials () be procured and the work done on separating the grades by July 1 and as soon as the electric line people demonstrate by a cash deposit that they are in earnest about the matter, the city may intercede in their behalf with the railroad commission and get an extension of time for them that will give them a full opportunity to complete the work.

"Hoss and Hoss."

Jackson Citizen: Fred Tompkins, of Jackson, is the defendant in a "hoss case" brought against him in Justice Helmer's court Thursday, for the non-payment of a $125 note which Tompkins had given William Clancy for the horse. Both men admit that they had been drinking at the time. While at Chelsea the horse trade was arranged. Later Fred did not like his newly-acquired animal, and sold it. He asked Clancy to take it back, when the latter demanded the money on his note. Clancy would not, and now he has sned Tompkins. Tompkins claims that the note was obtained under duress.

A Surprise.

Last Saturday evening James Runcinan was quite forcibly reminded that it was the 12th and his birthday. A large party of friends from Jackson, Chelsea and Waterloo walked in upon him without any warning, and took possession of him and his home. Jimmie did not have much to say but gave all a hearty welcome. His charming wife was in the secret and James could hardly forgive her for not telling him. An elegant supper was served and while the self-invited guests were still at the table Mr. Runciman was presented on behalf of all present with an elegant Masonic charm. After supper Mrs. Thompson of Jackson gave a number of recitations Argus: Since the death of Motorman much to the delight of all. Miss Russell John Rickets, unloading coal ... The Chelsea Standard. THE TWO DETROIT HORRORS

The Dastardly Murderer of Carrie Jennett.

IS NOW IN JACKSON FOR LIFE.

The Trial Was Brief, all the Legal Formalities Being Observed, Sentence Imposed and the Cowardly Slayer Immediately Taken to the Penitentiary.

Now He Is No. 7637.

In a little more than 65-hours after Prof. Joseph M. Miller had lured Carrie Jennett to the Thirteenth street commons and committed one of the most ghastly and bloody crimes known to the Detroit police, the murderer faced Judge Murphy in the Recorder's Court and heard imposed the sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor in Cecil Rhodes as an empire builder, the state prison in Jackson. A few hours later a train was whirling him away from the scene of his terr ble deed to begin his silent solitary lie.

The wheels of justice revolved rapidly, but there was no formality omitted, no stone unturned to grant to the cringing wretch in the prisoner's box every right accorded him by the laws of the state, Judge Murphy demanded that According to William C. Whitney the examination and trial proceed with every sign of fairness and regard for decency. He insisted upon every possible precaution being taken to spare, if possible, in some slight way, the invalid wife and the innecent children.

The formalities of the law were all observed and soon after 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon a life sentence at hard labor in the Jackson penitentiary was imposed. The sheriff wasted no time The annual demand on the part of and at 8:30 o'clock that night the murcongressmen for space on the first derer was on his way to prison in

The prison was reached and before midnight Miller's identity was hidden under "Number 7637."

The Heywood Murder.

William Jones, who is held by the police for the murder of George H. Heywood, the Detroit bookkeeper, on the night of the 9th inst., is maintaining a cool appearance as the toils are tightening around him. Mrs. Heywood is ill, her prostration followed a conone meets has an inciplent system in she admitted that improper relations fession made Friday afternoon, when had existed between herself and Jones for some time and laid bare the story From the fact that the late Cecil of Jones' infatuation for her. For the Rhodes left $50,000 to a janitor, the first time she admitted that she deduction is naturally made that the thought Jones was the man who killed her husband, and declared that she was now prepared to do everything to convict the one she believes to be the felon. "Yes," she said falteringly amid her tears, "I did go to a hotel with Jones, I don't know what made me do it. I am sure that he had me hypnotized." Mrs. Norton, her mother, was almost overcome as her daughter pronounced her own guilt, "Oh, Minnie," she cried, "how could you do it?" Mrs. Wood, the dead man's sister, fell into hysterics. "Why did my brother marry a woman like that?" she sobbed.

The whole weight of her shame and sorrow was borne in upon the woman. "My God, why cannot I die too," she cried in her agony. "Even my own people forsake me."

Bay City crushd his arrest, spent Sun-day in the police station instead of a common cell at the county jail. Arrangements had all been made for transferring him to the jail, much against his wish, as he preferred the more secluded accommodations of the "parlor" cell at the police station. Chief Murphy was obdurate, at first. however, and then Bennett's friends tried to induce Sheriff Kinney to give the expected prisoner different accommodations from ordinary prisoners but the latter refused, saying that all men looked alike to him when brought to jali, and that he could not possibly make distinctions between prisoners Bennett's friends finally persuaded Murphy to allow him to remain in the station until Monday. Bennett is putting in Lis time straightening out the books of a lodge of which he is the secretary.

King Leopold Mobbed

King Leopold was mobbed by Socialists at Brussels on his arrival from Biarritz. The meeting between the Socialists and the king was quite accidental, but it was none the less unpleasant for his majesty whose automobile was surrounded by excited Socialists, who shouted: "Long live the republic." "Long live universal suffrage," and waved red flags in the king's face. The Socialists had collected at the railroad station to bid

The three others entered a boat. thich was manned by several of the stortest and most expert sailors on board-men whose muscles were capahie of enormous work should there be seed of baste.

Il an indifferent watch were kept aboard the craft there would be little or no difficulty in accomplishing the first part of their scheme, at least. This was to temporarily disable the grew of the steamer, so that such a thing as pursuit would be out of the question. Nearer they drew, and those who vere so deeply interested held their my breath, for fear lest a sudden hail from on board might bring about disevery and possibly ruin for their

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Search for a Wife. it was already arranged that in case such a contretemps occurred they were to advance to the side of the steamer, addressing the man on guard in Spanish, which the marquis was usily capable of doing, announcing themselves officers of the port, bent upon their duties, who wished to come aboard.

Once alongside, they would speedily clamber over the low waist of the little steamer, whether invited or not, As to the rest, they were armed, and meant to carry out their object though

The sailors were to manage the task of using the chain which they had carried, so that it would be wound about the propeller with the first few revolutions made.

It was well done.

Not a single clanking sound betraved them. Their next task required an abundance of nerve, which, fortunately, was not lacking. The marquis had been using his eyes s well as the darkness allowed, and he saw that the steamer was built in a manner that made the task of boarding her more difficult than he had an-They might be compelled to rely pon some chance rope dangling over

The sailors knew what to expect, and loot by foot the boat was worked along close to the hull of the steamer until the groping hand of the man who searched came in contact with what they sought, a rope, by means of which any sailor ashore co.ld, upon arrival at the vessel, clamber aboard. The marquis was the first to take hold of it after the sailor had fastened one end to a thwart, and he passed over the rail of the steamer in a jiffy.

With Livermore it was a serious business, for he had accumulated much avoirdupois since his last equatorial tramp through the African wilderness, However, the same game spirit as of yore resided in his body, and while be puffed considerably, making sounds that Jack feared would draw attention from the watch, the discovery did not come, and he was given the privilege of assisting his friend aboard. Fortune favored them in that they were able to reach the cabin without meeting any one. Once at the saloon door, they looked its length without discovering a living Evdently those whom they sought must be in their staterooms opening of the cabin, and there was nothing left to them but to open these, one at a time, to discover the truth.

This was the crucial time. The marquis, bold enough to take advantage of the slender opportunity fortune had granted them, stepped to the first door and opened it.

The light from the cabin entering declosed Fedora sented on a chair, having refused to retire to the berth after the terror of the last two nights. She was awake, and the astonishment felt at seeing the marquis almost caused her to faint.

He advanced to her side and said in a low but earnest tone; "Do not cry out, or all is lost! We have come across the water to save you. He is close at hand—your husband. Come to him now, and please

There stood the captain awaiting hir own, and with a cry she could not repress she threw herself into his extended arms.

The marquis rightly harros that dis-

Unable to speak, she pointed to a door opposite to the stateroom she artist. had occupied, and as Jack turned to it he saw Mazette standing there, with pale face and disheveled hair-but Mazette, alive, thank Heaven!

Another instant and he had clasped her to his heart-it was one of those moments when words are useless to convey the sentiments of the soul, for Mazette knew he loved her, even as she had for years adored her former comrade and instructor in Bohemia.

Just as the marquis, overwhelmed by his sentiments, threw the mask aside and betrayed his love for Mazette by straining the miniature painter to his heart another door flew open and there issued forth a figure that in its warlike demeanor might have stood for a modern Joan of Arc -a figure that, at sight of the marquis and Livermore, uttered savage little cries in Spanish, and with blazing eyes and heaving bosom rushed toward the former, waving desperately in her hand a revolver, which he knew full well she had learned how to use under the palms of Gautarica, since he himself, as wretched luck would have it, had taught her the first principles of marksmanship.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Where Gold Proved Trumps. Luckily the detective was prepared for just such a move as this, and as she came within reach, not noticing his presence, he caught her and with a quick movement wrested the revolver from her grasp. The movement was successful, but it cost him dear, for the frenzied woman, baffled in her design, scratched his face after the manner of a tiger cat, all the while screaming as might an escaped maniac-doubtless, for the time being, she was out of her senses. so fearful a hold upon her mind had this idea of Corsican revenge taken, that the prospect of losing her prev rendered her mad.

He threw her from him with a curse, for she would very likely have around the stern of the one which had dug his eyes out.

It was now high time they departed. Already the alarm was given and they could hear the shouts of Spanish sailors as they ran to and fro, or came tumbling up from their quarters forward.

Already the captain was leading his wife to the deck; the old warrior's fighting blood was up, and woe to the man who dared bar his path.

The marquis followed with Mazette. As for the detective, finding a key in the cabin door he whipped this latter shut and having secured it, placed the key in his pocket, hoping that by thus separating Juanita from the unscrupulous captain and crew he might lessen the danger.

It was a politic move and did him

They could hear her pounding at the door while her shricks arose; then came several shots from her recovered revolver, whether as signals or fired in the hope of demolishing the lock that held her prisoner none could say.

No sooner had Livermore issued forth upon the deck than he was set upon by a couple of men, one of them possibly the captain of the steamer. who recognized in him a stranger.

At least here was an opportunity for Livermore to prove that he had not become rusty in his five years' retirement from the field of adventure and travel, and right royally he emphasized this point under the eyes of his wife.

He threw out his right hand and sent the fellow on that side headlong into the scuppers. At this his other antagonist drew a shining knife, with which every Spaniard loves to go armed at all times, and uttering fearful imprecations he made a wicked pass at the stout captain.

Fedora's scream was deadened by the report of the captain's weapon, and then the sailor man's tune changed, for, dropping his blade, he ran down the deck with a bullet in his shoulder, shricking in pain in a manner that ill became a warrior of Cas-

This was a beginning.

As the others joined the captain on deck they found themselves confronted by a rabble of wild-eyed barefooted Spanish sailors.

The marquis addressed them in quick sentences, straight to the point; his Spanish was good, and he knew how to best handle such men-mighty little time did he spend in explaining by what right they came there, for such rovers care not a snap for the affection existing between husband and wife-with them right is but as might allows, and their god the brazen image that will buy liquor and to-

Mr. Mitchell of Oregon criticised the Minister for a letter he had written to the Secretary of State protesting against the enactment of the pending exclusion bill. Mr. Mitchell insisted that the letter was a gross violation of the Minister's duty, and had such a document been written by the Ambassador of Great Britain, France, or Germany he would have received his passports within twenty-four hours.

Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts took sharp issue with Mr. Mitchell, mainto keep in the rear, showed signs of taining that the Chinese Minister had ample authority under the treaty to making a rush, the nabob again with make his protest to the Secretary of State.

Pension for Mrs. McKinley.

Washington, April 14.-After a spirited debate the House adopted bill providing for a pension of $5,000 a year for Mrs. Ida McKinley, wife of the late president. The bill already has passed the Senate, and will now go to the President for his signature. When the bill was called up for consideration Representative Bell, the Colorado Populist, asked what justification there was for appropriating such a large amount, and he opposed the passage of the bill.

I hope that the animals will not be suppressed and the sportsmen will be."

Fluys Anti-Conspiracy di-Washington; April 14.-Representative Littlefield of Maine has filed a minority report from the House judiciary committee on the bill known as the anti-conspiracy and anti-injunction bill. He says: "The majority report is full of protestations of friendship for and sympathy with employes, but we fear that the employes, when they realize the infinitesimal character of the alleged relief that the committee believes it is giving them, may reach the inference that these protestations are entitled to do some discount." He suggests several amendments destined to make the measure more effective. In the main Mr. Littlefield's report is a rather sharp dissent from the arguments presented by the majority.

For New Executive Building.

Washington, April 14.—Senator Fairbanks, chairman of the Senate committee on public buildings and grounds, has reported favorably a bill providing for a building for the use of the executive, the Department of State and the Department of Justice. Senator Fairbanks consulted President Roosevelt and found him agreeable to having the executive officers in the new building. The proposed building is to be erected north of the present state, war and navy building, and the estimated cost with site will be $7,-

Wants Oleo Bill Vetoed,

Washington, April 14.—"Billy" Lorimer is in Washington. It is understood that he is here to talk with the President about the oleo bill and attempt to persuade him to veto the measure when it reaches him. He will also exert his influence with Chairman Mercer of the public buildings and grounds committee to secure an allowance in the omnibus bill, soon to be reported by that committee, for a postoffice building at Oak Park.

Minister Conger of Iowa will soon depart from his post in China on leave of absence and is not expected to return. It is understood that the President has selected W. W. Rockhill, at present director of the bureau of American Republics, who was special commissioner to China, as Mr. Conger's successor.

The President sent to the Senate the following nominations: William D. Gordon, United States attorney. eastern district of Michigan; William R. Bates, United States marshal, eastern district of Michigan; August Doentiz, register of land office at Ashland, Wis.

Mrs. Roosevelt occupied a box at the National Theater with her children, Theodore, Kermit and Ethel. This was the first outing after dark for Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., since his recent illness and he enjoyed the performance greatly. A British officer is having a hard time to collect a just debt from the United States. Colonel L. K. Scott of the Royal Engineers is the inventor of the telescopic sights which are now used largely in the United States service. The government is in debt to Colonel Scott in the sum of $7,500, and strange as it may seem, he has been unable to collect the money, succeessive Congresses failing to make the requisite provision.

Milwankee Wants Music Hall. Milwaukee, Wis., April 14.-Milwaukee may receive from Ancrew Carnegie a music hall which will cost upwards of $250,000. The Arion Musical club is behind the plan and John Johnson, vice president of the Marine National Bank, Frank J. Bigelow and possibly Henry C. Paine will go to New York this week to confer with Mr. Carnegie on the subject. It is said that Mr. Carnegie is favorably dispreed to make a bequest for a mus'c hall for about $250,000, to be owned jointly by all the Milwaukee musical societies.

German Novelist's Troubles.

Erich von Witzleben, the noted German novelist, has had a narrow escape from being imprisoned for fraudulent practices. Prior to becoming a writer he was an officer of the army stationed at Bromberg, where, together with his wife's revenues, he had a yearly income of $13,000. Gambling compelled him to leave the service. As a writer he earned much money, but for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, needed more. One evening he lost $125,000 at the Union club at Berlin. Continuing his gambling career he gradually brought his liabilities up to $225,000. He got into the habit of writing worthless checks and commit- pepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, ting other irregularities, until his sleeplessness, in fact, any trouble conneccreditors finally had him arrested. The court, after a sensational trial, allowed extenuating circumstances and fined the prisoner $1,000. Witzleben, who is now 46 years old, says he expects to satisfy all the creditors within about fifteen years.

Phone 87. hat from the Fourteenth Chapter Luke: "And They All with One Conent Began to Make Excuse"-The Sectedity for Beligion.

(Copyright, 1802, Louis Klopsch, N. Y.) Washington, April 13.-In the following discourse, prepared by Dr. Talmage before his filmess, the folly and ger of postponing the acceptance of the gospel of invitation are exposed on the text, Luke, xiv, 18, "And they all with one consent began to make ex-

After the invitations to a levee are cont out the regrets come in. One man implication for nonattendance on one und, another on another ground. he most of the regrets are founded on for engagements. So in my text a at banquet was spread, the invitaous were circulated, and now the retels come in. The one gives an agri-Aural reason, the other a stock deal-'s reason, the other a domestic reaon. All poor reasons. The fact was, they did not want to go. "And they with one consent began to make

So now God spreads a great banquet. It is the gospel feast, and the table reaches across the hemispheres, and the invitations go out, and multitudes come and sit down and drink out of the chalices of God's love, while other multitudes decline coming, the one giving this apology and the other giving that apology, "and they all with one consent begin to make excuse." I propose, so far as God may help me, to examine the apologies which men make for not entering the Christian

Apology the first: I am not sure there is anything valuable in the Christian religion. There is so much quackery in physics, in ethics, in policies, that men come to the habit of incredulity, and after awhile they allow that incredulity to collide with our oly religion. But, my friends, I think religion has made a pretty good record the world. How many wounds it has calved! What promises it hath sent ike bely watchers to keep the amps burning around deathbeds. through the darkness that lowers into the sepulcher! What flashes of resurrection morn!

Besides that, this religion has made many heroes. To give new wings to e imagination and better balance to be judgment and more determination the will and greater usefulness to de life and grander nobility to the out there is nothing in all the earth like our Christian religion. Nothing in religion? Why, then, all those Christians were deceived when in their dying moment they thought they saw the castles of the blessed, and your child, that with unutterable agony you away into the grave, you will never see him again nor hear his sweet voice nor feel the throb of his young heart.

There is nothing in religion? Sickness will come upon you. Roll and turn on your pillow; no relief. The redicine may be bitter, the night may te dark, the pain may be sharp, no rethef. Christ never comes to the sickcom. Let the pain stab; let the fever born; curse it and die.

There is nothing in religion? After awhile death will come. You will hear the pawing of the pale horse on the threshold. The spirit will be breaking away from the body, and it will take fight-whither, whither? There is no God, no ministering angels to conduct, christ, no heaven, no home. Nothing in religion? Oh, you are not willto adopt such a dismal theory!

And yet the world is full of skeptics. And let me say there is no class of people for whom I have a warmer sympathy than for skeptics. We do not know how to treat them. We deride them, we caricature them. We. instead of taking them by the soit hand of Christian love, clutch them with the iron pinchers of ecclesiasticism. Oh, if you knew how those men had fallen away from Christianity and become skeptics you would not be so rough on them!

There is a man who says, "My partmer in business was conspicuous in prayer meeting, and he was officlous in all religious circles, but he cheated me out of $3,000, and I don't want any of that religion." Then there are others who go into skepticism by a natural persistence in asking questions, why or how? How can God be one being in three persons? They cannot understand it. Neither can I. How can God be a complete sovereign and yet man a free agent? They cannot understand it. Neither can I. They can not understand why a holy God lets sin come anto the world, Neither can I. They say: "Here is a great mystery; here is a disciple of fashion, frivolous and stodless all her days; she lives on to be an octogenarian. Here is a Christ-Can mother, training her children for God and for heaven, self-sacrificing. Christ-like, indispensable ceemingly to that household; she gets a cancer and dies." The skeptic says, "I can't explain that." Neither can I. I can see how men reason themselves into skepticism . With burning feet I have trodden that blistering way. I know What have a hundred mights poured into one hour. There are men in the arid desert of doubt who would give their thousands of fans if they could get back the old religion of their fathers. Such men are not to be caricatured, but helped. and not through their heads, but of Got, they will be worth far more to take exuse of Christ than those who can marshal a host. It is as appro-

Thomas Chalmers, once a skeptic, Robert Hall once a skeptic, Christmas Evans once a skeptic; but when they did lay hold of the gospel chariot how they made it speed ahead! If, therefore, I address men and women who have drifted away into skepticism, I throw out no scoff; I rather implead you by the memory of those good old times when you knelt at your mother's knee and said your evening prayer, and those other days of sickness when she watched all night and gave you the medicines at just the right time and turned the pillow when it was hot, and with hand long age turned to dust soothed your pains and with that voice you will never hear again unless you join her in the better country, told you never mind, you would be better by and by, and by that dying couch where she talked so slowly, catching her breath between the words-by all those memories I ask you to come and take the same religion. It was good enough for her; it is good enough for you.

Aye, I make a better plea. By the wounds and the death three of the So of God, who approaches you in infinite love with torn brow and lacerated hands and whipped back, crying. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you

Other persons apologize for not entering the Christian life because of the incorrigibility of their temperament. Now, we admit it is harder for some people to become Christians than for others, but the grace of God never came to a mountain that it could not climb or to an abyss that it could not fathom or to a bondage that it could not break. And the wildest, the haughtiest, the most ungovernable man ever created by the grace of God may be subdued and sent out on ministry of kindness, as God sends an August thunderstorm to water the wild flowers down in the grass.

Rich harvests of grace may grow on the summit of the jagged steep, and flocks of Christian graces may find pasturage in fields of bramble and rock. Though your disposition may be all a-bristle with fretfulness, though you have a temper a-gleam with quick lightnings, though your avarice be like that of the horse leech, crying. "Give!" though damnable impurities have wrapped you in all consuming fire, God can drive that devil out of your soul, and over the chaos and the darkness he can say. "Let there be light."

Converting grace has lifted the drunkard from the ditch and snatched the knife from the hand of the assassin and the false keys from the burglar, and in the pestiferous lanes of the city met the daughter of sin under the dim lamplight and scattered her sorrow and her guilt with the words, "Thy sins are forgiven; go, and sin no more." For scarlet sin a scarlet atonement.

Other persons apologize for not entering the Christian life because of the inconsistencies of those who profess religion. Now, I say it is illogical. Poor lawyers are nothing against jurisprudence; poor physicians are nothing against medicine; poor farmers are nothing against agriculture, and mean, contemptible professors of religion are nothing against our glorious Christianity.

Sometimes you have been riding along on a summer night by a swamp and you have seen lights that kindled over decayed vegetation-lights which are called jack-o'-lantern or will-o'the-wisp. These lights are merely polsonous miasmata. My friends, on your way to heaven you will want a better light than the will-o'-the-wisps which dance on the rotten character of moribund Christians, Exudations from poisonous trees in our neighbor's garden will make a very poor balm for our wounds.

Sickness will come, and we will be pushed out toward the Red sea which divides this world from the next, and not the inconsistency of Christians, but the rod of faith, will wave back the waters as a commander wheels his host. The judgment will come, with its thunder shod solemnities. Oh, then we will not stop and say. "There was a mean Christian; there was a cowardly Christian; there was an impure Christian." In that day as now, "If thou be wise, thou shalt be wise for thyself, but if thou scornest thou alone shall bear it."

Why, my brother, the inconsistency of Christians, so far from being an argument to keep you away from God. ought to be an argument to drive you to Him. The best place for a skillful doctor is in a neighborhood where there are all poor doctors, the best place for an enterprising merchant to open his store is in a place where the bargain makers do not understand their business and the best place for you who want to become the illustrious and complete Christian, the best place for you is to come right down among us who are so incompetent and so inconsistent sometimes. Show us how. Give us an example,

Other persons apologize for not becoming Christians because they lack time, as though religion muddled the brain of the accountant or tripped the pen of the author or thickened the tongue of the orator or weakened the arm of the mechanic or scattered the briefs of the lawyer or interrupted the sales of the merchant. They bolt their store doors against it and fight it back with trowels and with yardsticks and cry, "Away with your religion from our store, our office, our factory!"

They do not understand that religion in this workday world will help you to do anything you ought to do. It can lay a keel; it can sail a ship; it can ope, to the chemist as his labore tory, to the mason as his plumb line child as his marbles.

No time to be religious here! You have no time not to be religious. You might as well have no clerks in your store, no books in your library, no mpass on your ship, no rifle in the battle, no hat for your head, no coat for your back, no shoes for your feet. Better travel on toward eternity bareheaded and barefooted and houseless and homeless and friendless than to go through life without religion.

Why, my friends, religion is the best security in every bargain; it is the sweetest note in every song; it is the brightest gem in every coronet. No time to be religious? Why, you will have to take time to be sick, to be troubled, to die. Our world is only the wharf from which we are to embark for heaven. No time to secure the friendship of Christ? No time to buy a lamp and trim it for that walk through the darkness which otherwise will be illumined only by the whiteness of the tombstones? No time to educate the eye for heavenly splendors or the hand for choral harps or the ear for everlasting songs or the soul for honor. glory and immortality? One would think we had time for nothing else.

Other persons apologize for not entering the Christian life because it is frames of the pictures? time enough yet. That is very like o'clock; I will not be there at the open- ing? ing of the banquet, but I will be there at the close." Not yet! Not yet!.

Now, I do not give any doleful view nature, nothing in the grace of God, aright? that tends toward a doleful view of thy with Addison's description of the for a season. "Vision of Mirza," where he represents human life as being a bridge of a hunall of them falling down through the from thee; men are bound to take a cheerful view volcanoes; of life, we must also confess that life is a great uncertainty, and that man ed pickles from the grocery and cold who says "I can't become a Christian ham that hath sojourned beside the yet" is running a risk infinite. You do cake of scap; not perhaps realize the fact that this a while may not answer to the brakes. uncle;

Be not among those who give their whole life to the world and then give their corpse to God. It does not seem fair that while our pulses are in full play of health we serve ourselves and serve the world and then make God at last the present of a coffin. It does not seem right that we run our ship from coast to coast carrying cargoes for ourselves and then, when the ship is crushed in the rocks, give to God the shivered timbers. It is a great thing for a man on his dying pillow to repent-better that than never at all: but how much better, how much more generous it would have been if he had you will never get over these procrastinations.

We have started on a march from which there is no retreat. The shadows of eternity gather on our path- symbols of the coming of the fever way. How insignificant is time compared with the vast eternity! As I coming down over the Alleghany raging lion of the desert. mountains at noon, by that wonderful scribed as the Horseshoe-a depression place of desolation and turmoil. in the side of the mountain where the train almost turns back again upon the name of the Horseshoe-and think- timore American. ing on this very theme and preparing this very sermon, it seemed to me as if the great courser of eternity speeding along had just struck the mountain with one hoof and gone on into illimitable space. So short is time, so insignificant is earth, compared with the vast eternity! This moment voices roll down the sky and all the worlds of light are ready to rejoice at your disenthrallment. Rush not into the presence of the King ragged with sin when you may have this robe of righteousness. Dash not your feet to pieces against the throne of a crucified Christ. Throw not your crown of life off the battlements. All the scribes of God are at this hour ready with volumes of living light to record the news of your soul emancipated.

From Da mascus comes the damson, blue plum, and the delicious apricot of Portugal Damascus damask, the beautiful fabric of cotton and silk, with vines and flowers raised upon a smooth, bright ground; the damask rose, introduced into England in the time of Heary VII.; the Damascus blade so famous the world over for its keen edge and wonderful elasticity, the secret of whose manufacture was lost when Tamerlane carried off the arts into Persia; and that beautiful art of wood and steel with silver and gold-a kind of mosaic engraving and sculpture united-called damasceening, with which boxes, bureaus, swords and guns are ornamented. Damascus remains what it was before the days of Abraham—a center of trade and travel, an island of verdure in the desert, a presidential capital through more than thirty centuries. It was near Damascus that Saul of Tarsus saw the light of heaven above the light of the sun; and the street which he called straight, in which it is said he prayed, still runs through the city. The city which Mohammed surveyed from a neighboring height and was afraid to enter because it was given to men to have but one Paradise, and for his part, he was resolved not to have his in this world.—Reform Advocate.

rush of the land seekers will be to the prairie provinces of the Dominion of Canada. The allurements of a soil that yields 40 bushels of wheat to the acre are too great to be resisted and an immense migration from this country may be confidently predicted. People here laughed at first at the idea of any one leaving the United States for Canada, but the Dominion authorities knew they had a good thing and they stuck to it. Their officials evidently knew the value of printers' ink. They spared no expense in letting the people of this country know that these lands were there and that they were exactly as represented. They did more. They sent out specimens of the crops raised and samples of the grain. We have had them here at four consecutive street fairs, presided over by one of their ablest immigration officers. This gentleman spared no palus. He explained the value of the lands and the richness of the soil from morning to night to all comers.

Before he had finished using the contents of the first bottle he could walk readily without the aid of a stick, and after a few applications from the second bottle he was free from pain, and has been ever since; and although fifty years of age and a farmer, he can walk and work without experiencing any pain or difficulty whatever. any pain or difficulty whatever.

One Instance Where an Answer Was Not Forthcoming.

Repartee is like tennis. . The ball is driven backward and forward from one player to the other, and the one on whose side it last strikes is the loser. It is a terrible thing for an artist at repartee to find that he has no answer. The mere pretender does not care. He will answer something, to the point or not, but the artist will not debase his art with a bad answer; he merely sorrows for a good one.

There was a little Irishman who kept a liquor shop, and he was noted for always having a reply ready. One day a man came in, laid a dollar bill on the bar and called for whisky. The proprietor set out the bottle and a glass, and the customer filled the glass right up to the top. "Is it a towel you'd be wantin'?" the proprietor asked, implying thereby that the customer had poured out a bath, rather than a drink,

"Look here," said the customer, pointing to the money, "there's a dollar, you can take the price of this drink out of it, and if there isn't enough, tell me how much more you want and I'll pay it, but I don't want any talk from a little Mick of a bartender."

The proprietor picked up the dollar and laid down 85 cents. As the customer disappeared he walked around in front of the bar and said to a friend who sat there: "Casey, I'd have given me liquor shop to have knowed what to answer back to that man."

WHIPPED WRONG MAN AT THE KEY.

Question Is, Did He Come Back to Get the kight One.

"Fighting" over a telegraph wire with a man several hundred miles away is not an unusual occurrence among telegraph operators. W. H. Le Hew, a Seaboard Air Line train dispatcher, tells of a fight he once had over the wire, with an odd sequel. He was quarreling with an operator, J. H. Chapman, many miles out on the road, and the quarrel waxed warm. Le Hew declared he would go down the next day and personally whip his antagonist. Chapman thought it would result as most "wire scraps" do-in nothing -and did not worry any more about it. believing he and Le Hew would be as good friends as ever the next time they worked together over a wire. The next day, however, Le Hew boarded a local freight train, and, according to promise, got off at a distant station to whip Chapman. He walked into the telegraph office and demanded.

"Are you the operator here?" "Yes, sir," replied the man at the instrument.

Without further ado Le Hew sailed in and whipped him.

That night Chapman called up Le Hew, saying he was surprised that Le Hew had come there while he was away at dinner and had whipped his

Is Brain Work Bad for Women? Prof. Zimmer, the famous female brain specialist, declares that in every eighty-five female patients in the lungtic Lsylums of Germany, Russia, Austria and Switzerland there is one school teacher. In Prussia there is one teacher to every 350 women of the population. It seems to follow, therefore, that mental disorders among teachers are four times as numerous there as they ought to be. The case is still worse with those young women who are preparing to become teachers. Among them the cases of insanity are

Professor Zimmer says: "If telephone girls or salesgirls show signs of mental disturbance it is not to be wondered at, for their occupations are nardly those a woman can call suitable to her sex, but in teaching, which is usually considered a bonds of one it is hard to shake loose su:table employment for women, when the results are so disastrous there is every reason for serious considera-

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the sp the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsa tary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that this medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one reme which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the sches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case d any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price 1817 cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed an share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. Updike has been a great sufferer from rheumatism for some time, and during the past year she was induced to employ a doctor by the name of Salisbury, of Charlotte, who assured Mr. and Mrs. Updike that he could cure her. Part of the treatment however, was the purchase of a bath cabinet, which proved a failure. Mr. Updike became convinced sometime ago that he had been imposed upon and at once took steps to bring Salisbury to time. A warrant was issued for his arrest and when confronted by the law he was willing to make amends and the matter was satisfactorily settled. - Grass Lake News.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE

For Coughs and Colds in Children,

"I have not the slightest hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all who are suffering from coughs or colds," says Chas. M. Cramer, esq. a well known watch maker, of Colombo, Ceylon. "It has been some two years since the city dispensary first called my been beneficial. It has cured me quicly of all chest colds. It is especially effective for children and seldom takes more than one bottle to cure them of hoarseness. I have persuaded many to try this valuable medicine, and they are all as well pleased as myself over the result.

WANTS TO HELP OTHERS. "I had stomach trouble all my life," says Edw. Mehler, proprietor of the Union Bottling Works, Erie, Pa., and tried all kinds of remedies, went to sev eral doctors and spent considerable money trying to get a moment's peace. Finally I read of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have been taking it to my great satisfaction. I never found its equal for stomach trouble and gladly recomend it in hope that I may help other suffer-ers." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. You don't have to diet. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. Glazier & Stimson.
