MEETING OF THE PIONEERS

A Large Number Were in Attendance at the Meeting Wednesday.

The annual meeting of the Washtenaw Pioneer Society was held in the Methodist church at this place Wednesday. There was a large attendance of the old people from the various parts of the county, and all seemed to enjoy the opportunity of talking over the olden times and visiting.

The morning session was called to order by President O. C. Burkhardt. The program was opened with prayer by Dr. Thomas Holmes. President Burkhardt welcomed the visitors to Chelsea.

Russell C. Reeves, treasurer, reported $47.85 in the treasury.

W. H. Lay, necrologist, reported 147 who died within Washtenaw county during the past year. They were divided as follows: Ann Arbor city, 30; Ypsilanti city, 20; Salem, 2; Northfield, 2; Webster, 3; Dexter, 3; Lyndon, 2; Sylvan, 6; Lima, 3; Selo, 11; Superior, 2; Ypsilanti town, 13; Lodi, 4; Freedom, 3; Sharon, 4; Manchester, 23; Bridgewater, 3; Saline, 5; York, 3; Augusta, 6.

After dinner, which was served in the dining room of the church the meeting was called to order about 1:20 o'clock by President Burkhardt. Miss Clara Snyder rendered an organ voluntary, after which Dr. E. E. Carter read a portion of Scripture and offered prayer. This was followed by a song by R. A. Snyder.

It has been the custom of the Society to present beautiful bouquet to each person over 90 years of age who is present, and on this occasion there were three who drew the prizes, Mrs. Mercy Boyd, aged 91 years, Mrs. Jane Jewett and Mrs. Addie W. Smith, each 90 years. The presentation was made by Dr. Thomas Holmes, who did it in his usual happy manner. It has also been the custom to present the oldest man present a bouquet, and John Chicken of Ypsilanti, aged 88 years was the one upon whom this honor fell.

A letter of regret from President Angell was read.

A quartette composed Messrs. Burg, Ward, Welch and Ward entertained the audience, and responded to an encore. Judge Harriman presented a paper on the life of the late Christian Eberbach of Ann Arbor. Mrs. Isaac Moore of Ann Arbor read a paper describing her first visit to Ann Arbor. Prof. Sage, the oldest music teacher in the county sang "The Old Oaken Bucket" and responded to an encore with "Old Granite State."

The report of the nominating committee was then presented, and the following officers were elected:

President—M. E. Graves of Ypsilanti. Secretary—Robert Campbell of Ann Arbor.

Treasurer—O. C. Burkhardt of Chelsea. Necrologist—Wm. Lay of Ypsilanti.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Ypsilanti.

Wm. Campbell then presented a paper on the life of Josiah Childs. This was followed by a song by the quartette. Mrs. B. D. Kelly of Ypsilanti then presented a paper on the pioneer life of the family of her husband. Mrs. Hogue rendered a piano solo to the satisfaction of all. Robert Campbell presented a paper on "The Flag and its Defenders." Prof. Sage sang "Hail to the Flag."

M. E. Graves of Ypsilanti gave a recitation showing the difference in the manner of farming in the pioneer times and of today. The balance of the session was taken up with short talks by various members of the society.

Mrs. Elizabeth Faunce.

Fowlerville Review: Mrs. Elizabeth Reed Faunce, wife of S. M. Faunce, died at her home just north of this village on Friday, May 23, aged 81 years. She was born at New Bedford, Mass., March 8, 1821, and was married to S. M. Faunce November 29, 1846. They came to this township in the spring of 1877 and purchased the farm where she died, having resided there continuously a little over 25 years. She was the mother of six children, four daughters and two sons, and she is the first to cross the river of death. She was converted at the age of 15 years and united with the Christian church and when she came to Fowlerville transferred her membership to the M. E. church. She was an exemplary Christian woman in every respect and until stricken with disease, she was one of the most faithful attendants.

The funeral services were held at the home on Sunday at twelve o'clock, noon, the Rev. J. E. Ryerson officiating, and remains interred in Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. Faunce was the mother of Mrs. Jas. Killam south of this place.

Michigan Farms.

The census bureau has issued a bulletin on agriculture in Michigan showing that the farms in that state June 1, 1900, numbered 203,261 and were valued at $582,517,710, of which amount, 27 per cent represents the value of buildings and 73 per cent the value of land, and improvements other than buildings.

Value of farm implements and machinery $28,795,380, and live stock $79,042,644, making a total value of farm property, $690,355,734. The total value of farm products in 1899 was $146,547,681, of which 37 per cent was animal products and 63 per cent crops, including forest products. The total value of farm products. The total value of farm products exceeds that for 1889 by 75 per cent.

Begins Suit Against Railroad.

Suit was commenced Monday afternoon by Miss Ricka Kalmbach of Sylvan against the Michigan Central railroad for $10,000 damages.

It is alleged by the complainant that on February 9th last, while driving in a sleigh, and on her way to Chelsea, she attempted to cross the M. C. R. R. tracks at the place known as the John Guthrie crossing, where she alleges that the track was in such a condition as to result in her sleigh being so jolted as to throw her to the ground.

She alleges that her spine, left arm and head were badly injured.

M. L. Burkhardt has moved to the McCoolgan house, and parties who want ice cream, by the quart or larger quantities, can call up his residence by telephone No. 40 and it will be promptly delivered to your home. He will also sell ice cream by the dish on the lawn at his home every Saturday evening.

SAVED FROM AN AWFUL FATE.

"Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. Shields of Chambersburg, Pa., "I was so low after six months of severe sickness, caused by hay fever and asthma, that few thought I could get well, but I learned of the marvelous merit of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, used it, and was completely cured." For desperate throat and lung diseases it is the safest cure in the world, and is infallible for coughs, colds and bronchial affections. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's.

DISPLAYED A LOT OF NERVE

Lineman Worked in Middle of Six High Tension Wires.

Argus: The local employees of the Detroit, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor & Jackson electric road are displaying one of the most wonderful displays of nerve ever seen in this vicinity. A lineman from Detroit, sent out to remedy some defect in the wiring two miles west of Chelsea, climbed up on the cross-arm of one of the poles and calmly commenced to work right in the middle of six high tension wires, each of them carrying a voltage of 23,000.

Such a feat has never been attempted before without turning off the current and a large number of the road's officials from the principal cities along the route, many of them incredulous of the success of the experiment, were on hand to see the adventurer killed. It was freely stated that the feat had never before been performed and experts were not slow in stating that to approach within three feet of the wires, was courting certain death.

In spite of the alarm of the officials, however, the man, whose name cannot be learned, calmly mounted the poles and worked for several hours without the least damage. The dryness of the atmosphere and the fact that the man was careful to ascend the poles with perfectly dry clothing probably facilitated the successful termination of his daring escapade.

The man's belt was full of tools and once, when his ax swung against a wire there was a blinding flash and the ax fell to the ground. The man sustained no injury, however, and finished the job he was sent out to do. It is doubtful, however, if he will be allowed to repeat the experiment.

Catgut from Silk-Worms.

Probably but a small percentage of the fishermen who use flies strung with fine translucent "catgut" are aware that the almost unbreakable substance that holds the cruel hooks against the fiercest struggles of the struck fish comes from silkworms. The principal center of the manufacture of this kind of catgut is the island of Procida in the Bay of Naples, but most of the silkworms employed are raised near Torre Annunziata, at the foot of Vesuvius. The caterpillars are killed just as they are about to begin the spinning of cocoons, the silk glands are removed and subjected to a process of picking, which is a secret of the trade, and afterward the threads are carefully drawn out by skilled workers, mostly women. The length of the thread varies from a foot to nearly 20 inches.—Science.

Mathematical Demonstration.

"How is this, Alexander?" said Mrs. Pothurst. "You told me at the beginning of the century that you were going to strictly limit yourself to smoking ten cigars a day, and, if I am not mistaken in my count, here you are puffing away at your twelfth."

"True, my dear," answered Mr. P., "this is the twelfth cigar to-day, but, as a matter of fact, I have only smoked eight. I never smoke over two-thirds of a cigar; can't do it without scorching my mustache. Then, if you will think for a moment, you must see that I have only smoked eight, which is two-thirds of 12, leaving me still two and a little more yet to smoke. So, you see, my dear, that I have not broken my promise. Kindly pass the matches."—Harper's Magazine.

Victory Over Havana Dirt.

Of all the victories won in the field by the army created for the war of 1898 none reflect upon it such credit as its triumph in the campaign against disease. Of that triumph the war department reports particulars which almost stagger belief. The army took charge of Havana when deaths were occurring at the rate of 21,232 per year. Now, with a larger population, they are but 5,720 per year. Smallpox, which had been for years epidemic, is entirely stamped out, yellow fever practically so. When the records of the American occupation in Cuba are made up for impartial history the highest honors will be theirs who routed Gen. Dirt and drove Gen. Pestilence out of the island.—Detroit Free Press.

Persian Women.

In justice to the people of Persia let it be said that the women are hardly such downtrodden creatures as they are generally supposed to be. The wife is not a slave to her lord, nor yet a mere toy, but his friend and counselor, and, if a capable person, may rule his household. In many cases a young girl is betrothed to a man of her own class—if a merchant's daughter, she marries the son of a merchant, and so on. But personal attractions are greatly sought after; and a poor girl, if exceptionally good looking, may be as fortunate as Cinderella, though probably not so happy.—N. Y. Sun.

Wise is the girl whose sense of self interest prompts her to take Rocky Mountain Tea. It fills her full of vigor and there is always honey in her heart for you. Glazier & Stimson.

THE NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

The Military Scandal.

The filing of complaints against Col. E. R. Sutton of Detroit, one of the regents of the Michigan University, President John R. Hunter, Treasurer J. W. Woodworth, Director H. P. Kauffer and Salesman S. N. Bickerstaff of the Henderson-Ames company of Kalamazoo, has been expected by those on the inside ever since former Quartermaster-General W. L. White testified in the disbarment proceedings against E. S. Roos of Kalamazoo in the Supreme Court Tuesday, and implicated all of the persons named in the military clothing fraud, which created such a sensation when it was exposed by the grand jury eighteen months ago.

The complaints have been under preparation ever since that testimony was given. The one against Sutton is signed by Attorney-General Owen, the others being sworn to by Prosecuting Attorney Tuttle.

It is alleged that Sutton swore falsely when on the stand in his own defense during the trial which one year ago resulted in his acquittal in the military fraud. He testified that he had nothing to do with it, and accounted in other ways for the money which White says he paid Sutton as the latter's share of the profits of the deal. Sutton at that time admitted that he told the grand jury an entirely different story about three items in his bank account, but said he was excited when before the grand jury.

A Tax Case and Arrest.

The culmination of the deadlock between the tax commission and J. L. Board, of Port Huron, came to a showdown Friday, and Mr. Board was arrested, charged with the misdemeanor of refusing to appear before the commission and testify as to his property holdings. Board appeared in Police Court and refused to plead, the court entering a plea of not guilty. He was allowed to go on his own recognizance, to appear for examination June 17. The arrest of Mr. Board has caused a sensation, as it was not thought the commission would go that far. The arrest was made under a statute which aids the board of tax commissioners to carry out their duties, and makes it a misdemeanor for any citizen who, when subpoenaed to appear before the board to testify as to property, refuses to come. Board will fight the case.

The commission will have the auditor-general begin mandamus proceedings against the Commercial bank to have it disclose Board's deposits. They claim the bank should disclose the same as they would do in a garnishee case.

The Locusts Have Come.

Millions of what are reported as the 17-year locusts were found on the Towar farm just north of Ann Arbor Thursday night. They swarmed in a large orchard and made a peculiar noise that was heard for about half a mile. Dispatches from Toledo state that the swarm is also appearing in that locality, and advises from Illinois are to the same effect. The mere fact that the locust is in the neighborhood is enough to cause the greatest alarm and the most serious speculation. No greater devastation of all that is green in vegetation is known. They are said to appear once in 17 years, and there are many authentic stories of the destruction they have brought to various parts of the country. Michigan, however, has escaped in a very large measure.

The Bennett Trial.

The attendance of spectators on the Bennett trial in Bay City is not nearly so large as was expected, the people relying upon the newspapers for a resume of the testimony. Women sat in the trial. The sensational feature of the trial Wednesday morning was the testimony of Mrs. McEwan, the nurse who attended Miss Elberstein during the last days of her life. Witness made frequent sensational declarations, which were stricken out by order of the court. She suffered from hysteria, and wept all through her testimony.

Shed to His Death.

Charles Starr, W. A. Kline and M. J. Huss, of Three Rivers, went for a ride on a Sheffield electric motor car, when near Flowerfield station they saw a special train coming toward them at great speed. Huss, who was running the car, got it under control so as to have all get off, but Starr got excited and jumped. He fell senseless on the track and the train passed over him, mauling his body frightfully. He was a prominent dry goods merchant, and was well liked by his fellow-citizens. The jury attached no blame to trainmen.

Paroled Prisoner Is Bad.

Another convict paroled by the late Gov. Pingree during the closing days of his administration will be returned to the state prison. The convict is James Williams and he was serving a twenty-year sentence imposed at Ionia in May, 1896, for a murderous assault on his keeper while serving a three-year sentence from Montcalm county for a minor offense. Williams was paroled by Gov. Pingree December 18, 1900. He is now wanted in Jackson for alleged robbery, and if he can be found will be returned to prison to serve the remainder of his twenty-year sentence.

Body Found.

The body of Fred Wurzburg, a clam-maker, was found in Grand river at Grand Haven Wednesday morning. Wurzburg had been missing since Saturday night. No money was found in his clothing, and as he had been paid $14 in wages that night, Sheriff Dykhus is working on the murder theory. However, there is nothing to indicate foul play, and various people saw him late Saturday night intoxicated.

Gov. Bliss has paroled Frank Warner, who was sent from Kent county to Ionia for five years for burglary.

One Killed, Forty Injured.

On a train of 12 cars 500 people left Alpena Sunday morning for Saginaw. When the train approached the depot at Black River the tender of the locomotive jumped the rails. The train was running 40 miles an hour, and when the tender left the track it took the four forward coaches along with it. The first coach was set lengthwise across the track and was cut in two. One man, August Grosinski, was killed and about 40 others more or less seriously injured. Grosinski was seated in the center of the car with his young son, who escaped unharmed. When the rescuing party reached them the son was holding the severed hand of his father in his own, trying to remove the finger ring. Medical assistance, which was hurried on from Alpena, relieved the sufferings of the injured, who were all brought back. The four cars which were derailed are a total loss. The balance of the train remained on the track.

A Very Sad Case.

Confined in Emergency hospital like a wild animal in a cage, dressed in rough men's clothing and strapped down to the cot which forms the sole furniture of the iron prison lies a girl of 18 years, violently insane. Her name is Mary Streamers. Her home is Grand Rapids. These facts she told when she entered the House of Providence April 9. Beyond this nothing is known of the unfortunate girl's history. Her babe is about three weeks old, a healthy, bright infant, whose entry into this world robbed its mother of her reason. The girl came to the House of Providence apparently sane. She gave her name and the address of persons in Grand Rapids. She seemed, however, to be laboring under a great trouble that distracted her mind. She wandered in her conversation even then.

Furnished Bill.

The three directors of the Henderson-Ames Co., charged with perjury in connection with the grand jury investigation of 1900 and the military supplies swindle, John R. Hunter, J. W. Woodworth and H. P. Kauffer, directors of the company, and E. N. Bickerstaff, designated as an employee, were arraigned before Justice Pinckney at Lansing Monday and demanded an examination which was set for July 7 in each case and furnished bail in the sum of $10,000 each.

At 2:30 p. m. Monday Sutton had not appeared in Lansing, nor had Prosecuting Attorney Tuttle or Deputy Attorney General Chase heard from him.

Mey's Body Found.

The badly decomposed body of Julius Mey, the missing farmer, was found three miles east of Edgewood, Hamilton township, about two miles from where his horse was found Sunday. Mey and his daughter were in St. Louis May 30, and started for home together in a buggy. The father took the wrong road, and the daughter remonstrated, saying they would never reach home in that way. The farmer said he knew what he was doing, and his manner was so strange that the girl became frightened and, jumping out of the buggy, returned to her home on foot. Since that time nothing had been heard of the missing man until the finding of his body. There is no doubt but what he was suffering from mental aberration. He was well-to-do and highly respected.

Age One Hundred and Eleven.

Daniel Smith died suddenly Saturday morning at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of E. M. Cobe, a relative, at Orville, Bridgeport township, Saginaw county. He sat up on the side of his bed to take a chew of tobacco, and fell back without a word, gasping his last breath. He had no last illness to distress himself or his friends, and in fact in all his life he was never ill. This fact necessitated the calling of a coroner to determine the cause of death before burial can take place. Deceased was the oldest man in Michigan and one of the oldest in the country. He was born on board the ship Maseloma in Portland harbor, Maine, January 21, 1791. He was cheerful, lively and of excellent temper, maintaining his faculties to the end most remarkably.

The Chase Cyclone.

The cyclone which passed through Chase Monday afternoon leveled barns, orchards and timber. The greatest severity seemed to be centered about a mile north of the village, Chester Wells' fine sugar bush, which was directly in its path, was destroyed, two barns belonging to Isaac Speers leveled and Caleb Robson's large implement shed and nearly all of his orchard blown down. It blew away nearly all the fences on his farm of 160 acres.

Farmers Need Help.

Farmers throughout Oakland county are complaining on account of the great scarcity of farm help. They say the farmers' boys are all going to the cities, and that the city boys will not come to work on farms. The situation here in Oakland county is really becoming alarming, as there are no end of farmers who wish to hire help during the summer months, and can find absolutely none.

The capital stock of the Kalamazoo Paper Co. has been increased by $300,000. A new $200,000 mill will soon be erected.

Lodge Philippine Bill Passed.

The senate on Tuesday afternoon brought to an end the long discussion and passed the Lodge Philippine bill by 48 yeas to 3 nays. Three Republicans, Messrs. Hoar, of Massachusetts; Mason, of Illinois, and Wellington, of Maryland, voted against the measure, and one Democrat, Mr. McLaughlin, of South Carolina, voted for it. All amendments offered by the minority were rejected.

The bill as passed approves the action of the president in creating the Philippine commission and the offices of civil governor and vice-governor of the islands, and authorizes the governor or vice-governor to exercise the powers of government as directed by executive order. Future appointments of the governor or vice-governor shall be made by the president with the advice and consent of the senate.

The "bill of rights" of the United States constitution are applied to the Philippine islands, with the exception of the right to bear arms and the right to a trial by jury.

It also provides for taxation, improvement of harbors, classes the inhabitants of the Philippine islands as citizens of the Philippine islands and entitled to the protection of the United States and provides that when the insurrection in the islands shall have been subdued a careful census of the islands shall take place, and after such census the governor of the islands shall make a full report to the president and make recommendations as to future government.

Rathbone Wants a Trial.

The bill granting amnesty to all Americans now in jail or awaiting trial in Cuba was Saturday passed unanimously by the senate. President Palma says he will sign the bill as soon as it is presented to him. In the course of an interview had with him Estes G. Rathbone said:

"While I appreciate the kindly motives which prompted the representatives of the Cuban people to pass an act of general amnesty to all Americans, which relieves me of the charges in the postal cases, I am greatly disappointed, for I wanted a new trial before an unbiased court."

"Now that a new trial is impossible in Cuba I ask the operation of all my friends in the United States to try to get me a trial there. I will present myself to answer any charges that may be brought against me through any legal constituted authority, growing out of the postal cases. If a new trial is not possible, I shall insist upon a congressional investigation into all my acts in Cuba and request the assistance of all my friends to that end."

Nine Lives Lost.

The whaleback steamer Thomas Wilson, of the Pittsburgh Steamship Co. fleet, loaded with ore and bound down, was struck by the steamer George G. Hadley a short distance from the piers at Duluth harbor Saturday morning and sent to the bottom before nine members of the crew had time to get out of their bunks to save themselves.

The Thomas Wilson sank within a minute after being struck and it was only by the smallest chance that the Hadley, bound up, and loaded with coal, did not also find a berth on the bottom of Lake Superior and carry with her many members of her crew.

When the Wilson passed out of the piers fifteen minutes before the collision she took a direct course down the lake. According to the story of the survivors of the Wilson the Hadley took a sheer without any warning directly into the whaleback steamer. She struck the Wilson just a trifle back of the amidships and her bow must have gone half way through the Wilson. The Hadley recoiled from the shock, her bow stove in.

Chicago Strike Over.

The packing teamsters' strike, which has disturbed the peace of Chicago for nearly two weeks, and which Wednesday caused the most serious rioting that has occurred since the American Railway Union strike in 1904, came to an end at 4:15 o'clock Thursday morning by an agreement, as a result of a secret conference between representatives of the packers and the teamsters at the Grand Pacific hotel, which had been in session since 8 o'clock Wednesday night.

The agreement reached at the conference is a partial victory for the teamsters, in that the packers have declared that they will not discriminate against members of the union. The scale agreed upon is 2 cents lower than that demanded by the men. The men are to be paid full time from time of leaving barn until return, with a deduction of half an hour for lunch. They will not be required to work on Labor Day.

Torn by Savage Beasts.

The animals had been shipped from Boston and were surly and unruly. They were being transferred from the railroad cars to their cages when the casualties happened.

Prospects are excellent for a heavy fruit crop in Dryden and vicinity. Apple, peach, pear and plum trees are set full of fruit, and if the rest of the country is similarly situated there is likely to be an overproduction in this line.

Peace in Boer Land.

The open letter of the Boer leaders to the burghers in which peace is announced and in which the burghers are counseled to loyal acquiescence, is an eloquent and pathetic document. In it the leaders thank the burghers for their noble sacrifice and express their sympathy. The document is signed by Mr. Schalk-Burger, formerly acting vice-president of the Transvaal, and Gen. Louis Botha.

Mr. Kruger declares that he will end his days in Holland.

In a letter from Pretoria, dated May 18, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says that the previous Thursday arrests were made there as a result of the discovery of an extensive plot to blow up the government buildings and Lord Kitchener's residence and to spike the guns in the artillery barracks. The parties concerned in this plot, according to the correspondent, were lawyers, chemists and Boer and Dutch prisoners on parole.

The war office has received the following message from Lord Kitchener: "The disarmament of the Boers is proceeding satisfactorily and good spirit is displayed everywhere. Sunday 4,342 rifles had been surrendered up to date."

A Pretoria dispatch says the whole staff of the late Transvaal government, with a bodyguard of fifty men, were rendered last Saturday.

General Wood's Salary.

A letter from the secretary of war appears in the report submitted by Chairman Hull, of the house military committee, adverse to the resolution of Mr. Bartlett, of Georgia, asking for information as to the compensation paid Gen. Leonard Wood while governor-general of Cuba.

Secretary Root states that Secretary Alger made an allowance to Gen. Wood, out of the revenues of Cuba, of $7,500 a year, and continues: "There has been no change since that time, except that when Gen. Wood's commission as major-general of volunteers expired I made an order for further allowance, equal to the difference between the salary of major-general and brigadier-general, so as to keep his total compensation at the same figure. The combined compensation received as an officer of the army and as governor of Cuba being always $15,000 per annum. I see that the Cuban congress has voted that Mr. Palma's salary shall be $25,000."

Secretary Root says this has been fully made known to congress in former reports and neither house has made any objection.

President Cannot Act.

The New York board of trade and transportation received a telegram from President Roosevelt apprising them that he would be glad to receive the committee appointed by the board to ask the president to appoint a commission to investigate and take steps looking towards the settling of the anthracite coal miners' strike.

The telegram, which was signed by George B. Corbelyou, secretary to the president, pointed out that the law empowering the president to act in instances similar to the anthracite miners' strike was repealed in 1904, but added that the president would be glad to see the committee if it decided to visit him.

After considering the fact that the law had been repealed, the committee decided not to visit the president.

Anti-Anarchy Bill Passed.

When the house met Monday the pending question coming over from Saturday was on the motion of Mr. De Armond (Mo.), to recommit the anti-anarchy bill with instructions to strike out Sec. 3, which made the killing of foreign ambassadors and ministers punishable with death, and Sec. 4, which creates the legal presumption, in all prosecutions under the act, that the officers to be protected by its provision are engaged in the performance of their official duties at the time of the offense is committed. The motion was lost, 71 to 125. The vote then was taken upon the passage of the bill. Mr. Lamborn (Texas), commanding the ayes and nays. The bill was passed 151 to 38.

TRAINED SEALS

(Wm. L. Mallabar, in Pearson's Magazine.)

To most people a seal is a rather stupid cross between an animal and a fish, whose only value is to provide the material for very expensive raiment. When the fact of a seal being used in a public performance is brought forward, the mind instantly flies to thoughts of a tank of water in which a few seals listlessly swim around and perform tricks. It is only within the past few years that seals and sea lions have been seen on the stages of the leading vaudeville theaters, giving performances which have put to shame the best efforts of the many troupes of monkeys, dogs and other animals whose exhibitions we are all familiar with.

For many weeks a troupe of seals and sea lions appeared at a leading vaudeville house in New York City, and he lifts himself up, higher, a little more, and he is on the top of the box; a word from the trainer, the pole is thrown in the air, and the fish comes down into its destined place—between the jaws of the seal.

"The Seal-Skin Band" is another of their wonderful acts. Every animal is equipped with some instrument, and at a signal each one attempts to outvie the others in noise-making. With drums, cymbals, horns and bells they unite to make "music," and if the melody is of a rather doubtful character, they certainly make up in vigor for what they lack in harmony.

The variety and excellence of their feats are amazing. They are seemingly capable of performing all the tricks accomplished by other trained and the sea-lion travels across the stage to his station, balancing them as he did the pole. He mounts his box and gives his head a toss, with the result that the whole structure collapses, and, as the articles fall to the stage, he catches the ball on his nose, holds it for a few minutes, and finally tosses it to his trainer.

Training these animals is far from easy work. They vary in intelligence as do humans, and there is a big handicap in the fact that they are out of their natural surroundings. Their confidence has to be gained, and the same fact holds true with them as with other animals; viz., they must be taught by kindness and not by fear.

They are great eaters, consuming about seventy-five pounds of fish per day. At the conclusion of every trick successfully performed they receive a small piece of fish, for, like most of us, they do their best when a tangible reward is in sight.

It is hardly within the bounds of possibility that now a seal's intelligence is made known, they will ever be adopted as household pets. Excepting to those persons with a large aquarium they will hardly appeal in this capacity. But it is now proven beyond the possibility of a doubt that they have a far larger degree of intelligence than any of our domestic animals. Until, however, they are trained to the point where they can live entirely out of the water, and can also eat such food as is general to the ordinary household they have but small chances of being adopted as fire-side companions. The most we can do at present is to read Rudyard Kipling's "White Seal" with a better appreciation, and the knowledge that what he did was entirely within the capacity of every seal.

Earl of Oxford's Family Ghost.

It is interesting to note, in connection with the late earl's burial, that his coffin when brought from London where he died, was not driven three times round the church at Wolverton, although this is the first time the formality has been omitted. The tradition held that Horatio, second Earl of Orford, destroyed the tombs of the Sealers, former possessors of the place, and one of the unhappy ladies of this family, finding no rest, is said to still haunt the churchyard, always searching for the remains of her relations. To mollify her uneasy spirit, every Earl of Orford at his burial is driven in his hearse three times round the church before he is laid to his rest.

Mont Pelee Unchanged.

Prof. Angelo Holprin, president of the Philadelphia Geographical Society, who made explorations of the crater on the summit of Mont Pelee, says: The location of the new crater has been accurately determined; it is positively known that there has been no overflow of molten matter from the lip of the crater; there has been no subsidence of the mountain, and the height of Mont Pelee is unchanged; the crater did not contain a cinder-cone; there has been no cataclysm and no topographical alteration of the country. The period of violent eruptions has probably ended, although the volcano may continue to be quietly active for a long time to come.

The saying that "every man has his price" is in its original sense, doubtless, a cynical and untrue one. The man who originated it had been either unlucky in meeting none but weak and corrupt men, or, worse still, fancied all men as evil as himself. But, in another sense, as a recent number of Young People has pointed out, it was an absolutely true remark. All men are worth a certain price to the world, which if they can make it clearly evident, the world will cheerfully pay. The mere price of an able-bodied laborer, in time of slavery, proves this. In the days of the Romans there was a scale of prices in both white and black slaves; and to-day, in the east, such a scale exists. What a man is worth, that the world pays, so far as it can find it out. Sometimes mistakes are made, as in everything else; but in the majority of cases the price is fair enough. There are some men who really are not "worth their keep" to the world. They can set their price as high as they please, and exclaim against the injustice of not getting it; but the fact of their patent worthlessness remains. If they are poor the world refuses to pay them a high money wage; if they are rich they are still refused the wage they covet of honor, of admiration, of fame. The men who win the high price are the men it belongs to of right. No man can gain the meed of honor paid to Lincoln or Washington without being worth as much to the nation as Lincoln or Washington. A cheap man cannot hope to be quoted above par. His market value is fixed roughly; but in the main justly, by the real value of his personality. The wise thing, therefore, is not to seek to make the world think we are valuable—that is but a barren attempt. The world is always looking for and appraising valuable men. Its price is not always paid in money, but the man of value, soon or late, wins a place in the price list. Agassiz refused to make money. He had not time, he said. But the world paid him his price in honor, to the uttermost farthing. The man who quarrels with the world for undervaluing him usually has the worst of the quarrel, and rightly. The only way to enhance our price is steadily to be worth more every year, to every one around us, and to our day and generation. Those who have learned this simple truth rise in value inevitably. Is it not a good method to learn?

The world is a pretty big place even in these days of the railroad, telegraph, etc. There are long stretches of country where 500 miles is more than one day's journey. Here is a woman who is taking a journey of many thousands of miles and which will consume months of time in order to meet her husband. And yet he was only 500 miles from her starting point. It sounds like a puzzle. But this is the explanation: Among the passengers who arrived in New York on the German steamer Albano from Barbados was a Spanish woman named Maria Sany. Mrs. Sany left her home at Iquitos, Peru, on the eastern side of the Andes, about 2,500 miles up the River Amazon, to go to her husband at Lima, Peru, on the other side of the Andes mountains. She went down the Amazon to Para, thence to Barbados. From there she will go by the Panama railroad steamer to Colon, and thence to Callao by way of Panama. Callao is the port of Lima. Altogether her journey will consume several months between Iquitos and Lima, which are only about 500 miles apart.

That but one tramp in 52 wants to work or will take it when it is offered him, is the discovery of the Chicago Record-Herald, that has been made recently by the police of Evanston, Ill., the stopping place for those who travel between Chicago and Milwaukee. Recently the Mark Manufacturing company asked the police to send over any tramps who wanted employment. Fifty-two tramps lodged in the station were told to go and get work at $2.16 a day. Of these four went to the mills and promised to go to work. They left, however, "to find a boarding place," and but one returned.

Edward Everett Hale said at the celebration of his eightieth birthday last month: "I never had but one enemy, and last week, when I was trying to think of his name, I found I had forgotten who he was." This is better than keeping him in mind by making plans every day for "getting even."

Guests Pass with Glaciers.
Hotel keepers in the Alps have a new trouble and are complaining at the loss of patrons, who are moving away from the glaciers. Yes, the attractive glaciers are actually passing from the landscape, and as they recede the hotels along their borders find that their registers are shortening. These glaciers are not running away, by any means, but they are deteriorating slowly, with a persistency that means their final annihilation. Hotels that a few years ago stood very near to a great river of slowly moving ice now find themselves a considerable distance away, and the attractiveness of the site is lessened. The famous glaciers of the Rhone have shrunk 3,000 feet in the last 20 years, or about 110 feet a year. A number of the well-known glaciers approximate this diminution, and the scientific fact is established that these reminders of the great glacial period are surely disappearing.—N. Y. Herald.

Hitherto the truck wheels have been made of cast iron, and the company were not satisfied with them. Now they are about to equip their cars with the same kind of steel tires and flanges as those used on the best locomotives. This means an additional cost of $300 for each pair of wheels, but they ensure perfect safety and are far more durable than the old style.

For the next 10 days we will give 40 pounds of flour for wheat that will test 60 pounds. Chelsea Roller Mills.

Old Lefaire as Othello

By ADA MAY KRECKER.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story-Park Co.)

Every one in the reception room smiled as Burney passed through. She carried one of the letters on which the conversation had been turning. Behind trotted the mountainous figure of dear old Lefaire, whose rosy, brown, expansive visage, was conspicuously written with a consciousness of his lowly position as her satellite.

Miss Lozenby of third floor, back, had been recounting the story of her little scene the evening before when happening upon him alone by the firelight. She took the ottoman by his side, explained she wanted to go over, confidentially, with him, some curious facts which had been noted in connection with Burney's recent correspondence, pointing out the number of envelopes addressed to her in a certain fine, vertical handwriting which had been observed on the hall stand, and recalling the stranger of the afternoon Maude Hughes went away.

From behind the palm tree between the two front windows Miss Lozenby spied a tall, graceful, blonde walking at Burney's side as she returned from her farewell to Maude. And he had prattled on like a schoolboy until the early autumn nightfall. With the next morning the daily letters began to appear, one by the early eight o'clock mail, another every evening, although once she had seen a note when coming up from luncheon, which must have been an extra third, since Burney always took the morning arrival with her, as she left the house after breakfast.

"I told him to be a man," cried Miss Lozenby with martial spirit, "and quoted that from Othello about rather loving as a toad in a dungeon than keeping a corner of the thing one loves for others' use. He ought not let a giddy young woman that's ready to walk upon any creature in trousers play with his man's affections—all for another fickle flirtation."

As the lady went on a pair of lively eyes representing third floor hall, front, agitated her audience by flashing the dispatch that the characters of her narrative were present realities. In unobtrusive ignorance Burney, with Lefaire, ran the gossipers' gauntlet, but the little hall-boy, always prying into affairs on the other side of the portieres, found his countenance all too narrow for his smiles, as the pair stepped out of the vestibule for their twilight stroll.

"Why, Peter, Peter," exclaimed the girl, softly laying hold of the large arm by her side, "how amusing that all of a sudden you should care to know all about my correspondents! Aren't you getting too inquisitive?"

Burney was gently and very seductively sportive. "You don't want to become effeminate, do you? Do you think it's your style, dear, a burly thing like you? Oh, well, an Amazon, perhaps you could do that. Only personally, I would find you quite charming. I believe, if in your native role of wiseacre bachelor you would go on with that very unenviable dissertation of a few moments ago on the Nature and Destiny of Flirting; a Plea for Eternal Affinities. That is what you were talking about, isn't it?"

"Do you know, Peter, it convinced me that you're a born orator—on that topic, I mean, of course; a most worthy cause to champion! I fairly thrilled at your exordium on the high calling of adorable woman. One's whole body feels different (as, of course, you understand) when one is thrilled by an orator's impassioned use of the queen's English. The blood runs rapidly and travels such unbeaten tracks of one's anatomy. Well, that's the way I felt, Peter, when you were decanting upon 'Nature's angel of loveliness'—'glorious eyes'—'cheeks like pearls and rubies'—'hearts and sympathies divine, etcetera, etcetera.'"

"And you said the attraction between people was like the chemical affinities of atoms to atoms, didn't you? Which was an exceedingly apt figure. Some of us, for instance, are so like nitrogen, aren't we? We can combine with so many different atoms and can break away from them again so lightly. Now, do go on, Peter, and tell me

Burney was gently and very seductively sportive. "You would not have considered that an exhaustive treatment of the subject."

But unhappy Lefaire was silent. In the light of Miss Lozenby's words Burney's jocularly looked ominous. He sighed at the scattered leaves along the avenue as at his own radiant hopes fading at his feet. This little pet of his had been child, girl and woman, bud and blossom, all in one fair miracle of winning femininity. In his holy of holies he had ensconced her, regaling his dry old hermit's mental palate with the artful expressions of her busy young mind, and feeding a fathomless yearning upon the warm girl affections which had seemed too blithe and simple to be experienced with lovers.

Such satisfied trust had been his that no past or present of the precious sweetheart had ever been arraigned for a trial. Burney's face and ways seemed to tell him all he needed to know of her family or outside interests, while the only incident out of his own troublous chronicles which had been given her was the chapter on the fascinating lady who had turned him away, but was always still remembered. Everything else had been sublimely personal and immediate. They had disdained practical things.

Yet, rash the wooing certainly appeared. Several tripping weeks with tiny stranger girl and his marrying day was already set. What if she were, after all, a gay little deceiver and he everybody's laughing stock, her Simple Simon and both? Those letters for these many weeks without a word to her true love nor any whisper of the elegant blonde beau. Maybe her charms were the finished flowers of much practice—on others—his predecessors—or, contemporaries? Probably he was the innocent and not she. It was folly, anyway, to expect a queer old original like himself to engage the heart of such a darling siren as Burney. Ah, but she must not make a toy of him. He must show himself a person of mettle—a man, as Miss Lozenby had advised.

Burney's chatter purred on, now and then arresting its frolicsome flow just long enough to invite a remark from her companion as her eyes glanced upward in quest of a reason for his tactfulness. Finally she exclaimed:

"Peter, you are so unsocial!"

He was too sad and distressed to be able to explain himself, so evaded her with badinage very unusual for his open simplicity, and, born of the moment's exigencies.

"I see an elf in each of your eyes, Cherie," he remarked. "Perhaps he is an imp. And on the corner of your mouth is perched a microscope clown."

Burney looked amused. They were rounding a corner and homeward bound and discerned some one at the house ringing the bell.

"Oh, Peter!" cried the girl, only instantly to dart away. "That's a man, I know."

Drawing nearer, Lefaire recognized in the refined, stately figure which she was effusively hailing, the hero of Miss Lozenby's doorstep episode; his rival, and a veritable Apollo. Ha! Every suspicion became incarnate before him. The denouement, bubbles burst, treachery laid bare. The daily displeasure which had been unsettling his placid calm of mind now rose in tempests. Wilder and wilder within, he slowly stepped along, reaching the battlefield at the door in a heaving passion, determined to measure words.

Cheerily graceful, Burney turned to acknowledge his presence. "Mr. Merrill, this is my friend, Mr. Lefaire," she began. "Maude Hughes' fiancé, Peter. And think of it, he says she's coming back to-night. Maude left town, you know, the very day Mr. Merrill came, but neither can stand it, so she's to be here again. And a good joke it is, too. You see, it has been kept a secret from me. Two letters a day from her, imagine, and not a hint of it. But now it will be tit for tat, as Mr. Merrill wishes us to go down to the station with him to meet her. So come, Peter, only ten minutes until train time."

The result of Lefaire's first appearance as Othello did not warrant a second engagement.

Two Afflictions.

A worthy man, who was very sensitive and retiring, having lost his wife, privately requested that he might be remembered in the minister's morning prayer from the pulpit, but asked that his name might not be mentioned.

On Sunday morning the good minister prayed most eloquently for "our aged brother upon whom the heavy hand of sore affliction has so lately fallen."

At this point an elderly man, whom the minister had married to a very young wife during the week, rose with a bounce, and stamped down the aisle, muttering loud enough to be heard all over the chapel:

"It may be an affliction, but I'm blest if I want to be prayed for in that fashion."

HAS A TONGUE LIKE A HANDSAW

The Snail Has as Many as 30,000 Teeth on His

It is a fortunate thing for man and the rest of the animal kingdom that no large animal has a mouth constructed with the devouring apparatus built on the plan of the insignificant looking snail's mouth, for that animal could out-devour anything that lives. The snail itself is such an entirely unpleasant, not to say loathsome, creature to handle, that few amateur naturalists care to bother with it; but by neglecting the snail, they miss studying one of the most interesting objects that come under their observation.

Anyone who has noticed a snail feeding on a leaf must have wondered how such a soft, flabby and clean-cut incision in the leaf, leaving an edge as smooth and straight as if it had been cut with a knife. That is due to the peculiar and formidable mouth he has. The snail eats with his tongue and the roof of his mouth. The tongue is a ribbon, which the snail keeps in a coil in his mouth. This tongue is in reality a hand-saw, with the teeth on the surface, instead of on the edge. The teeth are so small that as many as 30,000 of them have been found in one snail's tongue. They are exceedingly sharp, and only a few of them are used at a time—not exactly only a few of them, but a few of them comparatively, for the snail will probably have 4,000 or 5,000 of them in use at once.

THE PRONUNCIATION OF COLOGNE

Singular Contention Regarding the Name of a German City.

The German city which we know by its French name, Cologne, is in a state of great excitement over the orthography of its German name. Should it be spelled with a K or a C—"Koeln" or "Coeln"? The municipal authorities recently concluded that it was high time to settle the matter. In their opinion Koeln is the proper form, historically correct and in accordance with the "genius of the language." They determined, however, to refer the matter to the general government, and this agreed with them. So far all was harmony and peace.

But when it came to confirming the unanimous decision by an imperial edict the imperial will had to be reckoned with, and the Imperial William prefers the spelling "Coeln." The Cologne defended their favorite "K" and formed a court of inquiry composed of historians and philologists, who reported in favor of it. They admitted that the name originated in that of the Colonia Claudia Agrippensis Ubiorum, founded by Claudius A. D. 50, but they contended that the introduction of the c, or unlaute, would modify the pronunciation so that if the name were spelled Coeln it ought to be pronounced Zoeln instead of Koeln, as everybody does pronounce it. (In German, c before e, i and oe is pronounced like s.)

Lightning Strikes Not Always Fatal

The statistics of 1900 show that during that year 713 persons were killed or fatally injured by lightning. Of these 219 were killed in the open, 214 in buildings and fifty-seven under trees. The circumstances of the deaths of the remaining fifty-one are not known. The most interesting part of the report of the United States weather bureau soon to be issued treats of the relative danger of certain situations during a thunder storm. By studying these one may learn to avoid the more dangerous exposures.

One important declaration made by the report is that the majority of fatal cases are not necessarily so. Prompt and intelligent treatment by a physician will generally result in recovery. This treatment should extend over at least an hour. The important point is to preserve the warmth of the body by all methods, such as by applications of the hot water bottles or cloths, hot flannels or warm salt bags.

Canvassing for Votes.

A good joke is told on two candidates who were seeking after the same office a few weeks ago. Candidate Smith called on a family, and the husband, the voter, being gone, he directed his attention to the baby with candy. Candidate Jones arrived in a few hours and went through the same performance with candy and kisses and then said: "Don't you like me better than Smith, because I gave you more candy and kissed you besides?" The little girl says: "No; because he kissed mamma, too, and you didn't. Jones didn't either, because the old man had come home—Astoria (Ill.), Scarslight."

What Is He?

A number of school children have been giving their ideas of what a member of parliament is.

One says: "He is a man who has to meet every year."

Another writes: "A man who signs the notes, adds up the bills, and keeps some laws."

A third bright child answers the question thus: "A member of parliament is a man who tries to make laws."—Washington Post.

How Light Affects the Eye.

When candle light is used the eyes are closed 6.8 times a minute. With gas light winking occurs 2.8 times a minute. With sunlight the eyes close 2.2 times and with electric light 1.3 times. Scientists say this proves that of all artificial illuminants the electric light is the least injurious to the eyes.

The mill does not grind with water that is past.

RAISING SNAILS FOR FOOD

Snail raising for profit is the unique occupation of a California man, and his snail ranch at Los Angeles is supposed to be the only place in the United States where snails are bred and raised as an article of food. This odd industry is little more than a fad in this country, but in France the succulent escargot is in high favor with the gourmet, 800 tons of them being consumed last year in the city of Paris alone.

A few years ago Mr. A. V. Pernot of Los Angeles, a native of France, imported two dozen of the variety known as "escargot Bourgogne," and attempted to found a colony of the slimy and repulsive appearing creatures. He knew their food value, and he also knew that "sirup d'escargots" is esteemed of benefit in the treatment of throat and lung affections. The variety imported is carnivorous and they lived but a short time on the vegetable diet to which they were subjected.

Later Mr. Pernot received a consignment of the variety "escargot Bordelaise," which is herbivorous, and the success of his experiment has been phenomenal. The colony has increased so rapidly that in breeding season the services of one man are required constantly in the care of the thousands of snails that crowd the confines of their pens.

Snail raising is beset with few difficulties. All that is needed is a small enclosure in a moist place, so protected that the crawling gastropod cannot stray away with its shell house on its back.

In the Los Angeles snailery the pens are built under a large windmill tank, where water is plentiful. Several long boxes, two feet wide and one and one-half feet in height, are arranged about an open space, and the tops are covered with wire netting fitted with rings. Inside the boxes are numerous lengths of drain tile, in and upon which the snails cling in great numbers and in all stages of development.

The eggs of the snail, tiny in size and whitish gray in color, are laid in May or June, when large numbers of the creatures gather in sunny places. When about to lay the snail burrows into the damp soil, sheltered from the sun's rays, and deposits from thirty to fifty eggs that look like small pills. Three or four similar deposits are made and abandoned in a season.

Ordinarily the young snail gnaws its way out of the shell and to the surface within twenty or thirty days, but instances have been noted of eggs that have been dried and kept for many years and then returned to a moist place, where they hatched in the usual period.

The snails are liveliest in the early morning. This is their feeding time, and they come out in myriads to receive a shower bath from a garden hose and to feast on the cabbage, lettuce and grape vine leaves, that compose their diet. They are voracious eaters, and when several thousands of them are eating the noise they make with their horny jaws and cartilaginous tongue is not unlike the clamping of a horse on its bit.

In their native haunts the snails are great pests, resembling grasshoppers in their destructiveness, and instances are cited where entire gardens of cabbage and strawberries have been devastated in a single night.

The snails raised on the California ranch vary in size from that of a pinhead at the time of hatching to the dimensions of half a dollar when full grown and inclosed in the shell. The animal's body is translucent and of a light brown hue. As the snail crawls on a log all that can be seen is the square head, bearing two long and two short horns with a muscular base, tapering behind. Extending under the surface of the body is a tough corrugated disk on which the animal creeps. This is the last part of the body to be drawn into the shell, and to it is attached a horny valve that just fits the opening, completely covering it when the snail is inside.

In preparing the creatures for food they are kept for about four weeks in wine-soaked bran, where they fatten rapidly and are freed from all extraneous and slimy matter. When this preparation is not possible the snails are taken from their shells and washed many times in salt and water or vinegar and salt. They are placed in a stewpan and cooked in salt and water or boiled in milk. Another method is to place them in a vessel, shells and all, and to boil them with herbs, cloves and whole peppers until they fall from the shells. Then the tails are clipped off, the shells scrubbed, and a paste made of parsley, butter, bread crumbs and white wine. The meat is replaced in the shells with this paste, and then the mass is placed in a baking dish and browned in a hot oven.

Ordinarily they are fried in a pan with the shells on, and they taste not unlike a clam or mussel, although they lack the fishy flavor of the bivalve. Like the oyster, they are best in the month of which the letter "r" appears.

Forty or fifty snails constitute a meal for a hearty eater.

In addition to the food value snails are thought to be efficacious in the treatment of pulmonary troubles, and the water that comes from the creatures by distillation is considered an effective "beauty wash." The belles of two centuries ago ascribed beautifying properties to "eau d'escargots," claiming it made their complexions white and fresh.

Area of Foliage.

The beauty of the Cryptomeria as seen in Japan has often been described by travelers both when seen wild, forming large forests on the mountain sides, and also under cultivation, the Japanese having used it to great extent for avenues along the sides of the public roads, says the Garden. One of the finest of these avenues is recorded as leading from the town of Namada to Nikko, a distance of fifty miles, every tree being a perfect specimen, quite straight, averaging from 130 feet to 150 feet in height and 12 feet to 16 feet in circumference. In this country it has proved, on the whole, a disappointing tree, fine specimens being extremely rare. The species, or one of its numerous varieties, is said to have been first introduced into England. Fortune in 1844, who sent it from Shanghai. Although usually spoken of as a Japanese tree, it is also found widely distributed in many of the mountainous parts of China.

U. S. Area 3,000,000 Miles.

The area of the United States, according to the twelfth census, is 3,690,822 square miles, including the "outlying districts" of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Guam and Samoa.

Of the total area just given, 2,970,230 square miles lies within "continental United States" and the balance in the sections named, which range from 599,884 for Alaska to 201 for Samoa, and 81 for the Isle of Pines, not mentioned separately above.

The areas for continental United States include land surface, only, but for the outlying districts they include both land and water surface.

How Ralph Connor Got His Name.

Literary pseudonyms come into existence in curious ways, as is once more illustrated by the case of "Ralph Connor." He is the Rev. Charles W. Gordon, a young man occupying a Presbyterian pulpit in Winnipeg. When he first began to write of that part of the world he sought a name de guerre. He took two syllables, "Con" and "Nor," from the name of the Canadian Northwest Missionary society, with which he was connected. However, the editor under whose eye this signature came read it for "Connor," and thought it would sound better if "Ralph" were added as a Christian name.

Gifted President of Harvard.

Thirty-three years ago Charles William Eliot, then a young and comparatively inexperienced professor of chemistry, was elected president of Harvard college. Now, nearly 70 years old, he can look back to an administration longest in the history of the university, conspicuously most successful financially and materially and the most active and revolutionary from an intellectual point of view.

Nearly every man actually believes that other men are interested in his troubles.

PARIS TAKES TO HORSE-FLIES

Over Two Hundred Shops Where They Are Sold.

The taste for horseflies in Paris, which is demonstrated by the recent banquet, does not date back many years. It was under the second empire, during the expedition to Morocco that it came into the dietary of the French soldier. The expeditionary corps had nothing to live upon, so it slew and ate the horses, and everyone was agreeably surprised at the quality of the meat.

Amile Decroix, a veterinary surgeon with the troops, resolved to profit by the experience. Arrived in Paris, he set about popularizing the horse as food. He distributed meat gratuitously to the poor population. In his propaganda he interviewed the prefect and ministers and even had audience of the emperor. He opened the first hippophagous butchery, 14 the Place d'Italie, in 1866. It was the slightest Paris that caused the flesh of horses to be regarded as a positive delicacy. That was thirty-two years ago. Now has the notion progressed since? Paris has now 250 shops where the sell the meat; all are prospering. Last year 30,000 horses were slaughtered and eaten. Rouen, Toulouse, Lille, Orleans, have all taken to horse eating. The meat is cheaper than beef. Wherever one pays 3 francs the liver is a good fillet of beef, it only costs a franc if you take horses.

The animal that was eaten the other day with such oclat had a singular history. It won several steeplechases at Auteuil and Bois-Colombes. It was an English mare and its name was Nell Gwyn. In November, 1893, the crowd on the course was very irritated at the defeat of the favorite in the preceding race. It revenged itself by throwing stones. One of the stones struck the left eye of Nell Gwyn and ruined the sight. Nevertheless, the noble beast won this race.—Pall Mall Gazette.

DEFENDS WOMEN'S USE OF CORSETS

French Scientist Tells Why They Are Needed by Women.

In an article on "Women's Clothing and Hygiene," contributed to the Revue Scientifique by M. Frantz Glisnard, the author controverts popular ideas on the subject of the corset. He lays down the following propositions: "1. The corset has its raison d'être from the esthetic point of view. 2. Esthetics and hygiene may be reconciled in women's clothing, even in the corset. 3. The corset may be of use in certain maladies."

These statements, which he acknowledges are somewhat audacious on the part of a hygienist, he attempts to justify in the course of his article. As to the first, he remarks that the adoption of clothing by man is the result neither of modesty nor of a desire to protect the body against the weather; it is a result, he asserts, wholly of a desire for adornment—the same that leads the savage to tattoo himself. Men's costume has tended more and more to straight lines, signifying action, women's to curved lines, signifying, according to the author, that they are "made to please." "Rigidity and strength for man," he says, "suppleness and fascination for woman." The corset, then, is an attempt to preserve and accentuate the curve and outline of the waist.

A Geological Fallacy.

Probably the most wild and unjustifiable of all the crude beliefs respecting geological resources is that which holds to the conviction that by going deep enough the drill is sure to find something of value, no matter at what point the work of boring is commenced. There are numerous wise persons in every community, estimable, influential and in the highest degree public spirited, who are convinced that the question, for example, of finding coal in their special locality is simply a matter of the depth to which the explorations are carried. Rock oil and natural gas are recognized as desirable products in every progressive community, and every such community contains persons, in other respects intelligent, who are ready to stake their own fortune and that of their nearest friends on the belief that oil and gas are everywhere underneath the surface, and that their sources can be tapped with the drill, providing only there is sufficient capital to keep up the process of drilling long enough.

His Saving Grace.

Economy is the order of the day among the reigning families of Europe. Whereas in times gone by the very word "economy" implied a reckless disregard for money and extravagance, it now stands for something perilously approaching close-mindedness. Extravagance is left to the new-rich. To begin with King Edward: It is no hearsay that as soon as he came to the throne he appointed his friend, Lord Farquhar, to be master of his household, and Lord Farquhar immediately set to work to do away with all unnecessary expenses, to dismiss all superfluous officials and servants, to get the largest possible returns for the smallest resources, to cut out, and to exact usual discounts for all cash payments. The savings thus effected are understood to amount already to close upon $125,000 a year.

For Ex-Confederate Home.

On June 3 next, the anniversary of Jefferson Davis' birth, collections will be made in every town in Mississippi in aid of the fund for the purchase of Davis' Beauvoir house, near Biloxi, Miss., for an ex-confederate home. More than one-half of the required amount, $10,000, has already been raised.

WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd St., Minneapolis, Minn. as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any."

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged."

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing that could wish for, and thanks to Peruna I enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catharr remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catharr remedies and catharr tonics are to be found in many drug stores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Peruna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Peruna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.

It is not an easy matter for God to bless a man who has no concern about running in debt.

County and Vicinity

The Seventh Michigan Volunteers will hold their reunion at Leslie, June 17th. Gen. Shafter is expected to be present.

Myra Curtis, 15 years old, and her companion, Nellie Bowers, two years younger, ran away from their homes Pluckney and were arrested by the Detroit police late Thursday night at the Brush street depot.

Washtenaw county has a miniature agricultural college. A school district in Northfield township has purchased a half acre of land adjoining the school house which is to be utilized for teaching the young idea how vegetation shoots.—Northville Record.

E. W. Crafts contemplates the erection of a cold storage building on his farm in the eastern part of the village in the near future. The building will be erected at the junction of the two electric roads and will be modern and up-to-date in every way.—Grass Lake News.

The machinery in the gas plant is now in running order. Trenches were dug Saturday, Monday and Tuesday and the mains placed therein, the plan being to extend them to a point 16 rods west of Dr. Brogan's. If all works well for 30 days after machinery is started, the company accepts the plant and the rest of the piping will be done.—Stockbridge Sun.

A rather quick change of mind occurred in one of the justice's courts this week—though not so quick as to seem strange to one who knows some of the fair sex. A young couple resplendent in wedding clothes got themselves a license, Tuesday afternoon, and hid themselves over to the justice's office to get tied. When they stood up and it came to the sink or swim part of the ceremony, the would-be bride refused to sink and declared point blank that she wouldn't be guilty of marrying the blushing swain before her. He couldn't say anything and she wouldn't say much, so they got into their carriage and rode out of town with not a word said.—Monroe Commercial.

A 2-year-old heifer belonging to Warren J. Lynch, deliberately committed suicide Wednesday morning by drowning herself in the lake at the cement works. A number of men at the works saw her in the lake, and by getting a rope around her neck succeeded in landing her on the bank; she was given words of advice and her ruffled feelings were smoothed down by a club and the men supposed she had given up her desire to "shuffle off," and returned to work. In a short time she was again discovered in her second attempt at self-destruction; this time all efforts at rescue were unavailing and she passed on to the haven of rest where "beef trusts" do not corrupt.—Cement City Enterprise

A REAL FRIEND.

"I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for fifteen years," says W. T. Sturdevant of Merry Oaks, N. C. "After I had tried many doctors and medicines no avail. It gave immediate relief. I can eat almost anything I want now and my digestion is good. I cheerfully recommend Kodol." Don't try to cure stomach trouble by dieting. That only further weakens the system. You need wholesome, strengthening food. Kodol enables you to assimilate what you eat by digesting it without the stomach's aid. Glazier & Stimson.
