State Teachers' Institute.

The state teachers' institute for Washtenaw county will be held commencing Monday morning, August 11th, and continuing for eight days. The institute instructors are F. J. Tooz, B. Pd., of Saline, Prof. S. J. Gier of Hillsdale, and Miss Maud Parker of Ann Arbor.

These are three excellent educational workers and with their wide experience, and thorough knowledge of the needs of our schools, this will prove one of the most profitable institutes ever held in the county. There is not a teacher or advanced pupil who will not feel that he has been amply paid for attending this institute. Every teacher, especially the beginners, should be present, if possible to do so.

The announcement of the lecture on the evening of August 19th and the meeting of the teachers, school officers and patrons on the following day will be given later.

Democratic Delegates.

At the democratic caucus held at the town hall last Thursday evening, H. D. Witherell was called to the chair and R. J. Beckwith was elected secretary, and J. P. Foster and Charles Kaercher tellers. Two sets of delegates were elected, one to the county convention to send delegates to the state convention and the other to the convention to nominate county officers. The following delegates were elected to the first named convention, D. R. Hoppe, James Taylor, J. P. Foster, J. E. McKune, Fred Schussler, Geo. J. Staffan, Wm. Lehman, Frank Leach, Ed. Chandler, Wm. Schatz, H. D. Witherell, C. Kaercher and Conrad Lehman.

On motion Wm. Lehman, who is a candidate for the nomination of sheriff, was allowed to name the delegates to the convention to nominate county officers, and the following were appointed: D. R. Hoppe, H. D. Witherell, August Hoppe, Herman Schalte, Adam Falst, Chris Weber, J. P. Foster, R. J. Beckwith, Frank Leach, Wm. Schatz, James Taylor, Conrad Lehman and J. E. McKune.

Boland and Hawks-Angus War.

The electric road war between Boland and Hawks-Angus broke out again last Saturday, when the former asked for an injunction restraining the D. Y. A. A. & J. people from building on a right-of-way on Francis street, Jackson, and Judge Peck enjoined both companies. The Boland company's franchise provided for a line to the cemetery, south of the city, but work on this extension was stopped by the refusal of the railroad commissioner to allow a grade crossing. Then Hawks-Angus jumped in and almost between two days built a line through the township of Summit outside the city to the cemetery on the same road which Boland must use and to Vandercook's lake. This road was not completed, but a day or two ago, Hawks-Angus began work again; hence the injunction. Boland's franchise contains a clause nullifying its provisions with regard to any section not built within a year and the time limit has expired; but another provision requires an order by the city to live up to its provisions before it can be nullified, and its claimed this order has never been made. It looks as though two franchises had been granted on the same portion of the same street. The hearing is set for July 25th.

Two Kinds of Mosquitoes.

It is an interesting fact that there are two distinct species of mosquitoes doing business in Michigan this year on a large scale. The malarial mosquito, or genus anopheles, has been discovered at the Agricultural College within a few days. The malarial mosquito has a more slender body than the common mosquito, and by a little practice can be recognized by the ordinary observer. The malarial species, so often the deadly enemy of man, has two palpi as long as the proboscis on either side. The presence of the long palpi may be observed by the aid of a small lens and the malarial mosquito readily distinguished from the harmless species. The malarial species is supposed to be rare in this region, although common at certain periods in warmer countries.

Pleasant For Convicts.

Besides the abolition of corporal punishment three additional privileges have been granted the convicts at the Jackson prison. Smoking in the cells, heretofore prohibited, is now allowed to the extent of twenty-eight cents worth of tobacco a month. The brands to be used are designated, so that a convict partial to dried skunk cabbage may not punish the others. Buying and selling of personal effects between convicts is also to be allowed hereafter, and the freedom of the yards three nights instead of two nights a week. These privileges are granted, it is said, as a direct result of the better discipline following the abolition of corporal punishment. Officials say the old-time convicts now help to maintain discipline and advise the new men that only compliance with the rules pays.

Detroit-Buffalo Rate War.

The promised rate war between the rail and lake lines operating between Detroit and Buffalo is now on in full blast, the opening gun having been fired when the Detroit and Buffalo Steamboat Co., announced that it had established its first-class rate at exactly one-half of the second-class rate, thus making the rate by boat less than one cent a mile, and allowing all first-class privileges.

When General Passenger Agent A. A. Schanz learned the Grand Trunk, Wabash and Michigan Central roads were selling second-class tickets for $5, and on them allowing first-class privileges he notified the passenger agents that unless some restrictions was made within ten days his boat line would proceed to cut on all rates.

The ten days have expired and a $2.50, and regular rate to Buffalo on the palaces Eastern and Western States has been inaugurated.

The new rate fixed by the steamboat line will make a through rate to New York on all lines except the New York Central, $10.50; Boston, $13.40, and Philadelphia, $10.40, with special rates to all summer resorts.

FROM ALL OVER MICHIGAN

A Great Career.

Fannie Cooley McGowan, arrested in Anderson, Ind., refused to return to Kalamazoo to stand trial on the charges of swindling, without requisition papers, which were obtained when the case was settled, on payment of $100. This quered the requisition and the papers were recalled. The woman is liberated. The action of the prosecution in advising settlement is severely criticised by local attorneys. The specific charge is that she obtained $100 from the postmaster of Comstock village on false pretenses. The woman, who in the past few months has gained the reputation of being one of the cleverest women swindlers in the country, is the daughter of Rev. E. Cooley, who at one time was the pastor of the Methodist church at Marshall. Her swindling schemes have only obtained for her a few hundred dollars in individual instances. It is said, but the aggregate reaches thousands. She is said to have made victims of prominent men in Detroit, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo and a dozen other Michigan cities. She got $500, it is said, from a leading Kalamazoo attorney. One man in Battle Creek, it is alleged, gave her $100. One alleged victim was formerly mayor of Marshall. She is wanted by the officers in nearly all the places mentioned.

To Oleo Dealers.

Now that the Supreme Court has sustained the constitutionality of the anti-colored oleomargarine law, the dairy food department proposes to see that the law is enforced to the letter. Numerous prosecutions have been commenced in various counties, samples taken and analyzed in other counties with a view to commencing prosecutions. The accused were bound over to the Circuit Courts, and proceedings have there been stalled pending the decision of the Supreme Court in the case appealed to that tribunal. The department is placing a copy of the Supreme Court decision in the hands of every dealer in the state, with the information that the law will be strictly enforced. Dealers who now sell the prohibited article will be deemed to do so wilfully.

Bejaul's Oil Dream.

Frank Bejaul, a Wilson township farmer, has discovered a free flow of oil on his farm, seven miles from Alpena. Bejaul says that he dreamed four successive nights that if he investigated a certain spot he would find oil. On Thursday, in company with another man, he visited the locality to which he was directed in the dream and commenced to excavate. The deeper he dug the stronger were the fumes of oil. Finally, at a depth of twenty feet, he found a free flow of oil. The excavation was refilled. Oil men from Canada came in a few months ago and secured mineral leases on several farms in that locality. Bejaul's being one of them, to run for five years. Bejaul now wants the lease annulled.

The Damage by Rainfall.

Reports from the various parts of the state that the heavy rains have caused damage to crops that is estimated runs up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. The latest rains which culminated in Sunday's deluge adds many thousand dollars more to the farmers' losses. In Leewards county the damage to the hay crop alone is given conservatively at $10,000. Farmers everywhere are discouraged. They see no indications of a let-up in the rains. No matter how favorable the weather might be for the rest of the season it could not materially reduce their loss for much of the damage to crops is already complete.

The Harton Boy Discharged.

The police have discharged young Lee Harton, who was responsible for the shooting of Mrs. Earl Mesler, in Lansing last week, there being no evidence of any intention on the part of the boy to shoot the woman. The boy was released on the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney. Mrs. Mesler is at the city hospital, where it is reported she is getting along as well as could be expected, and her recovery is not improbable, although the bullet passed entirely through her body. There is some evidence of congestion of the upper portion of the lung, but it is believed that careful nursing will bring her through all right.

Stealing Water.

Surprise was created at Benton Harbor the other day by the announcement that water theft has been going on for some time in various parts of the city, and that the city has been furnishing many families with water free of charge without knowing it. Supt. Richardson states that people have tapped the water pipes without notifying the city, and he is busy issuing warrants for the offenders. Several business men are said to be on the list.

Taylor, Vicksburg, $14; Widows—Mary S. Lewis, St. Johns, $12; Matilda Dymond, Otsego, $8; Amalia Jones, Black River, $8.

Orson Warner, a farmer near Quincy, while unloading hay, was caught in the ropes of a hay-sling and carried up 30 feet from the barn floor when he dropped. Both arms were broken and his jaw dislocated.

The Henderson-Ames Case.

The report that the Henderson-Ames Co. directors, complained against for perjury, will make a full confession of the affair at the examination this week is doubtless due to an incomplete understanding of the affair. The fact is the directors, both before the grand jury and on the trials of Col. Sutton and Arthur F. Marsh, told a story of the military supplies transaction which Prosecuting Attorney Tuttle believes to be true. They can do no more. Attorney R. C. Ostrander is not prepared to outline his defense of the accused directors, but it is not believed that unless Col. Sutton is brought to trial the cases against the directors will be pushed as hard as they would otherwise be. The Henderson-Ames directors have, beside aiding the grand jury in unearthing the plot, reimbursed the state for the loss on the military supplies' deal without any assistance from the other conspirators, and they have suffered injury to their business, beside a great deal of anxiety. Their legal expenses, in addition to the money paid to the state, has not been a trifling sum.

Smallpox Excitement.

The family of Geo. Howard, living some 15 miles south of St. Joseph, has been quarantined for smallpox. The disease was diagnosed Monday by Dr. E. J. Witt. Great excitement prevails over the fact that the family has been afflicted with smallpox for two weeks, when they thought it was only chickenpox, and all of the time they have been picking berries for the Chicago market. This is regarded by the authorities to be a terrible condition of affairs, as every case of berries shipped by the family has gone to Chicago families. Some crates of berries from the Howard farm awaiting shipment at St. Joe have been confiscated and destroyed.

Wants Commissions.

John Cole, of Fremont, formerly employed in the auditor-general's office, has brought suit against Robt. Mullin, of Colorado Springs, and A. O. Crozier, of Grand Rapids, for $20,000 for work alleged to have been done by him. Mullin formerly lived at Newaygo, but of late years has been mining in Colorado. He enlisted Crozier and other men in the formation of a company. Cole was engaged to sell stock, and one buyer was Gov. Bliss, who invested heavily. Cole now claims that he has not been paid the commissions promised.

Cyclone at Flint.

A cyclone visited this county Monday night, doing much damage in the vicinity of Mt. Morris. Orchards were devastated and buildings were unroofed. Julius Piper's farm buildings were unroofed and his orchards destroyed. Within a radius of several miles crops were greatly damaged. In the city lightning struck the residence of Henry Hosler, Fourteenth street, while the family were at supper. The bolt passed through the house and struck Mrs. Hosler, rendering her unconscious and paralyzing her left side. Her condition is critical.

Pinched the Gang.

What is alleged to be a gang of pickpockets struck Durand Saturday evening, but before they had time to mature plans for action Deputy Sheriff Hovey with his deputies swept down upon them and placed them in the cooler. There were five in the gang, four men and one woman. They gave their names as George Meyers, Estella Meyers, his wife, Jim Brooks, John Bruce and Abe Miller. They had been doing business at St. Johns during the street fair, which was in progress last week.

Struck by Lightning.

Mrs. John Knoll of the township of Frankenthum, was struck by lightning while working in the fields with her husband and son, and killed Monday afternoon.

She was putting up sheeps, and her husband and son George were loading hay on a wagon. The horses ran away when the flash came, and when the men succeeded in stopping them they found Mrs. Knoll lying on the ground dead.

STATE NEWS CONDENSED.

Glen Datson, of North Baltimore, 15 years of age, was arrested for burglarizing the house of Charles Gillespie. He was caught in the act.

Anton Leonard, of Menominee, has received word of the death by cholera in the Philippines of his son, Ephraim, a bugler in the Twenty-eighth Infantry.

State Senator A. W. Farr has been re-nominated in the twenty-sixth district, which comprises the counties of Manistee, Mason, Oceana, Lake and Benzie.

The barns of Eder Fancher, four miles east of Utica, were struck by lightning Monday and burned, including all contents. Loss, $2,500; partially insured.

The New Home Gas Co. of Pontiac starts out as it means business. It has leased for 30 years a site on Sanderson avenue for a gas house and electric lighting plant.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD

THE RAGING FLOODS.

Devastation of Crops in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri Causes Suffering.

The flood conditions are much worse, and the Mississippi river is from two to ten miles wide for seventy-five miles below Keokuk, Ia., and rising rapidly. The flood is reaching far outlying farms hitherto missed and farmers in the lowlands on the Missouri side have lost everything but their citadels on high knolls and a few fields behind the highest levees. Damage is also occurring on the Illinois side, between Keokuk and Quincy, where there are many thousands of acres on the river-side levees, and the levees themselves not being entirely efficient, water is working through at the site of the flood gates.

The greatest damage is on the Missouri side of the Mississippi river, between Keokuk and Hannibal, territory covering 300 square miles, and on which the corn was estimated at $0 bushes to the acre a few days ago. Hundreds of farmers are tenants, who lost crops by last year's drought in the uplands, and moved to the lowlands this year. They are now penniless and are hunting work in towns and cities.

The damage done up the Mississippi river is greater than was expected or at first reported. One township, Green Bay, is six or seven feet under water. It contains more than 11,000 acres of crops. Families there were driven out hurriedly and some cattle were drowned. Corn was the very finest in this section of the country last week. The levee, eight miles north of Burlington, broke, inundating three square miles that had been considered safe.

The Skunk river, the most damaging tributary of the Mississippi, is running down a flood approached but twice in the history of the state, in 1851 and 1892. The water topped the record of 1892 and touched the highest record of 1851. This river rises in the center of Iowa and empties into the Mississippi, twenty-five miles north of Keokuk, and greatly increases the flood at points below.

Thousands of acres are submerged in Appanoos county, Iowa, and there is much small grain caught in the fields. The crop in other places is chiefly corn. A new element which has appeared all over the submerged section of Iowa is disease among stock from the condition of pasture after the temporary subsistence of the waters.

Monday's reports show that the situation was growing worse, increasing the enormous destruction. The area covered by water is 700 square miles in extent, and all the bountiful crops are destroyed. Many rich farmers are made penniless and others who were driven from their homes fled to nearby towns for immediate safety and assistance.

The Morgan Ship Trust.

Whitelaw Reid, speaking at a banquet in his honor by the American chamber of commerce in London said: "If you have sustained the threatened dangers of recent years you can surely face with equanimity the terrors of the Pierpont Morgan venture. I suggest that the apprehension aroused by the recent change in shipping with which his name is identified is somewhat exaggerated."

"The monopoly in this case is fanciful. None has been created. I think none is desired, and I know none can be successful."

Mr. Reid maintained that the Morgan combine obliterated violent fluctuations in rates and insured to Great Britain a neutral fleet in which its food could be borne in spite of any possible enemy.

"I do not for a moment admit the possibility of war between our two nations," said Reid. "Nature revolts against it, and all the interests of that vast body of English speaking peoples, who in both hemispheres lead the world upward, forbid it."

Passing of Millionaire Mackay.

John W. Mackay, of San Francisco, who had been suffering from heat prostration since Tuesday, the 15th, died at his residence on Carlton House terrace, London, Eng., Sunday evening. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. The right lung was found to be congested and symptoms indicated pneumonia. John W. Mackay, known everywhere as the "Bonanza King," has had a remarkable career. From a laborer in the mines he became one of the wealthiest men in the world. The remains will be taken to New York for interment in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn. The wealth of the dead man is almost fabulous, it being said that he could not tell within $20,000,000 the actual amount.

Tracy Identified.

Harry Tracy, the Oregon bandit, has been identified. He is Harry Tracy Severens, of Grand Rapids, Wis. He is the grandson of J. L. Severens, an old and respected citizen of that place. Harry Severens was born and reared in Pittsfield, Wis., but his criminal career began after he left for the west. When in the penitentiary at Portland, Ore., he wrote home to his grandfather, asking him to undertake to get a permanent pardon for him.

J. S. Severens is wealthy, and during the last few months has been an invalid. The news of the deprivations of his grandson have been kept from him.

It is said that Russia has addressed a note to the powers suggesting an international conference to deal with trusts.

A distant earthquake shock was felt in Malone, N. Y., Friday morning. It lasted about 10 seconds. Many persons were awakened by the rumbling and the rattling of windows.

D. C. Longworth, of Ohio, who is just now in England, brings the warning that the Egyptian sphinx is rapidly decaying. It will not, he says, be able long to withstand the altering climate of Egypt, due to irrigation of the Nile.

CONDENSED NEWS.

Orangemen and Nationalists clashed at Newry, Counties Down and Antrim, Ireland, a score of policemen and a district inspector being injured.

A collision in the straits of Malacca between the steamer Teutonia and a Chinese junk sank both vessels, only 65 persons being saved out of 100 on board.

"Nautical 1902," an anonymously edited publication of the German navy department, makes an interesting comparison of the latest American and German artillery and admits that artillery superiority is on the side of the American battleships.

A severe typhoon swept over the southern islands of the Philippines June 14 and 15. The United States customs steamer Shearwater was lost off the island of Martinique. Nineteen of her crew, including three Americans, were drowned.

Counsel for Greene and Taylor, the fugitives, whose extradition is sought by the United States, are endeavoring to have the proceedings set aside at Quebec on the ground that Marlon Edwin, of the state department, had offered the accused to compromise by abandoning the demand for extradition on their payment of a sum of $300,000.

A TORNADO'S FURY.

Chesterville, Ont., Receives a Terrible Visitation.

A storm of terrible violence passed over Chesterville, Ont., Friday night, accompanied by a tornado, which succeeded in fury anything of its kind in the memory of the oldest inhabitants. There were almost incessant electrical discharges. The tornado took a northeasterly direction and passed within a mile of the town.

Watchers felt distinctly a hot blast from the storm as it swept with fearful velocity to the southeast. The wind twisted, tore and destroyed everything in its path for a space of about 50 or 60 rods in width, while everything within a radius of a mile was more or less affected. The storm is supposed to have spent its energy at St. Lawrence.

Saturday morning the country for miles around presented a scene of devastation. Fences have disappeared and cannot be found. Dwelling and outbuildings were overturned. Dead cattle are lying here and there at almost every farm in the center of the storm's path. Several persons were killed and many injured and many narrow escapes are reported.

Big Loss of Life in Utah Mine.

Two powder magazines at the 1,200 foot level of the Daly-West mine, one of the largest silver producers in Utah, exploded about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, causing a loss of life that at present cannot be estimated nor even guessed at.

At 4 o'clock 35 men had been taken out of the mine dead and several others had been removed in a half-dazed condition.

These were all brought out through the Ontario mine shaft, which is a mile distant from the Daly-West, in which the explosion occurred. The 1,200 level of the Daly-West corresponds to and is connected by tunnel with the 600 level of the Ontario.

In the Daly-West mine between 100 and 150 men were at work. In the Ontario were nearly 100, it is believed.

It is not known how many of these are dead, but the disaster extends to the Ontario, as the noxious gases that have been freed are known to be the cause of several of the deaths. The presence of these gases leads many miners to believe that the powder was burned and that the explosion was not the chief cause of the disaster.

Boers Acting Ugly.

The settlement of the annexed territories is causing considerable friction. This is especially noticeable in the bitter hatred and persecution on the part of the Boers who stayed in the field to the end of the war. It is said some of these national scents have been shot or beaten.

So intense is the feeling that many of the burghers who fought courageously to the end distinguish themselves from those who surrendered during the war by wearing a green badge.

Many burghers declare they were induced to surrender by the false representations of their leaders. The majority of the Boers have apparently in no way abandoned their independent ideas, and some of them preach the advisability of opening Dutch schools so as to keep alive their nationality.

The whole situation so bristles with difficulties that there are not lacking those who doubt if the document signed May 31 was really the final settlement of the trouble.

Gen. Smith Retired by Roosevelt.

Gen. Jacob Smith, "Hell Roaring" Smith, some of his enemies have called him, who is responsible for the "kill and burn" order in Samar, will be placed on the retired list, compulsorily.

It was given out that the court-martial finding in his case was that he was guilty of reprehensible conduct and violation of articles of war, and the sentence was that he be publicly reprimanded by the president of the United States.

The president's reprimand has been received by the war department and is to be made public at once.

The Boxers Again.

A recrudescence of the boxer movement in China is feared. Boxer agents are swarming over Mongolia. The mass of the population is in sympathy with the boxers, while the Lamas are in sympathy with Russia. Rumors are in circulation in Mongolia that the Lamas will petition the Russian government to extend its protection to them. Mongolia remained quiet throughout the recent boxer insurrection in China.

ENGLAND'S MOST ELIGIBLE BACHELORS WILL AMERICAN GIRLS WIN ANY OF THEM

THE DUKE OF ROXBURGHE.

EARL OF DALHOUSIE.

COLONEL LORD ALGERNON PERCY

If American heiresses choose to reverse a well established and much commented upon custom by inaugurating a series of vigorous matrimonial conquests among the sons of great houses of the old world instead of waiting for these titled personages to come to them, there seems to be no reason why their efforts in a matrimonial way should not be crowned by success of the most gratifying sort. Foremost in the rank of eligible sons comes the Duke of Roxburghe, who has been implicated by rumor in more engagements than any other one man in England, yet who has escaped them all and has arrived at bachelorhood possessed of a good many alluring attainments and natural qualifications to say nothing of his wealth and position. The future Duke of Roxburghe will be a fortunate woman, for the duke is brainy, plucky, good looking, and possessed of a pleasing manner. In addition he has served service in war, which is something of a distinction in England.

Lord Percy is another great part. The future Duke of Northumberland would in any case be a personage, and in this case exceptional cleverness is added to great position and fortune. Lord Percy is an earnest politician, of whom the world has heard much and expects to hear more. The name of Lord Graham, who will be Duke of Montrose one day, springs naturally to the lips when speaking of Lord Percy. His talents are no less obvious, but run in other grooves. He is fiercely Gaelic, and adorns the kilt which he loves; he is one of the ablest of youthful lecturers, and has traveled wide and far. He has more than a nodding acquaintance with the army and navy, and has lately returned from South Africa. Finally, and as befits the son of one of the most beautiful women in society, he is good looking. Mr. Niall Campbell, the son of Lord Archibald, is not often heard of, but his wife, when he chooses her, may look forward to being Duchess of Argyll.

Lord Dalhousie is another youthful warrior and bachelor. He is handsome and by no means badly off. Lord Bute is still too young to be reckoned in the lists, but men of his family marry early. He is a Catholic, and

ONE MAN'S FINE CONCEIT.

Massing of Men, He Says, Means Strength; of Women, Bonnets. "It's an odd thing about women," remarked Jones to his wife, as he settled himself for a special effort. "We admire you intensely in the individual. We adore you when taken singly. But it's a strange, sad fact that when a few hundred of you get together you lose distinction. A multitude of rare women brought together in one building for a common cause are far from venerable. Look at Sorosis. The club is undoubtedly made up of ideal mothers and wives, but one resolutely refuses to find it anything else than a convocation of bonnets. Earnest, intense women recruit the ranks of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, but its mass meetings only amuse the rest of the world. An exclusively feminine tea was never an object of envy to those who pass it by."

"And what of you men?" suggested Mrs. Jones. "Are you all so much finer in a crowd?"

"Undoubtedly," replied Jones. "It isn't open to dispute that a 'gang' of men is at all times convincing. If it is only a mob with a rope looking up a criminal the sight does not lack impressiveness. The imagination plays about a 'smoker,' and speculates as to the quality of the cigars and the stories. And a good share of the world's work has been done by men in mass for a purpose. Union is its strength, and the novelist has always remained below when the door of the banquet hall was opened for the filing out of the ladies."—New York Tribune.

LOST CHANCE FOR A PANAMA.

An Office-seeker Hears Too Late of a Cabinet Officer's Desire. An unsuccessful applicant for a government office was chatting with some friends the other day just before starting for home, and the conversation turned on Panama hats.

The unsuccessful candidate had a beautiful Panama, soft, light and close-woven, which had been appraised by a local hat dealer at a high price. One of those in the conversation repeated the remark of a cabinet officer, that he had been intending all his life to buy a high-grade Panama, but couldn't muster up courage to pay the price.

"I have often thought of writing to some friend in the tropics to purchase one for me," the cabinet officer was quoted as saying, "but have never done so. You know they can be bought much cheaper down there. The finest one I ever saw was worn by a man I met more than thirty years ago. He got it at Panama and told me he paid $300 for it."

"Don't you believe these stories about such prices," said the unsuccessful candidate. "This fine hat that I'm wearing came from South America. It cost just $5 in gold at the place where it was made."

There was silence for a minute, and then the ex-candidate asked: "Who did you say was the cabinet officer who told that story?"

The name of the secretary who hadn't looked kindly on the candidate's application was mentioned.

"My!" said the candidate, sadly fingering the soft fabric of his Panama. "I wish I heard it sooner."

A Battle for Life.

Two persons perished in Lake Michigan Tuesday night, and eight others fought hours for life, clinging to the overturned yacht Arab IV, owned by John H. Cameron, of Chicago. The yacht, struck suddenly by the fierce storm which swept over the lake late in the evening, capsized. Mary Taylor, 16 years old, and Harry Jensen, 17, both of Chicago, were drowned.

When the storm struck the yacht no attempt had been made to reef sail, and with all its canvas flying, the boat, with 10 merrymakers aboard wholly unconscious of danger, went over in a flash, filled instantly and left eight persons struggling for life in the waters of the lake, three miles from shore.

By heroic efforts on the part of the men, the women were supported in the water until they could be given a firm hold on the overturned boat.

Six of the party managed to crawl into the small yawl and after a fierce battle with the waves reached shore and notified the life-saving crew, who went to the rescue of the two who had been left clinging to the boat.

When found they were nearly exhausted and about to drop from the boat.

The bodies of the two young persons drowned were found in the cabin of the yacht when the boat was towed into the harbor.

Jefferson Memorial Arch

The arch to be erected in Monroe Park at Richmond, Va., to the memory of Jefferson Davis, was designed by Louis A. Gudebrod of New York.

The completed arch will have a height of 65 feet, a width of 70 feet and a breadth of 24 feet. The archway is to be 25 feet wide and 40 feet high in the clear. The entire arch is to be constructed of the finest Southern granite, and to have an interior stairway leading to the top. The sculptor has adopted the Corinthian style of architecture as being most in harmony with the prevailing style in the South, as well as especially adapted to express the purposes of the arch.

Two bronze figures are to be placed on either end of the arch, and will be symbolic of Fame and the "Lost Cause," and are to be more than twice life size.

The sculptor has endeavored to express in his work the life of Jefferson Davis, as well as to perpetuate the ideals and principles which he represented with his people. The figure Glory represents the glory won by Jefferson Davis and the people of the Confederate States during the most trying period of their history. The figure Truth represents their united devotion to the cause which they championed.

Justice represents the unswerving belief in the righteousness of their cause and the justice of the struggle; Valor represents the many deeds of heroism of Jefferson Davis and his people both in their homes and in the field. The thirteen seals in the attic represent the Confederate States, the central one being the seal of Virginia, while upon the five low relief panels in the attic and upon the two panels in the archway will be inscribed such tributes to Jefferson Davis as may be chosen by the committee.

Illustrious Indian Princes.

But it is only those thoroughly acquainted with Indian annals who will appreciate, in glancing through the catalogue of these arrivals, or meeting face to face the illustrious strangers, what a blending of the old and new times they denote. Take, for instance, the Sovereign Prince of Jajpur, who, with other companions scarcely less distinguished, concentrates in his own splendid person the story and the associations of the Rajput dynasties. The oldest house in Europe, the proudest pedigree, are things of yesterday—mere mushrooms of human development—compared with the family trees of these princes, who scorn to be contented with an ancestor more recent than the sun himself. And it is not exaggeration to say that all the books of western knight-errantry, all the chronicles of Froissart and Brantome, all the vicissitudes of European war and diplomacy, make dull and dry reading side by side with the scrolls which tell of Rajputana and her heroes.

Beats of a Watch Timed.

A watch that makes five beats a second makes 432,000 a day, or nearly 158,000,000 in a year.

Odd Wedding Customs.

Giving wedding presents is an old custom, but it differs in various countries. Scotland's penny weddings were peculiar. They were called penny affairs, but the invited guests contributed a shilling and occasionally a half crown, and out of this sum thus collected the expenses of the wedding feast were paid. Germany has a pay wedding at which the bride receives her guests with a basin before her, in which each person entering deposits a jewel, a silver spoon or a piece of money. In some parts of Germany the rule is that the expenses of the marriage feast shall be met by each guest paying for what he eats or drinks. The prices paid for viands and drinks are high, and the young couple often make a handsome profit out of their wedding, often realising a sum quite sufficient to start them nicely in life. Often as many as 300 guests are present at such a wedding.

New York Coaching Parties.

Personally conducted coaching parties are a summer feature of New York. The coaches leave at stated times during the day and in two hours and a half most of the "sights" of Manhattan island, including Grant's tomb, Riverside drive, Central Park, Fifth Avenue, etc., are visited, each coach having "an expert guide and lecturer" on board to explain "the 1,000 points of interest en route."

A Lively Honeymoon.

A newly-married couple were on their way from Antwerp to Paris when one of their fellow-passengers cut his throat with a razor in the railway carriage in which they were traveling. Another shock awaited them in Paris. A visitor in the hotel in which they were staying was killed in the lift in their presence. On Sunday they called on a friend living in Paris, who had invited them to lunch at his house. When extending the invitation the friend observed, laughing: "You will not find any corpses with me;" but when they arrived at the house their host greeted them with a request to have the lunch put off, as his servant had died that morning in a bath from heart disease. This was too much for the bride, who fainted and then went into hysterics. The couple subsequently took the first train back to Antwerp.—London Globe.

Indignity to a Famous Table.

A piece of furniture of great historic interest has been turned to unworthy uses. The old table of the house of commons was reduced from the great fire which destroyed, in 1834, the chapel of St. Stephen's. It has been for the last 70 years reverentially preserved, and is now located in the members' tea room of the house of commons. It has lately been converted every afternoon into a tea table, and is decked with a white tablecloth, on which are placed a hot-water urn and a tray containing tea. The table from different sides of which Pitt and Fox thundered, and on which Burke placed his notes when he pleaded for conciliation with America and denounced the excesses of the French revolution, surely might have been spared such degradation.—London News.

A Knowing Little Girl.

One more remarkable child has been heard from whom her friends credit with a number of conversational hits. Being asked her age, she replied: "I'm five on the cars, but seven at home;" which doesn't reflect creditably on the railroad ethics of her parents. She is perfectly competent in putting down the impertinent stranger. She was wheeling her infant brother the other day down the avenue, when an elderly man, passing by, looked at the baby with kindly interest, saying: "Hello, little girl." This was too much for the loyal sister, who retorted: "Tain't a girl. It's the same as you be."—N. Y. Tribune.

at the Opera.

"Is it not divine?" asked the maiden, turning her glorious dark eyes upon the young man at her side. "Inexpressibly," he replied, with enthusiasm. "The genius of the composer, the imagination, the fire, the soul of music, as it were, and the passion of the artist who interprets all these, conspire to fill one's very being with—"

Forest Work in Hawaii.

About 15 years ago the Hawaiian government undertook forest work, and very soon the hills of Honolulu were clothed with a dense and luxuriant growth of eucalytus of several varieties, the Austrian wattle and other trees of that character. These trees have already exercised a noticeable influence in conserving rainfall and rendering the climate in the vicinity more agreeable.

Hint for Travelers in Japan.

In Japan it is always the rule of politeness to pay a trifle more than the sum mentioned at your hotel. To settle the account net would be considered an insult, or at least a mark of great dissatisfaction. People who have traveled in Japan say that the Japanese always tip the waiter on entering a hotel.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Australia's Big Cemetery.

The largest cemetery in the world is said to be at Rockwood, Australia, which covers 2,000 acres. Only a plot of 200 acres has been used thus far, in which 100,000 persons of all nationalities have been buried.—Cleveland Leader.

Dr. Gates of Dexter is laid up with a broken shoulder, as a result of friendly scuffle Sunday.

E. S. Clark, the Stockbridge miller, died Friday morning, aged 65 years. He ran a mill there for eighteen years.

The postoffice at Bridgewater has been made a money order office, with an order to deposit surplus funds at Ann Arbor.

Grass Lake will not levy any corporation tax this year. Things must be mighty slow in that village, nothing to pay taxes for.

Herman H. Swartout of Pinckney, jumped from a load of hay to avoid being pierced by a falling hay fork. He struck on his head and fractured his skull.

A handsome oil painting of the late Judge J. Willard Babbitt of Ypsilanti has been presented to the county and is now hanging in the office of the probate judge.

A gasoline explosion caused a serious fire at the residence of T. D. Burns at Grass Lake Monday afternoon. Allie Burns was seriously burned about the arms and body, and Mrs. Burns less seriously. Allie died on Tuesday.

Charles Malco of Stockbridge, while leading a cow, was jerked down by the animal, falling upon his head and neck in such a manner as to dislocate two vertebrae between his shoulders. He was rendered perfectly helpless and speechless. Doctors reduced the fracture, but he is in a critical condition.

Ann Arbor started out to get the Tri-State Band Reunion for that city, some time during the month of August. The effort has been given up, as it was soon discovered that the amount needed to get the reunion could not be raised. It is in line now for some citizen in a communication to the papers to suggest that the state make an appropriation in order to help the city out.

The report came to Milan Friday morning that a mad dog had bitten two curs east of town and the dog was headed for this village. At noon some one reported that a yellow dog was under Dorr Barns' steps. About 50 people hastened to the spot and Lew Wilcox and Dave Anderson killed the animal, after firing 16 shots. The dog proved to be an old dog owned by Dorr Barns and not the mad one.—Milan Leader.

The attendance at the annual school meeting last Monday evening makes some interesting figures. Our readers may surmise that with a crowd of 11 citizens present it must have been an enthusiastic gathering. The majority were men who have no children who attend school, showing how interested people are in the education of their children. If it had been a medicine show or a horse show, such a large attendance could not have been looked for, for are not all more interested in their children than warts and horses?—Stockbridge Sun.

Plymouth people have discovered that they have been badly victimized by a smooth "library agent" who canvassed both that village and Wayne for subscriptions a week or so ago. The subscriptions were set at $1 50 a year, and the books were to be put into the local library on the basis of two for every subscriber obtained. At the end of a year the literature was to become the property of the Ladies' Library Association. Thirty subscribers were obtained and the "agent" got $45, for which he sent out 30 books instead of 70, according to contract, and all were of the kind that can be bought at 50 cents apiece or less, all being cheap editions of old works.

Since the death of his father in Schaffhausen, Switzerland, recently, Henry Kirchofer has received a number of family relics, among which are two pictures, one of which is 242 and the other 132 years old, and they are now displayed in Jenter & Rauschenberger's show window. They are in a remarkably good state of preservation, the former being a pen sketch and the latter a steel engraving bearing the inscription, "Their most sacred majesties George III, and Queen Charlotte" and their family. Mr. Kirchofer's father was pastor of a church for 50 years in the above place, and Henry remembers distinctly the pictures, etc., in his home, which he left when a young man. His brother Sam, who was formerly of this place, but now of Kansas City, Mo., received his share of the family silver, etc.—Manchester Enterprise.

"Old Patch," the Forger. It was about the year 1784 that the first forgeries on a large scale were discovered by the Bank of England, and these were done by one man, known from his favorite disguise as "Old Patch." By a large issue of notes spread over a long period he defrauded the bank of more than $200,000, and, having only one confidante, his mistress, great difficulty was experienced in tracing the source of the forgeries. "Old Patch," in his checkered career of lottery office keeper, stock broker and gambler, had given bank notes a careful study, and acquired a knowledge of engraving, paper making and printing. He made his own ink, manufactured the paper and printed the notes on a private press. In various disguises he hired boys from the streets to present the notes. Suspicion was at last aroused by his movements; he was thrown into prison, where he cheated the law by hanging himself in his cell.—London Chronicle.

Force of Gravity Over the Oceans. The force of gravity over the land is determined by counting the number of swings of a pendulum of known length that occur in a known lapse of time. Dr. Hecker, of Potsdam, has recently made an attempt to determine the relative force of gravity over different parts of the Atlantic ocean between Hamburg and Bahia by means of a barometer and a hypsometer (a boiling point thermometer). The barometric formula contains a term depending on the intensity of gravity at the place of observation. The hypsometer is independent of this influence. A comparison of the results of simultaneous observations by the two methods affords a means of determining the force of gravity approximately. The preliminary results indicate that gravity of the deep ocean is nearly normal and they confirm Pratt's hypothesis in regard to the isostatic arrangement of the masses of the earth's crust.—N. Y. Died, Sunday, July 20, 1902, at St. Joseph's Retreat, Dearborn, Miss Katherine Miller, aged 81 years. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller of Lyndon. Miss Miller has been in failing health for some time and a short time ago she was taken to the Retreat, hoping the change would be to her speedy recovery, but instead of improving she steadily grew worse until death relieved her of her intense suffering. Her demise was the first in the family of which there were twelve, five brothers and seven sisters. The father, mother, brothers and sisters have the sympathies of hosts of friends in their sad affliction. The funeral services were held from St. Mary's church yesterday morning, Rev. Fr. Stacy officiating. Interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Swindlers carrying several thousand dollars' worth of notes and contracts are working the farmers of central Michigan. Eighteen years ago agents of a hedge fence company of southern Michigan sold thousands of dollars worth of hedge fence through Michigan for $1 a rod, agreeing to cultivate the fence at four regular periods and plant it in a way to make it stock proof, taking the purchase price in four installments. They made two visits as per agreement, then the company failed. The fences were not kept up and many of them were pulled out. The notes and contracts now turn up in the hands of speculators, who are traveling over the country threatening the farmers with court proceedings unless they settle, notwithstanding the fact that the deal was outlawed years ago.

The greatest game of the season will be played at this place Tuesday afternoon at 8 o'clock. For particulars see small bills.

Ann Arbor has been talking of buying a couple of pieces of land and making them into parks. Now some of the residents there want the city to wait a little while and see if the Michigan Central will not buy one of the pieces and the University the other and fit them up without any expense to the city. If that isn't just the spirit of that city we have another guess coming. If it was not for what the state does for Ann Arbor that city would not find a place on the map. And now they want outsiders to do the whole thing. It is about time that the bottle was taken away from them.

CHAPTER XIV. A Battle of Giants.

Some of the most frantic hovered at the windows, as though ready to plunge through space if the worst came.

"They were crazed for the time being and could not be blamed.

Many a precious life went out that fatal day, that might have been saved by the exercise of a little judgment and coolness; for of all the attributes which mortal man inherits or acquires these prove the richest legacy in such a time of actual panic.

Having taken his bearings, and discovered which way the numbers ran, Charlie started upon what he believed was the last leg of his course.

Now he must speedily realize the worst; if he came upon Arline's rooms and found them empty, he would know she was somewhere about the intricate passages, lost and facing death, as when he first found her.

What a travesty of fate such a thing would be.

Tragedies were being enacted within those walls, that had many times echoed with the scound of gaiety, and now rang with shrieks; already the greedy fire fiend had cut off many from escape, and yearned to encompass their destruction.

Some doors were closed, but the majority stood gaping wide open, whence the terrified occupants had fled just as they were.

In passing one of these Charlie had a glimpse of a lady, richly attired, bending over an open trunk, evidently seeking to lay hold of her precious jewel boxes ere flying.

Mayhap they cost her what all the jewels from Cleopatra's day to this could not replace—life.

Once a woman had seized upon him—crazed by fear, she clutched him as a drowning man might a straw.

Charlie could not have his mission jeopardized by such detention—he was compelled to break away, shouting at the same time for her to go to the stairs and descend while the chance remained. God only knew how long this golden opportunity might be held out to them, for the greedy flames were making hideous headway and presently the entire building would be a charnal house.

All obstacles had thus far been overcome by his iron will—determined to reach and save Arline, he had swept them aside as the March wind whirled the dust out of its path.

But the end was not. One barrier remained.

Charlie suspected it not until the thing burst upon him, sudden and unexpected as lightning from the clear sky overhead.

Again a detaining hand.

"This time it brought his forward movement to a complete stop, and he realized there was something more serious in the detention than when the poor groveling chambermaid had snatched his knees.

It was a man; through the haze he had seen his presence without paying the least attention to him, and now the fellow, probably as terrified as the women, frantically clung to him.

"To the stairs or the fire escape!—let go!" shouted Charlie, and when the other laughed with devilish glee in his ear Stuart turned his head to see close to his own the face of the bogus Capt. Brand, transformed by passion into the countenance of a fiend.

Was it accident or deep design that brought Macauley to this floor of the hotel at such a tragical moment?

When Charlie felt that grip on his arm and looked into the maddened orbs of the ogre, he seemed to realize that a great crisis in his life had arrived.

The stake was Arline's love.

This man might be innocent or guilty of murderous design, but appearances were mightily against him.

His manner indicated as plainly as words: "This far shall you come and no farther."

Instinct warned Charlie to prepare for the worst, to throw himself into a position that was aggressive, even while defensive.

It was a wise precaution, for the other, even while he continued to glare malevolently into his face, suddenly threw himself upon Stuart.

As he expected, Charlie found Macauley a man gifted with tremendous muscular power. Like trained athletes, the two men whirled around, each seeking the downfall of the other.

To Charlie each second meant a closer approach of doom, while with the other the passage of time brought savage satisfaction, as his base plans grew nearer realization.

Charlie retracted a step mustering every atom of power in his muscular frame for the storm which he meant to spring upon the already gloating enemy.

Macauley was drunk with the success that had seemed to be already within his grasp.

He thus could be taken off his guard, and once in retreat, complete rout must follow.

So sudden was the attack, so overwhelming in its resistless energy that the ogre fell back in confusion, hardly knowing just how to meet so strange a rally.

And Stuart followed it up—he knew full well that what was worth doing at all was worth doing well.

He was bent on ending the struggle then and there—in order to do so most effectively he let out still another kick, and surprised his enemy with a succession of tricks that completed his utter demoralization.

It was the work of a gladiator. Charlie, having stunned the ogre with a multiplicity of short-arm blows, hurled him in a shuddering heap aside, and found himself once more free to go forward.

CHAPTER XV. When Charlie Kissed Her.

The flames had been making hideous progress while this mad encounter took place, and already their red tongues leaped into view at the further end of the corridor.

Charlie was panting like a hunted stag, hardly able to catch his breath in that smoke-burdened atmosphere—yet, no sooner had he hurled his enemy to the floor, and found the coast clear, than he started along the hallway.

The numbers on the doors now stood out plainly enough, thanks to the illumination afforded by the flames, and he knew he was close to where Arline might be found.

He saw the door was closed.

It gave him a shock—then she had not escaped with the first—she must still be within her room.

He pounced upon the knob and turned it.

Horrors! There was no response—the door utterly refused to give way, being locked within.

Charlie pounded with his fist upon the panel.

"Open the door, Arline! Open, for God's sake! The hotel is on fire!"

Apparently he shouted loud enough to arouse the dead, yet no answer came from beyond.

Stuart knew of but one resource left—it was a desperate case, and required a desperate remedy.

He raised his foot.

One mighty blow shivered the lock as completely as though a battering ram had been brought to bear against it.

The door flew open.

Nothing barred his progress now, and with a bound the Briton was in the room.

Arline lay upon a Turkish lounge—the crash of the door had done what all else had failed to accomplish, for she had just raised her head and was staring at him with eyes dilating in horror as they discovered the whirling clouds of smoke that curled in after him.

Charlie ran to assist the girl to her feet, at the same time calling: "The hotel is on fire, but be brave, and I will save you, if possible!"

His manner calmed her more than all else.

She looked into his face, and although her voice trembled, she kept a brave front as she said: "I trust you with my life, Charlie. Tell me what to do, and God help us both!"

Brave little woman! That was what he thought her then and there—he had believed it on that former occasion, when she wandered in the dark Steen dungeons and passages, and now it was made doubly sure.

It would have been worth something to Stuart at this critical juncture, could he have become possessed of the valuable information which the fallen ogre had held regarding the ways and means of reaching a fire escape.

As it was, he found himself cast upon his own resources and compelled to make a virtue of necessity.

One thing was absolutely certain—he could not count on assistance, and if they escaped it must be through his persistent and determined work.

Then, again, he kept before his mind the fact that escape must be downward—that flight to the roof would only render their immolation the more certain.

Each story they could descend would take them nearer the street and increase their chances of being assisted through the medium of the fire ladders.

Charlie had taken his bearings—he knew the fire had not as yet spread over the entire building, though the smoke must have done so ere now.

The stairs he had ascended were still free from flames, though this could not long be said, as they were in jeopardy.

Snatching up a cloak which he found, he pressed it about Arline. Some craze must have been running riot in his veins at the time, for as her sweet face came close to his own he deliberately kissed her; nor did she by look or word protest—there was something almost holy in the act—it was as though the man wished her to know the great love that was in his heart before they faced the dreadful ordeal which might be their destruction. As though he might thus seal his claim upon the woman he adored, even though together they were doomed to journey toward another world.

"Come! Have courage, my darling," he said.

Probably few men on earth have been given so strange an opportunity to declare their love, and under such conditions who could envy Charlie Stuart the brief spasm of delight which he experienced, for the first time he passed his arm about Arline's waist with a sense of proprietorship.

Love is a strong factor in the race—the girl might have been rendered frantic with fear had she found herself alone face to face with the threatening destruction, but with his strong arm to lean upon, and the knowledge of his declared passion to sustain her, she could meet the dread issue with courage.

And it required all the nerve she possessed to keep from screaming when once in the hall she saw the avalanche of roaring fire at the farther end.

Charlie led her directly toward it, yet she trusted him implicitly—it was a glorious symbol of the power he was to exercise in all time to come, if so be they escaped with their lives.

The stairs at last.

Another minute and it might have been too hazardous to attempt a descent—but that small space of time has won kingdoms ere now.

Down one flight—that much was saved them at any rate, even should the worst happen.

When they started upon the second descent, it was like running the gauntlet; fingers of fire stretched out yearningly toward them, and one even came so close that Arline involuntarily uttered a scream, thinking Charlie, who had thrust his body on that side, was doomed.

This narrow escape told him that it would be utterly impossible to make any further use of the stairway in advancing their cause, since below it was wreathed in flames.

Their only course was to retreat from the fire as far as possible, and there await rescue or provide for it through their own ingenuity.

Still they heard the shrieks of fear-distracted women, covering in corners or rushing wildly through the corridors calling for the help that could never reach them.

Such a scene of horror must haunt one while life lasts, so fraught with human suffering and the utter inability to render aid.

He had not calculated wrongly; while the smoke remained more dense than ever, the danger of immediate fire was not so great, although he saw it pushing toward them from three separate and distinct quarters, as though closing in upon its victims.

An open window at the end of the hall was Charlie's objective point.

He had hopes of discovering there the iron ladder that would enable those who had the nerve to grasp its rungs to drop to safety below.

Alas! disappointment awaited him, keen and cutting, since there was no such avenue of escape provided in this quarter.

It was a dizzy distance down to the street, and only a maddened brain could conceive the idea of leaping out into space.

Charlie leaned out to survey the situation.

Immediately a roar of warning arose from thousands of throats below, while arms waved him back, doubtless under the belief that he meant to take the mad plunge.

He was not quite reduced to such an insane policy—his resources had not yet been exhausted.

Charlie had his bearings now—he remembered the lay of the land—surely there must be a better chance of escape in the rear.

Turning into another corridor, which led in the desired quarter, he pushed on. Arline clung to his arm with whitened face and eyes that reflected the horror of her soul, but, thank Heaven! as yet her steps did not falter, nor did she give any signs of collapse, while his great courage remained to buoy her soul up.

The situation grew more intense with every passing second, and Charlie knew all too well that unless fortune speedily gave them an opening it would be too late, since the fire was now sweeping with remorseless fury over the main portion of the doomed structure.

Charlie Stuart knew he had to solve the problem of his existence, as well as that of the gentle being who clung so eagerly to his arm.

No man was ever better equipped for the fray.

He had everything to urge him on to superhuman efforts—abounding life, with all that means to a healthy young man, and, besides, the knowledge that he was beloved by the girl to whom his heart had gone out.

Yes, if ever a man had reason to strive with might and main for victory, it was Charlie Stuart.

Manfully he met the requisition. (To be continued.)

HOW SLEEP MAY BE WOODED

Position in Which a Person Should Lie to Induce Somnolence.

Few persons in an ordinary assemblage can tell offhand what positions they assume to induce sleep and yet there is not an individual in the world who has not some trick of distributing limbs and trunk to insure slumber's blissful spell which he practices unconsciously. This is a night habit as perpetual and immutable under normal conditions as the succession of the seasons. No sooner are we really off to the land of nod than the night habit asserts itself. Our hands and arms seek the same parts of the bed or the same portions of our bodies upon which they have nightly rested since infancy; our feet and legs stretch at the same angles or loosely entwine in comfortable relaxation as commanded by unconscious will.

It is seldom of our own deliberate volition that we place our bodies in position for sleep, as you will find to-night on going to bed if you remember these words. In truth, if you do not seek to combat the instincts you will be surprised at the dispositions of the various members involuntarily made. If you endeavor to go to sleep by a new arrangement of the body you will also be surprised by the revolt against slumber which will surely ensue, but even before the struggle is well begun you will probably surrender and permit the all-masterful night habit to renege those little details of position which long practice has made necessary to your comfort.

WITH THE HUMORISTS

JOKES AND JESTS TURNED OUT BY OFFICIAL FUNMAKERS.

An Expensive Kind of Shopping—Kind of Scientific Research Summer Girl Was Interested In—A Man and His Heart.

The following simple remedies are given for the benefit of those who have formed the habit of taking patent medicines. Everybody is advised to give these remedies a fair trial; they surely can do no good and may do some harm:

To Cure Toothache—When tooth begins to jump tie same down by means of stout rope, so that jumping is impossible. If tooth continues to ache go to some dentist who has a pull.

To Cure Insomnia—Shut your eyes and count gray sheep, which you must imagine you see jumping over a pair of bars. Count from sheep No. 1 up to sheep No. 57,432. By that time it will be daylight and you will be obliged to get up.

To Relieve Distress After Eating—Stop eating.

To Remove a Wart—Try filing it off and if the wart does not succumb to this use a stump puller. If this fails try saying words over it, but don't swear so hard that the neighbors will hear you.—Ohio State Journal.

Her Researches.

"I hope, my dear," her father wrote, "that you are not frittering away your time at the seashore.

"Certainly not," she replied. "I am engaged in scientific research."

Thereupon the father was so pleased that he wrote to his wife for further particulars.

"As near as I can make out," was the reply he received, "her scientific research consists of a deep interest in sun-spots. She is flirting with a freckle-faced youth."

A Man and His Heart.

Once upon a time there was a rich old man who had a heart so weak that its faint beatings could hardly be heard; yet, in the metaphor of our time, that same heart was filled with love for a fairy lady.

The lady heard of her woe's physical and financial condition, and looked upon his suit with extreme favor. The result was that they were married.

Moral—Faint heart sometimes wins fair lady.

A Terpsichorean Finish.

"I could just die dancing," avows the maiden fair to see, who has been two-stepping on the hotel piazza.

"Ah," smiles her escort, "as Shakespeare might have said, you could 'double-shuffle off this mortal coil.'"

At first she was inclined to ask for an introduction to Mr. Shakespeare, but she contented herself with assuring her escort that he was just dreadful.

A Hot One.

Newriches—More words can't express my great love for you.

Miss Cutting—Try figures, then.

Smart Boy.

"How is your boy getting along at school?"

"Splendidly—splendidly! I tell you, my friend, this boy of mine will make his way in the world, don't you fear. During the time he's been going to school they have had thirty-two examinations, and he's managed to dodge every one of them."—Glasgow (Scotland) Times.

All He Needed.

Fogg—Oh, yes; he had a great deal to say about you. For one thing, he declared there were the makings of a great man in you.

Dumleigh—Did he? But that wasn't bad, now.

Fogg—He said you had a good shell, all you needed was the filling.—Boston Transcript.

A Gentle Hint.

Charles—And now that you are going down to the beach I hope you will not forget me. I think I will put a string around your finger.

Catharine (cooly)—Why not a ring?

It Probaby Was.

"Here's a book that tells about a best method of getting accepted."

"What is it—a bank book?"

Probably "Extra."

A visitor at a certain exposition was seated at a table in one of the high-priced restaurants in the exposition grounds, thinking about various things as he read over the bill of fare and observed the prices.

"By jingo!" he exclaimed to the waiter. "Haven't you got any conscience at all in this place?"

"Beg pardon," returned the haughty waiter.

"Haven't you got any conscience—conscience—conscience—don't you understand?"

The waiter picked up the bill of fare and began looking it over.

"I don't know if we have or not," he said; "if we have it's on the bill; if we ain't it's an extra. Them's the rules, sir."

There Are Others.

He—Went shopping to-day and spent a hundred dollars.

She—What kind of shopping?

He—Bucket shopping.

Where the Fun Came In.

"Oh, yes," said the young house-keeper. "I keep a complete set of household account books, and it's more fun than a little."

"Fun!" ejaculated the neighbor.

"Yes, indeed. I enjoyed it so much."

"Enjoy what?"

"Why, watching my husband trying to straighten them out for me, of course. I get him to do it about once a week."

Conscience Forbids.

A.—Why didn't you congratulate Lorimer on his marriage?

B.—I couldn't conscientiously do that; I don't know his wife.

A.—Well, then you might have wished her joy.

B.—I couldn't reasonably do that, for I do know Lorimer!—Ladies' Field.

Losing Opportunities.

The automobile had broken down, and the chauffeur was busy trying to discover the trouble. The impatient owner of the machine at last broke out:

"Hurry up, Felix! There are a lot of people crossing the street that we are missing!"

Insurance.

Sweet Girl—I am loved by two men, and I cannot make up my mind which to marry. What would you advise?

Old Lady—Get both to insure their lives in your favor and then wait until one of them dies. That will insure the constancy of the other.—New York Weekly.

An Artistic Triumph.

Artist (to fair critic)—What do you think of my picture of a peasant girl?

Fair Critic—Perfectly lovely. But where did you ever get the model for such a lovely picture hat?

Artist (sadly)—That's not a picture hat. She is carrying home a bundle of hay.

His Counter Question.

Mrs. Hawkbill (severely)—Is it true, Captain, that you shouted to your men to give the enemy—er—hell?

Captain Blankblank—Well, ma'am, what should I have ordered them to give the enemy—hand-painted fire-screens?—Judge.

The Hint Direct.

"I don't believe you love me a bit!" sobbed his wife.

"But I do, darling! I—"

"Don't tell me! It's unnatural you should. No man could love a woman who wears such old hats as I do!"—London Answers.

Needed a Lot.

Mr. Sillpurs (after a decided refusal)—I know what the matter is. It's because I am poor. You would marry me if I was rich.

Miss Gattie (thoughtfully)—Perhaps so, but you would have to be very, very rich.

Had Reason to Know.

Cohenstein—Vot makes you tink you last fire was caused by rats gnawing matches?

Isaacstein—Vell, I springled a pound of powdered cheese over a box of matches der night before!

Very Dull Meeting.

"Well, did the club have a pleasant time?" asked her husband, when his woman's rights wife returned home.

"No, we didn't," she snapped. "Not a single member was absent, and we had nothing to talk about."

He Was Wide.

"Yes," said the fat man, "I live in Swamphurst, but I don't know the man you speak of."

"That's funny," he said he had a wide acquaintance in Swamphurst, and I naturally thought he meant

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years, according to the ability of the student. ST. EDWARD'S HALL, for boys under thirteen, is a unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-eight years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

UNDER THE FRENCH CAPITAL

Dark and Damp Caves Below the Paris Pavements.

The Paris of the pavement, gay, bright and exhilarating, is fairly familiar to us all, but underground Paris, dark, solitary and damp, extending for miles, is comparatively unknown. A part of this area is devoted to the catacombs—a valley of dry bones, a garden of the dead; the rest a garden still more vast, provides for the wants, or rather the luxuries, of the living—it is devoted to mushroom culture.

These subterranean passages extend for some twenty miles under the city capital and are from twenty feet to 100 feet beneath the surface.

It is very difficult to obtain permission to visit them, and when permission is obtained it requires some courage to avail oneself of it, for the only entrance is a circular opening like the mouth of a well, out of which a long pole stands. Through the pole, fastened at the top only, a fairly long intervals, sticks are thrust. This primitive ladder, the base of which swings like a pendulum in the impenetrable darkness below, is the only means of reaching the caves.

"Here," again cried our guide, with a burst of cheerfulness, "see this door! On the other side are the catacombs—as full rooms." We smiled. We were not afraid of the bones with an iron door between them and us.—The Strand Magazine.

What Might Have Been.

Sonoma, Mich., July 21st.—Mr. De los Hutchins of this place says: "I could have had Dodd's Kidney Pills 25 years ago I would not now be crippled as I am."

Mr. Hutchins spent from 1861 to 1864 in the swamps of Louisiana as a northern soldier and with the result that he contracted Rheumatism which gave him much pain till Mr. Fred Parker, the local druggist, advised him to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first two boxes did not seem to help him very much, but Mr. Parker, knowing that Dodd's Kidney Pills would eventually cure him, pressed Mr. Hutchins to continue and by the time four boxes were used the short, sharp, shooting pains which had tortured his back, hip, and legs were entirely gone. Mr. Hutchins says: "I can not tell you how much better I am feeling. If it were not for the way my hands, feet, and knees are drawn out of shape I would be about as good as ever."

If Christ is seen in your life, somebody will be convinced that God is still working miracles on earth.

Pathetic Tale of Sad Happening in the Life of Miss Patsy Colerain of Bardstown, Ky.—Story of Forty Years Ago.

(Special Letter.) DOZEN miles perhaps east of Bardstown, Ky., in a sequestered neighborhood, reside Nathan Colerain, a childless widower of advanced age, and his maiden sister, who is now past middle life. The Colerain residence is an old-fashioned, unpretentious farmhouse, situated in the midst of a verdant lawn, shadowed by heavy foliaged forest trees. Miss Patsy Colerain, or "Aunt Patsy," as she is familiarly known to her neighbors and friends, is a lady of great refinement, bearing traces of a remarkable youth full beauty. She is very quiet and unobtrusive and has not gone beyond the precincts of her own yard for nearly forty years. There is tragic history connected with her estrangement from the world that would afford rich material for a thrilling romance.

Miss Colerain Forty Years Ago.

In the spacious hall of the Colerain homestead stands a clock, an old-fashioned affair of the "grandfather" species. This old timepiece is over a century old, and is indeed a quaint looking object, with the smiling face of a full moon and a ship riding at anchor on a placid sea painted above its dial. The pendulum of the old clock has been motionless, and its elaborately carved brass hands have never moved a jot since the fateful night in the year 1864 when it played an important part in a bloody tragedy that broke Miss Patsy Colerain's heart and enveloped her life in a pall of gloom that will never be lifted this side of the grave.

In 1864 Miss Patsy Colerain was considered one of the handsomest young women in Nelson county. Of an old-line family, wealthy in her own name, she was naturally much sought after and had suitors by the score. Of course, she had but one choice, and that was Reuben Morehead, a descendant of one of Kentucky's governors, who claimed Nelson county as his birthplace. Young Morehead was an orphan, who had been reared by a neighboring farmer. Patsy had known him all her life, and had loved him as far back as she could remember. The war broke out and Reuben took up arms for the North. This followed sad days for the young girl. Her father sickened and died, and her only brother was in the far south, battling for the Confederacy. Thus she was left with only the faithful negro slaves and a nephew barely in his teens.

At this time the neighborhood was full of guerrillas. "Sue" Mundy and his gang were terrorizing that entire section and soldiers and civilians alike were falling at their hands. The outlaws were frequently at the Colerain house, and while Patsy had never suffered any indignities from them, she was in constant terror lest she might.

One rainy night in April, 1864, Miss Colerain was sitting before a cheerful fire, her mind busy with thoughts of her absent lover, when suddenly the door opened, and young Morehead, attired in a handsome uniform, stood before her. Before she could speak the young soldier caught her in his arms and showered kisses upon her blushing face.

A second later she broke from his embrace and trembling with fright she remonstrated with him for daring to leave his command and coming here alone. The country, she said, was swarming with guerrillas and other enemies to his cause, and that if he was caught here his life would pay the penalty. He soon reassured her, however, and convinced her that he could reach his lines, which were not far away, without the least danger to himself.

Happy to have him with her, she nestled up to him on the old sofa, and together they talked of love and the happy times when the cruel war would be over and they would be united, never to part.

While thus engaged there came above the patter of the rain the tramping of many horses. The lovers' faces blanched with terror, for they knew that enemies were upon them. Going to the window Patsy saw by the faint light of the moon breaking through the clouds, that which caused her heart to cease to beat and paralyzed her every thought and motion. The yard was filled with half-drunken guerrillas.

When her speech at last came to her, she turned to her lover, who was now at her side, and said, in scarcely audible tones:

"My God, Reuben; it is 'Sue' Mundy and his gang. If they catch you here it is certain death! Oh, what shall we do?"

By this time the guerrillas were at the door, clamoring for admittance. Then it was that an idea came to the distressed girl.

"The old clock, Reuben; get into that," she said, "it is plenty large, and they will never discover you there."

The young man lost no time in clambering into the barrel of the clock, and his sweetheart fastened the door. Then, with a lighter heart, she admitted the guerrillas, who were growling and cursing at the delay.

Filing through the long hall into the cozy sitting room, they took seats and demanded refreshments. Patsy left to comply with their demands, but she had hardly left the dining room when she heard the guerrillas raving and cursing and the report of firearms.

Realizing the worst, she hurried back and reached the hall just in time to witness the murderous outlaws dragging the dead body of her lover from the old clock. At this juncture again came the tramp of horses, followed by more firing and commotion, and then to Patsy came a blank.

For weeks the girl hovered between life and death, a victim of brain fever. When the disease left her she was but a wreck of her former self. When she grew stronger they told her that she had neglected to conceal her lover's overcoat and gloves. That the guerrillas discovered them and instituted a search for the young soldier. That the latter threw open the door of the clock, presumably with the hope of making his escape, when he was shot and instantly killed. About this time a detachment of young Morehead's command swooped down upon the guerrillas and put them to flight.

This story reads like fiction, but nevertheless, every word of it is true. As before stated, one of the actors still lives, and the old clock, with defaced woodwork and motionless machinery, stands in the self-same spot it did on that dreadful night, its brazen hands still marking the hour that the brave young soldier met his ignominious death.

Well-Meant Advice.

Congressman Beidler of Ohio went into a Washington restaurant and ordered a steak and said: "Have it well done and have it in a hurry." The colored waiter hesitatingly suggested: "If you're in a hurry, boss, why don't you have yo' steak rare and den yo' won't have to wait so long?" The congressman at first was disposed to feel angry, but the dandy was evidently sincere and his tip did not suffer because of his remark.

Name is Valuable.

N. Chew, a second deputy auditor in the postoffice department, Washington, does little but sign his name for about eight hours every day. It is said that he owes his appointment largely to his having a signature containing but five letters and that can be written with great rapidity.

THE TIP WENT WRONG

BUT IT LOOKED LIKE A SURE ENOUGH GOOD THING.

Woman Whose New Gown Dyed Her Before the Race Tells of a "Hunch" That Was Misleading—Story of a Tragedy.

The woman with the washed-out polka-dot gown looked sadly at her friend in the fresh looking tan linen frock who had called to see her.

"What are you looking so blue about?" asked the tan linen girl. The washed-out woman eyed her sharply. Then she flushed.

"I suppose you mean my gown?" she replied. "No doubt you are surprised to see me wearing such a raggy looking thing—but I'm doing it as a punishment!"

The tan linen girl looked the washy gown over. "Are your sins as bad as that?" she said. "I can hardly believe it."

"No womanly woman should ever bet on a horse race!" announced she who was being punished.

"Oh, I don't know!" said the tan linen girl. "I won a hat and a dozen gloves and two pounds of bon bons on the Suburban."

"Oh, pouf! I don't mean bets like that. You never have to pay if you lose. I mean real money."

"I never knew you were that sort of a girl!" said the tan linen one.

"No, I am not; that's the trouble. I don't know anything about it. But there are worse things. It all began with this gown—this limp, spotty looking thing you see me wearing. This is one of those alluring creations that you see in shop windows on a beautiful blonde wax lady with red finger nails."

"Just fancy," said the tan linen girl.

"You wouldn't notice the gown at all except that you see it from the street car. You wouldn't see it except that it has a big starting price mark on the wax lady's chest-of-hanging from her elbow like a theater bag. This holds you and although you may have the natural, inborn antipathy for purchasing goods that are marked in windows, it fascinates you like a Japanese crystal."

"In reality it is a regularly cooked-up trap for catching feminine lobsters, and there is always a lot more lobster to a feminine one than the other kind. You stand staring at the gown and say to yourself: 'Twenty-five dollars. Goodness. That's how some women manage to dress so cheaply. Now I should go to Chargem's and pay forty-five for one no better.'"

"You don't really think of getting the gown, but you yield to the temptation of going in a shop that you've never been in before. You are met inside the door by an imposing specimen of masculinity, who smiles and bows with a certain magnificent unbending of dignity and then almost carries you to the elevator. When you are projected on the floor designated you are met by another man. He usually looks as though he'd seen better days and has that straggly sort of whiskers that you might call near-whiskers."

"This man scrapes before you and call out a young woman, 6 feet high with a 48 bust measure, who passes you on to another Juno. By this time they have you landed in the basket. You feel positively ashamed to have come in for such a cheap gown. Frequently all they have to do is to bring out a $50 or a $100 gown at this stage and you order it."

"If you have the money, you mean?"

"And sometimes when you don't have it. You find the gowns are made up without any silk lining. That, of course, reduces their value, but the heavyweight girl tells you they are, so light for summer. Then with a sort of Japanese wrestling tactics they get one around you in some way before a tall mirror and pull it down in the back just as Warfield does when he sells a coat in the play, and tell you that all it needs is a little alteration. "This is just what happened to me. I will say that the Juno girl seemed too kind-hearted for her place, for she gave me a funny little look, lifted her eyebrows just a little bit—like this."

"Needs a Little Alteration."

"And didn't you understand? That means twenty-three."

"Twenty-three? And what does twenty-three mean?"

"Why, 'Get out quick.' Well—you are slow!"

"She said: 'Don't you fancy those other gowns in black and white? They cost a little more, but they are quite cheek! I bought one myself this morning."

"No, thanks," I said. Then she sent for the fitter. He made a few passes around—you know how they do—and said, 'That'll be $6, Miss MacGrouchy!'"

"MacGrouchy!"

"Yes; they always have queer names like that. Just the same as you find 'Pinkie Chinn' and 'Birdie Glue' on programs. Well, I told them I wanted the gown sent home the next day, because I was going on a little journey and wanted to wear it in the car. I tried to convey the impression that I was going to throw it away when I reached the other end of the trip. You know how one acts when buying anything cheap. But I wanted to wear it to the Suburban. It came home the day before the race."

"Friday—the thirteenth!" said the tan linen girl.

"And I thought I'd wear it in the afternoon, just to get the first newness out of it. I was going to dinner in the evening and had to get some gloves, so I went downtown for them. And here's where the tragedy begins."

"I was safely on the way home when it began to rain—one of those sudden, awful downpours. I was drenched before I could get in a doorway or a cab or a car or anything. When I got home this gown was like this, only much worse, and, oh, so wet! It clung to me like a flag around a mast in a rainstorm. But the worst of it all was I had changed color. My neck and shoulders and arms were blue. And it wouldn't wash off. Nothing would touch it."

"The dinner was out of the question, so I called them up on the telephone. It was at the Baskinridges, and I got Ned Baskinridge on the 'phone and I explained as best I could. He said he knew a fellow who bought a white flannel yachting suit once and got caught in the rain and had to go home in a cab. I said I wouldn't have minded that, but changing color was another thing."

"Then, you know, how men are. He said: 'Just put on a heavy veil and come over anyhow.' They were picking winners for the Suburban."

"You don't understand how bad it is," I said. "It may be poisonous. And missing the dinner and all has given me the blues besides."

"Then he suddenly ejaculated something, and I thought he'd had an electric shock. I asked what was the matter."

"If that isn't the straightest kind of a tip," said he, and he began to tell the others what had happened. Then he told me of the horse Blues that was to run at Sheephead Bay. He said there was a tip out on him. "And that's about all," said the washed-out girl, wearily; "we all went the next day and I wore the gown for luck, and four veils. I was very popular going down. They said I was a mascot. But it was so different coming home."

"Why, Blues was third," said the tan girl.

"Yes, but we didn't bother with anything like that. The tip was too straight, they said. Ah, well, it's all over now."

"Oh, you don't know how to bet!" exclaimed the tan linen girl, triumphantly. "Why, I won on Watercure."

"Watercure?" said the washed-out girl; "why, he came in next to last."

"Ah, yes," said the tan linen girl, "but I know how to bet, you see. I always bet all the way round."—New York Sun.

The Vanity of Antony.

"I am dying, Egypt, dying," remarked Antony to Cleopatra.

From without the windows of the palace could be heard the low ripple of the Nile and the shouts of the soldiers.

Cleopatra did not look up from the sheet of plans of "How to Build a $3,600 Barge for $65."

She murmured: "I should think, Antony, that a man of your age would realize the fact that gray hair was becoming. Anyway, you might soak your head in hair dye for a week and you couldn't fool any one with the result."

But Antony had read too many of the testimonials to be influenced by her comment.—Baltimore American.

Palpitation of the Heart, Cold Hands and Feet, Sinking Feelings—Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Mrs. X. Schneider.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1901, to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering from systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure. I will always be your debtor. I have already recommended Peruna to my friends and neighbors and they all praise it. I wish that all suffering women would try it. I testify this according to the truth."—Mrs. X. Schneider.

Over half the women have catarrh in some form or another. And yet, probably, not a tenth of the women know that their disease is catarrh. To distinguish catarrh of various organs it has been named very differently.

One woman has dyspepsia, another bronchitis, another Bright's disease, another liver complaint, another consumption, another female complaint. These women would be very much surprised to hear that they are all suffering with chronic catarrh. But it is so, nevertheless.

Each one of these troubles and a great many more are simply catarrh—that is, chronic inflammation of the mucous lining of whichever organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of female diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate—it cures.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley, Congressman from Illinois, writes from Robinson, Ill., the following praise for the great catarrhal tonic Peruna. Congressman Crowley says:

"Mrs. Crowley has taken a number of bottles of Peruna on account of nervous troubles. It has proven a strong tonic and lasting cure. I can cheerfully recommend it."—J. B. Crowley.

POISONING THE SYSTEM

It is through the bowels that the body is cleansed of impurities. Constipation keeps these poisons in the system, causing headache, dizziness, and melancholia at first, then the unsightly eruptions and finally seriousness unless a remedy is applied. DeWitt's Little Early Risers prevent this trouble by stimulating the liver and promote easy, healthy action of the bowels. These little pills do not act violently but by strengthening the bowels enable them to perform their own work. Never gripe or distress. Glazier & Stimson.

MOTHER ALWAYS KEEPS IT.

"My mother suffered a long time from distressing pains and general ill health due primarily to indigestion," says L. W. Spaulding, Verona, Mo. "Two years ago I got her to try Kodol. She grew better at once and now, at the age of seventy-six, eats anything she wants, remarking that she fears no bad effects as she has her bottle of Kodol handy." Don't waste time doctoring symptoms. Go after the cause. If your stomach is sound your health will be good. Kodol rests the stomach and strengthens the body by digesting your food. It is nature's own tonic. Glazier & Stimson.
